M.D. XXXV.

S. Paul. II. Tessa. III.

Hope for us, that the worde of God maye haue fre passage and be glorified.

S. Paul. II. Coloss. III.

Let the worde of Christ dwell in you plentifully in al wisdom.

Isaie. R.

Let not the Booke of this lawe departe out of thy mouth, but exercep thy selfe therein daye and nyght, that thou mayest hope and do every thinge according to it that is written therein.

These are the lawes, that thou shalt keepe before them.

So your waye into all the world, spread the Gospel.

Because that whan thou go

est to study in holy scripture, thou shuldest do it with reuerence, ther foze for thy instruction & loupnge admonition therto, the Reue-rende father in god, Nicolas, Bisshoppe of Salisburp hath prescribed the this prayer folowynge, taken out of the same.

Jacob. 7.

Orde God almyghty whiche longe agoo saydest by the mouthe of James thyn Apostle: If any of you lacke wysdom, let hym aske it of God whiche geueth it plenteously to all men, and casteth no man in the tette, and it shal be geuen hym. Heare my petition for this thy promys sake.

Let my prayer ascende luckely in to thy syght lyke incense. Let thyn eare be attent vnto my depe desyre. Geue me wysdome which is euer assistent about thy seate. And put me not out from amonge thy children, for I am thy seruaunt and sonne of thy handmaide. Let me her (I meane thy godly wysdome) out of thyn holy heauens, and from the trone of thy maiesty, that she maye be with me, and labour with me, & I may knowe what is acceptable in thy syght. Oh lerne me goodnes, nurtoure, and knowlege, for I beleue thy commande-mentes. Thou art good and gracious, instructe me in thyn ordynances. Let myne hertie besechynge ascende in to thy presence. Geue me vnderstandynge accordynge to thy worde. Oh geue me vnderstodunge, and I shall kepe thy lawe, & I shall kepe it with all myne herte. Shewe me thy wayes o Lorde, & teache me thy patthes. Leade me in to thy trueth and lerne me, for thou art the God of my helth.
And on the do I depende alway. Heare now my voyce o Lorde with which I haue cryed vnto the. Haue mercy vpon me, and graciously heare me for Iesus Christes sake oure Lorde, which lyueth and reygneth with the his father & the holy goost worlde without ende. Amen.

After the ende of any Chapter (yf thou wilt) thou mayest saye these verses folowynge.

Leade me (o Lorde) in thy waye, and let me walke in thy trueth.
Oh let myne herte delyte in fearynge thy name.

Ordye my goynges after thy worde, that no wyckednes reygne in me.

Kepe my steppes within thy patthes, lest my fete turne in to any contrary waye.

Unto the most victorious Prince

and our most gracious soueraigne Lorde, kynge Henry the kyng of Englonde and of Fraunce, Lorde of Irelande, &c.
Defendour of the fayth, and vnder God
the chefe and supreme heade of the Church of Englonde.

1535

The ryght & iust administracyon of the lawes that God gaue vnto Moses and vnto Joshua: the testimonye of faythfulnes that God gaue of David: the plenteous abundaunce of wysdome that God gaue vnto Salomon: the lucky and prosperous age with the multiplicacyon of sede whiche God gaue vnto Abraham and Sara his wyfe, be geue vnto you most gracious Prince, with your dearest iust wyfe, and most vertuous Princesse, Quene Anne, Amen.

Caiphas beyng bysshope of that ycare, lyke a blynde prophete (not vnderstandynge what he sayd) propheted, that it was better to put Christ vnto death, then that all the people shulde peryshe: he mea-nyng, that Christ was an heretike, a deceauer of the people, & a destroyer of the lawe, and that it was better therfore to put Christ vnto death, than to suffre hym for to lyue, and to deceaue the people, &c.
where in very dede Christ was the true prophete, the true Messias, and the onely true Sauour of the worlde, sent of his heauenly father to suffre the moste cruell, most shamefull, and most necessary death for our redempcyon: accordynge to the nyng of the prophete truly vnderstande.

Euen after the same maner & blynde bysshope of Rome, (that blynde Baalam
I saye) not vnderstandynge what he dyd, gaue vnto your grace this tytyle: Defendour of the fayth, onely bycause your hyghnes suffred your bysshoppes to burne Gods worde the rote of fayth, and to persecute the louers and mynisters of the same.
where in very dede the blynde bysshope (though he knewe not what he dyd) pro-pheted, that by the ryghteous administracyon and contynuall diligence of youre grace, the fayth shulde so be defended, that Gods worde the mother of fayth with the frutes therof, shulde haue his fre course thorowe out all Christendome, but specially in your realme.

If your hyghnesse now of your princely benygnyte wyl pardon me to compare these two bysshoppes (I meane bysshope Caiphas and the bysshope of Rome) & they prophetes together, I doute not but we shal fynde them agree lyke brethren, though the one be a Iewe and the other a counterfayte Christian. First, Caiphas propheted that it was better to put Christ vnto death, then that the people shulde peryshe. The bysshope of Rome also, not knowynge what he propheted, gaue your grace this tytyle: Defendour of the fayth. The trueth of both these prophecies is of the holy goost (as was Baalams prophete) though they that spake the, knewe not what they sayd. The trueth of Caiphas prophete is, that it was necessary for mans saluacyon, that Christ by his death shulde ouercome death, and redeme vs. And the trueth of oure Baalams prophete is, & your grace in very dede shulde defende the fayth, & euen the true fayth of Christ, no dreames, no fables, no heresie, no papistlicall inuencions, but the vncorrupte fayth of Gods most holy worde, which to set forth (prayed be the goodnes of God, and increace youre gracyous purpose) your hyghnes with youre most honorable counsell, applyeth all his studye and endeouore.

These two blynde bysshopes now agree in the vnderstandynge of theyr prophetes:
for Caiphas taketh Christ for an heretike, oure Baalam taketh the worde of Christ for heresie. Caiphas iudgeth it to be a good dede to put Christ vnto death, that he shulde not deceaue the people. Our Balaam calleth defendynge of the fayth, the suppressyng, keepyng secrete, and burnyng of the worde of fayth: lest the lyght thre of shulde bitter his darknes: lest his owne Decretales & Decrees, his owne lawes and constitucions, his owne statutes and inuencions shulde come to none effecte: lest his intollerable exactions and vsurpacions shulde lose theyr strengthe: lest it shulde be known what a thefe and murderer he is in the cause of Christ, and how haynous a traytoure to God and man in defraudyng all Christen kynges & prynces of theyr due obedience: lest we poure graces subiectes shulde haue eyes in the worde of God, at the last to spy out his crafty conuycpance and iuglynges: and lest men shulde se, how soe he and his false Apostles haue deceaued all Christendome, specially poure noble realme of Englonde.

Thus your grace seyth how brotherly the Jewysch bysshoppe and our Balaam agree together, not onely in myter and outwarde appareance: but as the one persecuted the Lorde Jesus in his owne persone, so doth the other persecute his worde and resysteth his holy ordynaunce in the auctorite of his anoynted kynges. For so moche now as the worde of God is the onely trueth that dryueth away all lyes, and discloseth all iuglyng and disceate, therfore is our Balaam of Rome so lothe that the scripture shulde be knowe in the mother tonge: lest yf kynges and prynces (specially aboue all other) were exerceysed therein, they shulde reclame and chalenge agayne theyr due auctorite, which he falsely hath vsurped so many yerres, and so tye hym shorter: and lest the people beyng taught by the worde of God, shulde fall from yf false fayned obediēce of hym and his disguised Apostles, vnto the true obediēce commaunded by Gods owne mouth: as namely, to obey theyr pryncce, to obey father and mother, &c. and not to steppe ouer father and mothers hely to enter in to his paynted religions, as his ypocrites teach: for he knoweth well ynough, that yf the cleare Sonne of Gods worde come ones to the heate of the daye, it shal dryue away all the foule myst of his deuylsh doctrines. Therfore were it moze to the mayntenaunce of Antichristes kyngdome, that the worlde were styll in ignorance and blyndnes, and that the scripture shulde neuer come to lyghte. For the scripture (both in the olde testament and in the new) declareth most abouerdantly that the office, auctorite and power geuen of God vnto kynges / is in earth aboue all other powers: let them call the selues Popes, Cardynalles, or what so euer they will, the worde of god declareth them (yee and commaundeth them vnder payne of dampnation) to be obedient vnto the temporall swerde: As in the olde Testament all the Prophetes, Priestes and Leuites were. And in the new Testament Christ & his Apostles both were obedient them selues, and taught obediēce of all men vnto theyr prynces ad temporall rulers: which here vnto vs in the worlde present the persone of God, and are called Goddes in the scripture, bycause of the excellēcy of theyr office. And though there were no mo auctorities but the same, to proue the preminence of the temporall swerde, yet by this the scripture declareth playnly, that as there is nothyng aboue God, so is there no man aboue the kyng in his realme but that he onely vnder God is the chefe heade of all the cōgregacyon and church of the same. And in token that this is true, there hath ben of olde antiquite (and is yet vnto this daye) a lounge ceremonye vsed in your realme of Englonde, yf whā your graces subiectes reade your letters, or begynne to talke or come of your hyghnes, they moue theyr bonettes for a signe & token of reuerence vnto your grace, as to theyr most soueraigne lord & heade vnder God, which thyng no man vbleth to do to any bysshoppe, wherby (yf oure vnderstandyng were nat blynded) we myght euidently perceaue, that euen very nature teacheth vs the same, that scripture commaundeth vs: and that lyke as it is agaynst Gods worde that a kyng shulde not be the chefe heade of his people, euen so (I saye) is it agaynst kynde that we shulde knowe any other heade aboue hym vnder God.

And that no prest nor bysshoppe is exempte (nor can be lawfully) from the obediēce of his pryncce, the scripture is full both of strypte commaundementes, & practises of the

of the holysst men. & Aaron was obedient vnto Moses, and cal led hym his lord, & Numie. though he was his owne brother. Eleasar and Phineas were vnder the obediēce 12.b. of Josua. & Nathan the prophete fell downe to the grounde before kyng David, Jos. 4c. he had his pryncce in such reuerence (he made not the kyng for to kysse his fote as 3. Reg. the bysshoppe of Rome maketh Emperours to do) Norwithstandyng he spared 1.c. not to rebuke hym, and that ryght sharply whan he fell from the worde of God 3. Reg. to adultery and manslaughter. For he was not afrayed to reprove hym of his sin 18.b. nes, nomoze than Helyas the prophete stode in feare to save vnto kyng Achab: Leuit. 18.b. & It is thou and thy fathers house that trouble Israell, because ye haue forsaken y 18.b. commaundementes of the Lorde, and walke after Baal. And as Johan Baptyste Math. durst saye vnto kyng Herode: It is not lawfull for the to take thy brothers wyfe. 14.a. But to my purpose I passe ouer innumerable mo ensamples both of the olde Testa- ment and of the new, for feare lest I be to teduous vnto your grace. Summa, in all godly regimentes of olde tyme the kyng and tēporall iudge was obeyed of euery man, and was alwaye vnder God the chefe and supreme heade of the whole cōgregacyon, and deposed euen prestes whan he saue an vrgēnt cause, as Salomon dyd vnto Abiathar. who coulde than stonde agaynst the godly obediēce of his 3. Reg. pryncce (excepte he wolde be at defyaunce with God and all his holy ordynaunces) 2.d. that were well acquainted with the holy scripture, which so earnestly cōmendeth vnto euery one of vs the auctorite and power geuen of God vnto kynges and tēporall rulers: Therfore doth Moses so strately forbyde the Israelites to speake Exod. so moche as an euell worde agaynst the pryncce of y people, moche lesse than to diso- 22.d. beye hym, or to withstonde hym. Doth not Jeremy the prophete and Baruc also Jerem. exhorte the people in captiuite, to praye for the prosperous welfare of the kyng of 19.b. Babilon, and to obeye hym, though he was an infidele? In the new Testament Bar. 2c. whā oure sauoure Christ (beyng yet fre & Lorde of al kynges & prynces) shewed his Math. obediēce in payenge the trybute to oure enlample, & dyd he not a miracle there in 17.d. puttynge the pece of money in the fysshes mouth (that Peter myght paye the custo- mer therwith) and all to stablyshe the obediēce due vnto prynces: & dyd not Jo- seph and Mary the mother of our sauour Christ departe fro Nazareth vnto Beth Lu. 2.a. leē, so farrestom home, to shewe theyr obediēce in payenge the tax to the pryncce? And wolde not oure Sauoure be borne in the same obediēce: & doth not Paule Ro. 13 a prouounce hym to resyste God hym selfe, that resysteth the auctorite of his pryncce? And (to be shorte) the Apostle Peter dothe not onely stablyshe the obediēce vnto 1. Petr. prynces and temporall rulers: but affirmeth playnly the kyng (and no bysshoppe) 2.b. to be the chefe heade. Innumerable places mo are there in scripture, which bynde vs to the obediēce of oure pryncce, and declare vnto vs, that no man is nor can be lawfully excepte from the same: but that all the mynisters of Goddes worde are vnder the tēporall swerde: & prynces onely to owe obediēce vnto God & his worde.

And where as Antichrist vnto poure graces tyme dyd thrust his heade into y imperiall crowne of your hyghnes (as he doth yet with other noble prynces mo) that lerned he of Sathā the authour of pryde, and therein doth he both agaynst the doctryne & also agaynst y ensample of Christe: whiche because his kyngdome was not of this worlde, medled with no temporal matters, as it is euident both by his wordes and practyse: Luc. xii. Math. xxvi. Joh. vi. Joh. xviii. where he y hath eyes to se, maye se: & he y hath eares to heare, maye heare, y Christes admynistraction was nothyng tēporall, but playne spiritual, as he hym selfe affirmeth & proueth in the fourth chapter of saynt Luke out of the prophete Eay: where all bysshoppes and prestes maye se, how farre theyr byndyng and lowyng extendeth, and where in theyr office consisteth, namely in preachynge the Gospell. &c.

wherfore (most gracyous pryncce) there is no tonge I thynke, that can fully ex- presse and declare the vtollerable iniuries, which haue bene done vnto God, to al prynces and to the compynalties of all christen realmes, sence they which shulde be onely the mynisters of Gods worde, became lordes of the worlde, and thrust y true and iust pynces out of theyr rowmes. whose herte wolde not pittie it (ye eue with lamentacyon) to remember but onely the vntollerable wyonge done by that Antychrist of Rome vnto youre graces most noble predeceffoure kynge John. I passe ouer his pestilent pykynge of Peter pens out of youre realme: his stealyng awaye of youre money for pardons: benefices and bysshoppes: his dilcauyng of youre subiectes soules with his deuelyshe doctrynes and sectes of his false religions: his bloudsheddyng of so many of your graces people, for bokes of the scripture, whose herte wolde not be grieved (ye and that out of measure) to call to remembrance, how obstinate and disobedient, how presumptuous & stubburne that Antychrist made the bysshoppes of youre realme agaynst your graces noble predeceffours in tymes past, as it is manifest in y Cronicles: I trust verely there be no suche now within youre realme. If there be, let them remembre these wordes of scripture: Presumptuousnes goeth before destruccio, & after a proude stomacke there foloweth a fall.

What is now the cause of all these vntollerable and nomore to be suffred abhominacions? Truly euen the ignorance of the scripture of God. For how had it els ben possible, that such blyndnes shulde haue come in to y worlde, had not y lyghte of Gods worde bene extynct? How coude men (I saye) haue bene so farre from the true seruyce of God, and from the due obedience of theyr pynce, had not the lawe of God bene clene shute by, depycted, cast asyde, and put out of remembrance? As it was afore the tyme of that noble kynge Josias, and as it hath bene also amonge vs vnto youre graces tyme: by whose most ryghteous admystracyon (thorowe the mercyfull goodnes of God) it is now founde agayne, & as it was in the dayes of that most vertuous kynge Josias. And prayled be the father, the sonne, and the holy goost worlde without ende, which so excellently hath endewed youre Pynce ly hert with such feruentnes to his honoure, and to the welth of youre louyng subiectes, that I maye ryghtuously (by iust occasyons in youre persone) compare youre hyghnes vnto that noble and gracyous kynge, y lanterne of lyghte amonge pynces, that feruent protectour and defender of the lawes of God: which comaunded straitly (as youre grace doth) that the lawe of God shulde be redde and taught vnto all y people: set the prestes to theyr office in the worde of god: destroyed Idolatry and false ydols: put doyme all euell customes and abusyons: set by the true honoure of God: applyed all his studye and endeuoure to the ryghtuous admystracyon of the most vncorrupte lawe of God. &c. What felicitye was amonge y people of Jerusalem in his dayes? And what prosperous health both of soule & body foloweth the lyke mynistracion in youre hyghnes, we begynne now (prayled be God) to haue experience. For as false doctryne is the origenall cause of all euell plagges and destruccyon, so is y true excecutyng of the lawe of God ad the preaching of the same, the mother of all godly prosperite. The onely worde of god (I saye) is the cause of all felicitye, it byngeth all goodnes with it, it byngeth lernynge, it geueth vnderstandynge, it causeth good workes, it maketh chyldren of obedience, breuely, it teacheth all estates theyr office and duety. Seynge then that the scripture of God teacheth vs euery thyng sufficiently, both what we oughte to do, and what we oughte to leaue vndone: whome we are bounde to obey, and whome we shulde not obey: therfore (I saye) it causeth all prosperite, and setteth euery thyng in frame: and where it is taught and knowen, it lyghteneth all darkenes, cōforteth all sorow hertes, leaueth no pooze man vnhelpe, suffreth nothyng amysse vnamended, letteth no pynce be disobeyed, permyteth no heresie to be preached: but refourmeth all thynges, amēdeth that is amysse, and setteth euery thyng in order. And why: because it is geuen by the inspiracyon of God, therfore is it euer byngynge profyte and frute, by teachynge, by inpyouynge, by amendynge and refourmyng all the y wyl receaue it, to make them perfecte & mete vnto all good workes.

Agayne, considerynge your Imperfall maiestye not onely to be my naturall soueraigne liege Lorde & chiefe heade of y church of Englode, but also the true defender and maynteyner of Gods lawes, I thought it my dutye and to belonge vnto my allegiaunce, whan I had translated this Bible, not onely to dedicate this translatyon vnto youre hyghnesse, but wholly to commytte it vnto the same: to the intent that yf any thyng therein be translated amysse (for in many thynges we fayle, euen whan we thynke so be sure) it may stode in youre graces handes, to correcte it, to amende it, to improue it, yee & cleane to reiecte it, yf youre godly wysdome shall thynke it necessary. And as I do with all humblenes submitte myne vnderstandynge and my pooze translatyon vnto y spirite of trueth in your grace, so make I this protestacyon (haupng God to recorde in my conscience) that I haue nether wrested nor altered so moch as one worde for the mayntenaunce of any maner of secte: but haue with a cleare conscience purely & faythfully translated this out of fyue sundry interpreters, haupng onely the manifest trueth of the scripture before myne eyes: Trustynge in the goodnes of God, that it shalbe vnto his worshippe: quietnes and tranquillite vnto your hyghnes: a perfecte stablyshment of all Gods ordynaunces within youre graces domynion: a generall comfote to all Christen hertes, and a continuall thankfulness both of olde and yonge vnto god, and to your grace, for beyng oure Moyses, and for byngynge vs out of this olde Egypte from the cruell handes of our spirituall Pharao: For where were the Jewes (by ten thousande partes) so moch bounde vnto kynge Dauid, for subduynge of grete Goliath and all theyr enemyes, as we ate to your grace, for deliuerynge vs out of oure olde Babylon call captiuyte: For y which 17. g. deliuerance and victorie I beseeke oure onely medyatoure Iesus Christ, to make soch meanes for vs vnto his heavenly father, y we neuer be vnthankfull vnto hym ner vnto your grace: but that we euer increace in the feare of him, in obedience vnto your hyghnesse, in loue vnfaigned vnto oure neighbours: and in all vertue that commeth of God. ## A prologe.

Myles Couerdale Unto the Christen reader.

Considerynge how excellent knowlege and lernynge an interpreter of scripture oughte to haue in the tongues, and ponderynge also myne owne insufficiency therin, & how weake I am to perfourme þe office of a translatoure, I was the more lothe to medle with this worke. Notwithstandynge whan I cōsidered how greate pytie it was that we shulde wante it so longe, & called to my remembraunce þe aduersite of them, which were not onely of rypc knowlege, but wolde also with all theyr hertes haue perfourmed þe theyr beganne, yf they had not had impediment: considerynge (I saye) that by reason of theyr aduersyte it coude not so soone haue bene broughte to an ende, as oure most prosperous nacyon wolde sayne haue had it: the se and other reasonable causes consydered, I was the more bolde to take it in hande. And to helpe me herin, I haue had sondre translations, not onely in latyn, but also of the Douche interpreters: whom (because of theyr spyngher gyses & speciall diligence in the Bible) I haue ben the more glad to folowe for the most parte, accordynge as I was requyred. But to saye the trueth befoze God, it was nether my labourer ner desyre, to haue this worke put in my hande: neuertheles it greued me þe other nacys shulde be more plenteouly p̄pouyded for with þe scripture in theyr mother tongue, then we: therfore whan I was instantly requyred, though I coude not do so well as I wolde, I thought it yet my dewtye to do my best, and that with a good wyll.

Where as some men thynke now þe many translatyons make diuysyon in þe sayth and in the people of God, þe is not so: for it was neuer better with the congregacion of god, then whan euery church almost had þe Byble of a sondre translation. Amonge the Grekes had not Origen a speciall translation: Had not Eulgius one peculiar, & lyke wylse Chrysostom: Besyde the seuentye interpreters, is there not the translation of Aquila, of Theodotio, of Symachus, and of sondre other: Agayne amonge the Latyn men, thou findest þe euery one almost v̄sed a speciall & sondre translation: for in so moch as euery byllshoppe had the knowlege of þe tongues, he gaue his diligence to haue the Byble of his awne translation. The doctours, as Hiereneus, Cyprianus, Tertullian, S. Iherome, S. Augustine, Hilarus & S. Ambrose vpon dyuerse places of the scripture, reade not þe texte all alyke.

Therfore oughte it not to be taken as euell, þe soch men as haue vnderstandynge now in oure tyme, exercyse them selues in þe tongues, & geue their diligence to translate out of one language in to another. See we ought rather to geue god hys thanks therfore, which thow his spete sterceth by mys myndes, so to exercise them selues therin. Wolde god it had neuer bene left of after þe tyme of S. Augustine, then shulde we neuer haue come in to soch blindness & ignoraunce, in to soch erroures & delusyons. For as soone as the Byble was cast asyde, & nomore put in exercyse, then beganne euery one of his awne heade to wyte what so euer came in to his brayne and þe seemed to be good in his awne eyes: and so grewe þe darknes of mys tradicions. And this same is þe cause þe we haue had so many wyters, which seldome made mēcyon of þe scripture of the Byble: & though they some tyme aleged it, yet was it done so farre out of season & so wyde from þe purpose, that a mā maye well perceaue, how that they neuer sawe the orygynall.

Seynge then þe this diligent exercyse of translatynge doth so moch good & edifyeth in other languages, why shulde it do euell in oures? Doubtes lyke as all nacys in þe dyuersite of speeches maye knowe one God in the vnyte of faith, and be one in loue: euen so maye dyuerse translatyons vnderstande one another, & that in the head articles & grounde of oure most blessed faith, though they vse sondre wordes. wherfore me thynke we haue greate occasyon to geue thanks vnto God, that he hath opened vnto his church the gyfte of interpretacyon & of p̄pnyng, and that there are now at this tyme so many, which with soch diligence and faithfulness interprete þe scripture to the honoure of god and edifyenge of his people, where as (lyke as whan many are shutynge together) euery one doth his best to be nyest the marke. And though they can not all attayne therto, yet shuteth one nyet then another, and hytteth it better then another, yee one can do it better the another. who is now then so vnreasonable, so despytfull, or enuyous, as to abhorre him þe doth all his diligence to hytte þe pycke, and to shute nyest it, though he mysse & come not nyest the mark: Ought not soch one rather to be commended, and to be helped forwarde, that he maye exercyse himselfe the more therin?

For the which cause (accordynge as I was desyred) I toke the more vpon me to set forth this speciall translatyon, not as a checker, not as a repprouer, or despyser of other mens translatyons (for amonge many as yet I haue founde none without occasyon of greate thankesgeyvinge vnto god) but lowly & saythfully haue I folowed myne interpreters, & that vnder correccyon. And though I haue sayled eny where (as there is noman but he mysse in some thyng) loue shall constyre all to þe best without eny peruerse iudgment. There is noman lyuynge þe can se all thynges, ne ther hath god geuen eny man to knowe euery thyng. One seyth more clearly then another, one hath more vnderstandynge then another, one can vtter a thyng better then another, shulde not set him at naught þe vnderstandeth lesse: yee he that hath þe more vnderstandynge, ought to remembre that the same gyfte is not his but Gods, and þe God hath geue it him to teach & enfourme the ignoraunt. yf thou hast knowlege therfore to iudge where eny faute is made, I doute not but thou wilt helpe to amende it, yf loue be ioyned with thy knowlege. Howbeit wherin so euer I can perceaue by my selfe, or by the informacyon of other, that I haue sayled (as it is no wonder) I shall now by the helpe of God ouerloke it better & amende it.

Now wil I exhorte the (who so euer thou be þe readeest scripture) yf thou fynde oughte therin þe thou vnderstandest not, or that appeareth to be repugnaunt, geue no temerarious ner hasty iudgment therof: but ascrybe it to thyne awne ignoraunce, not to the scripture, thynke þe thou vnderstandest it not, or þe it hath some other meanynge, or þe it is haply ouersene of þe interpreters, or wronge p̄pnted. Agayne, it shall greatly helpe þe to vnderstande scripture, yf thou marke not onely what is spoken or wyttten, but of whom, & vnto whom, with what wordes, at what tyme where, to what intent, with what circumstance, consyderynge what goeth befoze, and what foloweth after. For there be some thynges which are done & wyttre, to the intente þe we shulde do lyke wylse: as whan Abraham beleueth God, is obedient vnto his worde, & defendeth Loth his kynsman from violent wronge. There be some thynges also which are wyttre, to the intente þe we shulde eschue soch lyke. As whan Dauid lyeth with Arias wyfe, & causeth him to be slayne. Therfore (I saye) whan thou readeest scripture, be wylse & circumspecte: & whan thou comest to soch straunge maners of speakynge & darke sentences, to soch parables & similitudes, to soch dreames or vylions as are hyd from thy vnderstandynge, comytte them vnto God or to the gyfte of his holy spete in them þe are better lerned then thou.

As for the commendacyon of Gods holy scripture, I wolde sayne magnifye it as it is worthy, but I am farre vn sufficient therto. & therfore I thoughte it better for me to holde my tonge, then with few wordes to prayse or commende it: exhortynge þe (most deare reader) so to loue it, so to cleue vnto it, & so to folowe it in thy daylye conuersacyon, yf other men seynge thy good workes & the frutes of þe holy goost in the, maye prayse the father of heauen, & geue his worde a good repoyte: for to lyue after the lawe of God, & to leade a vertuous conueracyon, is the greatest prayse þe thou canst geue vnto his doctryne.

But as touchynge the euell repoyte and dysprayse that the good worde of God hath by the corrupte and euell conuersacyon of some, þe daylye heare it and professe it outwardly with theyr mouthes, I exhorte þe (most deare reader) let not þe offende thener withdrawe thy mynde fro the loue of þe trueth, nether moue þe to be partaker in lyke

A prologe.

Unthankfulness: but seynge þ lighte is come in to the worlde, loue nomore the woꝝ-kes of darknes, receaue not the grace of god in vayne. Call to thy remembraunce how louynge & mercifull God is vnto the, how kyndly and fatherly he helpeth the in al trouble, teacheth thyne ignoraunce, healeth the in all thy syknesse, forgeueth the all thy synnes, fedeþ þ, geueth the drynke, helpeth þ out of pꝛeson, norysheth the in straunge countrees, careth for the, & seþeth þ thou wante noþynge. Call this to mynde (I saye) & that earnestly, and consydre how thou hast receaued of god all the se benefices (ye and many mo then thou canst desyre) how thou art bounde lyke wise to shewe thy selfe vnto thy neighbour as farre as thou canst, to teach him yf he be ignoraunt, to helpe him in all his trouble, to heale his syknes, to forgeue him his offences, and that hartely, to fede him, to cherisþ him, to care for him, and to se þ he wante noþynge. And on this behalfe I beseeke the (thou þ hast þ ryches of this worl-de, and louest God with thy harte) to lyfte vp thyne eyes, and se how greate a multitude of poore people renne thorow euery towne: haue pitie on thyne awne flesh, helpe them with a good harte, and do with thy counsell all that euer thou canst, that this vnshamefast beggynge maye be put downe, that these ydle folkes maye be set to labour, & that soch as are not able to get theyꝝ lyuynge, maye be prouyded for.
At the leest thou þ art of counsell with soch as are in auctoryte, geue them some oc-casyon to cast theyꝝ heades together, and to make prouysyon for the poore. But the in remembraunce of those noble cyties in other countrees, that by the auctoryte of theyꝝ pꝛynces haue so rycheþ ad well prouyded for theyꝝ poore people, to the greate shame & dishonour of vs, yf we lyke wyse receauynge þ worde of God, shewe not soch lyke frutes therof. wolde God þ those men (whose office is to maynteyne þ comon welth) were as diligent in this cause as they are in oþer. Let vs beware by tymes, for after vnthankfulness there foloweth euer a plage: the merciful hande of God be with vs, & defende vs that we be not partakers therof.

6. a.

Go to now (most deare reader) & syt the downe at the Lordes fete and reade his wordes, & (as Moses teacheth the Jewes) take them in to theyꝝ herte, & let thy tal-kyng & communicacion be of them whan thou syttest in thyne house, or goest by þ waye, whan thou lyest downe, & whan thou rysest vp. And aboue all thynges fast-thyon thy lyfe, & couersacion accordyng to the doctryne of the holy goost therin, that thou mayest be partaker of þ good promyses of god in the Wyble, & be heyre of his blessynge in Christ. In whom yf thou put thy trust, & be an vnspayed reader: or hearer of his worde with thy hert, thou shalt fynde swetenesse theryn, & spye wonderous thynges, to thy vnderstandynge, to the auoydynge of all sedycious sectes, to the abhorrynge of thy olde synfull lyfe, & to the stablyshynge of thy godly conuersacyon.

In the first boke of Moses (called Genesis) thou mayest lerne to knowe the al-myghtye power of god in creatynge all of naught, his infinite wysdome in ordynyng the same, his ryghteousnes in punysshynge þ vngodly, his loue & fatherly mercy in comforynge the righteous with his promyses, &c.

In the seconde boke (called Exodus) we se the myghtye arme of god, in deli-uerynge his people from so greate bondage out of Egypte, and what prouysyon he maketh for them in the wilderness, how he teacheth them with his wholsome worde and how the Tabernacle was made and set vp.

In the thyrde boke (called Leviticus) is declared what sacrifices the pꝛiestes & Leuites bled, and what theyꝝ office & ministracyon was.

In the fourth boke (called Numerus) is declared how the people are nombꝛed and mustꝛed, how the captaynes are cholen after þ trybes & kynreds, how they we-te forth to þ battayll, how they pitched theyꝝ tentes, & how they brake vp.

The fyfth boke (called Deuteronomium) sheweth how that Moses now beynge olde, rehearseth the lawe of god vnto þ people, putterh them in remembraunce agayne of all the wonders & benefices that god had shewed for them, and exhorteþ them earnestly to loue þ Lorde theyꝝ god, to cleue vnto him, to put their trust in him and to herken vnto his voyce.

To the reader.

After the death of Moses doth Josue bynge the people in to the lode of promes where God doth wonderous thynges for his people by Josue, which distributeth þ londe vnto them, vnto euery trybe theyꝝ possession. But in theyꝝ wealth they forgat the goodnes of God, so that oft tymes he gaue the ouer in to the hande of theyꝝ enemies. Neuertheles whan so euer they called faithfully vpon him, and conuerted, he delyuered them agayne, as the boke of Judges declareth.

In the bokes of the kynges, is describde the regiment of good and euell pꝛynces, and how the decaye of all nations commeth by euell kynges. For in Jeroboam thou seyst what myschefe, what ydolatre & soch like abhominacyon foloweth, whā
the kyng is a maynteyner of false doctryne, ad caueth the people to synne agaynst God, which fallinge awaye from gods worde, increased so sore amonge them, that it was the cause of all theyꝝ sorowe and misery, & the very occasion why Israel first and then Iuda, were carryd awaye in to captiuite. Agayne, in Josaphat, in Ezechias and in Josias thou seyst the nature of a vertuous kyng. He putterh downe the houses of ydolatre, seyth that his pꝛiestes teach noþynge but þ lawe of God, conaundeth his lordes to go with them, and to se that they teach the people. In these kynges (I saye) thou seyst the cōdycyon of a true defender of þ fayth, for he spareth nether cost ner labour, to manteyne the lawes of God, to seke the welth & prosperi-te of his people, and to rote out the wicked. And where soch a pꝛince is, thou seyst a-gayne, how God defendeth him and his people, though he haue neuer so many enemies. Thus wente it with the in the olde tyme, and euen after þ same maner goeth it now with vs: God be prayesd therfore, ad graunte vs of his fatherly mercy, that we be not vnthankfull: lest where he now geueth vs a Josaphat, an Ezechias, yee a very Josias, he sende vs a Pharaos, a Jeroboams, or an Achabs.

In the two first bokes of Esdras & in Hester thou seyst the delyueraunce of the people, which though they were but fewe, yet is it vnto vs all a speciall cōfōrte, for so moch as God is not forgetfull of his promes, but byngeth them out of captiuite, accordyng as he had tolde them befoze.

In the boke of Job we lerne comfōrte and pacience, in that God not onely punysheth the wicked, but proueth & tryeth the iust and righteous (howbeit there is noman innocent in his sighte) by dyuerse troubles in this lyfe, declarynge thereby, þ they are not his bastardes, but his deare sonnes, and that he loueth them.

In the Psalmes we lerne how to resoꝛte onely vnto God in all oure troubles, to seke helpe at him, to call onely vpon him, to satle oure myndes by paciēce, & how we ought in prosperite to be thankfull vnto him.

The Prouerbes and the Preacher of Salomon teach vs wysdome, to knowe
God, oure owne selues, and the worlde, and how vayne all thynges are, saue onely to cleue vnto God.

As for the doctryne of the Prophetes, what is it els, but an earnest exhortacion to eschue synne, & to turne vnto God: a faythfull promes of the mercy ad pardon of God, vnto all them þ turne vnto him, and a threatenynge of his wrath to the vngod-ly: sayynge that here and there they prophete also manifestly of Christ, of þ expulsion of the Jewes, and callynge of the Heythen.

Thus moch thought I to speake of þ olde Testament, wherein almyghtie God openeth vnto vs his myghtye power, his wysdome, his louynge mercy & righteoufnesse: for the which cause it oughte of no man to be abhorred, despyled, or lyghtly regarded, as though it were an olde scripture þ noþynge beloged vnto vs, or þ now were to be refused. For it is Gods true scripture & testimony, which the Lorde Jesus commaundeth the Jewes to search, who so euer beleueþ not the scripture, bele-ueþ not Christ, and who so refuseth it, refuseth God also.

The New Testament or Gospell, is a manifest and cleare testimony of Christ how God perfourmeth his ooth and promes made in the olde Testament, how the New is declared and included in the Olde, and the Olde fulfilled and verifed in

A prologe.

Now where as the most famous interpreters of all geue sondyng iudgmentes of the terte (so farre as it is done by þe spete of knowlege in the holy goost) me thynke noman shulde be offended there at, for they referre theyr doinges in mekenes to the spete of trueth in the congregacyon of god: & sure I am, that there cometh more knowlege and vnderstondinge of the scripture by theyr sondyng translacions, then by all the gloses of oure sophistical doctours. For that one interpreteth somthyng obscurely in one place, the same translateth another (or els he him selfe) more manifestly by a more playne vocable of the same meanyng in another place. Be not thou offended therfore (good Reader) though one call a scribe, that another calleth a lawyer: or elders, that another calleth father & mother: or repentaunce, that another calleth penance or amendement. For yf thou be not discaued by mens tradicions, thou shalt fynde nomore dyuersite betwene these termes then betwene foure pens and a grote. And this maner haue I vsed in my translacion, calling it in some place penance, that in another place I call repentaunce, and that not onely because the interpreters haue done so before me, but that the aduersaries of the trueth maye see, how that we abhorre not this worde penance (as they vntruly reporte of vs) no more then the interpreters of latyn abhorre penitere, whan they reade resipiscere. Onely oure hertes desyre vnto God, is, that his people be not blynded in theyr vnderstondyng, lest they beleue penance to be ought saue a very repentaunce, amendement, or conuersyon vnto God, and to be an vnfaigned new creature in Christ, and to lyue acordyng to his lawe. For is shall they fall in to the olde blasphemie of Christes bloude, and beleue, that they the selues are able to make satisfaccion vnto God for theyr awne synnes, from the which erreure god of his mercy and pléteous goodnes pferue all his.

Now to conclude: for so moch as all the scripture is wyrtten for thy doctryne & ensample, it shalbe necessary for the, to take holde vpon it, whyle it is offred the, pee and with ten handes thankfully to receaue it. And though it be not worthely ministered vnto the in this translacion (by reason of my rudnes) yet yf thou be feruent in thy prayer, God shal not onely sende it the in a better shappe, by the mynistracyon of other that beganne it afore, but shall also moue the hertes of them, which as yet medled not withall, to take it in hande, and to bestowe the gifte of theyr vnderstondyng theron, as well in oure language as other famous interpreters do in other languages. And I praye God, that thorow my pooze ministracyon here in, I maye geue them that can do better, some occasyon so to do: exhortyng the (most deare reader) in the meane whyle on Gods behalfe, yf thou be a heade, a Iudge, or ruler of þe people, that thou let not the boke of this lawe departe out of thy mouth, but exercise thyselfe therein both daye and nyghte, and be euer readyng in it as longe as thou lyuest: that thou mayest lerne to feare the Lorde thy God, & not to turne asyde from the commaundement, nether to the right hande ner to the lefte: lest thou be a knower of personnes in iudgmet, and wrest the righte of the stranger, of the fatherles or of the wedowe, and so þe curse to come vpon the. But what office so euer thou hast wayte vpon it, and execute it, to the mayntenaunce of peace, to the welth of thy people, defendyng the lawes of God, and the louers therof, and to the destruccyon of the wicked.

Yf thou be a preacher, and hast the ouersight of the flocke of Christ, awake and fede Christes shepe with a good herte, & spare no laboure to do them good, seke not thy selfe, & beware of fylthy lucre: but be vnto þe flocke an ensample, in þe worde, in conuersacyon, in loue, in feruentnes of þe spete, and be euer readyng, exhortyng, & teachyng in Gods worde, that the people of God renne not vnto other doctrynes and lest thou thy selfe (whan thou shuldest teach other) be founde ignoraunt therein. And rather then thou woldest teach the people any other thyng then Gods worde take the boke in thyne hande, & reade the wordes cue as they stonde thein (for it is no shame so to do, it is more shame to make a lye) This I saye for sorh, as are not yet experte in the scripture, for I repproue no preachyng without the boke as longe as they saye the trueth.

To the reader.

Yf thou be a man that hast wyfe and childre, first loue thy wyfe, acordyng to the ensample of the loue, wherwith Christ loued the cōgregacion, and remembre that so doynge, thou louest euen thyselfe: yf thou hate her, thou hatest thine awne flesh: yf thou cherishe her and make moch of her, thou cherisest & makest moch of thyselfe: for she is bone of thy bones, & flesh of thy flesh. And who so euer thou be that hast children, byng them vp in the nurtour and informacion of the Lorde. And yf thou be ignoraunt, or art otherwyse occupied lausfully that thou canst not teach them thy selfe, then be euen as diligent to seke a good master for thy childre, as thou wast to seke a mother to beare them: for there lieth as great weight in the one as in þe other. See better it were for the to be vnborne, then not to feare God, or to be euel brought vp. which thyng (I meane byngyng by well of children) yf it be diligently looked so, it is the vpholdinge of all comon welches: and the negligence of the same, the very decaye of all realmes.

Fynally, who so euer thou be, take these wordes of scripture in to thy herte, and be not onely an outwarde hearer, but a doer thereafter, and practyse thyselfe therein: that thou mayest fele in thine hert, the swete promyses therof for thy consolacion in all trouble, & for the sure stablyshyng of thy hope in Christ, and haue euer an eye to þe wordes of scripture, that yf thou be a teacher of other thou mayest be within the boundes of the trueth, or at the leest though thou be but an hearer or reader of another mans doyn

ges, thou mayest
yet haue
knowlege to iudge all spetes, and be fre from euery erreure, to the vtter destruccyon of all sedicious sectes & straunge doctrynes, that the holy scripture maye haue fre passage, and be had in reputation, to the worshippe of the authoz therof, which is euen God himselfe: to whom for his most blessed worde be glory & domynion
now & euer.
Amen.

hauynge their owne sede in them selues, euery one after his kynde. And God sawe that it was good. Then of the euenynge and mornynge was made the thirde daye.

Psal. 135. a And God sayde: let there be lightes in y<sup>e</sup> firmament of heauen, to deuide the daye fro the night, that they maye be vnto toles, seasons, dayes, and yeaes. And let them be lightes in y<sup>e</sup> firmament of heauen, to shyne vpon the earth: And so it came to passe. And God made two great lightes: one greater light to rule the daye, and a lesse light to rule the night, and he made starres also. And God set them in the firmament of heauen, y<sup>e</sup> they might shyne vpon the earth, and to rule the daye and the night, and to deuide the lighte from darcknes. And God sawe that it was good. Then of the euenynge and mornynge was made the fourth daye.

4. Eccl. 5. c And God sayde: let the waters brynge forth creatures that moue and haue life, y<sup>e</sup> foules sorte flye aboue the earth vnder the firmament of heauen. And God created greates whalles, and all maner of creatures that lyue and moue, which the waters brought forth euery one after his kynde: and all maner of feathered foules, euery one after his kynde. And God sawe that it was good, and blessed them, sayenge: Growe, and multiplie, and fyll the waters of the sees, and let the foules multiplie vpon the earth. Then of the euenynge and mornynge was made the fifth daye.

And God sayde: let y<sup>e</sup> earth brynge forth lyuynge foules, euery one after his kynde: cattell, woumes y<sup>e</sup> what as hath life vpon earth, euery one after his kynde. And so it came to passe. And God made y<sup>e</sup> bestes of the earth euery one after his kynde, and cattell after their kynde, and all maner woumes of the earth after their kynde. And God sawe that it was good.

Sap. 2. d And God sayde: let vs make man in our similitude after our likenesse, that he maye haue rule ouer the fysh of the see, and ouer the foules vnder y<sup>e</sup> heauen, and ouer cattell, and ouer all the earth, and ouer all woumes that crepe on y<sup>e</sup> earth. And God created man after his likenesse: after y<sup>e</sup> likenesse of God created he him, male y<sup>e</sup> female created he them.

Iere. 29. b And God blessed them, and sayde vnto them: Growe, and multiplie, and fyll the earth, and subdue it, y<sup>e</sup> haue domynion ouer the fysh of the see, and ouer the foules of the ayre, and ouer all the bestes that crepe vpon the earth.

Gen. 1. 2. a And God sayde: I haue geuen you all

And to all bestes of the earth, and to all foules vnder the heauen, and to euery wombe that hath life (vpon earth) all maner grene herbes to eate. And so it came to passe. And God behelde all y<sup>e</sup> he had made, and lo, they were exceeding good. Then of the euenynge and mornynge was made the sixte daye.

Deu. 32. a Eccl. 39. c 2 The seconde Chapter. Thus was heauen and earth fynished with all their hoost, and thus in the seventh daye God ended his worke, which he had made, y<sup>e</sup> rested in the seventh daye from all his workes which he had made: And blessed the seventh daye, y<sup>e</sup> sanctified it, because y<sup>e</sup> in it he rested from all his workes, which God created and made.

Exo. 20. b Heb. 4. a These are the generacions of heauen and earth whan they were created, in the tyme whan the LORDE God made heauen and earth: before there was any troygg vpon earth, and ouer there grew any grene herbe vpon the felde. For the LORDE God had yet sent no raine vpon y<sup>e</sup> earth, nether was there any man to tylle the earth. But there arose a myst from the earth, y<sup>e</sup> watered all the londe. And y<sup>e</sup> LORDE God shopen man out of the mould of the earth, y<sup>e</sup> brethed in to his face y<sup>e</sup> breath of life. And so was man made a lyuynge soule.

Sap. 10. a Tob. 8. b 1. Cor. 15 The LORDE God also planted a garde of pleasure in Eden, towarde y<sup>e</sup> east, and set man therein whom he had made. And the LORDE God caused to sprynge out of the earth all maner trees, pleasaunt to loke vpon, and good to eate: and the tre of life in the myddest of the garden, and the tre of knowlege of good and euell.

Pro. 3. b Apo. 2. a And out of Eden there wente a ryuer, to water the garden, and there deuided it selfe in to foure heade waters. The first is called Phison, which renneth aboute all the londe of Henuyl. And there is founde golde, y<sup>e</sup> the golde of that countre is precious, and there is founde Bedellion, and the precious stone Onix. The second water is called Gihon, which runneth aboute the whole londe of y<sup>e</sup> Moiaas. The thirde water is called Hydecell, which runneth towarde the east syde of y<sup>e</sup> Assiriaas. The fourth water is Euphrates.

lege of good and euell, shalt thou not eate. For loke in what daye so euer thou eatest therof, thou shalt dye the death.

2 And the LORDE God sayde: It is not good y<sup>e</sup> man shulde be alone. I wil make him an helpe, y<sup>e</sup> to beare him company. And whan God the LORDE had made of the earth all maner bestes of the felde, y<sup>e</sup> all maner foules vnder the heauen, he brought them vnto man, to se what he wolde call the: For as man called all maner of liuinge foules, so are their names. And man gaue names vnto all maner cattell, y<sup>e</sup> vnto the foules vnder the heauen, and vnto all maner bestes of y<sup>e</sup> felde. But vnto man there was founde no helpe, to beare him company.

Cor. 11. a Then the LORDE God caused an herbe slepe to fall vpon man, and he slepte. And he toke out one of his rybbes, and (in steade therof) he filled vp y<sup>e</sup> place with flesh. And the LORDE God made a woman, of y<sup>e</sup> rybbe that he toke out of man, and brought her vnto him. Then sayde man: This is once bone of my bones, and flesh of my flesh. She shalbe called woman, because she was taken of man. For this cause shal a man leaue father and mother, and cleue vnto his wife, y<sup>e</sup> they two shalbe one flesh. And they were both naked, the man and his wife, and were not ashamed.

Cor. 11. a DE God had made) and sayde vnto the woman: Yee, hath God sayde in dede: Ye shall not eate of all maner trees in the garden: Then sayde the woman vnto the serpent: We eate of the frute of the trees in the garden: But as for the frute of the tre that is in the myddes of the garden, God hath sayde: Eate not ye of it, and touch it not, lest ye dye.

1. Iere. 14. b and 23. c Then saide the serpent vnto the woman: Tush, ye shall not dye the death. For God doth knowe, that in what daye so euer ye eate of it, youre eyes shalbe opened, and ye shalbe as God, and knowe both good and euell. And the woman sawe that y<sup>e</sup> tre was good to eate of, and lustye vnto the eyes, and a pleasaunt tre y<sup>e</sup> to make wyse, and toke of the frute of it, and ate, and gaue vnto hir husbande also therof, and he ate. Then were the eyes of them both opened, and they perceaued that they were naked, and so wed fygge leaues together, and made them apurys.

Some reader: * whyle it made wyse. B And they herde the voyce of the LORDE God, which walked in the garden in the coole of the daye. And Adam hyd him self with his wyse, from the presence of y<sup>e</sup> LORDE God amonge the trees of the garden. And y<sup>e</sup> LORDE God called Adam, and sayde vnto him: Where art thou? And he saide: I herde thy voyce in the garden, and was afrayed, because I am naked, and therefore I hyd myself. And he sayde: who tolde the, that thou art naked? Hast thou not eaten of the tre, wherof I commaunded the, y<sup>e</sup> thou shuldest not eate?

Apo. 12. c Then sayde Adam: The woman, which thou gauest me (to beare me company) gaue me of the tre, and I ate. And the LORDE God sayde vnto the woman: wherfore hast thou done this? The woman sayde: the serpent deceaued me so, that I ate. Then sayde the LORDE God vnto the serpent: Becausethou hast done this, cursed be thou aboue all cattell and aboue all bestes of the felde. Vpon thy bely shalt thou go, y<sup>e</sup> earth shalt thou eate all the dayes of thy life. And I wyll put enemyte betwene the and the woman, and betwene y<sup>e</sup> sede and hir sede. The same shal treade downe thy heade, and thou shalt treade him on the hele.

Matt. 4. a * Col. 2. b And vnto the woman he sayde: I will increase thy sorrow, whan thou art with childe: with payne shalt thou beare thy childe, and thy lust shal perrayne vnto y<sup>e</sup> husband, and he shal rule the.

Some reader: * Thou shalt And vnto Adam he sayde: For so much as thou hast hearkened vnto the voyce of thy wyse, and hast eaten of the tre, wherof I commaunded the, sayenge: thou shalt not eate of it. Cursed be y<sup>e</sup> earth for thy sake. With sorowe shalt thou eate therof, all the dayes of thy life. Thornes and thistles shalt it beare vnto the, and thou shalt eate the herbes of the felde. In the sweate of thy face shalt thou eate thy bred, tyll thou be turned agayne vnto earth, wherewith thou art take: for earth thou art, and vnto earth shalt thou be turned agayne.

And Adam called his wyse Hena, because she is the mother of all luyng. And the LORDE God made Adam & his wyse garments of skynnes, & these he put on them. And the LORDE God sayde: lo, Adam is become as it were one of vs, & knoweth good & euell. But now lest he stretch his hande, and take also of the tre of life, and eate, and lyeue for ever. Then the LORDE God put him out of the garden of Eden, to tyll y<sup>e</sup> earth, wher he was take. And he cast Adam out. And before the garden of Eden he set Cherubes, and a naked syre swerde, to kepe y<sup>e</sup> waye vnto the tre of life.

The iij. Chapter.

Now Adam laye with Hena his wyse, which conceaued & bare Cain, and sayde, I haue opeyned y<sup>e</sup> man of the LORDE. And she proceeded forth, & bare his brother Abell. And Abell became a shepherde, but Cain became an husbilde man.

And it fortuneth after certayne daies, that Cain brought of the frute of the earth, an offryng vnto y<sup>e</sup> LORDE. And Abell brought also of the firstlinges of his shepe, and of y<sup>e</sup> fat of them. And the LORDE had respecte vnto Abell and to his offryng: but vnto Cain and his offryng he looked not. Then was Cain exceeding wroth, and his countenance chaunged. And the LORDE sayde vnto Cain: Why art thou angrie? and why doth thy countenance chaunge? Is it not so: that yf thou do well, thou shalt receaue it: but and yf thou do euell, thy synne lyeth open in the doore? Shal he then be subdued vnto the? and wilt thou rule him? And Cain talked with Abell his brother.

And it happened, that whan they were in the felde, Cain arose agaynst Abell his brother, and slew him. Then sayde the LORDE vnto Cain: Where is Abell thy brother? He sayde: I can not tell. Am I my brothers keeper? And he sayde: What hast thou done? The voyce of thy brothers bloude crieth vnto me out of the earth. And now shalt thou be cursed vpon the earth, which hath opened hir mouth, and receaued thy brothers bloude of thine hande. Whan thou tyllest y<sup>e</sup> ground, she shall hensforth not geue hir power vnto the. A vagabunde and a rennagate shalt thou be vpon y<sup>e</sup> earth. And Cain sayde vnto y<sup>e</sup> LORDE: my synne is greater, then that it maye be forgiven me. Beholde, thou castest me out this daye from out of y<sup>e</sup> lande, and from y<sup>e</sup> sight must I hyde myself, and must be a vagabunde and a rennagate vpon y<sup>e</sup> earth. And thus shal it go with me: that who so fyndeth me, shal slaye me.

But the LORDE sayde thus vnto him: Who so euer slayeth Cain, it shalbe auenged sevenfolde. And the LORDE put a marke vpon Cain, that no man which founde him, shulde kyll him. So Cain wente out from y<sup>e</sup> face of the LORDE, and dwelt in the lande Nod, vpon the east syde of Eden.

And Cain laye with his wyse, which conceived and bare Henoche. And he buylded a cite, and called it after the name of his sonne Henoche. And Henoche begat Irad, Irad begat Mahuial. Mahuial begat Mathusael. Mathusael begat Lamech.

And Lamech toke him two wyues: y<sup>e</sup> one was called Ada, & the other Zilla. And Ada bare Jabel, of whom came they that dwelt in tentes and had catell. And his brothers name was Jubal: of him came they that occupied harpes & pypes. And Zilla she also bare Tubalcain, a worker in all connynges poyntes of metall & yron. And Tubalcains sister was called Naama.

And Lamech sayde vnto his wyues Ada and Zilla: heare my voyce (ye wyues of Lamech) and hearken vnto my wordes: for I haue slayne a man, and wounded myselfe; and (haue kylled) a yongeman, and gotten myself stripes. Cain shalbe auenged seven tymes: but Lamech seven and seuentie tymes.

Adam laye yet with his wyse agayne, & she bare a sonne, and called him Seth. For God (sayde she) hath apointed me another sede, for Abell, whom Cain slew. And Seth begat a sonne also, and called him Enos. At the sametyme beganne men to call vpon the name of the LORDE.

The V. Chapter.

This is the boke of the generacion of man, in the tyme whan God created man, and made him after the similitude of God. Male and female made he them, and blessed the, & called their names Man, in the tyme whan they were created. And Adam was an hundred and thirtie yeare olde, and begat a sonne, which was like his owne ymage, and called his name Seth: & luyed thereafter eight hundred yeare, and begat sonnes and daughters. And his whole age was nyne hundred and thirtie yeares, and so he dyed.

Seth was an hundred and fyue yeare olde, and begat Enos: & luyed thereafter eight hundred and seven yeare, and begat sonnes and daughters. And his whole age was nyne hundred and twelue yeares, and so he dyed.

Enos was nyentie yeare olde, and begat Kenan: and luyed thereafter eight hundred & systene yeare, and begat sonnes & daughters. And his whole age was nyne hundred and fyue yeares, and so he dyed.

Kenan was seuentie yeare olde, and begat Mahalaliel: and luyed thereafter eight hundred and fourtie yeare, and begat sonnes & daughters. And his whole age was nyne hundred and ten yeares, and so he dyed.

Mahalaliel was thre score yeare olde & fyue, and begat Jared: and luyed thereafter eight hundred and thirtie yeare, and begat sonnes and daughters. And his whole age was eight hundred, nyentie and fyue yeares, and so he dyed.

Jared was an hundred and two & sixtie yeare olde, and begat Henoche: & luyed thereafter eight hundred yeare, and begat sonnes & daughters. And his whole age was nyne hundred and two and sixtie yeare, and so he dyed.

Henoche was fyue and thre score yeare olde, and begat Mathusalah: and led a godly conuersacion thre hundred yeares thereafter, and begat sonnes & daughters. And his whole age was thre hundred and fyue and thre score yeares. And for so moch as he luyed a godly life, God toke him awaye, & he was nomore sene.

Mathusalah was an hundred & seue and foure score yeare olde, & begat Lamech: and luyed thereafter seven hundred and two and foure score yeare, and begat sonnes & daughters. And his whole age was nyne hundred and nyne and tre score yeares, and so he dyed.

Lamech was an hundred and two and foure score yeare olde, and begat a sonne, & called him Noe, and sayde: This same shal cosorte vs in oure workes, and in the sorowe of oure bondes vpon the earth, which the LORDE hath cursed. After this he luyed fyue hundred and fyue & nyentie yeare, and begat sonnes and daughters. And his whole age was seven hundred seven and seuentie yeares, and so he dyed.

Noe was fyue hundred yeare olde, and begat Sem, Ham and Japhet.

The VI. Chapter.

Whan men beganne to multiplie vpon the earth, and had begot them daughters, the children of God sawe the daughters of men, that they were fayre, and toke vnto the wyues soch as they liked. Then sayde y<sup>e</sup> LORDE: My spere shal not allwaye stryue with man, for he is but flesh also. I wil yet geue him respyte an hundred and twety yeares. There were giants also in the worlde at that tyme. For whan the children of God had lyeu with the daughters of men, and begotten them children, y<sup>e</sup> same (children) became mightie in the worlde, and men of renoune.

But whan the LORDE sawe y<sup>e</sup> wickednes of man was increased, vpon y<sup>e</sup> earth, and that all y<sup>e</sup> thought and imaginacion of their hert was but onely euell continually, it repented him, that he had made man vpon the earth, and he sorowed in his hert, and sayde: I wyll destroye man kynde which I haue made, from the earth: both man, best, worne, and foule vnder the heauen: for it repented me, that I haue made them. Neuer theles Noe founde grace in the sight of the LORDE.

This is y<sup>e</sup> generacion of Noe. Noe was a righteous and perfecte man, and led a godly life in his tyme, and begat thre sonnes: Sem, Ham and Japhet. Norwithstandinge y<sup>e</sup> earth was corrupte in y<sup>e</sup> sight of God, and full of myschefe. Then God looked vpon y<sup>e</sup> earth: and lo, it was corrupte (for all flesh had corrupte his waye vpon the earth.)

Then sayde God vnto Noe: Then ende of all flesh is come before me, for the earth is full of myschefe before them. And lo, I wyll destroye them with the earth. Make the an Arcke of pyne tre, and make chambers in it, and pitch it within and without with pitch and make it after this fashion: The length shal be thre hundred cubites, the bredth fiftie cubites, and the heyghe thirtie cubites. A wyndow shalt thou make aboue of a cubyte greate: but the doore shalt thou set in the myddest in the syde of it: And the Arke shalt thou make with thre loftes one aboue another. For lo, I will bringe a floude of water vpon the earth, to destroye all flesh (wherin the breth of life is) vnder the heauen: All that is vpon earth, shal perishe.

D But with the wyll I make a couenaunt, and thou shalt go in to the Arke with thy sonnes, with thy wyse, and with thy sonnes wyues. And of all creatures what so ever flesh it be, thou shalt bringe into the Arke, euen a payre: the male and the female, that they maye lyue wth the: Of foules after their kynde, of bestes after their kynde, and of all maner wormes of the earth after their kinde. Of every one of these shal there a payre go in vnto the, that they maye lyue. And thou shalt take vnto the all maner of meate that maye be eaten, and shalt laye it vp in store by the, that it maye be meate for the and them. And Noe dyd accordinge to all that God commaunded him.

The VII. Chapter.

A And  $\gamma$  LORDE sayde vnto Noe: Go in to the Arke thou & thy whole house: for the haue I sene righteous before me at this tyme. Of all cleane bestes take vnto the seven and seven, the male and his female. And of vncleane bestes a payre, the male and his female. Like wyse of the foules vnder the heauen, seven and seven, the male and his female, that there maye be sede left a lyue vpon the whole earth.

For yet after seven dayes, I wil sende raine vpon the earth fourtie dayes and fourtie nightes, and wyll destroye all maner of thynges that I haue made, from of the face of the earth.

And Noe dyd all that the LORDE commaunded him. Sire hundred yeare olde was he, whan the water floude came vpon earth. And he wente in to the Arke, with his sonnes, his wyse, and his sonnes wyues, for the waters of the floude. Of cleane bestes and of vncleane, of all fethered foules, & of all that crepeth vpon earth, wente in vnto him to the Arke by paires, a male and a female, as  $\gamma$  LORDE comaunded him. And whan the seven dayes were past, the water floude came vpon the earth.

In the sixe hundred yeare of Noes age, vpon the seuentene daye of the seconde moneth, that same daye were all  $\gamma$  fountaynes of the greate depe broken vp, and the wyndowes of heauen were opened, and there came a rayne vpon  $\gamma$  earth fourtie dayes and fourtie nightes.

Vpon the selfe same daye were Noe into the Arke, with Sem, Ham and Japhet his sonnes, and with his wyse, and the thre wyues of his sonnes, and all maner of bestes after their kynde, all maner of catell after their kynde, all maner of crepyng thinges (that crepe vpo the earth) after their kynde, and all maner of foules (what so ever coude flye & what so ever had fethers) after their kynde: These wente all vnto Noe in to the Arke by coopes, of all flesh in whom was the breth of life. And these were the male & the female of all maner of flesh, and wente in, accordinge as God commaunded him. And the LORDE shut (the doore) vpon him.

Then came the water floude fourtie dayes vpon the earth, and the water increased, and bare vp the Arke, and lift it vp ouer  $\gamma$  earth. Thus the water preuayled, and increased sore vpon the earth, so that the Arke wente vpon the waters. And the waters preuayled and increased so sore vpon earth, that all the hye mountaynes vnder the whole heauen were couered. Systene cubytes hye preuayled  $\gamma$  waters ouer the mountaynes, which were couered.

Then all flesh that crepte vpon earth, perished, both foules, catell, bestes, and all  $\gamma$  moved vpon earth, and all men. What so euer had the breth of life vpon the drye land, dyed.

Thus was destroyed all that was vpon the earth, both man and beast, both wormes and foules vnder  $\gamma$  heauen: all these were destroyed from the earth. Sane Noe onely remayned, and they that were with him in the Arke. And the waters preuayled vpon the earth, an hundred and fiftie dayes.

The VIII. Chapter.

A Then God remembered Noe and all the bestes, and all the catell that were with him in the Arke, and caused a wynde to come vpon the earth: and  $\gamma$  waters ceassed, and the fountaynes of the epe and the wyndowes of heauen were stoppe, and the rayne of heauen was forbydden, and the waters ranne styll awaye from  $\gamma$  earth, and decreased after an hundred and fiftie dayes.

Vpon the seuentene daye of the seuenth moneth rested the Arke vpon the mountaynes of Ararat. And the waters were awaye and decreased vntill the tenth moneth: for the first daye of the tenth moneth, the toppes of the mountaynes appeared.

After fourtie dayes Noe opened  $\gamma$  wyndow of the Arke which he had made, & sent forth a rauen, which flew out, and came agayne, vntill the waters were dried vp vpo the earth.

Then sent he forth a doue from him, to wete, whether the waters were fallē vpon the earth. But when  $\gamma$  doue coude fynde no resting place for hir fete, she came agayne vnto him in to the Arke, for the waters were yet vpon the face of all the earth. And he put out his hande, and toke her to him in to the Arke.

Then he abode yet seven dayes mo, & sent out the doue agayne out of the Arke: & she returned vnto him aboute the euen tyde: and beholde, she had broken of a leaf of an olyue tre, & bare it in hir nebb. Then Noe perceived, that the waters were abated vpon the earth. Nevertheless he taried yet seven other dayes, and sent forth the doue, which came nomore to him agayne.

In the sixe hundred and one yeare of Noes age, vpon the first daye of  $\gamma$  first moneth, the waters were dried vp vpon the earth. Then Noe toke of the hatches of the Arke, and sawe  $\gamma$  the face of the earth was drye. So vpon the seven and twenty daye of the seconde moneth the whole earth was drye.

Then spake God vnto Noe, and sayde: Go out of the Arke, thou and thy wyse, and thy sonnes, and thy sonnes wyues with the. As for all the bestes that are with the, what so ever flesh it be (both foule & catell and all maner of wormes that crepe vpon the earth) let them go out with the, and be ye occupied vpon the earth, growe and multiplye vpon the earth.

So Noe wente out, with his sonnes, and with his wife, and with his sonnes wyues. All the bestes also and all the wormes, and all the foules, and all that crepte vpon the earth, wente out of the Arke, euery one vnto his life.

And Noe buylded an altare vnto  $\gamma$  LORDE, and toke of all maner of cleane bestes & of all maner of cleane foules, and offered bree sacrifices vpon  $\gamma$  altare. And  $\gamma$  LORDE smelled the swete sauour, & sayde in his hert: I wyll hence forth curse the earth nomore for mans sake, for the ymaginacion of mans hert is euell, euen from the very yowth of him. Therfore from hence forth I wil nomore smyte all that lyueth, as I haue done. Neethy shall sowynge tyme and harvest, colde & heate Sommer and wynter, daye and nyght cease so longe as the earth endureth.

The IX. Chapter.

A And God blessed Noe and his sonnes, and sayde vnto them: increase & multiplye, and fyll the earth. The feare also and drede of you be vpon all bestes of the earth, vpon all foules vnder the heauen, and vpon all that crepeth on the earth, and all fyshes of the see be geuen in to youre handes. All that moueth and hath life, be youre meate. Euen as the grene herbe, so haue I geue you all. Onely eate not the flesh with the bloude, wherin the soule is: For the bloude of you wherin youre soule is, wyll I requyre of the hande of all bestes: and the soule of man wyll I requyre of mans hande, yet euery mans soule of anothers hande.

He that sheddeth mans bloude, his bloude shal be shed by man agayne, for God made man after his owne liknesse. As for you, be ye frutefull, and increase, and be occupied vpon the earth, that ye maye multiplye therin.

after you, and with every lyuynge creature that is with you, both foule, catell, and all beastes vpon the earth with you, of all that is gone out of the Arke, what so euer beast of the earth it be: And thus I make my couenant with you, that hence forth all flesh shal not be destroyed with the waters of any floude, and from hence forth there shal come no floude to destroye the earth.

And God sayde: This is the token of my couenant which I haue made betwene me and you, and all lyuynge creatures amonge you for euermore: My bowe will I set in the cloudes, and it shal be the token of my couenant betwene me and the earth: so that whā I brynge cloudes vpon the earth, the bowe shal appeare in the cloudes. And then wyll I thynke vpon my couenant betwixte me and you and all lyuynge creatures in all manner of flesh: so that from hence forth there shal nomore come any floude of water to destroye all flesh. Therfore shal my bowe be in the cloudes, that I maye loke vpon it, and remembre the euerlastynge couenant, betwixte God and all lyuynge creatures in all flesh that is vpon earth. God sayde also vnto Noe: This is the toke of the couenant, which I haue made betwene me and all flesh vpon earth.

The sonnes of Noe which wente out of the Arke, are these: Sem, Ham and Japhet. As for Ham, he is the father of Canaan. These are Noes thre sonnes, of whom all londes were ouerspred.

Noe beganne to take hede vnto the tyllinge of the ground, and planted a vyngarde. And dranke of the wyne, and was drunken, and laye vncouered in his tente. Now when Ham the father of Canaan sawe his fathers priuities, he tolde his two brethren without. The toke Sem and Japhet a mantell and put it vpo both their shulders, and wente backward, and covered their fathers secretes: and their faces were turned asyde, so they shulde not see their fathers priuities.

So whan Noe awaked from his wyne, and perceaued what his yonger sonne had done vnto him, he sayde: Cursed be Canaan, and a seruaunt of seruautes be he vnto his brethren. He sayde morouer: Praisedy be the LORDE God of Sem, and Canaan be his seruaunt. God increaseth Japhet, and let him dwell in the tentes of Sem, and Canaan be his seruaunt.

And Noe lyued after the floude thre hundred and fiftie yeare, so his whole age was ix. hundred and fiftie yeare, and so he dyed.

The X. Chapter.

This is the generacion of the childre of Noe, Sem, Ham, and Japhet, and they begat childre after the floude.

The childre of Japhet are these: Gomer, Magog, Madai, Jauan, Tubal, Mesek and Thyas. The childre of Gomer are these: Ascanas, Riphath and Togaima. The childre of Jauan are these: Elisa, Tharsis, Cithim and Dodanim: Of these are deuised the Isles of the heichen in their countrees, euery one after his speach, kynred and people.

The childre of Ham are these: Chus, Misraim, Phut and Canaan. The childre of Chus are these: Seba, Henila Sabtha, Keyma and Sabthecha.

The childre of Keyma are these: Sheba and Dedā. Chus also begat Nemrod, which beganne to be mightie in the earth, and was a mightie hunter in the sight of the LORDE. Therof commeth the piouserbe: This is a mightie hunter before the LORDE like as Nemrod. And the origenall of his kynngdome was Babel, Erech, Acad and Chalne in the londe of Synear. Out of that lode came Assur, and buylde Ninue, and the stretes of the cite, and Calah, and Kessen betwene Ninue and Calah: This is a greete cite. Mizraim begat Ludim, Enamim, Leabim, Naphthum, Pathrusim and Casubim, from whence came the Philistynes and Capthoums. Canaan also begat Sidon his eldest sonne, and Heth, Jebusi, Emori, Girgosi, Hini, Arki, Simi, Arnadi, Semari and Hamati: from whence the kynreds of the Cananites are dispersed abroad. And the Coastes of the Cananites were from Sidon forth thorow Gerar vnto Gaza, tyll thou comest vnto Sodoma, Gomora, Adama, Zeborim, and vnto Lasa. These are the childre of Ham in their kynreds, tinges, londes and people. And Sem which is the father of all the childre of Noe, and the elder brother of Japhet, begat childre also. And these are his childre: Elā, Assur, Arphachad, Lud and Aram. The childre of Aram are these: Uz, Hul, Gether and Mas.

And Arphachad begat Sala, and Sala begat Eber. Eber begat two sonnes: the name of the one was Peleg, because that in his tyme the worlde was deuyled, and his brothers name was Jaktan. And Jaktan begat Almodad, Saleph, Hazarmaphet, Jarah, Hadoram, Usal, Dilala, Obal, Abimael, Seba, Ophir, Henila and Jobab: All these are the childre of Jaktan. And their dwelling was from Mesā, tyll thou come vnto Sephar a mountayne of the east. These are the childre of Sem in their generacions, tinges, londes and people.

This is now the generacion of the childre of Noe in their kynredes and people. Of these were the people vpon earth spred a brode after the floude. The XI. Chapter.

Now all the worlde had one tongue and language. Now as they wente toward the East, they founde a playne in the londe of Synear, and there they dwelt, and saide one to another: Come on, let vs make bryck and burne it. And they toke bryck for stone, and slyme for mortar. And sayde: Come, let vs buylde a cite and a tower, whose toppe maye reach vnto heauē, so we maye make vs a name, afore we be scatred abroad in all londes. Then came the LORDE downe, to see the cite and tower, which the childre of man had buylde. And the LORDE saide: Beholde, the people is one, and haue one maner of language amonge the all, and this haue they begonme to do, and wil not leaue of from all that they haue purposed to do. Come on, let vs go downe, and confounde their tonge euē there, so one vnderstande not what another saith. Thus the LORDE scatred the fro thece in all lodes, so they left of to buylde the cite. Therfore is it called Babel, because the LORDE confounded there the language of all the worlde, and from thece scatred them abroad in to all londes.

These are the generacions of Sem. Sem was an hundred yeare olde, and begat Arphachad two yeare after the floude, and lyued thereafter syue hundred yeare, and begat sonnes and daughters.

Arphachad was siue and thirtie yeare olde, and begat Salah, and lyued thereafter foure hundred and thre yeare, and begat sonnes and daughters.

Salah was thirtie yeare olde, and begat Eber, and lyued thereafter foure hundred and thre yeare, and begat sonnes and daughters.

Eber was foure and thirtie yeare olde, and begat Peleg, and lyued thereafter foure hundred and thirtie yeare, and begat sonnes and daughters.

Peleg was thirtie yeare olde, and begat Regu, and lyued thereafter two hundred and nyene yeare, and begat sonnes and daughters.

Regu was two and thirtie yeare olde, and begat Serug, and lyued thereafter two hundred and seven yeare, and begat sonnes and daughters.

Serug was thirtie yeare olde, and begat Nahor, and lyued thereafter two hundred yeare, and begat sonnes and daughters.

Nahor was nyene and twentye yeare olde, and begat Terah, and lyued thereafter an hundred and nyentene yeare, and begat sonnes and daughters.

Terah was seuentie yeare olde, and begat Abram, Nahor and Haran.

These are the generacions of Terah: Terah begat Abram, Nahor and Haran. And Haran begat Lot, but Haran dyed before Terah his father in the londe where he was borne, at Ur in Chaldea.

Then Abram and Nahor toke them wyues. Abrahams wyfe was called Sarai, and Nahors wyfe Milca the daughter of Haran, which was father of Milca and Isca. But Sarai was baren, and had no childe.

Then toke Terah Abrahams sonne, and Lot his sonne Harans sonne, and Sarai his daughter in lawe, his sonne Abrahams wyfe, and caried them with him from Ur in Chaldea, to go in to the lande of Canaan. And they came to Haran, and dwelt there. And Terah was two hundred and syue yeare olde, and dyed in Haran.

The XII. Chapter.

Now the LORDE sayde vnto Abram: Get thee out of thy countre, and from thy kynred, and out of thy fathers house, in to a londe which I wil shew the. And I wil make of the a mightie people, and wyll blesse the, and make the a greete name, yee thou shalt be a very blesynge. I wil blesse them that blesse the, and curse them that curse the: and in the shal all the generacions of the earth be blessed.

Then wente Abram out, as the LORDE commaunded him, and Lot wente with him. Syue and seuentie yeare olde was Abram, whan he wente out of Haran. So Abram toke Sarai his wyfe, and Lot his brothers sonne, and all their goodes which they had gotten, and soules which they begat in Haran, and departed to go in to the londe of Canaan. And whē they were come in to the same londe, he wente thorow, tyll he came vnto the place of Sichem, and vnto the Okegrone of More: for the Cananites dwelt in the lode at that tyme.

Then the LORDE appeared vnto Abram,

Gen. 17. a
 7 sayde: This londe wil I geue vnto y seide.
 And there he buylded an auter vnto y LOR DE, which appeared vnto him. The brake he vp fro thece, vnto a mountayne y laye on y east syde of the cite of Bethel, 7 pitched his tent: so y he had Bethel on the west side, and Ay on y east syde: 7 there buylded he an alta
 re also vnto the LORDE, 7 called vpon the na me of the LORDE. Afterwarde departed A biam farther, 7 toke his iourney southwar
 de. But there came a derth in the londe.

Gen. 20. a
 and 26. a
 Then wente Abiam downe in to Egipte to kepe himselfe there as a straunger, for the derth was sore in the londe. And whan he was come nye for to entre in to Egipte, he sayde vnto Sarai his wife: Beholde, I knowe
 y thou art a fayre woman to loke vpon.
 Now whan the Egiptians se the, they wil
 saye: She is his wife, and so shal they slaye me, and saue the alyne. Therefore (I pray y) saye thou art my syster, that I maye fare the better by reason of the, and that my soule
 maye lyue for thy sake.

Now whan he came in to Egipte, y E
 gipcians sawe y woman, y she was very fai re: 7 Pharaos prynces sawe her also, 7 pray sed her before him. Then was she brought in to Pharaos house, and Abiam was well intreated for his sake: and he had shepe, oxen, and he Asses, seruantes, maydes, she Asses and Camels.

Esa. 43. a
 But y LORDE plagued pharao 7 his hou se w greute plagues, because of Sarai Abias wife. Then pharao called Abiam vnto him, and sayde: Why hast thou dealt thus w me?
 Wherfore toldest thou not me at the first, y
 she was thy wifer? Why saydest thou then, that she was y syster? Wherfore I toke her to my wifer. And now lo, there is y wifer, take her, and go thy waye. He gaue his officers also a charge ouer him, to conuey him out, and his wife, and all that he had.

The XIII. Chapter.

Gen. 12. b
 Gen. 26. a Abiam departed out of Egipte, w
 his wife, 7 with all y he had, 7 Lot
 w him also, towarde y south. Abiam was very rich in catell, siluer 7 golde. And he wente on forth from the south vnto Bethel, vnto the place where his tent was at y first,
 betwene Bethel and Ay: euen vnto y place where he had made the altare before, 7 whe re he called vpon the name of the LORDE
 Lot also which wente with him, had shepe, greute catell 7 tentes: so y the londe was not able to receaue them, that they might dwell together: for the substance of their riches was so greute, that they coude not dwell to gether. And there fell a strife betwene the herdmen of Abiams catell, and the herdmen of Lots catell. The Cananites also and the Pheresites dwelt at that tyme in the londe.

Then sayde Abiam vnto Lot: O let there be no strife betwene me and the, and betwene
 my herdmen and thine, for we are brethren.
 Is not all the whole londe open before the?
 Departe fro me, I praye the. If thou wilt go to the left hande, I wil take the right: Or if thou wilt go to the right hande, I wil ta ke the left. Then Lot lift vp his eyes, and be helde all the countre rounde aboute Jorda,
 that it was a plenteous countre of water.
 For before the LORDE destroyed Sodoma and Gomorra, it was rounde aboute Zoar, e uen as the pleasaunt garden of the LORDE, and as the londe of Egipte.

Then Lot chose all the coastes of Jorda, and toke his iourney towarde y East. And so the one brother departed from the other.
 Abiam dwelt in the lande of Canaan, and Lot in the cities of the same coastes, and pic ched his tent towarde Sodome. But y men of Sodome were wicked, and synned excea dingly agaynst the LORDE.

Now whan Lot was departed from A biam, the LORDE saide vnto Abiam: Lift vp thine eyes, and loke from the place whe re thou dwellest, northwarde, southwarde, eastwarde, and westwarde: for all the londe that thou seist, wyll I geue vnto the and to thy side for euer, and wyll make thy seide as the dust of the earth: so that yf a man can nombre the dust of the earth, he shall nom bre thy seide also. Arise, and go thorow the londe, in the length and bredth, for I wyll ge ue it vnto the.

So Abiam remoned his tent, and wente
 and dwelt in y Okegrone of Mamre, which is in Ebron, and buylded there an altare vn to the LORDE.

The XIII. Chapter.
 And it chaunced in the tyme of Amra phel the kynge of Synear, Arioch

the kynge of Ellasar, Redoulaomer the kin ge of Elam, 7 Thydeale the kynge of y hei
 then, That they made warre w Bera y kyn ge of Sodome, and w Birsa the kynge of Ada ma, 7 with Sineab the kynge of Zeboim, and with the kynge of Bela, which is called Zoar. These came all together in to the bro de valley, where now the salt see is: for twol
 ue yeares were they subiectes vnto kynge Re doulaomer, 7 in the thirtenth yeare they fell from him. Therfore in the fourtenth yeare came Redoulaomer, and the kynges y were with him, 7 smote the Gaiantes in Astareth Barnaim, 7 Susim at Ham, 7 Lemin in the felde of Kiriathaim, and y houites in their owne mount Seir vnto the playne of Pha ran, which bordieth vpo the wildernes. And then they turned, 7 came to the well of iudg
 ment (which is Cades) 7 smote all the coun tre of the Amalechites, and also the Amori tes, that dwelt in Hazazon Thamar.

Then wente out the kynge of Sodome, 7
 the kynge of Gomorra, 7 the kynge of Ada ma, and the kynge of Zeboim, and the kynge of Bela, called Zoar, 7 prepared them selues
 to fight in the brode valley w Redoulaomer
 the kynge of Elam, 7 with Thydeale y kyn ge of the heithen, 7 with Amraphel y kyn ge of Synear, 7 with Arioch the kynge of Ellasar: foure kynges w syue. And y brode valley had many slyme pyttes. But the kyn ge of Sodoma and Gomorra were put to flight, 7 fell there, 7 the residue fled vnto y mountaynes. Thentoke they all the goodes at Sodoma and Gomorra, 7 all their vytal es, 7 wente their waye. They toke Lot also Abiams brothers sonne, 7 his goodes (for he dwelt at Sodome) and departed.

Then came onethat had escaped, and tol de Abiam the Aleunt, which dwelt in the Okegrone of Mamre the Amoryte, which was the brother of Escol 7 Aner: for these were confederate with Abiam.

Now whan Abiam herde y his brother was taken, he harnessed his bonde serua ntes borne in his owne house, the hundred 7
 eightene, 7 folowed after them vntill Dan, 7 deuyded the, 7 fell vpo them by night w his seruantes, and smote the, and chased them awaye vnto Hoba, which lieth on y left han de of the cite of Damascos, and broughte
 a gayne all the goodes, and also his brother Lot, and his goodes, y women also and the people. And as he came agayne from the slaughter of Redoulaomer 7 of the kynges that were with him, the kynge of Sodome

wente to mete him in to the playne felde, Num. 31. b which is called Kynge's dale.

But Melchisedech the kynge of Salem brought forth bred and wyne. And he beyng the priest of the most hye God, blessed him and sayde: Blessed be thou Abiam vnto
 the most hye God possessor of heauen and earth. And praysed be God the hyest, which hath deliuered thine enemies in to thy han
 des. And Abiam gaue him tithes of all.

Then sayde the kynge of Sodome vnto Abiam: Geue me the soules, and take y goo des vnto thy self. But Abiam sayde vnto
 the kynge of Sodome: I lift vp my honde vn to the LORDE the most hye God, possessor of heauen and earth, that I wyll not take of all that is thine, so moch as a threde or a shue lacher, lest thou shuldest saye: I haue made Abiam ryche: Saue onely that which the yongemen haue spent, and the men Aner Escol and Mamre, that wente with me, let them take their parte.

The XV. Chapter.

It happened after these actes, y the worde of y LORDE came vnto Abiam in a vysion, and sayde: Feare not A biam, I am thy shyld and thy excedinge greater rewarde. But Abiam sayde: LORDE LORDE, what wilt thou geue me? I go child sayde morouer: Beholde, vnto me hast thou geuen no seide: and lo, the sonne of my hous holde shal be myne heyre. And beholde, the worde of the LORDE spake vnto him, and sai de: he shal not be thine heyre, but one that shal come out of thine owne body, he shal be thine heyre. And he bad him go forth, and sayde: Loke vp vnto heauen, and tell y star

 vnto him: Euen so shal thy seide be.

Abiam beleued the LORDE, and y was counted vnto him for righteousnes. And he sayde vnto him: I am y LORDE, y brought the from y out of Chaldea, to geue y this downe, there fell an hevy slepe vpo Abram. And lo, feare and greate darcknes fell vpon him. And he sayde vnto Abram: knowe this of a suertye, that thy sede shalbe a strainger, in a londe that is not theirs. And they shall make bonde men of them, and intreate them euell foure hundred yeares. But the people whos they shal serue, wyl I iudge. Afterwarde shall they go forth with greate substance: and thou shalt departe vnto thy fathers in peace, and shalt be buried in a good age. And after the fourth generacion they shall come hither agayne, for the wickednes of the Amorites is not yet full.

So whan the Sonne was downe, and it was wared darcke: Beholde, there smoked a forname, and a fyre biande wente betwene the partes. The same daye made the LORDE a couenaunt with Abram, and sayde: Vnto thy sede wil I geue this lode, from the water of Egipte, vnto the greate water Euphrates: the Kenytes, the Kenizites, the Admonites, the Hethtites, the Pherezites, the Giamrites, the Amorites, the Cananites, the Gergesites, and the Jebusites.

The XVI. Chapter.

Sarai Abrahams wife bare him no childen: but she had an handmayde an Egipcian, whose name was Agar, and sayde vnto Abram: Beholde, the LORDE hath closed me, that I can not beare. Go in (I praye the) vnto my mayde: peraduenture I shalbe multiplied by her, more then by myself. And Abram hearkened vnto the voyce of Sarai. Than Sarai Abrahams wife toke Agar hir mayde the Egipcian, after they had dwelt ten yeare in the londe of Canaan, and gaue her vnto hir husbände Abram, to be his wife. And he wente in vnto Agar, and she conceived. Now whan she sawe she had conceived, she despyled hir mastresse.

Then sayde Sarai vnto Abram: I must suffre wronge for thy sake. I layde my mayde by the: but now because she seyth, that she hath conceived, I must be despyled in his sight: the LORDE be iudge betwene me and the. And Abram sayde vnto Sarai: Beholde, thy mayde is vnder thine auenture, do with her, as it pleasech the.

Now whan Sarai dealt hardly w her, she fled from her. But the angell of the LORDE founde her besyde a well of water in the wilderness (euen by the well in the waye to Sur) and sayde vnto her: Agar Sarais mai de, whence comest thou? and whither wylt thou go? She sayde: I fle from my mastresse Sarai. And the angell of the LORDE sayde vnto her: Returne to thy mastresse agayne, and submitte thyself vnder hir hande.

And the angell of the LORDE sayde vnto her: Beholde, I wil so encrease thy sede, that it shall not be nombred for multitude. And the angell of the LORDE sayde further vnto her: Beholde, thou art with childe, and shalt bringe forth a sonne, and shalt call his name Ismael, because the LORDE hath herde thy trouble. He shal be a wyldeman. His hande agaynst every man, and every mans hande agaynst him: and he shal dwel oner agaynst all his brethren.

And she called the name of the LORDE that spake vnto her: Thou art the God that seist me. For she sayde: Of a suertye I haue sene the back partes of him that sawe me. Therefore called she the well: The well of the liuinge that sawe me. Which (well) is betwene Cades and Bared.

And Agar bare Abram a sonne, and Abram called his sonnes name which Agar bare him, Ismael. And Abram was foure score yeare olde and sixe, whan Agar bare him Ismael.

The XVII. Chapter.

Now whan Abram was nyentye yeare olde and nyene, the LORDE appeared vnto him, and sayde vnto him: I am the allmightie God, walke before me, and be vncorrupte. And I wyl make my couenaunt betwene me and the, and wyl multiplye the exceedingly. Then fell Abram vpon his face.

And God talked furthur with him, and sayde: Beholde, It is I, and haue my couenaunt with the, and thou shalt be a father of many people. Therefore shalt thou nomore be called Abram, but thy name shal be Abraham: for I haue made the a father of many nacions, and I wil multiplye the exceedingly, and wil make people of thee, yee and thynges also shal come out of the. Moreover I wil make my couenaunt betwene me and the,

and thy sede after the thorow out their posterities, that it maye be an euerlastinge couenaunt, so that I wyl be the God of the, and of thy sede after the. And vnto the and to thy sede after the, wyl I geue the lande, wherein thou art a straunger: euen all the lande of Canaan for an euerlastinge possession, and will be their God.

And God sayde morouer vnto Abraham: Kepe my couenaunt then, thou and thy sede after the. This is my couenaunt which ye shal kepe betwene me and you, and thy sede after the thorow out their posterities. Every manchild that is amonge you, shalbe circumcyded: and ye shall circumcyde the foreskynne of yo flesh. This same shalbe a token of the couenaunt betwene me and you. Every manchild whan it is eight dayes olde, shalbe circumcyded thorow out youre posterities: In like maner all housholde folkes borne at home, or bought, or eny other also that is a strainger and not of thy sede. Thus shal my couenaunt be in youre flesh for an euerlastinge couenaunt. And yf there shalbe any manchild vncircumcided in the foreskynne of his flesh, his soule shalbe roted out from his people, because he hath broken my couenaunt.

And God sayde vnto Abraham: Sarai thy wyfe shal nomore be called Sarai, but Sara shal be hir name: for I wyl blesse her, and geue the a sonne of her. I wil blesse her, and people shal come of her, yee and kynge of many people. Then fell Abraham vpo his face, and laughed, and sayde in his heart: Shal a childe be borne vnto me that am an hundred yeare olde? And shall Sara be nyentye yeare olde, beare? And Abraham sayde vnto God: O that Israel might lye in thy sight. Then sayde God: Yee euen Sara thy wyfe shal beare the a sonne, and thou shalt call his name Isaac: for with him wil I make my euerlastinge couenaunt, and with his sede after him. And as concernyng Ismael also, I haue herde thy request: Beholde, I haue blessed him, and will increase him, and multiplye him exceedingly. Twelue prynces shal he beget, and I wyl make a greata nacion of him.

But my couenaunt wyl I make w Isaac, whom Sara shal beare vnto the, euē this tyme twelue moneth. And he lest of talkyng with him, and God wente vp from Abraham. Than toke Abraham his sonne Ismael, and all the seruantes borne in his house, and all that were bought, (as many as were men children in his house,) and circumcy-ded the foreskynne of their flesh, euen the same daye, as God had sayde vnto him. And Abraham was nyentye yeare olde and nyne, whan he cut of the foreskynne of his flesh. As for Ismael, he was thirtene yeare olde, whan the foreskynne of his flesh was circumcyded. Euen vpon one daye were they all circumcyded: Abraham, and Ismael his sonne, and all the men in his house, (whether they were borne at home, or bought, or eny other strainger,) they were all circumcyded with him.

The XVIII. Chapter.

And the LORDE appeared vnto him in the Okegrope of Mamre, as he sat in his tent doore in the heate of the daye. And as he lift vp his eyes, and looked, beholde, there stode thre men ouer agaynst him. And whan he sawe them, he ranne to mete them from his tent doore, and bowed him self downe vpon the grounde, and sayde: LORDE, yf I haue founde fauoure in thy sight, go not by, yf seruaunt. There shalbe brought you a litle water, and ye shall wash yo fete, and rest youre selues vnder the tre. And I wyl fet you a moissell of bred, to comforte youre hertes withall, and then shall ye go youre wayes, for therfore are ye come to youre seruante. They sayde: do cuen so as thou hast spoken.

Abraham wente a pace in to the tent to Sara, and sayde: Make haist, and mengle thre peckes of fyne meele, kneede it, and bake cakes. And he ranne to the bestes, and fet a calf that was tender and good, and gaue it vnto a yonge man, which made it ready at once. And he toke butter and mylke and of the calf that he had prepared, and set it before the, stode him self by them vnder the tre, and they ate. Then saide they vnto him: where is Sara thy wyfe? He answered: within in the tent. Then sayde he: aboute this tyme twelue moneth, (yf I lye) I wyl come to the agayne, and Sara thy wyfe shal haue a sonne. And

As soon as the sun was risen, Abraham and Sara were both old, and well stricken in age: so that it wente nomore with Sara after the manner of women: therefore laughed she with in hir self, and sayde: Now that I am olde, and my lord olde also, shall I yet gene my self to lust?

Then sayde the LORD vnto Abraham: Wherefore doth Sara laugh, and saye: Is this true in dede, that I shall beare, and yet am olde? Shulde any such thinge be to hard for the LORD? Aboute this tyme (yf I lyue) I wil come to the agayne, and Sara shall haue a sonne. Then Sara denyed it, and sayde: I laughed not, for she was afayed. But he sayde: It is not so, thou dydest laughe. Then the men stode vp from thence, and turned them toward Sodome: and Abraham wente with them, to brynge them on their waye.

Then sayde the LORD: How can I hyde from Abraham, & thinge that I wil do? seynge he shall be a grete and mightie people, and all the people vpon earth shall be blessed in him: for I knowe him that he wil commaunde his children and his householde after him, to kepe the waye of the LORD, and to do after right and conscience, that the LORD maye bringe vpon Abraham what he hath promised him. And the LORD sayde: There is a crye at Sodome and Gomorra, which is grete, and their synnes are exceeding greuous: therefore will I go downe to see, whether they haue done all together, according to that crye, which is come before me, or not, that I maye knowe. And the men turned their face, and were toward Sodome. But Abraham stode still before the LORD, and stept vnto him, and sayde:

Wilt thou then destroye the righteous with the vngodly? Peradventure there maye be fiftie righteous within the cite: wilt thou destroye these, and not spare the place, for fiftie righteous sake that are therein? That be farre fro the, & thou shuldest do this, and to slaye the righteous with the vngodly, and that the righteous shulde be as the vngodly. That be farre from the. Shulde not the iudge of all the worlde do according to right? And the LORD sayde: Yf I fynde fiftie righteous at Sodome in the cite, I wil spare all the place for their sakes.

Abraham answered, and sayde: O se, I haue taken vpon me to speake vnto the LORD, howbeit I am but dust and ashes. Peradventure there maye be fyue lesse then fiftie righteous therein: Wilt thou then destroye the whole cite because of those fyue? He sayde: yf I fynde fyue and fourtie therein, I will not destroye them.

And he proceeded further to speake vnto him, and sayde: Peradventure there might be fourtie founde therein. And he sayde: I wil do nothinge vnto them for those fourtyes sake. Abraham sayde: Oh let not my LORD be angrie, that I speake yet more. Peradventure there might be thirtie founde therein. And he sayde: Yf I fynde thirtie therein, I will do nothinge vnto them. And he sayde: O se, I haue taken vpon me to speake vnto my LORD.

Peradventure there might be twentie founde therein. He answered: I will not destroye them for those twentyes sake. And sayde: O let not my LORD be angrie, that I speake yet once more. Peradventure there might be ten founde therein. He saide: I wil not destroye them for those ten sake.

And the LORD wente his waye, when he had left talkynge with Abraham. And Abraham returned vnto his place.

The XIX. Chapter.

At the eueninge came the two angels vnto Sodome. And Lot sat vnder the gate of the cite. And when he sawe them, he rose vp for to mete them, and bowed himself downe to the ground vpon his face, and sayde: Se lordes, come in, I praye you into youre seruantes house, and tarye all night: let youre fete be washed, so maye ye ryse tomorrow by tymes, and go youre waye. Nevertheless they sayde: Nay, but we will byde in the streetes all night. Then compelled he them sore: and they turned in vnto him, and came into his house. And he made them a feast, and baked swete cakes, and they ate.

But before they wente to rest, the men of the cite of Sodome came and compassed the house rounde aboute, yonge and olde, all the people from all quarters, and called Lot, and sayde vnto him: Where are the men that came vnto the to night? Bynge them out here vnto vs, that we maye knowe them.

And Lot wente out at the dore vnto the, and shut the dore after him, and sayde: O brethren, do not so wickedly. Beholde, I haue two daughters, which yet haue knowe no man: them will I brynge out vnto you, do with them as it liketh you. Onely do nothinge vnto these men of God, fortherfore are they come vnder the shadowe of my rose. But they sayde: Come thou hither. Then sayde they: Camest not thou onely herin as a straunger, and wilt thou now be a iudge? Wel, we will deale worse with the the with them.

And they pressed sore vpon the man Lot. And when they ranne to, and wolde haue broken vp the dore, the men put out their bondes, and pulled Lot vnto them in to the house, and shut to the dore. And the men at the dore of the house were smytte with blyndnesse both small and grete, so that they coulde not fynde the dore.

And the men saide vnto Lot: Hast thou yet here any sonne in lawe, or sonnes or daughters? Who so ever belongeth vnto the in the cite, brynge him out of this place: for we must destroye this place, because the crye of them is grete before the LORD, which hath sent vs to destroye them. Then wente Lot forth, and spake to his sonnes in lawe, which shulde haue married his daughters, and sayde: O stonde vp, and get you out of this place, for the LORD wyll destroye this cite. Nevertheless they toke it but for a sporte.

Now when the morninge arose, the angels caused Lot to speede him, and sayde: Stonde vp, take thy wife and thy two daughters which are at hande, that thou also perishe not in the synne of this cite. But while he prolonged the tyme, the men caught him and his wife, and his two daughters by the hande (because the LORD was mercifull vnto him,) and brought him forth, and set him without the cite.

And when they had brought him out, they sayde: Save thy soule, and loke not behynde the, neither stonde thou in all this countre: Save thy self vpon the mountayne, that thou perishe not. Then sayde Lot vnto the: Oh no my LORD, beholde, in as much as thy seruante hath founde grace in thy sight, now make the mercy grete, which thou hast shewed vnto me, in that thou sauest my soule alyue. I can not save my self vpon the mountayne. There might some my fortune fall vpon me, that I shulde dye. Beholde, here is a cite by, that I maye fflye vnto, and it is a litle one: let me save myself there in. Is it not a litle one, that my soule maye lyue?

Then sayde he vnto him: Beholde, I haue loved vpon the in this poynte also, that I will not overthrowe the cite, wherof thou hast spoken. Hast thou, and save thy self there: for I can do nothinge tyll thou be comethither. Therefore is the cite called Zoar. And the Sonne was vp vpon the earth, when Lot came in to Zoar.

Then the LORD caused brymstone and fyre to rayne downe from the LORD out of heauen vpon Sodoma and Gomorra, and overthrew those cities, the whole region, and all that dwelt in the cities, and that that grew vpon the earth. And his wife looked behynde her, and was turned into a pillar of salt.

Abraham rose vp early in the morninge, and gat him vnto the place, where he had stonde before the LORD, and turned his face toward Sodoma and Gomorra, and all the lande of that countre, and looked. And beholde, there rose vp a smoke from the countre, as it had bene the smoke of a furnace. For when God destroyed the cities of the region, he thought vpon Abraham, and conueyed Lot out of the cities which he overthrew, wherein Lot dwelt.

And Lot departed out of Zoar, and dwelt in the mountaynes with both his daughters (for he was afayed to tary at Zoar) and so remayned he in a cave with both his daughters.

Then sayde the elder vnto the yonger: Our father is olde, and there is not a man more vpon earth, that can come in vnto vs after the maner of all the worlde. Come therefore, let vs gene oure father wyne to drynke, and lye with him, that we maye save sede of oure father. So they gaue their father wyne to drynke that same night. And the elder daughter wente in, and laye with hir father: and he perceived it not, neither when she laye downe, nor when she rose vp.

On the morow the elder sayde vnto the yonger: Beholde, yesternight laye I with my father: let vs gene him wyne to drynke this night also: that thou mayest go in and lye with him, that we maye save sede of oure father. So they gaue their father wyne to drynke that night also: And the yonger arose like wyse, and laye with him: & he perceived it not, nether when she laye downe, ner when she rose vp.

Thus were both the daughters of Lot with childe by their father. And the elder bare a sonne, and called him Moab, of whom came y Moabytes vnto this daye. And y yonger bare a sonne also, and called him the sonne Ammi, of whom come the children of Ammon vnto this daye.

The XX. Chapter.

AS for Abraham, he departed thence, into the south countre, and dwelt betwixte Cades and Sur, and was a straunger at Gerar, and sayde of Sara his wife: She is my sister. Then Abimelech the kinge of Gerar sent for her, and caused her be fett awaye.

Gen. 12. c
nd. 26. a

But God came to Abimelech by night in a dreame, & sayde vnto him: Beholde, thou art but a deed man, for the womans sake which thou hast taken, for she is a mans wife. Neuertheles Abimelech had not yet touched her, and sayde: LORDE, wilt thou sleie a righteous people? Sayde not he vnto me: she is my sister? Yee and sayde not she her self also: he is my brother? With a pure hert & with innocent handes haue I done this.

And God sayde vnto him in a dreame: I knowe that thou dydest it w a pure hert, and therefore I kepte the, that thou shuldest not synne agaynst me, nether haue I suffred the to touch her. Now therefore deliuer the man his wife ageyne, for he is a prophet: and let him pray for y, and thou shalt lyue. But and yf thou deliuer her not ageyne, be sure, that thou shalt dye the death, and all that is thine.

Then Abimelech rose vp by tymes in the mornynge, and called all his seruantes, and tolde all these thinges in their eares, and the men were sore afrayed, and Abimelech called Abraham, and sayde vnto him: Wherefore hast thou done this vnto vs? And what haue I offended y, that thou shuldest bynne on me and on my kyngdome so greate a synne? Thou hast not dealt with vs, as a man shulde deale. And Abimelech saide morouer vnto Abraham: What sawest thou, y thou hast done this thinge?

Abraham sayde: I thought: Peraduenture there is no feare of God in this place, & they shall sleie me for my wifes sake, And of a tructh she is my sister, for she is my fathers doughter, but not my mothers doughter, and is become my wife. So whan God charged me to wadie out of my fathers house, I sayde vnto her: Shew this kyndnes vpon me, that, where soeuer we come, thou saye of me, that I am thy brother.

Then toke Abimelech shepe and oxen, seruantes and maydens, and gaue them vnto Abraham, and deliuered him Sara his wife agayne, and sayde: Beholde, my londe stondesth open before the, dwell where it liketh the. And vnto Sara he sayde: Beholde, I haue geuen thy brother a thousande syluer pens: lo, he shalbe vnto the a couerynge of the eyes, for all that are with the, and euery where, and a sure excuse.

As for Abraham, he prayed vnto God: Then God healed Abimelech, and his wyse, and his maydens, so that they bare childre. For afore the LORDE had closed all the matrices of Abimelechs house, because of Sara Abrahams wife.

The XXI. Chapter.

The LORDE also visited Sara, as he had promysed: & dealt with her, euen as he had sayde. And Sara was with childe, and bare Abraham a sonne in his olde age, euen in the tyme appointed, like as God had spoken vnto him afore. And Abraham called his sonne which was borne vnto him (whos Sara bare him) Isaac, and circumcided him the eight daye, like as God commanded him. An hundred and thirtie yeare olde was Abraham, whan his sonne Isaac was borne vnto him.

And Sara sayde: God hath prepared a ioye for me, for who soeuer heareth of it, wyll reioyse with me. She sayde morouer: Who wolde haue saide vnto Abraham, that Sara shulde geue children sucke, and beare him a sonne in his olde age? And the childe grew, and was weened. And Abraham made a greate feast, in y daye whan Isaac was weened.

And Sara sawe the sonne of Agar the Egipcian (whom she had borne vnto Abraham) that he was a mocker, and sayde vnto Abraham: Cast out this bonde mayden and hir sonne, for this bonde maydens sonne shall not be heyre w my sonne Isaac. This worde displeased Abraham sore, because of his sonne.

Neuertheles God sayde vnto him: let it not displease the because of the childe and the hand mayde: What soeuer Sara hath sayde vnto the, folowe it, for in Isaac shall the sede be called vnto the. As for the bonde maydens sonne, I wyll make a people of him also, because he is of thy sede.

Then Abraham rose vp early in the mornynge, and toke bried and a botell with water, and put it vpon Agars shulders, and gaue her the childe, and sent her awaye. Then departed she, and wandred out of the waye in y wyldernes beside Berseba. Now whan the water in the botell was out, she layed the childe vnder a bush, and wente, and sat hir downe ouer on y other syde, a bowe shot of. For she sayde: I can not se the childe dye. And she sat hir downe ouer on y other syde, and lifte vp hir voyce, and wepte.

Then God herde the voyce of the childe, and the angell of God called vnto Agar out of heauen, and sayde vnto her: What ayleth the, Agar? Feare not, for God hath herde y voyce of the childe, where he lyeth. Arise and take the childe, and holde him by the hande, for I wyll make a greate people of him. And God opened hir eyes, that she sawe a well of water.

Then wente she and fylled y botell with water, and gaue y childe drynke. And God was with the childe, which grew vp, and dwelt in y wyldernes, and became a conynge archer, and dwelt in y wyldernes of Pharan, and his mother toke him a wyse out of the londe of Egipre.

At the same tyme talked Abimelech and Phicol his chiefe caprayne with Abraham, and sayde: God is with the in all that thou doest. Therefore sweare now vnto me by God, that thou wilt not hurt me, ner my children, ner my childers children: but that thou shalt shewe vnto me (and to the londe wher in thou art a straunger) the same kyndnesse that I haue done vnto the.

Then sayde Abraham: I wyll sweare. And Abraham rebuked Abimelech for the well of water, which Abimelechs seruantes had taken awaye by violence. Then answered Abimelech: I knewe not who dyd it, nether dydest thou tell me, and I haue not herde of it but this daye.

Then toke Abraham shepe and oxen, and gaue them vnto Abimelech, and they both made a bonde together. And Abraham seeuen lambes by them selues. Then sayde Abimelech vnto Abraham: What meane those seuen lambes, which thou hast set by them selues? He answered: seuen lambes shalt thou take of my hande, that they maye be wytnes vnto me, that I haue dygged this well. Therefore is the place called Berseba, because they sware there both together. And so they made the bonde at Berseba.

Then rose Abimelech and Phicol his chiefe caprayne, and departed agayne in to the londe of y philistynes. And Abraham planted trees at Berseba, and called vpon the name of the LORDE y everlastinge God, and was a straunger in y londe of the philistynes a longe season.

The XXII. Chapter.

After these actes God tempted Abraham, and sayde vnto him: Abraham. And he answered: I am here. And he sayde: Take y some, this onely sonne of thine, ene Isaac whom thou lovest, and go thy waye in to the londe of Moia, & offre him there for a burnt offeringe, vpon a mountayne that I shal shew the. Then Abraham stode vp by tymes in the mornynge, and saddled his Ass, and toke with him two yongemen, and his sonne Isaac, and cloue wodd for the burnt offeringe, gat him vp, and wente on vnto the place, wherof the LORDE had sayde vnto him.

Vpon the thirde daye Abraham lift vp his eyes, and sawe the place a farre of, and sayde vnto his yonge man: Tary ye here with the Ass: as for me and the childe, we wyll go yonder: and whan we haue worshipped, we wyll come to you againe. And Abraham toke the wodd to the burnt offeringe, and layed it vpon Isaac his sonne. As for him self, he toke the fyre and a knyfe in his hande, and wente on both together.

Then sayde Isaac vnto his father Abraham: My father. Abraham answered: here I am, my sonne. And he sayde: lo, here is fyre and wodd, but where is the shepe for the burnt offeringe? Abraham answered: My sonne, God shall prouyde him a shepe for the burnt offeringe. And they wente both together.

And whan they came to the place which

God shewed him, Abraham buylded there an altare, and layed the wodd vpon it, and bande his sonne Isaac, layed him on the altare, aboue vpo the wodd, and stretched out his hande, and toke the knyfe, to haue slayne his sonne.

C Then the angell of the LORDE called from heauen vnto him, and sayde: Abraham Abraham. He answered: here am I. He sayde: Laye not thy handes vpon the childe, & do nothinge vnto him: for now I knowe that thou fearest God, and hast not spared thine onely sonne for my sake. Then Abraham lift vp his eyes, and sawe behynde him a ramme, holde fast by the hornes in the bres, and wente, and toke the ramme, and offered him for a bient sacrifice, in steade of his sonne. And Abraham called the place. The LORDE shall prouyde. Therfore it is a common sayenge yet this daye: Vpon the mountayne shal the LORDE prouyde.

And the angell of the LORDE cryed vnto Abraham from heauen the seconde tyme, and sayde: I haue sworn by myne owne self (sayeth the LORDE) that for so much as thou hast donethis, and hast not spared thine onely sonne, I wyll prospere and multiplye thy sede as the starres of heauen, and as the sonde vpon the see shore. And thy sede shall possesse the gates of his enemies: and in thy sede shal all the nacions of the earth be blessed, because thou hast hearkened vnto my voyce.

D So Abraham turned ageyne to the yonge men, and they gat vp, and wente together vnto Bersaba, and dwelt there.

After these actes it fortuned, that it was tolde Abraham: Beholde, Milca hath borne children also vnto thy brother Nabor: namely, *hus & eldest, and *hus his brother, and Kemnel, of whom came the Syrians: and Cesed, and Haso, and Pildas, and Jed-laph and Bethuel. And Bethuel begat Rebecca. These eight dyd Milca beare vnto Nabor Abrahams brother. And his concubine called Rehuma, bare also: namely, Theba, Sahan, Thahas, and Maacha.

The XXIII. Chapter.

A Ara was an hundred and sent and twentye yeare olde: so longe lyued she, and dyed in the head cite which is called Hebron, in the lande of Canaan. Then wente Abraham, to mourne and wepe for her. Afterwarde he stode vp from his coarfe, and talked with the Hethites, & sayde: I am a stranger and an indweller amonge you, geue me a possession to bury in with you, that I maye bury my coarfe by me.

Then the Hethites answered Abraham, and sayde vnto him: O heare lorde, thou art a prynce of God amonge vs: bury thy dead in the best of oure sepulchres, there shall none of vs forbyd &, that thou shuldest not bury thy deed in his sepulchre. Then Abraham stode vp, and thanked the people of & londe: namely the Hethites.

And he talked with them, and sayde: If it be youre wyll that I burye my coarfe by me, heare methē, & speake for me to Ephron the sonne of Zoar, that he maye geue me the dubble cane, which he hath in & ende of his felde. For a reasonable money let him geue it me, for a possession to burye in amonge you. For Ephron dwelt amonge the Hethites.

Then answered Ephron the Hethite vnto Abraham, that the Hethites might heare, before all that wente out and in at the gates of his cite, and sayde: To my lorde, but heare me: As for the felde, and the cane also that is therein, I geue it the: and in the sight of my people I geue it the, to burye thy dead.

Then Abraham thanked the people of the londe, and talked with Ephron, that the people of the londe might heare, and sayde: Heare me then, Because of me the money that I geue the for the felde, and so wyll I burye my deed there.

Ephron answered Abraham, and sayde vnto him: Heare me my lorde: The felde is worth foure hundred Sycles of syluer: but what is that betwixte me and the? Burye thy deed. Abraham hearkened vnto Ephron, and weyed him the money which he had sayde, that the Hethites might heare: namely foure hundred syluer cycles of currant money amonge marchauntes.

Thus Ephrons felde (where in the dubble cane is) which lyeth ouer before Mamre, even the felde and the cane, was made sure for Abrahams owne good, with all the trees of the felde also rounde aboute, in the sight of the Hethites, and of all that go out and in at the gates of his cite. Then Abraham buried Sara his wife in the dubble cane of the felde, that lyeth ouer before Mamre (that is, Hebron) in the londe of Canaan. So the felde and the cane therein was made sure of the Hethites vnto Abraham, for a possession to bury in.

The XXIII. Chapter.

A Abraham was olde and well stricken in age, and the LORDE had blessed him in all thinges. And he sayde vnto his eldest seruaunt of his house, which had the rule of all his goodes: Laye thine hande vnder my thye, that I maye make the sweare by & LORDE the God of heauen and earth, that thou take no wife vnto my sonne amonge & daughters of & Cananites, (amonge whom I dwell) but that thou go in to my countrey: and to myne owne kynred, and brynge my sonne Isaac a wife.

The seruaunt sayde: What and the woman wyll not folowe me in to this countrey: shal I then cary thy sonne agayne in to yonder londe, where thou camest out of? Abraham sayde vnto him: Beware of that, that thou brynge not my sonne thither agayne. The LORDE, the God of heauen, which toke me from my fathers house and from the londe of my kynred, and that talked with me, and swaie also vnto me, and sayde: Vnto & sede wyll I geue this londe: Euen he shall sende his angell before the, that thou maiest brynge my sonne a wife from thence. But yf the woman wyll not folowe the, thou art discharged of this oath: onely brynge not my sonne thither agayne. Then & seruaunt layed his hande vnder his master Abrahams thye, and swaie the same vnto him.

B So the seruaunt toke ten Camels of the Camels of his master and departed, and had w him of all maner of goodes of his master, and gat him vp, and departed vnto Mesopotamia, to the cite of Nabor. Then let he the Camels lye downe without before the cite besyde a well of water in the euenynge, aboute the tyme that the women used to go forth, and to drawe water. And he sayde:

O LORDE, thou God of my master Abraham, mete me to daye, and shew mercy vnto my master Abraham. Lo, I stonde here besyde the well of water, & the mens daughters of this cite wyll come forth to drawe water: Now yf there come a damsell, to whom I saye: bowe downe thy pytcher, & let me drynke, and yf she saye: drynke, and I wyll geue & Camels drynke also: That & same be she, whom thou hast prouyded for thy seruaunt Isaac: & that I maye knowe by & same that thou hast shewed mercy vpon my master.

And ouer he had left of speakeynge, beholde, Rebecca the daughter of Bethuel (which was the sonne of Milca, that was the wyfe of Nabor Abrahams brother) came forth, and bare a pytcher vpon hir shulder, and she was a very saye damsell of face, and yet a virgin, and vnknewe of any man: She wente downe to the well, and fylled hir pitcher, and came vp agayne. Then ranne the seruaunt to mete her, and sayde: Let me drynke a litle water out of & pitcher. And she sayde: drynke syr.

And haistely let she downe the pitcher in hir hande, and gaue him drynke. And whan she had geuen him drynke, she sayde: I wyll drawe for thy Camels also, tyll they haue drynke ynough. And she made haist, and poured out hir pitcher in to the trough, and ranne agayne to the well to drawe, and drew for all his Camels. The man marueyled at her, and helde his tonge, tyll he knewe whether the LORDE had prospered his iourney or not.

Now whan the Camels had all drynken, he toke a golde earynge of half a Syckle weight, and two braceletes for hir handes, weynge ten Sycles of golde, and sayde: Doughter, whose art thou? tell me. Is there rowme for vs in thy fathers house to lodge in? She sayde vnto him: I am the doughter of Bethuel, the sonne of Milca, whom she bare vnto Nabor. And sayde morouer vnto him: We haue plenty of litter and prouender, and rowme ynough to lodge in.

D Then the man bowed himself, and thanked the LORDE, and sayde: Praise be the LORDE the God of my master Abraham, which hath not withdrawen his mercy and his trueth from my master, for the LORDE hath brought me the waye to my masters brothers house. And the damsell ranne and tolde all this in hir mothers house. And Rebecca had a brother called Laban.

And Laban ranne to the man without by the well syde: and that came by the reason that he sawe the earynges, and the braceletes vpon his sisters handes, and herde the wordes of Rebecca his syster, that she sayde: thus spake the man vnto me.

And whan he came to the man, beholde, he stode by the Camels at the well syde. And he sayde: Come in * thou blessed of the LORDE, wherfore stondest thou without? I haue dressed the house, and made rowme for & Camels. So he brought the man in to & house, and vnbled the Camels, and gaue them litter and prouender, and water to wash his feet, and the mens that were with him, and set meate before him.

Nevertheless he sayde: I wil not eate, tyll I haue fyrst tolde myne carade. They answered: Tell on. He sayde: I am Abrahams sernaunt, and the LORDE hath prospered my master richely, so & he is become greete: and he hath geuen him shepe and oxen, syluer and golde, seruantes and maidens, Camels and Asses: yee and Sara my masters wife hath borne my master a sonne in hir olde age: vnto him hath he geuen all that he hath.

And my master hath taken an ooth of me and saide: Thou shalt not take a wife for my sonne amonge the daughters of the Canaanites, in whose lande I dwell, but go & waye to my fathers house and to myne owne kynred, and there take a wyse for my sonne. But I sayde vnto my master: What and the woman wyl not folowe me: Then sayde he vnto me: The LORDE (before whom I walke) shall sende his angell with the, and prosper thy iourney, that thou mayest take a wife for my sonne of myne owne kynred, and of my fathers house. And so whan thou comest to my kynred, yf they geue her not vnto & thou shalt be discharged of myne ooth.

So I came this daye vnto the well of water, and sayde: O LORDE thou God of my master Abraham, If thou hast prospered my iourney that I go: Beholde, I stonde here by the well of water: Now yf there come forth a virgin to draw water, and I saye vnto her: geue me a litle water to drinke out of thy pitcher, and she saye vnto me: Drynke thou, and I wyll drawe water for thy Camels also: that the same be the womā, which the LORDE hath prouyded for my masters sonne. Now or euer I had spoken out these wordes in my hert, beholde, Rebecca cometh forth with a pitcher vpon hir shulder, and goeth downe to the well, and draweth.

Then sayde I: geue me a drynke. And immediatly she toke downe the pitcher fro hir shulder, and sayde: drynke, and I wyll geue thy Camels drynke also. So I dranke, and she gaue the Camels also to drynke. And I axed her, and sayde: Doughter, whose art thou? She answered: I am & doughter of Bethuel the sonne of Nahor, whom Milca bare vnto him. Then layed I the earringe vpon hir face, and the braceletes vpon hir handes, and bowed myself, and thanked the LORDE, and praysed the God of my master Abraham, which had brought me & right waye, to take my masters brothers daughters vnto his sonne.

If ye be they then that shew mercy and faithfulness vnto my master, tell me: If not, yet tell me, that I maye turne me to & right hande or to the left.

Then answered Laban and Bethuel, and sayde: This is come of the LORDE, therefore can we saye nothinge agaynst the, neither euell ner good. There is Rebecca before the, take her, and go thy waye, that she maye be thy masters sonnes wife, as the LORDE hath sayde. When Abrahams seruant herde these wordes, he bowed himself vnto the LORDE flat vpon the earth, and toke forth Jewels of syluer and golde, and rayment, and gaue them vnto Rebecca. But vnto hir brethren and the mother, he gaue spycies. Then he ate and dronke, and the men also that were with him, and tarried there all night.

But in the mornynge he arose, and sayde: Let me departe vnto my master. Neuerthelesse hir brother and hir mother sayde: Let the damsell tary with vs at the leest ten dayes, and then shall she go. Then sayde he vnto them: holde me not, for the LORDE hath prospered my iourney: let me go, that I maye departe vnto my master. Then sayde they: let vs call the damsell, and axe her, what she sayeth therto. And they called Rebecca, and sayde vnto her: Wilt thou go with this man?

And she answered: Yee I wyll go with him. So they let Rebecca their syster go with hir nose and Abrahams seruant, and his men. And they blessed Rebecca, and sayde vnto her: Thou art oure syster, growe into many thousande tymes thousandes, and thy sede possesse the gates of his enemies.

So Rebecca gat hir vp wth hir damself, and satt them vpon the Camels, and wente their waye after the man. And the seruant toke Rebecca, and departed.

As for Isaac, he was commynge from the well of & linyng & seynge, for he dwelt in the south countre, and was gone forth to his meditations in the felde aboute the euen tyde. And he lift vp his eyes, and sawe, that there were Camels commynge. And Rebecca lift vp hir eyes, and sawe Isaac. Then lighted she of the Camell, and sayde vnto & seruant: What man is this, that cometh agaynst vs in the felde? The seruant sayde: The same is my master.

Then toke she hir cloke, and put it aboute her. And the seruant tolde Isaac all the earande that he had done. Then Isaac brought her in to his mother Saras tent, and toke Rebecca, and she became his wife, and he loued her. So Isaac was comforted ouer his mother.

Abraham toke another wife called Retura, which bare him Simran & Jafsan, Medan & Midian, Jeshbat and Suab. Jafsan begat Seba and Dedan. The children of Dedan were Assurim, Latasim, and Lemim. The children of Midian were Ephra, Ephra, Shanoah, Abida and Eldaa. All these are the children of Retura. And Abraham gaue all his goodes vnto Isaac: As for the children that he had of the concubynes, he gaue them gistes, and (whyle he yet lyued) he sent the awaye from his sonne Isaac, eastwarde in to the east countre.

This is the age of Abraham which he lyued: euen an hundred and syue and seuen tyde yeare, and fell sicke and dyed in a good age, whan he was olde, & had lyued ynough and was gathered vnto his people. And his sonnes Isaac and Ismael buried him in the dubble caue in the felde of Ephron the sonne of Zoar the Hethite, which lyeth ouer before Mamre, in the felde that Abraham bought of the Hethites. There was Abraham buried with Sara his wife. And after the death of Abraham God blessed his sonne Isaac. And he dwelt by the well of the linyng and seynge.

This is the generation of Ismael Abrahams sonne, whom Agar Saras mayde the Egipcian bare vnto him. And these are the names of Ismaels children, of whom their kynredes are named. The eldest sonne of Ismael, Nebaioth, Cedar, Abdeel, Mibsan, Misia, Dama, Misa, Zadar, Thema, Jethur, Naphis and Redma. These are the children of Ismael with their names in their courtes and cities: twolue londreynces. And this is the age of Ismael, euen an hundred and seuen and thirtie yeare, and he fell sicke and dyed, and was gathered vnto his people. He dwelt from Heula vnto Surwarde Egipre, as men go to the Assirians. And he dyed in the presence of all his brethren.

This is the generation of Isaac the sonne of Abraham. Abraham begat Isaac. Isaac was fourty yeare olde, whan he toke to wyse Rebecca the doughter of Bethuel & Syrian of Mesopotamia, & Sister of Laban the Syrian.

Isaac besought the LORDE for his wyse (because she was baren) and the LORDE was intreated, and Rebecca his wyse conceived. And the children stroue to-

together in her wombe. Then sayde she: If it shulde go so with me, why am I then wth childe? And she wente for to axe the LORDE. And the LORDE sayde vnto her: Two manner of folke are in thy wombe, and two manner of people shall be deuyled out of thy body, and the one nacion shall overcome the other, and the greater shall serue the lesse.

Now whan the tyme came that she shulde be deliuered, beholde, there were twyns in hir wombe. The first that came forth, was reed, all rough as an hyde, and they called him Esau. Anone thereafter came his brother forth, which helde the hele of Esau with his hande, and they called him Jacob. Thie score yeare olde was Isaac, whan they were borne. And whan the boies were growne vp, Esau became an hunter, & an husbunde man. As for Jacob, he was a symple man, and dwelt in the tentes. And Isaac loued Esau, because he ate of his venison. But Rebecca loued Jacob.

And Jacob dight a meace of meate. The came Esau from the felde, and was weery, and sayde vnto Jacob: Let me proue of & reed meace of meate, for I am fayntie (therefore is he called Edom.) But Jacob sayde: Sell me this daye thy byrthright. Esau answered: Lo, I must dye neuerthelesse, what good then shall my byrthright do me? Jacob sayde: Then sweare vnto me euen this same daye. And he swore vnto him, and so he solde his byrthright vnto Jacob. Then Jacob gaue him bred and that meace of ryse. And he ate and dronke, and stode vp, and wente his waye. And so Esau regarded not his byrthright.

Here came a berth in the londe, passinge the other that was in Abrahams tyme. And Isaac wente to Gerar, vnto Abimelech the kynge of & philistynes. Then the LORDE appeared vnto him, and sayde: Go not downe in to Egipre, but tary in the lande that I shall saye vnto the. Be thou a straüger in this lande, and I wil be with the and blesse the. For vnto the and thy sede wyll I geue all this londe, and wyll perfourme myne ooth that I swore to thy father Abraham. And I wyll multiplye thy sede as the starres of heauen, and vnto thy sede wyll I geue all this londe, and thow thy sede shall all nacions be blessed, because Abraham was obedient vnto my voys, and kepte myne ordinaunces, my commaundementes, my statutes, and my lawes.

and 20. a

So Isaac dwelt at Gerar. And when the men of the same place asked him of his wife, he sayde: she is my sister. For he was afrayed to saye: she is my wife, (thinkinge thus :) they might slaye me for Rebeccas sake, for she was beautifull to lōke vnto. Now when he had bene there a longe season, Abimelech the kynge of the philistynes loked out at a wyndow, and sawe Isaac sportinge with Rebecca his wife.

B Then Abimelech called Isaac, and sayde: Beholde, she is thy wyfe, why saydest thou then: She is my sister? Isaac answered him: I thought, I might peradventure haue died because of her. Abimelech saide: Why hast thou then done this vnto vs? It coude lightly haue come to passe, that some of the people might haue lēen with thy wyfe, and so haddest thou brought synne vpon vs. The Abimelech commaunded all the people, and sayde: Who so toucheth this man or his wyfe, shal dye the death.

And Isaac sowed in that londe, and founde the same yere an hundredth busshels, for the LORDE blessed him. And he became a greute man, wente forth, and grew, tyll he was exceedinge greute, so that he had moch good in shepe and greute catell, and a greute housholde. Therefore had the philistynes envye at him, and stopped all the welles, that his fathers seruantes had dygged in the tyme of Abraham his father, and fylled them with earth. In so moch that Abimelech also himself sayde vnto him: Departe from vs, for thou art farre mightier then we.

C Then departed Isaac from thence, and pitched his tent in the valley of Gerar, and dwelt there. And when he was satled, he caused to dygge up the welles agayne, that they had dygged up in his father Abrahams tyme, which the philistynes had stoppe after the death of Abraham, and he called the after y same names that his father had named them withall.

Gen. 22. a

Isaacs seruantes also dygged in the valley, and there they founde a well of lyvinge water. But the hyrdmen of Gerar stroue with Isaacs hyrdmen, and saide: The water is oures. Then called he the well Essek, because they had done him wronge.

Then dygged they another well, and stroue for that also: therfore called he it Sytena. So he gatt him from thence, and dygged another well, for the which they stroue not: therfore he called it Rehoboth, and sayde: Now hath the LORDE made vs rowme, and letten vs growe in the londe. Afterwarde he departed thence vnto Bersaba.

And the LORDE appeared vnto him the same night, and sayde: I am the God of thy father Abraham, feare thou not, for I am with the, and wyll blesse the, and multiplye thy sede for my seruant Abrahams sake. Then buylded he an altare there, and called vpon the name of the LORDE, and pitched his tent there, and there his seruantes dygged a well.

And Abimelech wente vnto him from Gerar, and Ahushath his frende, and phicol his chiefe captayne. But Isaac sayde vnto them: Wherefore come ye to me? seynge ye hate me, and haue put me awaye from you? They sayde: We se with open eyes, that the LORDE is with the, therefore we deuysed that there shulde be an ooth betwixte vs and the, and that we wolde make a bonde with the, that thou do vs no harme, like as we haue not hurtte the, and as we haue done nothinge vnto the, but all good, and let the departe in peace.

As for the, thou art y blessed of the LORDE. Then Isaac made them a feast, and they ate and dronke. And on the morow they arose, and sware one to the other. And Isaac let them go, and they departed from him in peace.

The same daye came Isaacs seruantes, and tolde him of the well that they had digged, and sayde vnto him: We haue founde water. And he called it Saba. Therefore is y cite called Bersaba vnto this daye.

The XXVII. Chapter.

When Esau was fourtye yere olde, he toke wyues: Judith the daughter of Beri the Hethite, and Basmath the daughter of Elon the Hethite: both these were disobedient vnto the spere of Isaac and Rebecca.

And it came to passe when Isaac was olde, his eyes waxed dymme of sight, and he called Esau his greater sonne, and sayde vnto him: My sonne. He answered him: Here am I. And he sayde: Beholde, I am olde, and knowe not when I shal dye. Now therefore take thy geer, thy quyer and thy bowe, and get the forth to the felde, and take me some venyson, and make me meate (soch as I loue) and brynge it me herein, that I maye eate, y

my soule maye blesse the, before I dye.

B But Rebecca herde these wordes, that Isaac sayde vnto his sonne. And Esau wente his waye in to the felde, to hunte venyson, and to brynge it home. Then sayde Rebecca vnto Jacob hir sonne: beholde, I haue herde thy father talkinge with Esau thy brother, and sayenge: Brynge me venyson, and make me meate, that I maye eate, and blesse the before y LORDE, yer I dye. Now therfore my sonne, heare my voyce, what I commaunde the: Go thy waye to the flocke, and fetch me two good kyddes, that I maye make meate of them for thy father, soch as he loneth: this shalt thou brynge in vnto thy father, that he maye eate, that he maye blesse the before his death.

Nevertheless Jacob sayde vnto Rebecca his mother: Beholde, my brother Esau is rough, and I am smooth: then might my father peradventure fele me, and I shulde seme vnto him as though I begged him, and so brynge a curse vpon me and not a blessinge. Then sayde his mother vnto him: That curse be vpon me my sonne, folowethou my voyce: go thy waye and fetch it me. So he wente his waye, and fetched it, and brought it vnto his mother.

C Then his mother made meate, accordinge as his father loued, and toke Esaus hir elder sonnes costly rayment (which she had with her in y house) and put them vpon Jacob hir yonger sonne. But the kyddes synnes put she aboute his handes, and where he was smooth aboute the neck: and so she put the meate with bred (as she had made it) in hir sonne Jacobs hande.

And he brought it in vnto his father, and sayde: My father. He answered: here am I, who art thou my sonne? Jacob sayde: I am Esau thy firstborne sonne, I haue done as thou saydest vnto me: aryse, sit vp, and eate of my venyson, that thy soule maye blesse me. But Isaac sayde vnto his sonne: My sonne, how hast thou founde it so soone? He answered: The LORDE y God broughte it to my hande.

Then sayde Isaac vnto Jacob: Come neare my sonne, that I maye fele the, whether thou be my sonne Esau or not. So Jacob wente vnto Isaac his father. And when he had felt him, he sayde: The voyce is Jacobs voyce, but the handes are the handes of Esau. And he knew him not, for his handes were rough like as y handes of his brother Esau. And he blessed him.

D And he sayde vnto him: art thou my sonne Esau? He answered: Yee I am. Then sayde he: Brynge me here then to eate of thy venyson my sonne, that my soule maye blesse the. Then he brought it him, and he ate: and he brought him wyne also, and he drank. And Isaac his father sayde vnto him: Come nye, and kysse me my sonne. So he came nye, and he kysed him.

Then smelled he the sanoure of his clothes, and blessed him, and sayde: Beholde, the smell of my sonne is as y smell of the felde, which y LORDE hath blessed. God geue the of the dew of heauen, and of the fatnesse of the earth, and plenteousnes of corne and wyne. Actions be thy seruantes, and people fall downe at y fote. Be thou lorde ouer thy brethren, and thy mothers children fall downe at thy fote. Cursed be he, that curseth the: and blessed be he, that blesseth the.

E Now when Isaac had made an ende of blessinge, and Jacob was scace gone out from his father Isaac, his brother Esau came from his huntinge, and made meate also, and brought it vnto his father, and sayde vnto him: Aryse my father, and eate of y sonnes venyson, that thy soule maye blesse me. Then answered him Isaac his father: Who art thou? He sayde: I am Esau thy firstborne sonne. Then was Isaac exceedingly amased above measure, and saide: Who? Where is then the hunter that brought me, and I haue eaten of all afore thou camest, and haue blessed him? And he shall be blessed still.

When Esau herde these wordes of his father, he cried loude, and was exceedingly sore, and sayde vnto his father: O blesse me also my father. But he sayde: Thy brother came with sotyltie, and hath taken thy blessinge awaye. Then sayde he: He maye well be called Jacob, for he hath vndermined me now two tymes. My byrth right hath he awaye, and beholde, now taketh he awaye my blessinge also.

S And he sayde: Hast thou not kepte one blessinge for me? Isaac answered, and sayde vnto him: I haue made him lorde ouer y, and all his brethren haue I made his seruantes. With corne & wyne haue I pronyded him. What shal I do vnto the now my sonne? Esau sayde vnto his father: Hast thou not one blessinge more my father? O blesse me also my father.

And he lift vp his voyce, & wepte. Then Isaac his father answered and sayde vnto him: Beholde, thou shalt haue a fat dwellinge vpon earth, & of y dew of heauen from

And Esau bare euell wyll vnto Jacob, because of the blessinge that his father had blessed him withall, and sayde in his herte: The tyme wyll come shortly, that my father shall mourne, for I wil slaye my brother Jacob. The was it tolde Rebecca of these wordes of hir elder sonne, and she sent, and bad call for Jacob hir yonger sonne, and saide vnto him: Beholde, thy brother Esau threatenech the, that he wil slaye the. And now my sonne heare my voyce: Get the vp, and fflye vnto my brother Laban in Haran, and tary there with him a whyle, & tyll the furiousnes of thy brother be swaged, and till his wrath agaynst & be turned from the, and he forget what thou hast done vnto him. So wyll I then sende for the, and cause the be fetched from thence. Why shulde I be robbed of you both in one daye?

and 24. a

Then called Isaac his sonne Jacob and blessed him, and charged him, & sayde vnto him: Take not a wife of the daughters of Canaan, but get the vp, and go in to Mesopotamia vnto the house of Bethuel thy mothers father, and take & there a wife of & daughters of Laban & mothers brother. And the Allmightie God blesse the, and make the fructfull, and multiplye the, (that thou mayest be a multitude of people) and geue the the blessinge of Abraham vnto & & thy sede with the, that thou mayest possesse the lande, wherein thou art a stranger, & which God gaue vnto Abraham. So Isaac let Jacob departe, that he might go in to Mesopotamia vnto Laban the sonne of Bethuel of Siria, & brother of Rebecca, his and Esaus mother.

Now when Esau sawe that Isaac had blessed Jacob, and let him departe in to Mesopotamia, that he might take a wife there: and &, as he blessed him, he charged him, & sayde: Thou shalt not take a wife of the daughters of Canaan, and that Jacob obeyed his father and his mother, and was gone vnto Mesopotamia: seynge also that Isaac his father looked not gladly vpon the daughters of Canaan, he wente his waye vnto Ismael, and besyde the wyues that he had afore, he toke Mahaloth the daughter of Ismael (Abrahams sonne) the sister of Eliabiorh, to wife.

As for Jacob, he departed from Bersaba, and wente vnto Haran and came to a place, where he taried all night: for the Sonne was downe. And he toke a stone of & place, & put it vnder his heade, and layed him downe in & same place to slepe. And he dreamed, and beholde, there stode vpon & earth, a ladder, whose toppes reached vnto the heauen. And beholde, the angels of God wente vp and downe vpon it, and the LORDE stode vpon it, and sayde:

I am the LORDE God of thy father Abraham, and the God of Isaac: The lande & thou liest vpon, wyl I geue vnto the, and to thy sede: and thy sede shall be as & dust of & earth. And thou shalt spiede forth toward the west, east, north, and south: and thou & the and thy sede shall all the kynreds vpon earth be blessed. And beholde, I am with &, and wyll kepe the where so ever thou goest, & wyl brynge the hither agayne in to this lande: for I wil not leaue the, tyll I haue made good, all that I haue promysed the.

Now when Jacob awaked from his slepe, he saide: Surely the LORDE is in this place, and I knew not. And he was afrayed, and sayde: How fearfull is this place: here is no thinge els but an house of God, & a gate vnto heauen. And Jacob arose early in the morninge, and toke the stone that he had layed vnder his heade, and set it vp, and poured oyle vpon it. And he called the place Bethel, but afore the cite was called Lus. And Jacob made a vowe, and sayde: If God wyll be with me, and kepe me in this iourney, & I go & geue me bred to eate, and clothinge to put on, and brynge me peaceably home agayne vnto my father: The shall the LORDE be my God, and this stone that I haue set vp, shall be an house of God: and all that thou gapest me, I wyl geue the the tenth therof.

The XXIX. Chapter.

Then Jacob gat him vp vpon his feet, and wente in to the east countre, & looked aboute him, and beholde, there was a well in the felde, and & flockes of shepe therby, for the flockes dranke of the well. And there laye a greates stone at the welles mouth, and thither they used to brynge the flockes, and to roule the stone from & mouth of the well, and to geue the shepe drynke, &

so they put the stone agayne vpon the welles mouth in to his place.

And Jacob sayde vnto them: Brethren, whence be ye? They answered: we are of Haran. He sayde vnto them: Knowe ye Laban the sonne of Nahor? They answered: We knowe him well. He sayde: Is he in good health? They answered: he is in good health. And lo, there cometh his daughter Rachel with the shepe. He sayde: It is yet hye daye, & is not yet tyme to dryue in the cattell: geue the shepe to drynke, & go youre waye, & fede them. They answered: We can not, tyll all the flockes be brought together, and tyll we roule the stone from the welles mouth, & so geue the shepe drynke.

Whyle he yet talked with them, Rachel came with hir fathers shepe, for she kepte & shepe. When Jacob sawe Rachel & daughter of Laban his mothers brother, and the shepe of Laban his mothers brother, he wepte, & rouled the stone from the welles mouth, and gaue his mothers brother shepe to drynke, and kysed Rachel, lift vp his voyce, and wepte, and tolde her, & he was hir fathers brother, and & sonne of Rebecca. Then ranne she, and tolde her father.

When Laban herde of Jacob his sisters sonne, he ranne to meete him, and embraced him, and kysed him, and brought him in to his house. And so he tolde him all this matter. The sayde Laban vnto him: Wel, thou art my bone and my flesh. Abide with me a moneth longe. But after that saide he vnto Jacob: Because thou art my brother, shalt thou therfore serue me for nought? Tell me, what shall thy wages be. Laban had two daughters, the eldest was called Lea, & the yongest Rachel. And Lea was tender eyed, but Rachel was beutyfull & well fauoured of face, and Jacob loued her well, and sayde: I will serue the seven yeaere, for Rachel thy yongest daughter. Laban answered: It is better that I geue her the, then vnto another: tary thou with me.

So Jacob serued seven yeaere for Rachel, and they semed vnto him but few dayes, he loued her so well. And Jacob saide vnto Laban: geue me my wyfe, for the tyme is come that I shulde lye with her. The Laban had all the people of that place, and made a marriage. But at euē he toke his daughter Lea, and brought her in vnto him, and he layed with her. And Laban gaue Zilpa his mayde vnto his daughter Lea to be hir mayde.

But on the morow, beholde, it was Lea. And he sayde vnto Laban: Why hast thou done this vnto me? haue not I serued & for Rachel? Why hast thou then begyled me? Laban answered: It is not the maner in our countre, to mary the yongest before the eldest. Holde out this weke, & I will geue the this also, for the seruyce & thou shalt do me yet seven yeaeres more. Jacob dyd so, & helde out & weke. Then gaue he him Rachel his daughter to wyfe. And Laban gaue Bilha his mayden vnto Rachel his daughter to be hir mayden. So he laye with Rachel also, & loued Rachel more the Lea, and serued him yet seven yeaeres more.

But when the LORDE sawe, that Lea was nothinge regarded, he made her fructfull, and Rachel baren. And Lea conceaued, and bare a sonne, whom she called Ruben, and sayde: The LORDE hath looked vpon my aduersite. Now wyll my husband loue me. And she conceaued agayne, and bare a sonne, and sayde: The LORDE hath herde that I am despysed, and hath geue me this also, and she called him Symeon. She conceaued yet agayne, and bare a sonne, and sayde: Now wyll my husband kepe me company agayne, for I haue borne him thre sonnes, therefore called she his name Leui. She conceaued & fourth tyme, and bare a sonne, and sayde: Now wyll I geue thanks vnto the LORDE, therefore called she him Iuda, and left bearynge.

The XXX. Chapter.

Then Rachel sawe that she bare no children vnto Jacob, she had enuie at hir sister, & saide vnto Jacob: Geue me childre also, or els I am but deed. But Jacob was very wroth at Rachel, & sayde: Am I then in Gods steade, which kepeth & fruct of & wombe from &? Nevertheless she sayde: Beholde, there is Bilha my mayden, lye with her, & she maye beare vpon my lappe, & that I maye be increased by her. And so she gaue him Bilha hir mayden to wyfe.

And Jacob laye with her. So Bilha conceived, and bare Jacob a sonne. Then saye de Rachel: God hath geuen sentence on my syde, and herde my voyce, and geue me a son ne, therefore called she him Dan. Bilha Rachels mayde conceaued agayne, and bare another sonne vnto Jacob. Then sayde Rachel: God hath turned it with me, and my sister, and I haue gottē the upperhande. And she called him Nephtali.

Now whan Lea sawe that she had lest bearynge, she toke Silpa hir mayde, and gaue her vnto Jacob to wyfe. So Silpa Leas mayde bare Jacob a sonne. Then saide Lea: This is good lucke, & she called him Gad. After this Silpa Leas mayde bare Jacob another sonne. Then sayde Lea: Well is me, for the doughters will call me blessed, and she called him Asser.

Ruben wente out in the tyme of y wheate harvest, and founde Mandragoras in the felde, and brought them home vnto his mother Lea. Then sayde Rachel vnto Lea: Geue me some of y sonnes Mandragoras. She answered: Hast thou not ynough that thou hast taken awaye my husbände, but wilt take awaye my sonnes Mandragoras also? Rachel saide: Wel, let him lye with the this night for thy sonnes Mandragoras. Now whan Jacob came home at even from the felde, Lea wente forth to mete him, and sayde: Thou shalt lye w me, for I haue bought the for my sonnes Mandragoras.

And he slepte with her that night. And God herde Lea, and she conceaued, and bare Jacob the fift sonne, & sayde: God hath rewarded me, because I gaue my mayden vnto my husbände, and she called him Issachar. Lea conceaued yet agayne, and bare Jacob the sixte sonne, and sayde: God hath endewed me with a good dowry. Now wyll my husbände dwell with me agayne, for I haue borne him sixe sonnes, & she called him Zabulon. After that she bare a doughter, whom she called Dina.

Nevertheless God thought vpon Rachel, and herde her, and made her frute full. Then she conceaued, and bare a sonne, and sayde: God hath taken awaye my rebuke, and she called him Joseph, and sayde: God geue me yet another sonne.

Now whan Rachel had borne Joseph, Jacob sayde vnto Laban: Let me go, & departe in to my place and vnto myne owne lande: geue me my wyues and my children, (for the which I haue serued the) & I maye go: for thou knowest, what seruyce I haue done the. Laban sayde vnto him: Can I not synde sauoure in thy sight? I perceaue, that God hath blessed me for thy sake. Appoynte thou the rewarde, & I shal geue the. But he saide vnto him: Thou knowest how I haue serued the, and what maner of catell thou hast vnder me. Thou haddest but litle afore I came hither, but now is it growne into a multitude, and the LORDE hath blessed & for my sake. And now whan shall I loke to myne owne house also? he saide: What shal I then geue the?

Jacob sayde: Thou shalt geue me nothinge at all, but yf thou wilt do this for me & I saye, then wyll I fede and kepe thy shepe agayne. I wyll go thorow all thy flockes to daye, and separate thou from amonge them all the shepe that be spotted and partye coloured, and all blacke shepe amonge the lambes. Now loke what shal be partie coloured and spotted amonge the kyddes, the same shal be my rewarde: so shal my righteousness testify with me to daye or tomorrow, whan it cometh vnto my rewarde before the, so that, what so euer is not spotted and partye coloured amonge the kyddes, and blacke amonge the lambes, let that be theft with me.

Then sayde Laban: Beholde, let it be so as thou hast sayde. And that same daye he sundered out the speckled and partye coloured goates, and all the spotted and partye coloured kyddes (where there was eny whyte vpon them) and all that was blacke amonge the lambes, and put them vnder the hande of his children, and made rowme of thre dayes iourney wyde betwixte him and Jacob. So Jacob kepte the residue of Labans flocke.

But Jacob toke stanes of grene wyllies, hasell and of chesnottreas, and pyllid whyte streakes in them, and layed the stanes that he had pyllid, in the drynkinge troughes before the flocke, which came there to drynke, that they shulde conceaue, whan they came to drynke. So the flockes conceaued ouer y stanes, and brought forth speckelde, spotted and partye coloured.

Then Jacob parted y lambes, and put them to the flocke vnto the spotted: and all that was blacke in Labans flocke, that put he vnto the spotted. And he made him a flocke of his owne, which he put not vnto Labans flocke. Nevertheless in the first buckynge tyme of the flockes, he layed the stanes in the drynkinge troughes before the eyes of the flockes, that they shulde conceaue ouer the stanes. But in the latter buckynge tyme he layed them not in. So the later were Labans, but the firstlings were Jacobs.

Thus the man became exceedinge riche, so that he had many shepe, maydens & seruauntes, Camels and Asses.

The XXXI. Chapter.

¶ He herde also of y wordes of Labans children, that they sayde: Jacob hath brought all y fathers good vnto him self, & of oure fathers good hath he gotten these riches. And Jacob behelde Labans countenance, & beholde, it was not toward him as yester daye and yester daye.

And the LORDE sayde vnto him: Departe agayne to thy fatherlāde, and to thy kynred, I wyll be with the. Then sent Jacob and bad call Rachel and Lea in to the felde to his flockes, and sayde vnto them: I se youre fathers countenance, that it is not toward me like as yester daye and yester daye: but the God of my father hath bene with me. And ye knowe, that I haue serued youre father with all my power.

And he hath disceaued me, and chaunged my wages now ten tymes. But God hath not suffred him, to do me harme. If he sayde: The partye coloured shal be thy rewarde, then the whole flocke bare partye coloured. If he sayde: The speckelde shal be thy rewarde, then the whole flocke bare speckelde. Thus hath God with drawen youre fathers goodes from him, and geuen them vnto me. For whan the buckynge tyme came, I lift vp myne eyes and sawe in a dreame, and beholde, the rammes leapte vpon the flocke that was speckelde, spotted, & partye coloured.

And the angel of God sayde vnto me in a dreame: Jacob. And I answered: here am I. He sayde: lift vp thine eyes, and beholde, the rammes leape vpon the speckelde, spotted, and partye coloured flocke: for I haue se ne all y Laban doth vnto the. I am y God at Bethel, where thou dydest anoynthe the stone, & maydest a vowethere vnto me. Get the vp now, & departe out of this londe, & go agayne in to the londe of thy kynred.

¶ Then answered Rachel and Lea, and sayde vnto him: As for vs, we haue no porcioner inheritance more in oure fathers house, & he hath cousted vs as straungers, for he hath solde vs, & spent vp y wages. Therefore hath God with drawe y fathers riches from him vnto vs & oure children. What so euer now God hath sayde vnto the, that do.

So Jacob gat vp, and set his children and wyues vpon Camels, and caried awaye all his catell and all his substance, that he had gotten at Mesopotamia, y he might come vnto Isaac his father in the lande of Canaan. Laban was gone to clyppe his flocke, and Rachel stole hir fathers ymages. Thus dyd Jacob steale awaie y hert of Laban & Syuan, in y he tolde him nor that he fled. So he fled, & all that was his, gat vp, and passed ouer the water, & wente straight toward the mount Gilead.

¶ Upon the thirde daye it was tolde Laban, that Jacob fled. And he toke his brethren vnto him, and folowed after him seven dayes iourney, and ouertoke him vpon the mount Gilead. But God came vnto Laban the Syuan in a dreame by night, & sayde vnto him: Bewarre, that thou speake no thinge to Jacob but good. And Laban drewe nye vnto Jacob. As for Jacob, he had pyched his tente vpon the mount. And Laban with his brethren pyched his tent also vpon the same mount Gilead.

¶ Then sayde Laban vnto Jacob: What hast thou done, that thou hast stolen awaie my hert, and caried awaye my doughters, as though they had bene taken captiue & y siverde? Wherefore kepest thou that secreete, that thou woldest flye, and hast stolen awaye from me, and toldest me not, that I might haue brought the on the waye with myrth, with synginge, with tabrettes and harpes? and hast not suffred me to kysse my children and doughters? Thou hast done foolishly, and so moch might I haue made, that I coude haue done you euell: but youre fathers God saide yester daye vnto me: Bewarre, that thou speake no thinge vnto Jacob but good. And for so moch then as thou woldest nedes departe, and longedest sore after y fathers house, why hast thou stolen away my goodes?

¶ Jacob answered and sayde vnto Laban: I was a frayd, that thou shuldest haue taken away thy doughters fro me: but loke by whom thou syndest thy goodes, let the same dye here before oure brethren. Seke that thine is by me, and take it awaye. (But he knew not, that Rachel had stolen them.) Then wente Laban in to Jacobs tent and in to Leas tent, and in to both the maydens tētes, and founde nothinge: and out of Leas tēte he wente in to Rachels tent. Then toke Rachel the ymages, and layed them vnder the Camels strawe, and sat downe vpon them. But Laban searched the whole tent, and founde nothinge. Then sayde she vnto hir father: Be not angrie my lord, that I can not ryse vp vnto the: for it goeth w me after the maner of women. So he sought,

And Jacob was wroth, and chode with Laban, answered & sayde vnto him: What haue I trespassed or offended, & thou art so whote vpon me? Thou hast searched all my housholde stuff, & what hast thou founde of thy housholde stuff? Laye it here before my brethren & thyne, & they maye iudge betwene vs both. Twentye yere haue I bene wth the: thy shepe & goates haue not bene vnfructefull, the rammes of thy flocke haue I not eaten: I oke what was to me of bestes, I brought it not vnto y, I was fayne to paie it my self: thou requyrest it of my hande, whether it were stollen from me by daye or by night. On the daye yme the heate consumed me, and the frost on the night, and my slepe departed fro myne eyes.

Thus haue I serued twentye yere in thy house, fourtene yeres for thy daughters, & sixe for thy flocke, and ten tymes hast thou chaunged my rewarde: & yf the God of my father the God of Abraham, and the feare of Isaac had not bene on my syde, thou haddest latten me go awaye emptye. But God hath looked vpon myne aduersite and labour, and rebuked the yester daye.

Laban answered and sayde: The daughters are my daughters, & the children are my children, and the flockes are my flockes, & all that thou seist is myne. What can I do this daye vnto these my daughters, or to their children whom they haue borne? Nowther fore come on, let vs make a coneuant (I & thou) which maye be a wytnesse betwene me and the. Then toke Jacob a stone, & set it vp (for a piler or markstone) and sayde vnto his brethren: Gather stones. And they toke the stones, and made an heape, & ate vpon the same heape. And Laban called it Jegar Sahu dutha, but Jacob called it Gilead: (either of them after the properte of his language.)

Then sayde Laban: This heape be wytnesse betwene me and the this daye (therefore is it called Gilead) and a testimony, for he sayde: The LORDE loke betwene me and y, whan we are departed & one from y other: yf thou were my daughters, or take other wyues vnto them. There is no mā with vs, but lo, God is the wytnesse betwene me and the. And Laban sayde morouer vnto Jacob: Beholde, this is the heape, and this is the markstone that I haue set vp betwixte me and the: the same heape be wytnesse, and the same markstone also be wytnesse, yf I passe ouer vnto the, or yf thou passe ouer this heape & markstone vnto me, to do eny har-

me. The God of Abraham, and the God of Nahor, and the God of their fathers, be iudge betwene vs.

And Jacob sware vnto him by the feare of his father Isaac. And Jacob offred an offeringe vpon the mount, and called his brethre to eate bled. And whan they had eaten, they taried vpon the mount all night. But vpon the morow Laban rose vp early, kysed his childre & daughters, & blessed the, & departed, and came agayne vnto his place. As for Jacob, he wente on his iourney, & the angels of God met him. And whan he sawe them, he sayde: It is Gods hoost, & called the same place Mahanaim.

The XXXII. Chapter.

Jacob sent messengers before him to his brother Esau into the lande of Seir, of the felde of Edom, & commaunded the, & sayde: Saye thus vnto my lord Esau: Thy seruant Jacob sendeth y this worde: I haue bene out wth Laban, & haue bene hither to amonge straungers, & haue oren & Asses, shepe, seruantes & maydes, & haue sent forth to shewe it the my lord, & I might synde sauoure in thy sight.

The messengers came agayne vnto Jacob, and sayde: We came vnto thy brother Esau, & he commaundeth forth also agaynst the with foure hundred men. Then was Jacob sore afayed, and wylt not what waye to turne himself, & denyded the people that was with him, and the shepe, and the oren, & the Camels in to two droues, & sayde: If Esau come vpon the one drone, and smyte it, the other shal escape.

Jacob sayde morouer: O God of my father Abraham, God of my father Isaac, LORDE thou that saydest vnto me: Departe agayne to thine owne londe and to thy kynred, and I wyl do the good: I am to litle for all the mercies and all the trouth that thou hast shewed vnto thy seruant (for I had no more but this staff whan I wente ouer this Jordan, and now am I becometwo droues) deliuer me from y hande of my brother, fro the hade of Esau, for I am afayed of him, lest he come and smyte me the mother with the children. Thou saydest: I wyl do the good, and wyl make thy sede as the sonde of y see, which can not be nombred for multitude.

And there he taried that night, and toke of such as came to hande, a present vnto his brother Esau, two hundred she goates, twentye he goates, two hundred shepe, twentye rammes and thirtie mylke camels wth their foales, fourtye kyne, ten bullockes, twentye she Asses with ten foales, and put them in the handes of his seruantes, every flock by them selues, & sayde vnto them: Go ye forth before me, & put a space betwixte one flocke after the other, and commaunded the first and sayde:

When my brother Esau meteth the, and axeth the: Whose art thou? & whyther goest thou? and whose are these that thou dyuest before the? Thou shalt saye: They be thy seruant Jacobs, which sendeth a present vnto his lord Esau, and commaundeth behynde vs him self.

Thus commaunded he the seconde also, and the thirde, and all them that folowed the flockes, and sayde: Like as I haue tolde you, so speake ye vnto Esau, whan ye mere him, and saye vnto him also: Beholde, y seruant Jacob is behynde vs. For he thought: I wyl reconyle him with the present that goeth before me, after warde wyl I see him my self, peradventure he shall receaue me to grace.

So the present wente before him, but he taried in the tente the same night, and rose vp in y night, and toke his two wyues and the two maydens and his eleuen sonnes, and wente vnto the soorde of Jacob, toke them and caried them ouer the water, so that all that he had came ouer, and taried him self alone on this syde.

Then wrestled there a man with him vntill the breake of y daye. And whan he sawe y he might not ouercome him, he touched the fenowe of his thye, and y fenowe of his thye shianke in wrestlinge with him. And he sayde: Let me go, for y daye breaketh on. But he answered: I will not let y go, except thou blesse me. He sayde: What is thy name? He answered: Jacob. He sayde: Thou shalt nomore be called Jacob, but Israel, for thou hast stryuen with God and with men, and hast preuayled. And Jacob axed him, & sayde: Tell me, what is y name? But he sayde: Why axest thou what my name is? And he blessed him there. And Jacob called the place Peniel, for I haue sene God face to face, & my soule is recovered. And as he came ouer fro Peniel, y Some rose vpo him, & he halted vpon his thye. Therefore eate the children of Israel no vane vpon the fenow of y thye vnto this daye, because y vane vpon the fenow of Jacobs thye was touched.

The XXXIII. Chapter.

Jacob lift vp his eyes, & sawe his brother Esau comynge with foure hun-

dreth men, and he denyded his children vnto Lea vnto Rachel, and to both the maydes, and set the maydens with their children before, and Lea with hir childre after, and Rachel with Joseph hynder most. And he wente before them, and bowed him self to the grounde seven tymes, tyll he came to his brother. But Esau ranne to mere him, and embraced him, and fell aboute his neck, & kysed him, and wepte, and lift vp his eyes, and sawe the wyues with the children, and sayde: What are these with the? He answered: They are the children, which God hath geuen vnto thy seruant. And the maydens came forth with their children, and dyd their obeysaunce vnto him.

Lea came forth also with hir childre, and kneeled vnto him. Afterwarde came Joseph and Rachel forth, and kneeled vnto him like wyfe. And he sayde: What meanest thou wth all the drone that I met? He answered: that I might synde grace in the sight of my lord. Esau sayde: I haue ynough my brother, kepe that thou hast. Jacob answered: Whay, but yf I haue founde grace in y sight, receaue my present of my hande (for I sawe thy face, as though I had sene the face of God) and be at one with me. Take this present in good worth, that I haue brought y, for God hath geuen it me, & I haue ynough of all thinges. So he compelled him to take it.

And he sayde: Let vs go on and take oure iourney, I wyl go in thy company. But he sayde vnto him: My lord, thou knowest that I haue tender children by me, and small and greate catell also, which are yet but yong: yf they shulde be dryue ouer in one daye, the whole flocke wolde dye. Let my lord go on before his seruant. I wyl dryue after fayre and softly, (there after as the catell & the children can go,) tyll I come to my lord in Seir. Esau sayde: Yet wil I leave some of my people with the. He answered: What neede is it? Let me but onely synde grace in the sight of my lord.

So Esau departed agayne the same daye toward Seir, and Jacob toke his iourney toward Sucoth, and buylded him an house, and made tetes for his catell. Therefore is the place called Sucoth.

Afterwarde came Jacob peaceably vnto the cite of Sichem, which lyeth in y lande of Canaan, after that he was come agayne out of Mesopotamia, and pitched before the cite, and bought a pece of londe of the children of Hemor y father of Sichem for

The XXXIII. Chapter.

Ana y daughter of Lea, which she bare vnto Jacob, wente out to beholde the daughters of the londe. Whan Sichem the sonne of Hemor the Hemyte (which was lorde of the lode) sawe her, he toke her, and laye with her, and forced her, and his hert hanged vpon her, and he loved y damsell, and talked louyngly with her, and spake to his father Hemor: Get me this mayden to wife.

And Jacob vnderstode, that Dina his daughter was defyled, and his sonnes were with the catell in the felde, and Jacob helde his tonge tyll they came. Then Hemor the father of Sichem wente forth vnto Jacob to comen with him. In the meane season came Jacobs sonnes from y felde. And whan they herde it, it grieved them, and they were very wroth, that he had wrought folly in Israel, and lyen with Jacobs daughter: for so was not the vse to do.

B Then comened Hemor with the, and sayde: My sonne Sichems hert longeth for your daughter, O geue hir him to wife: make frendshipe with vs, geue vs youre daughters, and take ye oure daughters, and dwell with vs, the londe shall be open vnto you, dwell and occupie, and haue youre possessions therin. And Sichem sayde vnto his father and brethren: Let me fynde grace with you: loke what ye appoynte me, I will geue it: requyre the dowrye and gift of me hardely, I will geue it accordinge as ye will are, onely geue me the damsell to wife.

Then Jacobs sonnes answered Sichem and Hemor his father (and spake disceatfully, because their sister Dina was defyled) and sayde vnto them: That can we not do, to geue oure sister to an vncircumcised man: for that were a shame vnto vs.

C Neuertheles we will consente vnto you, yf ye will be like vnto vs, and be circumcised as many as are males amonge you: then will we geue you oure daughters, and take youre daughters vnto vs, and dwell with you, and be one people. But yf ye will not herken vnto vs, to be circumcised, then will we take oure daughter, and go oure waye.

These wordes pleased Hemor and his sonne wel, and the yongeman desai de not to do the same, for he had lust to Jacobs doughter:

and he was holden in honoure aboue all in his fathers house. Then came Hemor and Sichem his sonne vnder y gate of cite, and comened with the citisens of the cite, and saide: These men are peaceable with vs, and will dwell in the lande and occupye: now is the londe brode of both the sydes, we will take their daughters vnto vs, and geue them oure daughters.

But then will they consent vnto vs, to dwell by vs, and to be one people with vs, yf we circumcise all the men children amonge vs, like as they are circumcised: their catell and goodes, and all that they haue, shall be ours, yf we consent vnto them, that they maye dwell with vs.

And they herkened vnto Hemor and Sichem his sonne, as many as wente out and in at y gate of his cite, and circumcised all the males, that wente out and in at his cite. And vpon the thirde daye (whan it was painefull to them) the two sonnes of Jacob Symeon and Levi Dinas brethren, toke every man his swerde, and wente boldly in to the cite, and slew all the males, and slew Hemor also and Sichem his sonne with the edge of the swerde, and toke their sister Dina out of Sichems house, and wente their waye.

Then came Jacobs sonnes ouer the slayne, and spoyled the cite (because they had defyled their sister) and toke their shepe, oxen, Asses, and what so ever was in the cite and in the londe, and all maner of goodes: All their children and wyues toke they captiue, and spoyled all y was in the houses.

And Jacob sayde vnto Symeon and Levi: Ye haue brought it so to passe, y I stynte before the inhabitants of this lande, y Canaanites and Pherecites, y I am but a small nombre: If they gather them selues now together against me, they shall slaye me, so shall I be destroyed with my house. But they answered: Shalde they the deale with oure sister as with an whoore?

The XXXV. Chapter.

And God sayde vnto Jacob: Get the vp, and go vnto Bethel, y dwell there, and make there an altare vnto the God, that appared vnto the, whan thou fleddest from thy brother Esau. Then sayde Jacob vnto his household and to all y were with him: Put awaye from you y straunge goddes, that are amonge you, and cleanse youre selues, and chaunge youre clothes, and let vs get vp, and go vnto Bethel, that I maye there make an altare vnto the God.

which herde me in the tyme of my trouble, and hath bene with me in the waye that I haue gone.

B Then gaue they him all the straunge gods that were vnder their handes, and their earynges, and he buried them vnder an Oke that stode besyde Sichem, y departed. And there came a feare of God vpon the cities that laye rounde aboute, so that they folowed not after y sonnes of Jacob. So came Jacob vnto Lus in y lande of Canaan (which is called Bethel) and all the people that were with him, and there he buylded an altare, and called y place Bethel, because the LORDE appeared vnto him there, whan he fled from his brother. Then dyed Debora Rebeccas noife, and was buried beneth Bethel vnder the Oke, and it was called the Oke of lamentacion.

C And God appeared agayne vnto Jacob, after that he was come out of Mesopotamia, and blessed him, y saide vnto him: Thou art called Jacob, neuertheles thou shalt no more be called Jacob, but Israel shall be y name. And so was he called Israel.

C And God sayde vnto him: I am the All mightie God, be fructifull and multiplye: people and a multitude of people shall come of the, and kynges shall come out of thy loynes: and the lande that I gaue vnto Abraham and Isaac, will I geue vnto the, y will geue it vnto thy sede after the. So God departed from him, from y place where he talked with him. And Jacob set vp a piler of stone, in the place where he talked with him, y poured drynt offerynges thereon, and poured oyle vpon it. And Jacob called y place where God talked with him, Bethel.

D And he departed from Bethel: and whan he was yet a felde brode from Ephrath, Rachel traueyled, y the byrth came harde vpon hir. But whan she had soch payne in traueylinge, y myd wife sayde vnto her: feare not, for thou shalt haue this sonne also. But as hir soule was departynge, y she must dye, he called hir Ben Oni: neuertheles his father called hi Ben Jamin. So Rachel died, y was buried in the waye toward Ephrath, which now is called Bethlehẽ. And Jacob set vp a piler vpon hir graue, there is Rachels grauestone vnto this daye. And Israel departed, and pitched his tent beyonde the tower of Eder.

E And it chaunced, that whan Israel dwelt in that londe, Ruben wente and laye with Bilha his fathers concubine, and that came to Israels eares.

And Jacob had twolue sonnes. The sonnes of Lea were these: Ruben Jacobs first borne sonne, Simeon, Levi, Juda, Isachar, y Zabulõ. The sonnes of Rachel were Joseph and Ben Jamin. The sonnes of Bilha Rachels mayde: Dan, and Nephtali. The sonnes of Silpa Leas mayde: Gad and Aser. These are y sonnes of Jacob, which were borne vnto him in Mesopotamia. And Jacob vnderstode, that Dina his daughter was defyled, and his sonnes were with the catell in the felde, and Jacob helde his tonge tyll they came. Then Hemor the father of Sichem wente forth vnto Jacob to comen with him. In the meane season came Jacobs sonnes from y<sup>e</sup> felde. And whan they herde it, it grieved them, and they were very wroth, that he had wrought folly in Israel, and lye with Jacobs daughter: for so was not the vse to do.

B Then comened Hemor with th<sup>e</sup>, and sayde: My sonne Sichems hert longeth for y<sup>e</sup>re daughter, O geue hir him to wife: make frendshipe with vs, geue vs youre daughters, and take ye oure daughters, and dwell with vs, the londe shall be open vnto you, dwell and occupie, and haue youre possessions therin. And Sichem sayde vnto his father and brethren: Let me synde grace with you: loke what ye appoynte me, I will geue it: requyre the dowrye and gift of me hardely, I will geue it accordinge as ye will are, onely geue me the damsell to wife.

Then Jacobs sonnes answered Sichem and Hemor his father (and spake disceatfully, because their sister Dina was defyled) and sayde vnto them: That can we not do, to geue oure sister to an vncircumcised man: for that were a shame vnto vs.

C Neuertheles we will consente vnto you, yf ye will be like vnto vs, and be circumcised as many as are males amonge you: then will we geue you oure daughters, and take youre daughters vnto vs, and dwell with you, and be one people. The XXXVII. Chapter.

J Acob dwelt in & lande, wherin his father was a straunger, namely in the lade of Canaan. And these are & generacions of Jacob. Joseph was seutene years olde, whā he became a keeper of the catell wh his biethren, & the lad was wh the children of Bilha & Silpa his fathers wyues, and tolde their father of & euell repore & was of the. Israel loued Joseph more the all his childre because he had begottē him in his olde age, and he made him a cote of many coloures.

Now whā his biethre sawe, & his father loued him more the all his biethre, they had euell wyll at him, & coude not speake a frendly worde vnto hi. Joseph also had once a dreame, and tolde his biethre therof. The hate they him & more, for he sayde: Heare I praye you what I dreamed. We thought we were byndinge sheenes vpon & felde, & my shefe arose, and stode vp, and youre sheenes rounde aboute made obeysaunce vnto my shefe.

Then sayde his biethre vnto him: Shalt thou be & kyng, and haue domyniō ouer vs? And they hated him yet & more, because of his dreame, & his wordes. And he had yet another dreame, which he tolde his biethre, & sayde: Beholde, I had yet another dreame: We thought & Sonne & & Moone & eluen starres made obeysaunce to me. And whā this was tolde his father and his biethre, his father reprovēd him, & sayde vnto him: What manner of dreame is this, & thou hast dreamed: Shall I & thy mother, & thy biethren come & fall before & vpon the grounder? And his biethre had enuie at him. But his father marked this sayenge.

Now whā his biethren were gone forth to kepe their fathers catell in Sichem, Israel sayde vnto Joseph: Do not & biethren kepe the catell in Sichem: Come, I wil sende the vnto the. He answered: Here am I. And he sayde: Go thy waye, and loke whether it be well wh thy biethren and with & catell, and byngeme worde agayne how it is. And he sent him out of the valley of Hebron, to go vnto Sichem.

Then a certayne man founde him, wanginge out of his waye in the felde, which axed him, and sayde: Whom sekest thou? He answered: I seke my biethren: tell me I pray the where they kepe. The man sayde: They are gone from hence, for I herde them saye: let vs go vnto Dothan. Then folowed Joseph after his biethren, and founde them at Dothan.

Now whan they sawe him a farr off, asore he came at the, they deuysed to sleve him, and sayde one to another: Lo, there cometh the dreamer, & come on, and let vs sleve him, & cast him in a pytt, and saye: a wicked beast hath deuoured him: the shal it besene, what his dreames are.

When Ruben herde that, he wolde haue deuyned him out of their handes, & sayde: Let vs not sleve a soule. Ruben sayde moreover vnto him: Shed no bloude, but cast him into this pytt & is in the wylbernes, & laye ye no hādes vpon him. (He wolde haue deuyned him out of their hādes, & he might haue brought him agayne vnto his father.)

Whan Joseph now came to his biethre, they stryped him out of his cote, that partye coloured cote which he had vpon him, & toke him and cast him in to a pytt. But the same pytt was emptye, and no water in it, & they sat them downe to eate. In the meane season they lifte vp their eyes, and sawe a company of Ismaelites comynge from Gilead, with their camels, which bare spyes, balme, and myre, and were goinge downe into Egypte.

Then saide Juda vnto his biethre: what helpeth it vs, that we sleve oure brother, and hyde his bloude? Come, let vs sell him vnto the Ismaelites, that oure handes be not defyled vpon him, for he is oure brother, oure flesh and bloude. And they hearkened vnto him.

And as the Madianites marchant men wente by, they drew Joseph out of the pytt, and solde him vnto the Ismaelites (for twetye syluer pens) which brought him in to Egypte.

Ac. 7. b

Now whan Ruben came agayne vnto the pytt, & founde not Joseph therein, he rent his clothes, and came agayne to his biethre and sayde: The lad is not yonder, whyther shal I go? Then toke they Josephs cote & slewe a goate, and dypped the cote in & bloude, and sent awaye that partye coloured cote, and caused it be brought vnto their father and sayde: This hanewe founde, loke, whether it be thy sonnes coate, or no.

But he knewe it, and sayde: It is my sonnes coate, & a wicked beast hath deuoured him, a rauysinge beast hath rauysed Joseph. And Jacob rete his clothes, and put a sackcloth aboute his loynes, & mourned for his sonne a longe season. And all his sonnes & daughter came vnto him to cōforte him. But he wolde not be cōforted, & saide: With sorowe wil I go downe in to the graue vnto my sonne. And his father wepte for him. But the Madianites solde him in Egypte vnto Potiphar Pharaos chiefe Marshall.

The XXXVIII. Chapter.

J C fortunēd at the same time, & Juda wente downe fro his biethren, & gat him to a man called Hyra at Odolam. And there Juda sawe a mā of Canaan daughter called Sua, and toke her. And whā he had lyen with her, she conceaued and bare a sonne, whom she called Er.

And she conceaued agayne, & bare a son, whō she called Ona. She proceeded yet further, & bare a sonne, whō she called Sela. And whā she had borne him, she left of bearinge.

And Juda gaue his first sonne Er a wife, whose name was Thamar. But he was wicked before the LORDE, therefore the LORDE slew him. Then sayde Juda vnto his sonne Onan: Go lie with thy brothers wife, and makee thyself with her, that thou mayest raise vp sede vnto thy brother. But when Onan knewe that the sede shulde not be his owne, whan he laye with his brothers wife, he let it fall vpon the earth and destroyed it, & he shulde not gene sede vnto his brother. This thinge that he dyd displeased the LORDE sore, and he slewe him also.

Dent. 25. a

Then sayde Judas vnto Thamar his sonnes wyfe. Remayne a wyddow in thy fathers house, tyll my sonne Sela be growne: for he thought: peradventure he might dye also like as his biethren. So Thamar wente hir waye, and remained in hir fathers house. Now whā many dayes were past, & dough-ter of Sūa Judas wife dyed. And whan Juda had left mourninge, he wente vp vnto Thimnath to clyppe his shepe with his shepherde Hyia of Odollam.

C Then was it tolde Thamar: beholde, thy father in lawe goeth vp vnto Thimnath, to clyppe his shepe. Then put she of & wyd-covered and dysgyfed hir self, & sat hir dow-ne without the porte by the waye syde to-warde Thimnath. For she sawe that Sela was growne, and she was not geuen vn-

Now whan Juda sawe her, he thought it had bene an whoore, for she had covered hir face: and he gat him to her in the waye, and saide: I praye the let me lye with the, for he knewe not that it was his daughter in lawe. She answered: What wilt thou geue me, that thou mayest lye with me? he sayde:
I wil sende the a kydd from the flocke. She answered: Geue me a pledge then, tyll thou sende it me. he sayde: What pledge wilt thou that I geue the?

D She answered: Thy signet, and thy bracelet, and thy staff that thou hast in thy hade. Then he gaue it her, and laye with her, and she was with childe of him. And she gat hir vp, and wente hir waye, and layed of hir cloke, and put on hir wyddowes garme-tes agayne.

Juda sent the kydd by his shepherde of Odolla, to fetch the pledge agayne from the woman, and he founde her not. Then axed he the men of the same place, & sayde: Where is the whoore & sat without in the waye?
They answered: There hath no whoore bene here. And he came agayne vnto Juda, and saide: I haue not founde her, morouer & men of the same place saide: that there hath no whoore bene there. Juda sayde: Let her take it vnto her, lest we happily be shamed, for I haue sent the kydd, and thou hast not founde her.

E After thre monethes it was tolde Juda: Thamar thy daughter in lawe hath plaied
the whoore: and beholde, by whordome is she gotten with childe. Juda sayde: brynge her forth, that she maye be brent. And whan
she was brought forth, she sent vnto hir father in lawe, and sayde: By the man & oweth these, am I w childe. And she sayde: Know-est thou whose is this signet, this bracelet & this staff? Juda knewe the, & sayde: She is more righteous the I, for I gaue hir not my sonne Sela: But he laye nomore with her.

Whan the tyme came that she shulde be delynered, there were two twyns founde in hir wombe. And as she was now in tran-lynge, the one put out his hande. Then the mydwife toke and boude a reed threde aboute it, and saide: This shal come out first. But whan he pluckte in his hande agayne, his brother came forth. And she sayde: Wherefo-re is there a rent mayde for thy sake? And he was called Phares. Afterwarde came his brother forth, which had & reed threde aboute his hande, and he was called Sarah.

The XXXIX. Chapter.

J Oseph was brought downe in to E-gipte, & Potiphar an Egipcian Pha-raos chiefe marshall bought him of & Ismaelites, & brought him downe. And LORDE was w Joseph, in so moch & he became a lucke yema, & was in his master & Egipcians house. And his master sawe & the LOR-DE was w him: for what so ever he dyd, the LORDE made it to prospere in his hande: so he founde fauor in his masters sight, & was his seruant. He made him ruler of his house, and put all that he had, vnder his hande.
And from the tyme forth that he had made him ruler of his house and all his goodes, & LORDE blessed the Egipcians house for Josephs sake: and there was nothyng but the very blessinge of the LORDE in all & he had in & house & in the felde, therefore left he all he had, in Josephs hande. And medled with nothyng himself, saue onely the bred that he ate. And Joseph was saye of bewtye, and well fauoured of face.

And it fortunad after these actes, that his masters wife cast hir eyes vpon Joseph, and sayde: Slepe with me. But he denyed, and saide vnto her: Beholde, my master knoweth not what is in & house, and all that he hath, that hath he put vnder my hande. And there is no man so greate in the house as I, and he hath kepte nothyng fro me, excepte the:
for thou art his wife. How shulde I then do so greate euell, and synne agaynst God? But she spake soch wordes vnto Joseph daylie.
Nevertheless he hertened not vnto her, to sle-pe by her, or to be in her company.

It fortunad vpon a tyme, that Joseph wente in to the house to do his busynesse, and there was none of & folkes of the house thereby. And she caught him by his garment, & sayde: Slepe with me. But he left the garment in hir hande, and fled, and gat him out of the house.

Now whā she sawe that he had left his garmēt in hir hande, and fled out, she called the folkes in the house, and sayde vnto the:
Lo, he hath brought vs in the hebrue, to do vs shame. he came in here vnto me, to slepe by me: but I cried with loude voyce. And whan he herde that I made a noyse & cried, he left his garmēt here by me, and fled, and ranne out.

And she layed vp his garmēt by her, tyll
his master came home, and tolde him euen
the same wordes, and sayde: The hebrue ser-uaunt whom thou broughtest here vnto vs, came in here to me, for to do me shame. But whan I made a noyse and cried, he left his garment here by me, and fled out. Whan his master herde the wordes of his wyfe which she tolde him, and sayde: Thus hath the hebrue seruant done vnto me, he was very wroth.

Then his master toke him, and put him in the prison, wherin the kinges prisoners laie.
And there he laye in prison. But the LORDE was with him, and had mercy vpon him, & caused him to fynde fauor in the sight of the officer of & prison, so that he committed all the prisoners of the prison vnto his handes:
that what so ever were done, might be done
by him. For the officer of the prison sawe, & the LORDE was with him in all & was vnder his handes, and that what so ever he dyd, the LORDE made it to come prosperously to passe.

The XL. Chapter.

I t fortunad after this, that & kynge of Egypres chiefe butlar and & che-fe baker offended their loide the kynge of Egypre. And pharao was angrie w them, & caused them be put in prison in & che-fe marshalls house, where Joseph laye presoner. And the chiefe marshall put Joseph vnto them, & he might serue them. And so they were in prison for a season.

And they dreame, both the butlar & the baker in one night, euery mā his owne drea-me, and euery dreame had his interpretaciō.
Now in the mornynge whan Joseph came in vnto them, and sawe that they looked sadly, he axed them and sayde: Why loke ye so sadly to daye? They answered: We haue dreame, and haue no man to declare it vnto vs. Joseph sayde: Interpretinge belongeth vnto God, but tell it me yet.

B Then the chiefe butlar tolde Joseph his dreame, and saide vnto him: I dreame that there was a vyne before me, which had thre braunches, and it lubbed, grewe and bare blossoms, and the grapes therof were ripe.

And I had pharao cuppe in my hande, & toke (the grapes) and wronge the in to & cup-pe, and gaue pharao the cuppe in his hande.

Joseph sayde: This is the interpretaciō:
The thre braunches are thre dayes, and ouer
thre dayes shall pharao take the, and putt
the in thine office agayne, that thou mayest geue him the cuppe in his hande after the olde maner, whā thou wast his butlar. But whan thou art in thy prosperite, thynke vpon me, and shewe me kyndnesse, that thou mayest certifie pharao of me, & he maie brin-ge me out of this house: for I was preuely caried out of the lands of the hebrues, and here also haue I done nothyng, that they shul-de haue put me in this dongeon.

Whan the chiefe baker sawe, that the interpretacion was good, he sayde vnto Joseph: I dreamed, that I bare thre wyker baskettes vpon my heade, and in & vppermost basket all maner of bakē meates vnto pharao, and the foules ate out of the basket vpon my heade.

Joseph answered, and sayde: This is the interpretacion: The thre baskettes are thre dayes, and after thre dayes shall pharao take the, and hange the vpon the galowe, and the foules shal eat thy flesh from of &.

And vpon the thirde daye it came to passe, that pharao helde his byrth daye, and made a feast vnto all his seruantes, and to ke the chiefe butlar and the chiefe baker before all his seruantes, and restored the chiefe butlar to his butlarshipe agayne, so that he reached the cuppe in to pharao's hande. As for the chiefe baker, he caused him be hanged
like as Joseph had interpreted vnto him.
Nevertheless the chiefe butlar thought not on Joseph, but forgot him.

The XLI. Chapter.

I t after two yeares pharao had a dreame, how that he stode by a water syde, and beholde, out of the water
there came seuen goodly kyne, and fat fleshed, and wente feedinge in the medowe. After these he sawe other seuen kyne come out of the water, which were euell fauoured and leane fleshed, and wente by the kyne vpon & water syde: and the euell fauoured leane kyne ate vp the seuen goodly and fatt kyne. Then pharao awaked.

And he slepte agayne, and dreame the seconde tyme. And he sawe that seuen eares of come grewe vpon one stalk, full and good. Afterwarde he sawe seuen thynne and blasted eares come vp, and the seven thynne eares deuoured the seven greate and full eares. Then pharao awaked, and sawe that it was a dreame. And whan it was daye, his spiete was troubled, and he sente out, & caused to call all the soothsayers in Egipte & all the wyse men, and tolde them his dreame. But there was none, that coude tell pharao the interpretacion of it.

B Then spake the chiefe butlar vnto pharao, and saide: This daye do I remembre my sawte. Whan pharao was angrie with his seruantes, and put me in prison with the chiefe baker in the chiefe marshalls house, we dreamed both in one night euery mā his dreame, hauinge his owne interpretacion. Then was there with vs a yonge man an hebreue, the chiefe marshalls seruant, vnto whom we tolde it, and he declared oure dreames vnto vs, vnto euery mā acordinge to his dreame. And as he declared it vnto vs, so came it to passe. For I was restored vnto myne office, and he was hanged.

Then pharao sent and called for Joseph and they let him out of the dongeon. And he let himself be shauen, and chaunged his clothes, and came in vnto pharao. Then saide pharao vnto him: I haue dreamed a dreame, and there is no man that can interpret it: but I haue herde tell of the, that whā thou hearest a dreame, thou declarest it. Joseph answered pharao, and sayde: God shall geue pharao a prosperous answer, yee well without me.

C Pharao sayde vnto Joseph: I dreamed that I stode by a water syde, and beholde, out of the water there came seven kyne, fat-fleshed and goodly, and wente feeding in the meadowe. And after them I sawe other seven kyne come out, thynne, euell fauoured, and leenfleshed. So euell fauoured sawe I neuer in all the lande of Egipte. And the seven leene and euell fauoured kyne, ate vp the seven first fat kyne. And whan they had eaten them vp, a man coude not perceaue that they had eaten them, & were as euell fauoured as they were afore. Then I awaked.

And I sawe agayne in my dreame seven eares of come, growinge vpo one stalk, full and good. Afterwarde there spronge vp seven withered eares, thynne and blasted, and the seven thynne eares deuoured the seven good eares. And I haue shewed it vnto my soothsayers, but they can tell me nothinge therof.

D Joseph answered pharao: Both pharao's dreames are one. God sheweth pharao what he wil do. The seven good kyne are seven yeares, and the seven good eares are seven yeares also. It is one dreame. The seven leene and euell fauoured kyne, that came up after them, are seven yeares. And the seven thynne and blasted eares, shalbe seven yeares of derth. This is now the thinge which I tolde pharao, that God sheweth pharao, what he wyll do.

Beholde, there shal come seven yeares of greate plenteousnes in the whole lande of Egipte, and after the same there shal come seven yeares of derth, so that all this plenteousnes shalbe forgotten in the lande of Egipte: and the derth shal consume the lande, so that the plenteousnes shal not be perceaued in the lande, because of the derth that cometh thereafter, for it shal be very greate. Where as pharao dreamed the second kyne, it signifieth that this thinge is surely prepared of God, and that God wil shortly brynge the same to passe.

Let pharao now prouyde for a man of vnderstandinge & wysdome, whom he maye set ouer the lande of Egipte, and se that he ordene officers in the lande, and take the fift (parte) of the lande of Egipte in the seven plenteous yeares, and gather all the foode & shal come of the plenteous yeares, that they maye laye vp come vnder pharao's power for sustenance in the cities, and kepe it, & theremay be foode founde prepared for the lande in the seven deare yeares, which shal come vpon the lande of Egipte, that the lande be not destroyed of hunger. The sayenge pleased pharao well and all his seruantes. And pharao sayde vnto his seruantes: How might we fynde soch a man, in whom is the spiete of God? And sayde vnto Joseph: For so moch as God hath shewed & all this, there is none of soch vnderstandinge & wysdome as thou.

Thou shalt be ouer my house, and acordinge vnto thy worde shal all my peepie obey: onely in the kynges seate wyll I be more then thou. And he sayde: Beholde, I haue set the ouer the whole lande of Egipte. And he toke of his ringe from his hāde, and gaue it Joseph in his hāde, and clothed him with whyte sylke, and honged a cheyne of golde aboute his neck, and made him ryde vpo the seconde charet: and caused it be proclaimed before him, that men shulde bowe their knees vnto him, as to him whō pharao had set ouer the whole lande of Egipte.

And pharao sayde vnto Joseph: I am pharao: without thy wyll shal no man mo-

ue his hande or his fore in all the lande of Egipte. And he called him Zaphnath Paena, & gaue him a wife, euen Asnath the daughter of Potiphar the priest of On. So Joseph wente out, for to visyte the lande of Egipte. (And he was thirtie yeare olde, whan he stode before pharao.) And he departed from pharao, and wente thorow all the lande of Egipte.

And the londe dyd so those seven plenteous yeares, and they gathered all the foode of the seven yeares that were in the lande of Egipte, & layed it in the cities. Loke what foode grewe in the felde rounde aboute euery cite, they put it therein. So Joseph layed vp the come in stoare, and that moch aboue measure, as the sonde of the see: in so moch & he left of nombrynge of it, for it coude not be nombred.

G And vnto Joseph there were borne two sonnes (before the derth came) whom Asnath the daughter of Potiphar priest of On bare vnto him. And the first called he Manasses: for God (sayde he) hath caused me to forget all my laboure, and all my fathers house. The seconde called he Ephraim: for God (sayde he) hath caused me to growe in the lande of my trouble.

Now whan the seven plenteous yeares were ended in Egipte, then beganne the seven deare yeares to come, wherof Joseph had sayde. And there was derth in all landes, but in all the lande of Egipte there was foode. Now whan the lande of Egipte beganne to suffre hunger also, the people cryed vnto pharao for bread. But pharao sayde vnto all the Egiptians: Go vnto Joseph, what he sayeth vnto you, & doo. So whan there was derth in all the lande, Joseph opened all the was by him, & solde vnto the Egiptians. Thus the derth perauyled in the lande, & all countrees came to Egipte to bye at Joseph: for the derth was mightie in all landes.

The XLII. Chapter.

A Whan Jacob sawe that there was moch come in Egipte, he sayde vnto his sonnes: Why gape ye? Beholde, I heare that there is moch come in Egipte, go downe & bye vs come, & we maie lyue, & not dye. So Josephs ten brethren wente downe to bye come in Egipte. As for Beniamyn Josephs brother, Jacob wolde not let him go to his brethren, for he sayde: Some my fortune might happen vnto him. So the childre of Israel came to bye come, amonge ether & came to them: for there was derth also in the lande of Canaan. But Joseph was gouernoure in the lande, and solde come vnto all the people in the lande.

Now whā his brethren came to him, they fell downe to the grounde before him vpon their faces. And he sawe them, & knewe the, and helde himself straunge toward them, and talked roughly with them, and saide vnto them: Whence come ye? They sayde: Out of the lande of Canaan to bye vytayle. Then theles though he knewe them, yet knewe they not him. And Joseph thought vpon the dreames that he had dreamed of them, and sayde vnto them: Ye are spyes, and are come to se wher the lande is open.

They answered him: To my lord, thy seruantes are come to bye vytayle: we are all one mans sonnes, we are vsfayned, and thy seruantes were neuer spyes. He sayde vnto the: No, but ye are come to se wher the lande is open. They answered him: We thy seruantes are twelue brethren, the sonnes of one man in the lande of Canaan, and the yongest is with oure father: as for one, he is awaye.

Joseph sayde vnto them: This is it that I sayde vnto you: spyes are ye. Here by wyll I proue you: By the life of pharao ye shall not get hence, excepte youre yongest brether come hither. Sende awaye one of you to fetch youre brother, but ye shalbe in prison. Thus wyll I trye out your wordes, whether ye go aboute wth truthe or not: for els, by the life of pharao ye are spyes. And he put the together in ward the thre dayes longe.

Vpon the thirde daye he sayde vnto the: If ye wil lyue, the do thus, for I feare God: If ye be vsfayned, let one of youre brethren lye bounde in youre prison: but go ye youre waye, and cary home the necessary foode, & brynge me youre yongest brother, so wyll I beleue youre wordes, that ye shall not dye. And so they dyd.

And they sayde one to another: This haue we deserued against oure brother, in that we sawe the anguysh of his soule, whan he besought vs, and we wolde not heare him: therfore cometh now this trouble vpon vs. Ruben answered them, and saide: Tolde not I you & same, whan I sayde: O synne not agaynst your lad, but ye wolde not heare. Now is his bloude requyred. But they knewe not that Joseph vnderstode it, for he spake vnto the by an interpreter. And he turned him from them, and wepte. Now whan he had turned him to them agayne, and talked to them, he toke Symon from amonge them, & bound him before their eyes, and commaund ded to sell their sackes to come, and to put every mans money in his sack, and to geue every one his expenses by the waye. And so was it done vnto them.

A And they laded their come vpon their Asses, and departed thence. But whan one opened his sack to geue hisASSE prouender in the Inne, he spyed his money in his sack mouth, and sayde vnto his brethren: My money is restored me agayne: lo, it is in my sack. Then their hertes fayled them, and they were afayed amonge them selues, and sayde: Wherfore hath God done this vnto vs?

Now whan they came home to Jacob their father in the lande of Canaan, they tolde him all that had happened vnto them, and sayde: The man that is lord of the lande, spake roughly to vs, and toke vs for spies of the countre. And whan we answered: we are vnfayned, and were neuer spies, but are twelue brethren the sonnes of oure father: one is awaye, and the yongest is yet this daye with oure father in the lande of Canaan, he sayde: Hereby wyl I marke, that ye are vnfayned: Leane one of youre brethren with me, and take foode necessary for youre houses, and go youre waye, and brynge youre yongest brother vnto me: so shal I knowe that ye are no spies, but vnfayned: the shal I deliuer you youre brother also, and ye maye occupie in the lande.

E And whan they opened their sackes, every man founde his boundell of money in his sacke. And whan they and their father sawe, that it was the bundels of their money, they were afayed.

Then sayde Jacob their father: Ye haue robbed me of my children. Joseph is awaye, Simeon is awaye, and ye will take Ben Jamin awaye: It goeth all ouer me. Ruben answered his father and sayde: If I brynge him not to the agayne, then slaye my two sonnes: deliuer him but in to my hande, I wyl brynge him agayne vnto the. He sayde: my sonne shal not go downe with you: for his brother is deed, and he is left alone. If eny myffortune shulde happen vnto him by the waye & ye go, ye shulde bringe my graye haye with sorowe downe vnto the graue.

The XLIII. Chapter.

A Vt the dertch oppressed y lande. And whan all the vytales that they had brought out of Egipte were spent, Jacob their father sayde vnto them: Go agayne, and bye vs a litle foode.

The Juda answered him, and sayde: The man siuare vnto vs, and sayde: ye shal not se

my face, excepte youre brother be with you. If so be now that thou wilt sende oure brother with vs, we wil go downe, and bye the foode. But if thou wilt not sende him, we wyl not go downe. For the man sayde vnto vs: Ye shal not se my face, excepte youre brother be with you.

Israel sayde: Wherfore haue ye done this euell vnto me, to tell y man, that ye had yet a brother? They answered: The man enquired so strately of vs and of oure kynrede, and sayde: Is youre father yet a lyue? haue ye yet a brother? Then tolde we him, as he ayed vs. How coulde we knowe, that he wolde saye: brynge youre brother downe with you? Then sayde Juda vnto Israel his father: Let the lad go with me, that we maye get vs vp and take oure iourney, and lyue, and not dye, both we and thou, and oure childre. I wyl be suertye for him, of my handes. Shalt thou requyre him. If I brynge him not vnto the agayne, and set him before thine eyes, I wil beare y blame my life longe. For if we had not made this tarienge, we had now bene come agayne twyse.

Then sayde Israel their father vnto the: If it must nedes be so, then do this: take of the best frutes of the lande in youre sackes, and brynge the man a present: a curtesy balme, and hony, and spyes, and myrr, and dates, and almondes. Take other money with you also, and the money that was brought agayne in youre sacke mouthes, cary it agayne with you: peradventure it was an oversight. And take youre brother, get you vp, and go agayne vnto the man. The Allmightie God geue you mercy in the sight of y man, that he maye let you haue youre other brother, and Ben Jamin. As for me, I must be as one, that is robbed of his children.

Then they toke the present, and other money with them, and Ben Jamin, gat the vp, and wente in to Egipte, and stode before Joseph. Then Joseph behelde them with Ben Jamin, and sayde vnto the ruler of his house: Bynge these men in, and sle, and make ready, for they shal dyne with me at noene. And the man dyd as Joseph bad him, and brought the men in to Josephs house.

Whan they were brought in to Josephs house, they were afayed, and sayde: We are brought hither because of the money, that came agayne in oure sackes at the first, to paye a quarell with vs, and to laye semetlinge to oure charge, and to take vs for bonde seruantes with oure Asses.

Therfore came they to y man, that was ruler of Josephs house, and talked with him at the doore, and sayde: Syr, we came downe at the first to bye foode, and whan we came in the Inne, and opened oure sackes, beholde, enery mans money was in his sack mouth with full weight: therfore haue we brought it with vs agayne, and haue brought other money with vs also, to bye foode: but we can not tell, who put oure money in oure sackes.

He sayde: Be content, feare you not, youre God euen y God of youre fathers hath geue you y treasure in youre sackes, I had youre money. And he brought forth Simeon vnto them, and led them in to Josephs house, and gaue them water to wash their fere, and gaue their Asses prouender.

E And they made readye y present, ageynst Joseph came at noone: for they herde, y they shulde dyne there. Now whan Joseph wente in to the house, they brought him home y present that they had, and fell downe to the grounde before him. But he welcomed them carceously, and sayde: Is youre father, (that olde man which ye tolde me of) in good health? Is he yet alyue? They answered: Thy seruant oure father is in good health, and is yet alyue. And they bowed them selues, and fell downe before him.

And he lift vp his eyes, and sawe his brother Ben Jamin his mothers sonne, and said: Is this youre yongest brother, that ye tolde me of? And he sayde morouer: God be mercifull vnto the my sonne. And Joseph made haist (for the grounde of his hert was kyndled towarde his brother) and sought how he might wepe, and wente in to his chamber, and wept there.

S And whan he had washed his face, he wente out, and refrayned him self, and sayde: set bried (on the table.) And they brought vnto him by him self, and vnto them by the selues, and to the Egiptians also that are with them, by them selues. (For the Egiptians darre not eate bried with the Ebries, that is an abhominacion vnto them.) And they were set ouer agaynst him, the first boone accordinge to his first byrth, and the yongest after his youth. They marueled at it amonge them selues, and there were brought them sundrye meates from his table. But Ben Jamins parte was fyue tymes more then the other. And they dronke, and were mery with him.

The XLIII. Chapter.

A Vt Joseph commaunded the ruler of his house, and sayde: Syll the mens sackes with foode, as moch as they maye carye, and put every mans money in his sacke mouth, and put my syluer cuppe in the sack mouth of the yongest with the money for y vytales. He dyd as Joseph had sayde. And on the morow whan it was daye, they let y men go with their Asses.

But whan they were out of the cite, and not come farre, Joseph sayde to the ruler of his house: Up, and folowe after the me, and whan thou ouertakest them, saie vnto them: Wherfore haue ye rewarded euell for good? Is not that it, that my lord drynkech out of? and that he prophecieth withall? It is euell done of you, that ye haue done.

And whan he had ouertaken them, he sayde the same wordes vnto them. They answered him: Wherfore saiest thou my lord such wordes? God forbid, that thy seruantes shulde do eny such thinge: Beholde, the money that we founde in oure sackes mouthes, that brought we vnto the agayne, out of the lande of Canaan: how shulde we then haue stolen either syluer or golde out of thy lordes house? Loke by whom it shall be founde amonge thy seruantes, let him dye: yet and we also wyl be my lordes bondmen. He sayde: let it so be, as ye haue spoken. Loke by whom it shall be founde, let him be my seruant, but ye shalbe harmlesse.

And they made haist, and toke downe every man his sack to the grounde, and every man opened his sack: And he searched, and beganne at the greatest vnto the yongest, and the cuppe was founde in Ben Jamins sacke. Then rente they their clothes, and every man lade the burthen vpon hisASSE, and wente agayne vnto the cite. And Juda wente with his brethren vnto Josephs house (for he was there yet) and they fell before him on the grounde. Joseph sayde vnto them: What manner of dede is this, that ye haue done? Anewe ye not, that soch a man as I am, can prophesy?

Juda sayde: What shall we saye vnto my lord? or how shal we speake? and what excuse shal we make? God hath founde out y wickednesse of thy seruantes. Beholde, we and he, by whom the cuppe is founde, are my lordes seruantes. But he sayde: God forbid that I shulde do so. The man by whom the cuppe is founde, shall by my seruant, but go ye vp in peace vnto youre father.

The stepte Juda vnto him, and sayde: My lord, let thy seruant speake one worde in thine eares my lord, be not displeased at þ seruauit also, for thou art eue as pharao. My lord axed his seruantes, and sayde: Have ye yet a father or brother? Then answered we: We haue a father, which is olde, and a yonge lad begotten in his age, and his brother is deed, & he is left alone of his mother, and his father loveth him.

D Then saydest thou: Brynge him downe vnto me, and I wil se him. But we answered my lord: The lad can not come from his father, yf he shulde come from him, he were but a deed man. Then saydest thou vnto thy seruantes: If youre yongest brother come not hither with you, ye shall se my face nomore. Then wente we vp vnto thy seruauit my father, and tolde him my lordes wordes. Then sayde oure father: Go youre waye agayne, and bye vs a litle foode. But we sayde: We can not go downe, excepte oure yongest brother be with vs, then wyll we go downe: for we darre not lode the man in the face, yf oure yongest brother be not with vs. Then sayde thy seruauit my father vnto vs: Ye knowe that my wife bare me two sonnes, one wente out from me, and I sayde: he is come in peces. If ye take this from me also, and eny my fortune happē him, then shall ye brynge my gray heer with sorowe downe vnto the graue.

E If I now come home vnto my father, & the lad be not with me (seyng his soule hangeth by the soule of this) then shall it come to passe, that yf he se not the lad there, he shal dye. So shal we thy seruantes brynge the gray heer of thy seruauit oure father with sorowe downe to the graue. For I thy seruauit became suertye for the lad vnto my father, and sayde: yf I brynge him not agayne, I will beare the blame all my lyfe longe. Therfore let thy seruauit byde here in steade of þ lad, to be my lordes bonde man, and let the lad go vp with his brethren. For how can I go vp vnto my father, yf the lad be not with me? Then shulde I se the mysery that shulde happen vnto my father.

The XLV. Chapter.

A Then coude not Joseph refrayne him self before all them that stode aboute him: and he comaunded every man to go out from him, and there stode no man by him, whan Joseph vttered him self vnto his brethren. And he wepte loude, so that þ Egyptians and pharaoos housholde herde it. And he sayde vnto his brethren: I am Joseph, is my father yet alyue? And his brethren coude not answer him, they were so abulshed before his face. But he sayde: Come nye vnto me. And they came nye. And he sayde: I am Joseph youre brother. whom ye solde in to Egypte. And now were not you re selues, & thinke not þ there is eny wrath, because ye solde me hither. For God sent me hither before you, for yo lyues sake. For these are now two yerea, that þ derth hath bene in the lande, and there are yet fyue yea-res behynde, wherein there shalbe no plowinge ner harvest.

But God sent me hither before you, þ he might let you remayne vpon earth, and to saue youre lyues by a greate deliuerance. And now, it was not yet then that sent me hither, but God which hath made me a father vnto pharao, & lorde ouer all his house, and a prynce in the whole lande of Egypte. Haist you therfore, and go vp vnto my father, and saye vnto him: Thy sonne Joseph sendeth the this worde: God hath made me lorde in all Egypte, come downe vnto me, & rye not, thou shalt dwel in the lande of Gosen, and be with merthou and thy children, and thy childers childre, thy small and greate catell, and all that thou hast. There wyll I make prouision for the (for there are yet fyue yea-res of berth) that thou perishe not wthine house, and all that is thine. Beholde, youre eyes and the eyes of my brother Ben Jamin se, that I myne owne self speake vnto you by mouth. Shewe my father all my worshippe in Egypte, and all that ye haue sene: haist you, and come downe hither with my father.

And he fell aboute his brother Ben Jaminys neck, and wepte, and Ben Jamin wepte vpon his neck also. And he kyssed all his brethren, and wepte vpon them. And afterwarde talked his brethren wth him. And this tydinges came in to pharaoos house: Josephs brethren are come, which pleased pharao well, and all his seruantes.

And pharao spake vnto Joseph: Saye vnto thy brethren: Do thus, lade youre bestes, go youre waye, and whan ye come in to the lande of Canaan, take youre father and youre householdes, and come vnto me, I wyll geue you of the goodes in the lade of Egypte, so that ye shall eate the fatt in the lande. And he comaunded them, Do thus, Take you charettes out of y lande of Egypte for youre childen and wyues, and brynge youre father, and come, and regarde not youre household stuff: for the goodes of all the lade of Egypte shalbe yours.

The children of Israel dyd so, and Joseph gaue the charettes acordyng to pha-

raos commaundement, and expenses by the waye, and gaue them all, vnto every one a chaunge of rayment: but vnto Ben Jamin he gaue the hundred syluer pens, and fyue chaunge of rayment. As for his father, he sent him ten Asses laden with goodes out of Egypte, and ten Asses with come and bred, and vytayles for his father by þ waye. So he sent awaye his brethren, and sayde vnto them: Scryue not by the waye.

E Thus they departed out of Egypte, and came to the lande of Canaan vnto Jacob their father, and tolde him, and sayde: Thy sonne Joseph is yet alyue, and is a lorde in all the lande of Egypte. But his hert waue red, for he beleued them not. The tolde they him all the wordes of Joseph, which he had sayde vnto them. And whan he sawe y charettes that Joseph had sent to fetch him, his sperte renyned, & he sayde: I haue ynough, that my sonne Joseph is yet a lue I wil go, and se him, before I dye.

The XLVI. Chapter.

I Srael toke his iourney with all that he had. And whan he came to Bersēba, he offred offerynges vnto y God of his father Isaac. And God spake vnto him in a vision by night: Jacob Jacob. He sayde: here am I. And he saide: I am y mightie God of thy father, be not afrayed to go in to Egypte, for there wyl I make a greate people of the. I wyll go downe with the, & wil brynge the vp also. And Joseph shal laye his hande vpon thine eyes.

Then Jacob gat him vp from Bersēba, and y childen of Israel caried Jacob their father with their children and wyues vpon the charettes that pharao had sent to cary him. And they toke their catell & substance which they had gotten in the lande of Canaan, and so came in to Egypte: Jacob & all his fede with him, his children & his childers children with him, his daughters, and the daughters of his children, & all his fede.

B These are y names of the children of Israel, which came in to Egypte, Jacob & his sonnes. The first borne sonne of Jacob: Ruben. The children of Ruben: Hanoch, Pallu, Hezion and Charmi. The children of Simeon: Jemuel, Jamin, Ohad, Jathim, Johar and Saul the sonne of the Cananitish woman. The childre of Levi: Gerson, Cahath & Merari. The childre of Juda: Er, Onan, Sela, Phares & Serah. But Er and Onan dyed in the lande of Canaan. The childre of Phares: Hesron and Hamul. The children of Isachar: Thola, Phua, Job & Semron. The children of Zabulon: Sered, Elon and Jahleel. These are the childre of Lea, which she bare vnto Jacob in Mesopotamia with his doughter Dina. These all together with sonnes & daughters make the & thirtie soules.

The childre of Gad: Ziphēon, Haggi, Suni, Ebon, Eri, Arodi and Areli. The childre of Affer: Jemna, Jesua, Jesui, Dina & Sera their sister. The children of Dina: Heber and Malchiel. These are the children of Silpa, whom Laban gaue vnto Lea his doughter, and she bare vnto Jacob these sixtene soules.

The childre of Rachel Jacobs wife: Joseph and Ben Jamin. And vnto Joseph in y lande of Egypte were borne Manasses and Ephraim, whom Asnath the doughter of Potiphar priest of On bare vnto him. The children of Ben Jamin: Bela, Becher, Asher, Gera, Naama, Ehi, Ros, Nupim, Hupim and Ard. These are the children of Rachel, which were borne vnto Jacob, fourtene soules altogether.

The children of Dan: Husim. The childre of Nephthali: Jahzeel, Guni, Jezer, Sillem. These are the children of Bilha, whom Laban gaue vnto his doughter Rachel, & she bare Jacob these seven soules. All the soules y came w Jacob in to Egypte, which proceeded out of his loynes (besyde the wyues of his childre) are altogether sixe & thirtie soules. And Josephs childre which were borne vnto him in Egypte, were two soules: so that all the soules of the house of Jacob which came in to Egypte, were seuentye.

And he sent Juda before him vnto Joseph, to shew him the waye to Gosen, & they came in to the lande of Gosen. Then Joseph bended his charett fast, and wente vp to mete Israel his father vnto Gosen. And whan he sawe him, he fell aboute his neck, & wepte sore vpon his neck. Then sayde Israel vnto Joseph: Now am I content to dye, for so moch as I haue sene thy face, that thou art yet alyue.

Joseph sayde vnto his brethren, & to his fathers house: I will go vp, & tell pharao, & saye vnto him: My brethre and my fathers house are come vnto me out of the lande of Canaan, and are keepers of catell (for they are men that deale with catell) their small & greate catell, and all that they haue, haue they brought with them. Now yf pharao call you, and saye: what is youre occupaciō? then ye shal saye: Thy seruantes are men y haue dealt w catell from oure youth vp hytherto, both we & oure fathers, that ye maye

cians abhorre all keepers of catell.

The XLVII. Chapter.

When came Joseph, and tolde pharao & sayde: My father and my brethren, their small & greete catell, & all y they haue, are come out of y lande of Canaan: & beholde, they are in the lande of Gosen. And he toke syue of his brethren, & presented them vnto Pharao. Then sayde pharao vnto his brethren: What is youre occupacion? They answered: Thy seruantes are keepers of catell, we and oure fathers also. And they sayde moier vnto Pharao:
We are come to dwell with you in the lan-de, for y seruantes haue no pasture for their catell, so fore doth the derth oppresse the lan-de of Canaan. Now therfore let y seruantes dwell in the lande of Gosen.

Pharao sayde vnto Joseph: Thy father and thy brethren are come vnto the: the lan-de of Egypte is open before the, let them dwell in the best place of the lande, & se y they dwell even in the lande of Gosen. And yf thou knowest that there be men of actiue
te amoge the, make the rulers of my catell.

Joseph brought in Jacob his father also, & set him before Pharao. And Jacob thanked Pharao. But Pharao axed Jacob:
How olde art thou? Jacob sayde: The tyme of my pylgremage is an hūdieth and thirtie yeares: litle and euell is the tyme of my pylgremage, and attayneth not vnto the tyme of my fathers in their pylgremages.
And Jacob thanked Pharao, and wete out from him.

So Joseph prepared dwellinges for his father and his brethren, & gaue them a possession in the lande of Egypte, euen in the best place of the lande, namely, in the lande of Raemes, as Pharao comaunded. And he made prouysion for his father and his brethren, and all his fathers house with bried, euen as yonge children.

There was no bried in all the londe, for the derth was very sore: so y the lande of Egip-te & the lande of Canaan were famished by y reason of the derth. And Joseph brought together all the money that was founde in Egypte and Canaan, for y come that they bought. And he layed vp all the money in Pharaos house.

Now whan money sayled in the lande of Egypte and Canaan, all the Egipcians came vnto Joseph, & sayde: Gene vs bried. Why suffrest thou vs to dye before y, because we are without money? Joseph sayde: Brynge hi ther youre catell, so wil I gene you for youre catell, seynge ye are without money. Then brought they their catell vnto Joseph. And he gaue them bried for their horses, shepe, oxen and Asses. So he fed them with bried y yere, for all their catell.

Whan y yeare was ended, they came vnto him the next yeare, & sayde vnto him: We wil not hyde it from o lord, y not onely the money, but all the catell also is spent vnto o lord: & there is nothinge left more for o lorde, but onely o body & oure lande. Wherefore suffrest thou both vs to dye, and oure londe?
Take vs and oure lade for bried, that we and oure lande maye be bonde vnto Pharao: gene vs seide, that we maye lyue and not dye, &
y the lande become not a wilderness.

So Joseph toke all the lande of Egypte
in for Pharao: for the Egipcians solde every man his lande, because y derth was so mightie vpon them: and so the lade became pha-raos, with the people that went out and in at his cities, from one syde of Egypte vnto
the other, excepte the prestes londe, that to-ke he not in: for it was ordened of Pharao for the prestes, that they shulde eate that which was appoynted them, which he ga-ue them, therfore they neded not to sell their landes.

Then sayde Joseph vnto the people: Be-holde, I haue taken possession of you and your lande this daye for Pharao, Beholde, there haue ye seide, soue the londe, and of the come ye shall gene the fift part vnto Pharao: foure parties shalbe youre, to soue
the londe for youre sustenance, and for your houses and children.

They sayde: Let vs but lyue, & fynde grace before the oure lord, we wyl gladly be Pharaos seruantes: So Joseph made the a lawe vnto this daye ouer the Egipcians londe, to gene Pharao the fift part, excepte the prestes londe, which was not bonde vnto Pharao.

So Israel dwelt in Egypte in the londe of Gosen, and had it in possession, and grew and multiplied exceedingly. And Jacob ly-ued seuentene yeare in the lande of Egypte,
so that his whole age was an hūdieth and seuen and fourty yeares.

Now whan the tyme came that Israel shulde dye, he called Joseph his sonne, and sayde vnto him: If I haue founde grace in thy sight, & then laye thine honde vnder my thye, & thou shalt shewe mercy and faithfulnes vpon me, and not burye me in Egypte,
but I will lye by my fathers, and thou shalt carye me out of Egypte, & burye me in their buryall. He sayde: I wil do as thou hast sayde. But he sayde: Then sweare vnto me.
And he sware vnto him. The Israel bowed himself toward the bed heade.

The XLVIII. Chapter.

Sterchis it was tolde Joseph: Beholde, y father is sicke. And he toke with him his two sonnes Manasses and Ephraim. Then was it tolde Jacob: beholde, y sonne Joseph cometh vnto y. And Israel toke a corage vnto him, & sat vp vpo y bed, & sayde vnto Joseph: The Almightye God appeared vnto me at Lus in y lade of Canaan, & blessed me, & sayde vnto me: Beholde, I wil cause y to growe & increase & wyl make a multitude of people of y, & wil gene this lade vnto y seide after y for an everlas-tinge possession. Therfore shal now thy two sonnes Manasses & Ephraim (which were borne vnto the in Egypte, before I came hither vnto the) be myne, like as Ruben & Simeon. As for those that thou begettest after the, they shal be thine owne. But these shal-be named with the names of their brethren
in their inheritance.

And whā I came out of Mesopotamia, Rachel dyed by me in the lande of Canaan,
by the waye, whan there was yet but a fel-des briede vnto Ephraim: and I buried her in the waye toward Ephraim, which now is called Bethleem.

And Israel looked vpon Josephs sonnes, & sayde: What are these? Joseph answered:
They are my sonnes, which God hath geuen me here. He sayde: Brynge the hither to me, & I maye blesse the. (For Israels eyes were heuy for age, & he conde not well se.) And he brought the vnto him. So he kysed them, & embraced the, & sayde vnto Joseph: Beholde, I haue seene y face, which I thought not: & lo, God hath caused me to se y seide also. And Joseph toke them from his lappe, and they fell downe to the grounde vpon their face.

Then Joseph toke them both, Ephraim & in his right hande toward Israels left hade, and Manasses in his left hande toward Israels right haide, & brought the vnto him.
But Israel stretched out his right hande,
& layed it vpo y heade of Ephraim & yogeft
& his left hande vpo Manasses heade, & did so wyttyngly to his handes, for Manasses was y firstborne. And he blessed Joseph, & sayde: The God before whō my fathers Abiaha & Isaac haue walked: y God y hath fed me my lyfe longe vnto this daye: the angell which hath deliuered me fro all euell, blesse these lades, y they maye be called after my name, & after y name of my fathers Abiaha & Isaac, y they maye growe & multiplie vpon earth. But whā Joseph sawe y his father layed y right haide vpo Ephraims hea-de, it displeased him, & he lifte vp his fathers hande, to remoue it fro Ephraims heade vnto y heade of Manasses, & sayde vnto him:
Not so my father, this is y firstborne, laye y right haide vpo his heade. Neuertheles his father wolde not, & sayde: I knowe it well my sonne, I knowe it well, this shal be a people also, & shal be greater: but his yonger brother shal be greater the he, & his seide shal be full of people. So he blessed them the same daye & sayde: In y shal Israel blesse, so y it shal be sayde: God set the as Ephraim & Manasses.
And so he set Ephraim aboue Manasses.

And Israel sayde vnto Joseph: Beholde,
I dye, & God shall be w you, & brynge you a gayne in to y lande of youre fathers. I haue geuen the a pece of londe, without y brethren, which I gat with my swerde and my bowe out of the hande of the Amorites.

The XLIX. Chapter.

Ald Jacob called his sonnes, & sayde: Gather you, & I maie tell you, what shal happen vnto you in y last tyme:
Come together, and heare ye childre of Jacob: herken vnto Israel youre father.

Rube my first sonne, thou art my power and the begynnynge of my strength, chese in gouernance, & chese in anctiuite. Thou passest forth swiftly as y water. Thou shalt not be the cheifest: for thou hast clymmed vp vpon thy fathers bed, euen than desyledest thou my couch with goynge vp.

Symeon and Levi brethren, their deedly weapons are perlous instrumentes. In to their secretes come not my soule, and my worshipe be not ioyned with their congregacion: for in their wrath they slew a man, and in their selfwyll they honghed an oxe. Cursed be their wrath, because it is so fierce: and their indignacion, because it is so rigorous. I wil deuoyde them in Jacob, and scatter them in Israel.
D iii

B *Juda, thou art he. Thy brethrien shall prayse thee: for thy hāde shall be in thine enemies neck: thy fathers children shall stoupe vnto thee. *Juda is a yonge lion, thou art come vp hye my sonne, frō the spoyle. *He kneled downe and couched himself as a lion, as a lionesse: who wil rayse him up? The cep-ter shall not be remoued frō Juda, ner a master frō his fete: tyll the Worthye come, and vnto him shall the people fall. He shall bynde his foale vnto the vyne, and his Asses col- te to a noble brynch. He shall wash his gar- ment in wyne, and his mantell in the bloude of grapes: his eyes are rounder then wyne, and his teth whyter then mylk.

C Zabulon shall dwell in the haue of the see, and in the porte of shippes, and shall border vpon Sydon.

Isachar shall be a stronge Ass, & laye him downe betwixte a borders. And he saw rest, that it was good, and the lande, that it was pleasaunt. And bowed downe his shulder to beare, and became a seruānt vnto tribute.

D Dan shall be iudge in his people, as well as a trybe in Israel. Dan shall be a serpent in the waye, and an edder in the pāch, and bite the horse in the heles, that his ryder maye fall backward. ORDE I lōke for thy sal- uacion.

As for Gad, a wapened hoost of men shall fall violently vpon him, but he shall hurte them in the hele.

Of Asser cometh his fat bried, and he shall geue delicates vnto kynge.

Nephtali is a swift hynde, and geneth goodly wordes.

D The fruteful sonne Joseph, that flourish- ge sonne to lōke vpon, the daughters go vps the wall. And though the shoters angered him, strone with him, and hated him, yet his bowe bode fast, and the armes of his hādes were made strōge by the handes of a Mygh- tie in Jacob. Of him are come herdmēn & sto- nes in Israel. Of a fathers God art thou hel- ped, & of the Allmyghtie art thou blessed, & blessinges of heauen from aboue, with bles- singes of a depe & lyeth vnder, with blessinges of brestes & wombes. The blessinges pro- mised vnto thy father and my fore elders go mightely, after the desyre of the hyst in the worlde: these shall light on Josephs heade, and on the toppe of his heade, that was se- parate from his brethrien.

Ben Jamin, a rānyshinge wolfe. In the mornynge shall he deuoure the praye, but in the euenynge he shall deuoyde the spoyle.

All these are the twelue trybes of Israel: and this is it that their father spake vnto them, whan he blessed them, euery one with a sundrye blessinge.

And he commaunded them, and sayde vnto them: I shall be gathered vnto my people, & burye me with my fathers in a cane which is in the felde of Ephron the Hethite, in the dubble caue that lyeth ouer against Mamre in a lande of Canaan, which Abrahā bought with the felde, of Ephron the Hethite for a possession to burye in. There buried they Abrahā & Sara his wife, there buried they Isaac also & Rebecca his wife: & their buried I Lea, in the good of the felde & of the cane therin, which was bought of the Hethites.

And whan Jacob had ended this com- maundement vnto his children, he plucked his fete together vpon the bed, and died, and was gathered vnto his people. The fell Joseph vpon his fathers face, and wepte, and kysed him.

The l. Chapter.

And Joseph commaunded his seruātes & phisicians, to embawme his father. And the phisicians embawmed Is- rael, tyll fourtye dayes were ended (for so lon- ge endured the dayes of embawminge) & the Egipcians bewayled him seuentye dayes.

Now whan the mournynge dayes were ended, Joseph spake vnto Pharaos houshol- de, & sayde: If I haue founde fauō in youre sight, the speake vnto Pharao and saie: My father hath taken an ooth of me, & sayde: Be- holde, I dye, burye me in myne owne graue, which I dygged for myself in the lāde of Ca- naan. Therefore wyl I now go vp, and burye my father, and come agayne. Pharao saide: Go thy waye vp, and burye thy father, acor- ding as thou hast sworne vnto him.

So Joseph wete vp, to burye his father. And there wete w him all Pharaos seruā- tes & were the elders of his courte, and all a elders of the lande of Egipre, & all Josephs housholde, and his brethrien, and his fathers housholde. Onely their children, shepe & oren- lef they in a lāde of Gosen, & toke their iour- ney vp with him, vps charettes and horses, and the company was excedinge greate.

Now whan these came to the playne of Atad & lyeth beyonde Jordane, they made there a very greate and bytter lamentacion, & he mourned for his father seue dayes. And whā the people in the lande (the Cananites) sawe the mournynge in the playne of Atad, they sayde: The Egipcians make there grea- te lamentacion. Therefore is the place called: The lamentacion of the Egipcians, which lyeth beyonde Jordane.

And his children dyd as he had commaun- ded them, and caried him to a lande of Ca- naan, and buried him in a dubble cane, that Abrahā bought with the felde for a pos- session to burye in, of Ephron the Hethite ouer agaynst Mamre. So Joseph toke his iour- ney agayne in to Egipre with his brethrien, and with all those that wente vp with him to burye his father, whan they had buried him.

C But Josephs brethrien were a frayd, whā their father was deed, and sayde: Joseph mighte happily haue indignacion at vs, and recompense vs all the euell that we dyd vnto him, therefore let they saye vnto him: Thy father commaunded before his death, and sayde: Thus shall ye saye vnto Joseph: O for- geue thy brethrien the offence and their syn- ne, that they dyd so euell vnto the. O for geue now this trespass of vs the seruāntes of thy fathers God. But Joseph wepte, whan they spake so vnto him.

And his brethrien wente, and fell downe before him, and sayde: Beholde, here are we thy seruāntes. Joseph sayde vnto the: Fea- re ye not, for I am vnder God. I thought euell ouer me, but God hath turned it vnto good, to do as it is come to passe this daye, for the sauynge of much people. Therefore be not ye now a frayd, I wyl care for you and youre children. And he comforted them, and spake louyngly vnto them.

Thus dwelt Joseph in Egipre with his fathers house, and lyued an hūdieth and ten yeare, and Iawe Ephraims children, vnto a thirde generacion: In like maner the chil- dren of Machir the sonne of Manasses, be- gat children also vpon Josephs lappe.

And Joseph sayde vnto his brethrien: I dye, and God wyl vyset you, and brynge you out of this lande, to the lande that he swore vnto Abrahā, Isaac and Jacob. Therefo- re toke he an ooth of the childre of Is- rael, and sayde: Whan God shall vyset you, & the cary my bo- nes frō hence. So Jo- seph dyed, whā he was an hūdieth and ten yeare ol- de, and they embaw- med him, & lay- ed him in a chest in Egipre.

The ii. booke of Moses.

The first Chapter.

These are the names of the childre of Israel, that came with Jacob in to Egypte: eue-ry one came in to his house, Ruben, Simeon, Levi, Juda, Issa-char, Zabulon, Ben Jamin, Dan, Nephthali, Gad and Aser. And of all the soules that came out of the loynes of Jacob, there were seuentie.

As for Joseph, he was in Egypte all ready. Now whan Joseph was deed, and all his biethren, and all they that lyued at that tyme, the childre of Israel grewe, and increased, and multiplied, and became exceedinge
mightie, so the lande was full of them.

Then came there a new kynge ouer Egip-te, which knewe nothinge of Joseph, and sayde vnto his people: Beholde, the people of the childre of Israel are many, & might-ier then we: Vp, let vs deale wysely with them, lest there be not so many of them. For if there shulde ryse vp eny warre agaynst vs, they might ioynethem selues also vnto oure enemies, and ouercome vs, & so get them out of the lande.

And he set worke masters ouer them, to kepe them vnder with burthens. (For they brylde the cities Phiton and Raemses, for treasuries vnto Pharaos.) But the more they vered them, the more they multiplied and grew.

Therefore had they indignacion at the children of Israel, and the Egyptians compelled the childre of Israel without mercy to do seruyce, and made their lyues bytter vnto them with greuous laboure in claye and brycke, and with all maner of bondage in felde, and with all maner of laboure, which they layed vpon them without mercy.

And the kynge of Egypte sayde vnto the mydwynes of the Hebrewewomen. (Of the which one was called Siphia, and the other Pua:) Whan ye helpe the women of the Hebrewes, and se vpon the stole, that it is a sonne, then slay him: but yf it be a dought-er, let her lyue. Nevertheless the mydwynes feared God, & dyd not as the kynge of Egip-te commaunded them, but let the childre lyue.

Then the kynge of Egypte called the mydwynes, and sayde vnto them: Wherfore do ye this, that ye let the childre lyue? The mydwynes answered Pharaos: The women

The ii. Chap. Ho. xxiiij.

of the Hebrewes are not as the women of Egip-te, for they are sturdy women: or euer
the mydwynes come at them, they are de-liuered.

Therefore God dealt well with the mydwynes. And the people multiplied, and became exceedinge mightie. And for so much as the mydwynes feared God, he made them houses. Then Pharaos commaunded all his people and sayde: All the sonnes that are borne, cast in to the water, but let all the doughters lyue.

The II. Chapter.

And there wente forth a man of the house of Levi, and toke a doughter of Leui. And the wife conceaued and bare a sonne. And whan she sawe that it was a proper childe, she hyd him thre monethes.
And whan she coude hyde him no longer,
she toke an Arke of redes, and dawbed it ouer with slyme and pitch, and layed the childe therein, and set it amonge the redes
by the waters brynke. But his sister stode a farre of, to wete what wolde come of him.

And Pharaos doughter came downe, to wash herself in the water: And hir may-dens walked by the water syde: and whan she sawe the Arke amonge the redes, she sent one of hir maydens, and caused it to be fett. And whan she opened it, she sawe a childe: and beholde the babe wepte. Then had she pytie vpon it, and sayde: It is one of the Hebrewes childre.

Then sayde his sister vnto Pharaos doughter: Eshal I go, and call the a nurse of the Hebrewes women, to nurse the childe? Pharaos doughter sayde vnto her: Go thy waye. The mayde wente, and called the childe's mother. Then sayde Pharaos doughter vnto her: Take this childe, and nurse it for me, I wyll geue thee thy rewarde. The woman toke the childe, and nursed it.

And whan the childe was growne, she brought it vnto Pharaos doughter, and it became hir sonne, and she called him Moses.
For she sayde: I toke him out of the water.

Vpon a tyme whan Moses was greate,
he wente forth vnto his biethren, and looked vpon their burthens, and sawe, that an Egipcia smote one of his biethren & Hebrewes.
And he looked rounde aboute him: and whan
he sawe that there was no man, he slew the Egyptian, and buried him in the sonde.

The next daye he wente forth also,
and sawe two men of the Hebrewes stry-

ynge together, and sayde to the vngodly: Wherfore smyrest thou thy neighbour? But he sayde: Who made the a ruler or iudge ouer vs? Wilt thou slaye me also, as thou slewest the Egipcian? The was Moses a frayd, and sayde: How is this knowne? And Pharaos herde of it, and sought for Moses, to slaye him. But Moses fled from Pharaos, and keppe him in the lande of Madian, and sat him downe by a wells syde.

The prest Madian had seuen daughters, which came to drawe water, and fylled the troughes, to geue their fathers shepe to drinke. Then came the shepherdes, and droue the awaye. But Moses gat him vp, and helped them, and gave their shepe to drynke. And whan they came to Reguel their father, he saide: How came ye so soone to daie? They sayde: A man of Egippte deluyered vs from y shepherdes, and diew vnto vs, and gaue the shepe to drynke. He sayde vnto his daughters. Where is he? Wherfore let ye the man go, that ye called him not to eate with vs?

And Moses was content to dwell with the man. And he gaue Moses his daughter Zippora, which bare him a sonne, and he called him Gerson, for he sayde: I am become a straunger in a straunge lande. And she bare him yet a sonne, whom he called Elieser, and sayde: The God of my father is my helper, and hath deluyered me from Pharaos hande.

But after this in processe of tyme, the kynge of Egippte dyed. And the childre of Israel sighd ouer their laboure, and cried. And their crye ouer their labo, came before God. And God herde their cōplaynte, and remēbred his couenant with Abraham Isaac and Jacob. And God looked vpon the childre of Israel, and God knew it.

The iii. Chapter.

Moses keppe the shepe of Jethro his father in lawe prest of Madian, and droue the shepe on the backsyde of the wylbernes, and came to the mountayne of God, Horeb. And the angell of y LORD appeared vnto him in a flame of fyre out of the bush. And he sawe that y bush brient w fyre, and yet was not consumed, and saide: I wil go hence, and se this greatesight, why y bush is not brient.

Whan the LORD sawe, that he wente his waye to se, God called vnto him out of the bush, and sayde: Moses, Moses. He answered: Here am I. He sayde: Come not hither, put thy shues of thy fete, for the place where vpon thou stondest, is an wholly grou

de. And he sayde morouer: I am the God of thy father, the God of Abraham, y God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob. And Moses covered his face, for he was afrayed to look vpon God.

And the LORD sayde: I haue sene the trouble of my people in Egippte, and haue herde their crye ouer those that oppresse them. I knowe their sorowe, and am come downe to deluyer them from the power of the Egipcians, and to carye them out of that lōde, in to a good and wyde lōde, even in to a lōde that floweth with mylke and hony: namely, vnto the place of the Cananites, the chites, Amourites, Phereites, Zeytes y Jebusites, for so much now as the cōplaynte of the childre of Israel is come before me, I haue sene their oppreession wherwith the Egipcians oppresse them: So now y waye therfore, I wil sende the vnto Pharaos, that thou mayest brynge my people the childre of Israel out of Egippte. Moses sayde vnto God: Who am I, y I shulde go vnto Pharaos, and brynge the childre of Israel out of Egippte?

He sayde: I wyll be with the: and this shall be the token, y I haue sent the. Whan thou hast brought my people out of Egippte, ye shal serue God vpon this mountayne. Moses sayde vnto God: Beholde, whan I come to the childre of Israel, and saye vnto them: The God of youre fathers hath sent me vnto you, and they saye vnto me: What is his name: what shal I saye vnto them? God saide vnto Moses: I wyll be what I wyll be. And he sayde: Thus shalt thou saye vnto y childre of Israel: I wyll be hath sent me vnto you. And God sayde morouer vnto Moses: Thus shalt thou saye vnto the childre of Israel: The LORD God of youre fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, y God of Jacob hath sent me vnto you, this is my name for ever, and my memoriall from childe to childe. Go thy waye therfore, and gather the elders of Israel together, and saye vnto them: The LORD God of youre fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, the God of Jacob hath appeared vnto me, and sayde: I haue vsited you, and sene what is done vnto you in Egippte, and haue sayde: I wil brynge you out of the trouble of Egippte, in to y lande of y Cananites, Zethites, Amourites, Phereites, Zeytes y Jebusites: in to a lōde y floweth with mylke and hony. And yf they heare y voyce, then shalt thou and the elders of Israel go in to the kynge of Egippte, and saye vnto him: The LORD God of y Zebunes hath called vs: Let vs go now therfore the dayes iourney in the wylbernes, y we maye do sacrifice vnto the LORD our God.

But I knowe, that the kynge of Egippte wil not let you go, but thouow a mightie haue. For I will stretch out myne hande, and smyte Egippte w all maner of wonders which I will do therein: after y shal he let you go. And I wil geue this people fauoure in the sight of the Egipcians: so that whan ye go forth, ye shal not go forth empty: but euery wife shal borowe of hir neighbouresse y of her that sojourneth in hir house, Jewels of siluer and golde and rayment: those shal ye put vpon youre sonnes and daughters, and spoyle the Egipcians.

The iii. Chapter.

Moses answered, and sayde: Beholde, they shall not beleue me, ner heare my voyce, but shal saye: The LORD hath not appeared vnto the. The LORD sayde vnto him: What is y, that thou hast in thine hande? He saide a staff. He sayde: Cast it from the vpon the grounde. And he cast it fro him: then was it turned to a serpent. And Moses fled fro it. But y LORD saide vnto him: Stretch forth thine hande, and take it by the tayle. Then stretched he forth his hande, and toke it, and it became a staffe agayne in his hande. Therfore shal they beleue that y LORD God of their fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac y God of Jacob hath appeared vnto the.

And the LORD sayde furthermore vnto him: Thrust thine hande in to y bosome. And he thrust it in to his bosome, and toke it out: beholde, the was it leper like snowe. And he saide: put it in to y bosome agayne. And he put it agayne in to his bosome, and toke it out: beholde, the was it turned agayne as his flesh. Yf they wil not beleue the, ner heare y voyce of the first token, yet shal they beleue the voyce of the seconde token. But yf they wil not beleue these two tokens ner heare thy voyce, then take of the water of the ryuer, and poure it vpon the drye lōde: so shall the same water y thou hast take out of y ryuer, be turned vnto bloude vpo y drye lōde.

But Moses sayde vnto the LORD: Oh my LORD, I am a man y is not eloquer, from yesterdayer y yesterdayer, y sence the tyme y thou hast spo vnto thy seruants: for I haue a slowe speach, y a slowe tounge. The LORD sayde vnto him: Who hath made the mouth of man? Or who hath made the domme, or the deaf, or the seynge or y blinde? Haue not I the LORD done it? So now thy waye therfore, I wil be w thy mouth, y teach the what thou shalt saye.

But Moses sayde: My LORD, sende whom thou wilt sende. Then was the LORD very angrie at Moses, and saide: Do not I knowe then, y thy brother Aaron the Leuite is well speken? And beholde, he shal go forth to mete y: and whan he seyth the, he shal reioyse from his hert. Thou shalt speake vnto him, y put the wordes in his mouth: y I wil be with thy mouth y his, and teach you what ye shall doo: y he shal speake vnto the people for the. He shal be thy mouth, y thou shalt be his God. And take in thine hande this staff, wherwith thou shalt do tokens.

Moses wene, and came agayne vnto Jethro his father in lawe, and sayde vnto him: Let me go (I praye the) that I maye turne agayne vnto my brethren, which are in Egippte, and se whether they be yet alyue. Jethro sayde vnto him: Go thy waye in peace. The LORD sayde also vnto him in Madian: Go y waye, turne agayne in to Egippte, for y me are deed, that sought after thy life. So Moses toke his wife, and his sonnes, and caried them vpon an Ass, y wente agayne in to the lande of Egippte, y toke the staff of God in his hande. And the LORD saide vnto Moses: Whan thou comest agayne in to Egippte, se y thou doo all the wonders (before Pharaos) which I haue put in y hande. But I wil harde his hert, y he shall not let the people go. And thou shalt saie vnto Pharaos: Thus sayeth y LORD: Israel is my firstborne sonne, y I saye vnto the: Let my sonne go, y he maye serue me: Yf thou wilt not let him go, then wil I slaye thy firstborne sonne.

And as he was by the waye in the Iune, the LORD met him, and wolde haue slayne him. Then toke Zippora a stone, and circumcyded the foreskynne of hir sonne, and touched his fete, and sayde: A bloody brydegrome art thou vnto me. The let he him go. But she sayde: A bloody brydegrome, because of the circumcision.

And the LORD sayde vnto Aaron: Go mete Moses in the wylbernes. And he wete, y met him on the mount of God, and kysed him. And Moses tolde Aaron all the wordes of the LORD, which had sent him: y all the tokens y he had charged him withall. And they wete, y gathered all the elders of the childre of Israel. And Aaron tolde all y wordes, y the LORD had spo vnto Moses: y dyd the tokens before the people, y the people beleued. And whan they herde y the LORDE visited the children of Israel, and looked upon their trouble, they bowed themselves, and worshipped.

The V. Chapter.

Afterward wente Moses & Aaron, & spake vnto Pharaos: Thus sayeth the LORDE the God of Israel: let my people go, & they maye kepe holy daye vnto me in the wilderness. Pharaos answered: What felowe is the LORDE, that I must heare his voyce, and let Israel go? I knowe not the LORDE, nether wil I let Israel go.

They sayde: The God of the Hebrewes hath called vs. Let vs go nowtherfore thre dayes iourney in the wilderness, & do sacrifice vnto the LORDE'S God, & there happen not vnto vs pestilence or swerde. The sayte & kynge of Egypte vnto the: Why make ye & people (thou Moses & Aaron) to leaue their worke? Get you hence to yor labour. Pharaos saidemorer: Beholde, & people are to many in & lande, and yet wil ye byd them cease from their labour.

BThe same daye therfore dyd Pharaos commaunde the workmasters of the people, and their officers, and sayde: Ye shal not gather and geue the people eny more strawe, to turne bryck, as yesterdays and yesterdays. Let them go, and gather them strawe them selues. And the nombre of the brycke which they made yesterdays & yesterdays, shall ye laye vpon them neuertheles, and mynyshe nothinge therof: for they are ydle. Therfore crye they and saye: We wil go, and do sacrifice vnto oure God. Let the men be keppe downe to labour, & they maye haue to do, & not to turne them selues to false wordes.

Then wente the workmasters of the people & their officers out, & spake vnto the people: Thus sayeth Pharaos: There shall no strawe be geuen you, go youre waye youre selues, and get you strawe, where ye can fynde it. But of youre laboꝝ there shall nothinge be mynyshe. Then were the people scattered in all & lande of Egypte, to gather stubble, that they might haue strawe.

CAnd the workmasters haistied them forward, & sayde: Fulfill yor daye worke, like as whan ye had strawe. And the officers of & children of Israel, whom Pharaos workmasters had set ouer them, were beaten, & it was saide vnto them: Wherfore haue ye not fulfilled yor appoynted daye worke to daye and yesterdays, like as in tymes past?

Then wente the officers of the children of Israel, & cōplayned vnto Pharaos: Wherfore wilt thou deale thus with thy seruantes?

Thy seruantes haue no strawe geuen the, & yet must we make the brycke that are appoynted vs. And beholde, thy seruantes are beaten, & thy people are euell intreated. Pharaos sayde: Ye are ydle, ydle are ye, therfore saye ye: we will go, and do sacrifice vnto the LORDE. Go now yor waye therfore, & worke: there shall no strawe be geuen you, but the nombre of brycke shal ye deliuer.

Then sawe the officers of the children of Israel, & it was not amended, for it was sayde: ye shal mynyshe nothinge of the daye worke of the brycke. And whan Moses & Aaron wente from Pharaos, they came forth to meete them, & sayde vnto them: The LORDE loke vpon you, & iudge it, for ye haue made the sauoure of vs to stynte before Pharaos and his seruantes, and haue geuen them a swerde in their handes, to slaye vs.

But Moses came agayne vnto the LORDE, and sayde: LORDE, wherfore dealest thou so euell with this people? Wherfore hast thou sent me? For sence the tyme that I wente in vnto Pharaos, to speake vnto him in thy name, he hath dealt euell with this people, and thou hast not deliuered & people. The LORDE sayde vnto Moses: Now shalt thou see, what I will do vnto Pharaos, for thou & a mightie hande must he let them go, thou & a mightie hande must he dryue them from him out of his lande.

The VI. Chapter.

And God spake vnto Moses, & sayde vnto him: I am & LORDE, & I appered vnto Abraham, Isaac & Jacob, an Allmightie God: but my name, LORDE, haue I not shewed vnto them: My couenaunt also haue I made with them, that I wil geue them the lande of Canaan, the lande of their pilgrimage, wherin they haue bene strangers. Morouer I haue herde the cōplaynte of the children of Israel, whom & Egipcians oppresse with labour, and haue remembred my couenaunt.

Therfore saye vnto the childre of Israel: I am the LORDE, & wil brynge you out from yor burthens in Egypte, & wil rydd you from youre labour, and wil deliuer you thow a stretched out arme & greates iudgements, and will receaue you for my people, & will be yor God: so that ye shal knowe, that I the LORDE am yor God, which brynge you out from the burthen of Egypte, and wil brynge you into the lande, ouer the which I haue lift up my hande, to geue it vnto Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, & same wil I geue vnto you for a possession. I the LORDE.

BMoses tolde this vnto the childre of Israel. But they hearkened not vnto him, for very anguyshe of spiete, & for sore labour. The spake the LORDE vnto Moses, & sayde: Go thy waye, & speake vnto Pharaos the kynge of Egypte, & he let the childre of Israel go out of his lande. But Moses spake before & LORDE, & saide: Beholde, & childre of Israel hearken not vnto me, how shulde Pharaos the heare me? And I am also of vncircumcised lippes.

So the LORDE spake vnto Moses & Aaron, & gaue the a commaundement vnto the childre of Israel, & vnto Pharaos the kynge of Egypte, & they shulde brynge the childre of Israel out of Egypte.

Aaron toke Elizaba & daughter of Amiadab Nabassons sisters to wife, which bare him Nadab, Abihu, Eleasar, Jehamar.

DThe childre of Korah are these: Assir, Elkana, & Abiassaph. These are & generacions of & Korahites. Eleasar Aarons sonne toke one of the daughters of Putiel to wife, which bare him Phineas. These are the heades amonge the fathers of the generacions of the Leuites.

This is & Aaron & Moses, vnto whom & LORDE sayde: Bynge & childre of Israel out of the lande of Egypte with their armies. It is they (namely Moses & Aaron) & spake vnto Pharaos the kynge of Egypte, & they might brynge the children of Israel out of Egypte. The same daie spake & LORDE vnto Moses in & lande of Egypte, & sayde: I am & LORDE, speake thou vnto Pharaos & kynge of Egypte, all & I saye vnto &. And he answered before & LORDE: Beholde, I am of vncircumcised lippes, how shall Pharaos the heare me? The VII. Chapter.

And the LORDE sayde vnto Moses: Beholde, I haue made the a God ouer Pharaos, & Aaron & brother shal be & prophet. Thou shalt speake all & I commaunde &: but Aaron & brother shal speake vnto Pharaos, & he maye let the childre of Israel go out of his lande. Neuertheles I wil harden Pharaos hert, & I maye multiplye my tokens & wonders in the lande of Egypte. And Pharaos shal not heare you, & I maye shewe my hande in Egypte, & brynge myne armyes, euen my people the childre of Israel out of & lande of Egypte, by greates iudgements. And & Egipcians shal knowe, & I am the LORDE, whan I shal stretch out my hande vpon Egypte, and brynge the children of Israel out from amonge them.

BMoses and Aaron dyd as the LORDE commaunded them. And Moses was fourescore yeare olde, & Aaron thre & foure score yeare olde, whan they spake vnto Pharaos. And & LORDE sayde vnto Moses & Aaron: Whan Pharaos sayeth vnto you: Shew youre wonders, then shalt thou saye vnto Aaron: Take thy staff, and cast it before Pharaos, & it shal turne to a serpent.

Then wete Moses & Aaron in vnto Pharaos, & dyd as the LORDE commaunded them. And Aaron cast his staff before Pharaos & before his seruantes, & it turned to a serpent. Then Pharaos called for & wyse men & Sorcerers. And the Sorcerers of Egypte also dyd like wyse with their Sorceries, and euery one cast his staff before him, & they turned vnto serpentes. But Aarons staff deuoured their stauens. So Pharaos hert was hardened, and he hearkened not vnto them, euen as the LORDE had sayde.

CAnd the LORDE sayde vnto Moses: The hert of Pharaos is hardened, he refuseth to let & people go. Get & vnto Pharaos in the mornynge, beholde, he shal come vnto & water, mete thou him vpon the waters brynke, & take & staff which turned to a serpent, in thine hande, & saye vnto him: The LORDE God of the Hebrewes hath sent me vnto the, & sendeth & worde: Let my people go, that they maye serue me in the wilderness: but hither to thou woldest not heare.

Therefore thus sayeth the LORD: hereby shalt thou knowe, & I am & LORD. Beholde, & the staff & I haue in my hande, wil I smyte the water which is in y<sup>e</sup> ryuer, & it shal be turned in to bloude: so that the fishes in the ryuer shall dye, & the ryuer shall stynte: & it shall grene the Egipcians to drynke of y<sup>e</sup> water of the ryuer.

D And & LORD spake vnto Moses: Saye vnto Aaron: Take y<sup>e</sup> staff, & stretch out thine hande ouer y<sup>e</sup> waters of Egypte, ouer their ryuers & brookes & ponde, & ouer all water poles, & they maye be turned to bloude, & that there maye be bloude in all y<sup>e</sup> lande of Egypte, both in vessels of woodd and stone.

Psal. 77. c Moses & Aaron dyd as y<sup>e</sup> LORD commaunded them, & lift vp the staff, & smote the water y<sup>e</sup> was in the ryuer, before pharao & his seruantes, & all the water in the ryuer was turned into bloude, & the fysh in the ryuer dyed, & the ryuer stante, so y<sup>e</sup> the Egipcians coude not drynke of the water of y<sup>e</sup> ryuer, & there was bloude in all the lande of Egypte. And the Sorcerers also of Egypte, dyd likewise with their Sorceries. But pharaos hert was hardened, & he hertened not vnto the LORD, like as the LORD had sayde. And pharao turned himself, & wente home, & set not his hert there on. All the Egipcians dygged rounde aboute y<sup>e</sup> ryuer, for water to drynke: for they coude not drynke of y<sup>e</sup> water out of the ryuer. And this endured seven dayes longe, that the LORD smote the ryuer.

The VIII. Chapter.

A The LORD sayde vnto Moses: Go y<sup>e</sup> waye to pharao, & speake vnto him: Thus saith the LORD: Let my people go, & they maye serue me: If thou wilt not let the go, beholde, I wil smyte all y<sup>e</sup> borders of y<sup>e</sup> lode wth frogges, so y<sup>e</sup> the ryuer shal scroule wth frogges: these shal clymme vp, & come in to thine house, in to y<sup>e</sup> chamber, where thou slepest, vpon thy bed, and in to the houses of thy seruantes, amonge thy people, in to thine ouens, and vpon thy dowe: and the frogges shall come vp vpon the, and vpon thy people, and vpon all thy seruantes.

B And the LORD spake vnto Moses: Saie vnto Aaron: Stretch forth thine hande wth thy staff ouer the streames, & ryuers, & ponde, and let frogges come vpon the lande of Egypte. And Aaron stretched his hande ouer the waters in Egypte, & there came vp frogges, so y<sup>e</sup> the lande of Egypte was covered.

The Sorcerers also dyd likewise, wth their Sorceries, & caused frogges to come vpo y<sup>e</sup> lode of Egypte. The called pharao for Moses & Aaron, & sayde: Praye the LORD for me, & he maye take awaye the frogges from me & from my people, & I will let y<sup>e</sup> people go, & they maye do sacrifice vnto the LORD.

Moses sayde: Haue thou the hono<sup>r</sup> before me, & appoynte me, wha I shal praye for y<sup>e</sup>, for y<sup>e</sup> seruantes and for thy people: y<sup>e</sup> the frogges maye be drynen awaye fro the & fro thy house, & remayne onely in the ryuer. He sayde: Tomorrow. He sayde: Euen as thou hast sayde, y<sup>e</sup> thou mayest knowe, y<sup>e</sup> there is none like vnto the LORD & God: And the frogges shal be eaten from the, & from y<sup>e</sup> house, from thy seruantes, & from thy people, & remayne onely in the ryuer.

So Moses & Aaron wete from pharao, & Moses cried vnto the LORD for the appoyntment ouer the frogges, which he had promysed vnto pharao. And & LORD dyd as Moses sayde. And the frogges dyed in y<sup>e</sup> houses, in y<sup>e</sup> courtes, & vpon y<sup>e</sup> felde: & they gathered the togethe, here an heape, & there an heape, & the lande stante of them. But whan pharao sawe y<sup>e</sup> he had gotten bieth, his hert was hardened, and he hertened not vnto the LORD, euen as the LORD had sayde.

And the LORD spake vnto Moses: Saie vnto Aaron: Stretch out thy staff, & smyte the dust vpon the earth, & there maye be luse in the whole lode of Egypte. They dyd so. And Aaron stretched out his hande wth his staff, & smote the dust vpon the earth, & there were luse vpon men and vpon catell: All the dust of the lande was turned vnto luse in all the lande of Egypte.

The Sorcerers also assayed likewise wth their Sorceries, & they might brynge forth luse, but they coude not. And y<sup>e</sup> luse were vpon men & catell. Then sayde y<sup>e</sup> Sorcerers vnto pharao: It is the fynger of God. But pharaos hert was hardened, & he hertened not vnto the LORD, euen as the LORD had sayde.

And & LORD saide vnto Moses: Get y<sup>e</sup> vp tomorrow by tymes, & stonde before pharao: beholde, he wil go vnto the water, & speake thou vnto him: Thus saith y<sup>e</sup> LORD: Let my people go, & they maye serue me: yf not, beholde, I wil cause cruell wormes (or flies) to come vpon the, thy seruantes, & people, & thy house, so y<sup>e</sup> all the Egipcians houses, & the felde, and what thereon is shall be full of cruell wormes: & the same daye wil I separate the lande of Gosen, wherin my people are, so y<sup>e</sup> no cruell worme shalbe there, that thou mayest knowe, that I am & LORD in the myddest of the earth. And I wil set a diuynce betwene my people and thynne.

Tomorrow shal this token come to passe.

And the LORD dyd so. And there came perious cruell wormes in to pharaos house, in to his seruantes houses, & vpon all the lande of Egypte: and the lande was marred with noysome wormes.

And Moses wete out from pharao, and prayed vnto the LORD. And the LORD dyd as Moses sayde, & toke awaye the cruell wormes from pharao, from his seruantes, and from his people, so y<sup>e</sup> there remayned not one. But pharao hardened his hert eue then also, and let not y<sup>e</sup> people go.

The IX. Chapter.

A The LORD sayde vnto Moses: Go in to pharao, and speake vnto him: Thus saith the LORD God of y<sup>e</sup> Hebrewes: let my people go, & they maye serue me. If thou wilt not, but holdesthem longer, beholde, the hande of the LORD shal be vpon thy catell in the felde, vpon horses, vpon asses, vpon Camels, vpon oxen, vpon shepe with a very sore pestilence. And y<sup>e</sup> LORD shal make a diuysion betwene the catell of the Israelites & the Egipcians, so y<sup>e</sup> there shal nothinge dye of all that the children of Israel haue. And y<sup>e</sup> LORD appoynted a tyme, and sayde: Tomorrow shal the LORD do this vpon earth.

B And the LORD dyd the same on the morow. And there dyed of all maner of catell of the Egipcians: but of y<sup>e</sup> catell of y<sup>e</sup> childre of Israel there dyed not one. And pharao sent thither, & beholde, there was not one of the catell of Israel deed. But pharaos hert was hardened, so y<sup>e</sup> he let not y<sup>e</sup> people go. Then sayde y<sup>e</sup> LORD vnto Moses & Aaron: Take youre handes full of asshes out of the fornace, & let Moses sprentle it toward heauen before pharao, that it maye be dust in all the lande of Egypte, & that there maye be sores & blaynes vpon men & vpon catell in all the lande of Egypte.

And they toke asshes out of y<sup>e</sup> fornace, & stode before pharao, & Moses sprentled it toward heauen. Then were there sores and blaynes vpon men & vpon catell, so that the Sorcerers might not stode before Moses by reason of the sores. For there were sores vpo the Sorcerers as well as vpon all the Egipcians. But the LORD hardened pharaos hert, so that he hertened not vnto them, eue as the LORD had sayde vnto Moses.

Then sayde the LORD vnto Moses: Get the vp tomorrow by tymes, & stonde before pharao, & speake vnto him: Thus saith y<sup>e</sup> LORD God of the Hebrewes: let my people go, & they maye serue me, els wyll I at this tyme sende all my plages in to thine hert, & vpon thy seruantes & vpon thy people: that thou mayest knowe, y<sup>e</sup> there is none like me in all landes. For I will now stretch out my hande, & smyte the & thy people wth pestilence, so y<sup>e</sup> thou shalt be rored out from the earth. Yet haue I stered y<sup>e</sup> vp for this cause, euen to shew my power vpon y<sup>e</sup>, and that my name might be declared in all landes.

Thou holdest my people yet, & wilt not let them go, beholde, tomorrow aboute this tyme wyll I cause a mightie greate hayle to rayne, soch as hath not bene in the lande of Egypte, sence the tyme that it was grounded, hither to. And now sende thou, & saue thy catell, & all y<sup>e</sup> thou hast in the felde: for all men & catell that shalbe founde in the felde, & not brought in to the houses, yf the hayle fall vpon them, they shall dye. Now who so feared the worde of the LORD amonge pharaos seruantes, caused his seruantes & catell to flye in to the houses: but luke whose hertes regarded not the worde of y<sup>e</sup> LORD, left their seruantes and catell in the felde.

Then sayde the LORD vnto Moses: Stretch out thy hande toward heauen, that it maye hayle vpon all the lande of Egypte, vpon men, vpon catell, & vpon all herbes of the felde in the lande of Egypte. So Moses stretched out his staff toward heauen, and the LORD caused it to thonder & hayle, so y<sup>e</sup> the fyre ranne alonge vpon the earth. Thus the LORD hayled & rayned vpon the lande of Egypte, so that the hayle & fyre wente so hoorybly together, as neuer was in all the lade of Egypte, sens the tyme that there were people therin. And the hayle smote the whole lande of Egypte, all that was vpon y<sup>e</sup> felde, both men z catell, z smote all the herbes vpon the felde, z brake all the trees vpon y<sup>e</sup> felde, save onely in the lande of Gosen, where the childre of Israel were, there it hayled not. Then sent pharao z called for Moses z Aaron, z sayde vnto them: Now haue I synned, y<sup>e</sup> LORD is righteous, but I z my people are vngodly. Yet praye ye vnto the LORD, that the thonder z hayle of God maye cease, then wyl I let you go, that ye shal tary here no longer. Moses sayde vnto him: Whan I am come out of the cite, I wyl stretch out myne handes vnto the LORD, so shal the thonder cease, z there shal be no more hayle: that thou mayest knowe, that the earth is the LORDS. But I knowe, y<sup>e</sup> both thou z thy seruantes feare not yet the LORD God. Thus the flay and the barlye were smytten: for the barlye was shot vp, z y<sup>e</sup> flay was bouled: but the wheate and y<sup>e</sup> rye were not smytten, for they were late sowne.

So Moses wente from pharao out of y<sup>e</sup> cite, z stretched out his handes vnto y<sup>e</sup> LORD. And y<sup>e</sup> thonder z the hayle ceased, z the rayne dropped not vpon the earth. But whan pharao sawe y<sup>e</sup> the rayne z thonder z hayle ceased, he synned agayne, and hardened his hert, he z his seruantes. So pharao hert was hardened, y<sup>e</sup> he let not the childre of Israel go, euē as the LORD had sayde by Moses.

The X. Chapter.

¶ And the LORD said vnto Moses: Go in vnto pharao, for I haue hardened his hert z the hertes of his seruantes, y<sup>e</sup> I might do these my tokens amonge the, z that thou mightest shewe it in the eares of thy children z of thy childers children, what I haue done in Egypte, and how I haue shewed my tokens amonge the, that ye maye knowe, how that I am the LORD.

So Moses z Aaron wente in vnto pharao, z spake vnto him: Thus sayeth y<sup>e</sup> LORD God of the hebrues: How longe refuset thou to submyt thy self vnto me, to let my people go, y<sup>e</sup> they maye serue me? If thou wilt not let my people go, beholde, tomorrow wil I cause greshoppers to come vpon all places, y<sup>e</sup> they maye couer the lande, so y<sup>e</sup> the lande can not be sene, z they shal eat vpon y<sup>e</sup> is left yon z was deliuered fro the hayle: z shal eat vpon all y<sup>e</sup> grene trees vpon the felde, z shal fyll thy house, all y<sup>e</sup> seruantes houses, z all the Egyptians houses: soch as y<sup>e</sup> fathers z y<sup>e</sup> fathers fathers haue not sene, sens

the tyme y<sup>e</sup> they were vpon earth vnto this daye. And he turned him, z wente out from pharao. Then said pharao seruantes vnto him: How longe shall we be snared after this maner? Let the men go, that they maye serue y<sup>e</sup> LORD their God. Knowest thou not yet, y<sup>e</sup> Egypte is destroyed? Moses z Aaron were brought agayne to pharao, which said vnto them: Go y<sup>e</sup> waye, z serue y<sup>e</sup> LORD y<sup>e</sup> God. But who are they y<sup>e</sup> shall go? Moses sayde: We wil go wth yonge z olde, wth sonnes and doughters, with shepe and oxen: for we haue a feast of the LORD. He sayde vnto the: Let it be so, the LORD be with you: Shulde I let you go z y<sup>e</sup> childre also? loke that ye haue not some myschefe in hande. Not so, but go ye that are men, and serue the LORD, for that was youre desyre. And they thrust them out from pharao.

¶ Then pharao called for Moses z Aaron in all y<sup>e</sup> haist, z said: I haue synned agaynst the LORD y<sup>e</sup> God, z agaynst you: forgene me my synne this once also, z pray the LORD y<sup>e</sup> God, y<sup>e</sup> he maye take awaye fro me this death onely. And he wote out from pharao, z prayed vnto the LORD. The LORD turned a marvelous stroge west wynde, and toke vpon the greshoppers, z cast them in to the reed see, so that there was not one left in all the quarters of Egypte. But the LORD hardened pharao hert, that he let not the childre of Israel go. The LORD sayde vnto Moses: Stretch out thine hande toward heauen, that it be so darcke in the lande of Egypte, y<sup>e</sup> it maye be felt. And Moses stretched out his hande toward heauen, the was there a thicke darcknesse in all the lande of Egypte thre dayes, so y<sup>e</sup> in thre dayes no man saw another, nor rose vp from y<sup>e</sup> place where he was. But wth the childre of Israel there was light in their dwellings. Then pharao called for Moses, z sayde: Go y<sup>e</sup> waye z serue the LORD: onely leaue y<sup>e</sup> shepe z y<sup>e</sup> open here: let y<sup>e</sup> childre go wth you also. Moses sayde: Thou must geue vs offringes and biento offeringes, that we maye do sacrifice vnto the LORD y<sup>e</sup> God. Our catell shal go wth vs, and there shal not one hooffe be left behynde: for we must take therof for the seruyce of the LORD y<sup>e</sup> God. Moreover we knowe not wherewithall we shal serue y<sup>e</sup> LORD, tyll we come thither. But the LORD hardened pharao hert, y<sup>e</sup> he wolde not let them go. And pharao sayde vnto him: Get the hence from me, z bewarre, that thou come no more in my sight: for loke what daie so euer thou comest in my sight, thou shalt dye. Moses answered: Euē as thou hast sayde, I wil come no more in thy sight. The XI. Chapter.

And ye shal kepe it vnto y<sup>e</sup> fourtene dayes of the moneth. And every man of the congregacion of Israel shal slaye it aboute the eueninge. And they shal take of his bloude, and frye it on both the syde postes of the dore, and on the upperdore post of the house, that they eate it in. And so shal they eate flesh y<sup>e</sup> same night, roasted at the fyre, z vnlouended bled, and shal eate it with sowe sawse. Ye shal not eate it rawe, ner sodden with water, but onely roasted at the fyre, his heade wth his fete and perteneunce. And ye shal leaue nothyng of it ouer vntyll the mornynge: but yf eny thinge be left ouer vntyll the mornynge, ye shal burne it with fyre.

E And this daye shall ye haue for a remembrance, and ye shall kepe it holy for a feast vnto the LORDE, ye & all youre posterities, for a perpetuall custome. Seuen dayes shall ye eate vneleuened bried: namely, vpon the first daie shall ye leane of with leuened bried in youre houses. Who so euer eateth leuened bried from the first daye vnto & seventh that soule shall be roted out from Israel. The first daye shall be called holy amonge you, and the seventh also. No maner of worke shall ye do therein, save what belongeth to the meate for all maner of soules, that onely maye ye do for you. And kepe you to leuened bried.

For euen vpon that same daye wil I bringe youre armies out of the lande of Egypte, therfore shall ye and all youre posterities kepe this daye for a perpetuall custome. Vpon the fourtene daye of the first moneth, at euen, shall ye eate vneleuened bried, vnto the one and twente daye of the moneth, at euen: so that there be no leuened bried founde in youre houses seuen dayes. For who so euer eateth leuened bried, that soule shall be roted out from the congregacion of Israel, whether it be a straunger or borne in the lande. Therfore eate no leuened bried, but onely vneleuened bried in all yere dwellinges.

D And Moses called all the Elders of Israel, and sayde vnto them: Chose out, and take to euery householde a shepe, and kyll passeouer vnto the LORDE: and take a bunch of ysop, and dyppe it in the bloude in the basen, and stryke it vpon the vpperposte and vpon the two syde postes, and none of you go out at the doore of his house vntyll & moonyng, for the LORDE wyll go aboute and plage the Egyptians. And whan he seyth the bloude vpon the vpperposte, and vpon the two syde postes, he wyl passe ouer by the doore, and not suffre the destroyer to come in to youre houses to plage. Therfore kepe this custome for the and thy children for euer.

And whan ye be come into & lande that the LORDE shall geue you, (as he hath sayde) then kepe this seruyce. And whan youre children saye vnto you: What seruyce is this, that ye haue? Ye shall saye: It is the sacrifice of the LORDES Passeouer, which passed ouer by the children of Israel in Egypte, whan he plagued the Egyptians, and saved oure houses. Then the people bowed themselves, and worshipped. And the children of Israel wene and dyd, as the LORDE had commanded Moses and Aaron.

And at mydnight the LORDE smote all the firstborne in the lande of Egypte: from Pharaos first sonne (which sat vpon his seate) vntyll the first sonne of the prisoner that was in the prison, and all the firstborne of the cattell. Then Pharaos arose & same night, and all his seruantes, and all the Egyptians, & there was a greete crye in Egypte: for there was no house wherin there was not one deed.

And he called for Moses and Aaron in & night, and sayde: Get you vp, and departe out fro my people, ye and the children of Israel: go youre waye, and serue the LORDE, as ye haue sayde: and take youre shepe and youre oxen with you, * as ye haue sayde, and departe, and blesse me also. And the Egyptians were fearce vpon the people, to dryue them haistely out of the lande, for they said: we are all but deed.

And the people toke the rawe dowe, before it was leuened (for their foode) bounde in their clothes vpon their shulders. And the children of Israel had done * as Moses sayde, and borrowed Jewels of syluer and golde, and clothes of the Egyptians: the LORDE also had geuen the people fauoure in the sight of the Egyptians, that they lent them, and so they spoyled the Egyptians.

Thus & children of Israel toke their iourney from Raamses to Suchoth, * sire hundred thousande men of fore, besyde childre. There wente with them also moch cems people, and shepe, and oxen, and exceedinge many cattell.

And of the rawe dowe that they brought out of Egypte, they baked vneleuened cakes: for it was not leuened, in so moch as they were thurst out of Egypte, and coude not tarry: nether had they prepared them any other meate.

The tyme & the children of Israel dwelt in Egypte, is foure hundred and thirtie yeres. Whan the same were ended, the whole hoost of the LORDE wente out of the lande of Egypte in one daye. Therfore shall this night be kepte vnto the LORDE, because he brought them out of the lande of Egypte: And the children of Israel shall kepe it vnto the LORDE, they and their posterities.

And the LORDE sayde vnto Moses and Aaron: This is the maner of the keepyng of Passeouer: There shall no strainger eate of it. But who so is a bought seruaunt let him be circumcysed, & then eate therof. A straunger and an hyred seruante shall not eate of it. In one house shall it be eate. Ye shall cary no me of his flesh out of the house, and * ye shall not breake a bone of him. The whole congregacion of Israel shall do it.

But yf there dwell a straunger with the, & wil holde Passeouer vnto the LORDE, let him circumcysse euery one that is male, and then let him first come, and do it, and be as one that is borne in the lande: for there shall no vncircumcysed eate therof. One maner of lawe be vnto him & is borne in the lande, & vnto the strainger & dwelleth amonge you. And all the childre of Israel dyd as the LORDE commaunded Moses & Aaron. So vpon one daye the LORDE brought the childre of Israel out of the lande of Egypte with their armyes.

The XIII. Chapter.

A And the LORDE spake vnto Moses, & sayde: Sanctifie vnto me euery firstborne, & breake all maner of Matrices amonge the childre of Israel, both of men & cattell: for they are myne. Then sayde Moses vnto & people: Think vpon this daye, in the which ye are gone out of Egypte from the house of bondage, how & & LORDE brought you out fro thence with a mightie hande. Therfore shall ye eate no sowe dowe. This daye are ye gone out, en in & moneth of Abib.

Now whā & LORDE hath brought y in to y lande of & Cananites, Herhites, Amorites, & Hittites & Jebusites, which * he swore vnto y fathers to geue y (euen a lande that floweth with mylke & hony) then shalt thou kepe this seruyce in this moneth. Seue dayes shalt thou eate vneleuened bried, & vpon the seventh daye is the LORDES feast: therfore shalt thou eate vneleuened bried seue dayes, that there be no sowe dowe, ner sowed bried sene in all thy quarters.

B And thou shalt tell thy sonne at the same tyme, & saye: Because of that, which & LORDE dyd for me, whan I departed out of Egypte. Therfore shalt it be a signe vnto y in thine hande, and a token of remembrance before thine eyes, that the lawe of & LORDE maye be in thy mouth, how that & LORDE brought the out of Egypte with a mightie hande: Therfore kepe this maner yearly in his tyme.

Whan the LORDE now hath brought y into y lande of the Cananites (as he hath sworne vnto the and thy fathers) and hath geuen it the, then shalt thou sunder out vnto the LORDE all that breake the Matrice, and firstborne amonge thy cattell, such as is male. The firstborne of the Asses shalt thou bye out with a shepe: but yf thou redeme it not, then breake his neck. All the firstborne of ruen amonge thy children shalt thou redeme.

And whan thy childe asketh the to daie or tomorrow: What is this? Thou shalt saye vnto him: The LORDE brought vs out of Egypte from the house of bondage with a mightie hande: for whan Pharaos was loth to let vs go, the LORDE slew all the firstborne in the lande of Egypte, from the firstborne of men vnto & firstborne of the cattell: therfore offer I vnto the LORDE all that breake the Matrice, beyng a male, and & firstborne of my children I redeme. And this shall be a signe vnto the in thine hande, and a token to thinke vpon before thine eyes, how that the LORDE brought vs out of Egypte with a mightie hande.

Now whan Pharaos had let y people go, God led them not the waye thorow the lande of the Philistynes, which was y nexte: for he thought: The people might repēt, whā they se warre, and so turne in agayne into Egypte. Therfore led he the people aboute, euen the waye thorow the wyldernes by y reed see. And the childre of Israel wente harnessed out of the lande of Egypte. And Moses toke Josephs bones with him, * for he toke an ooth of the children of Israel, and sayde: God wyll surely vyset you, therfore cary awaye my bones with you from hence.

So they toke their iourney fro Suchoth, & pitched their tentes in Ethā in y edge of the wyldernes. And & LORDE wete before the by daye in a piler of a cloude, to lede the & right waye: and by night in a piler of fyre, that he might shewe the light to walke both by daie and night. The piler of the cloude departed neuer from the people by daye, and the piler of fyre departed not from the by night.

The XIII. Chapter.

A And the LORDE spake vnto Moses, and sayde: Speake vnto the children of Israel, and byd them that they turne aboute, & pitch their tentes before the valley of Ziyoth, betwixte Migdol & the see toward Baal Zephō, and there pitch y tent right ouer by the see. For Pharaos shall saye of the children of Israel: They can not tell how to get out of the lande, the wyldernes hath shut them in. And I wyll harden his hert, y he shall folowe after them, & I wil geue me honoure vpon Pharaos, and vpon all his power. And & Egyptians shall knowe, y I am the LORDE. And they dyd so.

B And whan it was tolde þe kyng of Egypte, þe people fled, his hert & his seruantes were turned agaynst þe people, & saide: Why haue we done this, that we haue let Israel go, þe they shalbe not serue vs? And he bounde his charettes fast, and toke his people wth him, and toke fire hūdrēth chōsen charettes, and the other charettes besyde that were in Egypte, and the captaynes ouer all his: for the LORDE hardened þe hert of pharaos kyng of Egypte, that he folowed after the children of Israel. And the children of Israel wente out with an hie hande.

C And the Egyptians folowed after the, & ouertoke them (where they had pitched by þe see) with horses and charettes, and hoisimē, and with his power, in the valley of Syzath towarde Baal Zephon. And whan pharaos camenye them, the children of Israel lift vp their eyes, and beholde, þe Egyptians wente behinde the, and they were sore afrayed, and cried vnto the LORDE.

Exo. 10. 4. c

And sayde vnto Moses: Were there no graues in Egypte, þe thou hast brought vs awaye to dye in the wyldernes? Wherfore hast thou done this vnto vs, that thou hast caried vs out of Egypte? Is not this it, that we sayde vnto the in Egypte? Leane of, & let vs serue the Egyptians: for it were better for vs to serue the Egyptians, then to dye in the wyldernes? Moses sayde vnto the people: Feare you not, stonde styll, and beholde, what a saluacion the LORDE shall shewe vpon you this daye: for these Egyptians whom ye se this daye, shall ye neuer se more for ever: the LORDE shal fight for you, onely quyetē youre selues.

D The LORDE sayde vnto Moses: Wherfore criest thou vnto me? Speake vnto þe children of Israel, þe they go forwarde. But lift thou vp þe staff, & stretch out thine hade ouer þe see, & parte it asunder, þe the children of Israel maye go in thorow þe myddest of it vpon the drye grounde. Beholde, I wyll harden þe hert of the Egyptians, þe they shall folowe after you. Thus wyl I get me honoure vpon pharaos, & vpon all his power, vpon his charettes and hoisimen: and the Egyptians shal knowe, that I am þe LORDE, whan I haue gotten me hono vpon pharaos, vpon his charettes, and vpon his hoisimen.

Then the angell of God þe wente before the armies of Israel, remoued, and gat him behynde them: and the clondy piler remoued also from before them, and stode behinde the and came betwixte the armies of the Egip-ciens and the armies of Israel. It was a darcke cloude, and gaue light that night, so that all the night longe these and they coude not come together.

Whā Moses now stretched forth his hade ouer þe see, the LORDE caused it to passe awaye thorow a mightie eastwynde all that night, and made the see drye, and þe water dryed it self a sūder. And the children of Israel wente in thorow the myddest of þe see vpon the drye grounde: and þe water was vnto them as a wall, vpon their right hande & vpon their lefte. And þe Egyptians folowed, & wente in after the, all pharaos horses, & charettes, & hoisimē, enē in to þe myddest of þe see.

Now whan the mornynge watch came, the LORDE looked vpon the armies of the Egyptians out the piler of fire and þe cloude, & troubled their armies, and smote the wheles from their charettes, & ouerthrew them wth a storme. Then sayde the Egyptians: Let vs flye from Israel, the LORDE fighteth for the agaynst the Egyptians.

But þe LORDE sayde vnto Moses: Stretch out thine hande ouer the see, that þe water maye come agayne vpon the Egyptians, vpon their charettes, and hoisimen. Then Moses stretched out his hande ouer the see, and the see came agayne before daye in his course and strength, and the Egyptians fled agaynst it. Thus the LORDE ouerthrew them in the myddest of the see, so that the water came agayne, and couered þe charettes and hoisimen, and all pharaos power which folowed after them in to the see, so that there remayned not one of them. But the children of Israel wente drye thorow þe myddest of the see, and the water was vnto them as a wall vpon their right hande and vpon their lefte.

Thus the LORDE deliuered Israel in þe daye from the hande of the Egyptians. And they sawe the Egyptians deed vpon þe see syde, and the greates hande þe the LORDE had shewed vpon the Egyptians. And þe people feared þe LORDE, and belened him, and his seruante Moses.

The XV. Chapter.

A Then sange Moses and the childre of Israel this songe vnto the LORDE, and sayde:

I will syng vnto þe LORDE, for he hath done gloriously, horse & charet hath he ouerthrowne in the see.

The LORDE is my strength, and my son ge, and is become my saluacion.

This is my God, I wil magnifie him: he is my fathers God, I wil exalte him.

The LORDE is the right man of warre, LORDE is his name. The charettes of pharaos & his power, hath he cast in to the see.

His chōsen captaynes are drowned in the reed see, & depe hath couered them: they sell to the grounde as a stone.

Thy right hande (O LORDE) is glorious in power: thy right hade (O LORDE) hath smytten the enemies.

And with thy greates glory thou hast destroyed thine aduersaries: thou sentest out thy wrath, & it consumed them, enen as stubble.

In the bierch of thy wrath the waters fell together, the floudes wente vpon a heape: the depes plomped together in þe myddest of the see.

B The enemy thought: I will folowe vpon them, and ouertake them, and deuyde þe spoyle, and coole my mynde vpon them.

I wil drawe out my swerde, and my hande shal destroye them.

Thou blewest with thy wynde, the see couered them, and they sancke downe as leed in the mightie waters.

LORDE, who is like vnto the amonge þe goddes? Who is so glorious in holynes, fearfull, laudable, and doinge wonders?

Whan thou stretchedest out thy right hande, the earth swallowed them vp.

Thou of thy very mercy hast led this people, whom thou hast deliuered, and with thy strength thou hast brought them vnto the dwellynge of thy Sanctuary.

Whan þe nations herde this, they raged, forowe came vpon the philistynes.

Then were þe prynces of Edom afrayed, tremblynge came vpon þe mightie of Moab, all the indwellers of Canaan waxed saynte harted.

C Let feare and drede fall vpon them thorow thy greates arme, that they maye be as styll as a stone, cyll thy people (O LORDE) be gone thorow, cyll þe people whom thou hast gotten, be gone thorow.

Drynge them in, and plante them vpon the mountayne of thy inheritaunce, vnto þe place that thou hast made for thyme owne dwellynge: enen to þe temple (O LORDE) which thy handes haue prepared.

The LORDE shal be kyng for ever & ener. For pharaos wente in to the see with horses, and charettes, and hoisimen, and the LORDE made the see fall agayne vpon them.

But the children of Israel wete drye thorow the myddest of the see.

And Miriam the prophetisse, Aarons sister, toke a tymbiell in hir hande, and all the women folowed out after her with tymbriels in a daunse. And Miriam sange before the: O let vs syng vnto the LORDE, for he hath done gloriously, man and horse hath he ouerthrowne in the see.

Moses caused the children of Israel to be parte out from the reed see, vnto the wylder- nesses of Sur, & they wente thre dayes in þe wyldernes, & they founde no water. Then came they to Marath, but they coude not drinke þe water for bytternes, for it was very bytter. Therfore was it called Marath, (þe is bytternes.) Then þe people murmured agaynst Moses, & sayde: What shal we drynke? And Moses cried vnto þe LORDE, which shewed him a tre: this he put in þe water, the was it swete.

There he made the a statute, and a lawe, and tempted them, and sayde: If thou wylt herken vnto the voyce of þe LORDE & God, & do that which is right in his sighte, and geue eare vnto his commaundementes, & kepe all his statutes, then wyl I laye vpon þe none of the sicknesse, that I layed vpon Egypte, for I am the LORDE thy surgione.

The XVI. Chapter.

A And they came vnto Elim, where there were twolue welles of water, and twelue palme trees, and there they pitched by þe water syde. From Elim they toke their iourney, and the whole congregacion of the children of Israel came in to the wyldernes of Sin (which lyeth betwene Elim and Sinai) vpon the fyftene daye of the seconde month, after that they were departed out of the londe of Egypte. And þe whole multitude of the children of Israel murmured agaynst Moses and Aaron in þe wyldernes, and sayde vnto them: Wolde God we had dyed in the londe of Egypte by the hande of the LORDE, whan we sat by þe flesch pottes, and had had bred ynough to eate: for ye haue brought vs out in to this wyldernes, to cause this whole multitude dye of hunger.

I wyl rayne you bried from heauen, and let the people go out, and gather daylie, what they nede, that I maye proue whether they walke in my lawe or not. But vpon the sixte daye they shal prepare the selues, that they maye brynge in twyse as moch as they gather daylie.

B Moses and Aaron saide vnto all the children of Israel: At euen ye shall knowe, that the LORDE hath brought you out of the lode of Egypte, and in the morninge shall ye see the glory of the LORDE: for he hath herde youre grudginges agaynst the LORDE. For what are we, that ye grudge agaynst vs?

N. m. d. Moses sayde morouer: At euen shall the LORDE geue you flesh to eate, and in the morninge bried ynough: because the LORDE hath herde youre grudginges, that ye haue grugged agaynst him. For what are we? Your murmuringe is not agaynst vs, but agaynst the LORDE. And Moses sayde vnto Aaron: Speake vnto the whole multitude of the children of Israel: Come forth before the LORDE, for he hath herde youre murmurings.

C And whyle Aaron spake thus vnto the whole congegacion of the childre of Israel, they turned them toward the wyldernes: and beholde, the glory of the LORDE appeared in a cloude, and the LORDE sayde vnto Moses: I haue herde the murmuringe of the children of Israel. Tell them: At euen shall ye haue flesh to eate, and in the morninge shal ye be fylled with bried, and ye shall knowe, that I am the LORDE youre God.

And at euen the quayles came vp, and covered the tentes: and in the morninge the dew laye rounde aboute the tentes. And whan the dew was falle, beholde, there laye a thinge in the wyldernes, thynne and small, as the hore frost vpon the grounde.

F D And whan the children of Israel sawe it, they saide one to another: This is Ma. For they wyl not what it was. But Moses sayde vnto them: It is the bried that the LORDE hath geue you to eate. This is it that the LOR

DE hath commaunded: Every one gather for himself as moch as he eateth, and take a Gomer for every heade, accordinge to the nombre of the soules in his tente.

And the children of Israel dyd so, and gathered some more, some lesse. But whan it was measured out with the Gomer, he that gathered moch, had not the more: and he that gathered litle, wanted nothinge, but every one gathered for himself, as moch as he ate. And Moses sayde vnto them: Let no man leue ought therof vntill the morninge. But they harkened not vnto Moses. And some left of it vntill the morninge. Then waxed it full of wormes and stanke. And Moses was angrie at them.

And every morninge they gathered for them selues, as moch as every one ate: but as soone as it was whote of the Sonne, it melted awaye. And vpon the sixte daye they gathered twyse as moch of bried, two Gomers for one. And all the rulers of the congregacion came in, and tolde Moses. And he sayde vnto them: This is it, that the LORDE hath sayde: Tomorrow is the Sabbath of the holy rest of the LORDE: loke what ye wil bake, that bake, and what ye wyl seeth, that seeth, and that remayneth ouer, let it remayne, for it maye be kepte vntill the morninge. And they let it remayne tyll the morow, as Moses commaunded. Then stanke it not, neither was there eny womme therein. The sayde Moses: Eate that to daye, for to daye is the Sabbath of the LORDE, to daye shal ye fynde none in the felde. Sixe dayes shal ye gather it, but the seventh daye is the Sabbath, wher in there shal be none.

But vpon the seventh daye there wente out some of the people to gather, and founde nothinge. Then sayde the LORDE vnto Moses: How longe refuse ye to kepe my commandementes and lawes? Beholde, the LORDE hath geuen you the Sabbath, therfore vpon the sixte daye he geneth you bried for two dayes: therfore let every man now hyde at home, and no man go forth of his place vpon the seventh daye.

So the people rested vpon the seventh daye. And the house of Israel called it Man, and it was like Coriander seede, and whyte, and had a taist like symnels with hony.

And Moses sayde: This is it that the LORDE hath commaunded: Fill a Gomer therof to be kepte for youre posterities, for they maye see the bried, wherwith I fed you, whan I brought you out of the lande of Egypte. And Moses sayde vnto Aaron: Take a cruse, and put a Gomer full of Man therein, and laye it vp before the LORDE, to be kepte for youre posterities, as the LORDE commaunded Moses. So Aaron layed it vp there for a testimony to be kepte.

And the children of Israel ate man fourtye yeares, tyll they came vnto a lande, wher people dwelt: euen vntill they came to the borders of the lande of Canaan, ate they Man. A Gomer is the tenth parte of an Ephah.

The XVII. Chapter.

A And the whole multitude of the children of Israel were on their iourneys out of the wyldernes of Sin (as the LORDE commaunded the) and pitched in Raphidim. Then had the people no water to drynke. And they chode w Moses, and sayde: Geue vs water, for we maye drynke. Moses sayde vnto the: Why chydye ye me? Wherfore tēp te ye the LORDE? But whan the people thyrsted there for water, they murmured agaynst Moses, and sayde: Wherfore hast thou caused vs to come out of Egypte: to let vs, oure children, and oure catell dye of hunger?

B Moses cried vnto the LORDE, and sayde: What shal I do w this people? They are all most ready to stone me. The LORDE saide vnto him: Go before the people, and take some of the elders of Israel with the, and take in thine hande thy staff, wherwith thou smotest the water, and go thy waye. Beholde, I wyl stonde there before the vpon a rocke in Zorah, there shalt thou smyte the rocke, so shall there water runne out, that the people maye drynke. Moses dyd so before the elders of Israel. Then was that place called Massa Meriba, because of the chydyinge of the children of Israel, and because they tempted the LORDE, and sayde: Is the LORDE amonge vs, or not?

C Then came Amalek, and fought agaynst Israel in Raphidim. And Moses sayde vnto Josua: Chose vs out men, go out, and fighte agaynst Amalek, tomorrow wil I stonde vpon the toppe of the hyll, and haue the staff of God in my hande. And Josua dyd as Moses bade him, and fought agaynst Amalek. Moses and Aaron and Hur wente vp to the toppe of the hyll. And whan Moses helde vp his hande, Israel had the victory: but whan he let downe his hande, Amalek had the victory. Judit. 4. c.

But Moses handes were heavy, therfore toke they a stone, and layed it vnder him, that he might syt vpon it. And Aaron and Hur stayed vpon his handes, the one vpon the one syde, and the other vpon the other syde. So his handes were stedfast vnto the Sonne wente downe. And Josua discomfited Amalek, and his people thorow the edge of the swerde.

And the LORDE sayde vnto Moses: Wryte this for a remembraunce in a booke, and comytte it vnto the eares of Josua: for I wyl rote out Amalek from vnder heauen, so that he shal nomore be remembred. And Moses buylded an altare vnto the LORDE, and called it: The LORDE Nissi, for he sayde: The battayll of the LORDE shalbe agaynst Amalek thorow an hande vnder the defence of God from childe to childe. * that is: The 10. d. is he that lif. teth me vp.

The XVIII. Chapter.

A And whan Jethro the prest in Madian Moses father in lawe herde of all that God had done w Moses and his people of Israel, how the LORDE had brought Israel out of Egypte, he toke Zippora Moses wife, whom he had sent backe, with her two sonnes. The one was called Gerson, for he saide: I am become a straunger in a straunge lande. And the other was called Eliafer, for he sayde: The God of my fathers hath bene my helpe, and hath deliuered me from pharaos swerde. Exod. 1. d.

Now whan Jethro Moses father in lawe, and his sonnes and his wife came vnto him in the wyldernes by the mount of God, wher he had pitched his tent, he sent worde vnto Moses: I Jethro thy father in lawe am come vnto the, and my wife and both hir children with her. Then wente Moses forth to mete him, and dyd obeysaunce vnto him, and kysed him. And whan they had saluted each other, they wente in to the tente.

Then Moses tolde his father in lawe all that the LORDE had done vnto pharaon and the Egyptians for Israels sake, and all the traunyle that had happened them by the waye, and how the LORDE had deliuered them. Jethro reioysed ouer all that good that the LORDE had done for Israel, for he had deliuered them from the hande of the Egyptians. And Jethro sayde: Praise be to the

The ii. boke of Moses.

LORDE, which hath deliuered you from the hande of the Egipcians and of Pharaoh, (and) that knoweth how to deliuer his people from the Egipcians hande. Now I knowe, that the LORDE is greater the all goddes, because they dealt proudly to them. And Jethro toke brenstoffringes, and offered vnto God. Then came Aaron and all the elders of Israel to eate bried with Moses father in lawe before God.

C On the next morow sat Moses to iudge the people, and the people stode rounde aboute Moses from the morninge vntill y euen. But whan his father in lawe sawe all that he dyd with the people, he sayde: What is this, that thou doest with the people? Wherefore sittest thou alone, and all the people stonde rounde aboute from the morninge vntill the euen? Moses answered him: The people come to me, & are counsell at God: for whan they haue any thinge to do, they come vnto me, that I maye iudge betwixte every one & his neighbour, and shewe them the statutes of God, and his lawes.

His father in lawe sayde vnto him: It is not well that thou doest. Thou weeriest thy self, and the people that is with the. This busynesse is to sore for the, thou canst not perfourme it alone. But hearken vnto my voyce, I will geue the counsell, and God shall be with the. Be thou vnto the people to God warde, and brynge the causes before God, and provide them with statutes and lawes, that thou mayest shewe the waie wherein they shulde walke, and the workes that they shulde do.

But loke out amonge all the people, for honest men, that feare God, soch as are true, & hate couetousnes: make these rulers ouer them, some ouer thousandes, ouer hundredes, ouer fiftie, and ouer ten, that they maye allwaye iudge the people. But where there is any greate matter, that they brynge the same vnto the, and iudge the small causes them selues: so shall it be lighter for the, yf they beare the burthen with the. If thou shalt do this, then mayest thou endure the thinge that God chargeth the withall, and all this people maye go peaceably vnto their place.

D Moses hearkened vnto the voyce of his father in lawe, and dyd all that he sayde. And he chose honest men out of all Israel, and made them heades ouer the people, some ouer thousandes, ouer hundredes, ouer fiftie, and ouer ten, that they might allwaye iudge the people. As for soch causes as were herbe, they brought them vnto Moses, and iudged the small matters them selues. So Moses let his father in lawe departe into his owne londe.

The XIX. Chapter.

In the thirde moneth after that the children of Israel were gone out of the londe of Egypte, they came the same daye into the wyldernes of Sinai (for they were departed from Raphidim, and wolde into the wyldernes of Sinai) and there they pitched in the wyldernes ouer against the mounte. And Moses wente vp vnto God.

And the LORDE called vnto him out of the mount, and sayde: Thus shalt thou saye vnto the house of Jacob, and tell the children of Israel: Ye haue sene what I haue done vnto the Egipcians, and how I haue borne you vpon Eagles wynges, & brought you vnto my self. If ye wyll hearken now vnto my voyce, and kepe my couenauent, ye shall be myne owne before all people: for the whole earth is myne: and ye shall be vnto me a priestly kingdome, and an holy people. These are the wordes that thou shalt saye vnto the children of Israel.

Moses came and called for the elders of the people, and layed before them all these wordes, that the LORDE had commaunded. And all the people answered together, and sayde: All that the LORDE hath sayde, wyll we do.

And Moses tolde the wordes of the people vnto the LORDE agayne. And the LORDE sayde vnto Moses: Beholde, I wyll come vnto the in a thicke cloude, that the people maye heare my wordes, which I speake vnto the, and beleue the for euer. And Moses shewed the wordes of the people vnto the LORDE.

The LORDE sayde vnto Moses: Go vnto the people, and sanctifie the to daye and tomorrow, & they maye wash their clothes, and be ready agaynst the thirde daye: for vpon the thirde daye shall the LORDE come downe vpon mount Sinai before all the people. And set markes rounde aboute the people, and saye vnto them: Bewarre, that ye go not vp into the mount, ner touch the border of it. For whoso ever toucheth the mount, shall dye by death. There shall no hande touch it, but he shall either be stoned, or shot therewith: whether it be best for man, it shall not lyue. Whan the home bloweth, then shall they come vp vnto the mounte.

The ii. boke of Moses.

C Moses wente downe from the mount vnto the people, and sanctified them. And they washed their clothes. And he sayde vnto them: Be ready agaynst the thirde daye, and no man come at his wife.

Now whan the thirde daye came (and it was early) it beganne to thonder and lighten, and there was a thicke cloude vpon the mount, and a noyse of a trompet exceeding mightie. And the people that were in the tentes, were afrayde. And Moses brought the people out of the tentes to mete to God, and they stode vnder the mount.

But all mount Sinai smoked, because the LORDE came downe vnto it with fyre. And the smoke therof wente vp as the smoke of a furnace, so that the whole mount was exceeding terrible. And the noyse of the trompet wote out, and was mightie. Moses spake, & God answered him loude. Now whan the LORDE was come downe vpon mount Sinai, euen vpon the toppe of it, he called Moses vp vnto the toppe of the mount. And Moses wente vp.

D Then sayde the LORDE vnto him: Go downe, and charge the people, & they preasse not vnto the LORDE to se him, and so many of them perishe. The rulers also that come nye vnto the LORDE, shall sanctifie them selues, lest the LORDE smyte the. But Moses sayde vnto the LORDE: The people can not come vp vpon mount Sinai, for thou hast charged vs, & sayde: Set markes aboute the mount, and sanctifie it.

The LORDE sayde vnto him: Go thy waye, get thee downe, Thou and Aaron with the shalt come vp: but the rulers and the people shall not preasse to come vp vnto the LORDE, lest he smyte the. And Moses wente downe to the people, and tolde them.

The xx. Chap. Ho. xxxii.

God, which haue brought the out of the londe of Egypte from the house of bondage.

Thou shalt haue none other Goddes in my sight. Thou shalt make the no grauen ymage ner any similitude, ner of it that is aboute in heauen, ner of it that is beneth vpon earth, ner of it that is in the water vnder the earth. Worshippe them not, and serue them not: for I the LORDE thy God am a gelouse God, visitinge the synne of the fathers vpon the children, vnto the thirde and fourth generacion, of them that hate me: And vnto the contrarye vpon many thousandes, that loue me, and kepe my commaundementes.

Thou shalt not take the name of the LORDE thy God in vayne. For the LORDE shall not holde him ingilte, that taketh his name in vayne.

Remember the Sabbath daie, that thou sanctifie it. Sire dayes shalt thou labour, and do all thy worke: But vpon the seuenth daye is the Sabbath of the LORDE thy God: thou shalt do no maner worke in it, neither thou, ner thy sonne, ner thy daughter, ner thy seruant, ner thy mayde, ner thy cattell, ner thy straunger that is within thy gates. For in sire dayes the LORDE made heauen and earth, and the see, and all that therin is, and rested vpon the seuenth daye: therefore the LORDE blessed the seuenth daye, & halowed it.

Honoure thy father and thy mother, that thou mayest lyue longe in the londe, which the LORDE thy God shall geue the.

Thou shalt not kyll.

Thou shalt not breake wedlocke.

Thou shalt not steale.

Thou shalt beare no false wytnesse agaynst thy neighbour.

Thou shalt not lust after thy neighbours house.

Thou shalt not lust after thy neighbours wife, ner his seruant, ner his mayde, ner his oxe, ner his Ass, ner all that thy neighbour hath.

And all the people sawe the thonder and the lightenynge, and the noyse of the trompet, and how it at the mountayne smoked, and were afrayed, and stoffered, & stode as farre of, and sayde vnto Moses: Talk with vs, we wil heare: and let not God talke with vs, we might els dye. And Moses sayde vnto the people: Be not afrayed, for God is come to proue you, and that his feare maye be before youre eyes, & ye synne not.

And the people stode as farre of. But Moses gat him into the darcke cloude, where in God was. And the LORDE spake vnto him: Thus shalt thou saye vnto the children of Israel: We haue sene, that I haue talked wth you from heauen: therfore shal ye make no thinge with me: goddes of syluer and golde shal ye not make you.

Make me an altare of earth, wher vpon thou mayest offer y<sup>e</sup> burntofferings, & peaceofferings, thy shepe and thine oxen. For loke in what place so euer I make y<sup>e</sup> remembrance of my name, there wil I come vnto the, and blesse the.

And yf thou wilt make me an altare of stone, thou shalt not make it of hewen stone: For yf thou lift vp thy tole vpon it, thou shalt inhallowe it. Moreover thou shalt not go vp vpon steppes vnto myne altare, that thy shame be not discovered before it.

The XXI. Chapter.

These are the lawes, that thou shalt laye before them. Yf thou bye a seruaunt that is an Hebrue, he shal serue the sixe yeares, in the seventh yeare shal he go out fre and lowse. Yf he came alone, then shal he go out alone also: but yf he came married, then shal his wife go out with him. Yf his master haue geue him a wife, & she haue borne him sonnes or daughters, the shal the wife and y<sup>e</sup> children be the masters, but he shal go out alone. Nevertheless yf the seruaunt saye: I loue my master, and my wife and children, I wil not go out fre: then let his master brynge him before the Goddes, and holde him to the dore or post, and bore him thorow the eare with a botkin, and let him be his seruaunt for euer.

Yf a man sell his daughter to be an hand mayde, then shal she not go out as the men seruautes. But yf she please not hir master, and he haue not married her, then shal he let her go fre: but to sell her vnto a straunge people he hath no auctorite, for so moch as he hath despysed her. Yf he promyse her vnto his sonne, they shal he do vnto her after the lawe of daughters. But yf he geue him another wife, then shal he mynyshe no thinge of hir foode, rayment, and dewtye of marriage. Yf he do not these thye, then shal she go out fre, and paye no thinge.

He that smyteth a man that he dye, shall dye the death. Yf he haue not layed wayte for him, but God let him fall in his hande vnawares, then wil I appoynte the a place, where he shal flye vnto. But yf a man presume vpon his neighbour, and slaye him with disceate, then shalt thou take the same from myne altare, that he maye be slayne. Who so smyteth his father or mother, shall dye the death.

He that stealeth a man, and selleth him, so that he be founde by him, the same shall dye the death.

Who so curseth father and mother, shall dye the death. Yf men stryue together and one smyte another with a stone, or with his fist, so that he dye not, but lyeth in bedd: Yf he ryse, and go forth vpon his staff, the shal he that smote him, be vngiltie: saue that he shal paye the losse of his tyme, and geue y<sup>e</sup> money for healyng him.

He that smyteth his seruaunt or mayde with a staff, that he dye vnder his handes, the same shal suffre vengeance therfore. But yf he endure a daye or two, then shal he suffre no vengeance therfore, for it is his money.

Yf men stryue, and hytt a woman with childe, so that y<sup>e</sup> frute departe from her, and no harme happen vnto her, then shal he be punished for money, as moch as the womans husbände layeth to his charge, and he shal geue it, accordinge to the appoyntment of the dayes men. But yf there come harme vnto her there thorow, then shal he paye soule for soule, eye for eye, toth for toth, hande for hande, fote for fote, burnyng for burnyng, wounde for wounde, strype for strype.

Yf a man smyte his seruaunt or his mayde in the eye, and destroye it, he shal let them go fre and lowse for the eye sake. In like manner yf he smyte out a tothe of his seruaunt or mayde, he shal let them go fre and lowse for the tothes sake.

Yf an ore goore a man or a woman, that he dye, then shal that ore be stoned, and his flesh not eaten: so is the master of the ore vngiltie. But yf the ore haue bene used to push in tymes past, & it hath bene tolde his master, and he hath not kepte him, and besydes that slayeth a man or a woman, then shal y<sup>e</sup> ore be stoned, and his master shal dye. But yf there be money set vpon him, then, loke what is put vpon him, that shal he geue, to deluyne his soule. Likewise shal he be dealt withall, yf he goore a sonne or a daughter. But yf he goore a seruaunt or a mayde, then shal he geue their master thirtie syluer Syckles: and the ore shal be stoned.

Yf a man open a well, or dygge a pytt, and couer it not, and there fall an ore or Ass therin, then shal the owner of the pytt make it good with money, and restore it vnto his master: but the deed carcase shal be his owne.

Yf one mans ore goore another, that he dye, then shal they sell the luyngge ore, and dewtye the money, and the deed carcase shal they dewtye also. But yf it be knowne, that the ore haue bene used to goore afore, then shal he paye his ore for the other, & the deed carcase shal be his owne.

The XXII. Chapter.

If a man steale an ore or shepe, and slaye it, or sell it, he shall restore fyue oxen for an ore, and foure shepe for a shepe.

Yf a thefe be taken breakinge in, & vpon that he smyteth that he dye, then shal not he that smote him, be giltye of his bloude. But yf the sonne be gone vp vpon him, then hath he committed manslaughter, and he shal dye.

A thefe shal make restitution. Yf he haue no thinge, the let him be solde for his theft. But yf y<sup>e</sup> theft be founde by him alyue (from the ore vnto the Ass or shepe) then shal he restore double.

Yf a man hurte a felde or vynyarde, so y<sup>e</sup> he let his cattell do harme in another mans felde, the same shal make restitution euen of the best of his owne felde and vynyarde.

Yf a fyre come out, and take holde of y<sup>e</sup> thounes, so that the sheenes be consumed, or the corne that stonderth yet vpon the felde, he that kyndled the fyre shal make restitution.

Yf a man deluyne his neighbour money or vessels to kepe, and it be stollen from him out of his house: yf the thefe be founde, he shal restore double. But yf the thefe be not founde, then shal the good man of the house be brought before the Goddes (and shal sweare) that he hath not put his hande vnto his neighbours good.

Yf one accuse another in any manner of trespass, whether it be for ore, or Ass, or shepe, or rayment, what so euer it be that is lost: then shal both their causes come before the Goddes: Loke whom the Goddes condempne, the same shal restore double vnto his neighbour.

Yf a man deluyne vnto his neighbour an Ass, or ore or shepe, or any manner of cattell to kepe, and it dye, or be hurte, or dryuen awaye that no man se it, then shal there an oath of the LORDE go betwene them, that he hath not put his hande vnto his neighbours good: and the owner of y<sup>e</sup> good shal accepte it, so that the other shal not make it good. Yf a thefe steale it from him, then shal he make restitution vnto the owner thereof. But yf it be ranysched (of beastes) then shal he brynge record therof, and not make it good.

Yf a man borrowe ought of his neighbour, and it be hurte, or dye, so that the owner thereof be not by, then shal he make it good. But yf the owner thereof be by, then shal he not make it good, yf he hyred it for his money.

Yf a man begyle a mayde, that is not yet spoused, and lye with her, the same shal geue her hir dowry, and take her to his wife. But yf hir father refuse to geue her vnto him, the shal he weyethere the money, accordinge to the dowry of virgins.

Thou shalt not suffre a witch to lyne. Who so lyeth wth a beest, shal dye the death. Who so offereth to any goddes, saue vnto the LORDE onely, let him dye without redemption.

Thou shalt not vexe ner oppresse a straunger, for ye youre selues were strangers also in the londe of Egypte.

Ye shall trouble no wyddowe ner fatherlesse childe. Yf thou shalt trouble them, they shal crie vnto me, and I shal heare their crye: then shal my wrath ware whote, so y<sup>e</sup> I shal slei you with the swerde, and youre wyues shal be wedowes, and youre children fatherlesse.

Yf thou lende money vnto my people that is poore by the, thou shalt not be haue thyself as an vsurer vnto him, nether shalt thou oppresse him with vsury.

Yf thou take a garment of thy neighbour to pledge, thou shalt geue it him agayne before the Sonne go downe: for his rayment is his onely couerynge of his stynne: wher-in he slepeth. But yf he shall crie vnto me, I wyll heare him: for I am mercifull.

Thou shalt not speake euell of the Goddes, and the ruler of thy people shal thou not blasphem.

Thy drie and moist frutes shalt thou not kepe backe. Thy first sonne shalt thou geue vnto me. So shalt thou do also with thine oxen and shepe. Seven dayes let it be with the dame: vpon the eight dayes shalt thou geue it vnto me. Ye shal be holy people before me. Therefore shal ye eate no flesh, that is torne of beestes in the felde, but cast it vnto the dogges.

Deu. 17. a Thou shalt not take giftes: for giftes blind be euen them & are sharpe of sight, & wraist the righteous causes.

Re shall not oppresse a straunger, for ye knowe the hert of straungers, for so moch as ye youre selues also haue bene straungers in the londe of Egipte.

Exo. 23. a Sixe yeares shalt thou sowe thy londe, and gather in the frute therof: In the seuenth yeare shalt thou let it rest and lye still, that the poore amonge thy people maye eate therof: and lye what remayneth ouer, let & beestes of the felde eate it. Thus shalt thou do also with thy vynyarde and olyue trees.

Exo. 12. a Thre tymes in the yeare shalt thou kepe feast vnto me: namely the feast of vnleuened bried shalt thou kepe, that thou eate vnleuened bried seven dayes (like as I commaunded & in the tyme of & moneth Abib, for in the same wentest thou out of Egipte. But appeare not emptye before me. And & feast whan thou first reapest thy labours, & thou hast sownen vpon the felde. And the feast of ingathering in the ende of & yeare, whan thou hast gathered in thy laboures out of the felde. Thre tymes in the yeare shal euery male that thou hast, appeare before the LORDE the Gouvernoure.

Deu. 16. b Thou shalt not offre the bloude of my sacrifice with sowre dowe, and the fat of my feast shal not remayne till the mornynge.

The first of the first frutes of thy selde shalt thou brynge in to the house of the LORDE thy God. And shalt not seech a kydd, whyle it is in his mothers mylke.

Beholde, I sende an angell before the, to kepe the in the waye, and to brynge the vnto the place, that I haue prepared. Therefore be warre of his face, and herken vnto his voyce, and anger him not, for he shall not spare youre mysdoes, & my name is in him. But yf thou shalt herken vnto his voyce, and do all that I shal tell the, then wyl I be enemy vnto thy enemies, and aduersary vnto thy aduersaries.

Now whā myne angell goeth before the, & bryngeth the vnto & Amorites, Hethites, Phereites, Cananites, Henuites & Jebusites, & I shal haue destroyed them: then shalt thou not worshipec their goddes, ner serue them, nether shalt thou do as they do, but shalt ouerthrowe their goddes, & breake the downe. But & LORDE yo God shal ye serue, so shal he blesse thy bried & thy water, and I wyl remoue all sicknesse from the.

There shalbe nothynge baren ner vnfructfull in thy londe, and I wil fulfill the nombre of thy dayes. For I wil deluyne the indwellers of the londe in to thine hande, & thou shalt dryue them out before the. Thou shalt make no couenaunt with them ner with their goddes, but let the nor dwell in thy lande, that they make the not synne ageynst me. For yf thou serue their goddes, it wil surely be thy decaye.

The XXIII. Chapter.

And he sayde vnto Moses: Come vp vnto the LORDE then & Aaron, Nadab and Abihu, and the seuentie elders of Israel, & worshipec a farre of. But let Moses onely come nye vnto the LORDE, and let not them come nye, and let not the people also come vp with him.

Moses came and tolde the people all the wordes of the LORDE, & all the lawes. Then answered all the people with one voyce, and sayde: All & wordes that the LORDE hath sayde, wyl we do.

Then wrote Moses all the wordes of & LORDE, & gat him vp by tymes in the mornynge, & & buylded an altare vnder & mount with twolue pilers, accordinge to the twolue trybes of Israel: & sent twolue yongeme of the children of Israel, to offre burnt offerynges, and peace offerynges theron of bullockes vnto the LORDE.

And Moses toke the half parte of the bloude, and put it in a basen, the other half sprentled he vpon the altare: & toke the boke of & couenaunt, & cried in the eares of the people. And whan they had sayde: All & the LORDE hath sayde, wyl we do, & herken vnto him: Moses toke the bloude, & sprentled it vpon the people, & sayde: Beholde, this is & bloude of the couenaunt that the LORDE maketh with you vpon all these wordes.

Then wente Moses & Aaron, Nadab & Abihu, & the seuentie elders of Israel vp, & sawe & God of Israel. Under his fete it was like a stone worke of Saphyre, & as the fashion of heane, whā it is cleare, & he put not his hande vps the principall of Israel. And whan they had sene God, they ate & dronke.

And the LORDE sayde vnto Moses: Come vp vnto me vpon the mount, & remayne there, & I maye geue the tables of stone, & & lawe & commaundementes & I haue wrytten, which thou shalt teach the. Then Moses gat him vp & his mynister Josua, & wente vp into the mount of God, & sayde vnto the elders: Tary ye here, tyll we come to you agayne: beholde, Aaron and Hur are with you, yf eny mā haue a matter to do, let him brynge it vnto them.

Now whā Moses came vp in to & mount, a cloude conered & mount: & the glory of & LORDE abode vpon mount Sinai, & conered it with the cloude sixe dayes, & vpon the seuenth daye he called Moses out of & cloude. And & fashion of & glory of & LORDE was like a consuming fyre vpon the toppe of & mount in the sight of the children of Israel. And Moses wente in to the myddest of the cloude, and ascended vp in to the mount, and abode vpon the mount fourtye dayes & fourtye nightes.

The XXV. Chapter.

And & LORDE talked with Moses & sayde: Speake vnto & childre of Israel, & they geue me an heue offerynge, & take the some of eneryman, that hath a fre wyllynge hert thereto. And this is the heue-offerynge that ye shal take of them: Golde, syluer, brasse, yalowe sylke, scarlet, purple, whyte twyned sylke, goates hayre, reed stynges of rammes, doo stynges, fyre tre, oyle for lampes, spryces for the anoyntynge oyle, and for swete incense. Onix stones and set stones for the ouerboddy cote and for the brest-lappe.

And they shall make me a Sanctuary, that I maie dwell amonge them. Like as I shal shewe & a patrone of the habitation, and of all the ornamentes therof, so shall ye make it.

Make an Arke of fyre tre two cubytes & a half longe, a cubyte & a half brode, and a cubyte & an half hye: this shalt thou ouerleye with pure golde within and without, & make an hye vps it a crowne of golde rounde aboute, and cast foure rynges of golde, & put them in the foure corners of it, so that two rynges be vpon the one syde, and two vpon the other syde. And make stanes of fyre tre, and ouerlaye them with golde, and put them in the rynges alonge by the sydes of the Arke, to beare it withall: and they shal abyde styll in the rynges, & not be takē out. And in & Arke thou shalt laye the wytnesse, that I wyl geue the. Thou shalt make a Mercysate also of pure golde, two cubytes and a half longe, and a cubyte & a half brode.

And thou shalt make two Cherubyns of beaten golde vps both & endes of the Mercysate, & the one Cherub maye be vpon the one ende, & the other vpon the other ende, & so to be two Cherubyns vpon the endes of the Mercysate. And the Cherubyns shal spiede out their wynges ouer an hye, & they maye couer & Mercysate with their wynges: & & either of their faces maye be right ouer one agaynst another, and their faces shal loke vnto the Mercysate.

And thou shalt set & Mercysate aboue vpon the Arke. And in the Arke thou shalt laye the wytnesse, & I shal geue the. From & place wyl I testifie vnto &, and talke with the, namely, from & Mercysate (betwixte the two Cherubyns) which is vpon the Arke of wytnesse, of all that I wyl commaunde & vnto the children of Israel.

Thou shalt make a table also of fyre tre, two cubites longe, and one cubyte brode, and a cubyte and a half hye, and ouerlaye it with pure golde, and make a crowne of golde rounde aboute it, and an whope of an hāde briede hye, and a crowne of golde vnto & whope rounde aboute.

And vnto it thou shalt make foure rynges of golde, on the foure comers in the foure fete of it: harde vnder the whope shall 3 rynges be, to put in stanes and to beare the table wth all: and thou shalt make the stanes of fyre tre, & ouerlaye them with golde, & the table maye be boine therewith.

Thou shalt make also his disshes, spones, pottes, and flat peces of pure golde, to poure out and in. And vpon the table thou shalt allwaye set shewbred before me.

Moreover thou shalt make a candelsicke of fyne beaten golde, where vpon shall be the shaft with braunches, cuppes, knoppes, and floures. Sire braunches shall proceade out of the sydes of the candelsicke, out of euery syde thre braunches. Euery braunch shall haue thre cuppes, (like allmondes) thre knoppes, and thre floures. These shall be the fyre braunches of the candelsicke. But the shaft of the candelsicke it self shall haue foure cuppes, knoppes and floures, and allwaie a knoppe vnder two braunches, of the fyre that proceade out of the candelsicke. For both the knoppes and braunches shall proceade out of the shaft, all one pece of fyne beaten golde.

And thou shalt make seven lampes abo-uethere on, that they maye geue light one ouer agaynst another, and snoffers and out quenchers of pure golde. Out of an hundred pounde weight of pure golde shalt thou make it, with all this apparell. * And se that thou make it after the patrone that thou hast sene in the mount.

The XXVI. Chapter.

The habitacion shalt thou make of ten curteynes, of whyte twyned sylke, of yalowe sylke, of scarlet and purple. Cherubyns shalt thou make thereon of broderd worke. The length of one curteyne shall be eight and twenty cubytes & bredth foure cubytes: and all the ten shall be like, and shall be coupled fyue and fyue together, one vnto the other. And thou shalt make loupes of yalowe sylke by the edge of euery curteyne, where they shall be coupled together, that there maye be euery two and two fastened together vpon their edges: fiftie loupes vpon euery curteyne, that one maye fasten the other together. And thou shalt make fiftie buttons of golde, wherewith the curteynes maye be coupled together, one to the other, that it maye be one couerynge.

Thou shalt make a coueringe also of goats heyer for a tente ouer the habitacion, of eleuen curteynes. The length of one curtey-

ne shall be thirtie cubytes, the bredth foure cubytes. And all the eleuen shall be alike great: fyue shalt thou couple together by the selues, & fyue also by them selues, & thou mayest dubble the fyfte curteyne in the fore front of the Tabernacle. And vpon euery curteyne thou shalt make fiftie loupes vpon the edges of them, that they maye be coupled together by the edges. And fiftie buttons of brasie shalt thou make, and put the buttons in to the loupes, that the tent maye be coupled together, and be one couerynge.

As for the remnant of the curteynes of the tente, thou shalt let the halfe parte hang ouer behynde & ette, vpon both the sydes a cubyte longe, & the residue maye be vpon the sydes of the Tabernacle, & couer it vpon both the sydes.

Besides this couerynge thou shalt make a couerynge of reed steynes of rammes. And aboue this a coueringe of doo skynnes.

Thou shalt make bordes also for the habitacion, of fyre tre, which shall stonde: one borde shall be ten cubytes longe, & a cubyte & a half brode. Two fete shall one borde haue, that one maye be set by the other.

Thus shalt thou make all the bordes for & Tabernacle: Twentye of them shall stonde toward the south, which shall haue fourtye sockettes of syluer vnder them, two sockettes vnder euery borde for his two fete.

Likewyse vpon the other syde toward the north there shall stonde twentye bordes also, and fourtye sockettes of syluer, two sockettes vnder euery borde.

But behynde the habitacion toward the west thou shalt make fyre bordes, and two bordes mo for the two comers of the habitacion, that euery one of them both maye be coupled from vnder vp with his corner borde, and aboue vpon the heade to come euenuen together with a clape: so that there be eight bordes with their syluer sockettes, wher of there shall be sixtene, two vnder euery borde.

And thou shalt make barres of fyre tre, fyue for the bordes vpon the one syde of the Tabernacle, and fyue for the bordes vpon the other syde of the Tabernacle, and fyue for the bordes behynde & Tabernacle toward the west. And the barres shalt thou shute thorow & myddest of the bordes, and fasten all together from & one corner to & other. And thou shalt ouerlaye the bordes wth golde, and make their rynges of golde, that the barres maye be put therein. And the barres shalt thou ouerlaye with golde, and so shalt thou set vp the Tabernacle, according to & fashion as thou hast sene vpon & mount.

And thou shalt make a vayle of yalowe sylke, scarlet, purple, & whyte twyned sylke. And Cherubyns shalt thou make thereon of broderd worke, and shalt hang it vpon foure pilers of fyre tre which are ouerlayed with golde, hauynge knoppes of golde, and foure sockettes of syluer. And the vayle shalt thou fasten with buttons, and set the Arke of wytnesse within the vayle, that it maye be vnto you a difference betwixte the holy and the Most holy.

And thou shalt set the Mercyseate vpon the Arke of wytnesse in the Most holy. But set the table without the vayle, and the candelsicke ouer agaynst & table vpon & south syde of the Tabernacle, that the table maie stonde on the north syde.

And in the dore of the Tabernacle thou shalt make an hanginge, of yalowe sylke, purple, scarlet and whyte twyned sylke. And for the same hanginge thou shalt make fyue pilers of fyre tre, ouerlayed with golde, with knoppes of golde. And shalt cast fyue sockettes of brasie for them.

The XXVII. Chapter.

Ald thou shalt make an altare of fyre tre, fyue cubytes longe & brode, & it maye be foure square, & thre cubytes hye: thou shalt make hornes vpon the foure comers of it, & shalt ouer laye it with brasie. Make also pannes, shouels, basens, fleshokes, cole pannes. All & apparell therof shalt thou make of brasie. Thou shalt make a gredyon also like a nett, of brasie, & foure brasen rynges vpon the foure comers of it: from vnder vp aboute the altare shalt thou make it, so that the gredyon reach vnto & myddest of the altare. Thou shalt make stanes also for the altare, of fyre tre, ouer layed with golde, and shalt put the stanes in the rynges, that the stanes maye be on both the sydes of & altare, to beare it withall. And holowe with bordes shalt thou make it, like as it is shewed the in the mount.

And to & habitacion thou shalt make a courte, an hanginge of whyte twyned sylke: vpon & one syde an C. cubytes longe toward the south, & xx. pilers vpon xx. brasen sockettes, & the knoppes & their whopes of syluer. Likewyse vpon & north syde there shall be an hanginge of an C. cubytes longe, twenty pilers vpon twenty brasen sockettes, and their knoppes & their whopes of syluer.

But vpon the west syde the bredth of & courte shall haue an hanginge of fiftie cubi-tes longe, & ten pilers vpon ten sockettes. Vpon the east syde also shall the bredth of the courte haue fiftie cubytes, so that the hanginge haue vpon one syde fyftene cubytes, and thre pilers vpon thre sockettes: And vpon & other syde fyftene cubytes also, and thre pilers vpon thre sockettes.

And in the courte gate there shall be an hanginge twenty cubytes brode, of yalowe sylke, scarlet, purple, and whyte twyned sylke, wrought with needle worke, and foure pilers vpon their foure sockettes. All the pilers rounde aboute the courte shall haue syluer whopes, & syluer knoppes, & sockettes of brasie. And the length of & courte shall be an hundred cubytes, the bredth fiftie cubytes, the heygth fyue cubytes, of whyte twyned sylke and & sockettes therof shall be of brasie. All & vessels also of the habitacion to all maner seruyce, and all the nales of it, and all the nales of the courte shall be of brasie.

Commaunde & children of Israel, & they bringe vnto & the most cleare & pure oyle olue beaten, to geue lighte, & it maye allwaye be put in the lāpes in the Tabernacle of wytnesse without the vayle, that hangeth before the wytnesse. And Aarō and his sonnes shall dresse it from the euerynge vntyll & morninge before the LORDE. This shall be vnto you a perpetuall custome for youre posterities amonge the children of Israel.

The XXVIII. Chapter.

Ald thou shalt take vnto the Aaron thy brother and his sonnes fro amonge the children of Israel, that he maye be my priest: namely Aaron & his sonnes Nadab, Abihu, Eleazar and Jehamar: & thou shalt make holy clothes for Aarō & his brother, honorable and glorious, & shalt speake vnto all them that are wise of hert, whom I haue fylled with the spere of wysdome, that they make garmentes to Aaron for his consecration, that he maye be my priest.

These are & garmentes which they shall make: a breslapp, an ouerboddy cote, a tunicle, an albe, a myter and a girdell. Thus shalt they make holy garmentes for & brother Aarō and his sonnes, that he maye be my priest. They shall take thereto golde, yalowe sylke, scarlet, purple, and whyte sylke.

The ouerboddy cote shall they make of golde, yalowe sylke, scarlet, purple, & whyte twyned sylke of broderd worke, that it maye be fastened together vpon both the sydes by & edges therof. And his gyrdell vpon it shall be of & same woman shippe & stuff, even of golde yalowe sylke, scarlet, purple, & whyte twyned syllke. And thou shalt take two Onix stones, and grave in them the names of the children of Israel. Syre names vpon the one stone, and the sixe other names vpon the other stone accordinge to the order of their age. This shalt thou do by the stonegrauers that graue signettes, so that 3 stones with the names of the children of Israel to be set rounde aboute with golde: and thou shalt put them vpon the two shulders of the ouerbody cote, that that they maye be stones of remembraunce for the children of Israel, that Aaron maye beare their names vpon both his shulders before the LORDE for a remembraunce.

C Thou shalt make bores of golde also, and two wrethe cheynes of pure golde, and shalt fasten them vnto the bores.

The breslapppe of iudgment shalt thou make of broderd worke, euen after the worke of the ouerbody cote: of golde, yalow sylke, scarlet, purple, and whyte twyned sylke. Soure square shall it be and dubble, an hande bredth longe, and an hande bredth brode. And thou shalt fill it with soure rowes full of stones. Let the first rowe be a Sardis, a Topas, and a Smaragde. The seconde: a Ruby, a Saphyre, and a Dyanionde. The thirde: a Ligurius, an Achatt, and an Amethyst. The fourth: a Turcas, an Onix, and a Jaspis. In golde shall they be sett in all the rowes, and shall stonde accordinge to 3 twolue names of the children of Israel, grauen of the stonegrauers, euery one with his name accordinge to the twolue trybes.

D And vpon the breslapppe thou shalt make wrethen cheynes by 3 corners of pure golde, and two golde rynges, so, that thou faste the same two rynges vnto two edges of the breslapppe, and put the two wrethe cheynes of golde in the same two rynges, that are in two edges of the breslapppe. But the two endes of 3 two wrethen cheynes shalt thou fasten in the two bores vpon the ouerbody cote one ouer agaynst another.

And thou shalt make two other rynges of golde, and fasten them vnto 3 other two edges of 3 breslapppe, namely to 3 borders therof, wherwith it maye hange on the insyde vpon the ouerbody cote. And yet shalt thou make two rynges of golde, and fasten them vpon the two edges beneth to the ouerbody cote, vpon the outsyde one ouer agaynst another, where the ouerbody cote is ynneth together. And the breslapppe shall be fastened by his rynges vnto the rynges of the ouerbody cote with a yalow lace, that is maye lye close vpon the ouerbody cote, and that the breslapppe be not losed from the ouerbody cote.

Thus shall Aaron beare the names of the children of Israel in 3 breslapppe of indgment vpon his hert, whan he goeth into the Sanctuary, for a remembraunce before the LORDE allwaye. And in the breslapppe of indgment thou shalt put light and perfectnesse, that they be vpon Aarons hert, whan he goeth in before the LORDE, and that he maye beare the indgment of the children of Israel vpon his hert before the LORDE allwaye.

Thou shalt make the tuncle also to the ouerbody cote all of yalow sylke, and aboue in the myddest there shall be an hole, and a bonde folden together rounde aboute the hole, that it rente not. And beneth vpon the hemme thou shalt make pomgranates of yalow sylke, scarlet, purple rounde aboute, and belles of golde betwixte the same rounde aboute: that there be euer a golden bell and a pomgranate, a golden bell and a pomgranate rounde aboute the hemme of the same tuncle. And Aaron shall haue it vpon him whan he mynistrereth, that the soude therof maye be herde, whan he goeth out and in at the Sanctuary before the LORDE, that he dye not.

Thou shalt make a foreheade plate also of pure golde, and graue therein (after the workmanshipe of the stone graver) the holy names of the LORDE, 7 with a yalow lace shalt thou fasten it vnto the fore front of the myter vpon Aarons fore heade, 7 Aaron maie so beare 3 synne of the holy thinges, which the childre of Israel halowe in all their gistes and Sanctuary. And it shall be allwaye vpon his fore heade, that he maye reconcyle them before the LORDE.

Thou shalt make an albe also of whyte sylke, and a myter of whyte sylke, and a gyrdle of needleworke.

And for Aarons sonnes thou shalt make cotes, gyrdles and bonetes, honorable and glorious, and shalt put them vpon thy brother Aaron and his sonnes, and shalt anoynte them, and fyll their handes, and consecrate them, that they maye be my prestes. And thou shalt make them lymmen breeches, to couer the flesh of their premities, from the loynes vnto the thyes. And Aaron and his sonnes shall haue them on, whan they go in to the Tabernacle of wytnesse, or go vnto the altare to mynister in the holy, that they beare not their synne, and dye. This shalbe a perpetual custome for him, and his sede after him.

The XXIX. Chapter.

A This is it also, that thou shalt do vnto them, that they maye be consecrated prestes vnto me. Take a yonge bullocke, and two rammes without blemish, vneleuended bled, 7 vneleuended cakes myrte w oyle, and wafers of swete bled tempered w oyle: Of wheate flour shalt thou make them all, and put them in a maunde, 7 brynge them in the maunde, with the bullocke 7 two rammes.

And thou shalt brynge Aaron 7 his sonnes vnto the dore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse, 7 wash them w water, 7 take the garments, and put vpon Aaron the albe and the tuncle, 7 the ouerbody cote, 7 the breslapppe to 3 ouerbody cote, 7 shalt gyrd him on the out syde vpon the ouerbody cote, and set the myter vpon his heade, and the holy crowne vpon the myter: and shalt take the anoyntinge oyle, and poure it vpon his heade, and anoynte him.

B Thou shalt brynge forth his sonnes also, 7 put the albes vpon them, and gyrd both Aaron 7 them with gyrdles, 7 set the bonetes vpon their heades, that they maye haue the presthode for a perpetuall custome.

And thou shalt fyll the hâdes of Aaron and his sonnes, and brynge forth the bullocke before the Tabernacle of wytnesse. And Aaron and his sonnes shall laye their hâdes vpon the heade of the bullocke, and thou shalt slei the bullocke before the LORDE, at the dore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse, and shalt take of his bloude, and put it vpon the homes of the altare with thy synger, and poure all the other bloude vpon the botome of the altare.

And thou shalt take all the fat that cometh the bowels and the nett vpon the leuer, and the two kydneyes with the fat that is aboute them, and burne them vpon the altare. But the bullockes flesh, synne and donge, shalt thou burne with fyre without the hoost: for it is a synneofferynge.

C The one ramme shalt thou take also, and Aaron with his sonnes shall laye their handes vpon his heade. Then shalt thou slei him, and take of his bloude, and sprenkle it vpon the altare rounde aboute. But the ramme shalt thou denyde in peces, and wash his bowels and his legges, and laye them vpon the peces and the heade, and burne the whole ramme vpon the altare: for it is a burnt offerynge, and a swete sauoure of the sacrifice vnto the LORDE.

As for the other ramme, thou shalt take him, and Aaron with his sonnes shall laye their handes vpon his heade, and thou shalt slei him, and take of his bloude, and put it vpon the cyppe of the right eare of Aaron and his sonnes, and vpon 3 thombe of their right handes, and vpon the greate too of their right fete, and thou shalt sprenkle the bloude vpon the altare rounde aboute, and shalt take of the bloude vpon the altare and the anoyntinge oyle, and sprenkle it vpon Aaron and his vestymentes, vpon his ionnes and their vestymentes. So shall he and his clothes, his sonnes and their clothes be consecrated.

Then shalt thou take the fat of the ramme, the rompe, and the fatt that couereth 3 bowels, the net vpon the leuer, and the two kydneyes with the fatt that is aboute them, and the right shulder (for it is a ramme of consecracion) and a symnel of bled, and an oyled cake, and a wafer out of the maunde of the vneleuended bled: that stondest before 3 LORDE, and put all in to the handes of Aaron and of his sonnes, and waue it vnto the LORDE. The take it out of their handes, and burne it vpon the altare for a burnt offeringe, to be a swete sauoure vnto 3 LORDE. For it is the LORDES sacrifice.

And thou shalt take the brest of the ramme of Aarons consecracio, 7 shalt waue it before 3 LORDE, 3 shall be his parte. And thus shalt thou halowe 3 Wauebrest 7 3 Heue-shulder (3 are wauned 7 heaued) of 3 ramme of the consecracion of Aaron 7 his sonnes: And it shall be a perpetuall custome for Aaron and his sonnes of 3 children of Israel: for it is an heue offrynge, and the heue offrynge shall be the LORDES dewtye of the childre of Israel, in their deade offrynges and heue offrynges which they do vnto the LORDE.

And the holy garments of Aaron shall his sonnes haue after him, that they maie be anoynted therein, 7 3 their handes maye be fylled. Of which of his sonnes shall be prest in his steade, the same shall put them on sene dayes, that he maye go in to the Tabernacle of wytnesse, to mynister in the Sanctuary.

But the ramme of consecracion shalt thou take, and seeth his flesh in an holy place. And Aaron with his sonnes shall eate the flesh of the same ramme with the bled in the maunde, at the dore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse: for there is an attene-ment made therewith, to fyll their handes, that they maye be consecrated. shal not eate therof, for it is holy.

But yf eny of the flesh of the consecracion, and of the bred remaine vntyll the mornyng, thou shalt burne it with fyre, and not let it be eaten, for it is holy. And thus shalt thou do with Aaron and his sonnes all that I haue commaunded. Seven dayes shalt thou fill their handes, and offer a bullocke daylie for a synne offeringe, because of them
I shalbe reconciled. And thou shalt halowe the altare, whan thou reconcylest it: and shalt anoynte it, that it maye be consecrated. Seuen dayes shalt thou reconcyle the altare, and consecrate it, that it maye be an altare of the Most holy. Who so wyll touch the altare, must be consecrated.

1. Par. 17.6

And this shalt thou do with the altare:
Two lambes of one yeare olde shalt thou offer every daye vpon it: the one lambe in the mornynge, and the other at euen. And to one lambe a tenth deale of wheate floure, me-gled with I fourth parte of an Eyn of beaten oyle, and I fourth parte of an Eyn of wine for a drynt offeringe. With the other lambe at euen shalt thou do like as with I mea-te offeringe and drynt offeringe in the mornyng, for a swete sauoure of sacrifice vnto I LORDE. This is the daylie burnt offeringe amonge youre posterities, at the doore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse before the LORDE,
where I will proteste vnto you, and talke with the. There wil I proteste vnto the children of Israel, and be sanctified in my glory, and wyth hallowe the Tabernacle of wytnes and the altare, and consecrate Aaron and his sonnes, to be my prestes. And I wil dwell amonge the children of Israel, and wyll be their God: so I they shal knowe, how that I am the LORDE their God, which brought them out of the londe of Egypte, that I might dwell amonge them, euen I the LORDE their God.

The XXX. Chapter.

Thou shalt make also an incense alta-re to burne incense, of fyue tre, a cubyte longe and brode, eauen foure squa-red, and two cubytes hye with his hornes, and shalt overlaye it with pure golde, the rose and the walles of it rounde aboute, and the hor-nes therof, and a crowne of golde shalt thou make rounde aboute it, and two golde rynges on ether syde vnder the crowne, that the re mai be stauess put therin, to beare it with all.

The stauess shalt thou make of fyue tre
also, and onerlaye the with golde: and shalt set it before the vyle, that hangeth before the Arke of wytnesse, and before the Mercy seate I is vpon the wytnesse, from whence I wyl proteste vnto the. And Aaron shalt burne swete incense thereon every mornynge, wha-he dresseth the lampes. In like maner whan he lighteth the lampes at euen, he shall burne soch incense also. This shal be the daylie incense before the LORDE amonge youre

posterities.

Ye shall put no straunge incense therein, and offer no burnt offeringe, ner meat offeringe, nether drynt offeringe thereon. And vpon I hornes of it shalt Aaron reconcyle once in a yeare, with I bloude of the synne offeringe,
which they shall offer that are reconcyled.
This shal be done amonge youre posterities
for this is the most holy vnto the LORDE.

And the LORDE spake vnto Moses, and sayde: Whan thou nombrest the heades of the children of Israel, then shal every one ge-ue vnto the LORDE the reconcylinge of his soule, I there happē not a plague vnto them, whan they are nombred. Every one that is tolde in the nombre, shall geue half a Sycke, after the Sycke of the Sanctuary: one Sy-cke is worth twentye Geras. This half Sy-cke shal be I LORDES heue offeringe. Who so is in the nombre from twenty yeare and aboue, shal geue this heue offeringe vnto I LORDE. The riche shal not geue more, and the poore shal not geue lesse in the half Sy-cke, which is geuen vnto the LORDE to be an heue offeringe for the reconcylinge of their soules.

And this money of reconcylinge shalt thou take of the children of Israel, and put it to the Gods seruyce of the Tabernacle of wytnes, that it maye be a remembraunce vnto the children of Israel before the LORDE, that he maye let himself be reconcyled ouer their soules.

And the LORDE spake vnto Moses, and sayde: Thou shalt make a brasen laver also with a fote of brasse to wash, and shalt set it betwixte the Tabernacle of wytnesse and I altare, and put water therein, that Aaron and his sonnes maye wash their handes and fete therout, whan they go in to the Tabernacle of wytnesse, or to the altare, to myn-istre vnto the LORDE with offeringe incense, I they dye not. This shalbe a perpetuall custome for him and his seide amonge their posterities.

And I LORDE spake vnto Moses, and sayde: Take vnto the spyces of the best, fyue hundred Syckes of Myrr, and of Cynamis half so much, euen two hundred and fyfte,

and of Balsam two hundred and fyfte,
and of Cassia fyue hundred (after the Sy-cke of the Sanctuary) and an Eyn of oyle olyue, and make an holy anoyntinge oyle, after the craft of the Apotecary.

D And there I shalt thou anoynte the Tabernacle of wytnesse, and the Arke of wytnes,
the table with all his apparell, I candilstick-
e with his apparell, the altare of incense, the altare of burnt offeringes with all his apparell, and the laver with his fote: and thus shalt thou consecrate them, that they maye be most holy: for who so wil touch the, must be consecrated. Thou shalt anoynte Aaron also, and his sonnes, and consecrate them to be my prestes.

And thou shalt speake vnto the childre of Israel, and saye: This oyle shalbe an holy oyntment vnto me amonge ye posterities:
It shal not be poured vpon mans body, nether shalt thou make eny soch like it, for it is holy: therfore shal it be holy vnto you. Who so maketh eny soch like, or geueth a straüger therof, the same shalbe roted out from amon-ge his people.

And the LORDE sayde vnto Moses: Take vnto the spyces: Balme, Stacte, Galban, and pure franscencense, of one as moch as of another, and make incense therof (after the craft of the Apotecary) myngled together, that it maye be pure and holy. And thou shalt beate it to poulder, and shalt put of the same before the wytnesse in the Tabernacle of wytnesse, from whence I wyl proteste vnto the, but it shalbe holy vnto the for the LORDE. Who so maketh soch to cense therwith, shalbe roted out from amon-
ge his people.

The XXXI. Chapter.

And the LORDE spake vnto Moses, and sayde: I haue called by name Bezaleel the sonne of Uri I sonne of Iur, of I trybe of Iuda, and haue fylled him with I spere of God, with wysdome and vndersto-dyng and knowlege, and to worke with all maner of conynge worke, in golde, syluer, brasse, to graue stones conyngly, and to set them, to carue well in tymbre, and to make all maner worke. And beholde, I haue geuen him Ahaliab the sonne of Ahisamach of the trybe of Dan, to be his companion, and haue geuen wysdome in to the hertes of all that are wyse, that they shal make all that I haue commaunded the: the Tabernacle of wytnesse, the Arke of wytnesse, the Mercyseate thereon, and all the ornamentes of I Tabernacle: the table and his apparell, the candilstick and all his apparell, the altare

and the garmentes of his sonnes to serue like prestes, the anoyntinge oyle, and the incense of spyces for I Sanctuary. All that I haue commaunded the, shal they make.

And the LORDE talked vnto Moses, and sayde: Speake vnto the children of Israel, and saye: Kepe my Sabbath, for it is a token betwene me and you, and youre poste-rities, that ye maye knowe, how that I am the LORDE which haloweth you: therfore
kepe my Sabbath, for it shalbe holy vnto
you. Who so vnhaloweth it, shal dye the death: for who so doth eny worke therein, shalbe roted out from amonge his people.

Therfore shal the children of Israel kepe

sixe dayes made the LORDE heauē and earth, but vpon I seventh daye he rested, and was refreshed.

But the LORD E sayde vnto Moses: Go get the downe, for thy people whom thou broughtest out of the lande of Egypte, haue marred all: they are soone gone out of the waie, which I commaunded them. They haue made them a molten calfe, and haue worshipped it, z offred vnto it, z sayde: These are thy goddes (O Israel) that brought the out of the lande of Egypte.

And the LORD E sayde vnto Moses: I see, that it is a styffnecked people, and now suffre me, that my wrath maye waxe whote ouer them, z that I maye consume them, so wil I make a greates people of the.

But Moses besought the LORD E his God, z sayde: Oh LORD E, wherfore wil thy wrath waxe whote ouer thy people, whom thou hast brought out of the lande of Egypte wth greates power z a mightie hande? Wherfore shulde the Egyptians speake, z saye: He hath brought the for their myschefe, to slaye them in the mountaynes, and to destroye the utterly from the earth? Turne the from the fearcenesse of y<sup>e</sup> wrath, z be gracious ouer the wickednesse of thy people. Remembre thy seruantes Abraham, Isaac, and Israel, unto wh<sup>o</sup> thou swarest by thyne owne self, and saydest: I wil multiplie youre sede as the starres of heauen, and all the lande that I haue promysed you, wil I geue vnto youre sede, z they shall inheret it for euer. Thus the LORD E repented of the euell, which he sayde he wolde do vnto his people.

Moses turned him, z wente downe from the mount, and in his hande he had the two tables of wytnesse, which were wyrtte vpon both the sydes, and were Gods worke, z the wyrtynge was the wyrtynge of God therein. Now whan Josua herde the noyse of y<sup>e</sup> people, as they shouted, he sayde vnto Moses: This is a noyse of warre in the hoost. He answered: It is not a noyse of them that haue the victory, and of them that haue the worse, but I heare a noyse of synginge at a daunse.

Whan he came nye vnto the hoost, and sawe the calfe, and the daunsynge, he was moued with wrath, and cast the tables out of his hande, and brake them beneth the mount. And he toke the calfe that they had made, and brent it with fyre, and stamped it vnto poulder, and strowed it in the water, z gaue it vnto the children of Israel to drynke, z sayde vnto Aaron: What dyd this people vnto the, that thou hast brought so greates synne vpon them?

Aaron sayde: Let not the wrath of my lord waxe scarce: thou knowest, that this is a wicked people. They sayde vnto me: Make vs goddes to go before vs, for we can not tell what is become of this man Moses, y<sup>e</sup> brought vs out of the lande of Egypte. I sayde vnto them: Who so hath golde, let him plucke it of, and geue it me: and I cast it in the fyre, therof came this calfe.

Now whan Moses sawe, that the people were naked (for Aaron, whan he set them vp, made them naked to their shame) he wete in to the gate of the hoost, and sayde: who so belongeth vnto the LORD E, let him come hither vnto me. Then all the children of Levi gathered them selues vnto him, and he sayde vnto them: Thus sayeth the LORD E the God of Israel: Every man put his swerde by his syde, and go thorow in and out from one gate to another in the hoost, and slaye every man his brother, frende, z neighbour.

The children of Levi dyd, as Moses sayde vnto them. And there fell of the people the same daye thre thousande men. The sayde Moses: Consecrate youre handes this daie vnto the LORD E, every man vpon his sonne and brother, that the prayse maye be geuen ouer you this daye.

On the morow Moses sayde vnto the people: Ye haue done a greates synne. Now I wil go vp vnto the LORD E, yf peradventure I maye make an attonement for youre synnes.

Now whan Moses came agayne vnto y<sup>e</sup> LORD E, he saide: Oh this people haue done a greates synne, z haue made them goddes of golde. Now for geue them their synne: yf not, the wyl wpe me out of y<sup>e</sup> booke, that thou hast wyrtten. The LORD E sayde vnto Moses: What? Him that synneth against me, wil I wpe out of my booke. So thou y maye therfore, and brynge y<sup>e</sup> people thither as I haue sayde vnto the, Beholde, myne angell shall go before the. But in the daye of my visitacion I wyl vyset their synnes vpon them. So the LORD E plagued the people, because they made y<sup>e</sup> calfe which Aaron made.

The XXXIII. Chapter.

The LORD E sayde vnto Moses: Go, departe hence, thou and the people, whom thou hast brought out of the lande of Egypte, vnto y<sup>e</sup> lande that I swaie vnto Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, and sayde: vnto y<sup>e</sup> sede wil I geue it, and I wyl sende an angell before the (and cast out the Cananites, Amorites, Hethites, Phereites, Hemitas and Jebusites) in to the lande that floweth with mylke and hony, for I wyl not go vp with the: for thou art an hardnecked people, I might consume the by the waye. Whan the people herde this euell tydinges, they sorowed, and no man put on his best rayment.

B And y<sup>e</sup> LORD E sayde vnto Moses: Speake vnto the children of Israel: Ye are a styffnecked people, I must once come sodenly vpon the, and make an ende of the. And now put of thy goodly aray from the, y<sup>e</sup> I maie knowe what to do vnto the. So the children of Israel laied their goodly aray from the, euen before the mount Horeb.

Moses toke the Tabernacle, z pitched it without asatte of from y<sup>e</sup> hoost, and called it the Tabernacle of wytnesse. And who so euer wolde aske any question at the LORD E, wente out vnto the Tabernacle of wytnesse before the hoost. And whan Moses wente out vnto the Tabernacle, all the people rose vp, and stode euey one in his tent dore, and looked after Moses, tyll he was gone in to the Tabernacle. And whan Moses entred in to the Tabernacle, the cloudy pyler came downe, and stode in the dore of the Tabernacle, and he talked with Moses. And all the people sawe the cloudy piler stonde in the dore of the Tabernacle, and rose vp, and worshiped, euey one in his tent dore.

C And the LORD E spake vnto Moses face to face, as a man speaketh vnto his frende. And whan he turned agayne to the hoost, y<sup>e</sup> yonge mā Josua y<sup>e</sup> sonne of Nun his minister, departed not out of y<sup>e</sup> Tabernacle. And Moses sayde vnto the LORD E: Beholde, thou saydest vnto me: Brynge y<sup>e</sup> people vp, and lettest me not knowe, whom thou wilt sende to me, z yet hast thou sayde: I knowe the by name, and thou hast founde grace in my sight. Let me knowe thy waye therfore, wherby I maye be certified, y<sup>e</sup> I fynde grace in thy sight: And consyde yet, that this people is thy people.

He sayde: My presence shal go before the, there with wyl I lede the. But he sayde vnto him: If thy presence go not, then cary vs not vp from hence: for wherby shal it be knowne, y<sup>e</sup> I and thy people haue founde fauoure in thy sight, but in y<sup>e</sup> thou goest with vs: that I z thy people maye haue some premyence before all people that are vpon the face of the earth. The LORD E sayde vnto Moses: I wyl do this also that thou hast sayde, for thou hast founde grace in my sight, and I knowe the by name.

He sayde: Oh let methese thy glory. And he sayde: I wyl cause all my good go ouer be fore thy face, and wyl let the name of y<sup>e</sup> LORD E be called vpon before the. And I shewe mercy, to whom I shewe mercy: and haue compassion, on whom I haue compassion. And he sayde morouer: Thou mayest not se my face, for there shall no mā lyue, y<sup>e</sup> seyth me. And y<sup>e</sup> LORD E sayde farthermore: beholde, there is a place by me, there shalt thou stode vpon the rocke. Now whan my glory goeth forth, I wil put y<sup>e</sup> in a clyfte of y<sup>e</sup> rocke, z my hande shal holde styll vpo the, tyll I be passed by. And whan I take awaye myne hande from the, thou shalt se my back partes, but my face shal not be sene.

And the LORD E sayde vnto Moses: Hewe the two tables of stone, like as y<sup>e</sup> first were, that I maye wyte in them the wordes, y<sup>e</sup> were in the first tables, which thou brakest: and be ready in the mornynge, that thou mayest come vpearly vnto mount Sinai, and stonde me vpon the toppe of the mount. And let no man come vp with the, that there be no man sene thorow out all y<sup>e</sup> mount: and let nether shepe ner oxen fede before the mount.

Deu. 10. a

And Moses hewed two tables of stone, like as the first were, z arose early in the mornynge, z wente vp vnto mount Sinai, as y<sup>e</sup> LORD E comaunded him, z toke y<sup>e</sup> two tables of stone in his hande. The came the LORD E downe in a cloude. And there he stepte vnto him, z called vpo y<sup>e</sup> name of y<sup>e</sup> LORD E. And whan y<sup>e</sup> LORD E passed by before his face, he cryed: LORD E LORD E, God, mercifull z gracious, z longe sufferinge, and of greates mercy, and trouth, thou that kepest mercy in store for thousandes, and forguest wickednes, trespass and synne (before whom there is

B And Moses bowed him self downe vnto the earth, and worshiped him, and saide: LORDE, yf I haue founde grace in thy sight, the let the LORDE go with vs (for it is an hard necked people) that thou mayest haue mercy vpon oure wickednesses and synnes, and let vs be thyne inheritaunce.

And he sayde: Beholde, I make a coneuant before all y people, z wil do wonders, soch as haue not bene done in all londes, and amonge all people. And all y people amoge whom thou art, shal se y worke of y LORDE, for a terryble thinge shal it be, y I wyl do w the. Kepe that I commaunde y this daye.

For y LORDE is called gelous, because he is a gelous God: lest (yf thou make any agreement with the indwellers of the londe, and whan they go a whoringe after their goddes, and do sacrifice vnto their goddes) they call y, and thou eate of their sacrifice, and lest thou take of their daughters vnto thy somes to wyues, and the same go a whoringe after their goddes, z make thy somes go a whoringe after their goddes also.

All y first breaketh the Matrix, is myne, soch as shalbe male amoge y catell, y breaketh the Matrix, whether it be ore or shepe. But the first of thyne Asses shalt thou bye out w a shepe: yf thou rede me it not, then breake his necke. All the first borne of thy children shalt thou redeme.

Ex. 20. b
23. b. 35. a

Sixe dayes shalt thou labo, vpon y seuen daye shalt thou rest both from plowinge and reapyng. The feast of weekes shalt thou kepe with the firstlinges of the wheate harvest: and the feast of yngaderyng at y yeares ende. Thyse in a yeare shal all y men children appeare before the Souernour, euen the LORDE and God of Israel.

Whan I shal cast out the Hethen before the, z enlarge y borders, there shal no man desyre thy lode: for so moch as thou goest vpon the tymes in the yeare, to appeare before y LORDE thy God. Thou shalt not offer the bloude of my sacrifice w leued bred. And the offeringe of the Easterfeast shal not remayne ouer night vntill the mornynge. The firstlinges of y first frutes of thy lode shalt thou bryng in to the house of the LORDE thy God. Thou shalt not seith a kydd, why le it is yet in his mothers mylke.

And the LORDE saide vnto Moses: write these wordes, for because of these wordes haue I made a coneuant with the z with Israel. And he was there with the LORDE fourtye dayes and fourtye nightes, and ate no bred, and dranke no water. And he wrote in the tables the wordes of the coneuant, euen ten verses.

Now whā Moses came downe fro mount Sinai, he had the two tables of wytnesse in his hande, z wylt not y the slymme of his face shyned, because he had talked with him. And whā Aaron z all the childre of Israel sawe y the slymme of his face shyned, they were afrayed to come nye him. The Moses called them. And they returned vnto him, both Aaron z all the chiefe of the cōgregation. And he talked w them. Afterwarde came all the children of Israel vnto him. And he comaunded the, all y the LORDE had sayde vnto him vpon the mount Sinai. Now whan he had made an ende of talkynge w the, he put a conerynge vpo his face. And whan he wete in before y LORDE to talke w him, he toke y conerynge of, till he wete out agayne. And whan he came forth z spake w the childre of Israel what was comaunded him, the childre of Israel sawe his face, how y the slymme of his face shyned: so he put the conerynge vpo his face agayne, tyll he wente in agayne to talke with him.

The XXXV. Chapter.

Moses gathered all the cōgregation of y childre of Israel together, and sayde vnto them: This is it, y the LORDE hath commaunded you to do: Sixe dayes shall ye worke, but the seuenth daye shall ye kepe holy: a Sabbath of the LORDES rest. Who so euer doeth eny worke therein, shall dye. Ye shal kyndle no fyre vpon the Sabbath daye in all youre dwellynge.

And Moses sayde vnto y whole congregation of the children of Israel: This is it, that the LORDE hath commaunded: Geue from amonge you heue offeringes vnto y LORDE, so that every one bryng the LORDES heue offeringe with a fre hert: golde, syluer, brasse, yalow sylke, scarlet, purple, whyte sylke, and goates hayre, reed slymme of rammes, doo slymme, and fyre tre, oyle for the lampes, and spyces for the andyntinge oyle and for swete incense. Onix stones, and stones to be set in y ouerbody core, and for the brestlappes.

B And who so is wyse of hert amonge you, let him come, z make what the LORDE hath commaunded: namely, the habitacion with the tent z conerynge therof, the rynges, borders, barres, pilers z solettes: The Arke w the stauess therof, the Mercysate z the waylethe table with his stauess z all his apparell: z the shewbied: The cādilstick of light and his apparell, and his lampes, z the oyle for the lightes: The altare of incense with his stauess: The anoyntyng oyle and spyces for incense: The hangynge before y Tabernacle doire: The alter of burnt offeringes with his brassen gredyon, stauess and all his apparell: The laner with his fote: The hangynge of the court, with the pilers and solettes therof, z the hangynge of the court doire: The nales of the habitacion and of y court with their coardess: The mynistringe garments for the seruyce in the holy, y holy vestimentes of Aaron the prest w the vestimentes of his sonnes for y prestes office.

C Then wente all the congregacion of the childre of Israel out fro Moses, z every one brought the gift of his hert: z all that they wolde of fre will, the same brought they for an heue offeringe vnto the LORDE for y worke of the Tabernacle of wytnesse, z for all the seruyce therof, z for the holy vestimentes. Both men z women that were of a wyllynge hert, brought braselettes, earynges, rynges z gyrdels, and all maner Jewels of golde: Lucy man also brought golde for waue offeringes vnto the LORDE.

And who so euer foude by him yalow sylke, scarlet, purple, whyte sylke, goates hayre, reed slymme of rames, and doo slymme, brought it. And who so euer houe vpon syluer z brasse, brought it for y heue offeringe vnto the LORDE. And who so euer founde fyre tre by him, brought it for all maner of worke of the Gods seruyce. And soch women as were wyse herted, spanne with their handes, and brought their sponne worke of yalow sylke, scarlet, purple, and whyte sylke. And soch women as had hie vnderstandinge in wysdome, spanne goates hayre.

As for y prynces, they brought Onix stones, and set stones, for y ouerbody coate, and for the brestlappes, and spyces, and oyle for y lightes, and for the anoyntyng oyle, and for swete incense. Thus the childre of Israel brought fre wyllynge offeringes, both man and weme, for all maner of worke, that the LORDE had commaunded by Moses, to be made.

And Moses saide vnto the childre of Israel: Beholde, y LORDE hath called by name Bezaleel y sonne of Uri, y sonne of Hur of the trybe of Juda, z hath fylled him w the spire of God, that he maye haue wysdome, vnderstandinge, z knowlege for all maner of worke, to worke connyngly in golde, syluer z brasse, to graue precious stones z to set them, to carue in wodd, to make all maner of connyng workes, and hath geue instruction in his hert, both him and Ahaliab the sonne of Ahisamach of y trybe of Dan. These hath he fylled w wysdome of hert, to make all maner of worke, to carue, to broder, to worke with needle worke, with yalow sylke, scarlet, purple and whyte sylke, and with weenyng to make all maner of worke, and to deuise connyng workes.

The XXXVI. Chapter.

Then wrought Bezaleel z Ahaliab z all the wyse herted men, vnto whom the LORDE had geuen wysdome z vnderstandinge to knowe, how they shulde make all maner worke for the seruyce of the Sanctuary, acordinge vnto all y the LORDE commaunded. And Moses called for Bezaleel z Ahaliab, z all the wyse herted men, vnto whom the LORDE had geuen wysdome in their hertes, namely, all soch as wyllynge offred them selues there, z came to labour in the worke. And they receaued of Moses all the heue offeringes, that the childre of Israel had brought for the worke of the seruyce of the Sanctuary, that it might be made: z every mornynge brought they their wyllynge offeringes vnto him.

B Then came all the wyse men y wrought in the worke of the Sanctuary, every one fro his worke that he made, z sayde vnto Moses: The people bryngeth to moch, moie the nede is for the worke of this seruice, which the LORDE hath comaunded to make. The comaunded Moses, that it shulde be proclaimed thorow out the hoost: No man bryng more to the heue offeringe of the Sanctuary. Then were the people forbydden to bryng: for there was stuff ynough for all maner of worke, that was to be made, and to moche.

Exo. 25. a So all þe wyse herted men amonge the þe wrought in y<sup>e</sup> worke of the habitation, made ten curtaynes of whyte twyned sylke, yallow sylke, scarlet, purple, with Cherubyns of broderd worke. The length of one curtayne was eight and twenty cubites, and the bredth foure cubites, and were all of one measure: and he coupled the curtaynes fyue and fyue together one to the other.

E And made yallow loupes a longe by þe edge of every curtayne, where they shulde be coupled together: fiftie loupes vpon every curtayne, wherby one might be coupled to another. And made fiftie buttons of golde, and with the buttons he coupled the curtaynes together one to the other, that it might be one couerynge.

Exo. 25. b And he made xi. curtaynes of goates hayre (for the tent ouer the habitation) of thirtie cubytes longe, and foure cubytes brode, all of one measure, and coupled fyue together by them selues, and sixe by them selues, and made fiftie loupes a longe by þe edge of every curtayne, wherby they might be coupled together, and made fiftie buttons of brasse, to couple y<sup>e</sup> tent together withall. And made ouer y<sup>e</sup> tent a couerynge of reed steynnes of rammes, and ouer that a couerynge of doo steynnes.

Exo. 25. c D And made stondinge bordes for the habitation, of fyre tre, every one ten cubytes longe, and a cubyte and a half brode, and two fete vnto every one, wherby one might be ioyned to another: that on the south syde there stode twentye of the same bordes: and made fourtye syluer sokettes there vnder, vnder every borde two sokettes for his two fete. In like maner for the other syde of the habitation toward the north, he made twentye bordes also with fourtye syluer sokettes, vnder every borde two sokettes: But behynde the habitation vpon the west syde, he made sixe bordes, and two other for the corners of the habitation behynde, that either of them both might be ioyned with his corner borde from vnder vp, and aboue vpon the heade to come together with a clampe: so that there were eight bordes, and sixtene sokettes of syluer, vnder every one two sokettes.

E And he made barres of fyre tre, fyue for the bordes vpon the one syde of the habitation, and fyue vpon the other syde, and fyue behynde toward the west: and made the barres to shute thorow the bordes, from the one ende to the other, and euery layde the bordes with golde. But their rynges made he of golde for the barres, and ouerlayde þe barres with golde.

And made Cherubyns vpon the hangyng with broderd worke, of yallow sylke, scarlet, purple, and whyte twyned sylke. And made for the same, foure pilers of fyre tre, and ouerlayed them with golde, and their knoppes of golde, and cast foure sokettes of syluer for them.

And made an hanginge in the Tabernacle dore, of yallow sylke, scarlet, purple, and whyte twyned sylke, of nedle worke, and fyue pilers therto with their knoppes (and ouerlayed their knoppes and whopes with golde) and fyue sokettes of brasse therto.

The XXXVII. Chapter.

And Bezaleel made the Arke of fyre tre, two cubites and a half lōge, a cubyte and a half brode, and a cubyte and a half hye, and ouerlayed it with fyne golde within and without, and made a crowne of golde vnto it rounde aboute, and cast for it foure rynges of golde to the foure corners of it, vpon every syde two. And made staves of fyre tre, and ouerlayed the with golde, and put them in the rynges a longe by þe sydes of the Arke, to beare it withall.

And he made þe Mercyseate of pure golde two cubytes and a half longe, and a cubyte and a half brode, and made two Cherubyns of fyne beaten golde vpon the two endes of the Mercyseate: One Cherub vpon the one ende, and the other Cherub vpon the other ende: and the Cherubyns spredde out their wynges aboue an hye, and couered þe Mercyseate therewith: and their faces stode one ouer agaynst the other, and looked vnto the Mercyseate.

And he made y<sup>e</sup> table, of fyre tre, two cubytes longe, a cubyte brode, and a cubyte and a half hye, and ouerlayed it with fyne golde, and made therto a crowne of golde rounde aboute, and made vnto it an whoope of an hande bredth hye, and made a crowne of golde rounde aboute the whoope. And for it he cast foure golde rynges, and put them in the foure corners by the fete harde by the whoope, that the staves might be therein, to beare the table withall: and made the staves of fyre tre, and ouerlayed the with golde, to beare the staves withall. And the vessels vpon the table made he also of fyne golde: the dishes, spones, flat peces and pottes, to poure in and out withall.

And he made the candillsticke of fyne bea

Exo. 25. a ten golde, where vpon was the shaft with braunches, cuppes, knoppes, and floures. Sixe braunches proceeded out of y<sup>e</sup> sydes therof, vpon either syde thre braunches: vpon every braunch were thre cuppes like allmōdes, with knoppes and floures. Vpon the candillsticke self were foure cuppes with knoppes and floures, vnder every two braunches a knoppe. The knoppes and braunches therof proceeded out of it, and were all one peece of fyne beaten golde. And he made the seuen lampes with their snuffers and outquenchers of pure golde. Of an hūdrith weight of golde made he it, and all the apparell therof.

D He made also the altare of incense, of fyre tre, a cubyte longe and brode, euen foure squared, and two cubytes hye with the hornes of it, and ouerlayed it with fyne golde, the toppe and the sydes of it rounde aboute, and the hornes therof, and made a crowne vnto it rounde aboute of pure golde, and two golde rynges vnder the crowne on both the sydes, to put the staves therein, and to beare it withall: but the staves made he of fyre tre, and ouerlayed them with golde.

And he made the holy anoyntinge oyle, and the incense of pure spycs, after þe craft of the Apotecary.

The XXXVIII. Chapter.

Exo. 25. a Exo. 25. b Exo. 25. c And the altare of burnt offrynges made he of fyre tre, fyue cubytes lōge and brode, euen foure squared, and thre cubytes hye. And made foure hornes, which proceeded out of the foure corners therof, and ouerlayed it with brasse. And he made all maner of vessels for the altare, cauldrons, shovels, basens, fleshokes, and colepannes all of brasse. And vnto the altare he made a brasen gredyron of net worke rounde aboute, from vnder vp vnto the myddest of the altare, and cast foure rynges in the foure corners of the brasen gredyron, for the staves: which he made of fyre tre, and ouerlayed them with brasse, and put them in the rynges by the sydes of the altare, to beare it withall, and made it holowe with bordes.

And he made the Lauer of brasse, and his fore also of brasse vpon the place of y<sup>e</sup> hooff, that laye before the dore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse.

D And he made the courte on þe south syde: hangynges an hūdrith cubytes longe, of whyte twyned sylke, with the twenty pilers therof, and twenty sokettes of brasse: but the knoppes and whopes of syluer. In like maner vpon the north syde an hūdrith cubytes with twenty pilers, and twenty sokettes of brasse, but their knoppes and whoppes of syluer. Vpon the west syde fiftie cubytes with ten pilers and ten sokettes, but their knoppes and whoppes of syluer. Vpon the East syde fiftie cubytes. Sixtene cubytes vpon either syde of the courte dore, with thre pilers and thre sokettes: So that all the hangynges of the courte were of whyte twyned sylke, and the sokettes of the pilers were of brasse, and their knoppes and whoppes of syluer: their heades were ouerlayed with syluer, and all the pilers of the courte were whooped aboute with syluer.

E And the hangyng in þe courte gate made he with nedle worke, of yallow sylke, scarlet, purple, and whyte twyned sylke, twenty cubytes longe, and fyue cubytes hye, after the measure of the hangynges of the courte: foure pilers also therto, and foure sokettes of brasse, and their knoppes of syluer, and their heades ouerlayed, and their whoppes of syluer. And all the nales of the habitation and of the courte rounde aboute, were of brasse.

This is now the summe of the habitation of wytnesse (which was counted at the commaundement of Moses to y<sup>e</sup> Gods sermice of the Levites vnder the hāde of Jehamar the sonne of Aaron the prest) which Bezaleel the sonne of Uri, the sonne of Zur of the trybe of Juda made, all as the LORDE commaunded Moses. And to him Ahaliab y<sup>e</sup> sonne of Ahisamach of the trybe of Dan, a conyngre grauer, to worke nedle worke, with yallow sylke, scarlet, purple, and whyte sylke.

All the golde y<sup>e</sup> was wrought in all this worke of the Sanctuary (which was geuen to the Wane offerynge) is nyne and twenty hūdrith weight, seven hūdrith and thirtie Sycles, after þe Cycle of y<sup>e</sup> Sanctuary. * The syluer y<sup>e</sup> came of the congregacion, was fyue score hūdrith weight, a thousande, seven hūdrith, fyue and seuentye Sycles, after þe Cycle of the Sanctuary: so many heades so many half Sycles, after the Cycle of the Sanctuary, of all that were nombred from twentye yere olde and aboue, euen sixe hūdrith thousande, thre thousande, fyue hūdrith and fiftie.

Of the fyue score hūdrith weight of syluer, were cast the sokettes of the Sanctuary, and the sokettes of the wayle, an hūdrith sokettes of the fyue score hūdrith weight, an hūdrith weight to every sockett. Of the thousande, seven hūdrith and fyue and seuentye Sycles were made the knoppes of the pilers (and their heades ouerlayed) and their whoppes.

As for the Waue offeringe of brasse, it was seuentye hundieth weight, two thousande and foure hundieth Syckles: Wherof we remade the sokettes in the dore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse, and the brasen altare, and the brasen gredyon thereto, and all the vessels of the altare, and the sokettes of 3 courtte rounde aboute, and the sokettes of 3 courtte gate, all 3 nales of the Habitation, 2 all 3 nales of 3 courtte rounde aboute.

The XXXIX. Chapter.

Of the yalowe sylke, scarlet, 2 purple, they made Arons mynistringe vestimentes, to do seruyce in the Sanctuary, as 3 LORDE commaunded Moses.

And he made the ouerbody cote, of golde, yalowe sylke, scarlet, purple, 2 whyte twyned sylke, and bett the golde in to thinne plates, and cut it in to wyres, that it might be wrought amonge the yalowe sylke, scarlet, purple and whyte sylke, 2 made it so, that 3 ouerbody cote came together by the edges on both the sydes. And his gyrdel was after the same craft 2 worke: enē of golde, yalowe sylke, scarlet, purple and whyte twyned sylke, as the LORDE commaunded Moses.

And they wrought two Onix stones, set rounde aboute with golde, grauen by the stone grauer with the names of the childre of Israel: and fastened them vpo the shulders of the ouerbody cote, that they might be stones of remembraunce vnto the childre of Israel, as the LORDE commaunded Moses.

And they made the brestlappe after the craft 2 worke of the ouerbody cote: of golde, yalowe sylke, scarlet, purple, 2 whyte twyned sylke, so that it was foure square 2 dubble, an hande bredth longe and brode, and fylled it with foure rowes of stones. The first rowe was: a Sardis, a Topas, and a Sma ragde. The secōde: a Ruby, a Saphyre, a Dyamonde. The thirde: a Ligure, an Achat, and an Amatist. The fourth: a Turcas, an Onix 2 a Jaspis: closed rounde aboute with golde in all the rowes. And the stones stode after the twolue names of the childre of Israel, grauen by the stone grauer, every one with his name, acordinge to the twolue trybes.

And vpon the brestlappe they made wythen cheynes of pure golde, and two hokes of golde, 2 two golderynges, and fastened the two rynges vpon the two edges of the brestlappe: and 3 two wythen cheynes put they in the two rynges vpon the corners of the brestlappe. But the two endes of 3 wythen cheynes put they to the two hokes, 2 fastened them vpon the corners of the ouerbody cote, one euer agaynst another.

And they made two other rynges of golde, 2 fastened them to the other two corners of the brestlappe by the edge of it, that it might hange vpon the out syde of the ouerbody cote. And they made yet two other golde rynges, which they put beneth vpon the two corners of the ouerbody cote, one euer agaynst another, where the ouerbody cote ioyneth together, that the brestlappe might be festened by his rynges vnto 3 rynges of the ouerbody cote with a yalowe lace, that it might lye close vpon 3 ouerbody cote, and not be lowsed from 3 ouerbody cote, as the LORDE commaunded Moses.

And he made the tuncle vnto the ouerbody cote, wrought all of yalow sylke, 2 the hole therof aboue in the myddest, 2 a bonde foldē together rounde aboute the hole, that it shulde not rente. And beneth vpon 3 hemme of it, they made pomgranates of yalow sylke, scarlet, purple, 2 whyte twyned sylke: 2 they made belles of pure golde, which they put betwixte 3 pomgranates rounde aboute vpon the hemme of the tuncle, a bell 2 a pomgranate, a bell 2 a pomgranate rounde aboute, to do seruyce in, as the LORDE commaunded Moses.

And they made albes also wrought of whyte sylke for Aaron 2 his sonnes, 2 3 myter of whyte sylke, and the goodly bonettes of whyte sylke, and breches of twyned whyte linnen, and the girdle of needle worke euen of whyte twyned sylke, yalow sylke, scarlet, and purple, as the LORDE commaunded Moses.

They made the foreheade plate also to 3 holy crowne, of pure golde, and wrought therein with grauen worke: the holynes of the LOR

D, and festened a yalowe lace theron, to tye it vnto the myter aboue, as the LORDE commaunded Moses.

Thus the whole worke of 3 Habitation of 3 Tabernacle of wytnesse, was fynished. And the childre of Israel dyd all that the LORDE commaunded Moses, 2 brought the Habitation vnto Moses: the Tabernacle 2 all the apparell therof, the buttons, bordes, barres, pilers, sokettes, 3 couerynge of reed shynges of rammes, the couerynge of doo shynges, 2 the vayne, 3 Arke of wytnesse 2 the stanes therof, the Mercyseate, the table 2 all his apparell, 2 the shewbread, the candil stick, 2 the lampes prepared, and all his apparell, 2 oyle for the lightes, the golden altare, the anoyntinge oyle 2 incense, the hangin ge in the Tabernacle dore, the brasen altare, 2 his brasen gredyon 2 his stanes, 2 all his apparell, 3 laner 2 his foote, the hangynges of 3 courtte 2 the pilers 2 sokettes therof, 3 hangynges in the courtte gate 2 his pilers 2 nales, 2 all the ordynaunce for the seruyce of the Habitation of 3 Tabernacle of wytnesse, 3 mynistringe vestimentes of Aaron 3 prest, to do seruyce in 3 Sanctuary, 2 the garmetes of his sonnes, 3 they might execute 3 prestes office. Accordinge to all that 3 LORDE commaunded Moses, enē so dyd the childre of Israel in all this seruyce. And Moses sawe all 3 worke, 3 they dyd enē as 3 LORDE had commaunded, and he blessed them.

The XL. Chapter.

Of the yalowe sylke, scarlet, 2 purple, they made Arons mynistringe vestimentes, to do seruyce in the Sanctuary, as 3 LORDE commaunded Moses. And he made the ouerbody cote, of golde, yalowe sylke, scarlet, purple, 2 whyte twyned sylke, and bett the golde in to thinne plates, and cut it in to wyres, that it might be wrought amonge the yalowe sylke, scarlet, purple and whyte sylke, 2 made it so, that 3 ouerbody cote came together by the edges on both the sydes. And his gyrdel was after the same craft 2 worke: enē of golde, yalowe sylke, scarlet, purple and whyte twyned sylke, as the LORDE commaunded Moses. And they wrought two Onix stones, set rounde aboute with golde, grauen by the stone grauer with the names of the childre of Israel: and fastened them vpo the shulders of the ouerbody cote, that they might be stones of remembraunce vnto the childre of Israel, as the LORDE commaunded Moses. And they made the brestlappe after the craft 2 worke of the ouerbody cote: of golde, yalowe sylke, scarlet, purple, 2 whyte twyned sylke, so that it was foure square 2 dubble, an hande bredth longe and brode, and fylled it with foure rowes of stones. The first rowe was: a Sardis, a Topas, and a Sma

ges shalt thou set before the doore of the habitation of the Tabernacle of wytnesse: & the lauer betwixte the Tabernacle of wytnesse and the altare, and put water therin, & set the courte rounde aboute, and hange vp the hanginge in the courte gate.

B And thou shalt take the anyntynge oyle, and anynte the habitation and all that is there in, and shalt consecrate it, and all y apparrell therof, that it maye be holy. And thou shalt anynte the altare of burntofferynge and all his vessels, and consecrate it, that it maye be most holy. The lauer also & his fore shalt thou anynte & consecrate.

Exo. 30.2 And thou shalt brynge Aaron & his sonnes vnto the doore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse, and wash them with water, & put the holy vestimentes vpon Aaron, and anynte him, and consecrate him, that he maye be my prest. And thou shalt brynge his sonnes also, and put the albes vpon them, and anynte them, as thou hast anynted their father, & they maye be my prestes. And this anyntinge shall they haue for an everlastinge presthode amonge their posterities. And Moses dyd all as the LORDE comaunded him.

Num. 9.2 Thus was the Tabernacle set vp in the seconde yeare vpon the first daye of the first moneth. And whan Moses reared it vp, he fastened y skettes and the bordes, and barres, and set vp the pilers, and spred out the rent ouer the habitation, and put the couerynge of the tent aboue an hye, as the LORDE comaunded him. And he toke the wytnesse, and layed it in the Arke, and put y stanes in the Arke, and set the Mercysate aboue vpon the Arke, and brought the Arke in to the habitation, and hanged the vayle before the Arke of wytnesse, as the LORDE comaunded him.

And he set the table in the Tabernacle of wytnesse, in the corner of the habitation vpon the north syde without the vayle, and prepared bried theron before y LORDE, as the LORDE comaunded him.

Exo. 25.1 And he set in the candilsticke also, euen ouer agaynst the table, in the corner of the habitation vpon the south syde, and put the lampes theron before y LORDE, as the LORDE comaunded him. And the golden altare set he in also before the vayle, and burnt swete incense theron, as the LORDE comaunded him. And hanged vp the hanginge in the Tabernacle doore. As for the altare of burntofferynge, he set it before the doore of the habitation of y Tabernacle of wytnesse, and offred burntofferynge and meate offerynge theron, as the LORDE comaunded him.

And the Lauer set he betwixte the Tabernacle of wytnesse and y altare, and put water therinto wash withall. And Moses, Aaron and his sonnes washed their handes and fete ther at: for they ought to wash the, whan they wente in to the Tabernacle of wytnesse, or whan they wente vnto the altare, as the LORDE comaunded him.

And he set vp the courte rounde aboute the habitation and the altare, and hanged vp y hanginge in y courte gate. Thus Moses fynished the whole worke.

Then a cloude covered y Tabernacle of wytnesse, and the glory of the LORDE fylled the habitation. And Moses coulde not go in to the Tabernacle of wytnesse, whyle the cloude abode theron, and the glory of y LORDE fylled the habitation.

And whan the cloude remoued from the habitation, then wente the children of Israel forth, as oft as they toke their iourney. But yf the cloude remoued not, then toke not they their iourney, tyll the daie that it remoued: for in the daye tyme was the cloude of the LORDE vpon the habitation, & in the night season was fyre therin, in y sight of all y house of Israel, in all their iourneys.

The first Chapter.

Ald the LORDE called Moses, and spake vnto him out of y Tabernacle of wytnesse, and sayde: Speake vnto y childre of Israel, & saie vnto them: Who so euer amonge you wyl brynge an offeringe vnto the LORDE, let him brynge it of y catell, euen of the oxen, & of the shepe.

If he wyl brynge a burntofferynge of y oxen (or greate catell) he let him offre a male without blemyshe, before y doore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse, to reconcyle him self before the LORDE, & let him laye his hande vpon the heave of the burntofferynge, then shal he be reconcyled, so y God shalbe mercifull vnto him.

And he shall kyll the yonge ox before y LORDE: and y prestes Aarons sonnes shal brynge the bloude, and sprentle it rounde aboute vpon the altare, that is before the doore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse. And the stynne shalbe slayne from of the burntofferynge, and it shalbe hewen in peces. And the sonnes of Aaron the prest shal make a fyre vpon the altare, and laye wod aboue theron: and y peces, the heade, and the fatt shal they laye vpon the wodd that lyeth vpon y fyre on the altare. But y bowels & legges shalbe washten with water, and the prest shal burne altogether vpon the altare for a burnt sacrifice: this is an offeringe of a sweete sauoure vnto the LORDE.

If he wyl offre a burnt sacrifice of the small catell, that is, of the lambes or goates, then let him offre a male without a blemyshe. And he shall kyll it before the LORDE, euen at the corner of the altare on the north syde before y LORDE. And (the prestes) Aarons sonnes shal sprentle his bloude rounde aboute vpon y altare, and it shal be hewen in peces. And the prest shal laye them with the heade and the fatt, vpon the wodd that lyeth vpon the fyre on the altare. But the bowels and y legges shal be washsen with water. And þ preest shal offre it altogethe, and burne it vpon þ altare for a burnt sacrifice. This is an offerynge of a swete sauoure vnto the LORDE.

D But yf he wil offre a burnt sacrifice of y fowles vnto the LORDE, then let him offre it of the turtill doves or of 3 yonge pigeons
And the prest shal brynge it vnto the altare, and wyng the neck of it a sunder, that it maye be burnt vpon the altare, and let the bloude of it runne out vpon the sydes of the altare, and the croppe of it with the fethers shalbe cast vpon the heape of asshes besy-de the altare towarde the east, and he shall deuyde the wynges of it, but not breake the cleane of. And thus shall the prest burne it vpon the altare, even vpon the woodd that lyeth vpo the fyre, for a burnt sacrifice. This is an offeringe of a swete sauoure vnto the LORDE.

The II. Chapter.

Whan a soule wyll offre a meatofferynge vnto the LORDE, then shal
it be of fyne floure, and he shal pou-re oyle vpon it, and put frankencense theron, z so brynge it vnto Aarons sonnes the pres-
tes. Then shal one of them take his handefull of the same floure, and oyle with all the frankencense, and burne it for a remembraun-ce vpon the altare. This is an offeringe of a swete sauoure vnto the LORDE. * As for y remnant of the meatofferynge, it shalbe Aarons and his sonnes. This shalbe y most holy of the offerynges of the LORDE.

B But yf he wyll brynge a meatofferynge of that which is baken in the oven, then let him take swete cakes of wheate, myrte with oyle, and unleuended wafers anoynted with oyle. Neuertheles yf thy meatofferynge be eny thinge of that which is fryed in the panne, then shal it be of fyne swete floure myrte with oyle: And thou shalt cut it in peces, & poure oyle thereon: so is it a meatofferynge. But yf thy meatofferynge be ought broyled on the gredyon, then shalt thou make it of fyne floure with oyle. And the meatofferynge that thou wilt make of soch thinges for the LORDE, shalt thou brynge vnto ʒ prest, which shal brynge it vnto the altare, & shal heue vp the same meatofferynge for a remē braunce, and burne it vpon the altare. This is an offeryng of a swete sauoure vnto the LORDE. As for the remnaunt, it shal be Aarons and his sonnes. This shall be the most holy of the offerynges of the LORDE.

All the meat offeringes that ye will offer vnto the LORDE, shal ye make without leaue. For there shal no leaue nor hony be burnt for an offeringe vnto the LORDE. But for the offeringe of the firstlinges shal ye offer the vnto the LORDE. Nevertheless they shal come vpon no altare for a swete sauoure.

All thy meatofferings shalt thou * salt.
And thy meatofferinge shal neuer be with out y salt of the couenaunt of thy God: for
in all thy offeringes shalt thou offre salt.

But yf thou wilt offere a meatofferynge of the first frutes vnto y<sup>e</sup> LORDE, then shalt thou drye that which is grene, by the fyre, & beate it small, and so offere the meatofferyn-ge of thy first frutes. And thou shalt put oyle vpon it, and laye frankēcense theron, so is it a meatofferynge. And then shall the prest beate it, and burne of the oyle with all the frankēcense for a remembraunce. This is an offerynge vnto the LORDE.

The III. Chapter.

Wet yf his offerynge be a deedofferin ge of greate catell (whether it be ore or come) then shal he offre soch as is without blemyshe before the LORDE, ⁊ shal laie his hande vpon the heade of it, and kyll
it before the doore of the Tabernacle of wy nesse. And the prestes Aarons sonnes, shall sprenkle the bloude rounde aboute vpon the altare, and shal offre of y deadofferynge vn to the LORDE: namely, all the fat that is within, and the two kydneyes with the fat that is thereon vpon the loynes, and the nett on the leuer vpon the kydneyes also. And Aa rons sonnes shal burne it vpon the altare for a burntofferynge, euen vpon the wood that lyeth on the fyre. This is an offerynge of a swete sauoure vnto the LORDE.

¶ If his dead offering be of small cattell, whether it be male or female, it shall be without blemish: If it be a lambe, then shall he bryng it before the LORD, & shall laye his hande vpon the heade of it, and sleve it before the Tabernacle of wytnesse. And Aarons sonnes shall sprentle his bloude rounde aboute vpon the altare, and so offre of the dead-offerynge vnto the LORD: namely, the fat of it, all the rompe with the backe, and the fat that couereth the bowels, with all y fat that is within, and the two kydneyes with the fat that is thereon vpon the loynes, & the nett on the lener vpon the kydneyes also. And the prest shall burne it vpon the altare, for y meate of the offerynge vnto y LORD.

But yf his offeringe be a goate, and burn geth it before the LORDE, he shal laye his hande vpon the heade of it, and kyll it before the Tabernacle of wytnesse. And Aarons sonnes shal sprikle the bloude rounde aboute vps the altare, ⁊ shal offer therof a sacrifice vnto the LORD: namely, the fat ⁊ conereth the bowels, and all the fat ⁊ is within, the two kydneyes with the fat that is theron vpon the loynes, ⁊ the net on the leuer vpon the kydneyes. And the priest shal burne it vps the altare, for the meate of the sacrifice to a swete sauoure.

¶ All the farr is the LORDES. Let this be a perpetuall lawe amonge yo<sup>r</sup> posterities in all youre dwellynges, that ye eate no farr, = ner bloude.

The III. Chapter.

And the LORD spake vnto Moses, & sayde: Speake vnto the childre of Israel, and saye: When a soule synneth thorow ignorance in any commaundement of the LORD, which he ought not to do: As namely, yf a prest which is anoynted, synne, that he make the people do amysse, he shal brynge for y synne that he hath done, a yonge bullocke without blemyshe vnto the LORD for a synofferynge. And the bullocke shal he brynge to the dore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse before the LORD, & laie his hande vpon his heade, & kyll him before y LORD. And y prest y is anoynted, shal take of his bloude, & brynge it into the Tabernacle of wytnesse. And he shal dyppe his synger into the bloude, & sprentle therwith seuen tymes before the LORD, towarde the vayle of y Holy. And he shal put of the same bloude vpon the hornes of the altare of incense, y stondeth before y LORD in the Tabernacle of wytnesse: & all the bloude of the bullocke shal he poure vpon the botome of the altare of burntofferings, y stondeth at the entrynge in of y Tabernacle of wytnesse. And all the fat of the synofferynge shal he heue vp: namely, the fat y couereth the bowels, & all the fat y is within, y two kydneyes with the fatt that is thereon vpon the loynes, and the net on the leuer vpon the kydneyes also (like as he heueth it from the ore in the dead offerynge) and shal burne it vpon the altare of burntofferings. But the slyme of the bullocke, and all the fleshe, with the heade & legges, & the bowels and the donge, shal he carry altogether out of the hoost, into a cleane place, where y asshes are poured out, & shal burne it vpon woodd with fyre.

When the whole cōgregation of Israel
synneth thorow ignorance, & the dede be hyd
from their eyes, so y they do ought agaynst

any of the cōmaundementes of the LORDE, which they shulde not do, & come afterwarde to the knowlege of the synne that they haue done, they shal bringe 1 yonge bullocke for a synofferynge, and set him before y<sup>e</sup> doore of y<sup>e</sup> Tabernacle of wytnesse. And the Elders of the congregacion shal laye their handes
is anoynted shal brynge of y<sup>e</sup> bullockes blou-de in to the Tabernacle of wytnesse, & dyp-pe ther in with his synger, and spientle ther with seuen tymes before the LORDE, euē before the vayne of the Holy. And shal put of the bloude vpon the hornes of the altare, y<sup>e</sup> stondeyth before the LORDE in the Tabernacle of wytnesse: & all y<sup>e</sup> other bloude shal he poure vpo the botome of y<sup>e</sup> altare of burntofferynges, y<sup>e</sup> stondeyth before the doore of y<sup>e</sup> Tabernacle of wytnesse. But all his fette shal he here vp, & burne it vpo the altare: & shal do with this bullocke, as he dyd with y<sup>e</sup> bullocke of the synofferynge. Thus the prest shal make an attonement for them, & it shal be forgiven them. And the bullocke shal he brynge without the hoost, and burne him, as he brennt y<sup>e</sup> first bullocke. This shalbe y<sup>e</sup> synof-ferynge of the congregacion.

¶ When a prynce synneth, ⁊ doth agaynſt
the cōmaundement of the LORDE his God, ⁊ he ought not to do, ⁊ offendeth ignoraunt
ly, ⁊ cometh to the knowlege of his synne ⁊ he hath done, he ſhal bringe for his offerin ge an he goate without blemiſh, ⁊ laye his hande vpon the goates heade, ⁊ ſlaye him in ⁊ place where ⁊ burntofferings are ſlayne before ⁊ LORDE. The ſhal ⁊ preſt take of ⁊ bloude of ⁊ ſynofferinge wth his ſynger, and put it vpon the altare of burntofferings, ⁊ poure the ether bloude vpon the botome of the altare of burntofferings. But all the fat of it ſhal be burne vpon the altare, like as the fat of the healthofferynge. And ſo the preſt ſhal make an attonement for his synne,
and it ſhal be forgiven him.

Whā a soule of y comon people symeth ignorantly, doinge eny thinge agaynst the cōmaundement of the LORDE, y he oughte not to do, z so offendeth, z cōmeth to y know lege of the synne y he hath done, he shal brin ge for his cfferynge a she goate without ble mysh, for the synne y he hath done, and shal
laye his hande vpon the heade of the synof ferynge, z slaye it in the place of the burnt offerynges. And the prest shall take of the bloude w his synger, z put it vpon the hor nes of y altare of burnt offerynges, z poure

all the bloude vpon the botome of the altare. But all the fat of it shal he take awaye, like as he taketh awaye the fat of the deaddofferynge, and shal burne it vpon the altare for a swete sauoure vnto the LORDE. And so shal the prest make an attonement for him, and it shal be forgiven him.

But yf he brynge a lambe for a synofferynge, then let him brynge a female without blemyshe, and laye his hande vpon the head of the synofferynge, & kyll it for a synofferynge, in the place where the burntofferings are slayne. And the prest shal take of the bloude wth his synger, & put it vpon the hornes of the altare of burntofferings, & poure all the bloude vpon the botome of the altare. But all the fat therof shal he take fro it, like as he dyd the fat of the lambe of the healthofferynge, & shal burne it vpon the altare for the LORDES sacrifice. And so yf prest shal make an attonement for the synne that he hath done, and it shal be forgiven him.

The V. Chapter.

Whan a soule synneth, & he heare a cursynge, and is wytnesse therof, or hath sene it, or knowne it, & telleth it not, he is giltye of a trespase. Or whan a soule coucheth eny vncleane thynge, whether it be of carion of an vncleane beast, or catell, or worme, & was not aware of it, he is vncleane, and hath offended. Or whan he toucheth an vncleane man (what vncleannesse so euer a man is defyled withall) & was not aware of it, & afterwarde cometh to the knowlege therof, & same hath offended. Or whan a soule sweareth, so yf he pronounceth wth his mouth to do euell or good (what so euer it be that a man pronounceth wth an ooth) & was not aware of it, & afterwarde cometh to the knowlege therof, he hath offended in one of these.

Now whan it so is, yf he hath offended in one of these, & is enfourmed therof, what he hath synned, he shal brynge vnto the LORDE for his trespase of this his synne yf he hath done, a female from the flocke, either a yewe or a she goate for a synofferynge: so shal the prest make an attonement for him concerning his synne. But yf he be not able to brynge a shepe, then let him brynge vnto the LORDE for his offence that he hath done, two turtill doves or two yonge pigeons: one for a synofferynge, the other for a burntofferynge, and brynge them to the prest: which shal make the first a synofferynge, and first wrynge the neck of it, so that he plucke it not cleane of, and sprenkle with the bloude vpon the sydes of the altare, and let the resydue of the bloude blede out vpon the botome of the altare: This is the synofferynge. As for the other, he shal make it a burntofferynge, after the maner therof. And thus shal the prest make an attonement for him concerning the synne that he hath done, & it shal be forgiven him. But yf he be not able to brynge two turtill doves or two yonge pigeons, then let him brynge his offerynge for his synne, a tenth deale of an Ephah of syne floure for a synofferynge. But he shal put no oyle theron, ner laye frankencense vpon it, for it is a synofferynge. And he shal brynge it vnto the prest, & yf prest shal take his hand full of it for a remembraunce, and burne it vpon the altare for an offerynge vnto the LORDE. This is a synofferynge. And so shal the prest make an attonement for him, concerning his synne that he hath done, & it shal be forgiven him. And the remnaunt shal be the prestes, like a meatofferynge.

And the LORDE spake vnto Moses, & sayde: If a soule trespase, so yf thorow ignorance he offendeth in any thynge yf is halowed vnto the LORDE, he shal brynge his trespassofferynge vnto the LORDE, euen a ramme from the flocke without blemyshe, worth two Syckles of syluer, after the Syckle of the Sanctuary, for a trespase offerynge: and so he what he hath offended in the halowed thynge, he shal make restitution, & geue the fift part more thereto. And he shal deliuer it vnto the prest, which shal make an attonement for him wth the ramme of the trespase offerynge, & it shal be forgiven him.

Whan a soule synneth, and doeth oughte agaynst eny comaundement of the LORDE, yf he shulde not do, & is infourmed therof, he hath trespassed, & is giltye of the synne. And he shal brynge from the flocke a ramme without blemyshe (that is worth a trespase offerynge) vnto the prest, which shal make an attonement for him concerning his ignorance which he dyd, and was not aware, and it shal be forgiven him. This is the trespase-offerynge, because he trespassed agaynst the LORDE.

And the LORDE talked with Moses, and sayde: Whan a soule synneth, & trespaceth agaynst the LORDE, so that he denyeth vnto his neighbour that which he gaue him to kepe, or that was put vnder his hande, or that he hath violently taken awaye, or gotten vnrighteously, or founde that was lost, and denyeth it with a false coth, what so euer it be, wherein a man synneth agaynst his neighbour. Now whan it cometh so to passe, that he synneth after this maner, & trespaceth, he shal restore agayne that he toke violently awaye, or gat wrongeously, or that was geuen him to kepe, or that he hath founde, or what so euer it be aboute yf which he hath sworne falsely, he shal restore it agayne whole altogether, and geue the fift part more thereto, euen to him that it belonged vnto, the same daye that he geueth his trespase offerynge. But for his trespase he shal brynge for the LORDE (euen vnto the prest) a ramme from the flocke without blemyshe, that is worth a trespase offerynge. Then shal the prest make an attonement for him before the LORDE, and all that he hath synned in, shal be forgiven him.

The VI. Chapter.

When the LORDE spake vnto Moses, and sayde: Commaunde Aaron and his sonnes, and saye: This is the lawe of the burntofferynge. The burntofferynge shal burne vpon the altare all night vntill the mornynge. But the fyre of the altare onely shal burne theron. And yf prest shal put on his linnen albe, and his linnen breeches vpon his flesh, and shal take vp the asshes, that the fyre of the burntofferynge vpon the altare hath made, and shal poure them besyde the altare. Then shal he put of his rayment, and put on other rayment, and carry out the asshes without the hoost, into a cleane place.

The fyre vpon the altare shal burne, and neuer go out. The prest shal kyndle wod theron euery mornynge, and dresse the burntofferynge vpon it, and burne the fat of the deed offerynge theron. The fyre shal euer burne vpon the altare, and neuer go out.

And this is the lawe of the meatofferynge, which Aarons sonnes shal offre before the LORDE vpon the altare. One of them shal haue his handfull of syne floure of the meatofferynge, and of the oyle, and all the frankencense that lyeth vpon the meatofferynge, and shal burne it vpon the altare for a swete sauoure a remembraunce vnto the LORDE. As for the remnaunt, Aaron and his sonnes shal eate it, and vntenended shal they eate it in the holy place, namely, in the court of the Tabernacle of witness. With leue shal they not take their porcion, which I haue geuen them of my offerynge. It shal be vnto them most holy, as the synofferynge and trespase offerynge. All the males amonge the children of Aaron shal eate of it. Let this be a perpetuall lawe for youre posterities in the sacrifices of the LORDE.

No man shal touch it, excepte he be consecrated.

And the LORDE spake vnto Moses, and sayde: This shal be the offerynge of Aaron and of his sonnes, which they shal offre vnto the LORDE in the daie of their anoyntinge. The tenth parte of an Ephah of syne floure for a meatofferynge daylie, the one half parte in the mornynge, the other half parte at euen. In the panne with oyle shal thou make it, and brynge it fryed, and in peeces shalt thou offer it for the swete sauoure of the LORDE. And the prest which amonge his sonnes shal be anoynted in his steade, shal do this. This is a perpetuall dewtye vnto the LORDE. It shal be burne altogether: for all the meatofferings of the prest shal be consumed with the fyre, and not be eaten.

And the LORDE talked with Moses, and sayde: Speake vnto Aaron and his sonnes, and saye: This is the lawe of the synofferynge: In the place where thou slayest yf burnt offerynge, shalt thou slay the synofferynge also before the LORDE. This is most holy.

The prest that offereth the synofferynge, shal eate it in the holy place, in the court of the Tabernacle of wytnesse. No man shal touch yf flesh therof, excepte he be halowed. And yf eny garment be sprentled with the bloude of it, it shal be washe in the holy place. And the earthe pot that it is sodden in, shal be broken. But yf it be a brasen pot, it shal be scoured, and resed with water. All the males amonge the prestes shal eate therof, for it is most holy. Notwithstandinge all the synofferynge whose bloude is brought in to the Tabernacle of wytnesse to make an attonement, shal not be eaten, but burnt with fyre.

The VII. Chapter.

When this is the lawe of the trespase-offerynge, and it shal be most holy. In the place where the burntofferynge is slayne, shal the trespase-offerynge be slayne also, & there shal of his bloude be sprentled rounde aboute vpon the altare. And all his fat shal be offered: the rompe and the fat yf conuereth the bowels, the two kydneyes with the fat yf is theron vpon the loynes, and the net on the leuer vpon the kydneyes also. And the prest shal burne it vpon the altare for an offerynge vnto the LORDE. This is a trespase offerynge.

All the males amonge the prestes shal eate it in the holy place, for it is most holy: euen as the synofferynge, so shal the trespase of-ferynge be also, they shall both haue one lawe: and it shal be the prestes, that reconcy leth ther w<sup>t</sup>. Loke which prest offereth eny mans burnt offeringe, the skynne of the same burnt offeringe that he hath offered, shal be his. And euery meat offeringe that is bakten in the oven, roasted vpon the gredyron, or fryed in the panne, shal be the prestes y<sup>e</sup> offeringe. And euery meat offeringe y<sup>e</sup> is mingled with oyle, or drye, shal belonge vnto all Aaron sonnes, vnto one as well as another.

B And this is y<sup>e</sup> lawe of the health offeringe, that is offered vnto the LORDE. If they wyll offre a sacrifice of thanksgyvinge, then shal they offre unleuened cakes mingled with oyle, and swete wafers straked ouer with oyle, and fryed cakes of fyne flour mingled with oyle. This offeringe also shal they brynge vpon a cake of leuened bried, to the thank offeringe of his health offeringe: and of them all he shal offre one for an heue offeringe vnto the LORDE. And it shal be the prestes, that sprentleth the bloude of the health offeringe. And the flesh of the thank offeringe in his health offeringes, shal be eaten the same daye that it is offered, and there shall nothinge be left ouer vntyll the morninge.

L And whether it be a vowe or a fre wyl offeringe, it shal be eaten the same daye that it is offered: yf ought be left ouer vntyll the morninge, yet maye it be eaten. But loke what remaineth vnto y<sup>e</sup> thirde daye of the flesh that is offered, it shal be brent with the fyre. And yf eny man vpon the thirde daie cate of y<sup>e</sup> offered flesh of his health offeringe, he shall not be accepted that offered it. Whether shall it be rekened vnto him, but it shal be refused. And loke which sonle eateth therof, the same is giltye of a mysdede.

C And the flesh that toucheth eny vncleane thinge, shal not be eaten, but burnt with the fyre. But who so euer is cleane of body, shal cate of the flesh: and the soule that eateth of y<sup>e</sup> flesh of y<sup>e</sup> health offeringe which belongeth vnto the LORDE, his vncleannes be vpon him, and he shal be roted out from amonge his people.

And whan a soule toucheth eny vncleane thinge, whether it be an vncleane man, catell, or eny other abhominacion that is, and eateth of the flesh of the burnt offeringe, that belongeth vnto the LORDE, the same shal be roted out from amonge his people.

And the LORDE talketh with Moses,

and sayde: Speake vnto the children of Israel, & saye: Ye shall eate no fat of oxen, lambes, and goates: neuerthelesse the fat of it that dyeth alone, and of soch as is come of wyld beasts, that maye ye occupye to all maner of vses, but ye shall not eate it.

For who so euer eateth the fat of y<sup>e</sup> beest that is geuen vnto the LORDE for an offeringe, the same soule shal be roted out from his people. Moreover, ye shall eate no bloude, nether of catell, ner of foules, where so euer ye dwell. What soule eateth eny bloude, the same shal be roted out from his people.

And the LORDE talked with Moses, and sayde: Speake vnto the children of Israel, and saye: Who so wyll offre his health offeringe vnto the LORDE, the same shall also brynge with all, that belongeth vnto y<sup>e</sup> health offeringe for the LORDE. But he shall brynge it with his hande for the offeringe of the LORDE: namely the fat vpon the brest shall he brynge, with the brest, to be a Waue offeringe before the LORDE. And the prest shall burne the fat vpon the altare, and the brest shal be Arons and his sonnes.

And the right shulder shal they geue vnto the prest for a gift of their health offeringes. And loke which of Arons sonnes offereth the bloude of the health offeringes, and the fat, the same shall haue the right shulder for his parte. For the Waue brest and the heue shulder haue I taken of the children of Israel, and of their health offeringes, and haue geuen them vnto Aaron the prest and vnto his sonnes for a perpetuall dewtye.

This is the anoyntinge of Aaron and of his sonnes, of the offeringes of the LORDE, in the daye whan Moses presented them to be prestes vnto the LORDE, what tyme as the LORDE commaunded (in the daye whan he anoynted them) to be geuen them of the children of Israel for a perpetuall dewtye, and vnto all their posterities. And this is the lawe of the burnt offeringe, of the meat offeringe, of the syn offeringe, of the trespass offeringe, of the offeringe of consecracion, and of the health offeringes, which the LORDE commaunded Moses vpon mount Sinai, in the daye whan he gaue him in commandement vnto the children of Israel, to offre their offeringes vnto y<sup>e</sup> LORDE in the wyldernes of Sinai.

The VIII. Chapter.

A And the LORDE spake vnto Moses, & sayde: Take Aaron and his sonnes w<sup>t</sup> him, & their vestimentes, & the anoyntinge oyle, & a bullocke for a syn offeringe, two rammes, and a maunde with unleuened bried, and call the whole congregacion together, before the doore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse. Moses dyd as the LORDE commaunded him, and gathered the congregacion together vnto the doore of y<sup>e</sup> Tabernacle of wytnesse, and sayde vnto them: This is it, that the LORDE hath commaunded to do.

B And he toke Aaron and his sonnes, and wasshed them with water, and put the albe vps<sup>t</sup> him, and girde him with the girdell, and put vpon him the yalowe tuncle, and put the ouerbody cote vpon him, and girde him vpon the ouerbody cote, & put the brest lappetheron, and in y<sup>e</sup> brest lappe light and perfectnesse. And set the myter vpon his heade. And vpon the myter euen aboue his fore heade, put he a plate of golde on the holy crowne: as y<sup>e</sup> LORDE comaunded Moses.

E And Moses toke the anoyntinge oyle, & anoynted the habitation, and all that was therein, and consecrated it, and sprentled therewith seue tymes vpon the altare, and anoynted the altare with all his vessels, the laner with his fore, that it might be consecrated: and poured the anoyntinge oyle vpon Arons heade, and anoynted him, y<sup>e</sup> he might be consecrated.

C And he brought Arons sonnes, and put albes vpon them, and girde them with the girdle, and put bonettes vpon their heades, as the LORDE commaunded him.

And he caused bringe a bullocke for a syn offeringe. And Aaron with his sonnes layed their handes vpon his heade, and then was he slayne. And Moses toke of the bloude, & put it vpon the homes of the altare rounde aboute with his synger, and purified the altare, and poured the bloude vpon the botome of the altare, and consecrated it, that he might reconcyle it. And toke all the fat vps<sup>t</sup> the bowels, the nett vpon the leuer, and the two kydneys with the fat thereon, and burned it vpon the altare. But the bullocke w<sup>t</sup> his skynne, flesh, & donge, burned he with fyre without the hoost, as the LORDE commaunded him.

And he brought a ramme for a burnt offeringe. And Aaron w<sup>t</sup> his sonnes layed their handes vpon his heade, & then was he slayne. And Moses sprentled of y<sup>e</sup> bloude vpon the altare rounde aboute, hewed the ramme in peces, and burnt the heade, the peces, and the fatt. And wasshed the bowels and the legges with water, and so burnt y<sup>e</sup> whole ramme vps<sup>t</sup> the altare. This was a burnt offeringe for a swete sauoure, euen a sacrifice vnto the LORDE, as the LORDE commaunded him.

He brought also the other ramme of the offeringe of the consecracion. And Aaron with his sonnes layed their handes vpon his heade, and then was it slayne. And Moses toke of his bloude, and put it vpon the tynpe of Arons right eare, and vpon the thombe of his right hande, and vpon the greates toe of his right fore.

And he brought Arons sonnes, and put of the bloude vpon the tynpe of the right eare of them, and vpon y<sup>e</sup> thombes of their righte handes, and vpon the greates toes of their righte fete, and poured the resydue of the bloude vpon the altare rounde aboute. And he toke the fat and the rompe, and all the fat vpon the bowels, and the nett vpon the leuer, the two kydneys with the fat thereon, and the righte shulder. And out of the maunde of unleuened bried before the LORDE, he toke an unleuened cake, and a cake of oyled bried, and a wafer, and layed them vps<sup>t</sup> the fat, and vpon the right shulder, and put all together vpon the handes of Aaron and of his sonnes, and waned it for a Waue offeringe before the LORDE.

And afterwarde toke he all agayne from their hondes, and burned them on the altare, euen vpon the burnt offeringe: for it is an offeringe of consecracion for a swete sauoure, euen a sacrifice vnto y<sup>e</sup> LORDE. And Moses toke the brest, and waned it a Waue offeringe before the LORDE, of the ramme of the offeringe of consecracion: the same was Arons parte, as the LORDE commaunded

Moses. And Moses toke of 3 anoyntinge oyle, & of the bloude vpon the altare, & sprenkled it vpon Aaron & his vestimentes, vpon his sonnes & vpon their vestimentes, and so consecrated Aaron & his vestimentes, his sonnes and their vestimentes with him.

G And he sayde vnto Aaron & his sonnes: Seeth 3 flesh before the dore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse, & there eate it, & the bried in 3 maunde of the consecracion offeringes, as it is comaunded me, & sayde: Aaron & his sonnes shall eate it. As for 3 which remaineth of the flesh & bried, ye shall burne it with fyre. And in seuen dayes shall ye not departe from y<sup>e</sup> dore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse, vntill the daye, 3 the dayes of y<sup>e</sup> consecracion offeringes be at an ende: for seuen dayes must y<sup>e</sup> handes be consecrated, as it is come to passe this daye: The LORDE hath comaunded to do it, that ye might be reconcyled. And ye shall tary before the Tabernacle of wytnesse daye and night seuen dayes longe, & shall kepe y<sup>e</sup> watch of y<sup>e</sup> LORDE, that ye dye not, for thus am I comaunded. And Aaron with his sonnes dyd all, that 3 LORDE comaunded by Moses.

The IX. Chapter.

Ald vpon the eight daye Moses called Aaron and his sonnes, and the Elders in Israel, and sayde vnto Aaron: Take vnto the a yonge calfe for a synofferynge, and a ramme for a burntofferunge, both without blemyshe, and bryng them before the LORDE, and speake vnto the children of Israel, and saye: Take an he goate for a synofferynge: and a calf, and a shepe, both of a yeare olde, and without blemyshe for a burntofferunge: and an ore and a ramme for an healtofferunge, that we maye offere before the LORDE: and a meatofferunge myngled with oyle. For to daye shall the LORDE appeare vnto you.

B And they toke what Moses commaunded before y<sup>e</sup> dore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse, and the whole cōgregacion came nye, and stode before the LORDE. Then sayde Moses: This is it, which the LORDE comaunded that ye shulde do, and then shall the glory of 3 LORDE appeare vnto you. And Moses sayde vnto Aaron: Go vnto 3 altare, and offere thy synofferynge and thy burntofferunge, and make an attonement for the and for the people. Then offere the peoples offerunge, and reconcile them also, as the LORDE hath comaunded.

and 7. d

Leui. 4. a

And Aaron wente vnto the altare, and slewe 3 calfe for his synofferynge, & his son

nes brought the bloude vnto him. And he dypte his synger in the bloude, and put it vpon the hornes of the altare, and poured 3 bloude vpon y<sup>e</sup> botome of the altare. As for the fat and the kydneyes & the net vpon the leuer of the synofferynge, he burnt the vpon the altare, as the LORDE comaunded Moses. The flesh also and the hyde burnt he wth fyre without the hoost.

Afterwarde he slewe the burntofferunge, and Aarons sonnes brought the bloude vnto him, & he sprentled it rounde aboute vpon the altare. And they brought him the burnt offerunge in peces, & the heade: & he burnt it vpon the altare. And he washed the bowels and the legges, and burnt them aboue vpon the burntofferunge on the altare.

Then brought he the offerunge of the people, and toke the goate, that synofferynge of the people, and slewe it, and made a synofferynge therof, as of the fyrst. And brought the burntofferunge, and dyd as the lawe is: and brought the meatofferunge, and toke his handfull, and burnt it vpon the altare, besyde the burnt offerunge of the morninge.

Afterwarde slewe he the ore and the ramme for the healtofferunge of the people: And his sonnes brought him the bloude, which he sprentled vpon the altare rounde aboute. But the fat of the ore & of the ramme, the rompe, and the fat that couereth the bowels, & the kydneyes, & the net vpon the leuer, all soch fat laied they vpon the brest, and burnt the fat vpon the altare. But the brest and the right shulder waied Aaron for a Waueofferunge before the LORDE, as the LORDE comaunded Moses.

And Aaron lift up his hade over the people, and blessed them, and came downe from the worke of the synofferynge, burntofferunge, and healtofferunge. And Moses and Aaron wente in to the Tabernacle of wytnesse. And whan they came out agayne, they blessed the people. Then appeared the glory of the LORDE vnto all the people. For there came a fyre from the LORDE, and vpon the altare it consumed the burnt offerunge and the fat. Whan all the people sawe that, they reioysed, and fell vpon their faces.

The X. Chapter.

Ald 3 sonnes of Aaron, Nadab and Abihu, toke ether of the his censoure, & put fyre therin, & layed incense vpon it, and brought straunge fyre before the LORDE, which he comaunded them not. Then wente there out a fyre from 3 LORDE, and consumed them, so that they dyed before the LORDE. Then sayde Moses vnto Aaron: This is it, that the LORDE sayde: I wil be sanctified vpo them that come nye me, and before all the people wil I be glorified. And Aaron helde his peace.

B Moses called Misael and Elzaphan the sonnes of Osiel Aarons vncle, and sayde vnto them: Go to, and cary youre brethien out of the Sanctuary, without the hoost. And they wente, and caried them forth in their albes without the hoost, as Moses sayde.

Then sayde Moses vnto Aaron & to his sonnes Eleasar and Jehamar: Ye shall not vnconuer youre heades, ner rente y<sup>e</sup> clothes, that ye dye not, and the wrath come vpon the whole congregacion: Let youre brethien of the whole house of Israel bewepe this burnyng, which the LORDE hath done. As for you, ye shall not go out from the dore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse, lest ye dye: for the anoyntinge oyle of the LORDE is vpon you. And they dyd as Moses sayde.

The LORDE spake vnto Aaron, & sayde: Thou & thy sonnes whiche shall drynke no wyne ner stronge drynke, whan ye go in to the Tabernacle of wytnesse: that ye dye not. Let this be a perpetuall lawe vnto all y<sup>e</sup> posterities: y<sup>e</sup> maye haue knowlege to discerne, what is holy and unholy, what is cleane & vncleane: & that ye maye teach the children of Israel all the lawes, which the LORDE hath spoken vnto you by Moses.

And Moses sayde vnto Aaron, and vnto Eleasar and Jehamar his sonnes that were left: Take the remnaunt of the meatofferunge in the sacrifices of 3 LORDE, and eate it without leuen besyde the altare, for it is most holy, euen in the holy place shall ye eate it. For it is thy dutye and thy sonnes dutye in the sacrifices of the LORDE: for thus am I comaunded. But the Wauebrest and the Zene shulder shalt thou eate, and thy sonnes and thy doughters with the in a cleane place. For this dutye is geuen vnto the and thy children in the dead offerynges of the children of Israel. For the Zene shulder and the Wauebrest to the offerynges of the fat, shall be brought in, that they maye be waied for a Waueofferunge before the LORDE. Therfore is it thine and thy childrens for a perpetuall dutye, as the LORDE comaunded.

And Moses sought for the goate of the synofferynge, and founde it burnt. And he was angrie at Eleasar and Jehamar 3 sonnes of Aaron, which were left alyue, and sayde: Wherfore haue ye not eaten the synofferynge in the holy place: for it is most holy, & he hath geuen it you, that ye might beare y<sup>e</sup> synne of the cōgregacion, to make a gremet for them before the LORDE. Beholde, the bloude of it came not in to the Sanctuary: Ye shulde haue eaten it in the Sanctuary, as I was comaunded.

Aaron sayde vnto Moses: Beholde, this daye haue they offred their synofferynge & their burntofferunge before 3 LORDE. And it is chaunced me after this maner. And shulde I eate of the synofferynge to daye, & be merry before the LORDE: Whan Moses herde that, he was content.

The XI. Chapter.

Ald 3 LORDE talked wth Moses & Aaron & sayde: Speake vnto 3 childien of Israel, and saye: These are the beestes which ye shall eate amonge all 3 beestes vpo earth: What so ever hath hooffe, & deuyneth it in to two clawes, & cheweth cud amonge the beestes, that shall ye eate. But loke what cheweth cud & hath hooffe, & deuyneth it not, as the Camell, the same is vncleane vnto you, & ye shall not eate it. The Conyes chewe cud, but they deuyneth not the hooffe in to two clawes, therfore are they vncleane vnto you. The Hare cheweth cud also, but deuyneth not 3 hooffe in to two clawes, therfore is he vncleane vnto you. And the Swyne deuyneth 3 hooffe in to two clawes, but cheweth not the cud, therfore is it vncleane vnto you. Of the flesh of these shall ye not eate, ner touch their carcases, for they are vncleane vnto you.

Act. 10. b

These shall ye eate of all that are in the waters: What so ever hath fynnes and scales in the waters, sees & ryuers, that shall ye eate. But what so ever hath not fynnes and scales in the sees and ryuers, amonge all 3 moue in the waters, & of all that lyne in the waters, it shall be an abhominacion vnto you, so that ye eate not of their flesh, and that ye abhorre their carcases. For all that haue not synnes, & scales in the waters, shall ye abhorre.

C And these shall ye abhorre amonge & foules, so that ye eate them not: The Aegle, the Goshauke, the Cormorante, the Vultur, & Aye, and all his kynde, and all Rauen's & their kynde: the Estrich, & Nightcrow, the Cocow, the Sparow hauke with his kynde, the litle Oule, the Storke, the greete Oule, & Backe, the Pellycane, the Swanne, the Pye, the Heron, & Jaye with his kynde, the Lap wyng, and & Swallowe. And what so ever crepeth amonge the foules, and goeth vpon foure fete, shall be an abhominacion vnto you. Yet these shall ye eate of the foules that crepe and go vpon foure fete: euen those that haue no knynges aboue vpon & legges, to hope withall vpon earth. Of these maye ye eate, as there is the Arbe with his kynde, and the Selaam with his kynde, & the Hargol with his kynde, & the Hagab with his kynde. But what so ever els hath foure fete amonge the foules, it shall be an abhominacion vnto you, and ye shall take it for vncleane. Who so ever toucheth the carcase of soch, shall be vncleane vntill & euen: and who so ever beareth the carcase of eny of these, shall wash his clothes, and shall be vncleane vntill the euen.

Therfore euery beest that hath hofte, and deuydeth it not in to two clawes, & cheweth not cud, shall be vncleane vnto you. Who so ever toucheth soch, shall be vncleane. And what so ever goeth vpon handes amonge & beestes that go vpon foure fete, shall be vncleane vnto you. Who so ever toucheth the carcases of the, shall be vncleane vntill euen. And he & beareth their carcase, shall wash his clothes, and be vncleane vntill the eue: For soch are vncleane vnto you.

E These shall be vncleane vnto you also, amonge the beestes that crepe vpon earth: & Wesell, the Mouse, the Tode, euery one with his kynde, the Hedgehogge, the Scellio, the Lacerte, the Snale, and the Moule, these are vncleane vnto you amonge all that crepe. Who so ever toucheth the deed carcase of the, shall be vncleane vntill the euen. And what so ever eny soch deed carcase falleth vpon, it shall be vncleane, what so ever vessell of wodd it be, or rayment, or styngne, or bagge. And euery vessell that eny thinge is occupied withall, shall be put in the water, and is vncleane vntill the euen, and then shall it be cleane. All maner of earthen vessell that eny soch carcase falleth in to, shall all be vncleane ne that therein is, & ye shall breake it. All meate which is eate, that eny soch water cometh in to, is vncleane: & all maner of drynke that is dronke in all maner of soch vessell, is vncleane. And what so ever eny soch carcase falleth vpon, it shall be vncleane, whether it be ouen or kettell, so shall it be broke, for it is vncleane, and shall be vncleane vnto you: Neuertheles the fountaynes, welles, & poundes of water are cleane. But who so ever toucheth their carcases, is vncleane.

And though the deed carcase of eny soch fell vpon the sedge that is sowne, yet is it cleane. But whan there is water poured vpon the sedge, and afterwarde eny soch deed carcase falleth theron, then shall it be vncleane vnto you.

Whan a beest dyeth that ye maye eate, he that toucheth the deed carcase therof, is vncleane vntill euen. Who so eateth of eny soch carcase, shall wash his clothes, and be vncleane vntill the euen. Likewise he that beareth eny soch carcase, shall wash his clothes, and be vncleane vntill the euen.

What so ever crepeth vpon earth, shall be an abhominacion vnto you, and shall not be eaten. And what so ever crepeth vpon & bely, or all that goeth vpon foure or mo fete, amonge all that crepeth vpon earth, shall ye not eate, for it shall be an abhominacion vnto you. Make not youre soules abhominable, and defyle you not in them, to stayne youre selues: for I am the LORDE youre God. Therfore shall ye sanctifie youre selues, that ye maye be holy, for I am holy. And ye shall not defyle youre selues on eny maner of crepyng beest, that crepeth vpon earth: for I am the LORDE, which brought you out of the lande of Egipte, that I might be youre God: therfore shall ye be holy, for I am holy.

This is the lawe ouer & beestes and foules, & all maner of soules of crepyng beestes in the waters, and all maner of soules & crepe vpon earth: that ye maie knowe to discern what is vncleane & cleane, and what maner of beestes are to be eaten, and which are not to be eaten.

The XII. Chapter.

And the LORDE talked with Moses, and sayde: Speake vnto the children of Israel, and saye: Whan a woman hath conceived, and beareth a manchild, she shall be vncleane seven dayes, so longe as she suffreth hir disease, and in & eight dayes shall & flesh of his foreskynne be cut awaie. And she shall byde at home thre and thirtie dayes in & blonde of hir purifieng: she shall touch no holy thinge, ner come in to & Sacuary, tyll the daies of hir purifieng be out. But yf she beare a maydechilde, the shall she be vncleane two weekes, so longe as she suffreth hir disease, and sere and thre score daies shall she byde at home in the blonde of hir purifieng.

B And whan the dayes of hir purifieng are out, for the sonne or for the daughter, she shall bringe a lambe of one yeare olde for a burnt offering, and a yonge pigeon or a turtill done for a synofferyng to the dore of & Tabernacle of wytnesse vnto & prest, which shall offre it before the LORDE, and make an attonement for her, and so shall she be clenfed from hir blondysse. This is the lawe for her that beareth a manchild or maydechilde.

But yf she be not able to bringe a shepe, then let hir take two turtill doves, or two yonge pigeons, the one for a burnt offering, the other for a synofferyng, then shall the prest make an attonement for her, so that she shall be cleane.

The XIII. Chapter.

And & LORDE spake vnto Moses & Aaron, & sayde: Whan there ryseth vpon eny thinge in the skynne of a mans flesh, whether it be a scabbe or a glistering whyte (as though there wolde be a leprosy in & skynne of his flesh) he shall be brought vnto Aaron the prest, or to one of his sonnes amonge & prestes. And whan the prest seyth the plage vpon the skynne of the flesh, that the hayres are turned to whyte, and it seme deper in that place then the other skynne of his flesh, then is it surely a leprosy, therfore shall the prest loke vpon him, and iudge him vncleane.

But whan there is eny whyte plecte in the skynne of his flesh, and yet seme no deper then the other skynne of the flesh, and the hayres be not turned to whyte, the shall the prest shut him vp seven dayes, and on & seventh daye loke vpon him: yf the plage seme vnto him as afore, & hath frett no deper in the skynne, then shall the prest shut him vp yet seven dayes mo. And whan he lokech on him agayne vpon the seventh daye, and fyndeth, that the plage be darkish, and hath frett no deper in the skynne, the shall he iudge him cleane, for it is but a skynise, and he shall wash his clothes, & then is he cleane.

B But whan the scabbe fretteth farther in the skynne (after that he is sene of the prest, and iudged cleane) and he be now sene of the prest agayne: whan the prest seyth the, & the scabbe hath frett farther in the skynne, he shall iudge him vncleane, for it is surely a leprosy.

Whan a plage of leprosy is vpon a man, he shall be brought vnto the prest. Whan he seyth and fyndeth, that there is whyte ryfen vpon the skynne, and the hayre turned vnto whyte, and there be rawe flesh in the sore, the is it surely an olde leprosy in & skynne of his flesh, therfore shall the prest iudge him vncleane, and nat shut him vp, for he is vncleane already.

But whan the leprosy breaketh out in the skynne, and couereth the whole skynne, from the heade vnto the soles, all that the prest can se, So whan the prest lokech vpon it, and fyndeth, that & leprosy hath couered all the flesh, he shall iudge him cleane, for so moch as it is turned all in to whyte vpon him, for he is cleane.

Notwithstandinge yf there be rawe flesh there, in the daye whan he is looked vpon, the is he vncleane. And whan the prest seyth & rawe flesh, he shall iudge him vncleane, for he is vncleane, & it is surely a leprosy. But yf the rawe flesh chaunge agayne, and be turned in to whyte, then shall he come vnto the prest. And whan the prest lokech vpon him, and fyndeth, that the plage is turned to whyte, he shall iudge him cleane, for he is cleane.

Whan there is a byle in the skynne of eny mans flesh, and healeth agayne, and afterwarde in the same place there arys vpon eny whyte thinge, or a glistering whyte som what reddysh, he shall be sene of the prest. So whan the prest seyth, that it appeareth to be lower then the other skynne, and the hayre turned to whyte, then shall he iudge him vncleane, for it is surely a plage of leprosy broken out of the byle. But yf the prest se and fynde, that the hayres are not whyte, and it not lower then the other skynne, and is darkish, he shall shut him vp seven dayes. If it hath frett farther in the skynne, then shall he iudge him vncleane, for it is surely a plage of leprosy. But yf the glistering whyte abyde still, and freate no farther, the is it but a prynte of the byle, and the prest shall iudge him cleane.

Whan the skynne of eny mans flesh is hurt with fyre, and the prynte of the burninge be reddysh or whyte, and the prest lokech vpon him, and fyndeth the hayre turned to whyte vpon the mark of the burnyng, & it apeare deper then the other skynne, the

is there surely a leprosy brokē out of & pryn-te of y burnyng: therfore shal y prest iudge hi vncleane, for it is a plague of leprosy. But yf the prest se and synde, that & haye vpon
the prynce of the burnyng is not turned vnto whyte, & is no lower then the other slryn-ne, and is darkish also, he shall shut him vp seuen dayes.

And vpon the seuenth daye he shall loke
vpon him: yf it hath frett farther in y slryn-ne, then shal he iudge him vncleane, for it is a leprosy. But yf it stode styll vpo the mark of the burnyng, and frett no farther in the slrynne, and is darkish, then is it a sore in & mark of the burnyng, & the prest shal iudge him cleane, for it is but the prynce of the burnyng.

¶ Whan a man or woman is slrynne vpon
the heade or beere, and the prest seyth the mark, and syndeth that it appeareth deper then the other slrynne, and the haye be the re goldē and thynne, then shal he iudge him vncleane: for it is a slryse of leprosy of the heade or of the beerde. But yf the prest se that & slryse apeare no deper the the slryn-ne, and that the haye is not of a pale colour,
he shall shut him vp seuen dayes. And vpo the seuenth daye whan he loke, and syn-deth, that the slryse hath frett no farther, and there be no golden haye there, and that the slryse appeare no deper then the other slrynne, then let him be shauē: but so that he shauē not of the scabbe, and the prest shall shut him vp yet seuen dayes moe. And vpon
the senēth daye whā he loke, and syndeth that the slryse hath frett no farther in the slrynne, and that it apeareth no deper then the other slrynne, then shall the prest iudge him cleane. And he shall wash his clothes, for he is cleane. But yf the scabbe freate farther in the slrynne (after & he is iudged clea-ne) and the prest loke, and syndeth, that & scabbe hath frett farther in the slrynne, then shal he seke nometre for golden hayes, for he is vncleane. ¶ Neuerthelesse yf he se that the scabbe stondeth styll, & that pale hayes are there rysen vp, then is & scabbe hole, and he is cleane, therfore shall & prest iudge him to be cleane.

Whā there is eny glisteringe whyte vpo & slrynne of the flesh of a man or woman, and the prest seyth there that the glisteryn-ge whyte vanysheth: then is it but a whyte
scabbe rysen vp in & slrynne, & he is cleane.

Whan the hayes fall out of the heade of a man or a woman, so that he is balde, the same is cleane. ¶ If they fall out of his fore hea-de, then is he fore heade balde & cleane. But yf there be a whyte reedish sore in the balde heade, or balde fore heade, then is there a leprosy rysen vp in the balde heade or balde sore heade: therfore shal y prest loke vpon him.

And whan he syndeth the whyte reedish sore rysen vp in his balde heade or balde fore heade, then shal & slrynne of the flesh be as leporous, therfore is he a leporous man and vncleane. And the prest shall iudge him vncleane, because of y same sore vpo his heade.

Who so now is leporous, his clothes shal be rent, and the heade bare, & the lippes mof-
fled, and shall in eny wyse be called vncleane.
And as longe as the sore is vpon him, he shal be vncleane, dwell alone, and haue his dwelling without the hoost.

Whan the plague of leprosy is in a cloth,
whether it be wollen or linnen, in the warpe or west, whether it be linnen or wollen, or in a slrynne, or in eny maner thyng that is made of slrynne. And whan & plague is pale or reedish in the cloth or slrynne, either in the warpe or west, or in eny maner thyng that is made of slrynne, the same is surely the pla-ge of leprosy, therfore shall the prest loke vpon it. And whan he seyth the plague, he shall shut it vp seuen dayes. And vpon the seuenth daye whan he seyth that y plague hath frett farther in the cloth, in the warpe or west, in
a slrynne or in eny maner thyng that is made of slrynne, then is it a fretinge plague of leprosy, and is vncleane. And the cloth shal be burnt, either warpe or west, whether it be wollen or lynnē, or eny thyng made of slryn-ne, wherein is eny soch plague. For it is a pla-ge of leprosy, and shal be burnt w fyre.

But yf the prest se that the plague hath frett no farther in y cloth, either in the war-pe or west, or eny thyng made of slrynne,
then shal he commaunde to wash the thin-ge that the plague is in, and shall shut it vp other seuen dayes. And whan the prest seyth (after that the plague is washsen) & the pla-ge is not chaūged before his eyes, and hath frett no farther also, yet is it vncleane, & shal be burnt w fyre: for it is depe fretē inwarde,
and hath made slryses. ¶ Neuertheles whan
the prest seyth that the prynce is vanyshed
after the washyng of it, then shall he rente
it out of the clothe, and of the slrynne, out of the warpe or west. But yf it appeare eny more in the clothe (either in the warpe, or in the west) or eny maner thyng made of slryn-ne, then is it a waxinge plague: and with fyre shal it be burnt that eny soch plague is in. As for the cloth, either warpe or west, or eny maner thyng made of slrynne that is washsen, and the plague be departed from it, it shal be washsen once agayne, & then is it cleane.

This is the lawe ouer the plague of leprosy in clothes, whether they be wollen or lynne (ether in the warpe or in the west) and in eny maner of thyng made of slrynne, to iudge them cleane or vncleane.

The XIII. Chapter.

¶ And the LORDE spake vnto Moses,
and sayde: This is the lawe ouer & leper, whan he shal be clenfed. ¶ He shall come vnto & prest, and the prest shal go out of the hoost, and loke how the plague of leprosy is healed vpon the leper. And he shal commaunde him that is to be clenfed, to take two luyng bydes, which are cleane, and Ceder wodd, and purple woll, and ysoper:
and shall commaunde the one byde to be kylled in an earthen vessell ouer sprynginge water. And he shall take the luyng byde with the Ceder wodd, the purple woll, and ysops, and dyppe them in the bloude of the slaine byde vpon the sprynginge water, and sprinkle it seuen tymes vpon him that must be clenfed from y leprosy. And so clense him, and let the luyng byde flye at libertye in to the felde.

¶ But he that is clenfed, shal wash his clothes, and shauē of all his haye, and bathe him self with water, so is he cleane. Afterwarde let him go in to the hoost, yet shall he tarye without his tent seuen dayes. And vpon the seuenth daye shal he shauē of all y
haye vpon his heade, vpo his beerde, vpon
his browes, so that all the haye be shauē of, and he shall wash his clothes and bathe
his flesh in water, then is he cleane.

And vpo the eight daye shal he take two lambes without blemys, and a shepe of a yeare olde without blemys, and thre tenth deales of fyne floure for a meatofferynge, myngled with oyle, & a Logg of oyle. The shal the prest presente him that is clenfed and these thynges before the LORDE, before the dore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse, and shal take y one lambe, and offre it for trespae ce offerynge, with the Logg of oyle, & shall waue them, before & LORDE, and afterwarde slaye the lambe, where the synofferynge and burnt offerynge are slayne, namely, in the holy place. For as the synofferynge, so is the trespaece offerynge the prestes also, for it is most holy.

¶ And the prest shall take of the bloude of the trespaece offerynge, and put it vpon the typpe of y right eare of him that is clenfed,

and vpon the thombe of his right hande,
and vpon the greate too of his right fore.
Afterwarde shal he take of the oyle out of the Logg, and poure it in to his awne lefte hande, and dyppe his right synger in the oy-le that is in his lefte hande, and sprentle the oyle with his synger seuen tymes before the LORDE. As for the remnant of the oyle in his hande, he shall put it vpon the typpe of the right eare of him that is clenfed, and vpon the thombe of his right hande, & vpon
the greate too of his right fore, euen aboue
vpon the bloude of the trespaece offerynge.
But the remnant of the oyle in his hande, shal he poure vpon the heade of him that is clenfed, and make an attonement for him before the LORDE. And he shall make the synofferynge, and reconcyle him that is clēfed, because of his vncleannesse. And afterwarde shal he sleie the burnt offerynge, and shal offre it vpon the altare with the meat of-ferynge, and make an attonement for him, &
than is he cleane.

But yf he be poore, and getteth not so moch with his hande, then let him take one lambe for a trespaece offerynge to waue it, to make an attonement for him, and a tenth deale of fyne floure myngled with oyle for a meatofferynge, and a Logg of oyle, & two turtyll dones, or two yonge pigeons which he is able to get with his hande, let the one
be a synofferynge, the other a burnt offeryn-ge: and let him bryng them vpon the eight daye of his clensyng vnto the prest before the dore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse before the LORDE.

Then shall the prest take the lambe for the synofferynge, and the Logg of oyle, and shall waue them all before the LORDE, and sleie the lambe of the trespaece offeryn-ge: and take of y bloude of the same trespaece offerynge, and put it vpon the typpe of the right eare of him that is clenfed, and vpon the thombe of his right hande, and vpon the greate too of his right fore, and poure of the oyle in to his awne lefte han-de, and with his right synger sprentle the oy-le that is in his lefte hande, seuen tymes before the LORDE.

As for the remnant of the oyle in his hande, he shal put it vpon the typpe of the right eare of him that is clenfed, and vpon
the thombe of his right hande, & vpon the greate too of his right fore, euen aboue vpo
y bloude of y trespaece offerynge. The other oyle in his hande shal he poure vpo & heade
of him & is clenfed, to make an attonement

for him before the LORD. And afterwarde of the one of the turtill bones or yonge pigeons (acordinge as his handes are able to get) he shal make a synofferynge, of y other a burntofferynge, with the meatofferynge: and so shal the prest make an attonement for him that is clenfed before the LORD.

Let this be the lawe for the leper, which is not able with his hande to get, that belongeth vnto his clensynge.

S And the LORD spake vnto Moses and Aaron, and sayde: Whan ye are come in to the lande of Canaan, which I geue you to possesse: and yf there happen a plage of leprosy in any house of youre possession, then shal he that oweth the house, come and tell the prest, and saye: Methynke there is as it were a plage of leprosy in my house. Then shal the prest commaunde to rydde all thynge out of the house or ever the prest go in to se y plage, lest all that is in the house be made vncleane. Afterwarde shal y prest go in, to se the plage.

Now whan he loketh, and fyndeth, y the re be holowe strakes yalowe or reedish in the walles of the house, z they seme to be lower then the wall besyde, then shal he go out at the dore of the house, and shut vp the house for seuendayes. And vpon the seventh daye whan he cometh, and seyth that the plage hath fretten farther in the walles of the house, the shal he commaunde to breake out the stones wherin the plage is, z to cast the in a foule place without the cite, z the house to be scraped within rounde aboute, and the dust y is scraped of, to be poured without y cite in an vncleane place, z to take other stones, and put them in the place of the other, and to take other playster, and playster the house.

G Whan the plage then cometh agayne, and breaketh forth in the house, after y the stones are broke out, the playster scraped of, and the house playsterd of the new, the shal the prest go in: and whan he seyth that the plage hath fretten farther in the house, then is there surely a frettinge leprosy in the house, and it is vncleane: therfore shal the house be broken downe, both the stones, and y tymber and all the dust of the house, and shal be caried out of the cite in to an vncleane place. And who so goeth in to the house, whyle it is shut vp, is vncleane vntyll y euen. And he y lyeth therein, or eateth therein, shal wash his clothes.

But yf the prest se (whā he goeth in) that this plage hath fretten farther in the house, se, after that the house is new playsterd, the shal he indge it to be cleane, for the plage is healed. And to a synofferynge for the house, he shal take two byrdes, Cedar wodd, z purple woll, and ysop, and slaye the one byrde in an erthen vessell vpon sprynginge water, and shal take the Cedar wodd, the purple woll, the ysop, and the lyuinge byrde, z dyppe them in the bloude of the slayne byrde vpon the sprynginge water, and sprentle the house with all seuē tymes: and so shal he purifie the house with the bloude of the byrde, with the springinge water, with the lyuinge byrde, with the Cedar wodd, with the ysop, and with the purple woll. And the lyuinge byrde shal he let flye at libertye out of the towne in to the felde, z make an attonement for the house, and then is it cleane.

This is the lawe ouer all maner plage of leprosy z slyrse, ouer y leprosy of clothes and of houses, ouer sores, scabbes, and glisterynge whyte, that it maye be knowne, whan eny thinge is vncleane or cleane. This is y lawe of leprosy.

The XV. Chapter.

And the LORD talked with Moses and Aaron, and sayde: Speake to the children of Israel, and saie vnto him: Whan a man hath a runnyng yssue from out of his flesh, y same is vncleane: but this is he vncleane by the reason of this yssue, whan his flesh is fretten of y yssue or wounde. Euery bed where on he lyeth, z what so euer he sytteth vpon, shalbe vncleane.

And he that toucheth his bed shal wash his clothes, and bathe him self with water, and be vncleane vntyll the euen.

And he y sytteth where he sat, shal wash his clothes, and bathe him self with water, and be vncleane vntyll the euen. Who so toucheth his flesh, shal wash his clothes, z bathe him self with water, and be vncleane vntyll the euen. Whan he sytteth vpon him that is cleane, y same shal wash his clothes, and bathe him self with water, z be vncleane vntyll the euen.

And the saddell and what so euer he rydeth vpon, shalbe vncleane. And who so euer toucheth eny thinge that hath bene vnder him, shalbe vncleane vntyll the euen. And who so beareth eny soch, shal wash his clothes, and bathe him self with water, and be vncleane vntyll the euen. And whom so euer he toucheth, and washeth not his handes first, the same shal wash his clothes, and bathe him self with water, and be vncleane vntyll the euen. Whan he toucheth an erthen vessell, it shal be broken: but the green vessell shal be remsed w water. And whā he is cleane of his yssue, he shal nombre vij. dayes, after y he is made cleane, z wash his clothes, z bathe him self w sprynginge water, the is he cleane. And vpon the eighth daye shal he take two turtill bones or two yonge pigeons, and bryng them before the LORD before the dore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse, and geue them vnto the prest. And the prest shal make of the one a synofferynge, of the other a burntofferynge, and make an attonement for him before the LORD, as concernynge his yssue.

E Whan a mans sede departeth from him in slepe, the same shal bathe all his flesh w water, and be vncleane vntyll the euen. And all clothes, and euery stynne that is stained with soch sede, shal he wash with water, z be vncleane vntyll the euen. A woman, by whom soch one lyeth, shal bathe hir self w water, and be vncleane vntyll the euen.

Whan a woman hath the bloude yssue of hir flesh, she shalbe put a parte vij. daies in to a sundrie place. Who so euer toucheth her, shal be vncleane vntyll the euen. And all that she lyeth vpon (as longe as she is put aparte) shalbe vncleane. And that she sytteth vpon, shalbe vncleane. And who so euer toucheth hir bed, shal wash his clothes, and bathe him self with water, and be vncleane vntyll the euen. And who so euer toucheth eny maner thinge that she hath sytten vpon, shal wash his clothes, and bathe him self with water, and be vncleane vntyll the euen.

D And yf a man lye with her (whyle she is put a parte) he shalbe vncleane seven dayes, and the bed that he laye vpon, shalbe vncleane.

But whan a woman hath hir bloude yssue a longe season, not onely at the tyme of hir naturall course, but also out of the tyme of hir naturall course, then shal she be vncleane so longe as she hath the yssue: euen as she is at the tyme whan she is put aparte, so shal she be vncleane here also. What so euer she lyeth vpon all the tyme of hir yssue, shalbe as hir bed, whan she is put aparte. And all that she sytteth vpon, shalbe vncleane, as is hir vncleanness, whan she is put aparte. Who so euer toucheth eny of them, shal be vncleane, and shal wash his clothes, and bathe him self with water, z be vncleane vntyll the euen.

E But yf she be cleane of hir yssue, the shal she nombre seven dayes, afterwarde shal she be cleane: and vpon the eighth daye shal

she take two turtill bones, or two yonge pigeons, and bryng them vnto the prest before the dore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse. And the prest shal make of the one a synofferynge, of the other a burntofferynge, and make an attonement for her before the LORD, as concernynge the yssue of hir vncleanness.

Thus shal ye se that the childre of Israel kepe them selues from their vncleanness, that they dye not in their vncleanness, whan they defyle my habitacion, which is amōge you.

This is the lawe ouer him that hath a runnyng sore, z him whose sede departeth from him in slepe, so that he is vncleane ther of. And ouer her that hath hir bloude yssue, and who so euer hath a runnyng sore, whether it be man or woman, and whan a man lyeth with her that is vncleane.

The XVI. Chapter.

And the LORD spake vnto Moses (after that Aarons two sonnes were deeb, whan they offered before the LORD) z sayde: Speake vnto Aaron thy brother, y he go not at all tymes in to y innermer Sanctuary, within the vail before the Mercyseate, which is vpon the Arke, y he dye not: for I wyll appeare in a cloude vpon y Mercyseate. But herewithall shal he go in, euen with a yonge bullocke for a synofferynge, and with a ramme for a burntofferynge, and shal put on the holy linnen albe, and haue linnen breeches vpon his fleshy, and gyrd him with a lynnē girdell, and haue the linnen myter vpon his heade.

B For these are y holy garmentes: z he shal bathe his flesh with water, z put them on: z of the cōgregation of the childre of Israel he shal take two he goates for a synofferynge, and a ramme for a burntofferynge.

And Aaron shal bryng the bullocke his owne synofferynge, and make an attonement for himself and his house: and afterwarde shal he take the two goates, and present them before the LORD, euen before the dore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse, and shal cast lottes ouer the two goates: the lot of the one goate for the LORD, and the other for the fre goate. And the goate that y LORDES lot fell vpon, shal he offre for a synofferynge. But the goate, that the fre goates lot fell vpon, shal he present alyue before y LORD, to make an attonement for him, and to let the fre goate go into y wyldernes. And so shal he bryng the bullocke of his synofferynge, and make an attonement for him and his housholde, and shal kyl him.

The iij. boke of Moses.

The xviij. Chap.

And he shall take a censor full of coales from the altare that stondech before the LORDE, and his handfull of beaten incense, and brynge them in within 3 wayle, and put the incense vpon the fyre before 3 LORDE, that the cloude of the incense maye couer the Mercysate, which is vpon the witnessse, that he dye not. And he shall take of the bloude of the bullocke, and sprenkle it with his synger towarde the Mercysate on the foresyde. Seven tymes shall he sprenkle of the bloude thus with his synger before the Mercysate. The shall he kyll the goate which is the peoples synofferynge, 2 brynge in of his bloude within the wayle, 2 shall do with his bloude, as he dyd with the bloude of the bullocke, and sprenkle therewith also on the foresyde towarde the Mercysate, and so shall he reconcyle the Sanctuary from the vncleynesse of the childre of Israel, and fro their trespasses in all their synnes. Thus shall he do vnto the Tabernacle of wytnesse, which is the habitacion with them amonge their vncleynesses.

No man shall be in the Tabernacle of witnessse, whan he goeth in to make an attonement in the Sanctuary, vntyll he go out: and so shall he make an attonement for him self and his house, and for the whole congregacion of Israel. And whā he goeth forth vnto the altare that stondech before the LORDE, he shall reconcyle it, and shall take of 3 bullockes bloude, and of the goates bloude, 2 put it vpon the homes of the altare rounde aboute. And with his synger shall he sprenkle of the bloude thereon seven tymes, and halowe it, and consecrate it from the vncleynesse of the children of Israel.

And whan he hath made an ende of reconcylinge the Sanctuary, and the Tabernacle of witnessse, and the altare, he shall bringe the lynynge goate.

The shall Aaron laie both his hādes vps 3 heade of him, 2 confesse ouer him all the mysdedes of 3 childre of Israel, 2 all their trespasses in their synnes, 2 shall laye the vps 3 heade of the goate, 2 by someman 3 is at hande, shall he let him runne in to the wyldernes: 3 the goate maye so beare all their mysdedes vpon him in to 3 wyldernes, and he shall leaue him in the wyldernes.

And Aaron shall go in to the Tabernacle of witnessse, and put of the lynnen clothes, which he put on whā he wente in to 3 Sanctuary, and shall leaue them there, and bathe his flesh with water in the holy place, and put on his awne rayment.

And he shall go forth, and make his burnt offeringe, and the burnt offeringe of the people, and make an attonement both for himself and for the people, and burne the fat of the synofferynge vpon the altare. But he 3 carried out the fyre goate, shall wash his clothes, and bathe him self with water, 2 then come in to the hoost.

The bullocke of the synofferynge, and 3 goate of the synofferynge (whose bloude was brought in to the Sanctuary to make an attonement) shall be carried out of 3 hoost, 2 brent with fyre, both their synnes, flesh, and donge. And he that burneth them, shall wash his clothes, and bathe him self with water, and then come in to the hoost.

And this shall be a perpetuall lawe vnto you: Vpon the tenth daye of the seventh moneth shall ye humble youre soules, and do no worke, whether it be one of youre selues, or a straunger amonge you. For in this daye is youre attonement made, that ye maye be clesed from all youre synnes before the LORDE: therfore shall it be a fre Sabbath vnto you, and ye shall humble youre soules. Let this be a perpetuall lawe.

But the priest that is anoynted, and whose hande was fylled to be priest in his fathers steade, shall make this attonement, and shall put on the lynnen clothes, namely the holy vestimētes, so shall he reconcyle the holy Sanctuary, and the Tabernacle of wytnesse, and the altare, and 3 prestes, and all the people of the congregacion. This shall be a perpetuall lawe vnto you, that ye reconcyle 3 childre of Israel from all their synnes once a yeaere. And Moses dyd, as the LORDE commaunded him.

The XVII. Chapter.

And 3 LORDE talked with Moses, 2 sayde: Speake vnto Aaron 2 his sonnes, 2 to all 3 childre of Israel, 2 saye vnto them: This is it that 3 LORDE hath commaunded: What so ever he be of 3 house of Israel, 3 killeth an oxe, or labe, or goate in the hoost, or out of the hoost, and bryngeth it not before the dore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse, that it maye be brought vnto the LORDE for an offeringe before the habitacion of 3 LORDE, the same shall be gilty of bloude, as though he had shed bloude, and soch a man shall be roted out from amonge his people.

Therfore shall the children of Israel brynge their offeringes (that they will offie vpon the wyde felde) before the LORDE, euen before the dore of the Tabernacle of witnessse, vnto the priest, 2 there offre their health offeringes vnto the LORDE. And the priest shall sprenkle the bloude vpon the altare of the LORDE before the dore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse, and burne the fat for a swete sauoure vnto the LORDE: and they shall offre their offeringes nomore vnto deuels, with whom they go a whoringe. This shall be a perpetuall lawe vnto them amonge their posterities.

Therfore shalt thou saie vnto the: What man so ever he be of the house of Israel, or a straunger also that is amonge you, which offereth a burnt offeringe or any other offeringe, and bringeth it not before the dore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse to offre it vnto the LORDE, he shall be roted out from amonge his people.

And what man so ever it be (either of the house of Israel, or a straunger amonge you) that eateth any maner of bloude, agaynst him wyll I set my face, and wil rote him out from amonge his people: for the soule of 3 body is in the bloude, and I haue geuen it you for the altare, that youre soules maye be reconcyled therewith: For the bloude that is in the soule maketh attonement. Therfore haue I sayde vnto the childre of Israel: No soule amonge you shall eate bloude, nor any straunger that dwelleth amonge you.

And what man so ever it be amonge you (whether he be of the house of Israel, or a straunger amonge you) that at the huntyng taketh a beest or foule which maye be eaten, he shall poure out the bloude of the same, 2 couer it with earth: for all flesh lyueth in the bloude.

And I haue sayde vnto the childre of Israel: Ye shall eate the bloude of no body: for the life of all flesh is in his bloude. Who so ever eateth it, shall be roted out. And what so ever soule eateth that which dyed alone, or 3 was torne of wylde beestes (whether he be one of youre selues or a straunger) the same shall wash his clothes, and bathe himself with water, and be vncleane vntyll the euen, and then is he cleane. But yf he wash not his clothes, nor bathe him self, then shall he beare his synne.

The XVIII. Chapter.

And the LORDE talked w Moses, 2 said: Speake vnto the childre of Israel, 2 saye vnto them: I am the LORDE youre God, Ye shall not do after 3 workes of the lande of Egypte, wherein ye dwelt: neither after the doynges of the lande of Canaan, in to the which I will brynge you. Ye shall not walke after their customes, but after my lawes shall ye do, 2 my statutes shall ye kepe, that ye maye walke therein: for I am the LORDE youre God. Therfore shall ye kepe my statutes and my lawes. For the man that doth the same, shall liue therein, for I am the LORDE.

No mā shall come at his nexte kynswoman, to vncouer hir preuytie: for I am 3 LORDE.

Thou shalt not vncouer 3 preuytie of 3 father 2 of 3 mother. It is thy mother, therfore shalt thou not vncouer hir preuytie.

Thou shalt not vncouer 3 preuytie of 3 fathers wise, for it is 3 fathers preuytie.

Thou shalt not vncouer the preuytie of thy sister, which is the doughter of 3 father or of 3 mother, whether she be borne at home or without.

Thou shalt not vncouer the preuytie of thy sonnes doughter, or of thy doughters doughter, for it is thine awne preuytie.

Thou shalt not vncouer 3 preuytie of 3 fathers wiues doughter, which is borne vnto him, and is thy sister.

Thou shalt not vncouer the preuytie of thy fathers sister, for it is thy fathers nexte kynswoman.

Thou shalt not vncouer the preuytie of thy mothers sister, for it is 3 mothers nexte kynswoman.

Thou shalt not vncouer the preuytie of thy fathers brother, to take his wife, for she is thine awnte.

Thou shalt not vncouer 3 preuytie of 3 doughter in lawe, for she is 3 sonnes wise, therfore shalt thou not vncouer hir preuytie.

Thou shalt not vncouer the preuytie of thy brothers wife, for it is thy brothers preuytie.

Thou shalt not vncouer the preuytie of thy wife and of hir doughter also, nether shalt thou take hir sonnes doughter or hir doughters doughter, to vncouer their preuyties, for they are hir nexte kynswomen. And it is wickednesse.

Thou shalt not take a wife and hir sister also, to vncouer hir preuytie, whyle she is yet alyue.

Thou shalt not go vnto a woman to vncouer hir preuytie, so longe as she hath hir disease in hir vncleynesse.

Thou shalt not lye with thy neighbours wife to medle with her, for to defyle thy self withall.

Thou shalt not gene of thy seide also, to be burnt vnto Moloch, lest thou vnhalowe the name of thy God, for I am the LORDE.

 Thou shalt not lye with mankynde as
 with womankynde, for y is abhominacion.
 Thou shalt lye with no maner of beest, to defyle y self therewith. And no woman shall have to do with a beest, for it is abhominacion.
 Ye shall defyle youre selues in none of the se thinges. For y heithen (whom I wil cast out before you) haue stayned them selues in all these, and the londe is defyled there tho-
 row. And their wickednesse wyl I vyset vpo them, so that the londe shall spue out the in-dwellers therof. Therfore kepe ye my statutes and lawes, and do not one of these abho-minacions, nether one of youre awne selues ner the straunger amonge you (for all soch abhominacions haue y people of this lode done which were before you, z haue defyled
 the lande) that the lande spue not you out al so, whan ye haue defyled it, as it spewed out the heythe, that were there before you. For who so ever commytte these abhominacions,
 the same soules shalbe roted out from amon-ge their people. Therfore kepe ye my statutes, that ye do not after y abhominable customes, which were before you, that ye be not defyled therewith: For I am the LORDE youre God.

The XIX. Chapter.

And the LORDE talked with Moses,
 and sayde: Speake to the whole congregation of the children of Israel, and saye vnto them: Ye shall be holy, for I am holy, euen the LORDE youre God. Eue-ry one feare his father and his mother. Ke-pe my holy dayes: for I am the LORDE you-re God. Ye shall not turne youre selues vnto Idols, z ye shall make you no goddes of me-tall: for I am the LORDE youre God.

B And whan ye wyl offre healt hofferynges vnto the LORDE, then shall ye offre the,
 that he maye be mercifull vnto you, z and ye shall eate them the same daye that ye of-fre them, and on the morow: what so ever is left on the thirde daye, shall be burnt with fy-re. But yf eny man eate therof vpon the thirde daye, then is he vnholly, and shall not be accepted, and the same eater shall beare his synne, because he hath vnhalowed the Sanctuary of the LORDE: and soch a soule
 shall be roted out from amonge his people.

C Whan thou reapest thy londe, thou shalt not reape downe the vttermost borders of it rounde aboute, ner gather it all cleane vp.
 Euen so likewise thou shalt not plucke thy vynyarde cleane also, ner gather vp the grapes that are fallen downe, but shalt leane

them for y poore and strangers: for I am the LORDE youre God.

Ye shall not steale, nether lye, ner deale falsely one with another.

Ye shall not sweare falsely by my name, z
 so to vnhalowe the name of thy God: for
 I am the LORDE.

Thou shalt do y neghbourne no wronge, ner robbe him. The workmas laboure shall not byde with the vntyll the mornynge.

Thou shalt not curse the deaf. Thou shalt put no stomblyng blocke before y blinde, but shalt feare thy God: for I am the LORDE.

Ye shall not deale wrongeously in indgment, nether shall ye accepte the personne of the poore, ner honoure the parsonne of the greute, but thou shalt indge thy neghbourne righteously.

Thou shalt let no preny accuser go amoge
 y people. Nether shalt thou stonde agaynst
 y neghbour's bloude: for I am y LORDE.

Thou shalt not hate thy brother in thine
 hert, but shalt tell y neghbourne his faute,
 that thou beare not synne for his sake.

Thou shalt not auenge thy self, ner beare
 euell will agaynst the childre of thy people.

Thou shalt loue thy neghbourne, as thy self: for I am the LORDE.

My statutes shall ye kepe, that thou let not y catell gendie with beestes of another kynde: nether sowe thy selde with myngled seede. And let no garment come vpon the, y is mixte with wollen and linnen.

Whan a man lyeth with a woman, and hath to do with her, which is a bonde woman, and hath benemedled withall of another man, but not lawed out, ner hath optay-ned fredome, it shalbe punyshed, but they shall not suffre death, because she was not fre.
 But he shall bryng for his trespase vnto y LORDE (euen before the dore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse) a ramme for a trespase of ferynge: and the prest shall make an attonement for him with the trespase offerynge before the LORDE, concernynge the synne that he hath done: so shall God be merci-full vnto him, as concernynge his synne
 which he hath done.

What tyme as ye are come into the lon-de, and plante all maner trees wherof men eate, ye shall circumsise the foresaynne of the same with their frutes: thre yeares shall ye holde them for vncircumcysed, so that ye eate them not: but in the fourth yeare shall all their frutes be holy and praysed vnto y LORDE. In the fifth yeare shall ye eate the frutes, and gather them in: for I am y LOR-DE youre God.

Ye shall eate nothynge w bloude. Ye shall not regarde y foules cryenge, ner chose out dayes.

Ye shall haue no crownes vpo youre hea-de, nether shalt thou clyppe thy beerde clea-ne off.

Ye shall rente out no markes in youre body (for eny that is deed) ner make lettres vpo
 you: for I am the LORDE.

Thou shalt not holde thy doughter to whoredome, that the londe fall not to whor-dome, and ware full of wickednesse.

Kepe my holy dayes, and stonde in awe of my Sanctuary: for I am the LORDE.

Ye shall not turne y selues to y soyth-sayers, and are nothynge at the expounders of tokes, that ye be not defyled by them: for
 I am the LORDE youre God.

Thou shalt ryse vp before a graye heade, and shalt geue reuerence vnto the aged. For thou shalt feare God: for I am y LORDE.

Whan there dwelleth a straunger amon-ge you in youre londe, ye shall not vex him.
 He shall dwell with you, euen as one that is at home amonge you, z thou shalt loue him
 as y self: for ye youre selues also were straun-gers in the lande of Egipte. I am the LOR-
 DE youre God.

Ye shall not deale wrongeously in indgment, with meteyarde, with weight, with measure: A true balaunce, a true weight, a true Epha, a true Hin shalbe amoge you. For I am the LORDE youre God, which brought you out of the londe of Egipte, that ye shul-de kepe z do all my statutes and lawes: for
 I am the LORDE.

The XX. Chapter.

And the LORDE talked with Moses,
 and sayde: Tell the children of Israel:
 Who so ever he be amonge the children of Israel, (or eny straunger that dwelleth in Israel) which geueth of his seide vnto Moloch, the same shall dye the death: the people of the lande shall stone him, z I wyl set my face agaynst that man, and wyl rote him out from amoge his people, because he hath geuen of his seide vnto Moloch, and defyled my Sanctuary, z vnhalowed my holy name. And though the people of the londe loke thorow the syngers vpon that man,
 which hath geuen of his seide vnto Moloch,
 so that they put him not to death, yet wyl I set my face agaynst the same man, z agaynst his generacion: And him, and all that go a-whoringe with him after Moloch, wyl I rote out from amonge their people.

If eny soule turne him to y soythsayers
 and expounders of tokes, so that he goeth
 a whoringe after them, I wyl set my face a-gaynst the same soule, and wyl rote him out from amonge his people. Sanctifie youre selues therfore, z be holy: for I am holy euen youre God. And kepe ye my statutes, and do them: for I am y LORDE that sanctifieth
 you.

Who so ever curseth his father or his mother, shall dye the death: his bloude be vpon him, because he hath cursed his father or mother.

He that breaketh wedlocke with eny mas wife, shall dye the death (both the aduon-rer and y aduoueresse) because he hath broken wedlocke with his neghbour's wife.

If eny man lye with his fathers wife, so y he vncover his fathers prenyte, they shall both dye the death: their bloude be vpo the.

If eny man lye with his doughter in lawe,
 they shall dye both of them, for they haue wrought abhominacion: their bloude be vpon them.

If eny man lye with the mankynde, as with womankynde, they haue wrought ab-hominacion, z shall both dye the death: their bloude be vpon them.

If eny man take a wyfe, and hir mother thereto, the same hath wrought wickednes:
 he shalbe burnt with fyre, and so shall they al
 so, that there be no wickednes amoge you.

If eny man lye with a beest, he shall dye
 the death, and the beest shall be slayne.

If a woman medle with a beest, so y she haue to do with it, thou shalt put her to death,
 and the beest also, they shall dye the death:
 their bloude be vpon them.

If eny man take his sister, his fathers
 doughter, or his mothers doughter, and se hir prenyte, and she agayne se his secretes, it is a wicked thinge. They shalbe roted out in the sight of their people. For he hath vncouered his sisters prenyte, he shall beare his synne.

If a man lye with a woman in the tyme of hir sicknesse, and vncover hir secretes, z open vp hir founneyne, and she vncover the fountayne of hir bloude, they shall both be roted out from amonge their people.

Thou shalt not vncover the prenytie of thy mothers sister, and of thy fathers sister:
 for soch one hath vncovered his nexte kyns-
 woman, and they shall beare their synne.

If eny man lye with his vncl's wyfe, the same hath vncovered the prenytie of his vn-

children shall beare their synne, without children shall they dye.

U. 10. b
Ex. 14. a
* If any man take his brothers wyfe, & is an vncleane thinge: they shall be without children, because he hath vncouered his brothers secretes.

D So kepe now all my statutes & my lawes, & do them, & the lode whither I brynge you to dwell therein, spewe you not out. And walke not ye in y statutes of the heithen, which I shall cast out before you. For all such thinges haue they done, & I haue abhorred the.

cut. 9. a
But I saye vnto you: Ye shall possesse their londe. For I wyll geue you to inheritaunce a lode, that floweth with mylke and hony. I am the LORDE youre God, which haue separated you from the nacions, that ye also shulde separate the cleane bestes fro the vncleane, and the vncleane soules from the cleane: & not to defyle youre soules vpon bestes, vpon soules & vpon all that crepeth on the ground: which I haue separated vnto you, that they shulde be vncleane. Therfore shall ye be holy vnto me: for I the LORDE am holy, which haue separated you fro the nacions, that ye shulde be myne.

Leu. 19. b
Ec. 28. b
If a man or woman be a soythfayer or an expounder of tokens, the same shall dye the death: they shall be stoned, their bloude be vpon them.

The XXI. Chapter.

Ze. 44. d
And the LORDE sayde vnto Moses: Speake to y prestes & sonnes of Aaron, & saye vnto the: A prest shall defyle him self vpon no soule of his people, but vpon his nexte kyme & belongeth vnto him: as vpon his mother, vpon his father, vpon his sonne, vpon his doughter, vpon his brother, & vpon his sister, which is yet a virgin, & hath bene no mans wife (which belongeth vnto him) vpon her maie he defyle himself. Moreover he shall not defyle him self vpon any ruler in his people, to vnhalowe him self.

Leu. 19. f
Ex. 44. c
* He shall make no crowne also vpon his heade, ner shawe of his beard, nether shall they cut out any markes i their fleshe. They shall be holy vnto their God, and not vnhalowe y name of their God: for they offre the sacrifice of the LORDE, the bried of their God, therfore shall they be holy.

B They shall take no whore, ner one that is defyled, or y is put awaye from hir husbande, for he is holy vnto his God: therfore shall he sanctifie him self, for he offreth the bried of thy God. He shall be holy vnto the, for I am holy, euen the LORDE that sanctifieth you.

1. Tim. 2. a
If a prestes doughter fall to whoringe,

she shall be burnt with fyre, for she hath shamed hir father. He that is hye prest amonge his brethren, vpon whose heade the anoyntinge oyle is poured, and his hande fylled (y he might be arayed with the vestimentes) shall not vncouer his heade, ner cut his clothes, & shall come at no deed, & shall defyle him self nether vpon father ner mother. He shall not go out of the Sanctuary, that he vnhalowe not the Sanctuary of his God. For y crowne of the anoyntinge oyle of his God is vpon him, for I am the LORDE.

Eze. 44. b
A virgin shall he take to wife, but no wedowe, ner deuorced, ner defyled, ner whore, but a virgin of his awne people shall he take to wife, y he vnhalowe not his sede amonge his people. For I am y LORDE, which sanctifie him.

And y LORDE talked w Moses, & sayde: Speake vnto Aaron, & saie: If there be a blemish vpon any of y sede in yo generations, the same shall not preasse to offre the bried of his God: For who so ever hath a blemish vpon him, shall not come nere, whether he be blynde, lame, with an euell fauoured nose, or eny mysshappen membre, or y hath a broken fore or hande, or is crooke backed, or hath eny blemish in the eye, or is gleyd, or is slayr vye or scaulde, or hath his stones broken.

Who so ever now of the sede of Aaron y prest hath eny blemish vpon him, shall not come nye to offre y sacrifice of the LORDE. For he hath a deformyte. Therfore shall he not preasse vnto the bried of his God, to offre it. Notwithstandinge he shall eate of the bried of his God, both of the holy, & of y most holy: but he shall not go in to y vayne, ner come nye the altare (for so moch as he hath a blemish vpon him) y he vnhalowe not my Sanctuary. For I am y LORDE y sanctifieth the. And Moses spake this vnto Aaron & to his sonnes, and to all the children of Israel.

The XXII. Chapter.

And the LORDE talked with Moses, & sayde: Speake vnto Aaron, & his sonnes, & they absteyne from y halowed thinges of the childre of Israel, which they haue halowed vnto me, & y they vnhalowe not my holy name: for I am y LORDE. Saie now vnto them & their posterities: Who so ever he be of yo sede, y cometh nye vnto the holy thinges, which the childre of Israel halowe vnto the LORDE, & so defyleth him self vpon the same, his soule shall perishe before my face: for I am the LORDE.

Who so ever of the sede of Aaron is a leper, or hath a runnyng yssue, shall not eate of the holy thinges, tyll he be clensed. Who so toucheth eny vncleane thinge, or whose se dedeparteth from him by night, or who so toucheth eny womne that is vncleane vnto him, or a ma y is vncleane vnto him, & what so euer defyleth hi, loke what soule toucheth eny such, is vncleane vntill the euen, & shall not eate of the holy thinges, but shall first bath his flesh with water. And wha y Sonne is gone downe, and he cleane, then maye he eate therof, for it is his foode. Loke what dyeth alone, or is rent of wyld beestes, shall he not eate, y he be not vncleane thereon: for I am y LORDE. Therfore shall they kepe my lawes, y they lade not synne vpon them, & dye therein, whan they vnhalowe them selues in it. For I am y LORDE, y halowe them.

B A stranger shall not eate of the holy thinges, ner an housholde gest of the prestes, ner an hyred seruaut. But yf y prest bye a soule for his money, y same maye eate therof. And loke who is borne in his house, maye eate of his bried also. Nevertheless yf the prestes doughter be a strangers wife, she shall not eate of the heueofferinges of holynes. But yf she be a wedowe, or deuorced, or haue no fede, & cometh agayne to hir fathers house as afore (whan she was yet a mayden in hir fathers house) then shall she eate of hir fathers bried. But no stranger shall eate therof.

Who so els eateth of the halowed thynges, vnwytingly, shall put y fift part thereof vnto, and geue it vnto the prest with the halowed thinge, that they vnhalowe not y halowed thinges of the children of Israel, which they heue vp vnto the LORDE, lest they lade them selues with myssdoinge and trespass, wha they eate their halowed thynges, for I am y LORDE which halowe the.

C And y LORDE talked w Moses, & sayde: Speake vnto Aaron & his sonnes, & to all y childre of Israel: What so ever Israelite or stranger in Israel wyll do his offeringe, whether it be their vowe, or of fre wyl, that they wyll offre a burnt offeringe vnto the LORDE, to reconcile them selues, it shall be a male, and without blemish, of the oxen, or lambes or goates. What so ever hath eny blemish, shall they not offre, for they shall synde no fauoure therewith.

And who so wyl offre an healt offeringe vnto the LORDE to separate out a vowe, or of fre wyl, oxen or shepe, it shall be without blemish, y it maye be accepted. It shall haue no deformite. If it be blynde, or broke, or wounded, or haue a wen, or slayr vye, or scabbed, they shall offre none such vnto the LOR

DE, ner put an offeringe of eny such vpon the altare of the LORDE.

An ore or shepe y hath mysshappen membres, or no rompe, mayest thou offre of a fre wyl: but to a vowe it maye not be accepted. Thou shalt offre also vnto the LORDE no thinge y is bruised, or broken, or rent, or cutt out, & ye shall do no such in youre londe. Moreover ye shall offre no bried vnto youre God of a strangers hande: for it is marred of him, and he hath a deformite, therfore shall it not be accepted for you.

And the LORDE spake vnto Moses, & sayde: Wha an ore, or labe, or goate is brought forth, it shall be seuen dayes with the dame, and vpon the eighth daye & thereafter it maie be offered vnto the LORDE, the is it accepted. Whether it be ore or lambe, it shall not be slayne with his yonge in one daye.

But wha ye wil offre a thakoffringe vnto the LORDE y it maye be accepted, ye shall eate it the same daye, & kepe nothinge ouer vntill the morryng: for I am the LORDE. Therfore kepe now my commandementes, and do them: for I am the LORDE, y ye vnhalowe not my holy name, & that I maye be halowed amonge the children of Israel. For I am he that halowe you, eny y LORDE, which brought you out of y lode of Egipte, y I might be yo God: Euen y y LORDE.

The XXIII. Chapter.

And the LORDE talked with Moses, & sayde: Speake vnto y children of Israel, and saye vnto them: These are y feastes of the LORDE, which ye shall call holy dayes. Sire dayes shall thou worke, but the seuenth daie is the rest of the Sabbath, and shall be called holy. Ye shall do no worke therein, for it is the Sabbath of the LORDE, where so euer ye dwell.

These are the feastes of the LORDE, y are called holy, which ye shall call youre feastes: * Apon y fourtene daye of y first moneth at euen, is the LORDES Easter. And vpon y fiftene daye of the same moneth is the feast of vlnenēded bried of the LORDE. Then shall ye eate vlnenēded bried seuen dayes.

The first daie shall be called holy amonge you, ye shall do no worke of bbdage therein, & seue daies shall ye offre vnto y LORDE. The seuenth daie shall be called holy likewise, wher in ye shall do no worke of bondage also.

And y LORDE talked w Moses, & sayde: Speake to the childre of Israel, & saye vnto them: Whan ye come in to the lande y I shall geue you, and reape downe youre harvest, ye shall brynge a shefe of the first frutes of youre harvest vnto the priest, the shall the shefe be waied before the LORDE, that ye maye be accepted: but this shal the priest do the nexte daye after the Sabbath. And y<sup>e</sup> same daie that y<sup>e</sup> shefe is waied, shal ye offere a burnt offeringe vnto the LORDE, of a lambe which is without blemish and of one yea- re olde, wth the meat offeringe, two tenth dea- les of fyne floure mengled with oyle, for an offeringe of a swete sauoure vnto the LOR- DE: & the drynt offeringe also, eue the fourth parte of an hin of wyne.

And ye shall eate nether bried, nor cakes, ner surmentye (of new corne) tyll the same daye that ye brynge an offeringe vnto you- re God. This shal be a lawe vnto youre pos- terities, where so euer ye dwell.

Then shal ye nombre from the nexte daye after the Sabbath, whan ye brought y<sup>e</sup> Wa- ueshefe, seven whole weekes, vntyll the nexte daie after y<sup>e</sup> seventh weke, namely, fiftie daies, shal ye nombre, and offere new meat offeringes vnto the LORDE. And out of all youre dwellinges shal ye offere, namely, two Waue loanes of two tenth deales of fyne floure le- ued, and baken for the first frutes vnto y<sup>e</sup> LORDE. And with youre bried ye shal bryn- ge seven lambes of one yea- re olde without blemish, and a yonge bullocke, and two ram- mes: this shal be the LORDES burnt offeringe, meat offeringe, and drynt offeringe. This is a sacrifice of a swete sauoure vnto the LORDE.

Moreover ye shal offere an he goate for a syn offeringe, and two lambes of a yea- re olde for an health offeringe. And y<sup>e</sup> priest shal waie it vpon the bried of the first frutes be- fore the LORDE with the two lambes. And they shal be holy vnto the LORDE, and shal be the prestes. And this daye shal ye procla- me, for it shal be called holy amonge you: no seruyle worke shal ye do therein. A perpetuall lawe shal it be amonge y<sup>e</sup> posterities, whe- re so euer ye dwell.

Whan ye reape downe y<sup>e</sup> harvest of you- re londe, ye shal not cut it cleane downe vpon the felde, ner gather vp all, but shal leane it for the poore and straungers. I am the LOR- DE youre God.

And y<sup>e</sup> LORDE talked with Moses, and sayde: Speake vnto the children of Israel, & saye: Vpon the first daye of the seventh mo- neth shal ye haue the holy rest of the remem- braunce of blowinge, wherein ye shal do no seruyle worke, and ye shal offere sacrifice vnto the LORDE.

sayde: Vpon the tenth daye in this seventh moneth is the daye of reconcylinge, which shal be an holy conuocation to you. Ye shal humble youre soules therein, and offere vnto the LORDE, and shal do no seruyle worke in this daye: for it is the daye of attonement, that ye maye be reconcyled before the LOR- DE youre God. For what soule so euer hum- bleth not him self vpon this daye, the same shal be roted out from amonge his people. And what soule so euer doth eny worke this daye, the same wil I destroye from amonge his people: therfore shal ye do no worke. This shal be a perpetuall lawe vnto youre posterities, where so euer ye dwell. It is the rest of youre Sabbath, that ye maye hum- ble youre soules. Vpon the nyenth daye of y<sup>e</sup> moneth atanen, shal ye kepe this holy daye from the euen forth vntyll the eue agayne.

And the LORDE talked with Moses, & sayde: Vpon the fiftene daye of the seventh moneth, is the feast of Tabernacles seven dayes vnto the LORDE. The first daye shal be an holy conuocation: no seruyle worke shal ye do therein. Seven dayes shal ye offere vnto the LORDE. The eight daye shal be an holy conuocation vnto you also, and ye shal offere vnto the LORDE: for it is the daye of gathe- ringe together: No seruyle worke shal ye do therein.

These are the holy daies of the LORDE, which ye shal proclame and holde for holy conuocations, that ye maye offere vnto the LORDE burnt offeringes, meat offeringes, drynt offeringes and other offeringes, eue- ry one accordinge to his daye, besyde y<sup>e</sup> Sab- bathes of y<sup>e</sup> LORDE, and youre giftes, and vowes, and frewyl offeringes, that ye offere vnto the LORDE.

So vpon the fiftene daye of the seventh moneth, whan ye haue brought in the increa- se of the londe, ye shall kepe the LORDES feast seven dayes longe. The first daye shal- be kepte holy daye, and the eight daye shal- be kepte holy daye also. And vpon the first daie ye shal take of y<sup>e</sup> goodly frutesfull trees, braunches of palme trees, & bowes of thic- ke trees, and Wyllies of the broke, and seue- dayes shal ye be merry before y<sup>e</sup> LORDE you- re God: and thus shal ye kepe the feast vnto the LORDE seven dayes in the yea- re. This shal be a perpetuall lawe amonge youre pos- terities, that they kepe holy daye thus in y<sup>e</sup> seventh moneth. Seven dayes shal ye dwell in bothes. Who so euer is an Israelite boire, shal dwell in bothes, that they which come after you, maye knowe, how that I made y<sup>e</sup> children of Israel to dwell in bothes, whan I brought them out of the lode of Egipte. I am the LORDE youre God. And Moses tolde the children of Israel these holy daies of the LORDE.

The XXIII. Chapter.

And the LORDE spake vnto Moses, & sayde: Comaunde the children of Is- rael, that they brynge pure oyle olyue beaten for lightes, that it maye be allwaye put in the lampes, without before the wayle of wytnesse in the Tabernacle of wytnesse. And Aaron shal dresse it allwaye at euen & in y<sup>e</sup> mornynge before the LORDE. Let this be a perpetuall lawe vnto youre posterities. The lampes shal be dresse vpon the pure can- dilsticke before the LORDE perpetuallly.

And thou shalt take fyne floure, and ba- ke twolue cakes therof: two tēth deales shal every cake haue, & thou shalt laye them fire on a rowe vpon the pure table before the LOR- DE. And vpon the same shalt thou laye pu- re frankencense, that it maye be bried of re- membraunce for an offeringe vnto y<sup>e</sup> LOR- DE. Euery Sabbath shal he prepare the be- fore the LORDE allwaye, and receaue them of the children of Israel for an everlastin- ge couenaunt. And they shal be Aarons & and his sonnes, which shal eate them in the holy place. For this is his most holy of the offeringes of the LORDE for a perpetuall dewtye.

And there wente out an Israelitish wo- mans sonne, which was the childe of a man of Egipte (amonge the children of Israel) and stroue in y<sup>e</sup> hoost with a man of Israel, & named the name of God blasphemously, & cursed. Then brought they him vnto Mo- ses. His mothers name was Selomith, the daughter of Dibui, of the trybe of Dan. And they put him in prison, tyll they were in- formed by the mouth of the LORDE.

And the LORDE spake vnto Moses, and sayde: Brynge him that cursed, out of the hoost, and let all the that herde it, laye their handes vpon his heade, and let the whole congregacion stone him. And saye vnto the childre of Israel. Who so euer blasphemeth his God, shall beare his synne: and he that blasphemeth the name of the LORDE, shal dye the death. The whole congregacio shal stone him. As the straunger, so shal he of the housholde be also. If he blaspheme the na- me, he shal dye.

He that slayeth a man, shall dye y<sup>e</sup> death. But he that slayeth a beest, shall paye for it. Soule for soule. And he that maymeth his neyghboure, it shall be done vnto him, euen as he hath done: broke for broke, eye for eye, tothe for tothe: euen as he hath maymed a man, so shal it be done vnto him agayne, so that, who so slayeth a beest, shall paye for it: But he that slayeth a man, shal dye. There shal be one maner of lawe amonge you, to y<sup>e</sup> straunger as to one of youre selues: for I am the LORDE youre God.

Moses tolde the children of Israel. And they brought him that had cursed, out of y<sup>e</sup> hoost, and stoned him. Thus dyd the childre of Israel as the LORDE comaunded Moses.

The XXV. Chapter.

And the LORDE talked with Moses vpon mount Sinai, and sayde: Spea- ke to the children of Israel, and saye vnto them: Whan ye come in to the londe, y<sup>e</sup> I shal gene you, the londe shal rest vnto the LORDE, so that thou sowe thy felde sixe yea- res, and sixe yea- res cut y<sup>e</sup> vines, and gather in the frutes. But in the seventh yea- re the lode shal haue his Sabbath of rest for a Sab- bath vnto the LORDE, wherein thou shalt not sowe thy felde ner cut thy vines.

Like what groweth of it self after thy harvest, thou shalt not reape it. And the gra- pes that growe without thy labour, shalt thou not gather, for so much as it is the yea- re of the londes rest: But the rest of the lon- de shalt thou kepe for this intent, that thou mayest eate therof, thy seruaunte, thy may- de, thy byrlinge, thy gest, thy straüger with the, thy catell, and the beestes in thy londe. All the increase shal be meate.

And thou shalt nombre seven of these yea- re Sabbathes, that seven yea- res maye betol- de seven tymes, and so the tyme of the seven yea- re Sabbathes make nyne and fourtye yea- res. Then shalt thou let the blast of the horne go thoro all youre londe, vpon the tenth daye of the seventh moneth, euen in y<sup>e</sup> daye of attonement. And ye shal halowe the fiftieth yea- re, and shall call it a fre yea- re in y<sup>e</sup>

londe, for all them that dwell therein: for it is the yeare of Jubilee. * Then shall every one amonge you come agayne to his possession and to his kynred: for the fiftieth yeare is y<sup>e</sup> yeare of Jubilee. Ye shal not sowe ner reape it that groweth of it self, ner gather the grapes, that growe without labour. For the yeare of Jubilee shall be holy amonge you. But loke what the felde beareth, that shall ye eate. This is the yeare of Jubilee, wherein ye shal come agayne every man to his owne.

C Now whan thou sellest ought unto thy neghbour, or byest any thinge of him, there shal none of you oppresse his brother: but accordinge to the nombre of the yeare of Jubilee shalt thou bye it of him: and accordinge to the nombre of the yeares of increase shall he sell it unto the. Accordinge to the multitude of the yeares shalt thou raise the pryce, and accordinge to the fewnesse of the yeares shalt thou mynyshe the pryce: for he shall sell it unto the accordinge to the nombre of the increase. Therfore let no man defraude his neghbour, but feare y<sup>e</sup> God. For I am the LORDE youre God. Wherfore do after my statutes, and kepe my lawes, so y<sup>e</sup> ye do them that ye maye dwell safe in the londe. For the londe shal geue you hir frute, so that ye shal haue ynough to eate, and dwell safe therein.

And yf ye wolde saye: What shall we eate in the seventh yeare, in as moch as we shal not sowe, ner gather in oure increase? I wyll sende my blessinge vpon you in the sixte yeare, that it shal brynge forth frute for thre yeares: so that ye shal sowe in y<sup>e</sup> eight yeare, and eate of the olde frute vntyll the nyenth yeare, that ye maye eate of the olde tyll new frutes come agayne. Therfore shall ye not sell the londe for ever, for the lode is myne. And ye are straungers and indwellers before me. And in all youre lande shall ye geue the londe to lowse.

Nu. 35. c
Exo. 32. a
Ruth. 4. a

Whan thy brother waxeth poore, and selleth y<sup>e</sup> his possession, and his nexte kynsmā commeth to him, y<sup>e</sup> he maye redeme it: then shall he redeme that his brother solde. But whan a man hath none to redeme it, and cā get so moch with his hande as to redeme o<sup>n</sup>e parte, then shall it be rekened how many yeares it hath bene solde, and the remnant shal be restored vnto him to whom he solde it, y<sup>e</sup> he maie come agayne to his possession. But yf his hande can not get so moch, as to haue one parte agayne, the shal it y<sup>e</sup> he solde be styll in the hande of the byer vntyll y<sup>e</sup> yeare of Jubilee: In y<sup>e</sup> same shal it go out, and returne to his owner agayne.

He that selleth a dwellinge house within the walles of the cite, hath an whole yeare respyte to lowse it out agayne: that shall be the tyme, wherein he maye redeme it. But yf he redeme it not afore the whole yeare be out, then shal he that bought it, and his successors kepe it for ever, and it shall not go out lowse in the yeare of Jubilee. Nevertheless yf it be an house in a vyllage that hath no wall aboute it, it shall be counted like vnto the felde of the countre, and maye be redemed and shal go out fre in the yeare of Jubilee.

The cities of the Levites, and the houses in the cities that their possession is in, maye allwaye be redemed. Who so purchaceth ought of the Levites, shal leave it in the yeare of Jubilee, whether it be house or cite that he hath had in possession. For the houses in the cities of the Levites are their possession amonge the children of Israel. But the felde before their cities shal not be solde, for it is their awne for ever.

Whan thy brother waxeth poore, and falleth in decaye besyde the, thou shalt receaue him as a straunger, or guest, that he maye lyue by the: and thou shalt take no vsury of him, ner more then thou hast geue, but shalt feare thy God, that thy brother maye lyue besydes the. For thou shalt not lende him y<sup>e</sup> money vpon vsury, ner delyuer him thy meate vpon vantage. For I am the LORDE y<sup>e</sup> God, which haue brought you out of the lode of Egypte, to geue you the lande of Canaan, and to be youre God.

Whan thy brother waxeth poore besyde the, and selleth himself vnto the, thou shalt not holde him as a bode mā: but as an hyred seruaunte and as a sojourner shall he be wth the, and serue the vntyll y<sup>e</sup> yeare of Jubilee. Then shal he departe lowse from the, and his childre with him, and shal returne to his awne kynred, and to his fathers possession: for they are my seruautes, whom I brought out of the londe of Egypte. Therfore shal they not be solde like bondmen. And thou shalt not raigne ouer them with cruelte, but shalt feare thy God. But yf thou wylt haue bode seruautes and maydens, thou shalt bye them of the heithen, that are rounde aboute you: of the children of the sojourners and straungers amonge you, and of their generacions with you, and that are borne in youre londe, the same shal ye haue for bonde seruautes, and shal possesse them, and youre children after you for an everlastinge possession, these shal be y<sup>e</sup> bondmen. But ouer youre brethren the children of Israel, there shall none of you raigne ouer another with cruelte.

G Whan a straunger or sojourner waxeth ryche by the, and thy brother waxeth poore besyde him, and selleth him self vnto y<sup>e</sup> straunger or sojourner by the, or to any of his kynne, then shall he haue right (after that he is solde) to be redemed agayne. And any of his brethren maye lowse him out: or his vncle or his vnclies sonne, or any other kynsmā of his kynred: Or yf his awne hande getteth so moch, he shal lowse him self out, and shal retien with him that bought him, from y<sup>e</sup> yeare that he solde him self, vntyll the yeare of Jubilee. And y<sup>e</sup> money shal be counted accordinge to the nombre of the yeares that he was solde, and his wages of the whole tyme shal be rekened withall.

If there be yet many yeares vnto y<sup>e</sup> yeare of Jubilee, then shal he (accordinge to the same) geue the more for his delyueraunce, thereafter as he is solde. If there remayne but few yeares vnto the yeare of Jubilee, then shall he geue agayne thereafter for his redemption. And his wages from yeare to yeare shal he reken withall, and thou shalt not let the other raigne cruelly ouer him in sight. But yf he bye not him self out after this maner, then shal he go out fre in the yeare of Jubilee, and his childre with him: for the childre of Israel are my seruautes, which I haue brought out of the londe of Egypte. I am the LORDE youre God.

Ye shall make you no Idols ner ymage, and ye shal reare you vp no piler, ner set vp any markstone in youre londe, to bowe youre selues therto. For I am the LORDE youre God. Kepe my Sabbathes, and stonde in awe of my Sanctuary. I am the LORDE.

The XXVI. Chapter.

If ye wyll walke now in my statutes, and kepe my commandementes and do them, the wyl I geue you rayne in due season, and y<sup>e</sup> londe shal geue hir increase, and the trees of y<sup>e</sup> felde shal brynge forth their frute. And the threshinge tyme shall reache vnto the wyne harvest, and the wyne harvest shal reache vnto the sowinge tyme. And ye shall eate y<sup>e</sup> bred in plenteousnes, and shal dwell safe in youre londe. I wil geue peace in youre londe, so that ye shall slepe, and no man shall make you afayed. I wyl ryd euell beestes out of youre londe, and there shall no swerde go thorow youre londe.

Ye shal chace youre enemies, and they shal fall into y<sup>e</sup> swerde before you. * Syue of you shal chace an hundred: and an hundred of you shal chace ten thousande. For youre enemies shall fall in to the swerde before you. And I wyl turne me vnto you, and wyl canse you to growe and increase, and wyl set vp my couenaunt with you. And ye shal eate of the olde stoare, and shall let go the olde for plenteousnesse of the new. * I will haue my dwellinge amonge you, and my soule shall not refuse you. And I wyl walke amonge you, and wyl be youre God, and ye shal be my people. For I am the LORDE youre God, which brought you out of the londe of Egypte, that ye shulde not be their bondmen. And I haue brokē the cepter of youre yocke, and caused you to go vp right.

Exo. 29. g
2. Cor. 6. c

But yf ye wil not harken vnto me, ner do all these commaundementes, and wyl despyse my statutes, and yf youre soules refuse my lawes, y<sup>e</sup> ye wyll not do all my commandementes, and shal let my couenaunt stonde, then wyll I do this agayne vnto you. I wyl vyset you shortly with swellnges and fevers, which shal destroye y<sup>e</sup> eyes, and consume awaie y<sup>e</sup> hert. Ye shal sowe youre seede in vayne, and youre enemies shal eate it vp.

Deut. 28. b
Mala. 2. a

And I wyl set my face agaynst you, and ye shal be slayne before youre enemies. And they that hate you, shal haue dominion ouer you. And ye shall flye, whā no man chaseth you.

Pro. 29. a

But yf ye wyll not herten vnto me for all this, then wyl I make it yet seven tymes more, to punyshe you for youre synnes, that I maye breake y<sup>e</sup> pryde of youre strength, and wyl make youre heauenlye yon, and youre earth as brasse: and youre trauaile and labo<sup>r</sup> shal be but lost, so that youre londe shal not geue hir increase, and the trees in the londe shal not brynge forth their frute.

If ye walke yet agaynst me, and wyll not harken vnto me, then wyl I make it yet seven tymes more, to punyshe you because of youre synnes: and wyl sende wyld beestes amonge you, which shal robbe you, and destroye youre catell, and make you fewer, and youre hye waye shal become waist.

But yf ye wyl not yet be reformed here withall, and wyll walke contrary vnto me, then wyl I walke contrary vnto you also, and wyl punyshe you yet seven tymes for youre synnes. And I wyl brynge vpon you a swerde of vengeance, which shal auenge my Testament. And though ye gather you together in to youre cities, yet wyll I sende the pestilence amonge you, and wyl delyuer you in to the handes of youre enemies. For I wil destroye youre prouysion of bred, so y<sup>e</sup> ten women shal bake youre bred in one o<sup>n</sup>e men, and youre bried shal be deliuered out by weight. And whan ye eate, ye shall not haue ynough.

E If ye wyl not yet for all this harken vnto me, & wyl walke contrary vnto me, then wyl I also walke contrary vnto you in wrathfull displeasure, and wyl punyssh you sevenfold because of youre synnes, so that ye shal eate the flesh of youre sonnes and daughters. And I wyl destroye youre hye altars, and rote out youre ymages, and wyl cast youre bodies vpon the bodies of youre Idols, and my soule shal abhorre you. And youre cities wyl I make waist, and brynge youre churches to naught, and wyl not smell youre swete odoures.

Thus wyl I make the londe desolate, so that youre enemies shall dwell therein, and make it waist: but you will I scatter amonge the heithen, and drawe out the swerde after you, so that youre londe shal be waist, & youre cities desolate.

S Then shall the londe reioyse in hir Sabbathes, as longe as it lyeth wayst, and ye be in the enemies londe. Xee then shal the londe kepe holy daye, and reioyse in hir rest, as longe as it lieth wayst, because it coude not rest in youre Sabbathes, whan ye dwelt therein.

And as for them that remayne of you, I wyl make them saynte harted in the londe of their enemies, so that a shakynge leaf shall chace them. And they shall flye from it, as though a swerde persecuted them, and shal fall noman folowynge vpon them. And they shall fall one vpon another (as it were before the swerde) and noman yet chacynge them. And ye shall not be so bolde, as to withstonde youre enemies, and shal perishe amonge the heithen, and the londe of youre enemies shal eate you vp.

And they that are left of you, shall pyne awaye in their mysdede, euen in the enemies londe, and in the mysdedes of their fathers shall they consume awaye. Then shall they knowlege their mysdedes, and the mysdedes of their fathers in the trespase, wherewith they haue trespassed agaynst me, and walked contrary vnto me. Therefore wyl I also walke contrary vnto the, and wyl brynge them in to the enemies londe.

G Then shall their vncircumcysed herte be tamed. And then shall they ende their mysdedes. And I shal thinke vpon my couenaunt with Jacob, and vpon my couenaunt with Abraham, and wyl thynke vpon the lode. As for the londe, whan it shalbe left of them, it shal reioyse in hir Sabbathes, euen then, whan it lyeth waist, and they tulle it not. And they shall make attonement for their mysdedes, because they despyed my lawes, & their sonles refused my statutes. Moreover I haue not so refused them, that they shoulde be in the enemies londe: nether haue I so vterly abhorred them, that I wolde brynge them to naught, and breake my couenaunt wth them: for I am  $\gamma$  LORDE their God. And for their sake I wyl remembre my first couenaunt, wha I brought them out of  $\gamma$  londe of Egypte in the sight of the heithen, & I might be their God. Euen I the LORDE.

These are the ordinancees, statutes and lawes, which  $\gamma$  LORDE made betwixte him and the children of Israel vpon mount Sinai, by the hande of Moses.

The XXVII. Chapter.

AND the LORDE talked with Moses, & sayde: Speake to  $\gamma$  children of Israel, & saye vnto them: If eny man make a speciall vowe vnto  $\gamma$  LORDE, so  $\gamma$  he prysse a soule, then shal this be the valuation: A ma of twentye yere olde vnto the thre score yere, shal thou set at fiftie syluer Sycles, after the Cycle of the Sanctuary: but a woman at thirtie Sycles. If it be fyne yere olde vnto twentye yere, then shalt set it at twentye Sycles, whan it is a man childe: but a woman at ten Sycles. If it be a moneth olde vnto fyne yere, thou shalt set it at fyne Sycles of syluer, whan it is a machilde: but a woman at thre Syluer Sycles. If he be thre score yere olde and aboue, the shal thou set him at fiftene Sycles wha it is a ma a woma at te Sycles. If he be to poore so to be set, the let him present himself to  $\gamma$  prest, &  $\gamma$  prest shal value him. Nevertheless he shal value him, acordinge as  $\gamma$  hāde of him that vowed, is able to get. But yf it be a beest  $\gamma$  maye be offred vnto  $\gamma$  LORDE, all  $\gamma$  is offred vnto  $\gamma$  LORDE of lode, is holy: it shal not be altered ner chaunged, a good for a bad, or a bad for a good. If eny man chaunge it, one beest for another, then shal they both be holy vnto  $\gamma$  LORDE. But yf  $\gamma$  beest be vn cleane which maye not be offred vnto  $\gamma$  LORDE, the shal it be set, before  $\gamma$  prest, and  $\gamma$  prest shal value it, whether it be good or bad, & it shal stonde at the prestes valuyng. But yf eny man wil bye it out, he shal geue the fiftth parte more, to that it was set at.

Whan eny mā sanctifieth his house vnto the LORDE for  $\gamma$  Sanctuary, the prest shal value it, whether it be good or bad. And as the prest valueth it, so shal it stonde. But yf

he  $\gamma$  sanctified it, wyl redeme it, he shal geue  $\gamma$  fiftth parte of syluer thereto, aboue that it was set at: So shal it be his.

E If eny man halowe a pece of lode of his heretage vnto the LORDE, it shalbe set acordinge to  $\gamma$  it beareth. If it beare an Homer of barley, it shalbe valued at fiftie Sycles of syluer. But yf he halowe his londe immediately from the yere of Jubilee forth, then shal it be set acordinge to  $\gamma$  value therof. If he haue halowed it after the yere of Jubilee, then shal the prest reke it, acordinge to  $\gamma$  yeres  $\gamma$  remayne vnto  $\gamma$  yere of Jubilee, & thereafter shal he set it the lower.

But yf he  $\gamma$  sanctified the londe, wyl redeme it agayne, then shal he geue the fiftth parte of syluer thereto, aboue that it was set at: So shal it be his. If he wil not lowse it out, but selleth it vnto another, then shal he redeme it no more: but the same londe whan it goeth out fre in  $\gamma$  yere of Jubilee, shal be holy vnto the LORDE, as a dedicated felde, and shalbe the prestes inheritaunce.

D If eny man halowe vnto the LORDE a felde, which he hath bought, and is not his inheritaunce, then shal  $\gamma$  prest reken it, what it is worth vnto the yere of Jubilee, & the same daye shal he geue the pryce that it is set at, vnto the LORDE for the Sanctuary. But in  $\gamma$  yere of Jubilee it shal retorne vnto him that bought it, & it maye be his inheritaunce in the londe. All maner of prysynge shalbe made acordinge to the Cycle of the Sanctuary. One Cycle maketh xx. Geras.

E The first borne amonge  $\gamma$  catell (which belongeth vnto the LORDE) shal no man Sanctifie vnto the LORDE, whether it be oxe or shepe, for it is the LORDES all ready. But yf there be eny vn cleane thinge vpon the beest, the shal it be lowsed out thereafter as it is worth, and the fiftth parte shalbe geuen more thereto. If he wil not redeme it, the let it be solde, as it is worth.

E There shall no dedicated thinge be solde ner bought out,  $\gamma$  eny man dedicateth vnto  $\gamma$  LORDE, of all  $\gamma$  is his good, whether it be mā, catell or lode. For every dedicated thinge, is most holy vnto  $\gamma$  LORDE. There shal no dedicated thinge of mā be bought out, but shal dye the death. All the tythes in the londe, both of the seide of the londe, & of  $\gamma$  frutes of the trees, are the LORDES, & shal be holy vnto the LORDE. But yf eny man wil redeme his tithes, he shal geue the fiftth parte more thereto. And all the tithes of oren & shepe, & that goeth vnder the rod, the same is an holy tythe vnto the LORDE. It shall not beared whether it be good or bad, nether shall it be chaunged. But yf eny man chaunge it, then both it & that it was chaunged withall, shal be holy, & not redemed.

These are the cōmaundementes, which  $\gamma$  LORDE gaue Moses in charge vnto childre of Israel vpon mount Sinai.

But y<sup>e</sup> Levites were not nombred in y<sup>e</sup> summe amonge the childre of Israel, as y<sup>e</sup> LORDE commaunded Moses. And y<sup>e</sup> childre of Israel dyd all as the LORDE commaunded Moses. And so they pitched vnder their baners, 7 toke their iourney, euery one in his kynred, accordinge to the house of their fathers.

The III. Chapter.

2 These are the generacions of Aaron & Moses, whan  $\text{\textcircled{L}}$ ORDE spake vnto Moses at  $\text{\textcircled{y}}$  same tyme vpon mount Sinai. And these are  $\text{\textcircled{y}}$  names of the sonnes of Aaron. The firstborne, Nadab: then Abihu, Eleasar & Ithamar. These are  $\text{\textcircled{y}}$  names of the sonnes of Aaron, which were annoynted to be prestes, & their handes fylled for  $\text{\textcircled{y}}$  presthode. But Nadab & Abihu dyed before  $\text{\textcircled{y}}$   $\text{\textcircled{L}}$ ORDE, whā they offred straunge fyre before  $\text{\textcircled{y}}$   $\text{\textcircled{L}}$ ORDE, in  $\text{\textcircled{y}}$  wildernesse of Sinai, & had no sonnes. But Eleasar and Ithamar executed  $\text{\textcircled{y}}$  prestes office wth their father Aaron.

And the LORD spake vnto Moses, & say de: Bring hither the trybe of Levi, and set them before Aaron the priest, & they maye ser ue wth him, & wayte vpon him & vpon the who le congregacion before y<sup>e</sup> Tabernacle of wit

the habitation.

And thou shalt geue & Leuites vnto Aaron and his sonnes for a gift, vnto every one his awne, from amonge the children of Israel. As for Aaron & his sonnes, thou shalt appoynte them to wayte on their prestes office. If another preasse therto, he shal dye.

And the LORD spake vnto Moses, and saide: Beholde, I haue take the Leuites fro

amonge the childre of Israel, for all the first borne that open the Matrix amonge the children of Israel, so that the Levites shalbe myne. * For the firstborne are myne, sence y tyme that I smote all the first borne in y lande of Egippte, wha I sanctified vnto me all the first borne in Israel, from me vnto catell, that they shulde be myne. The LORDE. Exod. 13.

And the LORD spake vnto Moses in the wyldernesse of Sinai, and sayde: Combe the children of Levi after their fathers houses and kynreds, all that are males of a moneth olde and aboue.

Gersonites shal pitche behinde the habita

ne of Lael be their ruler. And they shal waite vpon the Tabernacle of wytnesse, of the habitation, and of the tent, and couerynges therof, and the hangynge in the dore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse, the hangynge a bout the courte, & the hangynge in y<sup>e</sup> cour tedore, which (courte) goeth aboute the habi tacion and the altare, and the cordes of it, & all that belongeth to the seruyce therof.

These are the kynreds of Rahab: The Amramites, the Jezeharites, the Hebrionites, and Vsielites, all that were males of a moneth olde ⁊ aboue, in nombre eight thousande and sixe hundieth, waytinge vpon the Tabernacle of the Sanctuary, ⁊ shal pitch on the south syde of ⁊ habitation: Let Elisaphan the sonne of Vsiel be their ruler. And they shal kepe the Arke, the table, the candil stick, the altare and all the vessels of the Sanctuary, to do seruyce in, and the wayle, and all that belongeth to the seruice therof. But the chiefe of all the rulers of the Gentiles, shalbe Eleasar the sonne of Aron the prest, ouer them that are apoynted to kepe the watch of the Sanctuary.

The IIII. Chapter.

Unto the LORDE spake vnto Moses & Aaron, & sayde: Take y<sup>e</sup> summe of the childre of Rahath from amonge the childre of Levi, after their kynreds & fathers houses, from thirtie yeare and above vntill fiftye yeare, all that are mete for the warre, that they maye do the worke in the Tabernacle of witnessse. This shal be the office of the children of Rahath in the Tabernacle of witnessse, which is most holy.

Whan the hoost breaketh vp, Aaron and his sonnes shal go in, and take downe the vayle, and couer the Arke of witnessse therewith, and laye the couerynge of doo slaynes vpon it, and spiede a whole yalowe clothe aboute thereon, and put his stanes therein. And vpon the shewe table they shal spiede a yalowe clothe also, and set thereon the dishes, spones, flat peces and pottes to poure out and in, and the daylie bled shal lye vpon it, and they shal spiede a purple clothe thereon, and couer it with a couerynge of doo slaynes, and put the stanes of it therein.

And they shal take a yalowe clothe, and couer the candlestick of light therewith, and his lampes, with his snuffers and outquenchers, and all the oyle vessels that belonge to the seruyce, and aboute all this shal they put a couerynge of doo slaynes, and put it vpon stanes.

So shal they spiede a yalowe clothe ouer the golden altare also, and couer the same with a couerynge of doo slaynes, and put it vpon stanes. All the vessels that they occupye in the Sanctuary, shal they take, and put a yalowe clothe theron, & couer them with a couerynge of doo slaynes, and put them vpon stanes. They shal swepe the ashes also from the altare, and spiede a clothe of scarlet ouer it, and set all his vessels thereon, that they occupye vpon it: colepames, fleshokes, shouels, basens, with all the apparell of the altare, and they shal spiede a couerynge of doo slaynes thereon, and put his stanes therto.

Now whan Aaron and his sonnes haue done this, and haue couered the Sanctuary & all the ornamente therof, whan the hoost breaketh vp, then shal the children of Rahath go in, that they maye beare it, and the Sanctuary shal they not touche, lest they dye. This is the charge of the childre of Rahath in the Tabernacle of witnessse.

E And Eleasar the sonne of Aaron y<sup>e</sup> prest, shal haue the office, to prepare the oyle for the light, and the spyces for the incense, and the daylie meat offeringe, and the anoyntinge oyle, to order the whole habitation, & all that therein is, in the Sanctuary and the ornamente therof.

And the LORDE spake vnto Moses and Aaron, & sayde: Ye shal not destroye the tribe of the kynred of the Rahathites amonge the Levites, but this shal ye do with them, y<sup>e</sup> they maye lye & not dye, yf they touche the most holy. Aaron and his sonnes shal go in, and appoynte every one vnto his office & charge. But they shal not go in, presumptuously to lye vpon y<sup>e</sup> Sanctuary, lest they die. And y<sup>e</sup> LORDE spake vnto Moses and Aaron & sayde: Take the summe of the children of Gerson also, after their fathers house & kynred, from thirtie yeare & above, vntill fiftye yeare, & appoynte them all y<sup>e</sup> are mete for the warre, to haue an office in the Tabernacle of witnessse.

Num. 3. d

D This shal be the office of the kynred of the Gersonites, eu<sup>e</sup> to serue & to beare. They shal beare the curtaynes of the habitation and of the Tabernacle of witnessse, and his couerynge and the couerynge of doo slaynes, that is aboute thereon, and the hanginge in the doore of the Tabernacle of witnessse, and the hanginge aboute the courte, which goeth aboute the habitation and the altare, and their cordes, and all the instrumentes y<sup>e</sup> serue for the, and all that belongeth to their occupieng. Accordinge vnto the worde of Aaron and of his sonnes, shal all the office of the children of Gerson be done, what so ener they shal beare and occupye. And ye shal se, that they wayte vpon all their charge. This shal be y<sup>e</sup> office of y<sup>e</sup> kynred of y<sup>e</sup> childre of y<sup>e</sup> Gersonites in y<sup>e</sup> Tabernacle of witnessse. And their waytinge shal be vnder y<sup>e</sup> hande of Jehamar, the sonne of Aaron the prest.

E The children of Merari after their kynred and fathers house, shal thou appoynte also, from thirtie yeare and above, vnto fiftye yeare, all that are mete for the warre, y<sup>e</sup> they maye haue an office in the Tabernacle of witnessse. But vpon this charge shal they wayte accordinge to all their office in y<sup>e</sup> Tabernacle of witnessse, that they beare the bordes of the habitation, and the barres, and pilers, and sockets: the pilers of the courte also rounde aboute, and the sockets and nales and cordes, with all their apparell, accordinge to all their seruyce. And vnto every one shal ye appoynte his porcion of charge to waite vpon the apparell. Let this be the office of the kynred of the children of Merari, all that they shal do in the Tabernacle of witnessse vnder the hande of Jehamar the sonne of Aaron the prest.

And Moses and Aaron with the captaines of the congregacion, nombred the children of y<sup>e</sup> Rahathites, accordinge to their kynreds and houses of their fathers, from thirtie yeare and above, vntill fiftye, all that were mete for the warre, to haue office in the Tabernacle of witnessse. And the summe was, two thousande, seven hundred, and systie. This is the summe of the kynred of the Rahathites (which all had seruyce in the Tabernacle of witnessse) whom Moses and Aaron nombred, accordinge to the worde of the LORDE by Moses.

The children of Gerson were nombred also in their kynreds and fathers houses from thirtie yeare and above vntill systie, all that were mete for the warre, to haue office in y<sup>e</sup> Tabernacle of witnessse, and the summe was two thousande, fyne hundred, and thirtie. This is y<sup>e</sup> summe of the kynred of the childre of Gerson, which all had to do in the Tabernacle of witnessse, whom Moses and Aaron nombred, accordinge to y<sup>e</sup> worde of y<sup>e</sup> LORDE.

The children of Merari were nombred also accordinge to their kynreds and fathers houses, from thirtie yeare and above vntill systie, all that were mete for the warre, to haue office in the Tabernacle of witnessse, & the summe was thre thousande, and two hundred. This is the summe of the kynred of the childre of Merari, whom Moses and Aaron nombred, accordinge to the worde of the LORDE by Moses.

The summe of all the Levites, whom Moses and Aaron with the captaines of Israel tolde, after their kynreds and fathers houses, from thirtie yeare and above vntill systie, all that wente in to do every one his office, and to beare the burthen in y<sup>e</sup> Tabernacle of witnessse, was eight thousande fyne hundred, and foure score, which were nombred accordinge to the worde of the LORDE by Moses, every one to his office & charge, as the LORDE commaunded Moses.

The V. Chapter.

Unto y<sup>e</sup> LORDE spake vnto Moses, and sayde: Commaunde the children of Israel, y<sup>e</sup> they put out of the hoost, all y<sup>e</sup> lepers, and all that haue yssues, and that are defyled vpon the deed, both men and women shal they putt out of the hoost, that they defyle not their tentes, wherein I dwell amonge them. And 3 children of Israel dyd so, and put them out of the hoost, as 3 LORDE had sayde vnto Moses.

Leui. 13. g

And the LORDE talked with Moses, and sayde: Speake vnto the children of Israel & saye vnto them: Whan a man or woman doeth a synne to eny body, and offendeth ther with agaynst the LORDE, then hath that soule a trespase vpon it. And they shall knowlege their synne, that they haue done, and shall make amendes for their trespase, euen with the whole summe, and put 3 fift part more therto, and geue it vnto him, agaynst whom they haue trespassed. But yf there be noman to make the amendes vnto for the offence 3 he hath trespassed agaynst him, then shal the reconcylynge be made vnto the LORDE for the prest, besydes the ramme of the attonemēt, wherwith he shal be reconcyled.

B Likewyse all the Zeneofferynges of all that the children of Israel halowe vnto the LORDE, and offre vnto the prest, shall be his. And who so haloweth eny thinge, it shal be his. And who so geueth the prest eny thinge, it shal be his also.

And the LORDE talked with Moses, and sayde: Speake to the children of Israel; and saye vnto them: Whan eny mans wife goth asyde, and trespaceth agaynst him, & eny mā lye with her fleshye, and the thinge be yet hyd from his eyes, and is not come to light that she is defiled, and he can brynge no witnesse agaynst her (for she was not takē ther in) and the spiete of gelousye kyndleth him, so that he is gelous ouer his wife: whether she be vncleane or not vncleane, then shal he brynge her vnto the prest, and brynge an offeringe for her, euen the tenth parte of an Ephā of barley meele, and shal poure no oyle theron, ner put frankensence vpon it: for it is an offeringe of gelousye, and an offeringe of remembraunce, that remembreth synne.

C Then shall the prest brynge her, and sett her before the LORDE, and take of the holy water in an earthen vessell, and put of 3 dust that is on the floore of the habitacion, in to the water. And he shal set the wife before 3 LORDE, and vncouer hir heade, and the offeringe of remembraunce which is an offeringe of gelousye, shal he laye vpon hir handes. And the prest shal haue in his hande bytter cursinge water, and shal coniure the wife, & saye vnto her: Yf no man haue lyē with the, and thou hast not gone asyde from thy husbande, to defyle thy self, then shall not these bytter cursinge waters hurte the. But yf thou hast gone asyde from thy husbande, so that thou art defyled, and some other man hath lyen with the besyde thy husbande, then shall the prest coniure the wife with this curse, and shal saye vnto her: The LORDE sett the to a curse and a coniuration amonge thy people, so that the LORDE make thy thye rotte, and thy wombe to berst. So go this cursed water in to thy body, that thy wombe berst, and thy thye rotte. And the wife shal saye: Amen Amen.

So the prest shall wyte this curse in a byll, and wash it out with the water, and shall geue the wife of the bytter cursinge waters to drynke. And whā the cursinge water is gone in her, so 3 it is bytter vnto her then shal the prest take the gelousy offeringe out of the wyues hande, and waue it for a meatofferynge before the LORDE, and of fre it vpon the altare: namely, he shall take an handfull of the meatofferynge for hir remembraunce, & burne it vpo the altare, & then geue the wife the water to drinke. And whā she hath dronken the water, yf she be defyled and haue trespassed agaynst hir husbande, then shal the cursinge water go in to her, and be so bytter, that hir wombe shal berst, and hir thye shall rotte, and the wife shal be a curse amonge hir people. But yf the same wife be not defyled, but is cleane, then shall it do her no harme, so that she maye be with childe.

This is the lawe of gelousy, whan a wyfe goeth asyde from hir husbande, and is defyled: Or whan 3 spiete of gelousy kyndleth a man, so that he is gelous ouer his wyfe, 3 he brynge her before the LORDE, and that 3 prest do all w her acordinge vnto this lawe. And 3 man shalbe gilelesse of the synne, but the wife shall beare hir mysdede.

The VI. Chapter.

And the LORDE talked with Moses, and sayde: Speake vnto the children of Israel, and saye vnto them: Whan a man or woman separateth them selues, to vowe a vowe of abstinence vnto the LORDE, he shal absteyne from wyne and strōge drynke. Dyneger of wyne & of stronge drynke shal he not drynke, ner that is pressed out of grapes: he shall nether eate fresh ner drye grapes, so longe as his abstinence endureth. Moreover he shall eate no thinge that is made of the vyne tre, from the vyne cornels vnto the hulle.

As longe as the vowe of his abstinence endureth, there shall no rasoure come vpon his heade, tyll the tyme be out which he absteyneth vnto the LORDE, for he is holy.

And he shall let the heer of his heade growe, and stonde bare openly. All the tyme ouer 3 he absteyneth vnto the LORDE, shal he go to no deed. Nether shal he defyle himself at y death of his father, of his mother, of his brother, or of his sister. For the abstinence of his God is vpon his heade, and y whole tyme of his abstinence shall he be holy vnto the LORDE.

B And yf it chaunce eny man to dye suddenly before him, then shal 3 heade of his abstinence be defyled. Therefore shal he 3 haue his heade in the daye of his clensynge, that is vpon the seuenth daye: and vpon y eight daye shall he brynge troo turtill doves, or two yonge pigeons, vnto the prest before y dore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse. And the prest shal make the one a synofferynge, and the other a burntofferynge, and make an attonement for him, because he defyled himself vpon y deed, and so shal he halowe his heade the same daye, that he maye holde out the tyme of his abstinence vnto the LORDE, and he shall brynge a lambe of a yere olde for a trespaseofferynge. But 3 daies afore shal be but lost, because his abstinence was defyled.

C This is the lawe of the absteyner. Whan the tyme of his abstinence is out, he shal be brought before the dore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse. And he shal brynge his offeringe vnto the LORDE, euen an he lambe of a yere olde without blemyshe for a burntofferynge, & a she lambe of a yere olde without blemyshe for a synofferynge, and a ramme without blemyshe for a healthofferynge, & a mān de w unleuended cakes of fyne floure myngled with oyle, and swete wafers anoynted with oyle, & their meatofferings & drynkofferynges.

And the prest shal brynge it before the LORDE, and shal make his synofferynge and his burntofferynge, and 3 ramme shal he make an healthofferynge vnto the LORDE, with y maunde of the unleuended bred. His meatofferynge and drynkofferynge shal he make also. And he shall shauē the heade of the absteyners abstinence before the dore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse, and shall take the heade heer of his abstinence, and cast it vpon the fyre that is vnder y healthofferynge.

D And the sodden shulder of the ramme shal he take, and an unleuended cake out of the maunde, and a swete wafer, and laye them vpon the handes of the absteyner:

(after that he hath shauen of his abstinence.) And he shal waue them before the LORDE. This is holy for the prest with the Wauebest, and Zene shulder. After that, maye the absteyner drynke wyne. This is the lawe of the absteyner, which voweth his offeringe vnto the LORDE for his abstinence, besydes that, which his hande can get. As he hath vowed, so shall he do acordinge to the lawe of his abstinence.

And the LORDE talked with Moses, and sayde: Speake vnto Aaron and his sonnes, and saye: Thus shal ye saye vnto the childre of Israel, whan ye blesse them.

* The LORDE blesse the, and kepe the.

The LORDE make his face to shyne vpo the, and be mercifull vnto the.

The LORDE lift vp his countenance vpon the, and geue the peace.

For they shal put my name vpo the childre of Israel, that I maye blesse them.

The VII. Chapter.

And whan Moses had set vp the habitacion and anoynted it, and sanctified it with all the apparell therof: and had anoynted and halowed the altare also with all his vessels. Then offred the captaines of Israel, which were the rulers in their fathers houses.

For they were the captaines amonge 3 kynreds, and stode ouer the that were nombred. And they brought their offeringes before the LORDE, siue couered charettes, and twolue oxen, for every two captaines a charette, and an ox for every one, and brought them before the habitacion.

And the LORDE sayde vnto Moses: Take it of them, that it maye serue for the ministracion of the Tabernacle of wytnesse, and geue it vnto the Leuites, vnto every one acordinge to his office. Then toke Moses the charettes and oxen, and gaue them vnto the Leuites.

Two charettes and foure oxen gaue he vnto y children of Gerson acordinge to their office: and foure charettes and eight oxen gaue he vnto the children of Merari acordinge to their office, vnder the hande of Jehamar the sonne of Aaron the prest.

His gifte was a syluer charger, worth an hundred and thirtie Sycles: A syluer boule, worth seuentye Sycles (after the Sytle of the Sanctuary) both full of fyne floure myngled with oyle for a meatofferynge: And a golden sponne, worth ten Sycles of golde, full of incense: A bullocke from amonge the greate catell, a ramme, a lambe of a yeare olde for a burnt offeringe, an he goate for a synofferynge: And for an health offeringe two oxen, fyue rammes, fyue he goates, and fyue lambes of a yeare olde. This is the gifte of Abira the sonne of Enan.

I This is the dedication of the altare, what tyme as it was anoynted, vnto the which  $\text{Moses}$  and the capaynes of Israel offered these twelue syluer chargers, twelue syluer boules, twelue spones of golde: euery charger conteynyng an hundred and thirtie Sycles of syluer, and euery boule seuentye Sycles. So that the summe of all the syluer in the vessels, was two thousande and foure hundred Sycles (after the Sytle of the Sanctuary). And the twelue spones of golde full of incense, conteyned euery one ten Sycles, after the Sytle of the Sanctuary: So that the summe of the golde in the spones, was an hundred and twenty Sycles.

The summe of the catell for the burnt offerings, was twelue bullockes, twelue rammes, twelue lambes of a yeare olde with their meat offerings: And twelue he goates for syn offerings. And the summe of the catell for the health offerings, was foure and twenty oxen, thre score rammes, and thre score he goates, thre score lambes of a yeare olde. This is the dedication of the altare, after that it was anoynted.

And whan Moses wente in to the Tabernacle of wytnes,  $\text{he}$  might be commoned withall, he herde the voyce speakyng vnto him fro of the Mercy seate, which was vpon the Arke of wytnes betwixte the two Cherubins, from thence was he commoned withall.

The VIII. Chapter.

AND the LORDE talked with Moses, and sayde: Speake to Aaron, and saye vnto him: Whan thou settest vp  $\text{the}$  lampes, thou shalt set the so, that they maye all geue light aboue vpon  $\text{the}$  candilstick. And Aaron dyd so, and set  $\text{the}$  lampes vpon  $\text{the}$  candilstick, as  $\text{the}$  LORDE commanded Moses. The worke of  $\text{the}$  candilstick was of beate golde, both  $\text{the}$  shaft and floures thereof: Accordyng to  $\text{the}$  visio that the LORDE had shewed Moses, even so

Exo. 25. 1-10

Exo. 25. 11-16

made he the candelsticke.

And the LORDE spake vnto Moses, and sayde: Take the Levites fro amonge the children of Israel, & clense them. But thus shalt thou do with them, that thou mayest clense them. Thou shalt sprentle purifienge water vpon them, and lett a rasure go ouer their whole body, and washe their clothes, and then are they cleane. Then shall they take a yonge bullocke, and his meat offeringe of fyne floure myngled with oyle. And another yonge bullocke shalt thou take for a synofferinge.

B And thou shalt brynge the Levites before the Tabernacle of witnessse, and gather together the whole congregacion of the children of Israel, and brynge the Levites before the LORDE. And the children of Israel shall laye their handes vpon the Levites. And Aaron shall waue the Levites before the LORDE for the children of Israel, that they maye mynistrer in the seruyce of the LORDE.

And the Levites shall laye their handes vpon the heedes of the bullockes, and the one shall be made a synofferinge, the other a burnt offeringe vnto the LORDE, to make an attonement for the Levites. And thou shalt set the Levites before Aaron and his sonnes, and waue them before the LORDE, and so shalt thou separate them from the children of Israel, that they maye be myne. The shall they go in, that they maye do seruyce in the Tabernacle of witnessse. Thus shalt thou clense the, & waue them: for they are my gifte of the children of Israel, & I haue taken them vnto me for all that openeth the Matrix, namely for the first borne of all the children of Israel.

Num. 3. b

Exo. 13. a
Luc. 2. d

C For every first borne amonge the children of Israel is myne, both of men and of cattell, sens the tyme that I smote all the first borne in the lande of Egypte, and sanctified them vnto myself, and toke the Levites for all the first borne amonge the childre of Israel, and gaue them for a gifte vnto Aaron and his sonnes from amonge the children of Israel, & they shulde do the seruyce of the children of Israel in the Tabernacle of witnessse, to make attonement for the children of Israel, that there be not a plage amonge the children of Israel, yf they wyll come nye the Sanctuary.

And Moses with Aaron and the whole congregacio of the childre of Israel, dyd w the Levites all as the LORDE had commaunded Moses. And they purified the Levites, and washed their clothes. And Aaron waueed them before the LORDE, and made attonement for them, that they might be cleane.

After that wente they in, to do their office in the Tabernacle of witnessse before Aaron and his sonnes: as the LORDE commaunded Moses concernynge the Levites, even so dyd they with them.

And the LORDE spake vnto Moses & sayde: This is it that belongeth vnto the Levites: From fyue and twentye yeare and above, shall they go in to the office of the Tabernacle of witnessse. But fro fyfte yeare fourth, they shal cease from the waitinge of the seruyce therof, and shall mynistrer nomore, but shal appoynte their brethren to waite and to serue in the Tabernacle of witnessse: but the office shal not they execute. Thus shalt thou do with the Levites in their seruyces, that every one maye wayte vpon his awne charge.

The IX. Chapter.

A And the LORDE spake vnto Moses in the wilderness of Sinai, in the first moneth of the seconde yeare that they were departed out of the lande of Egypte, & sayde: Let the children of Israel kepe Easter in his season, even vpon the fourtene daye of this moneth at even, in his season shall they kepe it, acordinge to all the statutes & lawes therof. And Moses spake to the childre of Israel, & they shulde kepe Easter. And they kept Easter vpon the fourtene daye of the first moneth at even in the wilderness of Sinai. Acordinge to all that the LORDE commaunded Moses, even so dyd the children of Israel.

Then were there certayne men defyled of a deed man, so that they coulde not kepe Easter vpon that daye: these came before Moses and Aaron the same daye, and sayde vnto him: We are defyled of a deed man: wherefore shulde we be despysed, that we must not bringe oure giftes in his season amonge the children of Israel? Moses sayde vnto them: Stande styll, I wil heare what the LORDE commaundeth you.

And the LORDE spake vnto Moses, and sayde: Speake vnto the children of Israel, & saie: Wha eny man is defyled of a deed course, or is gone farre from you ouer the felde, or is amonge youre kynnsfolkes, yet shall he kepe Easter, but in the seconde moneth vpon the fourtene daye at even, and they shal eat it with unleuened bred and sowe sawse, and shall leaue none of it vntyll the mornynge, & ner breake eny bone therof, and shal kepe it acordinge to all the maner of Easter.

But he that is cleane, and not gone in a iourney, and is negligent to kepe the Easter, the same soule shal be roted out from amonge his people: because he brought not his gifte to the LORDE in his season, he shal beare his synne. And whan there dwelleth a straunger amonge you, he shal kepe Easter also vnto the LORDE, & shal holde it acordinge to the ordinaunce and lawe of Easter. This statute shal be vnto you alike, to the straunger as to him that is borne in the lande.

C And the same daye the habitation was set vp, & cloude couered it vpon the Tabernacle of witnessse, & at even there was a symilitude of fyre vpon the habitation vntill the mornynge. So came it to passe allwaye, & the cloude couered it by daye, & the symilitude of fyre by night. And whan the cloude was takē vp from the habitation, then the children of Israel wente on their iourney. And loke in what place the cloude abode, there the childre of Israel pitched their tentes. Acordinge to the worde of the LORDE toke the children of Israel their iourney, and acordinge to his worde pitched they their tentes. So longe as the cloude abode vpon the habitation, they laye styll. And whan the cloude taried many dayes vpon the habitation, the childre of Israel wayted vpon the LORDE, & wente not on their iourney.

D And whan it chaunced that the cloude abode vpon the habitation enyspace of dayes, then pitched they acordinge to the worde of the LORDE, & after the worde of the LORDE wente they on their iourney. Whan the cloude was there from the euenynge vntyll the mornynge, and so was taken vp, then wete they on their iourney: and whether it was takē vp by daye or by night, they iourneyed. But whan it taried vpon the habitation two dayes, or a moneth, or a longe season, then laye the children of Israel, and iourneyed not: and so whan it was taken vp, they wente on their iourney. For acordinge to the mouth of the LORDE they laye, and after the mouth of the LORDE they iourneyed, so they kepte the LORDES watch, acordinge to the worde of the LORDE by Moses.

The X. Chapter.

A And the LORDE spake vnto Moses, and sayde: Make the two trompettes of beaten syluer, that thou mayest vse them, to call the congregacion together, and whan the hoost shal breake vp. Whan they blowe with both, then shall the whole congregacion gather them selues together vnto the before the dore of the Tabernacle of witnessse. Whan they blowe but with one, then the captaynes, the rulers ouer the then sandes in Israel shal gather them selues together vnto the. Whan ye trompe, then shal the hoostes that lye on the East syde, breake vp. And whan ye trompe the seconde tyme, the hoostes that lye on the South syde, shal breake vp. For ye shall trompe, whan they shal take their iourneys. But whan the congregacion is to be gathered together, ye shal blowe, and not trompe. This blowinge w the trompettes shal the sonnes of Aaron the prest do. And it shall be yor lawe for euer amonge youre posterities.

Iudic. 3. d

Whan ye go to a battayll in youre lande agaynst youre enemies & vexe you, ye shall trompe with the trompettes, that ye maye be remembred before the LORDE yor God, and deliuered from youre enemies.

B Like wyse whan ye are mery, and in youre feast dayes, & in youre new Monethes, ye shal blowe with the trompettes ouer youre burnt sacrifices & health offeringes, & it maie be a remembraunce vnto you before youre God. I am the LORDE youre God.

Vpon the twentye daye in the seconde moneth of the seconde yeare, arose the cloude from the habitation of witnessse. And the childre of Israel wente on their iourney out of the wilderness of Sinai, and the cloude abode in the wilderness of Paran, first brake vp (acordinge to the worde of the LORDE by Moses.) Namely, the baner of the hoost of Juda wente forth first with their armies, and ouer their hoost was Nathasson the sonne of Aminadab. And ouer the hoost of the trybe of the children of Issachar was Nathaneel the sonne of Zuar. And ouer the hoost of the trybe of the children of Zabulon was Eliab the sonne of Elon. And the habitation was taken downe, and the children of Gerson and Merari bare the habitation.

Num. 33. c
Deut. 1. a

Num. 1. a

Num. 4. a

C After that wente the baner of the hoost of Ruben with their armies, and ouer their hoost was Elizur the sonne of Sedeur. And ouer the hoost of the trybe of the children of Simeon was Selumiel the sonne of Zuri Sadai. And Eliasaph the sonne of Deguel ouer the hoost of the trybe of the children of Gad. Then wente the Kahathites forward also, and bare the Sanctuary, and caused the habitation be set vp agaynst they came.

After that wente the baner of the hoost of the children of Ephraim with their armies, and ouer their hoost was Elisama the sonne of Amihud. And Gamaliel the sonne of Pedazur ouer the hoost of the trybe of the children of Manasse. And Abidan the sonne of Gedeoni ouer the hoost of the try-be of the children of Ben Jamin.

After that wente the baner of the hoost
of the children of Dan with their Armyes,
(and so were all the hoostes vp) and Abieser
the sonne of Ammi Sadai was ouer their hoost. And Pagiel & sonne of Othrian, ouer the hoost of the trybe of the children of As-ser. And Ahira the sonne of Enan ouer the hoost of the trybe of the children of Nephtali.
Thus the childre of Israel were forth with their armyes.

D And Moses spake vnto his brother in lawe, Hobab the sonne of Raguel of Ma-dian: We go vnto the place, of the which & LORDE sayde: I wil geue it you: Come now with vs therfore, and we wil do & best with the, for the LORDE hath promysed good vnto Israel. But he answered: I wil not go w you, but wil go in to myne awne londe vnto my kynred. He sayde: Oh nay, leane vs not:
for thou knowest where is best for vs to pyt-che in the wyldernes, and thou shalt be oure eye. And yf thou goest with vs, loke what good the LORDE doth vnto vs, the same wil we do vnto the. So they departed from the mount of the LORDE thre dayes iour-ney, & the Arke of the LORDES couenant wente before them those thre dayes iourney, to shewe the where they shulde rest. And & cloude of the LORDE was ouer them in the daye tyme, whan they were out of & tētes.

And whan the Arke wente forth, Moses sayde: * Aryse LORDE, let thine enemies be scattered, and let them that hate the, flye before the. And whan it rested, he sayde: Come agayne O LORDE vnto the multitude of the thousandes of Israel.

The XI. Chapter.

A And whan & people waxed impacēt,
it displeased sore & eares of & LORDE.
And whan the LORDE herde it, his wrath waxed whore, & the fyre of & LORDE burnt amonge them, so & it consumed the vte-most of & hoost. The cryed the people vnto Moses. And Moses prayed vnto the LOR-DE. So & fyre quenched. And the place was called Tabera, because the fyre of the LOR-DE burnt amonge them.

Then the comon sorte of people & was a monge them, fell a lusting, and sat & wepte w
the children of Israel, and sayde: Who wil geue vs flesh to eate? We remembre the fish, the we ate in Egipte for naught, & Cucumbers, Melons, letes, onyons, & garleke: But now is oure soule dried awaye, oure eyes se nothyng then the Manna.

The Manna was like Coriander sede, and to loke vpon, like Bedellion. And the people ranne here and there, & gathered it, & grounde it in Milles, and beate it in morters, and baked it in pānes, and made cakes of it, and it had a taist like an oyle cake. And whan & dew fell vpon the tētes in the night, & Manna fell therewith.

Now whan Moses herde the people we-pe amonge their kynreds, euery one in his tēdore, then the wrath of the LORDE waxed exceedinge whore. And it grieved Moses also. And Moses sayde vnto the LORDE: Why verest thou thy seruante? And why fynde not I sauoure in & sight, & thou layest & burthen of all this people vpon me? Haue I the cōceaned all this people, or begotten them, that thou shuldest saye vnto me: Carry them
in thine armes (as a nurse beareth a childe)
vnto the londe, that thou hast sworne vnto their fathers: Where shal I get flesh, to ge-ue all this people? They wepe before me, and saye: Geue vs flesh, that we maye eate. I am not able to beare all this people alone, for it is to heuy for me. And yf thou wilt deale thus w me: O kyll me then, yf I haue foun-de sauoure in thy sight, that I se not my wretchednesse.

And the LORDE saide vnto Moses: Gather vnto me & seuentye men amonge the Elders of Israel, whom thou knowest & they are the Elders in & people and officers ouer them, and brynge them before the Tabernacle of witnesse, and set them there with the:
then wil I come downe, and talke with the euē there, & take of thy sprete that is vpon
the, and putt it vpon them, that they maye beare the burthen of the people with the, & thou beare not all alone.

And vnto & people thou shalt saye: Sac-tifie yē selues agaynst tomorrow, & ye maye eate flesh: for youre wepyng is come into the eares of the LORDE, ye that saye: Who shal geue vs flesh to eate? for we were well at ease in Egipte. Therfore shal the LORDE geue you flesh to eate, not one daye, not two,

not fyue, not ten, not twentye dayes longe,
but a moneth longe, tyll it go out at youre noses, and tyll ye lothe it: euē because ye haue refused the LORDE, which is amonge you, and haue wepte before him, & sayde: Wherefore wente we out of Egipte?

And Moses sayde: Sixe hundred thousande fore men are there of the people amō-ge whom I am, and thou sayest: I wil ge-ue you flesh to eate a moneth longe. Shal the shepe and oxen be slayne to be ynough for them? Or shal all the fishes of the see be gathered together, to be sufficient for them?
The LORDE sayde vnto Moses: * To the LORDES hande shortened then? But now shalt thou se, whether my wordes shal be fulfilled in dede, or no?

And Moses wete out, and tolde the people & worde of the LORDE, and gathered the seuentye men amonge the Elders of the people, & set them rounde aboute the Tabernacle. Then came the LORDE downe in a cloude, & spake vnto him, & toke of the sprete & was vpon him, & put it vpon the seuentie Elders. And whan the sprete rested vpon them, they prophesied, and ceassed not.

S But in the hoost thereremayned yet two men, of whom the one was called Eldad, &
other Medad, & the sprete rested vpon them.
For they were wyrtten vp also, & yet were they not gone out vnto the Tabernacle, and they prophesied in the hoost. Then ran there a lad, & tolde Moses, & sayde: Eldad and Medad prophesie in the hoost. Then answered Josua & sonne of Nun Moses seruante (whom he had chosē) and sayde: My lorde Moses, for bydde them. But Moses sayde vnto him: Art thou gelous for my sake? wol-de God, & all the people of & LORDE coulde prophesie, and that & LORDE wolde ge-ue them his sprete. So Moses and the Elders of Israel gat them to the hoost.

G Then wente out the wynde from & LOR-DE, & caused quayles to come from the see, & scattered the ouer the hoost. here a dayes iour-ney, there a dayes iourney rounde aboute & hoost, two cubytes hye aboue & earth. Then the people stode vp all that daye and all & night, and all the nexte daye, and gathered quayles: and he that gathered the leest, gathered ten Homers, & they kylled them roun-de aboute the hoost.

But whyle & flesh was yet betwene their teeth, & or euē it was vp, the wrath of the LORDE waxed whore amonge the people, & and serue them with an exceedinge greate slaughter. Therfore is the same place called the graues of lusti, because the voluptuous people were buried there. From the lustigra-ues toke the people their iourney vnto Haze-roth, and abode at Hazeroth.

The XII. Chapter.

A And Miriam & Aaron spake agaynst Moses because of his wife the Morian. which he had taken, because he had take a Moian to wife, and they sayde:
Dorch the LORDE speake onely thow Mōses? Speaketh he not also by vs? And the LORDE herde it. * But Moses was a very mekeman, aboue all men vpon earth. And haistely spake the LORDE vnto Moses, and to Aaron, and to Miriam: Go out ye thre vnto & Tabernacle of wytnesse. And they wen-te out all thre.

Then came the LORDE downe in the cloudy piler, & stode in the dore of the Tabernacle, & called Aaron & Miriam, & they both wete out. And he sayde: Heare my wordes:
If eny man be a prophet of the LORDE, vnto him wil I shewe my self in a vision, or wil speake vnto him in a dreame. But not so w my seruante Moses, which is faithfull in all my house. * Mouth to mouth speake I vnto him, & he seyth the LORDE in his fashion, not thow darke wordes or licēnesse:
Wherefore were ye not afrayed then to speake agaynst my seruante Moses?

And & wrath of the LORDE waxed who-re ouer them, & he turned him awaye, and & cloude also departed from the Tabernacle.
And beholde, then was Miriam become leprous, as it were snowe. And Aaron turned him vnto Miriam, and sawe that she was leprous, and sayde vnto Moses: Oh my lorde, put not the synne vpon vs, which we haue foolishly committed and synned, that she be not as one that commeth deed out of his mothers wombe: It hath eaten vp half hir flesh allready.

But Moses cried vnto the LORDE, & sayde: Oh God, heale her. The LORDE sayde vnto Moses: If hir father had spytted in hir face, shulde she not be ashamed seuen dayes?
* Let her be shnt out of & hoost seue dayes,
after & let her be receaued agayne. So Miriam was shnt out of the hoost seue dayes, & the people wente no farther, tyll Miriam was receaued agayne. Afterwarde departed the people from Hazeroth, and pitched in & wyldernes of Paran.

The XIII. Chapter.

A And the LORDE spake vnto Moses, & sayde: Send forth men to spye out &
Deut. 1.3

lande of Canaan (which I wil gene vnto y children of Israel) of euery trybe of their fathers a man, and let them all be soch as are captaynes amonge them. Moses sent the out of the wilderness of Paran, accordinge to the worde of the LORDE, soch as were all heades amonge the children of Israel, and these are their names:

Samma the sonne of Zaccur, of the trybe of Ruben. Saphat the sonne of Houi, of the trybe of Simeon. Caleb & sonne of Jephune, of the trybe of Iuda. Igeal the sonne of Joseph, of the trybe of Isachar. Hosea the sonne of Nun, of y trybe of Ephraim. Palti the sonne of Rapha, of the trybe of Ben Jamin. Gadai the sonne of Sodi, of y trybe of Zabulon. Gaddi the sonne of Susi, of the trybe of Joseph of Manasse. Ammiel the sonne of Gemalli, of the trybe of Dan. Serphur & sonne of Michael, of the trybe of Asser. Nahbi the sonne of Vaphsi, of the trybe of Nephthali. Guel the sonne of Machi, of the trybe of Gad. These are the names of the men, whom Moses sent forth to spye out the lande. As for Hosea the sonne of Nun, Moses called him Josua.

B Now whan Moses sent the forth to spye out the lande of Canaan, he sayde vnto the: Go vp southwarde, and get you vp to the mountaynes, and loke vpon the lande how it is: and the people that dwell therein, whether they be stronge or weake, fewe or many: and what maner of lande it is that they dwell in, whether it be good or bad: & what maner of cities they be that they dwell in, whether they be fenced with walles, or not: and what maner of lande it is, whether it be fette or leane, and whether there be trees therein, or not. Be of a good courage, and bringe of the frutes of the lande. It was euen aboute the tyme, that grapes are first ripe.

They wente vp, & spyed the lande, from y wilderness of Sin, vntill Rehob, as me go vnto Hemath. They wente vp also towards the south, and came vnto Hebron, where Abimam was, and Sefai and Thalmal, the children of Enack (Hebron was buylded seven years before Zoan in Egypte.)

C And they came to the ryuer of Escol, and there they cut downe a cluster of grapes, and caused two to beare it vpon a staffe, pomgranates also and fygges. The place is called the ryuer of Escol, because of the cluster of grapes, which the children of Israel cut downe there.

And whan they had spyed out the lande, they turned backe againe after fourty daies, and wente, and came to Moses and Aaron, & to the whole congregacion of y children of Israel in to y wilderness of Paran, eue vnto Cades, and brought them worde agayne, and to the whole congregacion, how it stood, and let them se the frute of the lande, and tolde them, and sayde: We came into y lande, whither ye sent vs, where it floweth with mylke and hony, and this is the frute thereof: sayunge that stronge people dwell therein, and the cities are exceedinge stronge and greate. And we sawe the children of Enack there also. The Amalechites dwell in the south countre, the Hethites, and Jebusites and Amorites dwell vpon the mountaynes, but the Cananites dwell by the sea, and aboute Jordane.

Howbeit Caleb stylled y people that was agaynst Moses, and sayde vnto them: Let vs go vp, and conquere the lande, for we are able to ouercome it. But the men that wente vp with him, sayde: We are not able to go vp agaynst that people, for they are to stronge for vs. And of the lande that they had searched, they brought vp an euell reporte amonge the childre of Israel, and saide: The lande that we haue gone thorow to spye out, eateth vp the indwellers thereof: and all the people that we sawe therein, are men of greate stature. We sawe giauntes there also, yet semed in oure sighte as y greshoppers, and so dyd we in their sighte.

The XIII. Chapter.

Then the whole cōgregacion toke on, and cryed, and the people wepte y night. And all the childre of Israel murmured agaynst Moses and Aaron, and the whole congregacion sayde vnto them: Oh that we had dyed in the lande of Egypte, or that we might dye yet in this wilderness. Wherfore bringeth the LORDE vs in to this lande, that oure wyues shulde fall thorow the swerde, and ouer children be praye? Is it not better, that we go agayne into Egypte: And they sayde one to another: Let vs make a capayne, and go in to Egypte agayne.

But Moses & Aaron fell vpo their faces before y whole cōgregacion of the multitude of the childre of Israel. And Josua & sonne of Nun, & Caleb & sonne of Jephune (which also had spyed out the lande) rente their clothes, & spake to the whole cōgregacion of the children of Israel: The lande y we haue walked thorow to spye it out, is a very good lande. If the LORDE haue lust vnto vs, he shal bringe vs in to the same lande, & geue it vs, which is a lande that floweth with mylke & hony. But in anye wyse rebell not ye agaynst the LORDE, & feare not y people of this lande, for we wil eate the vp as bred. Their defence is departed fro them, but the LORDE is w vs, be not ye afrayed of them.

B And all the people, bad stone them w stones. Then appeared the glory of the LORDE in the Tabernacle of witnesse vnto all the children of Israel, & the LORDE sayde vnto Moses: How longe shal this people blaspheme me? And how longe wil it be, or they beleue me, for all the tokes that I haue shewed amonge them? I wil smyte them with pestilence & destroye the, & wil make of the a greater & mightier people then this is.

But Moses sayde vnto y LORDE: Then shal y Egyptians heare it (for w thy power hast thou brought this people from amonge the) so shal it be tolde the inhabitants of this lande also, which haue herde, y thou O LORDE art amonge this people, y thou art sene from face to face, & that thy cloude stondeth ouer them, and that thou goest before them in the cloudy piler on the daye tyme, and in the fyrie piler on the night season. If thou shuldest now slaye this people as one man, then the Hethen that haue herde so good reporte of the, shulde saye: The LORDE was not able to bringe the people in to the lande, that he sware vnto them, therefore hath he slayne them in the wilderness.

C So let the power of the LORDE now be greate, accordinge as thou hast spoken and sayde: The LORDE is of longe sufferaunce and of greate mercy, and forgueyth synne and trespase, and leaueyth no man innocent, & visiteth the mysdede of the fathers vpon the children in to the thirde and fourth generation. O be gracious now vnto the synne of this people accordinge to thy greate mercy, like as thou hast forbome this people also, euer from Egypte vnto this place. And the LORDE sayde: I haue forgene it, as thou hast saide. But as truly as I lyue, all y wolde shal be full of my glory. For of all y men that haue sene my glory & my tokens, which I dyd in Egypte and in the wilderness, and tempted me now ten tymes, & haue not hearkened vnto my voyce, there shall not one se the lande that I sware vnto their fathers: nether shal eny of them that haue blasphemed me, se it. But my seruant Caleb, because there is another maner spere with him, & because he hath folowed me, him wil I bringe in to the lande, which he hath gone thorow, & his sede shal conquere it, and y Amalechites also and the Cananites, that dwell in the lowe countrees. Tomorrow turne you, and get you to the wilderness, in the waye towards the reed see.

And y LORDE spake vnto Moses & Aaron, & sayde: How longe shal this euell multitude murmur agaynst me? For I haue herde the murmuringe of the childre of Israel, y they haue murmured agaynst me. Tell them therefore: As truly as I lyue (sayeth y LORDE) I wil do vnto you, euen as ye haue spoken in myne eares: Your carcasses shal lye in this wilderness. And all ye that were nombed from twentye yeare and aboue, which haue murmured agaynst me, shall not come in to the lande (concernynge the which I lift vp my hande, y I wolde let you dwell therein) saue Caleb & sonne of Jephune, and Josua the sonne of Nun.

Your children, of whom ye sayde: They shal be a spoyle, them wyll I bringe in, so y they shal knowe the lande, which ye haue refused. But ye with youre carcasses shal lye in this wilderness, and y children shal wander in this wilderness fourty yeares, & beare y whordome, tyll y carcasses be wasted in the wilderness, accordinge to the nombre of y fourty dayes, wherein ye spyed out the lande. A daye for a yeare, so y fourty yeares ye shall beare youre mysdede, that ye maye knowe what it is, whan I with drawe my hande. Euen y the LORDE haue sayde it, & wil do it: in dede vnto all this euell congregacion, that haue lift vp them selues agaynst me: In this wilderness shal they be consumed, and there shal they dye.

So there dyed and were plagued before the LORDE all the me, whom Moses sent to spye out the lande, & came agayne, and made the whole cōgregacion to murmur agaynst it, because they brought vp a mysreporte of the lande, that it was euell. But Josua the sonne of Nun, and Caleb & sonne of Jephune ne were left alyue, of the men that wente to spye out the lande. And Moses spake these wordes vnto all the children of Israel. The toke the people greate sorowe.

S And they arose early in the mornynge, and wente vnto the toppe of the mountayne, and sayde: Lo, here are we, and will go vnto the place, wherof the LORD hath sayde: for we haue synned. But Moses sayde: wherfore go ye on this maner beyonde the worde of the LORD? It shall not prosper with you: go not vp (for the LORD is not amōge you) ye be not slayne before your enemies. For the Amalechites and Cananites are there before you, and ye shall fall thorow the sword, because ye haue turned your selues from the LORD, and the LORD shall not be with you.

But they were blynded to go vnto the toppe of the mountaine: neuertheles the Ark of the LORDES couenant and Moses came not out of the hooste. Then came downe the Amalechites and Cananites which dwelt vpon that mountayne, and smote them and hewed them euē vnto Hoima.

The XV. Chapter.

And the LORD talked with Moses, and sayde: Speake to the childre of Israel, and saye vnto them: Whan ye come in to the lande of youre dwellinge, which I shall geue you, and wil do sacrifice vnto the LORD, whether it be a burnt offering, or an offering for a speciall vowe, or a freewill offering, or youre feast offerings, that ye maye make a sweete sauoure vnto the LORD, of oren or of shepe.

He wil offre now his gifte vnto the LORD, shall brynge for the meat offeringe a tenth deale of fyne floure myngled with oyle of the fourth parte of an Ehin, and wyne for the drynt offeringe the fourth parte of an Ehin also: to the burnt offeringe, or any other offeringe, whan a lambe is offred. But whan there is a ramme offred, thou shalt make the meat offeringe two tenth deales of fyne floure myngled with oyle, of the thirde parte of an Ehin, and the thirde parte of an Ehin of wyne also for a drynt offeringe: this shalt thou offre for a sweete sauour vnto the LORD.

But yf thou wilt offre an oxe for a burnt offeringe, or for a speciall vowe offeringe, or for an healt offeringe vnto the LORD, thou shalt brynge to the oxe, the meat offeringe, euē thre tenth deales of fyne floure myngled with half an Ehin of oyle, and half an Ehin of wyne for a drynt offeringe. This is an offeringe of a sweete sauoure vnto the LORD. Thus shalt thou do with an oxe, with a ram me, with a lambe, and with a goate. Accordyng as the nombre of the offeringes is, therafter shall the nombre of the meat offerings and drynt offerings be also.

He that is one of youre selues, shall do this, that he maye offre a sacrifice of a sweete sauoure vnto the LORD. And yf there dwell a straunger with you, or is amōge youre kynnsfolkes, and wil do an offeringe vnto the LORD for a sweete sauoure, the same shall do as ye do. Let there be one statute for the whole congregacion, both vnto you and to the strangers. A perpetuall statute shall it be vnto youre posterities, that the stranger be euē as ye before the LORD. One lawe, and one ordinaunce shall be vnto you and to the stranger that dwelleth with you.

And the LORD talked with Moses, and sayde: Speake to the childre of Israel, and saye vnto them: Whan ye come in to the lande, in to which I shall brynge you, so that ye eate the bred of the lande, ye shall hewe vp an heue offeringe vnto the LORD, namely, a cake of the firstlinges of youre dowe shall ye geue for an heue offeringe: as the heue offeringe of the barne, euē so shall ye geue the firstlinges of youre dowe also vnto the LORD, for an heue offeringe amōge youre posterities.

And whan ye thorow ignorance ouerseye any of these commaundementes, which the LORD hath spoken by Moses, and all the LORD hath commaunded you by Moses (from the daye that the LORD began to commaunde for youre posterities) and the congregacion do ought ignorantly, the LORD shall the whole congregacion offre a yonge bullocke from amōge the greate catell to a burnt offeringe, for a sweete sauoure vnto the LORD, with his meat offeringe and drynt offeringe as the maner is, and an hegoate for a syn offeringe. And so shall the priest make an attonement for the whole congregacion of the childre of Israel, and it shall be forgiven them: for it is an ignorance. And they shall brynge these their giftes for an offeringe vnto the LORD, and their syn offeringe before the LORD for their ignorance, and it shall be forgiven the whole congregacion of the childre of Israel, and the stranger also that dwelleth amōge you, for so much as all the people is in such ignorance.

If one soule synne thorow ignorance, the same shall brynge a she goate of a yere olde for a syn offeringe. And the priest shall make an attonement for such an ignorant soule with the syn offeringe for the ignorant ce before the LORD, that he maye reconcile him, and it shall be forgiven him. And it shall be one lawe, (that ye shall do for ignorance) both vnto him that is borne amōge the childre of Israel, and to the stranger that dwelleth amōge you.

But yf a soule do ought presumptuously, whether he be one of youre selues or a stranger, he hath despysed the LORD: the same soule shall be roted out from amōge his people: because he hath despysed the worde of the LORD, and hath left his commaundement vndone: that soule shall vicerly perish, his synne shall be vpon him.

Now whyle the childre of Israel were in the wyldernes, they founde a man gatheringe stickes vpon the Sabbath daye. And they that founde him gatheringe stickes, brought him vnto Moses and Aaron, and before the whole congregacion. And they put him in prison, for it was not declared what shulde be done vnto him. The LORD sayde vnto Moses: The man shall dye the death, the whole congregacion shall stone him without the hoost. Then the whole congregacion brought him out of the hoost, and stoned him that he dyed, as the LORD commaunded Moses.

And the LORD sayde vnto Moses: Speake to the childre of Israel, and saye vnto the, they make them gardes vpon the quarters of their garmentes amōge all your posterities, and put yalowe rybandes vpon the gardes in the quarters. And the gardes shall serue you, that ye maye loke vpon the, and remembre all the commaundementes of the LORD, and do them: that ye order not youre selues after the meanynge of youre awne hert, ner go awhorunge after youre awne eyes. Therefore shall ye remembre and do all my commaundementes, and be holy vnto youre God. I am the LORD your God, which brought you out of the lande of Egypte, to be your God. Euen I the LORD your God.

The XVI. Chapter.

And Corah the sonne of Jesebar the sonne of Rahab, the sonne of Levi, with Dathan and Abiram the sonne of Eliab, and On the sonne of Peleth, the sonnes of Ruben, stode up agaynst Moses, with certayne men amōge the childre of Israel, two hundred and fiftie captynes of the congregacion, counsellors, and famous men. And they gathered them selues agaynst Moses and Aaron, and sayde vnto them: We make to moch a doo, for all the congregacion is holy euery one, and the LORD is amōge them: Why lifte ye youre selues vpon then aboue the congregacion of the LORD?

Whan Moses herde this, he fell vpon his face, and saide vnto Corah, and to all his company: Tomorow shall the LORD shewe who is his, and who is holy to come vnto him. Whoso euer he choseth, the same shall come vnto him. This do: Take censers, thou Corah and all thy company, and do fyre therein, and put incense thereon to morow before the LORD: then whom so euer the LORD choseth, the same shall be holy. We make to moch a doo, ye childre of Levi.

And Moses sayde vnto Corah: Heare ye childre of Levi, Is it not ynough vnto you, that the God of Israel hath separated you from the multitude of Israel, that ye shulde come nye him, to do the seruyce of the dwellinge place of the LORD, and stonde before the people to minister vnto them? He hath caused the and all thy brethren the childre of Levi with the, to come nye vnto him: and now ye sette the presthode also. Thou and all thy company conspyre agaynst the LORD. What is Aaron, that ye shulde murmur agaynst him?

And Moses sent to call Dathan and Abiram the sonnes of Eliab. But they saide: We wil not come vp. Is it to litle that thou hast brought vs out of the lande of Egypte (that floweth with mylke and hony) to kill vs in the wyldernes? but thou must raigne ouer vs also: how goodly well hast thou brought vs in to a lande that floweth with milke and hony, and geueth vs felbes and vniardes in possession? Wilt thou put out these mens eyes? We will not come vp.

Then was Moses very wroth, and saide vnto the LORD: Turne not vnto their meat offerings. I haue not takē so moch as an Asse fro the, nether haue I hurte any of the. And Moses sayde vnto Corah: Tomorow be thou and all thy company before the LORD, thou, and they, and Aaron. And take euery one his censer, and put incense therein, and come before the LORD, euery one with his censer (that is two hundred and fiftie censers) and both thou and Aaron take either his censer.

And every one toke his censer, and put fyre therin, and layed incense theron, and came before the dore of the Tabernacle of witness, and Moses and Aaron also. And Corah gathered y whole congregaciō agaynst the before the dore of the Tabernacle of witness.

But y glory of the LORDE appeared before y whole congregacion. And y LORDE spake vnto Moses z Aaron, z sayde: Separate yore selues fro this congregaciō, y I maye shortly consume them. And they fell vpon their faces, z sayde: O God, thou God of the spretes of all flesh, yf one man haue synned, wilt thou therfore be wroth ouer the whole congregacion? And the LORDE spake vnto Moses, z saide: Speake to the congregaciō, and saye: Come vp from y dwellynge of Corah, and Dathan, and Abiram.

And Moses stode vp, z wente vnto Dathan z Abiram, z the Elders of Israel followed him, z he spake to y congregaciō, z saide: Departe fro y tentes of these vngodly mē z touche nothynge y is theirs, y ye perishe not in eny of their synnes. And they gat them vp from the dwellynge of Corah, Dathan, z Abiram. But Dathan and Abiram came out, and stode in the dore of their tentes, with their wyues, and sonnes and children.

And Moses sayde: Hereby shal ye knowe that the LORDE hath sent me, to do all these workes, and that I haue not done them of myne awne here. Yf these men dye the comon death of all men, or be vsited as all men are vsited, then hath not the LORDE sent me. But yf the LORDE make a new thynge, and the earth open hir mouth, and swallowe them with all that they haue, so y they go downe quicke in to hell, the shal ye knowe, that the sēmen haue blasphemed the LORDE.

Deu. 11. a
Nu 26. b
Psal. 105. b

And whā he had spokē out all these wordes, y groude cloue asunder vnder the, z the earth opened hir mouth, z swallowed the, w their houses, z all the mē y were w Corah, z all their substance, and they wente downe quicke in to the hell, with all that they had.

And the earth closed vpo them, z so they perished from amonge y congregaciō. And all Israel y were aboute the, fled at y crye of the, for they sayde: That y earth swallowe not vs also. Moreover the fyre came out fro the LORDE, and consumed the two hundred and fiftye men, that offred the incense.

And the LORDE spake vnto Moses, z sayde: Speake to Eleazar y sonne of Aaron y prest, y he take vp y censers out of y burninge, z scatter y fyre here z there (for the censers of these synners are halowed thow their soules) y they maye be beate in to thine plates, z fastened vpon y altare. For they are offred before y LORDE, z halowed: and they shalbe a token vnto y childre of Israel.

And Eleazar the prest toke y brasen censers which they y were burnt, had offred, z bet the to plates, to fasten the vpon y altare for a remēbraunce vnto y childre of Israel y no straunger (and he that is not of y seide of Aaron) come nye to offre incense before the LORDE, y it happē not vnto him as vnto Corah and his companye, acordynge as the LORDE sayde vnto him by Moses.

On the nexte morow murmured y whole congregacion of y childre of Israel agaynst Moses z Aaron, z saide: Ye haue slayne y peple of y LORDE. And whan the cōgregaciō was gathered agaynst Moses z Aaron, they turned the towarde y Tabernacle of witness. And beholde, the y cloude covered y Tabernacle, z y glory of y LORDE appeared. And Moses z Aaron wete in before y Tabernacle of witness. And y LORDE spake vnto Moses z sayde: Get you out of this cōgregacion, I wil shortly consume the. And they fell vpon their faces. And Moses sayde vnto Aaron: Take the cēser z put fyre therin fro of the altare, z laye incēse theron, z go soone to the cōgregacion, z make an attonement for them. For the wraith is gone out from the LORDE, and the plage is begōne amonge the peple.

And Aaron dyd as Moses sayde, z ranne in the myddest amonge y congregaciō. And beholde, y plage was begōne. And he burnt incēse z made an attonement for the peple, z stode betwene the deed z the lyuynge, and the plage ceased. But there were fourtene thousande, and seue hundred deede in the plage, besydes them that dyed aboute the busynesse of Corah. And Aaron came agayne vnto Moses before the dore of the Tabernacle of witness. And the plage ceased.

The xvij. Chapter.
And y LORDE spake vnto Moses, z sayde: Speake to the childre of Israel, z

take of the twolue staves, of every caprayne of his fathers house one, and wyte every mans name vpon his staffe. But Aarons name shal thou wyte vpon the staffe of Levi. For every heade of their fathers house shal haue a staffe. And laye the in the Tabernacle of witness, before the witness where I testifie vnto you. And loke whom I shall chōse, his staffe shal flourish, y I maye stytle the grūdginges of the childre of Israel, which they grudge agaynst you.

And Moses spake vnto the childre of Israel, z all their capraynes gaue him twolue staves, every caprayne a staffe, after y house of their fathers. And Aarons staffe was amonge their staves also. And Moses layed the staves before the LORDE in the Tabernacle of witness.

On the morow whā Moses wete in to y Tabernacle of witness, he foude y Aaron's rodde of the house of Levi flourished, and brought forth blossoms, z bare allmondes. And Moses brought forth all y staves fro y LORDE before all y childre of Israel, that they might se it. And they toke every mā his staffe.

The LORDE sayde vnto Moses: (staffe. Bynge Aarons staffe agayne before the witness, y it maye be kepte for a tokē to the childre of rebellion, that their murmurings maye cease frome, lest they dye.

Moses dyd as y LORDE comaunded him. And y childre of Israel sayde vnto Moses: Beholde, we cōsume awaie, we are destroyed, z perishe. Who so cometh nye y dwellynge place of y LORDE, he dyeth. Shal we the vtterly cōsume awaie? The xvij. Chap.

And the LORDE sayde vnto Aaron: Thou z thy sonnes, z thy fathers house w the shal beare the myssede of y Sanctuary: z thou z thy sonnes w the shal beare the myssede of y presthode. But thy birthen of the trybe of Levi y father, shal come nye the, z be ioyned vnto the, that they maye mynistrē vnto y. But thou z thy sonnes w the, shal mynistrē before y Tabernacle of witness. And they shal wayte vpo y seruyce z vpon y seruyce of the whole Tabernacle. But nye vnto the vessels of y Sanctuary z to the altare, shal they not come, y both they z ye dye not: howbeit they shal be ioyned vnto the, to wayte vpo the mynistracion in the Tabernacle of witness, in all the seruyce of the Tabernacle. And there shal no straunger come nye vnto you.

Therefore wayte now vpon the seruyce of the Sanctuary, and vpon the seruyce of the altare, that there come no more wraith vpon

the childre of Israel. For lo, I haue take y brethren the Leuies fro amonge the childre of Israel, to be youre gifte, for a presente vnto y LORDE, to do y seruyce in y Tabernacle of witness. As for y, and y sonnes with the, ye shal waite vpon youre prestes office, that ye maye mynistrē in all maner busynesse of the altare, and within the vayle: for y prestes office geue I vnto you for a gifte to do seruyce. Yf a straunger come nye, he shal dye.

And the LORDE sayde vnto Aaron: beholde, I haue geuen the my hēueofferyngest. And all that the childre of Israel halowe, haue I geuen vnto the, and to thy sonnes for a perpetuall dewtye. This shal thou haue of the most holy thinges that they offer. All their giftes with all their meatofferings, and with all their synofferings, and w all their trespase offerings, that they geue me, the same shal be most holy vnto the and y sonnes. In the most holy place shal thou eate it. All that are males shal eate therof: For it shal be holy vnto the.

The hēue offeringe of their giftes in all the Waueofferynges of the childre of Israel, haue I geuen vnto the also, and to thy sonnes, and to thy daughters for a perpetuall dewtye. Who so is cleane in thy house, shal eate therof. All the fat of the oyle, and all y fat of the wyne and come of their first linges, that they geue vnto the LORDE, haue I geuen vnto y. The first frutes of all that is in their londe, which they bringe vnto the LORDE, shal be thine. Who so euer is cleane in thine house, shal eate therof.

All dedicate thinges in Israel shal be thine. All that breaketh the Matziz amonge all flesh, which they bringe vnto the LORDE, whether it be man or beest, shal be thine. But so, that thou cause the firstborne of mā to be redeemed, and that thou cause the first borne of vncleane beestes to be redeemed also. (They shal redeme it whan it is a moneth olde, and shal geue it lowse for money, euen for fyne cycles, after the Cycle of the Sanctuary, which Cycle is worth twentye Seras.)

But the first frutes of an ore, or lambe, or goate shal thou not cause to be redeemed for they are holy. Their bloude shal thou sprenkle vpon the altare, and their fat shal thou burne for an offeringe of a swete sauoure vnto y LORDE. Their flesh shal be thine, like as y Wauebrest and y right shulder is thine also. All the hēueofferings that y childre of Israel halowe vnto y LORDE, haue I geuen vnto the, z to thy sonnes, z to thy daughters with the for a perpetuall dewtye.

Exo. 30. b
Leu. 27. d
Ezt. 45. d

This shalbe a salted conuenaunt for ever befo re & LORDE, vnto the and thy seide with the.

And the LORDE sayde vnto Aaron: Thou shal inherit no thinge in their lande, ner ha ue eny porcion amonge them: for I am & por cion, and thine inheritaunce amonge the chil dren of Israel. Vnto the children of Levi ha ue I geuen all the riches in Israel to inheri taunce, for & seruyce which they do vnto me in the Tabernacle of witnesse, that from he ce forth the children of Israel come not nye
the Tabernacle of witnes, to lade them sel
ues with synne, and to dye: But the Levites
shal do the seruyce in the Tabernacle of wit nes, & shal beare their synne, for a perpetuall lawe amonge youre posterities. And they shall inheret none inheritaunce amonge the children of Israel. For & riches of the childre of Israel, which they geue vnto & LORDE, ha ue I geuen vnto the Levites for an hereta ge. Therefore haue I sayde vnto them, that they shall inheret no inheritaunce amonge
the children of Israel.

And & LORDE talked w Moses, & saide:
Speake to the Levites, & saye vnto them:
Wha ye take of & childre of Israel & riches,
& I haue geuen you of the for yo inheritaun ce, ye shal take an heueofferinge of the same vnto the LORDE, even the tenth of the tithe.
And the same yo heueofferynge shall ye re
ken, as though ye gaue come out of the bar
ne, and fullnesse out of the wynepresse.

Thus shal ye geue an heueofferynge vn to the LORDE of all yo riches, which ye take of the children of Israel, & ye maie geue the same heueofferynge of & LORDE, vnto Aaron & priest. And all & ye geue of & tythes, & ha lowe vnto & LORDE for a gifte, & same shall be his of the best. And saye thou vnto them:
Whan ye thus geue vp & fat therof, it shal
be rekened vnto the Levites as the increace
of the barne, and as the increace of the wine presse. And ye maye eate it in all places, ye & yo children: for it is youre rewarde for you re seruyce in the Tabernacle of witnesse: and ye shal not lade synne vpon you in the same,
whan ye geue the fat therof, and vnhallowe not the halowed thinges of the children of Israel, and ye shal not dye.

The XIX. Chapter.

And the LORDE spake vnto Moses &
Aaron & sayde: This custome shall be a lawe, which the LORDE hath commaun ded, & sayde: Speake vnto & children of Is rael, & they brynge vnto & a reed cow with out spot, wherein is no blemyshe, & vpon wh
there came neuer yock: and ye shal geue her vnto Eleasar the priest, which shall brynge her without the hooste, and cause her to be slayne there before him.

And Eleasar & priest shal take of hir bloo
de with his synger, and sprenkle it seuen met straight toward the dore of the Taber nacle of witnesse, and cause the cow to be burnt before him, both hir skynne and hir flesh, and hir bloude also with hir donge.
And the priest shal take Cedar wodd and y pe, and purple wolle, and cast it vpo the cow
as she burneth, & he shal washe his clothes, and bathe his body with water, and the go
in to the hoost, and be vncleane vntill & eue.

And he that burnt her, shal wash his clo thes also with water, and bathe his body in water, & be vncleane vntill & euen. And one & is cleane, shal gather vp the asshes of & cow, and poure them without the hoost in a cleane place, that they maye be kepte there,
for sprenklinge water to the congregacion
of the childre of Israel, for it is a synofferin
ge. And he that gathered vp the asshes of the cow, shal wash his clothes, and be v cleane vntill the euen. This shalbe a perpe tuall lawe vnto & childre of Israel, and to the straungers that dwell amonge you.

Who so now toucheth a deed ma, shal be vncleane seuen dayes: the same shal purifie himself here with, on the thirde daye and on the seuenth daie, and then shal he be cleane.
And yf he purifye not himself on the thirde daye, & on the seuenth daye, the shal he not be cleane. But wha eny ma toucheth a deed personne, and wil not purifie himself, he desy leth the dwellinge of the LORDE, and the sa me soule shal be roted out of Israel, because the sprenklinge water is not sprenkled vpon him: and he is vncleane, as long as he let teth not himself be pouged therof.

This is the lawe. Whan a ma dyeth in tente, who so ever goeth in to the tente, and all & is in the tente, shal be vncleane seue dai
es. And enery open vessel that hath no lydd nor conerynge, is vncleane. And who so ever toucheth one & is slayne w the swerde vpon & felde, or eny other deed, or a deed mans bo ne, or a graue, & same is vncleane seue dayes.

So now for the vncleane personne, they shal take of & asshes of this burnt synoffe rynge, & put sprenklinge water thereon in to a vessell, and a cleane man shal take & ysope, & dyppe it in the water, and sprenkle it vpon
the tente, and vpon all the vessels, and all the soules that are therein. Likewyse also vpon him, & hath touched a deed mans bone, or a slayne personne, or a deed body, or a graue.

And he that is cleane, shal sprenkle vpon
the vncleane, & thirde daye, & the seuenth daie, & purifye him on & seuenth daye. And he shal washe his clothes, & bathe him self w wa ter, and so at euen he shal be cleane.

But he & is vncleane, and wil not purifye him self, & same soule shal be roted out of & cōgregacion. For he hath defyled the Sanc tuary of the LORDE, & is not sprenkled w spri klinge water, therfore is he vncleane. And this shalbe a perpetuall lawe vnto the. And he & sprenkled w the sprenklinge water, shall wash his clothes also. And who so euertou cheth the sprenklinge water, shal be vncleane vntill the euen. And what so ever he tou cheth, shalbe vncleane: & loke what soule he toucheth, shalbe vncleane vntill the euen.

The XX. Chapter.

And the childre of Israel came w the whole cōgregacion into the wilder nesse of Sin in the first moneth, & the people abode at Cades. And there dyed Mi riam, & was buried there. And the congrega cion had no water, & they gathered them sel ues together agaynst Moses & Aaron, & the people chode with Moses, & sayde: Wolde God & we had perished, whan oure brethre perished before the LORDE. Wherfore haue ye brought the congregacion of the LORDE
in to this wilderness, & we shulde dye here with oure catell: And wherfore haue ye brought vs out of Egipte in to this place, where men can not sowe, where are nether fygges, ner vynes, ner pomgranates, & whe re there is no water to drynke.

And Moses & Aaron were fro the congre
gacion vnto & dore of & Tabernacle of wit nesse, & fell vpon their faces. And the glory of the LORDE appeared vnto them. And the LORDE spake vnto Moses, and sayde: Ta ke the staffe, & gather the cōgregacion toge ther, thou & thy brother Aaron, & speake vn to the rocke before their eyes, & it shall geue his water. And thus shalt thou prouyde the water out of the rocke, & geue the congrega cion drynke, and their catell also.

Then toke Moses the staffe before & LOR
DE, as he commaunded him, & Moses & Aa ron gathered the congregacion together be fore the rocke, & sayde vnto the: Heare ye re bellions: Shal we prouyde you water out of this rocke? And Moses lift vp his hande, & smote & rocke w the staffe two tymes. Then came & water out abundantly, so & the cōgre gacion drank, and their catell also.

But the LORDE sayde vnto Moses & Aa ron: Because ye belened me not, to sanctifye

me before & childre of Israel, ye shal not bryn ge this congregacion in to the lande that I shal geue the. This is & water of strife, whe re the children of Israel stroue w the LORDE and he was sanctified vpon them.

And Moses sent messengers fro Cades
vnto & kynge of & Edomites: This worde sendeth the & brother Israel: Thou knowest all & trauayle that happened vnto vs, how that oure fathers wente downe in to Egipte, & how we haue dwelt in Egipte a longe tyme, & how the Egiptians deale euell with vs & & fathers. And we cryed vnto & LORDE which herde oure voyce, and sent his angell, & hath brought vs out of Egipte: And be holde, we are at Cades in & cite without the borders of & lande. O let vs go thorow thy lande, we wyl not go thorow & felde, ner vy nyardes, ner drynke the water out of the fou tynes. We wyl go the hye strete, and tur ne nether to & right hande ner to & lefte, cyll
we be come past & borders of thy countre.

But the Edomite answered him: Thou shal not go by me, or I wyl come agaynst & with & swerde. The children of Israel saide vnto him: We wil go & comō hye waye, & yf
we or oure catell drynke of thy water, we wil paye for it: we wil do no thinge, but passe tho row on fore onely. But he sayde: Thou shalt not go thorow, And the Edomites came out against them with a mightie people & a stro ge hande. Thus & Edomites denied to gra te Israel passage thorow the borders of the lande. And Israel turned awaye from them.

And the children of Israel brake vp fro Cades, and came with the whole congrega cion vnto mount Hore. And the LORDE spa ke vnto Moses & Aaron at mount Hore har de vpon the coastes of & lande of & Edomi tes, & sayde: Let Aaron be gathered vnto his people: for he shal not come in to & lande &
I haue geuen vnto & childre of Israel, be cause ye were disobedient vnto my mouth at the water of strife. Take Aaron and Elea sar and his sonne, and brynge them vp vnto mount Hore, and strype Aaron out of his ves timentes, and put the vpon Eleasar his son ne and there shall Aaron be gathered (vnto his people) and dye.

Then dyd Moses as the LORDE commaun
ded him, and they wente vp vnto Mount Hore in & sight of the whole congregacion.
And Moses toke Aarons clothes, & put the vpon Eleasar his sonne. And Aaron dyed there, even aboue vpon the mount. And Mo ses & Eleasar came downe from the mount.
And whan the whole congregacion sawe

And the LORD herde the voyce of Israel, and deliuered them the Cananites, and they utterly destroyed them & their cities also. And he called the place Horma.

For here is nether bred ner water, and oure soule lotheth this lighte meate.

Then sent the LORD fyrie serpentes amonge the people, which bite the peple, so that there dyed moch people in Israel. Then came they vnto Moyses, and sayde: We haue synned, because we haue spoken agaynst the LORD and agaynst the. Praye thou vnto the LORD, that he take awaye the serpentes from vs. And Moyses prayed for the people.

Num. 21. c.

And the children of Israel departed, and pitched in Oboth. And from Oboth they wente on, and pitched in Irim by Abarim in the wyldernesse ouer agaynst Moab, on the Eastsyde. From thence departed they, pitched by the ryuer of Sared. From thence departed they, and pitched on this side Arnon, which is in the wyldernesse, and cometh out of the coastes of the Amorites. In Arnon is the border betwixte Moab and the Amorites. Wherefore it is spoken in the booke of the warres of the LORD: And go with violence both on the ryuer of Arnon, & on the founteyne of the riuer, which boweth downeward to dwell at Ar, & leaneth thereon, to be the border of Moab.

And from thence they came to the well. This is the well, wherof the LORD spake vnto Moyses: gather the people together, I wil geue them water. Then sange Israel this songe, and they sange one after another ouer the well: This is the well, that the prynces dygged: the nobles amonge the people haue digged it thorow & teacher and their stanes.

And from this wilderness they wente vnto Mathana, & from Mathana vnto Nabaliel, and from Nabaliel to Bamoth, and fro Bamoth vnto the valley that lieth in the felde of Moab at the toppe of Pisga, and turneth toward the wyldernesse.

And Israel sent messengers vnto Sihon the kynge of the Amorites, & caused to saye vnto him: Let me go thorow thy lande, we wil not turne in to thy felde, ner in to the vynyardes: nether will we drynke the water of the welles, & hye strete wil we go, till we be past the borders of thy countre.

Howbeit Sihon wolde not geue the children of Israel licence to go thorow the coastes of his lande, but gathered all his people together, and wente out agaynst Israel in the wyldernesse. And whan he came to Jahaza, he fought agaynst Israel. Neuertheless Israel smote him with the edge of the swerde, and conquered his lande from Arnon vnto Iaboc, and vnto the children of Ammon. For the borders of the children of Ammon were ströge. So Israel toke all these cities, and dwelt in all the cities of the Amorites, namely at Heshbon, and in the townes belonginge therto. For Heshbon the cite was Sihons the kynge of the Amorites, and he had foughten before with the kynge of the Moabites, and conquered all his lande from him vntyll Arnon.

Wherefore it is sayde in the prouerbe: Come vnto Heshbon, let vs buylde and prepare of cite of Sihon. For there is a fyre gone out of Heshbon, and a flamme from the cite of Sihon, which hath consumed Ar of the Moabites, bites, and the citisens of the toppe of Arnon. Wo vnto the Moab, thou people of Camos art vndone. His sonnes are put to flighte, & his doughters brought captiue vnto Sihon the kynge of the Amorites. Their glory is come to naught from Heshbon vnto Dibon: waisted are they vnto Lophi, which reacheth vnto Mediba. Thus dwelt Israel in the lande of the Amorites.

And Moyses sent out spyes vnto Jahesar, & they toke the townes belongynge therto, & conquered the Amorites & were therein. And they turned, & wente vp the waye toward Basan. Then Og the kynge of Basan wete out agaynst them & all his people, to fight in Edrei. And the LORD sayde vnto Moyses: Feare him not, for I haue geuen him & his lande & people in to thy hande, & thou shalt do with him, as thou dydest with Sihon the kynge of the Amorites, which dwelt at Heshbon. And they smote him, & his sonnes, & all his people (so & there remayned none) & conquered the lande. Afterwarde wete the children of Israel, & pitched in the felde of Moab beyonde Jordane by Jericho.

The XXII. Chapter.

Und whan Balac & sonne of Ziphor sawe all that Israel had done vnto the Amorites, and that the Moabites were sore afrayed of the people (so & was so greate) and that the Moabites stode in feare of the children of Israel, he sayde vnto the Elders of the Madianites: Now shal this heape lycke vp all that is aboute vs, eue as an oxe licketh vp the grasse in the felde. (And Balac & sonne of Ziphor was kynge of the Moabites at that tyme.)

And he sent out messengers vnto Balaam the sonne of Beor, which was an interpreter. (The same dwelt by the water of the lande of the children of his people) that they shulde call him, and he caused to saye vnto him: Beholde, there is come out of Egypte, a people, which couereth the face of the earth, and lyeth ouer agaynst me. Come now therefore, and curse me this people, for they are to mightie for me, yf peradventure I might be able to smyte them, and to dryne them out of the lande. For I wote, that whom thou blessest, he is blessed: and whom thou cursest, he is cursed.

And the Elders of the Moabites wente on with the Elders of the Madianites, and had the reward of the sooth sayenge in their handes, and they came vnto Balaam, & tolde him the wordes of Balac. And he saide vnto the: Tary here all night, & I will bring ge you worde agayne, euen as the LORD shall saye vnto me. So & prynces of the Moabites abode with Balaam.

And God came vnto Balaam, & sayde: What men are these, which are with thee? Balaam sayde vnto God: Balac & sonne of Ziphor the kynge of the Moabites hath sent vnto me: Beholde, there is a people come out of Egypte, and couereth the face of the earth, come now therefore, & curse me the, yf peradventure I maye be able to fighte with them, & to dryne the out. But God sayde vnto Balaam: Go not with them, & curse not that people, for they are blessed.

Then rose Balaam vp in the mornyng, & sayde vnto the prynces of Balac: Get you vnto youre londe, for the LORD wyll not suffer me to go with you.

And the prynces of the Moabites gat the vp, came to Balac, & saide: Balaam refuseth to come w vs. Then sent Balac yet a greater company of prynces, & more honorable than they. Whan they camero Balaam, they tolde him: Balac & sonne of Ziphor sendeth the this worde: Oh refuse not to come vnto me, for I wyll promote the vnto hye honoure, & wil do what so euer thou sayest vnto me. Come I praye the, curse me this people.

Balaam answered, & sayde vnto the seruantes of Balac: If Balac wolde geue me his house full of siluer & golde, yet coulde I not go beyonde the worde of the LORD my God, to do litle or greate. Neuertheles tary ye here this night, & I maye wete, what the LORD will saye more vnto me. Then came God to Balaam by night, & saide vnto him: If the men are come to call the, get the vp then, and go with the: but what I shal saye vnto the, that shalt thou do.

Num. 24. c.

Then rose Balaam vp in the mornyng, & saddled his Ass, & wente w the prynces of the Moabites. But the wrath of God waxed whote, because he wete. And the angell of the LORD stode in the waye, to withstode him. But he rode vpon his Ass, & two seruantes to him. And the Ass sawe the angell of the LORD standing in the waye, and his swerde drawen in his hande. And the Ass turned a syde out of the waye, and wente in to the felde. But Balaam smote her, so she shulde go in the waye.

Then stode the angell of the LORD in the waye by the vynyardes, where there were walles on both the sydes. And when the Ass sawe the angell of the LORD, she wrenched vnto the wall, and thrust Balaams fore vnto the wall. And he smote her agayne. The while the angell of the LORD farther, and stode in a narrow place, where there was no waye to turne, nether to the righte hande ner to the left. And when the Ass sawe the angell of the LORD, she fell downe vnder Balaam. Then was Balaams wach furious, and smote the Ass with a staffe.

Then opened the LORD the mouth of the Ass, and she sayde vnto Balaam: What haue I done vnto the, that thou hast smytten me now thre tymes? Balaam sayde vnto the Ass: Because thou hast mocked me. Oh the I had a swerde now in my hande, I wolde kyll the. The Ass sayde vnto Balaam: Am not I thine Ass, which thou hast rydden vpon in the tyme vnto this daye? Was I euer wont to do so vnto the? he sayde: No.

Then opened the LORD the eyes of Balaam, and he sawe the angell of the LORD standing in the waye, and a drawe swerde in his hande. And he enclined himselfe, and bowed downe to his face. And the angell of the LORD sayde vnto him: Wherefore hast thou smytten thine Ass now thre tymes? Beholde, I am come out to reuise the, for the waye is frowarde, and contrary vnto me. And the Ass sawe me, and auoyded from me thre tymes: or els yf she had not turned asyde fro me, I had slayne the, and saved the Ass alyue.

Then sayde Balaam vnto the angell of the LORD: I have synned, for I wist not, that thou stodest in the waye agaynst me. And now yf it displease the, I wil turne agayne. The angell of the LORD saide vnto him: Go with the me: but thou shalt speake nothinge els, then that I shal saye vnto the. So Balaam wente forth with the princes of Balac. When Balac herde that Balaam came, he wente out to mete him (in the cite of the Moabites, which lieth on the coaste of Arnon, which is on the vttemost border) and sayde vnto him: Dyd not I sende for the to call the? Wherefore camest thou not then vnto me? Thinkest thou that I am not able to promote the vnto honoure? Balaam answered him: Lo, I am come vnto the. But how can I saye any thinge els, then that God putteth in my mouth? I must speake. So Balaam wente with Balac, and when they came vnto the cite on the vttemost border of his lande. And Balac slewe oxen and shepe, and sent for Balaam, and for the princes that were with him.

The XXIII. Chapter.

And in the morninge, Balac toke Balaam, and they wente vp to the hye place of Baal, that from thence he might see vnto the vttemost parte of the people. And Balaam sayde vnto Balac: Buylde me here seven altares, and prouyde me here seven bullockes, and seuen rammes. Balac dyd as Balaam sayde. And both Balac and Balaam offred, on every altare a bullocke and a ramme. And Balaam sayde vnto Balac: Stande thou by the burnt offeringe, I wil go, yf happily the LORD wil mete me, and call me, and I maye tell the, what so euer he sheweth me. And he wente his waye, as he sayde.

And the LORD mette Balaam. And Balaam saide vnto him: Seven altares haue I prepared, and offred on every altare a bullocke and a ramme. The LORD put the word in Balaams mouth, and sayde: Go agayne vnto Balac, and saye on this wise. And when he came agayne vnto him, beholde, he stode by his burnt offeringe, with all the princes of the Moabites.

Then toke he vp his parable, and sayde: Balac the kynge of the Moabites hath caused to seme out of Syria from the mountaynes toward the East, (and sayde) Come, curse me Jacob: come, desyre me Israel. How shall I curse, whom God curseth not? How shall I desyre, whom the LORD desyeth not? For fro the toppe of the stonye rockes I see him, and from the hilles I beholde him. Beholde, the people shall dwell by themselves, and shal not be reuenged amonge the heithen. Who can tell the dust of Jacob, and the nombre of the fourth parte of Israel? My soule die the death of the righteous, and my ende be as the ende of these.

Then saide Balac vnto Balaam: What doest thou vnto me? I caused to see the, for to curse myne enemies, and beholde, thou blessest the. He answered and saide: Must I not kepe the word of the LORD? Must I not kepe the word of the LORD? Which the LORD putteth in to my mouth? Balac saide vnto him: Come with me yet vnto another place, fro whence thou mayest see the vttemost parte of them, and not see them all, and curse me them there.

And he toke him vp to a fre place, and wente to the toppe of Pisga, and buylde seuen altares, and offred on every altare a bullocke and a ramme. And he sayde vnto Balac: Stande beside by thy burnt offeringe, while I go yonder. And the LORD mette Balaam, and put the worde in his mouth, and sayde: Go agayne vnto Balac, and saye on this wise. And when he came to him agayne, beholde, he stode by his burnt offeringe with the princes of the Moabites. And Balac sayde vnto him: What hath the LORD sayde?

And he toke vp his parable, and sayde: Ryse vp Balac, and heare, marke my testimony with thine eares thou sorner of Siphor. God is not a man, that he shulde lye, ner a mans childe, that he eny thinge shulde repente him. Shulde he saye and not do? Shulde he speake and not make it good? Beholde, I am broughte hither to blesse, I blesse, and can not go backe there fro. There is no weerynesse sene in Jacob, neither eny labour in Israel. The LORD his God is with him, and the kynges trompet is amonge the. God hath broughte the out of Egypte, his strength is as of an Unicorn. For there is no Sorcerye in Jacob, and no Sooth saye in Israel. When the tyme cometh, it shal be saide vnto Jacob, and to Israel, what God doeth. Beholde, the people shall rise vp as a Lyoness, and heue vp him selfe as a Lyon. He shal not lye downe, tyll he eate of the pray, and drynke the bloude of the slayne.

Then sayde Balac vnto Balaam: Thou shalt nether curse him ner blesse him. Balaam answered, and sayde vnto Balac: Haue I not tolde the: All that the LORD speaketh, I must do? Balac saide vnto him: Oh come, I wil bringe the to another place, yf it maye happily please God, and thou mayest curse the there. And he brought him vp to the toppe of mount Peor, and boweth toward the wyldernes. And Balaam sayde vnto Balac: Buylde me here seven altares, and prouyde me seuen bullockes and seuen rammes. Balac dyd as Balaam sayde, and offred on every altare a bullocke and a ramme.

The XXIII. Chapter.

And when Balaam sawe that it pleased the LORD, that he shulde blesse Israel, he wente not (as he dyd before) to seke witches, but set his face straight toward the wyldernes, lifte vp his eyes, and sawe Israel, how they laye a cordinge to their trybes, and the spere of God came vpon him, and he toke vp his parable, and sayde: Thus sayeth Balaam the sonne of Beor: Thus sayeth the man whose eyes are opened: Thus sayeth he which heareth the wordes of God, which sawe the vision of the Almighty: which fell downe, and his eyes were opened.

How goodly are thy tentes O Jacob, and thy habitacions O Israel: Euen as the brode valleys, as the gardens by the waters syde, as the tentes which the LORD hath piatred, and as the Cedar trees vpon the water. The water shal flowe out of his boket, and his sede shal be a greete water. His kynge shal be hyer then Agag, and his kyngdome shal be exalted. God hath broughte hi out of Egypte, his strength is as of an unicorn. He shal eate vp the heithen his enemies, and grynde their bones to poulder, and shute thorow them with his arrowes. He hath layed him downe as a Lyon, and as a Lyoness. Who wyll raise him vp? Blessed be he, that blesseth the: and cursed, that curseth the.

Then was Balac furious with wrath agaynst Balaam, and smote his handes together, and sayde vnto him: I haue called the, and thou shuldest curse myne enemies, and beholde, thou hast blessed the now thre tymes: and now get the hence to thy place. I thoughte that I wolde promote the vnto honoure, but the LORD hath kepte the backe from that worshiipe.

Balaam answered him: Tolde not I the messengers (whom thou sendest vnto me) and sayde: If Balac wolde geue me his house full of syluer and golde, yet coulde I not go beyonde the worde of the LORD, to do either euell or good after myne awne hert: but what the LORD speaketh, that must I speake also. And now beholde, for so moch as I go to my people, come therefore, I wyll shewe the what this people shal do vnto the people after this tyme.

And he toke vp his parable, and sayde: Thus sayeth Balaam the sonne of Beor: Thus sayeth the man, whose eyes are opened: Thus sayeth he which heareth the wordes of God, and which hath the knowlege of the hyest, eue he sawe the vision of the Almighty, and fell downe, and his eyes were opened: I shal see him, but not now: I shal beholde him, but not nigh at hande. There shal a starre come out of Jacob, and a cepter shal come vp out of Israel, and shal smyte the rulers of the Moabites, and ouercome all the children of Seth.

Edom shal be his possession, and Seir shal be his enemies possessio, but Israel shal do manfully. Out of Jacob shal come he, that hath dominion, and shal destroye the remnant of the cities.

And when he sawe the Amalechites, he toke vp his parable, and sayde: Amalec the first amonge the heithen, but at the last thou shalt perish utterly. And when he sawe the Kenites, he toke vp his parable, and sayde: Strag-ge is y dwellinge, and on a rocke hast thou put thy nest, neuertheless thou shalt be a burminge vnto Ayn, tyll Assur take y prisoner. And he toke vp his parable agayne, & sayde: Alas, who shal lyne, whā God doth this? And shippes out of Citim shall subdue Assur and Eber. He him self also shal perishe utterly. And Balaam gat him vp, and departed, and came agayne vnto his place, and Balac wente his waye also.

The XXV. Chapter.

And Israel dwelt in Sittim, and the people beganne to commytte whoredome with the daughters of the Moabites, which called the people vnto the sacrifice of their goddes. And the people ate and worshipped their goddes, and Israel submytted him self vnto Baal peor. Then the wrath of the LORDE wared whore vpon Israel, and he sayde vnto Moses: Take all the rulers of the people, and hanger them vpon vnto the LORDE agaynst y Sonne, that the terrible wrath of the LORDE maye be turned awaye from Israel. And Moses sayde vnto the iudges of Israel: Every man slaye his capayne, that haue submytted them selues vnto Baal peor.

B And beholde, one of the childre of Israel wete in agaynst his brethre, & ioyned him self to a Madiantish womā, in y sighte of Moses & of the whole cōgregation of y childre of Israel, which weped before the dore of y Tabernacle of wytnesse. Whan Phineas y sonne of Eleasar the sonne of Aaron y prest sawe y, he rose vp out of the cōgregation, & toke a swerde in his hande, & wente after the man of Israel into the whore house, & thrust the thorow, both the man of Israel and the woman, enē thorow the bely of her. Then ceased the plague from the children of Israel, and there were slayne in the plague foure and twenty thousande.

C And y LORDE spake vnto Moses, & saide: Phineas the sonne of Eleasar the sonne of Aaron y prest, hath turned my wrath awaye from the childre of Israel thorow his gelousy for my sake amonge them, y I shulden not consume the childre of Israel in my gelousy. Wherefore saye beholde, I geue him my cōuenant of peace, and he shal haue it, & his seed after him, enē the cōuenant of an euerlastinge presthode, because he was gelous for his Gods sake, and made an attonement for the children of Israel.

The man of Israel that was slayne with the Madiantish woman, was called Simri the sonne of Salu, a capayne of the house of the father of the Simeonites. The Madiantish woman also that was slayne, was called Cosbi, y daughter of Zur, which was a ruler of the people of a kynred amonge the Madiantites.

And the LORDE spake vnto Moses, & sayde: Vere the Madiantites, & smyte them, for they haue vexed you with their wyles, whereby they haue bigyled you thorow Peor, and thorow their sister Cosbi the daughter of a capayne of y Madiantites, which was slayne in the daye of the plague, for Peors sake, and the plague came after.

The XXVI. Chapter.

And whan the giltie bloude was shed, the LORDE sayde vnto Moses & vnto Eleasar y sonne of Aaron y prest: Take the summe of the whole cōgregation of the childre of Israel from twentye yere & aboue, after their fathers houses, all y are able to go forth to the warre in Israel. And the halfe parte which belonged vnto them that wente to the warre, was in nombre thre hundreth thousande, and seuen and thirtie thousande, and fyue hundreth shepe: of the which the LORDE had sixe hundreth, and fyue and seuentye shepe. Item sixe and thirtie thousande oxen: wherof the LORDE had two and seuentye. Item thirtie thousande and fyue hundreth Asses: wherof the LORDE had one and thre score. Item sixtene thousande soules of women: wherof the LORDE had two and thirtie. And Moses gaue this heueofferynge of the LORDE vnto Eleasar the prest, as the LORDE commaunded him.

As for the other halfe which Moses denyded vnto the children of Israel fro 3 men of warre (namely 3 halfe that fell to the congregacion) it was also thre hundreth thousande, and seuen and thirtie thousande, and fyue hundreth shepe, sixe and thirtie thousande oxen, thirtie thousande and fyue hundreth Asses, and sixtene thousande women soules.

And of this halfe of the childre of Israel toke Moses one of euery fyfye, both of the cattell and of the women, and gaue them vnto 3 Leuites, that waited vpon the habitacio of the LORDE, as 3 LORDE comaunded Moses.

And the captaynes ouer 3 thousandes of the hoost, namely they that were ouer thousandes and ouer hundreds, came forth vnto Moses, and sayde vnto him: Thy seruantes haue taken 3 summe of 3 men of warre, that were vnder oure hande, and there lacked not one: therfore brynge we a present vnto the LORDE, what euery one hath foude of Jewels of golde, cheynes, braceletes, rynges, earrings, and taches, that oure soules may be reconyled before the LORDE.

And Moses and Eleasar 3 prest toke of them 3 golde of all maner ornamentes. And all the golde of the heueofferynge that they shewed vnto the LORDE, was sixtene thousande and seuen hundreth and fyfye Syckles, of the captaynes ouer thousandes and hundreds. For loke what euery one had spoyle, that was his awne. And Moses and Eleasar the prest toke the golde of the captaynes ouer thousandes and hundreds, and broughte it in to the Tabernacle of witness for a remembraunce of the children of Israel before the LORDE.

The XXXII. Chapter.

The children of Ruben and the children of Gad had an exceeding grete multitude of cattell, and sawe the londe of Jafer and Gilead 3 it was a me place for cattell, and came and spake vnto Moses and to Eleasar the prest, and to the captaynes of the congregacion: The londe of Atroth, Dibon, Jafer, Timra, Zephbo, Eleale, Seban, Nebo, and Beon, which the LORDE smote before 3 congregacion of Israel, is a mete londe for cattell, and thy seruantes haue many cattell. And they sayde moze: For we haue founde fauoure before the, the geue thy seruantes this londe in possession, and we wyl not go ouer Jordane.

Moses sayde vnto them: Your brethren shall go to the warre, and wyl ye tary here? Wherfore turne ye 3 hertes of the children of Israel, that they shulde not go ouer into the londe that the LORDE shall geue them: Thus byd your fathers also, whan I sent them out from Cades Bernea, to spye out 3 londe. And whan they were come vnto 3 ruer of Escol, and sawe 3 londe, they turned the hertes of the children of Israel, so 3 they wolde not into the londe which 3 LORDE wolde haue geuen them.

And the LORDE was wroth at the same tyme, and sware, and sayde: These men 3 are come out of Egipte, from twetye yeare olde and aboue, shall not se the lande which I sware vnto Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, because they haue not wholly folowed me: saue Caleb 3 sonne of Jephune 3 Kenisite, and Josua 3 sonne of Nun: for they haue wholly folowed 3 LORDE. So the LORDE was wroth wth Israel, and let the wander in the wilderness fourty yeares, tyll all 3 generacion 3 had done euill before the LORDE, was consumed.

And beholde, ye are rysen vp in your fathers steade, to increase the nombre of synfull men, and to augmente yet the wrath and indignacion of the LORDE agaynst Israel. For yf ye returne you backe from folowinge him, he shal yet leaue them more in the wilderness, and so shal ye destroye all this people.

Then stepte they to him, and sayde: we wyl buylde shepfoldes here for oure shepe and cattell, and cities for 3 children: As for oure selues, we wyl go ready armed before the children of Israel, tyll we haue broughte them vnto their place: Our childre shal remayne in the fenced cities, because of 3 indwellers of the londe. We wyl not turne home agayne, tyll the children of Israel haue taken euery one his inheritance in possession: for we wyl not inheret with them beyonde Jordane: for 3 inheritance shal fall vnto vs vpon this syde Jordane Eastwarde.

Moses sayde vnto them: If ye wil do this, that ye wil harness your selues to the warre before the LORDE, then go ouer Jordane before the LORDE, who so euer is harnesssed amonge you, tyll he haue dryuen out his enemies before his face, and vntyll the londe be subdued before the LORDE, then shal ye returne, and be vngiltye before the LORDE, and before Israel, so shal ye haue this londe in possession before the LORDE. But yf ye wil not do so, beholde, ye shal offende agaynst the LORDE, and be sure, that your synne shal fynde you out. Buylde cities now therfore for your children, and shepfoldes and stalles for your shepe and cattell, and do as ye haue spoken.

The childre of Gad, and the childre of Ruben sayde vnto Moses: Thy seruantes shal do as my lorde hath comaunded. Our children, wyues, substance, and all 3 cattell, shal be in 3 cities of Gilead. But we 3 seruantes wyl go all harnesssed for the warre vnto battail before 3 LORDE, as my lorde hath saide.

The Moses comaunded Eleasar 3 prest and Josua the sonne of Nun, and the chiefe fathers of the tribes of the childre of Israel, and saide vnto them: If the childre of Gad and the childre of Ruben go ouer Jordane wth you, all prepared to fight before the LORDE, and whan the londe is subdued vnto y<sup>e</sup>, the geue them the londe of Gilead in possessio. But yf they go not ouer with y<sup>e</sup>, y<sup>e</sup> harness, then shal they inheret wth y<sup>e</sup> in 3 lde of Canaan.

The children of Gad and the children of Ruben answered, and sayde: As 3 LORDE hath spoken vnto 3 seruantes, so wyl we do: we wil go harnesssed before the LORDE in to 3 lde of Canaan, and possesse oure enheritance on this syde Jordane.

So Moses gaue vnto 3 children of Gad and to the children of Ruben, and to the halfe trybe of Manasse the sonne of Joseph, 3 kyngdome of Sihon kyng of the Amorites and the kyngdome of Og the kyng of Basan, the londe with the cities therof in all 3 coastes of 3 countre rounde aboute. The 3 children of Gad buylde Dibon, Astaroth, Atroth, Sophan, Jafer, and Jeqabeha, Bethnimra, and Betharan, stronge fenced cities, and shepe foldes. The children of Ruben buylde Zephbo, Eleale, Biriathaim, Nebo, Baal Meon, and turned 3 names, and Sibamas and gaue names vnto 3 cities which they buylde. And 3 children of Machir the sonne of Manasse wente in to Gilead, and conquered it, and drene out the Amorites 3 were therein. Then Moses gaue Gilead vnto Machir 3 sonne of Manasse, and he dwelt therein. Jair 3 sonne of Manasse wente and conquered the vyllages therof, and called them Zanoth, Jair. Nobah wente, and conquered Kenath, with the townes belonginge thereto, and called it Nobah, after his awne name.

The XXXIII. Chapter.

These are 3 iourneys of the childre of Israel, which wete out of 3 lande of Egipte according to their armies, by Moses and Aarō. And Moses wrote their gage out as they iourneyed, after 3 comaundment of 3 LORDE. And these (namely) are the yourneyes of their outgoinge. They departed fro Raamses vpon 3 fiftene daye of the first moneth (even the morow after the Easter) thorow an hye hande, so that all the Egiptians sawe, and buried then their firstborne, whom the LORDE had slayne amonge them: for the LORDE executed iudgment also vpon their goddes. When they were departed from Raamses, they pitched in Succoth. And fro Succoth they departed, and pitched their tentes in Ethā, which lyeth in 3 edge of 3 wilderness. Fro Ethā they departed,

Then Aaron the prest wente vp vnto mount Hor (acordynge to the commaundement of the LORDE) and died there in the fourtyeth yere, after ⁊ the children of Israel departed out of the lande of Egypte, in the first date of the fift moneth, whā he was an hundieth and thre and twenty yere olde. And Arab the kynge of the Cananites, which dwelt in the south countre of Canaan herde ⁊ the children of Israel came.

And from mount Hor they departed, and pitched in Zalmona. From Zalmona they departed, and pitched in Phimon. From Phimon they departed, ⁊ and pitched in Oboth. From Oboth they departed, and pitched in Igim by Abarim vpon the border of the lande of ⁊ Moabites. From Igim they departed, and pitched in Dib Gad. From Dib Gad they departed, and pitched in Almon Diblathama. Fro Almon Diblathama they departed and pitched in the mountaynes of Abarim ouer agaynst Nebo. From the mountaynes of Abarim they departed, and pitched in ⁊ felde of the Moabites besyde Jordane ouer agaynst Jericho. Fro Beth haichmoth vnto the playne of Sitim laye they in the felde of the Moabites.

And the LORDE spake vnto Moses in the felde of the Moabites, by Jordane ouer agaynst Jericho, and sayde: Speake to the children of Israel, and saie vnto them: Whā ye are come ouer Jordane in the lande of Canaan, ye shal dryue out all the inhabitants before youre face, and plucke downe all their pilers, and all their ymages of metall, and destroye all their hye places: that ye maye so take the lande in possession and dwell therein. For I haue geue you the lande to enioye it.

And the lande shal ye denyde out by lott amonge youre kynreds. Vnto those that are many, shal ye denyde the more: And vnto them that are fewe, shal ye denyde the lesse. Euen as the lott falleth there vnto euery one, so shal he haue it, acordinge to the trybes of their fathers.

But yf ye wyll not dryue out the inhabitants of ⁊ lande before yō face, then they wyll ye suffre to remayne, shal become thornes in youre eyes, and bannes in youre sydes, ⁊ shal vex you in the lande where ye dwell. Then wil it come to passe, that I shal do vnto you euen as I thought to do vnto them.

The XXXIII. Chapter.

And the LORDE spake vnto Moses, and sayde: Commaunde the childre of Israel, and saie vnto them: Whā ye come into the lande of Canaan, the lande ⁊ falleth to youre inheritaunce, shal haue his borders in the lande of Canaan. The South quarter shal begynne at the wyldernes of Sin by Edom, so that youre South quarter be from the edge of the Salt see, which lyeth toward the South: and that ⁊ same quarter set a compasse from the South vnto ⁊

crabim, ⁊ go thoroꝝ Zimma: ⁊ that his outgonge be from the South vnto Cades Barnea, ⁊ reache vnto Hazor Adar, and go thoroꝝ Azmona, and stretch out from Azmona vnto the ryuer of Egypte, and that the ende therof be at the greatesee.

But the West quarter shal be this: name ly the greatesee, let ⁊ be youre border toward the West.

The North quarter shal be this: Ye shall compasse from the greatesee vnto mount Hor. And from mount Hor ye shall compasse tyll a man come vnto Hemath, that the outgoyng therof be the coast of Zedada, and that the border of the same go out vnto Siphion, and that the goynge out of it be at Hazor Enan. Let this be youre North quarter.

And youre East quarter shal ye copasse from Hazor Enan vnto Sephan, ⁊ let the coaste go downe from Sephan and Ribla on the East syde of Ain. The let it go downe, ⁊ reache vnto the syde of the see of Chinnereth Eastwarde, and come downe by Jordane, so ⁊ the goynge out of it be the Salt see. Let this be youre lande with the borders therof rounde aboute.

And Moses commaunded the childre of Israel, and sayde: This is youre lande that ye shal denyde out amonge you by lott, which the LORDE hath commaunded to geue vnto the nyne trybes, and to the halfe trybe. * For the trybe of the children of Ruben after their fathers house, and the trybe of the children of Gad acordinge to their fathers house, and the half trybe of Manasse haue receaued their porcion. Thus the two trybes and the halfe trybe haue their inheritance already, on this syde Jordane, ouer agaynst Jericho, Eastwarde.

And the LORDE spake vnto Moses, and sayde: These are ⁊ names of the men, which shal denyde the lande amonge you. Eleasar the prest, and Jesua the sonne of Nun. And the capayne of euery trybe shal ye take, to denyde the lande.

And these are the names of the men: Caleb the sonne of Jephune of the trybe of Iuda. Samuel the sonne of Ammihud of the trybe of Simeon. Elidad ⁊ sonne of Cision of the trybe of Ben Jamin. Buki the sonne of Jagli of the trybe of the childre of Dan. Samuel the sonne of Ephod, of the trybe of the children of Manasse amonge the children of Joseph. Remuel the sonne of Siphthan, of the trybe of the children of Ephraim. Elizaphan the sonne of Parnach, of the trybe of the childre of Zabulon. Paltiel the sonne of Asan, of the trybe of the childre of Issachar. Abihud the sonne of Selomi, of ⁊ trybe of the children of Asser. Pedabel the sonne of Ammihud, of the trybe of the children of Nephthali. These are they whom ⁊ LORDE commaunded, that they shulde denyde the inheritance vnto the children of Israel in the lande of Canaan.

The XXXV. Chapter.

And the LORDE spake vnto Moses in the felde of the Moabites by Jordane ouer agaynst Jericho, ⁊ sayde: Commaunde the childre of Israel, that they geue vnto ⁊ Leuites of the inheritance of their possession, cities to dwell in. The suburbs also aboute the cities shal ye geue vnto the Leuites, that they maye dwell in the cities, and in the suburbs to haue their catell, and substance, and all their bestes.

The suburbs which ye geue vnto ⁊ Leuites, shal reache fro the wall of ⁊ cite outward, a M. cubites rounde aboute. Thus ye shal measure without the cite on ⁊ East syde, two thousande cubites: ⁊ on ⁊ South syde, two thousande cubites: ⁊ on ⁊ West syde, two thousande cubites: ⁊ on ⁊ North syde, two thousande cubites, so ⁊ the cite be in the myddes. This shal be their suburbs.

* And amonge the cities which ye shal geue vnto the Leuites, ye shal geue the fyre fre cities, that he which comitteth a slaughter, maie flye thither. Besydes the same ye shal geue the yet two ⁊ fourtie cities: so ⁊ all ⁊ cities which ye geue vnto ⁊ Leuites, be eight ⁊ fourtye to their suburbs. And of ⁊ same ye shal geue the more, from the ⁊ haue moch in possession amonge the children of Israel: ⁊ the lesse from them, that haue litle in possession. Every one (acordinge to his inheritance that is denyded vnto him) shal geue of his cities vnto the Leuites.

And the LORDE talked w Moses ⁊ saide: Speake to the childre of Israel, ⁊ saie vnto the: Whā ye come ouer Jordane into ⁊ lande of Canaan, ye shal chose out cities to be fyre cities, ⁊ who so comyteth slaughter vnto awarres, maye flye thither. And soch fyre cities shal be amonge you because of the auenger of bloude, that he which hath commyted slaughter, dye not, tyll he stonde in iudgment before the congregacion. And of these cities which ye shal geue, there shal be fyre fyre cities. Thre shal ye geue on this syde Jordane, and thre in the lande of Canaan.

These are the fyre fyre cities, both for ⁊ childre of Israel ⁊ for the straungers, ⁊ for soch as dwell amonge you, & who so ever hath slaine any soule vnawarres, maye flyethither.

Deu. 21. b. He & smyth eny man wth an yron weap<sup>o</sup>, & he dye, the same is a murthurer, & shal dye the death. If he cast at him wth a stone (wherewith eny man maye be slayne) & he dyether of, then is he a murthurer, and shal dye the death. If he smyte him wth an handweap<sup>o</sup> of wood (wherewith eny man maie be slayne) that he dye, then is he a murthurer, and shal dye the death. The auenger of bloude shal bringe & murthurer to death. Whan he syn deth him, he shal slaye him. If he thrust at him of hate, or cast ought at him with laien ge of wayte, or smyte him of envye wth his hande, that he dye, then shal he that hath slayne him, dye the death: for he is a murthurer. The auenger of bloude shal brynge him to death, as soone as he syn deth him.

Deu. 19. a. But yf he thrust him by chaunce, & not of envye, or hurle ought at him without eny layenge of wayte, or cast at him with a stone (wherof a man maye dye, & save it not) so & he dye, & is not his enemy, nether thought him eny euell, the shal the congregacion iudge betwene him & hath comytted & slaughtered, and the auenger of bloude, in such cases. And the congregacion shal delyner the deed slayer from the hande of y<sup>e</sup> auenger of bloude, & shal let him come agayne to the fre cite, whither he was fled: & there shal he abyde vnto & death of the hye prest, which was anoynted with & holy oyle. But yf the deed slayer go out of the borders of his fre cite, that he was fled vnto, and the auenger of bloude fynde him without & borders of his fre cite, and kyll him, he shal not be gyleye of bloude. For he shulde hane bydden in his fre cite vntill & death of the hye prest, & after & hye prestes death to come agayne vnto the londe of his enheritaunce. This shalbe a statute of the lawe vnto you amonge youre posterities in all youre dwellinges.

Deu. 17. b. and 19. c. The deed slayer shal be slayne at y<sup>e</sup> month of witnesses. One witnesse shal not answere ouer a soule to death. And ye shal receaue none attonement ouer the soule of the deed slayer (for he is gyleye of death) but he shal dye the death. And ye shal receaue none attonement of him, which is fled to the fre cite, & he shulde come agayne to dwell in the londe, till the hye prest dye. And defyle not ye y<sup>e</sup> londe wherin ye dwell. For who so is gyleye of bloude, defyleth the londe: and the londe can not be reconcyed from the bloude that is shed therein, but onely thorow the bloude of him that shed it. Defyle not ye the londe that ye dwell in, wherin I dwell also. For I am the LORDE, which dwell amonge & dwellen of Israel.

The XXXVI. Chapter.

And these fathers of the kynred of the childre of Gilead & sonne of Manasse (which was the sonne of Manasse of the kynred of the childre of Joseph) came forth, and spake before Moses, and before the captaynes amonge the chiefe fathers of the childre of Israel, and saide: Syr, the LORDE hath commannded, that ye shal de gene the londe by lot vnto the childre of Israel to inheret. And thou my lord hast commannded thorow the LORDE, that the enheritaunce of & brother Zelaphead shulde be geue vnto his daughters. Now yf eny men out of the trybes of Israel take them to wyues, then shal oure fathers enheritaunce be lesse: and as moch as they haue, shal come to & enheritaunce of the trybe that they come vnto. Thus shal the lot of oure enheritaunce be mynished. So whan the years of Jubyle commeth vnto the childre of Israel, then shal their enheritaunce come to & enheritaunce of the trybe, where they are. Thus shal oure fathers enheritaunce be mynished, as moch as they haue.

Moses charged the childre of Israel (according to the commanndement of the LORDE) and sayde: The trybe of the childre of Joseph hath sayde righte. This is it that y<sup>e</sup> LORDE commanndeth the daughters of Zelaphead, and sayeth: Let them mary as they like best, onely that they mary in & kynred of the trybe of their father, that the enheritaunce of the childre of Israel fall not fro one trybe to another. For every one amonge the childre of Israel shal cleue to the enheritaunce of the trybe of his father: & every daughter that possesseth eny enheritaunce amonge the trybes of the childre of Israel, shal be maryed vnto one of the kynred of the trybe of hir father: & every one amonge the childre of Israel maye enioye his fathers enheritaunce, and that the enheritaunce fall not from one trybe to another: but that enery one maye cleue to his awne enheritaunce amonge the trybes of the childre of Israel.

As the LORDE comaunded Moses, enes & dyd & daughters of y<sup>e</sup> Zelaphead, Mahla, Thirza, Hagla, Milca & Noa & were maryed vnto their fathers brothers sonnes, of y<sup>e</sup> kynred of the childre of Manasse the sonne of Joseph. So their enheritaunce remayned in the trybe of the kynred of their father.

These are the commaundementes & lawes, which y<sup>e</sup> LORDE commaunded by Moses vnto the childre of Israel, in the felde of the Moabites by Jordane ouer agaynst Jericho.

The first Chapter.

These are the wordes that Moses spake vnto all Israel on the o-ther syde Jordane in the wilderness, in the playne felde toward the reed see, betwe- ne Paran, Thophel, Laban, Hazeroth, and Disahab, eleven daies iourney from Horeb, by the waye of mount Seir vnto Cades Bernea. And it fortuneth the first daye of the eleventh moneth in the fortieth yere, that Moses spake vnto y<sup>e</sup> chil- dren of Israel accordinge vnto all as y<sup>e</sup> LOR- DE commaunded him, * after he had smyt- ten Sihon y<sup>e</sup> kynge of the Amorites which dwelt at Heshbon: and Og the kynge of Ba- san, that dwelt at Astaroth, and at Edrei.

On the other syde Jordane in y<sup>e</sup> lande of the Moabites, beganne Moses to declare this lawe, and sayde: The LORDE & God spake vnto vs vpon mount Horeb, & sayde: Ye haue bene longe ynough vpon this moun- tayne, turne you, & departed hence, that ye maye come to the mountaynes of the Amo- rites, and to all their neighbours in y<sup>e</sup> felde, vpon mountaynes, and in the valleys toward the South and toward the see syde, of the lande of Canaan: and to mount Liba- nus, even vnto the greate water Euphrates. Beholde, I haue deliuered you the lande, go in, and take it in possession, which the LOR- DE swaue vnto y<sup>e</sup> fathers, Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, * that he wolde geue it vnto the, and their sede after them.

Then saide I vnto you at the same tyme: I am not able to beare you my self alone, for the LORDE youre God hath increased you, so that this daye ye are as y<sup>e</sup> starres of hea- ven in multitude. (The LORDE God of y<sup>e</sup> fathers make you yet many thousande ty- mes mo, & blesse you, as he hath promysed you.) How can I alone beare soche cōbraun-ce, & charge, & stryfe amonge you: prouyde he- re men of wysdome & vnderstandinge, such as are knowne amonge youre trybes, the wil- I set to be heades vnto you.

Then answered ye me, and sayde: It is a good thinge, that thou sayest thou wilt do. Thenceforth I y<sup>e</sup> heades of youre trybes, wy- se and famous mē, and set them ouer you to be heades, ouer thousandes, ouer hundredes, ouer fiftye and ouer ten: and officers amonge youre trybes.

And I charged youre iudges at y<sup>e</sup> same tyme, & sayde: Heare youre brethē, & iudge righteously betwene euery man and his bro- ther, and the stranger. Ye shall knowe no per- sonne in iudgment, but shall heare the small as well as the greate, and be afrayed of no man: for the Iudgment is Gods. But yf eny cause be to harde for you, let it be broughte vnto me, & I maye heare it. Thus commaunded I you at the same tyme, all y<sup>e</sup> ye shulde doo.

Then departed we from Horeb, and wal- ked thorow the whole wyldernesse (which is greate and terryble as ye haue sene) by the waye to y<sup>e</sup> mountaynes of the Amorites, as the LORDE onre God commaunded vs, and came vnto Cades Bernea. Then sayde I vnto you: Ye are come to y<sup>e</sup> mountaynes of y<sup>e</sup> Amorites, which the LORDE & God shal ge- ue vs. Beholde, therethe lande before the, which the LORDE thy God hath geue vnto the: Go vp, & conquere it, as y<sup>e</sup> LORDE God of thy fathers hath sayde vnto the: * feare not, and be not discouraged.

Then came ye all vnto me, and sayde: Let vs sende men before vs, to spye vs out the lande, and to brynge vs worde agayne, by what waye we shal go vp, and to what ci- ties we shal come. That pleased me well, and I toke twolue men from amonge you, of eu- ry trybe one. Which whan they were depar- ted, and wente vp to hye countrie, and ca- me to the ryuer Escol, they spyed it out, and toke of the frute of y<sup>e</sup> lande with the, and broughte it downe vnto vs, and broughte vs worde agayne, and sayde: It is a good lande, that the LORDE oure God hath ge- uen vs.

But ye wolde not go vp, and were disho- bedient vnto the mouth of the LORDE your God, and murmured in youre tentes, and sayde: Because the LORDE hateth vs, ther- fore hath he broughte vs out of the lande of Egypte, to deliuer vs in to the handes of the Amorites, to destroye vs. Whither shal we go vp? Oure brethē haue discoura- ged oure hertes, & saide: The people is greater & of hyer stature the we, & cities are greate, & walled euen vp to heauen. Morouer we ha- ue sene there the children of Enakim.

But I sayde vnto you: Feare not, and be not afrayed of them: for the LORDE youre God goeth before you, and shall fighte for you, like as he dealeth with you in Egypte be- fore youre eyes, and in the wyldernesse: whe- re thou sawest, that the LORDE thy God bare the (euen as a man beareth his sonne) thorow out all the waye that ye haue wal- ked, tyll ye came to this place. And yet for all this ye haue not belened on the LORDE youre God, which wente before you, to sear- che you out a place, where ye shulde pitch youre tentes: by night in the fyre (to shewe you the waye, wherin ye shulde go) & on the daye tyme in the cloude.

Whan the LORDE herde y<sup>e</sup> voyce of y<sup>e</sup> wordes, he was wroth, and swore, and saide: There shall none of this euell generacion se that good lande, which I swaue to geue vnto youre fathers, excepte Caleb the sonne of Jephune, he shal se it. And vnto him wyl I geue the lande that he hath troddē vpon, & to his children, because he hath perfectly so- lowed the LORDE.

The LORDE was angrie wth me also for youre sakes, and sayde: Thou also shalt not go in thither. But Josua y<sup>e</sup> sonne of Nun, which stondeth before the, he shal go in thi- ther: Courage him, for he shal deuoyde the en- heritaunce out vnto Israel. And youre chil- dre, of whō ye sayde they shulde be a praye, and youre sonnes which this daie vnderston- de nether good ner bad, they shal go in thi- ther, vnto them wil I geue it, and they shall enioye it. But as for you, turne you, and take youre iourney to the wyldernesse, euen the waye to the reed see.

Then answered ye, & sayde vnto me: We haue synned agaynst y<sup>e</sup> LORDE, we wil go vp, and fighte, accordinge to all that the LOR- DE hath commaunded vs. Now whan ye had prepared y<sup>e</sup> selues, euery one in his har- nesse, & were at the poynte to go vp to the mountaynes, y<sup>e</sup> LORDE sayde vnto me: Spea- ke vnto them, y<sup>e</sup> they go not vp, & that they fighte not (for I am not amonge you) that ye be not smytten before youre enemies. Whan I tolde you this, ye wolde not heare, & were disobedient vnto the worde of the LORDE, and were presumptuous, and wente vp to y<sup>e</sup> mountaynes. Then the Amorites that dwelt vpon the mountaynes, came out against you, and chased you, as Bees do, and smote you at Seir, euen vnto Homa. Now whan ye came againe, and wepte before the LORDE, he wolde not heare youre voyce, and encly- ned not his eares vnto you. * So ye abode in Cades a longe season.

The II. Chapter.

Then turned we vs, and toke onre iour- ney to the wilderness, euen the waye to the reed see (as the LORDE sayde vnto me) and compassed mount Seir a longe season. And y<sup>e</sup> LORDE saide vnto me: Ye haue compassed this mountayne now longe ynough, turne you Northwarde, and commande the people, and saye: Ye shal go thorow y<sup>e</sup> coastes of youre brethē the children of Esau, which dwell at Seir: & they shal be afrayed of you. But take diligente hede to youre sel- ues, that ye prouoke them not: for I wyl not geue you one fore brethē of their londe. * For mount Seir haue I geuen to the children of Esau to possesse. Ye shal bye meate of them for moneye, that ye maye eate. And water shal ye bye of them for money, that ye maye drynke. For the LORDE thy God hath bles- sed the in all the woikes of thy bondes. He hath considered thy iourneyes thorow this greate wyldernesse: and this fortye yeres hath the LORDE thy God bene with the, so that thou hast wanted nothinge.

Now whan we were departed from o<sup>r</sup> brethē the children of Esau, that dwell vpon mount Seir, by the waye of the felde from Elath & Elzeon gaber, we returned vs, & wente by the waye of the wyldernesse of y<sup>e</sup> Moabites. Then sayde the LORDE vnto me: * Thou shalt not vex the Moabites, ner prouoke the vnto battayll, for I wil not geue the of their londe to possesse. For Ar haue I geuen vnto the children of Lot in possession. * The Emims dwelt there before tyme, which were a greate stronge people, & hye of stature, as the Enakims: and were taken for giants, like as y<sup>e</sup> Enakims. And y<sup>e</sup> Moabites called them Emims. * The Ho- rites also dwelt in Seir afore tyme, & y<sup>e</sup> chil- dren of Esau droue them out, and destroyed them before them, & dwelt in their steade: li- ke as Israel dyd in y<sup>e</sup> lōde of his possession, that the LORDE gaue them.

Get you vp now, & go ouer the ryuer Sa- red. And we wente ouer. The tyme that we were goinge fro Cades Barnea, tyll we ca- me ouer the ryuer Sared, was eight & thir- ty yeres: tyll all the men of warre were waysted out of the hoost, * as the LORDE swaue vnto them. The hande of the LORDE also was agaynst them, to destroye the out of the host, till they were consumed.

And whan all the men of warre were consumed, so & they were deed amonge the people, the LORDE spake vnto me, and sayde: This daie shalt thou go thorow the coast of Moabites by Ar, & shalt come nye vnto children of Ammon, whom thou shalt not were ner prouoke. For I wyll not geue the of the lode of the childre of Ammon to possesse, for I haue geue it vnto the childre of Lot in possession. It was take for a lode of giants also, & giants dwelt therein afore tyme. And the Ammonites calleth Samsumims, which was a people that was greete, many, and of hye stature, as the Enakims.

And these & LORDE destroyed before the, and let them possesse the same, so that they dwelt in their steade. Like as he dyd with the childre of Esau, which dwell vpo mount Seir, whan he destroyed the houses before them: and let them possesse the same, so that they haue dwelt in their steade vnto this daye. And the Caphthorims came out of Caphther, and destroyed the Anims (which dwell at Hazarim euen vnto Gaza) & there dwelt they in their steade.

Get you vp now, and departe, and go ouer the ryuer Arnon. Beholde, I haue geue Sihon & kynge of the Amorites at Heshbon into thy hande: go to and conquere, and prouoke him vnto battayll. This daye wyll I begynne, so that all nacions vnder all the heauen, shal feare & drede: In so moch & wha they heare of the, they shal tremble and quake for thy commynge.

Then sent I messengers from & wylder nesse of the East vnto Sihon the kynge at Heshbon & w peaceable wordes, and caused to saye vnto him: I wil go but thorow & lode, I wil go a longe by the hye waye, I wil neither turne to the righte hade ner to & lefte. Thou shalt sell me meate for money, that I maye eate: & water shalt thou sell me for money, that I maye drinke. Onely let me go thorow by fore, as the childre of Esau (which dwell at Seir) dyd vnto me: and the Moabites that dwell at Ar: vntyll I be come ouer Jordane, into the londe which the LORDE oure God shal geue vnto vs.

But Sihon the kynge at Heshbon wolde not let vs go by him: for the LORDE & God hardened his mynde, & made his hert tough that he mighte deluyner him in to thy handes, as it is come to passe this daye.

And the LORDE sayde vnto me: Beholde, I haue begonne to deluyner Sihon with his londe before the: go to and conquere, and pos-sesse his lode. And Sihon came out w all his people to fight agaynst vs at Jahza. But the LORDE oure God deluynerd him in to oure handes, so that we smote him with his children and all his people.

Then toke we all his cities at the same tyme, and destroyed vterly all the cities, men, women, and children, and let none remayne: save the catell, which we caught to oure selues, & the spoyle of the cities that we wanne from Aror, which lyeth vpon the ryuer syde of Arnon, and from the cite on the ryuer vnto Gilead. There was no cite that coulde defende it selfe from vs: the LORDE oure God deluynerd vs all before vs. But vnto the londe of the childre of Ammon thou camest not, ner to all that was on the ryuer Jabok, ner to & cities vpo & mountaynes, ner vnto what so euer the LORDE oure God forbade vs.

The III. Chapter.

Now we turned vs, & wente vp & wale vnto Basan. And Og & kynge of Basan, came out w all his people to fight agaynst vs at Edrei. But the LORDE sayde vnto me: Be not afrayed of him, for I haue deluynerd him & all his people w his londe in to thy hande: & thou shalt do w him, as thou dydest w Sihon kynge of & Amorites, which dwell at Heshbon. Thus the LORDE oure God deluynerd Og & kynge of Basan in to oure handes also with all his people: so that we smote him, till there was no thinge left euer vnto him.

Then wanne we at the same tyme all his cities, & there was not one cite that we toke not from him, euen thre score cities, the whole region of Argob in the kyngdome of Og at Basan. All these cities were stronge, with hye walles, gates, and barres, besyde many other vnwalld townes.

And we vterly destroyed them, as we dyd with Sihon the kynge at Heshbon. All the cities destroyed we vterly, and the men, women, and children. But all the catell and spoyle of the cities caughte we for oure selues.

Thus toke we at the same tyme the londe out of the honde of the two kynges of the Amorites beyonde Jordane, from the ryuer of Arnon vnto mount Hermon (which the Sidons call Sirion, but the Amorites call it Senir) all the cities vpon the playne, and all Gilead, and all Basan vnto Salcha and Edrei, the cities of the kyngdome of Og at Basan. For onely Og the kynge of Basan remayned ouer of the giants. Beholde, his yron bed is here at Rabath amonge the childre of Ammon, nyne cubites longe, and foure cubites brode, after the cubite of a man.

This londe conquered we at the same tyme, from Aror that lyeth on & ryuer of Arnon. And vnto the Rubenites and Gadites I gaue halfe mount Gilead with the cities therof: but & remnant of Gilead, & all Basan the kyngdome of Og, gaue I vnto the halfe trybe of Manasse. The whole region of Argob with all Basan was called the giants londe.

Jair the sonne of Manasse toke all the region of Argob vnto the coastes of Gessuri and Maachati, and Basan called he Ha-noth Jair after his awne name, vnto this daye: But vnto Machir I gaue Gilead. And vnto the Rubenites and Gadites I gaue one parte of Gilead vnto the ryuer of Arnon (at the myddes of the ryuer is & border) and vnto the ryuer Jabok, which is the border of the childre of Ammon: the felde also, and Jordane (which is the coaste) from Cinereth vnto the see in the felde, namely, & Salt see vnder mount Pisga, Eastwarde.

And I commaunded you at the same tyme, and sayde: The LORDE oure God hath geuen you this londe to take possession of it. Go youre waye forth therfore harnessed be fore youre brethien the childre of Israel, all ye that be mete for the warre. As for youre wyues, and children and catell (for I knowe that ye haue moch catell) let them remayne in youre cities, which I haue geuen you, vntill the LORDE oure God haue broughte ye brethien to rest also as well as you, that they also maye take possession of the londe, which the LORDE oure God shal geue the beyonde Jordane: and then shal ye turne agayne to youre awne possession, which I haue geuen you.

And I warned Josua at the same tyme, and sayde: Thine eyes haue sene all that the LORDE oure God hath done vnto these two kynges: eue so shal the LORDE do also vnto all & kyngdomes whither thou goest. Feare them not, for the LORDE oure God shal fighte for you.

And I besoughte the LORDE at the same tyme, & sayde: O LORDE LORDE, thou hast be gonne to shewe & seruante thy greatnesse and thy mightie hade. For where is there a God in heauen & earth, that can do after & workes and after thy power? O let me go & se & good londe beyonde Jordane, & goodly hye countre, and Libanus.

But the LORDE was angrie with me for youre sakes, and wolde not heare me, but sayde vnto me: Be content, speake nomore to me of this matter. Get the vp to the toppe of mount Pisga, and lifte vp thine eyes toward the west, and toward the north, and toward the south, and toward & east: and beholde it with thine eyes, for thou shalt not go ouer this Jordane. And geue Josua his charge, and corage him, and bolde him, for he shal go ouer Jordane before the people, and shal dewye vnto them the londe, that thou shalt se. And so we abode in the valley ouer agaynst the house of Peor.

The III. Chapter.

Now hearken Israel vnto the ordinaunces and lawes, which I teach you that ye do them, & ye maye lyeue, and come in, & take possession of the londe, which the LORDE God of yo fathers geueth vnto you. Ye shal put no thinge vnto the worde which I commaunde you, neither do oughte therefrom, that ye maye kepe the commandementes of the LORDE oure God, which I commaunde you. Your eyes haue sene what the LORDE hath done w Baal Peor: all them that walked after Baal Peor, hath the LORDE thy God destroyed from amonge you. But yet that cleue vnto the LORDE yo God, are all aliue this daye. Beholde I haue taughte you ordinaunces and lawes, sod as the LORDE my God commaunded me, that ye shulde do eue so in the londe, in to & which ye shal come, to possesse it.

Kepe them now therfore and do them: for that is youre wysdome and vnderstondinge in the sight of all nacions, which wha they haue herde all these ordinaunces, shal saye: O what a wyse and vnderstondinge folke is this: and how excellent a people: for where is there so excellent a nation, that hath goddes so nye him, as the LORDE oure God is nye vnto vs, as oft as we call vpon him? And where is there so excellent a nation, that hath so righteous ordinaunces and lawes, as all this lawe which I laye before you this daye.

Take hede to thy selfe now, and kepe well thy soule, that thou forget not the thinges which thine eyes haue sene, and that they be parte not out of thy hert all the dayes of thy life. And thou shalt teach them thy children and thy childers children, the daye wha thou stodest before the LORDE thy God by mount Horeb, whan the LORDE sayde vnto me: Gather me the people together, that I maye make them heare my wordes, which they shal lerne, that they maye feare me all the dayes of their life vpon earth, & that they also maye teach their children.

And ye came nye, & stode vnder 3 mount. But the mount burnt vnto the myddes of heauen, and there was darknesse, clondes, and myste. And 3 LORDE spake vnto you out of the myddes of the fyre. The voyce of his wordes ye herde, neuerthelesse ye sawe no ymage, but herde the voyce onely. And he declared vnto you his couenaunt, which he cōmaunded you to do, namely, the ten verses, and wrote them vpon two tables of stone. And the LORDE commaunded me at the same time, to teach you ordinaunces & lawes that ye might do ther after in the londe, in to the which ye go to possesse it.

Kepe well your soules therfore, for ye sawe no maner of ymage, in the daye whā the LORDE spake vnto you out of the fyre vpon mount Horeb, that ye destroye not yourselues, and make you eny ymage, that is like a man, or woman, or best vpon earth, or fettered foule vnder the heauen, or worne vpon the ground, or fysshie in the water vnder 3 earth: 3 thou lifte not vp thine eyes toward heauen, and se the Sonne and the Moone & the starres, and the whole hoost of heaue, and be disceaned, and worshippe, and serue them: which the LORDE 3 God hath made to serue all naciōs vnder 3 whole heaue.

But you hath the LORDE taken, and broughte you out of the yron fornace, namely, out of Egipte, that ye shulde be the people of his enheritaunce, as it is come to passe this daye. And the LORDE was angrie with me for youre sakes, so that he swore, 3 I shulde not go ouer Jordane, ner come in to that good londe, which the LORDE thy God shall gene the to enheritaunce. As for me, I must dye in this londe, and shal not go ouer Jordane: But ye shal go ouer, and shall haue that good lōde in possession.

Take hede therfore vnto youre selues, that ye forget not the couenaunt of the LORDE youre God, and that ye make no ymages of eny maner of fashyon, as the LORDE thy God hath commaunded. For the LORDE thy God is a consumynge fyre and a gelous God.

If whan ye haue begotten children, and childers children, and haue dwelt in the londe, ye marre youre selues, & make you ymages of eny maner of fashyon, and do well in the sighte of 3 LORDE youre God, to prouoke him: I call heauen and earth to recor de ouer you this daie, that ye shall shortly perishe fro the londe, in to 3 which ye go ouer Jordane to possesse it. Ye shal not dwell longe therein, but shal vtterly be destroyed. And 3 LORDE shal scatter you amonge 3 naciōs, and ye shall be left a small people amonge 3 heythens, whither the LORDE shall brynge you. There shal ye serue goddes, which are 3 workes of mens handes, euen wodd & stone, which nether se ner heare, ner care ner smell.

But yf then seke the LORDE 3 God then thou shalt finde him, yee yf thou seke him w thy whole hert and with all 3 soule. Whan thou shalt be strately troubled, & whā all the se thinges shal come vpo the in 3 latter dayes, then shalt thou turne agayne to 3 LORDE thy God, and be obedient vnto his voyce. For 3 LORDE 3 God is a mercifull God, he shal not forsake the, ner destroye the: nether shall he forget the couenaunt with thy fathers, which he swore vnto them.

For afe after the tymes past, which haue bene before the, sens the daie 3 God created man vpon earth, from one ende of the heaue vnto the other, whether there was euer eny soch greate thinge done, or eny soch like herde, that a people hath herde 3 voyce of God speake out of the fyre (as thou hast herde) & yet lined. Or whether God assaied to go & take vnto him a people out of 3 myddes of a naciō, thow tentacions, thow tokens, thow wonders, thow warre, & thow a mightie hande, & thow a stretched out arme, and thow greate visiōs, acordyng vnto all as the LORDE youre God hath done with you in Egipte before thine eyes.

Thou hast sene it, 3 thou mightest knowe that the LORDE is God, and that there is no ne other but he onely. Out of heauen made he the to heare his voyce, that he might nureture the: and vpon earth he shewed the his greate feare, & out of 3 fyre thou herdest his wordes: because he loued 3 fathers, & chose their sede after the. And he brought 3 out w his presence thow his mightie power out of Egipte, to dryue out (before the) naciōs greater and mightier then thou, and to bringe 3 in, 3 he might gene the their lōde to enheritaunce, as it is come to passe this daye.

Therfore shalt thou knowe this daye, & turne it into thine herte, that the LORDE is God above in heauen, and beneth vpon earth, and that there is no mo. Kepe his ordinaunces therfore and commaundementes, which I commaunde the this daie, the shal it go well w the and thy children after the, so that thy life shal longe endure in 3 londe.

which the LORDE the God gene the the thy life longe.

Then separated Moses the cities beyon de Jordane, toward the Sonnerysinge, 3 he might flye thither, which had slayne his neyghboure vnawarres, & hated him not afore tyme, 3 he might flye in to one of these cities, & lyue. Bezer in 3 wilderness in the playne countre amonge the Rubenites, & Ramoth in Gilead amonge 3 Gaddites, & Golan in Basan amonge the Manassites.

This is the lawe which Moses layed before the children of Israel: these are the testimones, ordinaunces, & lawes, 3 Moses spake vnto the children of Israel (after they were departed out of Egipte) beyonde Jordane in the valley ouer agaynst the house of peor, in 3 londe of Sion kynge of 3 Amorites which dwelt at Heshbon, whom Moses & the childre of Israel smote after they were departed out of Egipte, & conquered his lōde, & the londe of Og kynge of Basan, two kynges of the Amorites which were beyon de Jordane toward the Sonnerysinge fro Arer (which lyeth vpon 3 ryuer syde of Arnon) vnto mount Sion, which is Hermon: & all 3 playne felde beyonde Jordane eastward vnto the see in 3 plaine felde vnder mount Pisga.

The V. Chapter.
Moses called all Israel, & sayde vnto the: heare Israel the ordinaunces & lawes which I speake in yo eares this daye: lerne them, & kepe the so, that ye dother after. The LORDE oure God made a couenaunt with vs at Horeb: he made not this couenaunt with oure fathers, but with vs, that are herethis daie, and lyue eue ry one. He talked with vs face to face out of the fyre vpo the mount. I stode at the same tyme betwixte the LORDE and you, that I might shewe you the worde of the LORDE. For ye were afrayed of the fyre, & wente not vpo the mount, and he sayde:

I am the LORDE thy God, which haue brought the out of the londe of Egipte, out of the house of bondage. Thou shalt haue none other goddes in my sighte. Thou shalt make the no grauen ymage of eny maner of liknesse of the thinges 3 are aboue in heauen, & beneth vpon earth, & in the water vnder the earth. Thou shalt not hono them, ner serue the. For I 3 LORDE 3 God am a gelous God, vsytinge the synne of the fathers vpo the children, vnto the thirde and fourth generacion, of the 3 hate me: & shewe mercye vpon many thousandes 3 loue me, and kepe my commaundementes.

Thou shalt not take 3 name of 3 LORDE 3 God in vayne: for 3 LORDE shal not holde him vngiltie, 3 take his name in vaine.

Kepe 3 Sabbath daye, that thou sanctifye it, as the LORDE thy God hath commaunded the. Sixe daies shalt thou labour, and do all thy worke, but vpon the seuenth daye it is the Sabbath of the LORDE thy God: No maner worke shalt thou do in it, thou, and thy some, and thy daughter, and thy seruauit, and thy mayde, and thine ore, and thine Ass, and all thy catell, and the straunger which is within thy gates, that thy seruauit and thy mayde maye rest as well as thou. For thou shalt remembre, that thou thyself also wast a seruauit in the londe of Egipte, and how that the LORDE thy God brought the out from thence with a mightye hande, and a stretched out arme. Therfore hath the LORDE 3 God commaunded 3 to kepe the Sabbath daye.

Honoure thy father and thymother, as the LORDE thy God hath commaunded the that thou mayest lyue longe vpo earth, and that it maye go well with the in the londe, which the LORDE thy God shall gene the.

Thou shalt not kyll.
Thou shalt not breake wedlocke.
Thou shalt not steale.
Thou shalt beare no false witnes against thy neyghboure.

Thou shalt not lust after 3 neyghbours wyfe.

Thou shalt not lust after thy neyghbours house, londe, seruauit, mayde, ore, Ass, or what so ever he hath.

These are the wordes that the LORDE spake to all youre congregacion, vpon the mount out of the fyre of the clonde and darknesse with a greate voyce, and added nothynge therto. And he wrote them vpon two tables of stone, and deluynered the vnto me.

But whan ye herde the voyce out of the darknes, and sawe the mount burne w fyre, ye came vnto me all ye rulers amonge youre trybes, and youre Elders and sayde: Beholde, the LORDE oure God hath shewed vs his glory & his greatnes, and we haue herde his voyce out of 3 fyre. This daye haue we sene, that God maie talke with a man, and he yet lyue. And now wherfore shulde we dye, that this fire shulde consume vs? If we shulde heare the voyce of the LORDE oure God eny more, we shulde dye. For what is all fleshe, that it shulde be able to heare 3 voyce of the lyuyng God speakyng out of 3 fyre, as we haue done, and yet lyue? So thou and heare

all & the LORDE oure God sayeth, and tell us. All & the LORDE sayeth vnto the, that will we heare and do. Whan the LORDE herberthe voyce of y<sup>e</sup> wordes which ye spake vnto me, he sayde vnto me: I haue herde & voyce of the wordes of this people, which they haue spoken vnto &. It is all good that they haue spoken. But who shal gene them soch an herre, & they maye feare me, & kepe all my commaundementes as longe as they lyue, & it maye go well with them, and with their childre for ever? So & saye vnto them: Get you in to y<sup>e</sup> tentes agayne. But thou shalt stonde here before me, that I maye tell the all the commaundementes, and ordinaunces and lawes which thou shalt teach them & they maye do therafter in the lode, which I shal gene the to possesse. Take hede now therfore that ye do, as the LORDE y<sup>e</sup> God hath commaunded you, and turne not asyde nether to & right hande ner to the lefte: but walke in all & wayes which the LORDE youre God hath commaunded you, that ye maie lyue, and that it maie go well with you, and & ye maye lyue longe in & londe which ye shall haue in possession.

The VI. Chapter.

These are the commaundementes, ordinaunces & lawes which & LORDE y<sup>e</sup> God hath commaunded, & ye shulde lerne them, & do them, in the londe whither ye go to possesse it, & that thou mayest feare the LORDE & God, & kepe all his ordinaunces & commaundementes, which I commaunde the, thou and & children, and & childers childen all & dayes of youre life, that ye maye lyue longe. Thou shalt heare (& Israel) & take hede, & thou do therafter, & it maye go well with &, & that thou mayest multiplie greatly, as & LORDE God of & fathers hath promysed the a londe & floweth wth mylke & honny. Heare & Israel, the LORDE oure God is one LORDE onely. And thou shalt loue the LORDE thy God wth all thy hart, with all & soule, & with all thy myghte. And these wordes, which I commaunde the this daie, shalt thou take to hert, & shalt whet them vpon & children, and shalt talke of them, whā thou syttest in thyne house, & whan thou walkest by the waye: whan thou lvest downe, & whā thou rystest vp. And thou shalt bynde them for a signe vpon thine hande, and they shall be a token of remembraunce before thine eyes, and thou shalt wyte them vpon the postes of thine house, and vpon thy gates.

Now whan & LORDE & God shal bringe the in to & londe wherof he swaie vnto &.

fathers Abraham, Isaac, & Jacob, and shal gene the greates & goodly cities, which thou hast not buylded: and houses full of all goodes, which thou hast not filled: & digged welles which thou hast not digged: and vynyardes and olyue trees, which thou hast not plantid, so & thou eatest and art full: then beware that thou forget not the LORDE, which brought the out of the londe of Egypte, fro the house of bondage: but thou shalt feare the LORDE thy God, and him onely shalt thou serue, and sweare by his name. And ye shal not folowe the other goddes of the nacions which are aboute you (for the LORDE thy God is a gelous God in the myddest of the) that the wrath of the LORDE thy God waxe not whore ouer the, and destroye the from the earth.

Ye shal not tempte & LORDE youre God, as ye tempted him at Massa: but kepe the commaundementes of the LORDE y<sup>e</sup> God, and his witnessses, & his ordinaunces, which he hath commaunded the, that thou mayest do that which is right & good in & sighte of the LORDE, & thou mayest prospere, and & thou mayest go in & conquere that good londe, which the LORDE swaie vnto & fathers, that he maye chace out all thine enemies before the, as the LORDE hath sayde.

Now whan thy some areth the todaye or tomorrow, and sayeth: What meane these witnessses, ordinaunces and lawes, that the LORDE oure God hath commaunded you? Then shalt thou saye vnto thy some: We were pharaos bondmen in Egypte, and the LORDE brought vs out of Egypte with a mightie hande, and the LORDE did greates & euell tokens & wonders in Egypte vpo pharao and all his house before oure eyes, and brought vs from thence, to bringe vs in and to geue vs & londe, that he swaie vnto oure fathers. And therfore hath the LORDE commaunded vs to do a cordinge vnto all these ordinaunces, that we might feare the LORDE oure God, that we might prospere all the dayes of oure life, as it is cometo passe this daie. And it shall be righteousnes vnto vs before the LORDE oure God, yf we kepe and do all these commaundementes, as he hath commaunded vs.

The VII. Chapter.

Whan & LORDE & God bringeth the in to & londe where in to thou shalt come to possesse it, & roteth out manacions before the: the Hethites, Gergosites, Amorites, Cananites, Phereites, Hemitas, and Jebusites, seuē nacions which are greater and mightier then thou: and whan the LORDE thy God deliuereth the before &, that thou mayest smyte them, thou shalt utterly destroye them, so that thou make no couenaunt with them, nor shewe them fauoure, and shalt make no mariages with them: Ye shall not geue youre daughters vnto their sonnes, ner take their daughters vnto youre sonnes. For they will make youre sonnes departe from me, to serue straunge goddes: then shall the wrath of the LORDE waxe whore vpon you, and destroye you shortly.

But thus shal ye do with them: Ye shal overthrowe their altares, breake downe their pilers, cut downe their groues, & burne their images with fyre. For thou art an holy people vnto the LORDE thy God. The hath the LORDE thy God chosen, that thou shuldest be his awne peculier people, from amonge all nacions that are vpon the earth.

It was not because of the multitude of you aboue all nacions, that & LORDE had lust vnto you and chose you. (For ye were the leest amonge all nacions) but because he loued you, and that he mighte kepe the ooth, which he swaie vnto youre fathers, he broughte you out with a mightie hande, and deliuered you fro the house of bondage, out of the hande of pharao kynge of Egypte.

Thou shalt vnderstonde now therfore, that the LORDE thy God is a mightie and true God, which keperth couenaunt and mercy vnto them that loue him, and kepe his commaundementes, euen thorow out a thousande generacions: And rewardeth them that hate him, before his face, that he maye destroye them: and wyll not be longe in tarienge to rewardeth them (before his face) that hate him. Kepe now therfore the commaundementes, and ordinaunces and lawes, which I commaunde the this daie, that thou do therafter.

And yf ye shall heare these lawes and kepe them, and do therafter, then shal the LORDE thy God also kepe the couenaunt and mercy with the, which he swaie vnto thy fathers: and shal loue the, blesse the, and multiplie the: he shal blesse the frute of & wombe, and the frute of thy londe, thy corne, wyne and oyle, the frute of thy kyne, and the frute of thy shepe, in the londe that he swaie vnto & fathers to geue the. Blessed shalt thou be aboue all nacions, there shal no vnfutefull personne be in the, ner amonge thy catell. The LORDE shal put from the all maner of dyscase, and shal bringe vpon the none of & euell sicknesses of Egypte, which thou hast sene, but shall put them vpon all those that hate the.

Thou shalt bringe to naught all the nacions, which the LORDE thy God shal deliuer the. Thine eye shall not spare them, and their goddes shalt thou not serue, for that shalbe thy decaye. If thou shalt saye in thyne hert: These nacions are mo then I, how ca I dryue them out? Feare them not. Remember what the LORDE thy God did vnto pharao and to all the Egipcians, thorow grea- tentacions (which thou hast sene with thine eyes) thorow tokens and wonders, thorow a mightie hande and a stretched out arme, wherwith the LORDE thy God brought the out. Euen so shal the LORDE thy God do vnto all & nacions of whō thou art afrayed.

The LORDE & God also shal sende hemetres amonge them, vntyll they that remayne and hyde them selues from the, be destroyed. Be not thou afrayed of them: for the LORDE thy God is in the myddes of the, euen the mightie and fearfull God. He (euen the LORDE thy God) shall rote out the nacions before the by litle and litle. Thou canst not consume them at one time, & the bestes of the felde increase not vpon the. The LORDE thy God shal deliuer them before the, and shall smite them with a grea- te slaughter, tyll they be destroyed. And he shal deliuer their kyn- ges in to thine hande, and thou shalt destroye their names from vnder heauen. There shal no man make the resistance before the, vntyll thou haue destroyed them.

The ymages of their goddes shalt thou burne with fyre, & shalt not desyre the syluer or golde that is on them: or to take it vnto the, that thou snare not thy self therin: for it is abhominacion vnto the LORDE & God. Therfore shalt thou not bringe the abhominacion in to thine house, & thou be not damned as it is, but shalt utterly desyre it, and abhorre it, for it is damned.

The VIII. Chapter.

Al the commaundementes which I commaunde & this daie, shal ye kepe, so & ye do therafter, that ye maye lyue and multiplie, and come in, and take possession of the londe, which & LORDE swaie vnto youre fathers: and thynke vpon all & waie thorow the which the LORDE thy God hath led the this fortye yeares in the wyldernesse, & that he mighte chasten the, and proue the, to wete whath were in thyne hert, whether thou woldest: kepe his commaundementes or no. He chastened the, and let the hunger, and fed the with Manna (which thou and thy fathers knewe not) to make the knowe, that man lyueth not by bred onely, but by all that proceedeth out of the mouth of the LORDE. Thy clothes are not waxed olde vpon the, and thy fete are not swolle this fortye yere.

Deut. 11. b
Understonde therfore in thine hert, that as a man nurourerth his sonne, euen so hath the LORDE thy God nurtured the. Repe therfore the commaundementes of the LORDE thy God, that thou walke in his wayes, and feare him. For the LORDE thy God bryngeth the in to a good londe: A londe where in are ryuers of water, fountaynes and springes, which flowe by the hilles and valleys: A londe wherein is wheate, barlye, vines, fygge trees, and pomgranates: A londe wherein growe Olyue trees and honye: A londe where thou shalt not eate bred in scarcenes, and where thou shalt lacke nothinge: A londe where y stones are yron, where thou shalt dygge brasse out of hilles: That whā thou hast eaten and art fylled, thou mayest praise the LORDE thy God, for that good londe, which he hath genen the.

Beware now therfore, that thou forget not the LORDE thy God, that thou woldest not kepe his commaundementes, and his ordinaunces, and lawes, which I commaunde the this daye: that (whan thou hast eaten & art fylled, and hast buylded goodly houses, & dwellest therein, and whan thy beestes and shepe, and syluer, and golde, and all y thou hast, increaseth) thine hert ryse not then, and thou forget the LORDE thy God (which brought the out of the londe of Egypte, fro y house of bondage, and led y thorow this greates & terrible wyldernes, where were serpentes that spouted fyre, and Scorpions, & drought, and where there was no water, and brought the water out of the hard flynte, and fed the in the wyldernes with Manna wherof y fathers knewe not, that he might chasten the, and proue the) to do the good afterwarde) and lest thou saye in thine hert: My power and the mighte of myne awne hande hath done me all this good: But that thou thynke vpon the LORDE thy God. For it is he, which geneth the power to exerceyse strength, that he maye performe the couenaunt, which he swaie vnto thy fathers, as it is come to passe this daye.

Deut. 4. d
But yf thou shalt forget the LORDE thy God, *and folowe other goddes, and serue them, and worshippe the, I testifie ouer you this daye, that ye shal vterly perishe. Euen as the heythen whom y LORDE destroyed before youre face, so shall ye perishe also, because ye are not obedient vnto the voyce of the LORDE youre God.

The IX. Chapter.

Go ouer Jordane, that thou maifeste me in to conquere the nations, which are greater and mightier then thou, great cities, walled vp vnto heauen, a greates people and of an hye stature, namely the childen of Enakim, whom thou hast knowne, and of whom thou hast herde saye: Who is able to stonde agaynst the childen of Enakim: Therfore shalt thou knowe this daye, that the LORDE y God goeth before the, & cōsumynge fyre. he shal destroye the, and shal subdue them before the, and shal drine them out, & shortly shal he brynge the to naught, as the LORDE hath promysed the.

Now whan the LORDE thy God hath expelled them out before the, saye not thou the in thine hert: The LORDE hath brought me in to take possession of this londe for myne awne righteousnes sake, where as y LORDE yet dryneth out the heythen before the, because of their vngodlynes.

For thou comest not in to take theirolde in possession, for thine awne righteousnes sake, and because of thy right hert: but the LORDE dryneth out these heythen, for their awne vngodlynes sake, and that he maye performe the worde, which the LORDE hath swome vnto y fathers, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob.

Understonde now therfore, that the LORDE y God geneth not the this londe to possesse it, for thine awne righteousnes sake. For thou art a styffnecked people.

Remembre and forget not, how thou displeasedest the LORDE thy God in the wyldernes. Sence y daye that thou departedst out of the londe of Egypte, tyll ye came vnto this place, haue ye bene disobedient vnto the LORDE.

For in Horeb ye angred the LORDE, so that of wrath he wolde haue destroyed you, whan I was gone vp to y mount, to receaue the tables of stone, namely the tables of the couenaunt * which the LORDE made w you, and I abode fortye dayes & fortye nightes vpon the mount, and ate no bred, & dranke no water: and the LORDE gaue me y two tables of stone, wyrtten with the synger of God, and in them was acordinge to all the wordes, which the LORDE sayde vnto you vpon the mount out of the fyre, in the daye of the gatheringe together.

And after the fortye dayes and fortye nightes, y LORDE gaue me y two tables of stone, namely y tables of the couenaunt, and sayde vnto me: vp, & get y downe quyetly from hence, for thy people whom thou broughtest out of Egypte, haue marred the selues, they are soone gone out of the waye, which I commaunded them, and haue made them a molten ymage.

And the LORDE saide vnto me: I see this people, that it is a styffnecked people: let me alone, that I maye destroye them, and put out their name from vnder heauē. I wyl make of the a people mightier and greater thes is.

And as I turned me, & wente downe fro the mount which bieth w fyre, & had y two tables of the couenaunt in both my handes, I loked, & beholde, ye had synned agaynst y LORDE y God, so y ye had made you a molten calfe, & were soone turned out of y waie which the LORDE had commaunded you. Then toke I the two tables, & cast them out of both my handes, & brake the before youre eyes, & I fell before the LORDE (euen as at the first tyme) fortye dayes & fortye nightes, & nether ate bred, ner dranke water, because of all youre synnes which ye had synned, whan ye dyd soch enell in the sighte of the LORDE, to prouoke him vnto wrath. For I was afrayed of the wrath and indignacion, wherwith the LORDE was angrie w you, euen to haue destroyed you. And the LORDE herde me at that tyme also.

Morouer the LORDE was very angrie w Aaron, so that he wolde haue destroyed him, but I made intercession for Aaron also at y same tyme. As for youre synne (namely, the calfe that ye had made) I toke it, and burnt it with the fyre, and smote it a sunder, & grynede it in peces, euen vnto dust, and cast the dust in to the broke that descended from the mount.

He displeased the LORDE also, * at Taberah, * and at Massah, * and at the Iustgranes, * and whā he sent you from Cades Barnea, and sayde: Go vp, and conquere the londe which I haue genen you. And ye were disobedient vnto the mouth of the LORDE youre God, and belueed not on him, and herkened not vnto his voyce: for ye haue bene disobedient vnto the LORDE, as longe as I haue knowne you.

The fell I before y LORDE fortye daies and fortye nightes, which I laye there. For y LORDE sayde, he wolde destroye you. But

I made intercession vnto the LORDE, and sayde: O LORDE LORDE, destroye not y people and thine enheritaunce, which thou thorow thy greates power hast deliuered, and broughtest out of Egypte with a mightie hande. Remembre chy seruantes Abraham, Isaac and Jacob. Loke not vpon the stubburnesse, and vngodlynesse and synne of this people (that the londe wherout thou hast broughtest vs, saye not: The LORDE was not able to bringe them in to the lande, that he promysed them, and because he hated them, therfore hath he broughtesthem out, to destroye the in the wyldernes:.) For they are chy people & thine enheritaunce, which thou hast broughtest out w thy greates power, and with thy stretched out arme.

The X. Chapter.

At the same tyme sayde the LORDE vnto me: Hew y two tables of stone like vnto the first, and come vp vnto me in to the mount, and make y an Arke of wod, and in the tables I wyl wyte the wordes, that were in the first, * which thou brakest, and thou shalt laye them in the Arke. So I made an Arke of fyre tre, and hewed two tables of stone (like as the first were) & wente vp into the mount, and y two tables were in my hande.

Then wrote he in y tables (acordinge as the first wytyng was) the ten verses, which the LORDE spake vnto you out of the fyre vpon the mountayne, at the tyme of the gatheringe together. And the LORDE gaue the vnto me. And I turned me, & wente downe from the mount, and layed the tables in the Arke which I had made, that they might be there, as the LORDE commaunded me.

And the childen of Israel departed from Beroth & Bne Jaakan vnto Mosera (there dyed Aaron, & there was he buried: & Eleazar his sonne became priest in his steade.) Fro thence they departed from Gadgad. From Gadgad to Jathbath, a londe of ryuers of water. At the same season the LORDE separated out the trybe of Levi, to beare the Arke of the LORDES couenaunt, and to stonde before the LORDE, to mynister vnto him, and to prayse his name vnto this daye. Therfore shal the Levites haue no porcion ner enheritaunce with their brethien: for the LORDE is their enheritaunce, as the LORDE thy God hath promysed them.

But I taried vpo the mount (like as aforetyme) fortye dayes and fortye nightes, and the LORDE herde me at that tyme also, and wolde not destroye the. But he sayde vnto me: Up, & get the forth, & thou mayest go be fore the people, & they maye come in, and co

quere the lode, which I swaue vnto their fa thers to geue them.

maye be stronge to come in, and to conquer

ye maye lyue longe in the londe, which the LORDE swaie vnto youre fathers, to geue

terdest it at thy fote as a garden of herbes:
but it hath hilles and valleyes, which drynte

the LORDE thy God careth for. And the eyes of the LORDE thy God are allwaye therin from the begynnynge of the yeare unto the ende,

¶ If ye shal hearken therfore vnto my commaundementes, which I commaunde you this daye, & ye loue the LORD your God, and serue him, with all youre hert and with all youre soule: then wyl I geue rayne vnto youre lōde in due season, early and late, that thou mayest gather in thy come, thy wyne and thine oyle: and I wyl geue grasse vpon thy felde for thy catell, that ye maye eat & be fylled.

But bewarre, & youre hert be not discen-

LORDE waxe whote vpo you, and he shut

So: yf ye shal kepe all these commaunders

mentes which I commaunde you, so that ye do thereafter, that ye loue the LORDE youre
God, and walke in all his wayes, and cleue vnto him, then shall the LORDE dryue out ye youre selues are.

Beholde, I laye before you this daye the blessynge and the curse. * The blessynge, yf ye be obedient vnto the commaundementes of the LORDE youre God, which I com-

The XII. Chapter.

These are the ordinances and lawes which ye shal kepe, that ye do thereaf ter in the londe, which the LORDE God of thy fathers hath geuen the to possesse, as long as ye lye vpon earth. Destroye all the places, wherin y<sup>e</sup> heithen (who ye shal conquere) haue serued their goddes, whether it be vpo hye mountaynes, vpo hil les, or amonge grenetrees. Take hede vnto thy selfe, that thou offer not thy burnt offeringes in what so ever place thou seyst: but in the place which THE LORD shall haue chosen in one of thy trybes, there shalt thou offer thy burnt offeringes, and do all that I commaunde the. Notwithstanding thou mayest kyl and eate flesh within all thy gates, after all the desyre of thy soule, acordinge to the blessinge of the LORDE thy God, which he hath geue the: * both the cleane and vncleane maye eate it, as of the Beest and herte, onely the bloude shalt thou not eate, but poure it out as water vpon the earth.

But within thy gates mayest thou not ea

of thy oyle, ner of ʒ first boine of thine oxen
and of thy shepe, or of any of thy vowes which thou hast vowed, or of thy frewylof-

but before the LORD thy God shalt thou

eatethem, in the place which the LORD thy God choseth, thou & thy sonne, and thy daughter, thy seruante, thy mayde, and the Leuite that is within y gates, & thou shalt reioyse before y LORD thy God, ouer all y thou puttest thine hande vnto. And beware, that thou forsake not the Leuite, as long as thou lymest vpon the earth.

But whan the LORD thy God shal enlarge thy bordes of thy londe (as he hath promysed the) and thou saye: I wil eate flesh (for so moch as thy soule longeth to eate flesh) then eate flesh acordinge to all the desyre of thy soule. But yf the place that the LORD thy God hath chosen (to let his name be there) be farre from the, then kyl of y oren and of thy shepe, which the LORD hath geuen the, as he hath commaunded the, and eate it within thy gates acordinge to all y desyre of thy soule. Euen as a Roode here is eaten, maifest thou eate it: both the cleane and vncleane maie eate it indifferent ly. Onely beware, that thou eate not the bloude: for the bloude is the life. Therefore shalt thou not eate the life w the flesh, but shalt poure it out like water vpon the earth, y thou mayest prospere, and y children after the, whan thou hast done that which is righte in the sighte of the LORD.

But whan thou halowest oughte that is thine, or makest a vowe, thou shalt take it, and brynge it vnto the place, that the LORD hath chosen, and do thy burnt offerynges with the flesh and bloude vpon the altare of the LORD thy God. The bloude of thine offryng shal thou poure vpon the altare of the LORD thy God, and eate the flesh. Take hede, and heare all these wordes, which I commaunde the, y it maye go well with the, and thy children after y for ever, whan thou hast done y which is righte and acceptable in the sighte of the LORD thy God.

Whan the LORD y God hath roted out the heithen before the, whither thou comest into conquare them, & whan thou hast coquered them, & dwelt in their londe, beware then, y thou fall not in the snare after the, whan they are destroyed before the: & that thou are not after their goddes, & saye: Eue as these nacions haue serued their goddes, so wil I do also. Thou shalt not do so vnto the LORD thy God. For all that is abhominacion vnto the LORD, & that he hateth, y same haue they done vnto their goddes. For they haue burnt euen their sonnes and their daughters with fyre vnto their goddes.

All that I commaunde you, shal ye kepe, that ye do thereafter. Ye shal put nothyng thereto, ner take ought there from.

The XIII. Chapter.

Yf there ryse vp a prophet or dreamer amonge you, and geue the a token or a wonder, and that token or wonder which he spake of, come to passe, and then saye: Let vs go after other goddes (whom thou knowest not) and let vs serue the: Thou shalt not hearken vnto the wordes of such a prophet or dreamer.

For y LORD thy God proueth you, to wete whether ye loue him with all your hert, & with all your soule. For ye shall walke after the LORD thy God, and feare him, and kepe his commaundementes, & hearken vnto his voyce, and serue him, and cleue vnto him. As for that prophet or dreamer, he shal dye: because he hath spoken to turne you awaye from the LORD thy God (which broughte you out of the londe of Egypte, and deliuered you from the house of bondage) to thrust the out of the waye, which the LORD thy God commaunded the to walke in, and so shalt thou put awaye the euill from the.

If thy brother, the sonne of thy mother, or thine awne sonne, or thy daughter, or thy wyfe in thy bosome, or thy frende which is vnto the as thine owne soule, entyse the secretly, and saye: Let vs go and serue other goddes (whom thou knowest not, ner yet thy father) which are amonge the nacions rounde aboute you, whether they ben ye vnto the or farre from the, from the one ende of the earth vnto the other: consente not vnto him, and hearken not vnto him. Thine eye also shal not pytie him, and thou shalt haue no compassion vpon him, ner kepe him secrete, but shalt cause him to be slayne: thine hande shal be first vpon him, to cause him to be slayne, and then the handes of all the people. He shal be stoned to death, because he wente aboute to thrust the awaye from the LORD thy God, which broughte the out of the londe of Egypte from the house of bondage: y all Israel maye heare, and feare him, and do nomore such euill amonge you.

If thou hearest in eny cite which y LORD thy God hath geue the to dwell in, that it is sayde: There are certayne men, the children of Belial, gone out from amonge you, and haue disceaued the inhabitants of their cite, and sayde: let vs go, and serue other goddes, whom ye knowe not. Then shalt thou seeke, make search, and enquire diligently.

And yf it be founde of a trouth, that it is so in dede, y soch abhominacion is wroughte amonge you, then shalt thou smyte the indwellers of the same cite and their catell, with the edge of the swerde, and damne the cite with all that is therein: and all the spoyle therof shalt thou gather together in the myddes of the stretes of it, and burne with fyre, both the cite and all the spoyle therof together vnto the LORD y God, that it maye lye vpon a heape for ever, and neuer be buylded eny more. And let nothyng of the damned thinge cleue vnto thy hande, that the LORD maye be turned from the indignacion of his wrath, and graunte the mercy, and haue compassion on the, and multiplie the (as he hath sworne vnto thy fathers) because thou hast hearkened vnto y voyce of the LORD thy God, to kepe all his commaundementes, which I commaunde the this daye, so that thou doest the thinge which is righte in the sighte of the LORD thy God.

The XIII. Chapter.

Ye are the children of the LORD thy God, but not youre selues therefore, & make you no baldnesse betwene your eyes ouer eny deed. For thou art an holy people vnto the LORD thy God. And the LORD hath chosen the to be his awne peculiar people, from amonge all the nacions that are vpon the earth.

Thou shalt eate no abhominacion. These are the bestes which ye shal eate: Oren, shepe, Goates, Hert, Roode, Bugle, wyld goate, Vnicorne, Origen, and Camelion. And euery best that denydeth his clawe, & cheweth cudd, shal ye eate. Neuertheles this shal ye not eate of them that chewe cudd, and denyde not the hofte in to two clawes: The Camel, the hayre, & the conye, for though they chewe cudd, yet denyde they not the hofte, therefore shal they be vncleane vnto you. The swyne, though he denyde the hofte, yet cheweth he not cudd, he shal be vncleane vnto you: ye shall not eate of the flesh of the, and their deed carcases shal ye not touche.

This is it that ye shall eate of all that is in the waters: All that hath fynnes and scales, shal ye eate. But what so ever hath no fynnes ner scales, that shal ye not eate, for it is vncleane vnto you.

Eate of all cleane foules. But these are they, wherof ye shal not eate: The Eagle, y Goshawk, the Cormorante, the Itron, the Vulture, the Rytte with his kynde, & all Ravens in their kynde, the Estriche, the Tigh crowe, the Coo, the Sparow hawk with his kynde, the litle Oule, the greate Oule, y Bache, the Bytture, the Swanne, the Pellicane, the Pye, the Stork, the Heron, the Jaye w his kynde, the Lapwinge, y Swallowe: And all foules y crepe, shal be vncleane vnto you, and ye shal not eate them.

Ye shall eate of nothyng y dyeth aloner thou mayest geue it vnto y stranger with in y gate, that he eate it, or sell it to a stranger. For thou art an holy people vnto y LORD thy God. Thou shalt not seeth a kydd, whyle it yet sucketh his mother.

Thou shalt separate out the rytte all the increase of thy seide, y cometh out of y felde euery yeare: & shalt eate it before y LORD y God (in y place which he choseth, y his name maye dwell there) namely of y ryttes of thy come, of thy wyne, of thy oyle, & the first borne of thine oren, and of thy shepe, y thou mayest lerne to feare the LORD thy God, all thy life long.

But yf the waye be to moch for y, and the place, which y LORD thy God hath chosen to set his name there, be to farre from the: & thou canst not carye it that y LORD thy God hath blessed the withall, Then geue it for money, & take y money in thine hande, and go vnto the place which the LORD thy God hath chosen, and geue the money for all that thy soule desyeth, whether it be oren, shepe, wyne, stronge drynke, or for what so ever thy soule desyeth, and eate there before the LORD thy God, and be merry, thou and thine household, and y Leuite that is within thy gates. Thou shalt not forsake him, for he hath no porcion nor inheritance with the.

In the thirde yeare shalt thou brynge forth all the riches of thine increase of the same yeare, and shalt laye it within thy gates. The shal the Leuite (which hath no porcion ner enheritaunce with the) and y stranger, and the fatherlesse, and the wedowe, which are within thy gates, come and eate, and fyll them selues, that the LORD thy God maye blesse the in all the workes of y handes which thou doest.

The XV. Chapter.

In the seuenth yeare shalt thou make a Fre yeare. This is y maner of the Fre yeare. Who so ever ledeyth oughte with his hande vnto his neighbour, shal not requyre it of his neighbour or his brother: for it is called the Fre yeare vnto the LORD. Of a stranger mayest thou requyre it: but vnto him that is thy brother, shal

For the LORD y God shall blesse the, as he hath promysed the. The shalt thou lende vnto many nacions, z shalt borowe of noman. Thou shalt raigne ouer many nacions, z noman shall reigne ouer y.

Whan one of thy brethren is waxed poore in any cite within thy londe, which y LORD y God shall geue y, thou shalt not harden thine hert, ner withdrawe thine hande from thy poore brother: but shalt open thine hande vnto him, and lende him, acordinge as he hath nede.

Beware, that there be not a poynte of Belial in thine hert, that thou woldest saye: The seventh yeare, the yeare of freedom is at honde. For yf thou lokest not freely vpon thy poore brother, and geuest him nothinge then shall he crye ouer the vnto the LORD, and it shall be synne vnto the. But thou shalt geue him, and let it not greue thine hert that thou geuest him. For because of it, shall the LORD thy God blesse the in all thy workes, and in all that thou puttest thine hande vnto. The londe shall neuer be without poore, therfore comaunde I the and saye, that thou open thine hande vnto thy brother, which is neady and poore in thy londe.

If thy brother an Hebrue or Hebuesse be solde vnto the, he shall serue the sixe yeare, in the seventh yeare shalt thou let him go fre. And whā thou deliverest him fre, thou shalt not let him go from the empye, but shalt geue him of thy shepe, of thy corn, and of y wyne, so that thou geue him of that, which the LORD thy God hath blessed the with all. And remembre that thou also wast a seruante in the lode of Egypte, and how that the LORD thy God deliuered the, therfore comaunde I the this thinge to daye.

But yf he saye vnto the: I wyll not go out awaye from the, for I loue y and thine house (in so moch as he is well at ease with the) then take a borowyn, and bore him thow his eare to the doore, and let him be thy seruante for ever. And with thy mayde shalt thou do likewise. And let it not seme greuous vnto the, to let him go fre from the (for he hath serued the sixe yeares as a dubble byred seruante) then shall the LORD thy God blesse the in all that thou doest.

All the first borne that come of thine oxen and shepe, y are males, shalt thou halowe vnto the LORD thy God. Thou shalt not plowe with the first borne of thine oxen, and shalt not clyppe the first borne of thy shepe: Before the LORD thy God shalt thou eate the enery yeare, in the place that the LORD thy God hath chosen, thou and thine householde.

But yf it haue a deformyte, so that it is lame or blynde, or hath eny other euell blemish, thou shalt not offre it vnto y LORD thy God, but shalt eate it within thine awne gates: whether thou be vncleane or cleane, xuen as the Roos and Hert. Onely se that thou eate not of the blonde therof, but poure it out as water vpon the grounde.

The XVI. Chapter.

Where the moneth Abib, y thou offerest Easter vnto the LORD y God: for in the moneth Abib the LORD thy God broughte y out of Egypte by night. And for the Easter vnto y LORD thy God, thou shalt offre oxen z shepe, in y place which y LORD shall chose, y his name maye dwell there. Thou shalt eate no leuened bred in y feast. Seven dayes shalt thou eate the vlenuded bred of thy tribulacion: For with sorowfull haist camest thou out of the londe of Egypte, that thou mayest remembre the daye of thy departinge out of y londe of Egypte, all y life longe. In seven dayes shall there no leuened bred be seme within all thy coastes: z of the flesh that is offred y first daye at euen, there shall nothinge be lefte ouer night vntill the mornynge.

Thou mayest not offre Easter in eny of thy gates, which the LORD thy God hath genen the: but in the place which the LORD thy God hath chosen, that his name maye dwell there, there shalt thou offre this Easter, at euen whan the Sonne is gone downe, euen in the same season that thou camest out of Egypte: and thou shalt dighe it, and eate it in the place that the LORD thy God hath chosen, and then turne the on the morowe, z go home in to thy tente. Sixe dayes shalt thou eate vlenuded bred, and on the seventh daye is the gatheringe together of the LORD thy God. Thou shalt do no worke therein.

Seven weekes shalt thou nombre vnto y, and begynne to nombre whan the syckle be gynneth in the come, and thou shalt kepe the. Feast of weekes vnto the LORD thy God, that thou geue a frewill offeringe of thine hande, acordinge as the LORD thy God hath blessed the, and shalt reioyse before the LORD thy God, thou and thy sonne, thy daughter, thy seruante, thy mayde, and the Leuite that is within thy gates, y stranger, the fatherlesse, and the wedowe, that are amonge you, in the place which y LORD thy God hath chosen, that his name maye dwell there. And remembre, y thou wast a seruante in Egypte, so that thou kepe and do these ordynaunces.

The feast of Tabernacles shalt thou kepe seven dayes, whan thou hast gathered in the frutes of thy barne z of thy wyne presse, and thou shalt reioyse in thy feast, thou and thy sonne, thy daughter, thy seruante, thy mayde, the Leuite, the stranger, the fatherlesse, and the wedowe that are within y gates. Seven dayes shalt thou kepe y feast vnto the LORD thy God, in the place that he hath chosen. For the LORD thy God shall blesse the in all thy frutes and in all the workes of thine handes. Therfore shalt thou be glad.

The tymes in the yeare shall all thy males appeare before the LORD thy God (in the place that he shall chose) namely, in the feast of vlenuded bred, in the feast of weekes, and in the feast of Tabernacles. He shall not appeare empty before the LORD, but enery one after the gifte of his hande, acordinge to the blessinge that the LORD thy God hath geuen the.

The XVII. Chapter.

Judges z officers shalt thou ordeyne within all y gates, which y LORD thy God geueth the amonge thy tribes, y they maye iudge the people with righteous indgment. Thou shalt not wrest the lawe. Thou shalt knowe no personne also, ner take giftes. For giftes blynde the eyes of y wyse, z peruerter y righteous causes. Lo ke what righte is, y shalt thou folowe, that thou mayest lye z possesse the londe, which the LORD thy God shall geue the.

Thou shalt plante no grove (of what so ever trees it be) nye vnto the altare of the LORD thy God, which thou makest the. Thou shalt set the vp no pilier, which y LORD y God hateth. Thou shalt offre vnto the LORD thy God no ore or shepe, that hath a blemish or eny euell fauourednesse on it: for that is abhominacion vnto the LORD thy God.

If there be founde amonge you (within eny of thy gates which the LORD y God shall geue y) a man or woman, that worketh wickednesse in y sighte of the LORD thy God, so that he transgresseth his conuenance and goeth, and serueth other goddes, z worshippeth them, whether it be Sone or Moire, or eny of the hoeste of heauen, which I haue not commaunded, and it is tolde the, z thou hearest of it, Then shalt thou make diligent search therfore. And yf thou fyndest that it is so of a truthe, that soch abhominacion is wroughte in Israel, then shalt thou brynge forth the same man or y same womā (which haue done soch euell) vnto thy gates and shalt stone them to death. At the mouth of two or thre witnesses shall he dye, that is worthy of death. At the mouth of one witness shall he not dye. The handes of the witnesses shall be the first to kyll him, and the y handes of all the people, that thou mayest put awaye the euell from the.

If a matter be to harde for the in iudgment betwixte blonde and blonde, betwixte plee and plee, betwixte stroke and stroke, and yf there be matters of stryfe within thy gates: then shalt thou ryse, and go vp vnto y place that y LORD thy God hath chosen: and shalt come to the prestes the Levites, z to the iudge which shall be at that tyme, and shalt axe. They shall shewe the how to iudge, and thou shalt do thereafter, as they saye vnto the, in y place which the LORD hath chosen: and thou shalt take heed that thou do acordinge vnto all y they teach the. Acordinge to the lawe y they teach the, z after the iudgment that they tell y, shalt thou do: so that thou turne not asyde from y same, ner to the righte hande ner to the left.

And yf eny man deale presumptuously, so that he herkeneth not vnto the prest (which stonderth to do seruyce vnto the LORD thy God) or to the Judge, the same shall dye: and thou shalt put awaye the euell from Israel, that all y people maye heare, and feare, and be nomore presumptuous.

Whan thou art come in to y londe which the LORD thy God shall geue the, z takest it in possession, and dwellest therein, and shalt saie: I wil set a Kinge ouer me, as all the nacions haue aboute me, the shalt thou set him to be Kinge ouer the, whom the LORD thy God shall chose.

One of thy brethren shalt thou sette to be Kinge ouer the. Thou mayest not set a stranger ouer the, which is not thy brother. Onely let him not haue many horses, y he brynge not y people againe in to Egypte therow y multitude of horses, for as moch as y LORD hath sayde vnto you, that from hence forth ye shulde come nomore this waye agayne.

Whan thou comest into the land which the LORD thy God shall geue thee, thou shalt not lerne to do the abominacions of these nations, that there be not founde amonge you, that maketh his sonne or daughter go thorow the fyre, or a prophecier, or a choser out of dayes, or that regardeth the soules cryenge, or a witch, or a conirer, or soothsayer, or an expounder of tokens, or that doeth eny thinge of the deed.

For who so ever doth soch, is abhominacion vnto the LORD: and because of soch ab-

A prophet, like vnto me, shall the LORD thy God raise the vp even out of the, and from amonge thy brethren, vnto him shall ye hearken, accordinge as thou desyrest before the LORD thy God in Horeb, (in the daye of gatheringe together) and saydest: Let me heare the voyce of the LORD my God nomore, and se nomore this greates fyre, that I dye not. And who so ever wil not hearken vnto my wordes, which he shall speake in my name, of him wil I requyre it.

But yf a prophete presume to speake ought in my name, which I haue not comaunded him to speake: and he that speaketh in the name of other goddes, the same prophete shall dye. And this shall be the cause, that whosoever hath committed a slaughter, maye flye thither, and lyue.

If eny man smyte his neighbour vnawares, and hath not hated him in tyme passed (as whan a man goeth vnto the wood with his neighbour to hew downe tymbre, and he smytheth his hande wth the axe to hew downe the wood, and the yron flyppeth from the helme, and hyteth his neighbour, that he dyeth) the same shall flye into one of these cities, that he maye lyue, lest the avenger of bloude folowe after the deed-slayer, why the his hert is whote, and ouertake him, why the waye is so farre, and slaye him, where as yet no cause of death is in hi, for so moch as he hated him not in tyme passed. Therefore commaunde I the, that thou appoynte out thre cities.

And whan the LORD thy God enlargeth thy borders, as he hath sworne vnto thy fathers, and geueth thee all the land which he promysed thy fathers to geue (so that thou kepe all these commaundementes, and do the I commaunde thee this daye, the thou lone the LORD thy God, and walke in his wayes all the life longe) the shall thou adde yet thre cities vnto these thre, that innocent bloude be not shed in thy land (which the LORD thy God geueth thee to enheritaunce) and so bloude come vpon the.

But yf eny man beare hate agaynst his neighbour, and layeth waite for him, and ryseth agaynst him, and smytheth him that he dye, and flyeth in to one of these cities, then shall the Elders of the same cite sende thither, and cause him to be fetcht from thence, and deliuer him in to the handes of the avenger of bloude, that he maye dye: thine eye shall not pitie him, and the giltye bloude shall thou put awaye fro Israel, that thou mayest prospere.

Thou shalt not remoue thy neighbours marke, which they of olde tyme haue set in thine enheritaunce, that thou enheritest in the land, which the LORD thy God hath geuen thee to possesse it.

One witnesse shall not stonde vp alone agaynst a man, ouer eny trespase or synne, what maner of synne so ever it be, the a man can do, but in the mouth of two or thre witnesses shall eny matter be established.

But yf an vnrighteous wytnesse stonde vp agaynst eny man, to testifie eny trespase vpon him, then shall both the men that stryue together, stonde before the LORD, before the prestes and Judges, which shall be at the same tyme. And the iudges shall make diligent inquisition: and yf the witnesse be founde false, and hath geue false witnesse agaynst his brother, then shall ye do vnto him, even as he thoughte to do vnto his brother: that thou mayest put awaye the euell from the, that other maye heare and feare, and take nomore vpon them to do soch wicked poyntes amonge you. Thine eye shall not pitie him. Soule for soule, eye for eye, to the for to the, hande for hande, fote for fote. Exod. 21. c

The XX. Chapter.

Whan thou goest out to battayll agaynst thine enemies, and seyst horses and charrettes of the people more then thou, be not afrayed of them: for the LORD thy God which brought thee out of the land of Egypte, is with thee. Now what ye are come nye vnto the battayll, the prest shall steppe forth, and speake to the people, and saye vnto the: Heare Israel: Ye go this daye in to the battayll agaynst your enemies, let not your hert faynte, feare not, be not afrayed, ner a drede of them. For the LORD your God goeth with you, to fyghte for you agaynst your enemies, the he maye saue you.

Who so hath planted a vynyarde, and hath not yet made it comen, lett him go, and byde at home, that he dye not in the battayll, and another make it comen. Who so hath spoused a wyfe, and hath not yet brought her home, let him go, and byde at home, the he die not in the battayll, and another brynge her home.

And the captaynes shall speake further vnto the people, and saye: He that feareth and hath a faynte hert, lett him go, and byde at home, that he make not his brethrens hert fainte also, like as his hert is. And whan the captaynes haue made an ende of speakinge vnto the people, they shall set the rulers of the hoost before the people in the forefront.

Iudic. 7. a

Whan thou comest nye vnto a cite to fight agaynst it, thou shalt offere them peace. If they answer the peaceably, and open vnto the, then shall all the people the is founde therein, be tributaries vnto the, and serue thee. But yf they wil not deale peaceably wth the, and wyll warre with the, then besege it: and whan the LORD thy God deliuereth it in to thy hande, thou shalt smyte all the males that are therein, with the edge of the swerde: saue the women and the children. As for the cattell, and all that is in the cite, and all the spoyle, thou shalt take them vnto thy selfe, and eate the spoyle of thine enemies, which the LORD thy God hath geuen thee. Thus shalt thou do vnto all the cities, that are very farre from the, and are not of the cities of these nations.

The XXI. Chapter.

Whan there is one slayne founde in y londe which y LORDE y God shall gene y to possesse it, z lyeth in y felde, z it is not knowne who hath slaine him, then shal thy Elders z iudges go forth, and meet from the slayne vnto the cities that lye rounde aboute. Loke which cite is the nexte,
 y Elders of the same shal take a yonge cowe, which hath not bene laboured, ner hath drawe in the yocke, z they shal brynge her in to a valley, where as is nether earinge nor sowinge, and strike of hir heade therein the valley.

Whā thou goest forth to warre agaynst thine enemies, z the LORDE thy God deliyreth them in to thine handes, so that thou carriest awaye their prisoners, and seist any ge the captyues a bewtyfull woman, z hast a desyre vnto her to take her to thy wyfe, she brynge her home to thine house, and let her shawe hir heade, and pare hir nayles, and put of hir clothes that she was taken pris-ner in, and let her sit in thine house, and woe

 ne for hir father and mother a moneth longe after that lye with her, and mary her, and let her be thy wyfe. But yf thou haue no fa-uoure vnto her, then shalt thou let her go whither she wyll, and not to sell her, ner to make chensauce of her, because thou hast dishonoured her.

As a man haue two wyues, one that he loneth, and one that he hateth, and they be-re him children, both the beloued and the hated, so that the firstborne be hirs that is hated, and the tyme cometh that he dealeth out the inheritance vnto his children, then can he not make the sonne of y beloued first-borne before the firstborne sonne of the hated, but he shall knowe the sonne of the hated for y first sonne, so that he gene him dubble of all that is at hande: for the same is y begynnynge of his strength, z the firstborn righte is his.

As eny man haue a stubborne and dispobedient sonne, which herkeneth not vnto the voyce of his father, and mother, and whan
 they teach him nuroture, wyll not folowe them, then shall his father and mother cake him, and brynge him to y Elders of their cite, and to the gate of the same place, and saye vnto the Elders of the cite: This oure sonne is stobborne and disobediēt, and herkeneth not vnto oure voyce, and is a ryote and a dyntarde. Then shal all the men of y same cite stone him to death: and thus shalt thou put awaye the euell fro the, that all Israel maye heare and feare.

As a man haue commytted a synne y is worthy of death, and is put to death, so that he is hanged on tre, then shal not his bodye mayne all night on tre, but thou shalt burye him the same daye. (For cursed is he of God that is hanged) that thou desyle not thy lon-de, which the LORDE thy God geweth the to inheritaunce.

The XXII. Chapter.

If thou se thy brothers ore or shepe,
 go astray, thou shalt not withdraue
 thy selfe from them, but shalt brynge
 the agayne vnto y brother. But yf y brother be not nye vnto the, z thou knowest him not,
 then shalt thou take the in to thine house, z

they maye be w the, tyll y brother are after them, z then deliyner him the agayne. In like maner shalt thou do with his Ass, w his rayment, z with euery lost thinge of y brother, which he hath lost, z thou hast founde
 it: thou mayest not withdraue thy selfe.

As thou se thy brothers ore or Ass fallen downe by the waye, thou shalt not w draue thy selfe from him, but shalt helpe him vp.

A woman shall not reere y which pertaineth to a man, nether shal a man put on womans rayment. For who so ever doth soch, is abhominacion vnto y LORDE y God.

As thou chance vpon a byrdes nest by y
 waye in a tre, or on the grounde, with yonge or with egges, and the dame syttinge vpon
 the yonge or vpon the egges, thou shalt not take the dame with the yonge, but shalt let the dame flye, and take the yonge, that thou mayest prospere and lye longe.

Whan thou buydest a new house, make a battlement aboute thy rose, that thou lade not bloude vpon thine house, yf eny man fall therof.

Thou shalt not sowe thy vynyarde with dyuerse sedes, that thou halowe not to the fullofferynge the sede which thou hast sowe-ne, with the increase of the vynyarde.

Thou shalt not plowe with an ore and an Ass together at one tyme.

Thou shalt not weere a garmēt, y is mix-te with wollen and linnen together.

Thou shalt make gardes vpon the fou-re quarters of thy garment, wherewith thou couerest thy selfe.

As a man take a wyfe, and hate her whan
 he hath lyen with her, and layeth eny shamefull thinge vnto hir charge, and bryngeth vp an euell name vpon her, and sayeth: I to-kethis wyfe, z whan I cameto her, I founde her not a mayde. Then shal the father and mother of the damsell take her, and brynge forth the tokens of the damselfs virginite

before the Elders of the cite, even vnto the gate. And y damselfs father shal saie vnto y Elders: I gaue this man my doughter to wyfe. Now hateth he her, and layeth a shamefull thinge to hir charge, and sayeth: I founde not thy doughter a mayde. And lo, these are the tokens of my doughters virginite. And they shal spiede out the clothe before the Elders of the cite. So shal the Elders of the cite take that man, and chastice him, and put a pennaunce vpon him of an hundred cycles of syluer, and geue the same vnto the father of the damself, because he hath brougte vp an euell name of a may-

de in Israel, and he shall haue her to wyfe, so
 y he maye not forsake her all his life longe.

But yf it be of a truely, that the damself is not founde a virgin, the shal she be brought forth vnto the dore of hir fathers house, and the me of the cite shal stone her to death, because she hath wrought foly in Israel, and played the whore in hir fathers house. And so shalt thou put awaye the euell from the.

As a man be founde lienge with a womā
 that hath a married husbāde, they shal dye
 both the man, z the womā that he hath lien withall. And so shalt thou put awaye euell
 from Israel.

As a mayde be handfested to eny man, z
 another man getteth her in the cite, z lyeth
 with her, ye shal brynge them both out vnto
 the gate of the cite, and stone them both, y
 they dye. The damself, because she cryed not, beyng in the cite. The man, because he hath brought his neighbours wyfe to shame. And thou shalt put awaye the euell from the.

But yf a man get an handfested damself
 vpon the felde, and take her, and lye w her,
 then the man that laye with her, shal dye alone, and vnto the damself thou shalt do no-thinge: for she hath done no synne worthy of death. It is like as yf a man rose agaynst his neighbour, and slawe him, even so is this also. For he founde her in the felde, and the handfested damself cryed, and there was no
 man to helpe her.

As a man synde a mayde that is not hād fested, and take her, and lye with her, and be founde, then shal he that laye with her, geue hir father fyfrie cycles of syluer, and shall haue her to wyfe, because he hath shamed
 her: he maye not forsake her all his life longe.

Tomā shal take his fathers wyfe, ner vncouer his fathers couerynge.

The XXIII. Chapter.

Here shal none that hath his stones broken or y is gelded, come in to the cōgregation of the LORDE. There shal no whores childe also come in to the cōgregation of y LORDE, no not after y tenth generaciō, but shal neuer come in to y cōgre-gaciō of y LORDE. The Ammonites z Moabites shal not come in to y cōgregation of y LORDE, no not after y tenth generaciō, but shal neuer come in, because they met you not w bled z water in y waye, whā ye came out of Egipte. And besides y, they hired a-gaynst you Balaā y some of Deor, y interpreter out of Mesopotamia, to curse y. But y LORDE y God woldenot heare Balaam,

de in Israel, and he shall haue her to wyfe, so
 y he maye not forsake her all his life longe.

But yf it be of a truely, that the damself is
 not founde a virgin, the shal she be brought
 forth vnto the dore of hir fathers house, and
 the me of the cite shal stone her to death, because she hath wrought foly in Israel, and
 played the whore in hir fathers house. And
 so shalt thou put awaye the euell from the.

As a man be founde lienge with a womā
 that hath a married husbāde, they shal dye
 both the man, z the womā that he hath lien

 from Israel.

As a mayde be handfested to eny man, z
 another man getteth her in the cite, z lyeth

 the gate of the cite, and stone them both, y
 they dye. The damself, because she cryed not,
 beyng in the cite. The man, because he hath

 thou shalt put awaye the euell from the.

But yf a man get an handfested damself
 vpon the felde, and take her, and lye w her,
 then the man that laye with her, shal dye alo-

 man to helpe her.

and turned the curse to a blessing vnto the: because the LORDE & God loued the. Thou shalt wyssh him nether prosperite ner healtch all chy life longe for euer. Thou shalt not abhorre an Edomite: for he is thy brother.

An Egipcian shalt thou not abhorre, for thou wast a straunger in his londe. The children whom they beget in the thirde generation, shall come in to the congregacion of THE LORDE.

* Whā thou goest out to fighte agaynst thine enemies, kepe the from all wickednesse.

If there be eny man amonge you which is vncleane, so that eny thinge is chaunced to him by nighte, the same shal go out of & hoost vntyll he haue bathed himselfe with water before euen: and whan the Sonne is gone downe, he shall come in to the hoost agayne.

And without the hoost thou shalt haue place to resorte vnto for necessarye, & thou shalt haue a shouell vnder the gyde: and whan thou wilt set & downe without, thou shalt dygge therewith: and whan thou hast done thine easement, thou shalt couer that which is departed from the. For the LORDE thy God walketh in thine hooste, to deliuer the, and to geue thine enemies before the. Therefore shall thy hooste be holy, that he se no vncleane thinge in the, and so turne himselfe from the.

Thou shalt not deliuer vnto his master the seruauit, which is escaped fro him vnto the. He shall dwell with the in the place that he chooseth within eny of thy gates, for his wealth, and thou shalt not vere him.

There shal be no whore amonge & doughsters of Israel, nether whorekeeper amonge the sonnes of Israel. * Thou shalt not bringe & hyre of an whore ner the puce of a dogg in to the house of the LORDE & God for eny maner of vowe: for they both are abhominacion vnto the LORDE thy God.

Thou shalt occupye no vsury vnto & brother, nether with money, ner with fode, ner with eny maner thinge that vsury maye be used withall. (Vnto a straunger thou maiest lende vps vsury, but not vnto thy brother) & the LORDE thy God maye blesse the in all & thou takest in hāde, in the lōde whither thou comest in to possesse it.

Whan thou makest a vowe vnto & LORDE & God, to shalt not be slacke to performe it: for the LORDE thy God shal requyre it of the, and it shal be synne vnto the. If thou leaue vowinge, then is it no synne vnto the. But that which is proceeded out of & lyp-pes shalt thou kepe, and do thereafter, accordinge as thou hast vowed vnto the LORDE of a freewyll, which thou hast spoken & thy mouth.

Whan thou goest in to thy negheours myarde, thou mayest eate of the grapes accordinge to thy desyre, tyll thou haue ynough. But thou shalt put none in to thy vessel.

* Whan thou goest in thy negheours cōneselde, thou mayest plucke the eares with thine hande, but with a syccle mayest thou not reape therein.

The XXIII. Chapter.

Whan a man taketh a wife, and marrieth her, and she findeth no fauour in his eyes because of eny vncleannesse, the shal he wyte a byll of deuorcement, and geue it her in hir hāde, and sende her out of his house. If whan she is gone out of his house, she go, and be another mans wyfe, and the same seconde man hate her also, & wyte a byll of deuorcement, and geue it her in hir hande, and sende her out of his house. Or yf the same seconde man dye, which toke her to wife, then hir first husbāde that put hir awaie, maie not take hir againe to be his wife, in so moch as she is defyled, for that is abhominacion before the LORDE: that thou make not the londe to synne, which the LORDE thy God hath geuen the to enheritaunce.

Whan a man hath newly taken a wyfe, he shall not go awarte fare, nether shall he be charged withall. He shal be fre in his house one yeaere longe, that he maye be merry w his wife which he hath taken.

Thou shalt not take & nethermost and vppermost myffone to pledge, for he hat set & his lynyng to pledge.

If eny man be founde that stealeth one of his brethren, from amonge the childre of Israel, and setteth him to pledge, or selleth him soch a these shal dye, that thou maiest put a waye the euill from the.

Kepe the from the plague of leprosie, that thou observe diligently and do accordinge vnto all that the prestes the Leuites teach the, as I haue commanded them, & shal observe and do thereafter. Remembre what the LORDE thy God dyd vnto Miriam by the waye, whan ye were come out of Egipte.

If thou lendest & brother eny dett, thou shalt not go into his house, and take a pledge, but shalt stonde without: and he, to whom thou lendest, shal brynge out his pledge vnto the. But yf it be a poore body, thou shalt not lye downe to slepe, with his pledge, but shalt deliuer him his pledge agayne, whan the Sonne goeth downe, that he maye slepe in his awne rayment, and blesse the, so shall the same be reformed vnto the for righteounes before the LORDE thy God.

Thou shalt not withdrawe the hyre of & nedye and poore amonge thy brethren, or straunger that is in thy londe, or within thy gates, but shalt geue him his hyre the same daye, that the Sonne go not downe thereon, for so moch as he is nedye, and his life susteyned therewith: that he call not vpon the LORDE agaynst the, and it be synne vnto the.

The fathers shal not dye for the children, ner the childre for the fathers, but every one shal dye for his awne synne.

Thou shalt not wrest the righte of the straunger and of the fatherlesse. And yf wedowes rayment shalt thou not take to pledge: for thou shalt remembre, that thou wast a seruauit in Egipte, and how that & LORDE thy God deliuered the from thence, therfore commaunde I the to do this.

Whan thou hast reaped downe thine harvest in the felde, and hast forgotten a shefe in the felde, thou shalt not turne agayne to fetch it, but it shal be for the straunger, & fatherlesse and the wedowe, that the LORDE thy God maye blesse the in all the workes of thy handes.

Whan thou hast plucked thine Olyue trees, thou shalt not plucke them vp cleane afterwarde: it shal be for the straunger, the fatherlesse and the wedowe. Whan thou hast gathered thy vynyarde, thou shalt not gather it vp cleane afterwarde: it shal be for the straunger, the fatherlesse and the wedowe. And thou shalt remembre, that thou wast a seruauit in the londe of Egipte: therfore commaunde I the to do this.

The XXV. Chapter.

Whan there is a stryfe betwene men, they shal be brought before & lawe and iudged: and the iudges shal instryfe the righteous, and condemne the vngodly. And yf the vngodly haue deserued stryfes, the iudge shal commaunde to take him downe, and they shall beate him before him, accordinge to the measure and nombre of his trespass. Whan they haue geue him fortye stryfes, they shall beate him nomore, lest yf there be mo stryfes genen him he be beaten to moch, and thy brother be horrible before thine eyes.

Thou shalt not mosell the mouth of the ore, that treadeth out the come.

Whan brethren dwell together, and one of them dye without children, then shall not & wife of the deed take a straunge man with cut, but hir kynsman shal go in vnto her, and take her to wyfe: and the first sonne that she beareth, shal be set vp after the name of his brother which is deed, that his name be not put out of Israel.

But yf the man wyl not take his kynswooman, then shal his kynswoman go vp vnder the gate to the Elders, and saye: My kynsman refuseth to stire vp a name vnto his brother in Israel, and wyl not marie me. Then shal the Elders of the cite call him, and comen with him. If he stonde then and saye: I wyl not take her, then shal his kynswoman steppe forth vnto him before the Elders, and lowse a shue fro his fote, and spyt in his face, and shal ansivere, and saye: Thus shal it be done vnto every man, that wyl not builde his brothers house. And his name shal be called in Israel, the vnschodd house.

If two men stryue together, and the wyfe of one renne to, to deliuer hir husbāde from the hande of him that smyteth him, & put forth hir hande, and take him by the secretes, then shalt thou cut of hir hande, and thine eye shal not pitie her.

Thou shalt not haue in & bagg two manner of weightes, a greate and a small. Neither shalt thou haue in thine house dyuerse measures, a greate and a small. Thou shalt haue a perfecte and iust weighte, and a perfecte and iust measure, that thy life maye be longe in the londe, which the LORDE & God shal geue the. For who so ener doth soch (yee all they that do euill) are abhominacion vnto the LORDE thy God. * Remembre what the Amalechites did vnto the by the waye, whā ye were departed out of Egipte, how they buckled with the by the waye, and smote thy hymnost, euen all that were feble, which came after the whan thou wast weerye and fainte, and they feared not God. Nowe hā the LORDE thy God bryngeth the, to rest fro all thine enemies rounde aboute in the londe which the LORDE thy God geneth the for in heritaunce to possesse, then shalt thou put out the remembraunce of the Amalechites from vnder heauen. Forget not this.

The XXVI. Chapter.

Whan thou comest in to the londe that the LORDE thy God shal geue the to in heritaunce, and enioyest it, and dwellest therein, thou shalt take of all maner, first frutes of the londe, that come out of thy ground, which the LORD thy God geueth the, & shalt put them in a maunde, and go vnto the place which the LORD thy God shal chose (if his name may dwell there) and thou shalt come vnto the priest which shalbe at that tyme, and saye vnto him: I knowlege this daye vnto the LORD thy God, that I am come in to the londe, which the LORD swaue vnto oure fathers to geue vs. And the priest shal take the maunde out of thine hande, and set it downe before the altare of the LORD thy God.

Then shalt thou answer and saye before the LORD thy God: The Syrians wolde haue destroyed my father, which were downe in to Egypte, and was a straunger there with a small folke, and became there a nation great, mightie & full of people. But the Egyptians intreated vs euell, and troubled vs, and layed an harde bondage vpon vs. Then cried we vnto the LORD, the God of oure fathers. And the LORD herde oure cryenge, and led us out of our aduersite, labour, and oppressio, & brought vs out of Egypte with a mightie hande, and a stretched out arme, and with greates terryblenesse thowow tokens and wonders, and hath brought vs vnto this place and hath geuen vs this londe, that floweth with mylke and hony. Therefore bringe I now the first frutes of the londe, which the LORD hath geuen vs. And thou shalt leaue them before the LORD thy God, and geue thanks before the LORD thy God, and reioyse ouer all the good, that the LORD thy God hath geuen the, and thyne house: thou and the Leuite, and the straunger that is with the.

When thou hast brought together all thy tythes of thine increase in the thirde yeare, which is a yeare of tithes, thou shalt geue it vnto the Leuite, to the straunger, to the fatherlesse, and to the wedowe, that they maie eate within thy gates, and be filled. And thou shalt saye before the LORD thy God: I haue brought that halowed is, out of my house, and haue geuen it vnto the Leuite, the straunger, the fatherlesse, and the wedowe, accordinge to all thy commaundement which thou hast comaunded me. I haue not transgressed thy commaundementes, ner forgotten them. I haue not eaten therof in my heynesse, ner taken awaye therof in vnclennesse. I haue not geue therof vnto the deed. I haue bene obedient vnto the voyce of the LORD my God, and haue done all as he hath commaunded me. * Take downe from thy holy habitacion, from heauen, and blesse thy people of Israel, and the londe that thou hast geuen vs, as thou swarest vnto oure fathers, a londe that floweth with mylke and hony.

In the daye when the LORD thy God commaunded the, to do accordinge vnto all these ordinaunces and lawes, that thou shuldest kepe them and do thereafter with all thy heart and with all thy soule. * The same daye maydest thou a promysse vnto the LORD, that he shulde be thy God, and thou woldest walke in all his wayes, and kepe his ordinaunces, his commaundementes, and his lawes, and to herken vnto his voyce. * And the LORD promysed the vpon the same daye, that thou shuldest be his awne peculiar people, like as he hath sayde vnto the, so thou kepe all his commaundementes, and that he wolde make the hye in prayse name and honoure aboue all nations which he hath made. * Thou mayest be an holy people vnto the LORD thy God, as he hath sayde vnto the.

The XXVII. Chapter.

And Moses with the Elders of Israel, commaunded the people, & sayde: Kepe all the commaundementes which I comaunde you this daye. * And what time as ye go ouer Jordane, in to the londe, the LORD thy God shal geue the, thou shalt set vp greates stones, and playster them with playster, and wyte vpon them all the wordes of this lawe: (when thou art come ouer) & thou mayest come in to the londe, which the LORD thy God shall geue the, a londe that floweth with mylke and hony, as the LORD thy God of thy fathers hath promysed the.

Now when ye go ouer Jordane, ye shall set vp these stones (whereof I comaunde you this daye) vpon mount Ebal, and playster them with playster: * and there shalt thou buylde vnto the LORD thy God an altare of stone, whereupon thou shalt lifte no yron. * Of whole stones shalt thou buylde this altare vnto the LORD thy God, and offre burnt offerings theron vnto the LORD thy God: and thou shalt offre health offerings, and eate there, and reioyse before the LORD thy God: and vpon the stones thou shalt wyte all the wordes of this lawe manifestly and well.

And Moses with the prestes and Leuites spake vnto all Israel, and sayde: Take heed and heare O Israel: This daye art thou become the people of the LORD thy God, that thou mayest be obedient vnto the voyce of the LORD thy God, and do accordinge vnto all his commaundementes and ordinaunces, which I comaunde the this daye.

And Moses charged the people the same daye, and sayde: These shal stonde vpon mount Gufim to blesse the people, when ye are gone ouer Jordane: Simeon, Levi, Iuda, Isachar, Joseph, and Ben Jamin. And these shal stonde vpon mount Ebal to curse: Ruben, Gad, Asser, Zabulon, Dan & Nephthali. And the Leuites shal begynne, and saye vnto euery man of Israel, with a loude voyce:

Cursed be he, that maketh any carved ydole or molten ymage (an abhominacion of the LORD, a worke of the handes of yecraftesman) and putteth it in a secreete place. And all the people shal answer and saye, Amen.

Cursed be he, that curseth his father and mother. And all the people shal saye, Amen.

Cursed be he, that remoneth his neighbours mark. And all the people shal saye, Amen.

Cursed be he, that maketh a blynde man go out of his waye. And all the people shal saye, Amen.

Cursed be he, that wresteth the righte of the straunger, of the fatherlesse, & wedowe. And all the people shal saye, Amen.

Cursed be he, that lyeth with his fathers wife, to vnconuer his fathers concuryng. And all the people shal saye, Amen.

Cursed be he, that lyeth with any maner beest. And all the people shal saye, Amen.

Cursed be he, that lyeth with his sister, which is the daughter of his father or of his mother. And all the people shal saye, Amen.

Cursed be he, that lyeth with his mother in lawe. And all the people shal saye, Amen.

Cursed be he that slayeth his neighbour secretly. And all the people shal saye, Amen.

Cursed be he, that receaueth giftes to slaye the soule of innocent bloude. And all the people shal saye, Amen.

Cursed be he, that contynueth not in all the wordes of this lawe, to do them. And all the people shal saye, Amen.

The XXVIII. Chapter.

And if thou shalt herken vnto the voyce of the LORD thy God, to obserue and do all his commaundementes which I comaunde thee this daye, then shall the LORD thy God set thee an hye aboue all nations vpon earth, and all these blessinges shal come vpon the, and ouertake the, becau se thou hast bene obedient vnto the voyce of the LORD thy God. Blessed shalt thou be in the towne, and blessed in the felde. Blessed shalt thou be the frute of thy body, the frute of thy ground, and the frute of thy cattell, and the frute of thine oren, and the frute of thy shepe. Blessed shalt thou be thy basket, & thy store. Blessed shalt thou be when thou goest in, and blessed when thou goest out. * And thine enemies that rise vp agaynst the, shal the LORD cause to be smytten before thy face. They shal come out agaynst the one waye, & flye before the seven wayes.

The LORD shal commaunde the blessing to be with thee in thy cellers, and in all that thou takest in hande, and shal blesse the in the londe that the LORD thy God hath geue thee. The LORD shal set the vpon to be an holy people vnto himselfe (as he hath sworn vnto the) if thou kepe the commaundementes of the LORD thy God: so that all nations vpon earth shal see, that thou art called after the name of the LORD: & they shal be afrayed of you. And the LORD shal make thee plenteous in goodes, in the frute of thy wombe, in the frute of thy cattell, & in the frute of thy ground, in the londe that the LORD swaue vnto thy fathers, to geue the.

And the LORD shal open vnto thee his good treasure, euen the heauen, to giue raine vnto thy londe in due season, and to prosper all the workes of thine handes. * And thou shalt lede vnto many nations, but thou shalt borowe of no man. And the LORD shal set thee before, and not behynde: & thou shalt be aboue onely, and not benethe, if thou be obedient vnto the commaundementes of the LORD thy God, which I comaunde the this daye to kepe and to do them: & if thou bowe not asyde from any of these wordes, which I comaunde thee this daye, either to the righte hande or to the lefte, & thou woldest walke after other goddes to serue them.

But if thou wylt not herken vnto the voyce of the LORD thy God, to kepe and to do all his commaundementes and ordinaunces, which I comaunde thee this daye, then shall all these curses come vpon the, and ouertake the. Cursed shalt thou be in the towne, and cursed in the felde: cursed shalt thy basket be, and thy store. Cursed shall be the frute of thy body, the frute of thy londe, the frute of thine oren, and the frute of thy shepe. Cursed shalt thou be when thou goest in, and cursed when thou goest out. The LORD shal sende in to the, consuming, and complayninge, and cursynge, in all that thou takest in hande to do, tyll he haue destroyed the & shortly broughte to the naughte, because of thy wicked inuencions, in that thou hast forsaken me.

C The LORDE shall make the pestylence to byde longe with the, tyll he haue consumed the out of the londe, in to the which thou comest to possesse it. The LORDE shall smyte the with swellynge, fevers, heate, burnynge, venome, drowth, and palenesse, & shall persecute the, tyll he haue destroyed the.

Deu. 10. c Thy heauen, that is ouer thy heade, shalbe of brasse, and the earth vnder the, of yron. The LORDE shall geue thy londe dust for rayne, and ashes from heauen vpon the, vntill thou be broughte to naught. The LORDE shall cause the be smytten before thine enemyes. Thou shalt come out one waye agaynst them, and seuen wayes shalt thou flye before them, and shalt be scattered amonge all the kyngdomes vpon earth. Thy carcase shalbe meate vnto all maner foules of the ayre, and to all the beestes vpon earth, and there shalbe no man to fraye them awaye.

Rich. 3. b The LORDE shall smyte the with & botches of Egypte, with the Emorodes, with scalle, and maungynesse, that thou shalt not be healed therof. Leu. 13. c The LORDE shall smyte the with madnesse, blyndnesse and dasyng of hert. And thou shalt grope at the noone daye, as & blynde gropeth in darknesse, and shalt not prospere in thy waye. And thou shalt suffre violence and wronge all thy lifelonge, & no man shal helpe & Thou shalt sponse a wife, but another shal lye with her. Deu. 20. a Thou shalt buyde an house, but another shall dwell therein. Thou shalt plante a vnyarde, but shalt not make it comen.

D Thine ore shalbe slayne before thine eyes, but thou shalt not eate therof. Thine asse shalbe violently taken awaye (euen before & face) and shal not be restored & againe. Thy shepe shalbe geuen vnto thine enemies, and no man shal helpe the. Thy sonnes and thy daughters shalbe geuen vnto another nation, and thine eyes shal se it, and dase vpon them all the daye longe, and thy hande shal not be able to deliuer them. The frute of & londe and all & labour, shall a nacion eate, which thou knowest not: and thou shalt but onely be he that shalbe oppressed and suffre wronge, all the dayes of thy life. And thou shalt be cleane besyde thy selfe for the sighte, which thine eyes shal se.

The LORDE shall smyte the with a myscheuous botch in & knes & legges, so that thou canst not be healed, euen from the sole of thy fote vnto the crowne of thy heade.

The LORDE shall brynge the and thy kynge (which thou hast set ouer the) vnto a nation, whom thou knowest not, nether thy fathers: and there shalt thou serue other goddes, euen woodd and stone: and thou shalt go to waist, and become a byworde, & a laughing stocke amonge all nations, whither & LORDE hath caryed the.

Thou shalt cary out moch sode into & felde, and shalt gather but litle in: for the grefhoppers shal destroye it. Thou shalt plante vnyardes and dresse the, but thou shalt nether drynke of the wyne, ner gather of & grapes: for & wormes shal consume it. Thou shalt haue Olyue trees in all & coastes, but shalt not be anoynted with the oyle: for thyne Olyue trees shalbe roted out. Thou shalt get sonnes and daughters, and yet not haue them: for they shal be caried awaye captiue. All thy trees and frutes of thy londe shall be marred with blastynge.

The straunger that is with &, shal clyme vp ouer the, and be allwaye aboue the: but thou shalt come downe alowe, and lye euer beneth. He shal lende vnto the, but thou shalt not lende him. He shalbe before, but thou shalt be behynde.

And all these curses shall come vpon the, and folowe the, and ouertake &, tyll thou be destroyed, because thou hearkenest not vnto & voyce of the LORDE & God, to kepe his commaundementes and ordinaunces, which he hath commaunded the. Therefore shalt thou be betokens and wonders vpon the, & vpon thy sode for euer, because thou hast not serued & LORDE thy God with a ioyfull and good hert, whan thou haddest abundaunce of all thinges. And therefore shalt thou serue thine enemye, which the LORDE shall sende vpon the, in hunger and thyrst, in nakednesse, and neade of all thinge: & he shal put a yocke of yron vpon thy necke, vntill he haue broughte the to naughte.

The LORDE shall brynge a nacion vpon the from farre, euen from the ende of & world, as a flyenge Aegle: a people, whose speache thou canst not vnderstande, an hard favoured people, which regarde not the personne of the olde, ner haue compassion on the yonge. And they shal eate vp & frute of thy catell, & the frute of thy londe, tyll they haue destroyed the, and shall leaue the thinge in corne, wyne, oyle, in the frute of & open and shepe, vntill they haue broughte the to naughte: and shal laye sege vnto the & in all thy gates, tyll they cast downe thy hye and stronge walles, wherin thou trustest thorow out all thy londe. And thou shalt be beseged within all thy portes, thorow out all thy londe which the LORDE thy God hath geuen the.

Re. 5. f Thou shalt eate the frute of thine awne body, the fleshy of thy sonnes and of thy daughters, which the LORDE & God hath geue the, in that straytnesse and sege, wherewith thine enemye shall besege the: so that it shal greue the man & afore hath lyued tenderly and in voluptuousnes amonge you, to loke vpon his brother and vpon his wife & lyeth in his bosome, and on the sonne that is left ouer of his sonnes, lest he shulde geue any of them of the fleshy of his children that he eateth, in as moch as there is no thinge left him in that straytnesse and sege, wherewith thine enemye shal besege & within all thy gates. And the woman that afore hath lyued so tenderly and voluptuously amonge you, that she durste not set the sole of hir fote vpon the grounde for tendernes and voluptuousnes, shal be greued to loke vpon hir husbunde that lieth in hir bosome, and on hir sonne, and on hir daughter: euen because of hir daughters which she hath nourished betwixte hir legges in hir lappe, and because of hir sonnes that she hath borne: for she shall eate them secretly for very scarcenesse of all thinges, in the straytnesse and sege, wherewith thine enemye shal besege & within thy gates.

G If thou wilt not be diligent to do all the wordes of this lawe which are wrytten in this boke, that thou mayest feare this glorious and fearfull name, euen the LORDE thy God, then shalt the LORDE entreate & wonderously, with plagues vpon & and thy sode, yee with greate and continuall plagues, with euell and contynuall sicknesses, and shal brynge vpon & all & sicknesses of Egypte (wherof thou wast afrayed) and they shal cleue vnto the. Therto all maner sicknesses and all maner plagues, which are not wrytten in the boke of this lawe, shal the LORDE thy God cause to come vpon the, vntill he haue destroyed the. And there shal be left but a fewe people of you, which afore were as the starres of heauen in multitude: because thou hast not hearkened vnto the voyce of the LORDE thy God.

Leu. 21. d And as & LORDE reioysed ouer you afore, to do you good, and to multiplie you, eue so shall he reioyse ouer you, to destroye you, and to brynge you to naughte, and ye shalbe waysted from of the londe, whither thou goest now to possesse it. For the LORDE shall scatter the amonge all nations, from the one ende of the worlde vnto another, and there shalt thou serue other goddes, whom thou knowest not, ner yet thy fathers, euen woodd and stone.

And amonge those same nations shalt thou haue no quyetnesse, nether shal the sole of & fote haue eny rest: for the LORDE shall geue the there a fearfull hert, and dasyng of eyes, and a troubled soule, so that thy life shal hage before the: Night and daye shalt thou feare, and shalt haue no trust in thy life. In the mornynge thou shalt saye: Who shall geue me the euenynge? And at euen shalt thou saye: Who shal geue me the mornynge? For the very greate feare of thine hert, which shal make the afrayed: and for the sighte of thine eyes which thou shalt se.

And the LORDE shall brynge the agayne in to Egypte by shippe fulles, euen thorow the waye wherof I sayde vnto the: Thou shalt se it no more: and there shal ye be solde vnto youre enemies for bonde seruantes and bonde maidens, and there shal be no man to bye you.

The XXIX. Chapter.

These are & wordes of the conenaunt, which the LORDE commaunded Moyses to make w the children of Israel in the londe of the Moabites, besyde & conenaunt which he made with them in Horeb. And Moyses called all Israel, and sayde vnto them: Ye haue sene all that the LORDE dyd before youre eyes in the londe of Egypte, vnto Pharaon with all his seruantes, and all his londe, the greate tentacions which thine eyes haue sene, that they were greate tokens and wonders. And yet vnto this daye hath not the LORDE geuen you an hert that vnderstandeth, eyes that se, & eares that heare.

He hath caused you to walke fortye yeres in the wyldernes. Your clothes are not waxed olde vpon you, nether is thy shue waxed olde on thy fote. Ye haue eaten no bried, and dronken no wyne, ner stronge drynke, that ye mighte knowe, that he is & LORDE your God.

And whan ye came vnto this place, Sihon the kynge of Heshbon, and Og & kynge of Basan, came out agaynst vs vnto battayll, and we smote them, and toke their londe, and gaue it to inheritaunce vnto 3 Rubenites and Gaddites, and to the halfe trybe of the Manassites. * Repe now therfore the wordes of this couenaunt, and do therafter, that ye maye haue vnderfundinge in all that ye do.

Restonde this daye all before the LORDE youre God, the chese rulers of youre trybes, youre Elders, youre officers, every man in Israel, youre children, youre wyues, 3 straungers that are in thine hoost, from the hewer of 3 wodd vnto 3 diuer of 3 water: that thou shuldest enter in to the couenaunt of the LORDE thy God, and in to the ooth which the LORDE thy God maketh with the this daye, that he might set the vp this daye to be a people vnto himself, and that he might be thy God, as he hath sayde vnto the, and as he sware vnto 3 fathers, Abraham, Isaac and Jacob.

For I make not this couenaunt and this ooth with you onely, but both with you 3 are here this daye, and stonde with vs before the LORDE oure God, and also with them that are not here with vs this daye. For ye knowe how we haue dwelt in the londe of Egypte, and how we came thorow the myddes of the Seythen, whom ye passed by, and sawe their abominacions and their Idols, wodd and stone, syluer and golde, which were with them: Lest there be amoge you man or woman, or an housholde, or a trybe, which turneth awaye his hert this daye from the LORDE oure God, to go and to serue 3 goddes of these nacions: and lest there be amonge you some rote, that beareth gall 3 worm wodd: so that though he heare the wordes of this curse, he blesse him selfe yet in his hert, and saye: Tush, it shal not be so euell. I wil walke after the meanynge of myne awne hert, that the dronken maye perishe with the thystie.

Then shal not the LORDE be mercifull vnto him, but his wrath and gelousy shal smote ouer soch a man, and all the curses that are wrytten in this boke, shal lighte vpon him: and the LORDE shal put out his name from vnder heauen, and shal separate him vnto euell out of all the trybes of Israel, acordinge vnto all the curses of the couenaunt, that is wrytten in the boke of this lawe.

So the posterities of youre childre which shal ryse vp after you, and the straungers that come out of farre countrees, shall saye (whan they se the plages of this londe, and the diseases wherewith the LORDE hath smytten it) that he hath brent vp all that londe with brymstone and salt, so 3 it can not be sowne, ner is frutefull, nether groweth there eny grasse therin. * Like as Sodoma, Gomor, Adama and Zeboim are ouerthrowne, which the LORDE ouerthrowne in his wiath and anger.

Then shall all nacions saye: * Wherfore hath the LORDE done thus vnto this londe? What greate wrothfull displeasure is this? Then shal it be sayde: Euen because they haue forsaken the couenaunt of 3 LORDE God of their fathers (which he made with them whan he broughte them out of the londe of Egypte) and they wete, and serued other goddes, and worshipped the, euen soch goddes as they knewe not, and whom he had not denyded vnto them. Therfore the wiath of the LORDE wared whote ouer this londe, to brynge vpon it all the curses that are wrytten in this boke. And the LORDE thrust them out of their londe w greatt wiath, indignacion 3 displeasure 3 hath cast them into another londe, as it is come to passe this daye.

These are the secretes of the LORDE oure God, which are opened vnto vs and oure childre for ever, 3 we shulde do all the wordes of this lawe.

The XXX. Chapter.

Now whan all this commeth vpon the, whether it be the blessinge or 3 curse which I haue layed before the, and thou goest in to thine hert, beyng amoge the Seythen, whither the LORDE thy God hath thrust the, and thou turnest vnto the LORDE 3 God, so that thou herknest vnto his voyce, thou and thy childre with all 3 hert and with all thy soule, in all that I commaunde the this daye, then shal the LORDE thy God turne thy captiuite, and haue compassion vpon the, and shal gather thy congregacion agayne from amonge all the nacions, whither the LORDE thy God hath scattered the.

And though thou werest thrust out vnto the vtremost partes of the heauen, yet shal the LORDE thy God gather the from thence, and from thence shal he fetch the, and shal brynge the in to the londe, which thy fathers haue possessed, and thou shalt enioye it, and he shal do the good, and multiplye the abode thy fathers.

And the LORDE thy God shall circumspect thine hert, and the hert of thy seide, that thou mayest loue the LORDE 3 God with all thy hert and with all 3 soule, that thou mayest lyue. But all these curses shall the LORDE thy God laye vpon thine enemyes, and vpon them that hate the and persecute the. But thou shalt turne, and herken vnto the voyce of the LORDE, to do all his commaundementes, which I commaunde the this daye. And the LORDE thy God shal make the plenteous in all the workes of thine handes, in the frute of thy body, in the frute of thy catell, in the frute of thy londe to good.

For the LORDE shall turne, to reioyse ouer the to good, as he reioysed ouer thy fathers, so that thou herken vnto the voyce of the LORDE thy God (to kepe his commaundementes and ordinances, which are wrytten in the boke of this lawe) and turne vnto the LORDE thy God with all thy hert and with all thy soule.

For the commaundement which I commaunde 3 this daye, is not to wonderfull for the, ner to farre, ner yet in heauen, that thou neadest to saye: Who wil go vp for vs in to heauen, and brynge it vnto vs, that we maie heare it and do it? * Nether is it beyonde the see, that thou neadest to saye: Who wyll go ouer the see for vs, and fetch it vs, that we maye heare it, and do it: For the worde is very nye vnto the, eue in thy mouth and in thine hert, that thou do it.

Beholde, I haue layed before you this daye, life and good, death and euill. For I commaunde the this daye, to loue the LORDE thy God, and to walke in his wayes, and to kepe his commaundementes, ordinances, and lawes, that thou mayest lyue and multiplye, and that the LORDE thy God maye blesse the in the londe, whither thou goest to possesse it.

But yf thou turnest awaye thine hert, so that thou wilt not heare, but fall a waye, to worshipec other goddes and to serue them, I certifie you this daye, that ye shal perishe, 3 not lyue longe in the londe, whither thou goest ouer Jordane to possesse it.

I take heauen and earth this daye to recorde euer you: I haue layed before you life and death, blessinge and cursinge, that thou mayest chose life, and that thou and thy seide maye lyue, 3 ye maye loue the LORDE youre God, and herken vnto his voyce, and cleue vnto him: For he is thy life and thy longe age) that thou mayest dwell in the londe, which the LORDE sware vnto thy fathers Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, to geue them.

The XXXI. Chapter.

Now Moses wente, 3 spake these wordes to all Israel, and saide vnto them: I am this daye an hundred and twety yeare olde, I can nomore go out and in: the LORDE also hath sayde vnto me: * Thou shalt not go ouer this Jordane. The LORDE thy God himselfe shal go before the ouer Jordane: and he himselfe shal destroye these nacions before the, that thou mayest conquere them: and Josua he shal go ouer before the. * as the LORDE hath sayde. And the LORDE shal do vnto them, as he dyd vnto Sihon and Og the kynges of the Amorites and vnto their lode, which he destroyed. Now whan the LORDE shal deliuer the before you, ye shal do vnto them acordinge vnto all the commaundementes which I haue commaunded you. Be manly and stronge, feare not, and be not afrayed of them. For the LORDE thy God himselfe shal go with the, and shal not fayle the, ner forsake the.

And Moses called Josua, and sayde vnto him before all Israel: Be stronge and bolde, for thou shalt brynge this people in to the londe, which the LORDE hath sworne vnto their fathers to geue them, and thou shalt parte it amonge them by lott. But the LORDE himselfe that goeth before you, euen he shal be with the, and shal not fayle the, ner forsake the: Feare not, and be not afrayed.

And Moses wrote this lawe, and deliuered it vnto the prestes the childre of Levi (which bare the Arke of the couenaunt of the LORDE) and vnto all the Elders of Israel.

And he commaunded them, and sayde: * At the ende of seven yeares, in the tyme of the 3re yeare, in the feast of Tabernacles whan all Israel come to appeare before the LORDE thy God, in the place that he shall chose, thou shalt cause this lawe to be proclaimed before all Israel in their eares, namely, before the congregacion of the people, both of men, women, childre, and thy straungers which are within thy gates: that they maye heare and lerne to feare the LORDE their God, and be diligent to do all the wordes of this lawe: and that their childre also which knowe nothings, maye heare and lerne to feare the LORDE yo<sup>r</sup> God, all youre lyue dayes which ye lyue in the londe, whither ye go ouer Iordane to possesse it.

D And the LORDE sayde vnto Moses: Beholde, thy tyme is come that thou must die, call Josua, and stonde in the Tabernacle of witnessse, that I maye geue him a charge. Moses wente with Josua, and stode in the Tabernacle of witnessse. And the LORDE appeared in the Tabernacle in a cloudy pyler, and the same cloudy pyler stode in the doore of the Tabernacle.

And the LORDE sayde vnto Moses: Beholde, thou shalt slepe with y<sup>r</sup> fathers, and this people wyll rylse vp, and go a whoringe after straunge goddes of the londe into the which they come, and wyll forsake me, and breake the couenaunt which I haue made wth them. And then shall my wrath waxe whote agaynst them, at the same tyme, and I shall forsake the, and hyde my face fro them, that they maye be consumed. And so whan moch aduersitee & trouble cometh vpo the, they shal saye: Is not all this euell come vpo me, because God is not with me? But I shall hyde my face at the same tyme because of all the euell that they haue done, in that they haue turned vnto other goddes.

E Wyte now therfore this songe, & teach it the children of Israel, and put it in their mouth, that this songe maye be a witnessse vnto me amonge the children of Israel. For I wil brynge them into the londe which I swaie vnto their fathers, that floweth with mylke and hony. And whan they eate, and are full and satt, they shal turne vnto other goddes, and serue them, and blasphememe, and breake my couenaunt.

And so whan moch myschese and tribulation is come vpon them, this songe shall answere before them for a witnessse. It shall not be forgotten out of the mouth of their sede: for I knowe their ymaginacion, that they go aboute euennow, before I brynge them into the londe, which I swaie vnto them.

S So Moses wrote this songe at the same tyme, and taughte it the children of Israel. And the LORDE gaue Josua the sonne of Nun a charge, and sayde: Be stronge and bolde, for thou shalt brynge the children of Israel into the londe, which I swaie vnto them, and I wil be with the.

Now whan Moses had wrytten out all the wordes of this lawe in a boke, he commaunded the Leuites (which bare the Arke of the LORDES couenaunt) and sayde: Take the boke of this lawe, and laye it by the syde of the Arke of the couenaunt of the LORDE your God, that it maye be there a witnessse agaynst the: for I knowe thy stubburnesse and thy harde neck. Beholde, x hyle I am yet alyue wth you this daye, ye haue bene disobedient vnto the LORDE: how moch more after my death?

Gather now vnto me all the Elders of youre trybes, and youre officers, & I maye speake these wordes in their eares, and take heauen and earth to recorde agaynst them. For I am sure that after my death ye shall marre youre selues, and turne asyde out of the waye, which I haue commaunded you: and so shall my fortune happen vnto you hereafter, because ye haue done euell in the sight of the LORDE, in prouokynge him thow the workes of youre handes.

So Moses spake out the wordes of this songe euen to the ende, in the eares of all the congregacion of Israel.

The XXXII. Chapter.

Ertzen (O ye heauens) I wyll speake: and let the earth heare the wordes of my mouth.

My doctryne droppe as doth the raine, and my speach flowe as doth the dew.

Euen as the rayne vpon the grasse, and as the droppes vpon the herbe.

For I wil call vpon the name of the LORDE, geue ye the glory vnto oure God.

Perfekte are the workes of the Stone, for all his wayes are righteous.

God is true, and no wickednes is therein him, righteous and iust is he.

The frowarde and ouerthwarte generacion hath marred them selues to himwarde and are not his children, because of their deformyte.

Thankest thou the LORDE & God so, thou foolish and vnwyse people?

Is not hethy father and thy LORDE? Hath he not made the, and prepared the?

Remember the dayes that are past, considere the yeaeres of the generacions aforetyme.

Are thy father, he shall shewe the: thine elders, they shal tell the.

Whan the most hyghest denyed & nations and scattered the children of men.

Then set he the borders of the nations accordinge to the nombre of the children of Israel.

For the LORDES parte is his folke,

Jacob is the meetlynge of his enheritaunce. He founde him in the wyldernes, euen in the drye deserte where he roared.

He led him aboute, and gaue him understandinge: he kepte him as the aple of his eye.

As an Eagle stereth vp hir nest, and floreteth ouer hir yonge: Euen so stretched he out his fethers, and toke him: and bare him on his wynges.

The LORDE onely was his gyde, & there was no straunge God with him.

He caried him ouer y<sup>e</sup> heighe of the earth, and sed him with the increase of the felde.

He caused him sucke hony out of the rocke, and oyle out of the harde stone.

Butter of the kyne, and mylke of the shepe, with the fat of the lambes, and rammes of the sonnes of Basan, and he goates with the fat of the kydneyes, and wheate: And gaue him drynke of the very bloude of grapes.

And whan he was fat and had ynough, he waxed wanton.

He is fat, and thicke, and smothe, & hath letten God go, that made him, and despyed the rocke of his saluacion.

He hath prouoked him to indignacion, thow straunge goddes, and thow abhominacion hath he angred him.

They offred vnto felde deuels, & not vnto their God.

Vnto goddes whom they knewe not, enen vnto new goddes, & came newly vp, whom their fathers honoured not.

Thy rocke that begat y<sup>e</sup>, hast thou despyed: and hast forgotten God that made the.

And whan the LORDE sawe it, he was moued vnto wrath ouer his sonnes and his daughters.

And he sayde: I wyll hyde my face from them, I wyll se what their ende shal be: for it is a frowarde generacion, they are childre in whom is no fayth.

They haue prouoked me in it that is not God: wth their vanities haue they angred me.

And I agayne wil prouoke them, by thosethat are no people: by a foolish nacion wil I anger them.

For the fyre is kyndled in my wrath, and shal burne vnto y<sup>e</sup> nethermost hell, and shal consume the londe with the increase therof, and set the foundations of y<sup>e</sup> mountaynes on fyre.

I wil heape myscheues vpo them, I wil spende all myne arrowes at them.

They shal pyne awaye thow hunger, & be consumed of the fevers, and of bytter sicknesses.

I wil sende amonge them y<sup>e</sup> tethe of beestes, and furious serpentes.

Without shall the swearde robbe them, & feare in the chambers, both the yonge man and yonge woman, the suckynge childre wth the gray headed man.

I wyll saye: Where are they? I shall make their remembraunce to cease from amonge men.

If the wrath of the enemies were not gathered, lest their enemies shulde be proude, & might saie: Oure hande is hye, and: The LORDE hath not done all this.

For it is a people, wherein is no counsell, and there is no understandinge in them.

O that they were wyse & vnderstode this, that they wolde considere what shulde happen vnto them hereafter.

How cometh it, & one shall chace a thousande of them, and y<sup>e</sup> two shal put ten thousande to flyghte?

Is it not so, euen because their rocke hath solde them, and because the LORDE hath geuen them ouer?

For oure rocke is not as their rocke, & of this are oure enemies iudges them selues.

Their vyne is of the vyne of Sodcm, and of the felde of Gomorra: their grapes are the grapes of gall, they haue bytter clustres.

Their wyne is the poyson of Dragons, & the furious gall of Adders.

Is not this hid with me, and sealed vp in my treasures?

Vengeaunce is myne, and I wyll rewarde in due season. Their fore shall flyde, for the tyme of their destruccio is at honde, and the thinge that is to come vpon them, maketh haiste.

For the LORDE shall iudge his people, & shal haue compassion on his seruantes. For he shal considere that their power is awaie, and that it is gone with them, which were shut vp and remayned ouer.

And he shal saye: Where are their goddes, their rocke wherein they trusted?

Of whose sacrifices they ate y<sup>e</sup> fatt, and dranke the wyne of their drynt offerings? Let them rylse vp and helpe you, and be your proteccion.

Se now that I am, and that there is none other God but I.

I can kyll and make alyue: what I haue

*Job 10. 2 smythen, that can I heale: and there is no man able to deliuer out of my hande.

For I wil lifte vp my hande to heauen, and wil saye: I lyue euer.

And wher I edge of my swerde, and my hande take holde of iudgment, then wil I auenge me on myne enemies, and rewarde them that hate me.

I wil make myne arrowes dronken with bloude, and my swerde shal eate flesh ouer & bloude of the slayne, and ouer the captyuite, and in that the enemies heade shall be discovered.

Rom. 15. a Reioyse ye heythen with his people: for he wil auenge the bloude of his seruantes, and wil auenge him on his enemies, and wil be mercifull vnto the londe of his people.

And Moses came and spake all the wordes of this songe in the eares of the people, he and Josua the sonne of Nun. Now whā Moses had made an ende of speakinge all these wordes vnto all Israel, he sayde vnto the: Take to hert all I wordes, which I testifie vnto you this daye, that ye commaunde youre children, to obserue and do all the wordes of this lawe. For it is no vaine worde vnto you, but it is yo<sup>r</sup> life: and this worde shal prolonge youre life in I londe, whither ye goe vnto Iordane to conquire it.

And I LORDE spake vnto Moses I same daie, and sayde: Get the vp to this mount Aba- rim, vpon mount Nebo, which lyeth in I londe of the Moabites euer agaynst Jericho, and beholde the londe of Canaan, which I shall geue vnto the children of Israel in possessiō. And dye thou vpon the mount, whan thou art come vp, and be gathered vnto thy people, like as Aaron thy brother dyed vpon mount Hor, and was gathered vnto his people: Because yet respaced agaynst me amonge the children of Israel by the water of stryfe at Cades in the wilderness of Sin, and sanctified me not amonge the children of Israel. For thou shalt see the londe ouer agaynst the, which I geue vnto I children of Israel but thou shalt not come in to it.

The XXXIII. Chapter.

Exo. 3. a
Exo. 19. a
This is the blessinge, wherwith Moses the man of God blessed I childre of Israel before his death, and saide: The LORDE came from Sinai, and rose vp vnto the from Seir. He appeared fro mount Paran, and came to many thousande sayntes. At his righte hande is there a lawe of fyre for them: O how loued he the people: All his sayntes are in his hande, they shall see them selues downe at thy fete, and receaue of thy wordes. Moses commaunded vs the lawe, which is the enheritaunce of the congregation of Jacob. And he was in the fulnesse of the kyng, and helde I rulers of I people together, with the trybes of Israel.

Let Ruben lyue, and not dye, and his people be serue in nombie.

This is the blessinge of Iuda. And he sayde: LORDE heare the voyce of Iuda, and bryng him vnto his people: Let his handes multiplie him, and let him be helped fro his enemies.

And vnto Levi he sayde: Thy perfectnes and I lichte be acordinge vnto the man of thy mercy, whō thou hast tempted at Massah, whan ye stroue by the water of stryfe. He that sayeth vnto his father and to his mother: I se him not: and to his brother, I knowe him not: and to his sonne, I were not of him, those haue obserued thy wordes, and kepte I couenaunt: they shal teach Jacob thy iudgements, and Israel thy lawe: they shal laie incense before thy nose, and burne offerings vpon thine altare. LORDE, blisse thou his power and accepte the workes of his handes: in yte the loynes of them I ryse vp agaynst him, and of them that hate him, that they lifte not vp them selues.

And to Ben Jamin he saide: The beloued of the LORDE shal dwell in hope on him: All the daye long: shal he wayte vpon him, and shal dwell betwene his shulders.

And to Ioseph he sayde: His londelieth in the blessinge of the LORDE, there are noble frutes of heauen, of the dew, and of the depe that lyeth beneth: There are noble frutes of the increase of the Sonne, and noble rype frutes of I monethes: And of I topes of the mountaynes of olde, and of the hilles allwaye, and of the noble frutes of I earth, and of I fulnesse thereof. The good will of him that dwelleth in the busshes, come vpon the heade of Ioseph, and vpon I toppe of his heade that was separated fro amonge his brether.

His bewtye is as a firstborne ore, and his hornes are as I hornes of an Unicorn: with the same shal he pughe the nacions together, euen vnto the endes of the woulde. These are the thousandes of Ephraim, and the thousandes of Manasse.

And vnto Zabulon he sayde: Reioyse Zabulon of thy outgoynge: but reioyse thou Issachar of thy tentes. They shall call the people vnto I hyll, and there shal they offre I offerings of righteousnes. For they shal see the abundaunce of the see, and the treasures hyd in the sonde.

And to Gad he sayde: Blessynge haue Gad, which maketh rowme. He dwelleth as a lyon, and spoyleth the arme and the toppe of the heade. And he sawe his begynnynge, that I heape of the teachers laye hyd the re, and came with the rulers of the people, and executed the righteousnesse of the LORDE, and his iudgment on Israel.

And to Dan he sayde: Dan a yonge lyon, he shal flowe from Basan.

And to Ephraim he saide: Ephraim shal haue abundaunce of pleasure, and shalbe full of the blessinge of the LORDE: his possession shal be toward the west and south. And to Asser he sayde: Asser be blessed to sonnes, accepted be he with his brether, and dyppe his fore in oyle. Iron and brasse be on thy shues. Thyne age be as thy youth.

There is no God as the God of the iust. He that sitteth vpon heauen, be thy helpe. And his glory is in the cloudes, that is the dwellinge of God from the begynnynge, and vnder the armes of the woulde. And he shal dryue out thine enemye before the, and saye: He destroyed. And Israel shal dwell safe alone. The eye of Jacob shalbe vpon I londe where come and wine is, heauen also shal droppe with dewe. Happye art thou Israel, who is lyke vnto the: O thou people I art saued by the LORDE, which is thy helpe, shylde, and the swerde of thy glorye. Thyne enemies shal pyne awaye, and thou shalt treade vpon the height of them.

The XXXIII. Chapter.

And Moses wente from the selde of I Moabites vp vnto mount Nebo, vpon I toppe of mount Pisga ouer agaynst Jericho. And the LORDE shewed him all the londe of Gilead vnto Dan, and all Ephraim li, and the londe of Ephraim and Manasse, and all the londe of Iuda, vnto I vttemost see, and toward the south, and the region of the playne of Jericho the cite of the palme trees euen vnto Zoar. And the LORDE sayde vnto him: This is the londe that I sware vnto Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, and sayde: I wyll geue it vnto thy seide. Thou hast seene it with thine eyes, but thou shalt not go ouer thither.

So Moses I seruaunt of the LORDE died there in the londe of the Moabites, acordinge vnto the worde of I LORDE. And he buried him in a valley, in the londe of the Moabites ouer agaynst the house of Peor. And no man knewe of his graue vnto this daye. And Moses was an hundred and twentye yeare olde whan he dyed: his eyes were not dymme, and his chekes were not fallen. And the children of Israel weped for Moses in I felde of the Moabites thirtie daies, and the dayes of the wepyng and mournynge for Moses were fulfilled.

And Josua the sonne of Nun was filled with I spere of wysdome (for Moses had layed his hande vpon him) and the children of Israel hearkened vnto him, and dyd as the LORDE commaunded Moses. And there arose no prophet more in Israel, like vnto Moses, whom the LORDE knewe face to face in all tokens and wonders (which the LORDE sent him to do in I londe of Egypte, vnto pharaos, and to all his seruantes, and his londe) and in all this mightie hande and greates visions which Moses dyd in the sighte of all Israel.

The booke of Josua.

The first Chapter.

After the death of Moses the seruauit of the LORDE, spake the LORDE vnto Josua & sonne of Nun Moses mynister: My seruauit Moses is deed, vp now, and go ouer

this Iordane, thou and all this people in to the londe that I haue geuen the children of Israel. All the places that the soles of your feet shal treade vpon, haue I geuen vnto you, as I sayde vnto Moses: From the wyldernesse and this Libanus vnto the greete water Euphrates: all the londe of the Hethites vnto the greete see toward the west, shal be youre boider. There shall noman be able to withstonde & all thy life longe. And like as I was with Moses, so wil I be with the also. I will not fayle the nether forsake the. Be stronge and bolde: for vnto this people shalt thou deuyde & londe, which I swaie vnto their fathers, to geue it them.

Be stronge therfore and very bolde, that thou mayest kepe and do euery thyng accordinge to the lawe, that Moses my seruauit commaunded the. Turne not asyde from it, nether to the righte hande ner to the lefte, & thou mayest deale wysely whither so ener thou goest. And let not the boke of this lawe departe out of thy mouth, but exerce thy selfe therein daie and nighte, that thou mayest kepe and do euery thyng accordinge to it that is wyttē therein: Then shalt thou prospere in thy waies, and deale wysely. Lo, I haue commaunded the to be stronge and bolde. Feare not, and be not afrayed: for the LORDE thy God is with &, whither so ever thou goest.

Then commaunded Josua the officers of the people, and sayde: Go thorow the hoost, and charge & people, and saye: Prepare you vytayles, for ouer thre dayes shal ye go ouer this Iordane, that ye maye come in and take possession of the londe, which the LORDE youre God shal geue you.

And to the Rubenites, Gaddites, and to the halfe trybe of Manasse, sayde Josua: Thynke vpon the worde, that Moses the seruauit of & LORDE spake vnto you, and sayde: The LORDE y<sup>e</sup> God hath broughte you to rest, and geuen you this londe. Let youre wyues and children and catell remayne in y<sup>e</sup> londe, that Moses gaue you on this syde Iordane: But ye youre selues (as many as be fightinge men) shal go forth before youre brethren in harness, and helpe them, tyll the LORDE haue broughte youre brethren to rest also as well as you: that they also maye take possession of the londe, which the LORDE y<sup>e</sup> God shal geue them: Then shal ye turne agayne in to the londe of youre possession, that ye maye enioye it, which Moses the seruauit of the LORDE hath geuen you on this syde Iordane toward & East. And they answered Josua and sayde: All that thou hast commaunded vs, wyl we do: and whither so ever thou sendest vs, we wyl go thither. Like as we haue obeyed Moses, so wyl we be obedient also vnto the: Onely that the LORDE thy God be with &, like as he was with Moses. Who so ever disobeyeth thy mouth, and herkeneth not vnto thy wordes in all that thou hast commaunded vs, shal dye: Onely be thou stronge and bolde.

The II. Chapter.

Josua the sonne of Nun sent out two spyres priuely from Setim, and sayde vnto them: Go youre waye, loke vpon the londe and Jericho. They wente forth, and came in to & house of an harlot, called Rahab, and laye there. Then was it tolde the kynge of Jericho: Lo, there are men come in this nighte from the childre of Israel, to spy the londe. Then sent the kynge of Jericho vnto Rahab, saynge: Deluyer the men forth that are come vnto the in to thy house, for they are come to spy out the whole londe. Now as for the two men, the woman had hyd them, and sayde: There came men in vnto me in vede, but I knewe not whence they were. And at the shynnyng in of the gate when it was darcke, they wente out, so & I can not tell whither they be gone: folowe soone after them, for ye shal overtake them. But she had caused them to clymme vp vnto the house toppe, and hyd them vnder the stalkes of flaxe, that she had prepared her vpon the toppe of the house. Howbeit the men folowed after them in & waye towarde Iordane, euen vnto the ferye: and whan they that folowed vpon them were gone forth, the gate was shut.

B And ouer the men layed them downe to slepe, she wente vp to them vnto the honse toppe, and sayde vnto the: I knowe that the LORDE shal deliuer you the londe, for the feare of you is fallen vpon vs, and all the inhabitants of the londe are discouraged at youre commynge. For we haue herde, how the LORDE dried vp the water in the reed see before you, whā ye departed out of Egipte: and what ye dyd vnto the two kynges of the Amorites, Sihon and Og beyonde Iordane, how ye rote them out, and destroyed them. And sence we herde therof, oure hert hath failed vs, nether is there a good stomacke more in eny man, by the reason of youre commynge. For the LORDE ys God is both the God aboue in heaue and beneth vpon earth.

C Swear now then vnto me: euen by the LORDE (for somoch as I haue dealete mercifully with you) that ye wyl also shewe mercy vpon my fathers house: and geue me a true token, that ye wyl let my father lyue, and my mother, my brechren, and my sisters, and all that they haue, and deliuer oure soules from death. The men sayde vnto her: If we shewe not mercy and faithfulness vpon the, whan the LORDE geueth vs the londe, then let oure soule dye for you, so farre as thou betrayest not oure denyce. Then let she them downe thorow the wyndowe by a coarde: for hir house was in the wall of the cite, and in the wall was hir dwellynge. And she sayde vnto them: So youre waye vp to the mountaynes, lest they mete you that folowe vpon you: and hyde youre selues there thre dayes, tyll they be come agayne & folowe after you: and then get you youre waye.

D But the men sayde vnto her: As for this oath that thou hast taken of vs, we wyl be discharged of it whan we come in to & londe, excepte thou knyttest in the wyndowe & lyne of this rose coloured rope (& thou hast lett vs downe with all) & gatherest vnto & in to the house, thy father, thy mother, & brechren & all thy fathers house. And loke who so euer goeth out at the dore of thy house, his bloude be vpon his owne heade, and we guilelesse. But of all those & are in & house, yf a hande be layed vpon the, their bloude shalbe vpon & heade. And yf thou betrayest eny of this denyce of ours, the wil we be discharged of the oath & then hast take of vs. She sayde: Let it be so as ye saye, and she let the go. And they wente their waye. And she knyt the rose coloured lyne in the wyndowe. They wente on their waye, and came to the mountaynes, and remayned there the dayes, tyll they that folowed vpon them were come agayne: for they soughte them thorow every strete, & yet they founde them not. So the two men turned agayne, and departed from the mountaynes, and passed ouer (Iordane) and came to Iosua the sonne of Nun, and tolde him every thinge, as they had founde it, & they sayde vnto Iosua: The LORDE hath geue vs all the londe in oure handes, and all they that dwell in the londe, are sore afraied of vs.

The III. Chapter.

Ald Iosua rose vp early, and they departed from Setim, & came vnto Iordane, he and all the children of Israel, and remayned there all night, afore they wete ouer. But after thre dayes wente the officers thorow & hoost, and commaunded the people, and sayde: Whan ye se the Arke of & conenant of the LORDE youre God, and the prestes from amonge the Levites bearing it, departe ye then out of youre place, and folowe after (but so, that there be rowme betwene you and it by two thousande cubites, & that ye come not nye it) & ye maye knowe what waye ye shulde go: for ye neuer wete that waye afore.

And Iosua sayde vnto the people: Halowe youre selues, for tomorrow shal & LORDE bringe wonderous thinges to passe amonge you. And vnto the prestes he sayde: Beare ye the Arke of & conenant, and go before the people. Then bare they the Arke, and wente before the people. And the LORDE sayde vnto Iosua: This daye wyl I begynne to make the greate in the sighte of all Israel, that they maye knowe, how that like as I was with Moses, so am I with the also. And commaunde thou the prestes that beare the Arke, and saye: Whan ye come before in the water of Iordane, stonde styll.

C And Iosua sayde vnto the children of Israel: Come hither, & heare the worde of the LORDE youre God. He sayde morouer: By this shal ye perceane, that the lyuynge God is amonge you, and that he shal drye out before you & Cananites, Hethites, Hewites, pherefites, Girgofites, Amorites and Jebusites. Beholde, the Arke of the conenant of him & hath domynion ouer all londes, shal go before you in Iordane. Take now therfore twolue men out of & trybes of Israel, out of every trybe one. And whan the soles of the fete of the prestes that beare & Arke of the LORDE the gouernoure of all londes, are set in the water of Iordane, then shal & water of Iordane withdraue it selfe from the water that floweth from aboue, that it maye stonde on a heape.

D Now whan the people departed out of their tentes, to go ouer Iordane, & the prestes bare the Arke of the conenant before the people, and came in to Iordane, & dypte their fete before in the water (as for Iordane on all his banckes it was full of all manner waters: of the londe) then the water that came downe fro aboue, stode straight vp vpon one heape, very farre from the cite of Adom, that lyeth on the syde of Zartan: But the water that ranne downe to the see (euen to the salt see) fell awaye, and becreased.

So & people wente thorow ouer agaynst Jericho. And the prestes that bare the Arke of the LORDE conenant, stode drye in & myddes of Iordane, readye prepared: & all Israel wete thorow drye shod, vntyll & who le people were all come ouer Iordane.

The III. Chapter.

Ald & LORDE sayde vnto Iosua: Take you twolue men, out of every trybe one, & comaunde them, & saye: Take vp twolue stones out of Iordane, from the place where the fete of the prestes stode in their araye: & cary them with you, & ye maie leaue them in & lodgyng, where ye shal lodge this night. The Iosua called twolue men which were prepared of the children of Israel, out of every trybe one, & sayde vnto the: Go youre waye ouer before the Arke of the LORDE youre God in the myddes of Iordane, & take every man a stone vpon his shulder, after the nombre of the trybes of & children of Israel, & they maye be a token amonge you. And whan youre children are their fathers here after, and saye: What do these stones there? That ye maye then saye vnto them, how that the water of Iordane claue in sunder before the Arke of the LORDE conenant, whan it wente thorow Iordane, & that these stones are set for a perpetuall remembrance vnto the children of Israel.

B Then dyd the children of Israel as Iosua commaunded them, and bare twolue stones out of the myddes of Iordane (as the LORDE had sayde vnto Iosua) accordinge to the nombre of the trybes of the children of Israel, and broughte the same with them in to the lodgyng, and leste them there. And Iosua set vp twolue stones in & myddes of Iordane, where & fete of the prestes stode, that bare & Arke of the conenant: and there they be yet vnto this daye. As for & prestes that bare & Arke, they stode in the myddes of Iordane, vntyll all was perfourmed that the LORDE charged Iosua to saye vnto & people: accordinge as Moses gaue Iosua in commaundement. The people also made haist, and wente ouer. Now whan all the people was gone ouer, the Arke of the LORDE wente ouer also, and the prestes wente before the people.

C And the Rubenites, & Gadites, and & halfe trybe of Manasse wente harnessed before the childre of Israel, like as Moses had sayde vnto the: Aboute a fortye thousande men ready harnessed to the warre, wente before the LORDE to the battayll, vpon & felde of Jericho. In that daye the LORDE made Iosua greate in the sighte of all Israel: and like as they feared Moses, so stode they in awe of him, all his life longe.

And the LORDE sayde vnto Iosua: Commaunde the prestes which beare the Arke of witnesse, that they come vp out of Iordane. So Iosua comaunded the prestes, & sayde: Come vp out of Iordane. And whan the prestes & bare the Arke of the conenant of & LORDE were come out of Iordane, and trode with the soles of their fete vpon the drye londe, & water of Iordane came agayne in to his place, and flowed (like as afore tyme) vpon all his banckes.

D It was y tenth daye of the first moneth, whan the people came vp out of Iordane: & they pitched their tentes in Gilgall vpon & East syde of & cite of Jericho. And & twolue stones which they had taken out of Iordane, dyd Iosua set vp at Gilgall, & saide vnto the children of Israel: Whan youre children are their fathers here after, & saie: What meane these stones? Ye shall tell the, & saye: Israel wete drye thorow Iordane, what tyme as & LORDE ys God dried vp & water of Iordane before you, vntyll ye were ouer: as iij like as the LORDE vs God dyd in the reed see, which he dyed up before vs, & we might go thorow: that all the people upon earth might knowe the hāde of the LORDE, how mightie it is, to the intent that ye shulde all waye feare the LORDE your God.

The V. Chapter.

Uow whan all the kynges of y Amorites that dwelt beyonde Jordane westwarde, and all the kynges of y Cananites by the see syde herde, how y LORDE had dyed up the water of Jordane before the children of Israel, tyll they were come ouer: their hert fayled them, necher was there eny more corage in them at the presence of the children of Israel.

At the same tyme sayde y LORDE vnto Josua: Make the knyues of stone, & circumsyse the children of Israel agayne the seconde tyme. Then Josua made him knyues of stone, and circumsysed the childre of Israel upon the toppe of the forestynnes. And the cause why Josua circumsysed all the males of the people y were come out of Egipte, is this: for all the men of warre dyed in y wildernesse by the waye, after they were departed out of Egipte: for all the people that came forth, were circumsysed.

But all the people that were borne in y wyldernesse by the waye (after they departed out of Egipte) were not circumsysed: for the children of Israel walked fortye yeres in the wyldernesse, vntyll all the people of the men of warre that came out of Egipte, were consumed, because they hertened not vnto the voyce of the LORDE, like as the LORDE swaue vnto them, that they shulde not se the londe, which the LORDE swaue vnto their fathers to geue vnto vs, even a londe that floweth with mylke & honye: their children which were come up in their steade, dyd Josua circumsyse: for they had the forestynne, and were not circumsysed by the waye.

C And whan all the people were circumsysed, they abode in their place, euē in y tētes, tyll they were whole. And y LORDE saide vnto Josua: To daie haue I turned y shame of Egipte awaye from you, & the same place was called Gulgall vnto this daye. And whyle the children of Israel laye thus at Gulgall, they kepte Easter: the fourteenth daye of the moneth at euē in the felde of Jericho. And they ate of the come of the lōde the seconde daye of the Easter: namely, vnto the pended bried, & symentye of y yeare, euē the same daye. And vpon the morow, the Man na sayled, whan they ate of the come of y londe, so that the children of Israel had more Manna, but ate of the come of the londe of Canaan the same yeare.

And it fortuneth that whā Josua was by Jericho, he liste vp his eyes, & was awaie that there stode a mā agaynst him, and had a naked swerde in his hande. And Josua wote to him, & sayde vnto him: Art thou one of vs, or of our enemies? He sayde: No, but I am y prynce of the LORDES hoost, and now am I come. Then fell Josua downe the earth vpon his face, & worshipped him, and sayde vnto him: What sayest my LORDE vnto his seruaunt? And the prynce of the LORDES hoost sayde vnto him: Put y shyes of y sete, for the place wher vnto thou stondest, is holy. And Josua dyd so.

The VI. Chapter.

As for Jericho, it was shut & kepte by cause of the childre of Israel, so that no man mighte go out ner in. But the LORDE sayde vnto Josua: Beholde, I haue geuen Jericho with y kyng and men of warre therof, into y hande. Let all the men of warre go once rounde aboute y cite, and do so sixe dayes. But vpon the seventh daye let the prestes take the seven trompettes of the yeare of Jubilye before the Arke, and vpon the same seventh daye seven tymes aboute the cite, and let the prestes blowe the trompettes. And whan the home of the yeare of Jubilye bloweth and maketh a sounde, so that ye heare the trompettes, all the people shal make a greateshout, then shal the walles of the cite fall downe, and y people shal fall in, euery one straight before him.

Then Josua the sonne of Nun called y prestes, and sayde vnto them: Beare ye the Arke of the couenant, and let seven prestes take the seven trompettes of the yeare of Jubilye before the Arke of the LORDE. But vnto the people he sayde: Get you hence, and go rounde aboute the cite: and let him that is harnesssed, go before the Arke of the LORDE. Whan Josua had spoken this vnto the people, the seven prestes bare the seven trompettes of the yeare of Jubilye before the Arke of the LORDE, and wente & blew the trompettes, and the Arke of the LORDES conenant folowed after them: and who so was harnesssed, wente before the prestes that blew the trompettes, and the multitude folowed the Arke. And all was full of y noyse of the trompettes. But Josua commaunded the people, and sayde: Ye shal make no shout, ner let your voyce be heard, for ther shal ye geue one worde out of your mouth, vntyll the daye y I saye vnto you: Make a shout, then make a shout.

C So the Arke of the LORDE wente once rounde aboute the cite, and came agayne in to y hooste, & remayned therin: for Josua vsed to ryse vp early in the mornynge. And the prestes bare the Arke of the LORDE: so dyd the seven prestes beate the seven trompettes of the yeare of Jubilye before y Arke of the LORDE, and wente and blew the trompettes: and who so was harnesssed, wente before the, but y multitude folowed y Arke of the LORDE. And all was full of the noyse of the trompettes.

The seconde daye wente they once aboute the cite also, and came agayne in to the hoost. Thus dyd they sixe dayes. But vpon the seventh daye whan the mornynge sprynge arose, they gat them vp early, and wente after the same maner seven tymes aboute y cite, so that vpon the same one seventh daye they wente seven tymes aboute the cite.

D And at the seventh tyme whan the prestes blew the trompettes, Josua sayde vnto the people: Make a shout, for y LORDE hath deliuered you the cite: howbeit this cite, & all that is therein, shalbe damned vnto the LORDE: onely the harlot Rahab shal lyue, & all that are with her in y house, for she hyd the messaungers, whom we sent forth. Onely beware of it that is damned, lest ye damne your selues (yf ye take ought of it which is damned) and make the hoost of Israel to be damned, and brynge it in to mysfortune. But all the syluer and golde, with the ornammētes of brasie & yron, shalbe sanctified vnto the LORDE, that it maye come to the LORDES treasure.

Then made the people a greateshout, and the prestes blew the trompettes (for whan the people herde the noyse of the trompettes, they made a greateshout) and the walles fell, and the people clym-

med vp in to the cite, euery one straight before him. Thus they wanne y cite, and destroyed all that was in the cite with the edge of the swerde, both man and woman, yonge and elde, oxe, shepe, and Asse.

E But Josua sayde vnto y twomen which had spied out the londe: Go in to the house of the harlot, and brynge out the woman fro thence with all that she hath, accordynge as ye haue sworne vnto her. Then y yonge men (the spyes) wente in, and brought forth Rahab with hir father and mother, & brethren, and all that she had, and all hir kynted, and caused her to dwell without the hoost of Israel. As for the cite, they brent it with fyre, & all that was therein: onely the syluer and golde, and the ornammētes of brasie and yron, put they vnto the treasure in the house of y LORDE: but Josua let the harlot Rahab lyue, with hir fathers house, and all that she had: & she dwelt in Israel vnto this daie, because she had hyd the messaungers whō Josua sent vnto Jericho to spye.

At the same tyme swaue Josua, and sayde: Cursed be that man before the LORDE, which setteth vp this cite of Jericho & buyldeth it: Whan he laieth y foundacio therof, let it cost him his first sonne: And whā he setteth vnto the gates of it, let it cost him his yongest sonne. Thus the LORDE was with Josua, so that he was spoken of in all londes.

The VI. Chapter.

De the children of Israel had comyt a synne in the thinge y was commanded: for Achan the sonne of Charai the sonne of Sabdi the sonne of Setrah, of y trybe of Juda, toke some of it y was dāned. Then was the wrath of the LORDE feared ouer the children of Israel.

Now whan Josua sent out men from Jericho vnto Hai, which lyeth besyde Bethaun on y east syde of Bethel, he sayde vnto the: Go vp, and spye the londe. And whan they had gone vp, and spied out Hai, they came agayne to Josua, and sayde vnto him: Let not all the people go vp, but vpon a two or thre thousande, that they maye go vp and synye Hai, lest all the people weerye themselves there, for they are but fewe.

So there wente vp, of the people vpon a thre thousande men, and they fled before the men of Hai, and they of Hai smote vpon a fyre and thyrtye men of them, and chased them from the porte vnto Sebarim, and smote them downe the waye. Then was the hert of the people discouraged, and became like water. As for Iosua he rente his clothes, and fell vpon his face vnto the earth before the Arke of the LORDE, vntill the eueninge, with the Elders of Israel, and cast dust vpon their heades.

B And Iosua sayde: Oh LORDE LORDE, wherfore hast thou broughte this people ouer Iordane, to deliuer vs in to the handes of the Amorites to destroye vs? O that we had taried beionde Iordane, as we begane. Oh my LORDE, what shal I saye, whyle Israel turneth his backe vpon his enemies? Whā the Cananites heare of this, they shal compasse vs rounde aboute, yee and rote out oure names from of the earth. What wylt thou do then vnto thy greates name?

Then sayde the LORDE vnto Iosua: Seest thou, why lyest thou so vpon thy face? Israel hath offended, and trasgressed ouer my couenauent, which I commaunded the. They haue taken also of the thinge that was dammed, and haue stollen, and dyssembled, and layed it amonge their ornaments. The children of Israel are not able to stonde before their aduersaries, but must turne their backs vpon their enemies: for they are a cursed. I wyll nomore be with you from hence forth yf ye put not out the damned from amonge you.

C Stonde vp, and sanctifie the people, and saye: Sanctifie y<sup>e</sup> selues agaynst tomorow for thus sayeth the LORDE God of Israel: There is a damned thinge in the O Israel, therfore canst thou not stonde before thine enemies, tyll ye put awaye the damned from amonge you. And ye shall ryse vpearly, one trybe after another: and loke which trybe so euer the LORDE taketh, the same shall come forth, one kynred after another: and loke which kynred the LORDE taketh, the same shall come forth, one house after another. And loke what house the LORDE taketh, the same shal come forth, one housholder after another. And who so euer is founde in a curse, the same shalbe burnt in the fyre with all that he hath: because he hath gone beyonde the couenauent of the LORDE, and committed folye in Israel.

Then Iosua gat him vp by tymes in the mornynge, and brought forth Israel, one trybe after another, and a trybe of Iuda was taken. And whan he had brought forth the kynreds in Iuda, a kynred of the Serahites was taken. And whan he had brought forth the kynred of the Serahites, one housholde after another, Sabdi was taken. And whā he had brought forth his house, one hous-

holder after another, Achan the sonne of Charimi a sonne of Sabdi the sonne of Serah of the trybe of Iuda, was taken.

And Iosua sayde vnto Achan: My sonne, gene the glory vnto the LORDE the God of Israel, and gene him the prayse, and tell me, what thou hast done, and hide nothinge from me.

Then answered Achan vnto Iosua, and sayde: Verely I haue synned agaynst the LORDE God of Israel, thus & thus haue I done: I saue amonge a spoyle a costly Babilonish garment, and two hundred Syckles of syluer and a tunge of golde, worth fiftye Syckles in weight, vnto the which I had a lust, and toke it: and beholde, it is hyd in the grounde in my tente, and the syluer vnder it.

Then Iosua sent messengers thither, which ranne to the tente, and beholde, it was hyd in his tente, and the syluer vnder it. And they toke it out of the tente, and brought it vnto Iosua, and to all the children of Israel and poured it before the LORDE. Then Iosua and all Israel with him, toke Achan the sonne of Serah with the syluer, the garment and gold tounge, his sonnes and daughters, his oren and asses, and shepe, and all that he had broughte they in to a valley of Achor.

And Iosua sayde: For so moch as thou hast troubled vs, the LORDE trouble the this daye. And all Israel stoned him, and burned him with fyre with all that he had. And whan they had stoned him, they made ouer him a greates heape of stones, which remayneth vnto this daye. (So the LORDE turned from the rigorousnes of his wrath.) Therfore is the same place called a valley of Achor vnto this daye.

The VIII. Chapter.

AND the LORDE saide vnto Iosua: Feare thou not, and be not a frayd. Take all the men of warre with the, and ryse, and get the vp vnto Hai. Beholde, I haue giuen it to thy hande, the kynge of Hai with his people in his cite & countre. And thou shalt do with Hai and the kynge of it, as thou dydest with Jericho and the kynge therof, saynge that ye shal deale amonge you their spoyle & catell: but set thou a preuy watch behynde the cite.

Then Iosua arose, and all a men of warre, to go vp vnto Hai: and Iosua chose thirtie thousande fightinge men, and sent them out by night, and commaunded them, and sayde: Take hede, ye shal be a preuy watch behynde the cite, but go not to farre from the cite, and se that ye be redye altogether. As for me and all the people that is with me, we wyll make vs to the cite. And whan they come forth agaynst vs (as afore) we wyll flye before them, that they maye folowe out after vs, tyll we haue prouoked them forth of the cite: for they shal thinke that we flye before them, ye shal get you vp out of the preuy watch, and wyne the cite. For the LORDE your God shal deliuer it in to your handes. But whan ye haue wonne the cite, set fyre vpon it, doinge accordinge vnto the worde of the LORDE. Beholde, I haue commaunded you.

So Iosua sent them awaye, & they wente vnto the place of the preuy watch, and laye betwixte Bethel and Hai, on the west syde of Hai. But Iosua abode that night amonge the people. And in the mornynge he arose early, and set the people in order, and wente vp with the Elders of Israel before the people rowarde Hai: and all the men of warre that were with him, wente vp, & gat them forth, and came ouer agaynst the cite, and pitched their tentes on the north syde of Hai, so there was but a valley betwene him and Hai.

C He had taken aboute a fyue thousande men, and set them in the hynder watch betwene Bethel and Hai, on the west syde of the cite, and they ordred the people of the whole hoost that was on the north syde of the cite, so that the vttemost of the people reached vnto the west ende of the cite. So Iosua wente the same nighte in to the myddes of the valley.

But whan the kynge of Hai sawe that, he made haist, and gat him vp early, and the men out of the cite, to mete Israel to a battayll, with all his people, euen righte before the felde: for he wist not that there was a preuy watch behynde him on the backe syde of the cite. But Iosua and all Israel were feble before them, and fled by the waye to a wyldernes. Then cried all the people in the cite, that they shulde folowe vpon them, and they folowed after Iosua and rushed out of the cite, so that there remayned not one man in Hai and Bethel, which wente not out to folowe vpon Israel, and they left the cite stondinge open, that they mighte persecute Israel.

Then sayde the LORDE vnto Iosua: Reach out the speare that thou hast in thine hande, towarde Hai: for I wyll deliuer it in to thy hande. And whan Iosua reached out the speare that was in his hande, towarde the cite, a hynder watch brake vp out of their place, and ranne (whan he had stretched out his hande) and came in to the cite, and wanne it, and made haist, & set fyre vpon it. And the men of Hai turned them, and loked behynde them, and the smoke of the cite wente vp towarde heauen, and they had no place to flie vnto, nether hither ner thither: and the people that fled towarde the wyldernes turned aboute, to folowe vpon them.

And whan Iosua and all Israel sawe, the hynder watch had wonne the cite (for the smoke of the cite ascended) they turned agayne, and smote the men of Hai. And they in the cite came forth also agaynst them, so they came in the myddes amonge Israel on both the sydes, and they slewe them, so that there was not one man of them left ouer or escaped: and they toke the kynge of Hai alyue, and broughte him vnto Iosua. And whā Israel had slayne all the inhabitors of Hai, which had folowed vpon them in the felde and in the wyldernes: and whan they were all fallen thorow the edge of the swerde, tyll they were destroyed, the turned all Israel vnto Hai, and smote it with the edge of a swerde. And of all them which fell that daye from man vnto woman, there were twelue thousande, all men of Hai.

But Iosua withdrew not his hande (wher with he reached out the speare) tyll all the inhabitors of Hai were utterly destroyed, saynge the catell and the spoyle of the cite, dyd Israel parte amonge themselves, accordinge vnto the worde of the LORDE, which he commaunded Iosua. And Iosua burned vp Hai and made an heape therof for ever, which is there yet vnto this daye. And the kynge of Hai caused he to be hanged on a tre vntyll the enen.

But whā the Sonne was gone downe, he commaunded to take his body from the tre, and to cast it vnder the gate of the cite, and made vpon him a greate heape of stones, which is there yet vnto this daye.

G Then buylded Iosua an altare vnto the LORDE God of Israel vpon mount Ebal accordinge as Moses the seruauit of J LORDE commaunded the children of Israel, as it is wrytten in the booke of the lawe of Moses euen an altare of whole stone, wherupon there was no yron listad: and he offred burnt-offerings and heath offerings, and there vpon the stones he wrote the seconde lawe of Moses, which he wrote before the children of Israel.

And all Israel with their Elders and officers and iudges, stode on both the sydes of the Arke, right ouer agaynst the prestes & bare the Arke of the couenaunt of the LORDE, the straunger as well as one of them selues, the one halfe besyde mount Gysim, and the other halfe besyde mount Ebal, * as Moses the seruauit of the LORDE commaunded afore, to blesse the people of Israel. Afterwarde caused he to proclame all the wordes of the lawe of the blessinge and cursynge, as it is wrytten in the booke of the lawe. There was not one worde that Moses commaunded, but Iosua caused it to be proclaimed before all the congregacion of Israel, and before the wemen, and children, and strangers which walked amonge them.

The IX. Chapter.

21 When all the kynges that were beyonde Jordane vpon the mountaynes, and in the lowe countrees, & in all the hauens of the greate see, and besyde mount Libanus, herde this (namely, & Zethites, Amorites, Cananites, Phereites, Henites and Jebusites) they gathered the selues together with one acorde, to fighte agaynst Iosua, and agaynst Israel.

But whan the inhabitants of Gibeon herde, what Iosua had done with Jericho and Hai, they dealete craftely, wete on their waie, and made a message, and toke olde sakes vpon their asses, and olderente wyne botels, and olde mended shues vpon their fete, and put on olde and peced garmentes, and all & bried of their vytayles was harde and moulde, and they wente vnto Iosua in to & hoost at Gilgall, and sayde vnto him, and to every man in Israel: We are come out of a farre countre, therfore make now a couenaunt w vs. Then sayde every man in Israel vnto & Zehyite: Peradventure thou dwellest amonge vs, how can I then make a couenaunt with the?

They saide vnto Iosua: We are & seruantes. Iosua sayde vnto them: What are ye, & whence come ye? They sayde: Thy seruantes are come out of a very farre countre, because of the name of the LORDE thy God: for we haue herde the reporte of him, and all that he dyd in Egypte, and all that he dyd vnto the two kynges of the Amorites beyde Jordane, Sihon the kyng at Hesbo, and Og the kyng of Basan, which dwelt at Astaroth. Therfore sayde oure Elders and all the inhabitants of oure countre: Take so de with you for youre iourney, and go meet them, and saye vnto them: We are youre seruantes, therfore make now a bonde with vs: This oure bried that we toke out of oure houses for oure foode, was new whan we toke of iourney toward you: but now lo, it is harde & moulde, And these bottels fylled we new, and lo, they are rote. And these oure dothes and shues are waxed olde, by & reason of the sore longe iourney.

Then the captaines toke their vytayles, and axed not the mouth of the LORDE. And Iosua made peace with them, and set vp a couenaunt with them, that they shulde be saved alyue, and the rulers of the congregacion swore vnto them. But thie dayes after that they had made a couenaunt with them, they herde, that they were their neighbours, and dwelt amonge them: For as the children of Israel wente forth on their iourney, they came on the thirde daye vnto their cities, which are called Gibeon, Caphira, Beeroth, and Cirath Jearim, and smote the not, because that the rulers of the congregacion had swome vnto them by the name of the LORDE the God of Israel.

But whan all the congregacion murmured agaynst the rulers, all the rulers sayde vnto the whole congregacion: We haue swome vnto them by the LORDE the God of Israel, therfore maye we not touch them. But this wil we do vnto them: Let them lyue, that there come no wrath vpon vs, because of the ooth that we haue made vnto them.

And the rulers sayde vnto them: Let them lyue, that they maye be & hewers of wodd and bearers of water for the whole congregacion, as the rulers haue sayde vnto them. Then Iosua called them, and commened with them, and sayde: Wherefore haue ye disceaued vs, and sayde, that ye were farre from vs, where as ye dwell amonge vs? Therfore shall ye be cursed, so that of you there shall not cease seruantes to new wodd and to beare water for the house of my God.

They answered Iosua, & sayde: It was toldethy seruantes, that the LORDE thy God commaunded Moses his seruauit, that he shulde geue you the whole lode, and that he wolde destroye all the inhabitants of the londe before you: therfore were we sore afrayed of oure lyues before you, and thus haue we done. But now lo, we are in thy handes: loke what thou thinkest good and righte to do vnto vs, that do.

And he dyd euen so vnto them, and delyuered them from the children of Israels hande, that they shulde not slaye them. So vpo the same daye Iosua made them hewers of wodd and water bearers for the congregacion, and for the altare of the LORDE vnto this daye, in the place that he shall chose.

The X. Chapter.

Whan Adonisedech the kyng of Jerusalem herde, that Iosua had wonne Hai, and dammed it, and done vnto Hai and & kyng of it, like as he dyd vnto Jericho and to the kyng therof, * and that they of Gibeon had made peace with Israel, and were come vnder them, they were sore afrayed. For Gibeon was a greate cite, like as one of the kynges cities, and greater then Hai, and all the citesyns therof were men of armes. Therfore sent he vnto Hoham the kyng of Hebron, and to Pirea the kyng of Jarmuth, and to Japhia the kyng of Lachis, and to Debir the kyng of Eglon, and caused to saie vnto them: Come vp vnto me, and helpe me, that we maie smyte Gibeon, for they haue made peace with Iosua and the children of Israel. Then came the fyue kynges of the Amorites together, and wente vp, the kyng of Jerusalem, the kyng of Hebron, & kyng of Jarmuth, the kyng of Lachis, the kyng of Eglon, with all their armies, & layed sege vnto Gibeon, and foughte agaynst it.

Howbeit they of Gibeon sent vnto Iosua to Gilgall, and caused to saie vnto him: Withdrowe not thine hande from thy seruantes, come vp soone vnto vs: delyuer and helpe vs, for all the kynges of the Amorites that dwell vpon the mountaynes, are gathered together agaynst vs. Iosua wente vp from Gilgall, and all the warryers and all the men armes with him. And the LORDE sayde vnto Iosua: Seare them not, for I haue geue them in to thy hande. There shall not one of them be able to stonde before the,

So Iosua came sodenly vpon them, for all that night wente he vp from Gilgall. And the LORDE discomfyred the before Israel, and smote them with a greate slaughter at Gibeon: & they chaced them the waie downe to Beth Horon, and smote them vnto Aseta and Makeda.

And whan they fled before Israel, the LORDE wayed downe to Bethoron, the LORDE caused a greate hayle from heauen to fall vpon them, vnto Aseta, so that they dyed: & many mo of them dyed of the hayle, then the children of Israel slewe with the swerde.

Then spake Iosua vnto the LORDE (the same daye that the LORDE gaue ouer the Amorites before the children of Israel) and sayde in the presence of Israel: * Some, holde styll at Gibeon, and thou Moone in the valley of Aialon.

Then the Sonne helde styll, and & Moone stode, vntyll the people had auenged the selues on their enemies. Is not this wrytten in the booke of the righteous? Thus the Sonne stode styll in the myddes of heauen, and dyfferred to go downe for the space of a whole daye after. And there was no daye like vnto this (nether before ner after whan the LORDE hertened vnto the voyce of one man: for the LORDE fought for Israel. And Iosua wente agayne to Gilgall in to the tētes, and all Israel with him. As for the fyue kynges, they were fled, and had hyd the selues in the caue at Makeda.

Then was it tolde Iosua: We haue founde the fyue kynges hyd in the caue at Makeda. Iosua sayde: Rolle greate stones then before the hole of the caue, and set men there to kepe them.

As for you, stonde not ye styll, but folowe after youre enemies, and smyte them behynde, and let them not come in their cities, for the LORDE youre God hath delyuered the in to youre hande. And whan Iosua and & children of Israel had ended the sore greate slaughter vpo them, so & they were broughte to naught, the remnaunt of them came in to the stronge cities.

So all the people came agayne to the hoost vnto Iosua to Makeda in peace, and no man durst moue his tynge agaynst the children of Israel. Iosua sayde: Open the mouth of the caue, and brynge the fyue kynges forth vnto me. They dyd so, and broughte the kynges vnto him out of the caue: the kyng of Jerusalem, the kyng of Hebron, the kyng of Jarmuth, the kyng of Lachis, the kyng of Eglon.

The xij. Chap. Ifo. vij.

When these fyne kynges were broughte forth vnto him, Iosua called euery man of Israel, and sayde vnto the rulers of the men of warre that wente with him: Come forth and treade vpon the neckes of these kynges with youre fete. And they came forth, and trode vpon their neckes with their fete. And Iosua saide vnto them: Be not a frayd, and feare not: be stronge and bolde, for thus shal the LORDE do vnto all yo' enemies, agaynst whom ye fighte.

And Iosua smote them afterwarde, and put them to death, and hanged them vpon fyne trees. And they hanged styll vpon the trees vntill the euenynge. But when the Sonne was gone downe, he commaunded to take them off from the trees: and they cast them in the caue, wherein they had hyd them selues, & before the hole of the caue they layed greete stones, which are there yet vnto this daye. The same daye wanne Iosua Makeda also, and smote it with the edge of the swerde, and the kynges therof, and damned it, and all the soules that were therein, and let none remayne escaped: and dyd vnto the kynges of Makeda as he dyd vnto the kynges of Jericho.

Then Iosua and all Israel with him departed fro Makeda vnto Lybna, & foughte agaynst it. (And the LORDE gaue it with the kynges therof into the hande of Israel) and smote it and all the soules that were therein, with the edge of the swerde, and let not one remayne in it: and dyd vnto the kynges therof as he had done vnto the kynges of Jericho.

Afterwarde wente Iosua and all Israel with him from Lybna vnto Lachis, and layed sege vnto it, and foughte agaynst it. And the LORDE deliuered Lachis also into the hande of Israel, so that they wanne it vpon the seconde daye, and smote it with the edge of the swerde, and all the soules that were therein, accordinge to all as he had done vnto Lybna. At the same tyme Horam the kynges of Gazer wente vp, to helpe Lachis. But Iosua smote him with all his people, tyll there remayned not one.

And Iosua wente with all Israel from Lachis, vnto Eglon, and layed sege vnto it, and foughte agaynst it, and wanne it the same daye, and smote it with the edge of the swerde, and damned all the soules that were therein the same daye, accordinge vnto all as he had done vnto Lachis.

After that wente Iosua with all Israel from Eglon vnto Hebron, and foughte agaynst it, and wanne it, and smote it with the edge of the swerde, and the kynges of it, and all the cities therof, and all the soules that were therein, and let not one remayne, accordinge vnto all as he had done vnto Eglon, and damned it, and all the soules that were therein.

Then turned Iosua agayne with all Israel towarde Debir, and foughte agaynst it, and wanne it, with the kynges of it, and all the cities therof, and smote them with the edge of the swerde, and damned all the soules that were therein, and let not one remayne. Even as he had done vnto Hebron and Lybna with their kynges, so dyd he also vnto Debir, and the kynges therof.

Thus Iosua smote all the londe vpon the mountaynes, and toward the south, and in the lowe countrees, and by the ryuers, with all their kynges, and let not one remayne, and damned all that had breth, as the LORDE God of Israel had commaunded. And Iosua smote them from Cades Bernea vnto Gaza, and all the londe of Gosen vnto Sebeon, and toke all these kynges with their breth at one tyme: for the LORDE God of Israel foughte for Israel. And Iosua went agayne with all Israel to the tentes vnto Gilgal.

The XI. Chapter.

When Jabin the kynges of Asor heard this, he sent vnto Jobab the kynges of Madon and to the kynges of Samron, and to the kynges of Achsaph, and to the kynges that dwelt toward the mountaynes, and in the playne on the southsyde of Cineroth, and in the lowe countrees, and in the lordshippes of Dor by the see syde: and to the Cananites toward the east and west, to the Amorites, Hethites, Pherezites, and Jebusites, vpon the mountaynes, and to the Hivites, vnder mount Hermon in the londe of Mispa. These were out with all their armies, a greete people, as many as the soude of the see, and exceeding many horses and charettes. All these kynges gathered the selues, and came, and pitched together by the water of Meram, to fighte with Israel.

And the LORDE sayde vnto Iosua: Feare them not, for tomorrow aboute this tyme wil I deliuer them all slayne, before the children of Israel: thou shalt lame their horses, and burne their charettes with fire. And Iosua came sodenly vpon them, and all the men of warre with him by the water of Merom, & fell vpon them. And the LORDE deliuered them into the handes of Israel, and they smote them, and chased them vnto greete Gilgal.

and to the warme water, and to the playne of Mispa toward the east, and smote them, vntill there remayned not one.

Then dealete Iosua with them as the LORDE had saide vnto him, & lamed their horses, & bent their charettes. And he returned backe at the same tyme, & wanne Hazor, & smote the kynges of it with the swerde, for Hazor was a fore tyme the head cite of all these kyngdomes, and smote all the soules that were therein with the edge of the swerde, and damned it, & let nothinge remayne that had breth, & damned Hazor with fyre. All the cities of these kyngdomes wanne Iosua also, and smote them with the edge of the swerde, and damned them, accordinge as Moses the seruaunt of the LORDE commaunded.

Howbeit the cities that stode vpon the hilles, dyd not the children of Israel burne with fyre: but Hazor onely dyd Iosua burne. And all the spoyles of these cities and the catell, dyd the children of Israel deale amonge them, but smote all the men with the edge of the swerde, tyll they had destroyed them, and let nothinge remayne that had breth. As the LORDE commaunded his seruaunt Moses, and as Moses commaunded Iosua, even so dyd Iosua, so that there was nothinge vndone of all that the LORDE commaunded Moses.

So Iosua toke all this lode vpon the mountaynes, & all the lyeth toward the south, & all the londe of Gosen, and the lowe countree, & the playne felde, and the mountayne of Israel with the valley therof, from the mountayne that parteth the londe vnto the southward, vnto Baalgad, in the playne of mount Libanus beneth mount Hermon. All their kynges toke he, and smote them, and put them to death. Howbeit he warred a longe season with these kynges.

Yet was there not one cite, that yelved it selfe peaceably vnto the children of Israel (excepte the Hivites, which dwelt at Gibeon) but they wanne them all with battayll. And this was done so of the LORDE that their hert was so hardened, to come agaynst the children of Israel with battayll, & they mighte be dāned, & no fauoure to be shewed vnto them, but to be destroyed, as the LORDE commaunded Moses.

At the same tyme came Iosua, and roted out the Enakims from the mountayne, from Hebron, from Debir, from Anab, from every mountayne of Juda, and from every mountayne of Israel, and damned them with their cities, and let none of the Enakims remayne.

ne in the londe of the children of Israel, save at Gaza, at Gath, at Asdod, there remayned of them.

Thus Iosua conquered all the londe accordinge vnto all as the LORDE sayde vnto Moses, & gaue it vnto Israel to enheritaunce, vnto euery trybe his poicion, and they loned from warre.

The XII. Chapter.

These are the kynges of the londe, whom the children of Israel smote, & conquered their lode, beyonde Jordane, eastward, fro the water of Arnon, vnto mount Hermon, and vnto all the playne felde toward the east: Sihon the kynges of the Amorites, which dwelt at Heshbon, and had dominion from Aroer that lieth by the water syde of Arnon, and vnto the myddes of the water: and ouer halfe Gilead, vnto the water of Jabok, which is the border of the children of Ammon: and ouer the playne felde, vnto the see of Cynmeroth eastward, and vnto the see of the playne felde, namely the Salt see toward the east, the waye vnto Beth Jesimoth: and from the south beneth by the ryuers of mount Pisga.

And the border of Og the kynges of Basan, which remayned yet of Raphaim, and dwelt at Astaroth and Edrei, and had the dominion ouer mount Hermon, ouer Salcha, and ouer all Basan vnto the border of Geshur & Maachati, & of halfe Gilead, which was the border of Sihon the kynges at Heshbon. Moses the seruaunt of the LORDE and the children of Israel smote them. And Moses the seruaunt of the LORDE gaue it vnto the Rubenites, Gadites and to the halfe trybe of Manasse in possession.

These are the kynges of the lode, whom Iosua & the children of Israel smote on this syde Jordane westward, fro Baalgad vnto the playne of mount Libanus, vnto the mount that parteth the londe vnto the southward, vnto Seir, & that Iosua gaue vnto the trybes of Israel in possession, vnto euery one his parte, what so ener was in 3 mountaynes, valleyes, playne felde, by the ryuers, in 3 wyldernesces 2 towarde the south, the Gethites, Amorites, Cananites, Phereites, Hevites, and Jebusites.

C The kynge of Jericho, the kynge of Hai, which lyeth besyde Bethel, the kynge of Jerusalem, the kynge of Hebron, the kynge of Jarmoth, the kynge of Lachis, the kynge of Eglon, the kynge of Geser, the kynge of Debir, the kynge of Geder, the kynge of Horma, the kynge of Arad, 3 kynge of Libna, the kynge of Adulla, the kynge of Maabada, the kynge of Bethel, the kynge of Tappuah, the kynge of Hephher, the kynge of Apheth, the kynge of Lasaron, the kynge of Madan, the kynge of Hasor, the kynge of Simron Meron, the kynge of Achsaph, the kynge of Tehenah, the kynge of Megido, the kynge of Cades, the kynge of Jakneam by Carmel, the kynge in the lordshippes of Dor, the kynge of the Heithen at Gilgall, the kynge of Thirza. These are one and thirte kynges.

The XIII. Chapter.

A Now whan Josua was olde and wel stricken in age, the LORDE sayde vnto him: Thou art olde 2 well aged, and there remaineth yet moch of the londe to conquere, namely all Galile of the philistynes, and all Gessuri, from Sihon which floweth before Egipte, vnto the border of Ekron, northwarde, which is rekened vnto the Cananites: fyue lordes of the philistynes, namely, the Gassites, the Asdodites, the Ascalonites, the Gethites, the Ekronites 2 the Hanites. But from the north it is all 3 londe of the Cananites, and Maara of the Sidonians vnto Apheth, euen vnto the border of the Amorites. Moreover the londe of the Gilytes eastwarde, from Baalgad vnder mount Hermon, tyll a ma come vnto Hamath. All they that dwell vpon the mount, from Libanus vnto the warme waters, and all the Sidonians. I wyl dryue them out before the children of Israel: Onely let them be dealte out amonge Israel, as I haue commaunded the.

B Denyde thou this lode now to enheritaunce amonge the nyne trybes and 3 halfe trybe of Manasse. For the Rubenites 2 Gad dices with 3 halfe trybe of Manasse, haue receaved their enheritaunce, which Moses gaue the beyonde Jordane Eastwarde, accordinge as Moses the seruaunt of the LORDE gaue them the same, from Aroer which lieth vpon the water syde of Arnon, and the cite in the myddes of the water, 2 all the coaste of Medba vnto Dibon, and all the cities of Sihon the kynge of the Amorites, which dwelt at Heshbon, vnto the border of the children of Ammon: and Gilead and 3 border of Gessuri and Maachati, and all mount Hermon, and all Basan vnto Salcha: all 3 kyngdome of Og at Basan, which dwelt at Astaroth and Edrei, that remained yet ouer of Raphaim. But Moses smote them and drewe them out.

The children of Israel drewe not out the Gessurites 2 Maachathites, but both Gessur and Maachath dwell amonge the children of Israel vnto this daye. But vnto 3 trybe of the Leuites he gaue no enheritaunce: for the offeringe of the LORDE God of Israel is their enheritaunce, accordinge as he hath promysed them.

So Moses gaue vnto the trybe of 3 children of Ruben after their kynreds, so that their border was Aroer, which lyeth vpon the water syde of Arnon, and the cite in the myddes of the same water, with all the playne felde vnto Medba: Heshbon, and all the cities therof which lyeth in the playne felde: Dibon, Bamoth Baal, 2 Beth Baal Meon, Jahza, Kedemoth, Mephath, Kiriathaim, Sibama, Zeretha Sahar, vpon mount Emet, Beth Peor: the ryuers by Pysga, and Beth Jesimoth, and all the cities vpon the playne, and all the realme of Sihon kynge of the Amorites, which dwelt at Heshbon, whom Moses smote with the prynces of Midian, Eui, Rekem, Zur, Hur, 2 Reba, the mightemen of kynge Sihon, which were inhabitors of the londe. And Balaam the sonne of Beor the prophecier, dyd the children of Israel kill with the swerde amonge the other that were slayne: and the border of 3 childre of Ruben was Jordane. This is the enheritaunce of the children of Ruben amonge their kynreds, cities and villages.

Vnto the trybe of the children of Gad amonge their kynreds gaue Moses, so that their border was, Jahesar and all the cities in Gilead, and the halfe londe of the children of Ammon, vnto Aroer, which lyeth before Rabbath: and from Heshbon vnto Ramath Mispe 2 Betomim: and fro Mahanaim vnto the border of Debir. But in the valley, Beth Haram, Beth Nimra, Sicho and Zaphon (which remaind yet of the realme of Sihon kynge of Heshbon) and was by Jordane, vnto the edge of the see of Syneroth, on this syde Jordane eastwarde.

This is the inheritaunce of the children of Gad in their kynreds, cities 2 villagyes.

Vnto the halfe trybe of the children of Manasse after their kynreds, gaue Moses, so that their border was fro Mahanaim, all Basan, all the kyngdome of Og kynge of Basan, and all the townes of Jair which lyeth in Basan, namely thre score cities. And halfe Gilead, Astaroth, Edrei, the cities of the kyngdome of Og at Basan, vnto the children of Machir the sonne of Manasse. This is the halfe porcion of the children of Machir after their kynreds.

This is it that Moses dealte out vpon the felde of Moab beyonde Jordane ouer agaynst Jericho eastwarde. But vnto 3 trybe of Levi gaue Moses no enheritaunce: for the LORDE God of Israel is their enheritaunce, as he hath promysed them.

The XIII. Chapter.

A This is it that the children of Israel haue enhereted in the londe of Canaan, which Eleazar the priest, and Josua the sonne of Nun, and the chiefe of the fathers amonge the trybes of the children of Israel parted out amonge them. But by lot dyd they denyde it out amonge them, accordinge as the LORDE comaunded Moses to geue vnto the nyne trybes and 3 halfe: vnto the two trybes and the halfe dyd Moses geue enheritaunce beyonde Jordane. But vnto the Leuites he gaue no enheritaunce amonge them. For of the childre of Joseph there were two trybes, Manasses and Ephraim. Therfore gaue they the Leuites no porcion in the londe, but cities, to dwell therein, and suburbs for their catell and goodes. Euen as the LORDE commaunded Moses, so dyd the childre of Israel, and denyded the londe.

B Then came forth the children of Juda to Josua at Gilgall: and Caleb 3 sonne of Jephunne the Kenisite sayde vnto him: Thou knowest what 3 LORDE sayde vnto Moses the man of God, concerninge me and the land Cades Bernea. I was fortye yeare olde, whan Moses the seruaunt of the LORDE sent me out from Cades Bernea, to spye out the londe, and I broughte him worde agayne, euen as I had it in my hert. Howbeit my brethren that wente vpon with me, discoraged the hert of the people: but I folowed 3 LORDE my God vnto the vttemost.

C Then swore Moses vnto me the same daye, and sayde: The londe wher vpon thou hast troden with thy fote, shalbe thine enheritaunce and thy childrens for ever, becau se thou hast folowed the LORDE my God vnto the vttemost. And now hath the LORDE letten me lyue, accordinge as he sayde. It is now fyue and fortie yeare sence 3 LORDE spake this vnto Moses, whan Israel walced in the wyldernesse. And now lo, this daie am I fyue and foure score yeare olde, and am yet as stronge to daye, as I was in that daye whan Moses sent me out: euen as my strength was then, so is it now also to fight, and to go out and in.

Gene me now therfore this mountayne, wherof the LORDE spake in that daye, and thou herdest it the same daye: for now the Enakims dwell thereon, and it hath greates and stronge cities: yf happily the LORDE wyl be with me, that I maye dryue the out, as he hath sayde. Then Josua blessed him, and so gaue Hebron vnto Caleb the sonne of Jephunne. Therfore was Hebron the enheritaunce of Caleb the sonne of Jephunne the Kenisite, vnto this daye, because he folowed the LORDE God of Israel vnto the vttemost. But afore tyme was Hebron called Kiriatharba, 2 greates people were there amonge the Enakims. And the lode ceased from warre.

The XV. Chapter.

A Zelot of the trybe of the children of Juda amonge their kynreds, was 3 coaste of Edom by the wyldernesse of Zin, which bowdeth southwarde on the edge of the south countrees. Their south borders were from the vttemost syde of the salt see, that is, from the coast that goeth southwarde, and commeth out from thence towarde 3 eastsyde of Acrabbim, and goeth forth thorow Zinna, and yet goeth vpon from the south towarde Cades Bernea, and goeth thorow Heshon, and goeth vnto Adara, 2 fetcheth a compase aboute Carcaa, 2 goeth thorow Asmona, and commeth forth to the ryuer of Egipte, so that the see is the ende of 3 border. Let this be youre border southwarde.

But the east border is from the salt see to the vttemost parte of Jordane.

The border northwarde, is from the see coast which is on 3 edge of Jordane, and goeth vnto Beth Hagla, and stretcheth out from the north vnto Betharaba, and commeth vpon vnto the stone of Bohan the sonne of Ruben, and goeth vpon vnto Debir from 3 valley of Achor, and from the north coaste that is towarde Gilgall, which lyeth ouer agaynst Adumim vponwarde, which is on the north syde of the water. Then goeth

leg. 1. b
it vnto 3 water of Ensemes, and commeth out vnto the well of Rogell. Then goeth it vp to the valley of the sonne of Hinnam, a longe besyde the Jebusite that dwelleth from 3 southwarde, that is Jerusalem: and commeth vp vnto the toppe of the mount which lyeth before the valley of Hinnam from the westwarde, that bordereth on the edge of the valley of Raphaim towarde the north.

C Then commeth it from the toppe of the same mount vnto the water well of Ephraim, and commeth out vnto the cities of mount Ephraim, and boweth towarde Baala, that is Kiriat Jarim, and fetcheth a compass aboute from Baala westwarde vnto mount Seir, and goeth by the north syde of the mount Jarim, that is Chessalon: and cometh downe to Bethsemes, and goeth thorow Thinnia, and breaketh out on the north syde of Acron, and stretcheth forth towarde Sicron, and goeth ouer mount Baala, and commeth cut vnto Jabuel: so that their remotest border is the see.

The weste border is the greatesee. This is the border of the children of Juda rounde aboute in their kynreds. Caleb the sonne of Jephune had his porcion geue him amonge the children of Juda (as the LORDE commaunded Iosua) namely Kiriat Harba of the father of Enak, that is Hebron.

D And Caleb droue from thence the three sonnes of Enak, Sesai, Ahiman, and Thalmas begotten of Enak. And from thence he wente vp to the inhabitants of Debir. (As for Debir, it was called Kiriat Sepher aforetyme.) And Caleb sayde: Who so smyth Kiriat Sepher and wynneth it, I wyll geue him my daughter Achsa to wyfe. Then Achiel the sonne of Kenas the brother of Caleb wanne it: and he gaue him his daughter Achsa to wyfe.

And it fortuneth when they wente in, that she was counceled of hir housbande, to are a pece of londe of hir father. And she fell downe from the asse. Then sayde Caleb vnto her: What ayleth the? She sayde: Geue me a blessinge, for thou hast geue me a south (and drye) londe: geue me welles of water also. Then gaue he her welles aboue and beneath.

E This is the enheritaunce of the trybe of Juda amonge their kynreds. And the cities of the trybe of the children of Juda, from one to another by the coastes of the Edomites towarde the south, were these: Cabzeel, Eder, Jagur, Kina, Dimona, Adada, Bedes, Hazor, Jethnam, Siph, Telem, Beilot, Hazor Hadatha, Kirioth Hezron that is Hazor: Ama, Sema, Molada, Hazor Gad, Hesmon, Beth palet, Hazer Sual, Beer Seba, Bisiochia, Baala, Jim, Azem, Elcho lad, Chesil, Harma, Ziklag, Madmanna, San Sana, Lebaoth, Silhim, Ain, Rim. These are nyne and twenty cities and their villages.

But in the lowe countrees was Esthad, Zaren, Asna, Saruah, Engannim, Chapuah, Enam, Jarmoth, Adullam, Socho, Asela, Saaraim, Abithaim, Gedera, Giderothaim. These are fourtene cities and their villages.

Zena Hadasa, Migdal Gad, Dilean, Mip, Jachiel, Lachis, Bazerath, Eglon, Chibon, Lachma, Chithlis, Gedoroth, Beth Dagon, Naama, Makeda. These are sixtene cities and their villages.

Libna, Ether, Asen, Jephthah, Asna, Nezib, Keila, Achis, Maresa. These are nyne cities and their villages. Ekron with hir daughters and villages. From Ekron vnto the see, all that reacheth vnto Asdod and the villages therof. Asdod with the daughters and villages therof. Gasa with hir daughters and villages vnto the water of Egypte. And the greatesee is his border.

But vpon the mount was Samir, Jattir, Socho, Danna, Kiriat Sanna, that is Debir: Anab, Esthem, Annim, Gosen, Holon, Giló. These are eleven cities and their villages. Maon, Carmel, Siph, Iuta, Jifar, Jachiel, Sandoah, Kain, Gibe, Thinnia. These are ten cities and their villages. Halhul, Bethzur, Gedor, Maarath, Beth Anoth, Elhek. These are six cities and their villages. Kiriat Baal (that is Kiriat Jearim) Harabba, two cities and their villages. And in the wyldernes was Betharaba, Middin, Sedacha, Nibsan, and the Salt cite, and Engabdi. These are six cities and their villages. But the Jebusites dwelt at Jerusalem, and the children of Juda coude not drye them awaye. So the Jebusites remayne with the children of Juda at Jerusalem vnto this daye.

The XVI. Chapter.

U And the lot fell vnto the children of Ephraim fro Jordane ouer agaynst Jericho, vnto the water on the east syde of Jericho, and the wyldernes, 3 goeth vp from Jericho thorow the mountayne of Bethel, and commeth out from Bethel vnto Lus, and goeth thorow the coast of Ararat, and stretcheth downe westwarde de vnto 3 coaste of Japhleti to 3 border of the lower Bethoron, and vnto Gaser: and the endetherof is by the greatesee. This the children of Joseph (Manasses and Ephraim) receaued to enheritaunce.

B The Border of the children of Ephraim amonge their kynreds of their enheritaunce from the east, was Ataroth Adar vnto the upper Bethoron, and goeth out westwarde by Michmethath that lyeth towarde the north, there fetcheth it a compass towarde the east syde of the cite Thaanath Silo, and goeth there thorow from the east vnto Janoha, and commeth downe from Janoha vnto Ataroth and Maaratha, and bordereth on Jericho, and goeth out at Jordane. From Chapuah goeth it westwarde vnto Naalkama, and the out goinge of it is at the see.

This is the enheritaunce of the trybe of the children of Ephraim amonge their kynreds. And all the borders, cities with their villages of the childre of Ephraim laye scattered amonge the enheritaunce of the children of Manasse. And they droue not out 3 Cananites, which dwelt at Gaser. So 3 Cananites remayned amonge Ephraim vnto this daye, and became tributaries.

The XVII. Chapter.

U And the lot fell vnto the trybe of Manasse (for he is Josephs first sonne) and it fell vpon Machir the first sonne of Manasse 3 father of Gilead: for he was a man of armes, therefore had he Gilead and Basan. It fell also vnto the other children of Manasse, namely vnto 3 childre of Abiezer, the children of Helek, the children of Asriel, the children of Sedech, the children of Jephther, and the children of Semida: These are the childre of Manasse the sonne of Joseph, males, amonge their kynreds.

But Zelaphead the sonne of Jephther the sonne of Gilead, the sonne of Machir, the sonne of Manasse, had no sonnes, but daughters, and their names are these: Mahala, Noa, Hagla, Milca, Tirza, and they came before Eleazar the prest, and before Iosua the sonne of Nun, and before the rulers, and sayde: The LORDE commaunded Moses, to geue vs enheritaunce amonge oure brethren. And so they had enheritaunce geuen them amonge their fathers brethren, accordinge to the commandement of the LORDE.

B There fell vpon Manasse ten meetynes without the londe of Gilead and Basan, which lyeth beynde Jordane. For 3 daughters of Manasse receaued enheritaunce amonge his sonnes: but the other children of Manasse had the londe of Gilead. And the border of Manasse was fro Aser forth vnto Michmethath, that lyeth before Sichem, and reacheth vnto the righte syde of them of En Tapuah: for the londe of Tapuah fell vnto Manasse, and the border of Manasse is vnto the childre of Ephraim. Then commeth it downe to Naalkama towarde the south syde of the ryuer cities, which are Ephraims amonge the cities of Manasse. But from the north is the border of Manasse by the ryuer, and goeth forth by the see syde, southwarde vnto Ephraim, and to Manasse northwarde, and the see is his coaste. And it shal border on Aser from the north, and on Isachar from the east.

C So (amonge Isachar and Aser) Manasses had Beth Sean and the townes therof, and Jebelaam and the townes therof, and them of Dor and their townes, and them of En Dor and their townes, and them of Taanach and their townes, and them of Maggedo and their townes, and the thirde parte of (the cite) Nophet. And the children of Manasse coude not drye awaye the inhabitants of these cities, but the Cananites beganne to dwell in the same londe. Howbeit when the children of Israel were able, they made the Cananites tributaries, and droue them not out.

Then spake the children of Joseph vnto Iosua, and sayde: Wherfore hast thou geue me but one porcion and one meetlyne of enheritaunce, and I am yet a greatesee people, as the LORDE hath blessed me so largely? Then sayde Iosua vnto them: For so moch as thou art a greatesee people, go vp therefore into 3 wodd, and make thy selfe a re in the londe of the pherites and Raphaim, for the pherites and Raphaim, seyng mozt Ephraim is to narrowe for the.

D Then sayde the children of Joseph: We shal not be able to attayne vnto the mountaynes, for there are yron charettes amonge all the Cananites, that dwell in the londe of Emet, by whom lyeth Beth Sean and the villages therof, and Israhel in Emet. Iosua sayde vnto the house of Joseph, euen to Ephraim and Manasse: Thou art a greatesee people, and for so moch as thou art so greatesee, thou must not haue one lot, but the mountayne where 3 wodd is, shal be thine rote 3 out for 3, so shal it be the outgoinge of thy porcion, whan thou dryuest out the Cananites, which haue y<sup>e</sup> charrettes, & are mightie.

The XVIII. Chapter.

All the multitude of the children of Israel gathered them selues together vnto Silo, and they set vp & Tabernacle of witnesse, and the londe was subdued vnto them. But there were yet seven trybes of the childre of Israel, vnto whom they had not deuyled their enheritaunce. And Iosua sayde vnto the children of Israel: How longe are ye so slowe, to go and conquer the londe, which the LORDE God of youre fathers hath geuen you: Chose you thie men out of euery trybe, & I maye sende them, and that they maye get them vp and go thorow the londe, and descrybe it accordinge to the enheritaunces therof, and come vnto me.

Denyde the londe in seven partes. Judas shal remayne vpon his borders of the south syde, and the house of Ioseph shal remayne vpon his borders of the north parte: but descrybe ye the londe in seven partes, and brynge them vnto me, then shal I cast & lot for you before the LORDE our God. * For the Leuites haue no porcion amonge you, but the priesthode of the LORDE is their enheritaunce. As for Gad & Ruben and & halfe trybe of Manasse, they haue receaued their enheritaunce beyonde Iordane eastwarde, which Moses the seruante of the LORDE gaue them.

Then the men gat vp, to go their waye. And whan they were aboute to go for to descrybe the londe, Iosua commaunded them, and sayde: Go youre waye, and walke thorow the londe, and descrybe it, and come agayne vnto me, that I maye cast & lot for you before the LORDE at Silo. So the men departed, and wente thorow the londe, and descrybed it in seven partes vpon a letter accordinge to the cities, and came to Iosua in to the hoost at Silo. Then Iosua cast the lot ouer them at Silo before the LORDE, and there distributed the londe amonge the children of Israel, vnto euery one his parte.

And the lot of the trybe of the children of Ben Jamin fell accordinge to their kynreds, and the border of their lot wente out betwene the children of Iuda & the children of Ioseph. And their border was on & north quarter of Iordane, and goeth vp from the north syde of Jericho, and commeth vp to the mountayne westwarde, and goeth out by the wyldernes of Bethanien, and goeth from thence towarde Lus, euen by the south syde of Lus (that is Bethel) and commeth downe vnto Ataroth Adar by the mountayne which lyeth on & south syde of the lone Bethoron. Then boweth it downe, and stretcheth a compasse vnto the south west quarter from the mount that lyeth ouer agaynst Bethoron towarde the south, and goeth out vnto Ririath Baal, & is Ririath Jearim, a cite of the children of Iuda. This is the west border.

But the south border is from Ririath Jearim forth, and goeth out towarde the west, and commeth forth vnto & water well of Nephtoa: and goeth downe by the edge of the mount, that lyeth before the valley of the sonne of Hinnam: and goeth downe thorow the valley of Hinnam on & south syde of the Jebusites, and commeth downe to the well of Rogell, and stretcheth from the northwarde, and commeth out vnto the Simes, and commeth forth to the heapes that lie vp towarde Adummim, and cometh downe vnto the stone of Bohen the sonne of Ruben, and goeth a longe besyde & playne felde which lyeth northwarde, and commeth downe vnto & playne felde, and goeth besyde Beth Hagla that lyeth towarde the north, and his ende is at the north border of the Salt see, vnto & edge of Iordane southwarde. This is the south border.

But Iordane shal be the ende of the east quarter. This is the enheritaunce of & children of Ben Jamin in their borders rounde aboute, amonge their kynreds.

The cities of the trybe of the children of Ben Jamin amonge their kynreds are these: Jericho, Beth Hagla, Emek Keziz, Betha raba, Zemaraim, Bethel, Aum, Haphar, Aphra, Caphar Amonai, Aphni, Gaba: these are twelue cities and their vyllages.

Gibeon, Rama, Beeroth, Mispa, Caphtara, Moza, Rekem, Jeerpeel, Thareala, Zela, Eleph, and the Jebusites, that is Jerusalem, Gibeath, Ririath: these are fourten cities and their vyllages. This is the enheritaunce of the children of Ben Jamin in their kynreds.

The XIX. Chapter.

Then fell the seconde lot of the trybe of the children of Simeon accordinge to their kynreds, and their enheritaunce was amonge the enheritaunce of & children of Iuda. * And to their enheritaunce they had Beer Seba, Molada, Hazar Sual, Baala, Azem, El Tholad, Bethel,

Hama, Zilag, Betha Markaboth, Hazar Sussa, Beth Lebaorth, and Sarubben: these are thirtene cities & their vyllages. Ain, Rimmon, Ether, Asan: these are foure cities and their vyllages. And all & vyllages that lie aboute the cities vnto Balath Beer Ramath towarde the south. This is the enheritaunce of the trybe of the children of Simeon in their kynreds: for the enheritaunce of the children of Simeon is vnder the porcion of the children of Iuda. For so much as the enheritaunce of the children of Iuda was to greate for them, therfore inhereted the children of Simeon amonge their enheritaunce.

The thirde lot fell vpon the childre of Zabulon after their kynreds. And the border of their enheritaunce was vnto Sarid, & goeth vp westwarde to Mareala, & bordieth vpon Dabath, and reacheth vnto the ryuer that floweth ouer agaynst Jakneam: & turneth from Sarid eastwarde vnto the border of Cisloth Thabor, and cometh out vnto Dabath, and reacheth vp to Japia, and from thence goeth it westwarde thorow Githa Zepher, and Jcha Razim, and commeth out towarde Rimmon, Hamthoar Hanea, & stretcheth a compasse aboute from the north vnto Nathon, & the goynge out of it is in & valley Jephtha El, Karath, Nahalal, Simron, Jedaala, & Bethlehem: These are twelue cities and their vyllages. This is the enheritaunce of the childre of Zabulon in their kynreds: these are their cities and vyllages.

The fourth lot fell vpon the childre of Issachar after their kynreds, & their border was Issachar, Chesulloth, Sunem, Hapharaim, Sion, Anaharath, Raabith, Rision, Abes, Ramoth, En Ganim, Enhada, Beth Pazez, & bordieth vpon Thabor, Sahazima, Beth Sames, and & outgoinge of it was at Iordane. These are sixtene cities and their vyllages. This is the enheritaunce of the trybe of the children of Issachar in their kynreds, cities and vyllages.

The fifth lot fell vpon the trybe of the children of Affer, after their kynreds. And their border was Zekath, Zali, Beten, Achsaph, Alamelech, Amead, Misael, and bordieth on Carmel vnto the see, and on Sihor, and Libnath, and turneth towarde the east vnto Beth Dagon, and bordieth on Zabulon, and on the valley of Jephthael, and towarde the north syde of Beth Emek and Megiel: & commeth out vnto Cabul on the west syde of Ebron, Rehob, Hamon and Canan, vnto greate Sidon. And turneth to, & warderama, vnto the stronge cite of Zor, and turneth towarde Hossa, and goeth out vnto the see, after & eltyne towarde Achsib, Dma, Aphet, Rehob.

These are two and twentye cities and their vyllages. This is the enheritaunce of the trybe of the children of Affer in their kynreds cities and vyllages.

The syxte lot fell vpon the children of Nephthali in their kynreds. And their border was fro Zephthai Elon thozow Zaanaim, Abai Neteb, Jabneel vnto Lakum, and goeth out vnto Iordane, and turneth westwarde to Asnoth Thabor, and cometh out from thence vnto Hukok, and bordieth on Zabulon towarde the south, and on Affer towarde the west, and on Iuda by Iordane towarde the east: and hath stronge cities, Zidimzer, Hamath Rakath, Chinnaret, Adama, Rama, Hazor, Kedes, Edrei, En Hazor, Jereon, Migdal Elhar, Beth Anath, Beth Sames. These are nyentene cities and their vyllages. This is the enheritaunce of & trybe of the children of Nephthali in their kynreds, cities, and vyllages.

The seventh lot fell vpon the trybe of the children of Dan after their kynreds. And the border of their enheritaunce was Zarea, Esthaol, Irfames, Saalabin, Aialon, Jerhla, Elon, Thinnata, Et ron, Elchete, Gibeath Baalath, Jehud, Bnerbarak, Gat Rimmon, Me Jarkon, Rakon with the border by Japho, and on the same goeth the border of the children of Dan out. And the children of Dan wente vp, and foughte agaynst Lesem, and wanne it, and smote it with the edge of the swerde, and toke it in possession, & dwelt therein, and called it Dan, after & name of their father. This is the enheritaunce of the trybe of the children of Dan in their kynreds, cities, and vyllages.

And wha & lode was all parted out with the borders therof, the children of Israel gaue Iosua the some of Lun, an enheritaunce amonge them, and (accordinge to the commaundement of the LORDE) they gaue him & cite that he requyred, namely, Thinnath Serah, vpon mount Ephraim: there buylded he the cite, and dwelt therein.

These are the enheritaunces which Eleasar the prest and Iosua & sonne of Lun, and the chiefe of the fathers amonge & tribes, deuided out by lot vnto the childre of Israel at Silo before the LORDE, euen before the doore of the Tabernacle of wytnes, and so they ended the deuylinge out of the londe.

The booke of Iosua.

The XX. Chapter.

And the LORDE spake vnto Iosua, and sayde: Speake to the children of Israel: Geue amonge you fre cities, wherof I spake vnto you by Moses, that a deed-slayer which sleyleth a soule vnawarres and unwittingly, maye flye thither, & they maye be fre amonge you from the avenger of bloude. And he that flyeth to one of those cities, shal stonde without before the porte of the cite, and shewe his cause before the Elders of the cite, then shall they take him to them in to the cite, and geue him place to dwell with them.

B And yf the auenger of bloude folowe vpon him, they shall not deliuer the deed-slayer in to his handes, for so moch as he hath slayne his neighbour vnawarres, and was not his enemye afore: but he shall dwell in y cite, tyll he stonde before the congregacion in iudgment, vntill the hye prest dye, which shall be at that tyme. Then shall the deed-slayer returne, and go vnto his awne cite, and vnto his house to the cite, from whence he was fled.

C Then appoynted they Kedesh in Galile vpon mount Nephthali, and Sechem vpon mount Ephraim, and Biriatharba, that is Hebion vpon mount Iuda. And beynde Jordane on the east syde of Jericho, they gaue Beser in the wilderness vpon the playne cut of the trybe of Ruben, and Ramoth in Gilead out of the trybe of Gad, and Golan in Basan out of the trybe of Manasse.

These were the cities appoynted for all y children of Israel, and for the straungers which dwelt amonge them, that whosoener had slayne a soule vnawarres, might flye thither, that he shulde not be put to death by the auenger of bloude, tyll he had stonde before the congregacion.

The XXI. Chapters.

And then the chiefe fathers amonge the Levites came forth vnto Eleasar the prest and to Iosua the sonne of Nun, and to y awncient fathers amonge the trybes of the children of Israel, and spake vnto them at Silo in the londe of Canaan, and sayde: * The LORDE commaunded by Moses, that we shulde haue cities geuen vs to dwell in, and the suburbs of the same for oure catell. Then the children of Israel gaue of their inheritaunce these cities and the suburbs therof, vnto the Levites, accordyng to the commaundement of the LORDE.

The xxi. Chap.

And the lot fell vpon the kynred of the Rahathites, and the children of Aaron the prest amonge the Levites, had by the lot thytene cities of the trybe of Iuda, of the trybe of Simeon, and of the trybe of Ben Jamin. The other children of Rahath of the same kynred, had by the lot ten cities, of the trybe of Ephraim, of the trybe of Dan, and of the halfe trybe of Manasse.

But the children of Gerson of the same kynred had by the lot thytene cities, of the trybe of Issachar, of the trybe of Asser, of y trybe of Nephthali, and of the halfe trybe of Manasse at Basan.

The children of Merari of their kynred had twolue cities, of the trybe of Ruben, of the trybe of Gad, and of the trybe of Zabulon. So the children of Israel gaue these cities and their suburbs vnto the Levites by lot, as the LORDE commaunded by Moses.

Of the trybe of the children of Iuda, and of the trybe of the children of Simeon, they gaue these cities (which they named by name) vnto the children of Aaron of the kynred of the Rahathites amonge the children of Levi: for the first lot was the yre.

So they gaue them Biriatharba, which was the fathers of Enak, that is Hebion vpon the mount Iuda, and the suburbs therof rounde aboute. * But the felde of the cite and the vyllages therof, gaue they vnto Caleb the sonne of Jephune for his possession.

Thus gaue they vnto the children of Aaron the prest, the fre cite of the deed-slayers, Hebion and the suburbs therof, Libna and the suburbs therof, Jathir and the suburbs therof, Esthuma and the suburbs therof, Holon and the suburbs therof, Debir, and the suburbs therof, Ain and the suburbs therof, Iuta and the suburbs therof, Beth Semes and the suburbs therof, cunynne cities of these two trybes.

But of the trybe of Ben Jamin they gaue foure cities, Gibeon and y suburbs therof, Gaba, and the suburbs therof, Anathot and the suburbs therof, Almon and the suburbs therof: so that all the cities of the children of Aaron the prest were thirtene with their suburbs.

The kynreds of the other children of Rahath the Levites, had by their lot foure cities, of the trybe of Ephraim, and they gaue the fre cite of the deed-slayers, Seche and the suburbs therof vpon mount Ephraim Gaser and the suburbs therof, Ruben and the suburbs therof, Bethron and the suburbs therof.

Of the trybe of Dan foure cities, Elche and y suburbs therof, Gibthon and the suburbs therof, Aialon and the suburbs therof, Gath Rimon and the suburbs therof. Of the halfe trybe of Manasses two cities, Chaenach and the suburbs therof, Gath Rimon and the suburbs therof: so that all the cities of the other children of y kynred of Rahath, were ten with their suburbs.

But vnto the children of Gerson amonge the kynreds of the Levites were geuen, Of the halfe trybe of Manasse two cities, the fre cite for the deed-slayer, Gola in Basan and the suburbs therof, Beasthia, and the suburbs therof. Of the trybe of Issachar foure cities, Rishon and the suburbs therof, Dabirach and the suburbs therof, Jarmuth and the suburbs therof, Engannim and the suburbs therof. Of the trybe of Asser foure cities, Misceal, Abdon, Helkath and Rehob with the suburbs therof. Of the trybe of Nephthali thie cities, the fre cite Kedesh (for the deed-slayer) in Galile, Hamoth, Dor, and Rarthan with the suburbs therof: so that all the cities of the kynred of the Gersonites were thirtene w their suburbs.

Vnto the kynreds of Merari the other Levites were geuen, Of the trybe of Zabulon foure cities, Jakneam, Rarcha, Dimna and Nahalal w y suburbs therof. Of the trybe of Ruben foure cities, Bezer, Jahza, Kedemoth and Mephaat with their suburbs. Of the trybe of Gad foure cities, the fre cite for the deed-slayer, Ramoth in Gilead, Mahanaïm, Hesben and Jaaser with their suburbs: so that all the cities of the children of Merari amonge their kynreds of y other Levites, were twolue. Thus all the cities of the Levites amonge y possession of the children of Israel, were eight and fortye with their suburbs. And these cities were so dealte out, that every one had their suburbs rounde aboute, the one as the other.

Thus the LORDE gaue the children of Israel all the londe, which he had sworne vnto their fathers to geue: & they toke possession of it, and dwelt therein. And the LORDE gaue the rest before all those y were aboute them: like as he sware vnto their fathers, & none of their enemies stode agaynst the, but all their enemies deliuered he in to their hande. And their myssed nothyng of all the good that the LORDE had promysed vnto the house of Israel, it came every whyt.

The XXII. Chapter.

And then Iosua called y Rubenites and Gadites, and y halfe trybe of Manasse, and sayde vnto them: Ye haue kepte all, * that Moses the seruunt of the LORDE commaunded you, and haue herked vnto my voyce in all y I haue commaunded you. Ye haue not forsaken youre brether, a longe season, vnto this daye, and haue waited vpon the commaundement of the LORDE youre God. For so moch now as the LORDE youre God hath broughte youre brether to rest, as he promysed them, turne you now, and go youre waye to youre tentes in to the londe of youre possession, which Moses the seruunt of the LORDE gaue you beynde Jordane.

But take diligent heede now, that ye do accordyng to the commaundement and lawe which Moses the seruunt of the LORDE hath commaunded: * That ye loue the LORDE youre God, and walke in all his wayes, and kepe his commaundementes, and cleue vnto him, and serue him with all youre heart and with all youre soule. So Iosua blessed them, and let them go. And they wente vnto their tentes.

Vnto the halfe trybe of Manasse had Moses geuen possession at Basan: vnto the other halfe gaue Iosua amonge their brether on this syde Jordane westwarde. And whan he let them go to their tentes and blessed them, he sayde vnto them: Ye come home agayne with greate good vnto youre tetes, with exceedyng moche catell, syluer, golde, bialse, yron and rayment, distribute therfore the spoyle of youre enemyes amonge youre brether.

So the Rubenites, Gadites, and the halfe trybe of Manasse returned, and wente from the children of Israel out of Silo (which lyeth in the londe of Canaan) to go in to the countre of Gilead to the londe of their possession, that they mighte possesse it, accordyng to the commaundement of the LORDE by Moses.

And whan they came vnto the heapes by Jordane, which lye in the londe of Canaan, the same Rubenites, Gadites, and the halfe trybe of Manasses buylded there beynde Jordane, a fayre greate altare. But whan the children of Israel herde saye: Beholde, the children of Ruben, the children of Gad, and the halfe trybe of Manasse haue buylded an altare ouer agaynst the londe, de of Canaan vpon the heapes by Iordane on this syde the children of Israel, they gathered them selues together with the whole congregacion at Silo, to go vp agaynst the with an armye. And (in the meane season) they sent to them in to the londe of Gilead, Phineas the sonne of Eleasar the prest, and with him ten chiefe prynces amonge the houses of their fathers, out of euery tribe in Israel one. And they came to the children of Ruben, to the children of Gad, and to the halfe trybe of Manasse in the londe of Gilead, and sayde:

D Thus sayeth the whole congregacion of the LORDE vnto you: * What trespasce is this, y<sup>e</sup> haue trespassed agaynst the God of Israel, that ye shulde turne backe from y<sup>e</sup> LORDE this daye, to builde you an altare, for to fall awaye from the LORDE?

Num. 25. a * Haue we not ynough of the wickednesse of Peor: from the which we are not yet clen sed this daye, and there came a plague amonge the congregacion of the LORDE: and ye turne you backe this daye from the LORDE, and this daye are ye fallen awaye from the LORDE, that he maye be wroth to daye or to morow at the whole congregacion of the LORDE.

If the londe of youre possession be vncleane, then come ouer in to the londe that the LORDE possesseth, wherethe dwellynge of the LORDE is, and take possessions amonge vs, and fall not awaye from the LORDE and from vs, to builde you an altare with out the altare of the LORDE our God. * Did not Achan the sonne of Serah trespasce in the thinge that was damned, and the wrath came ouer y<sup>e</sup> whole congregacion of Israel and he wente not downe alone for his mysdede?

Iosua. 7. a Then answered the children of Ruben, and the children of Gad, and the halfe trybe of Manasse, and sayde vnto the heades and prynces of Israel: The mightie God y<sup>e</sup> LORDE, the mightie God the LORDE knoweth, and Israel knoweth also, yf this be a transgressyng or trespacyng agaynst the LORDE, then let it not helpe vs this daye: If we haue buylded the altare, because we wolde turne awaye backe from the LORDE, to offere burntofferings or meatofferings theron, or to make any deedofferings vpon it, then let the LORDE requyre it: And yf we haue not done it rather for very feare of this thinge, and sayde: To daye or to morow mighte youre children saye vnto oure children:

What haue ye to do with the LORDE the God of Israel: The LORDE hath set Iordane for a border betwene vs and you ye children of Ruben and Gad, ye haue no portion in the LORDE: By this shulde youre children make oure children to turne awaye from the feare of the LORDE.

Therefore sayde we: Let vs make oure children an altare, not for sacrifice, ner for burntofferings, * but that it maye be a reuerence betwene vs and you, and oure posterities, that we maye serue the LORDE in his sighte with oure burntofferings, deedofferings, and other offerings: and y<sup>e</sup> youre children to daye or to morow neade not to saye vnto oure children: Ye haue no parte in the LORDE.

And we sayde: But yf they shulde speake so vnto vs, or to oure posterities to daye or to morow, then maye we saye: Beholde the similitude of y<sup>e</sup> altare of the LORDE, which oure fathers made, not for sacrifice, ner for burntofferings, but for a wytnesse betwene vs and you.

God forbydde, that we shulde fall awaye from the LORDE, to turne backe from him this daye, and to buyld an altare for sacrifice, for burntofferings and for any present, without y<sup>e</sup> altare of the LORDE our God, that stondest befoie his habitation.

But whan Phineas the prest, and the chiefe of the congregacion, the prynces of Israel which were with him, herde these wordes, that the children of Ruben, Gad, and Manasse had spoken, they pleased them well. And Phineas the sonne of Eleasar the prest sayde vnto the children of Ruben, Gad, and Manasse: This daye we knowe, that y<sup>e</sup> LORDE is amonge vs, in that ye haue not trespassed agaynst the LORDE in this dede. Now haue ye deliuered the children of Israel out of the hande of the LORDE.

Then Phineas the sonne of Eleasar the prest, and the rulers returned out of the londe of Gilead, from the children of Ruben and Gad, vnto y<sup>e</sup> londe of Canaan to the children of Israel, and brought them wordes gayne of the matter.

Then were the children of Israel well contente with the thinge. And they prayd the God of Israel, and sayde nomore that they wolde go vp agaynst them with an army, to destroye the londe that the children of Ruben and Gad dwelt in. And y<sup>e</sup> childre of Ruben and Gad called the name of the altare: This altare be wytnesse betwene vs, that the LORDE is God.

I And after a longe season, whan the LORDE had broughte Israel to rest from all their enemies rounde aboute: and Iosua was now olde and well stricken in age, he called all Israel and their Elders, heades, iudges, and officers, and sayde vnto them: I am olde and well aged, and ye haue sene all that the LORDE youre God hath done vnto all these nacions in youre sighte. For the LORDE youre God himself hath foughte for you. Beholde, I haue parted amonge you y<sup>e</sup> remnant of the nacions by lot, vnto euery trybe his enheritaunce from Iordane forth, and all the nacions whom I haue rote out vnto the greatesse westwarde.

And the LORDE youre God shal thrust them out befoie you, and dryue them awaye from you, that ye maye haue their londe in possession, as the LORDE youre God hath promysed you. Be ströge now therefore, that ye maye obserue and do all that is wyrtten in the booke of the lawe of Moses: * so that ye turne not asyde from it, nether to the righte hande ner to the lefte: that ye come not amonge y<sup>e</sup> remnant of these nacions, which are with you: And se that ye make no mention ner * sweate by the names of their goddes, nether serue them, ner bowe youre selues vnto them: But cleue vnto the LORDE your God, as ye haue done vnto this daye: the shal the LORDE dryue awaye greatesse and mightie nacions befoie you, like as there hath no man bene able to stonde befoie you vnto this daye. * One of you shal chace a thousande: for the LORDE youre God fighteth for you, acordinge as he promysed you. Take diligent hede therefore vnto youre selues, that ye loue the LORDE your God.

But yf ye turne backe, and cleue vnto the seother nacions, and make mariages with them, so that ye come amonge them, and they amonge you, be ye sure then, that the LORDE your God shal nomore dryue out all these nacions befoie you, * but they shal be vnto you a snare and net, and prickes in youre sydes, and thornes in youre eyes, vntyll he haue destroyed you from the good lode, which the LORDE your God hath geuen you.

Beholde, this daye do I go the waye of all the woilde, and ye shal knowe euery one from all youre hert and from all youre soule, that there hath not sayled oue worde of all the good that the LORDE your God promysed you. Now like as all the good is come that the LORDE your God promised you:

enen so shal the LORDE cause all euell to come vpon you, till he haue destroyed you from this good londe, which the LORDE your God hath geuen you: yf ye transgresse y<sup>e</sup> couenaunt of the LORDE your God, which he hath commaunded you. And yf ye go y<sup>e</sup> waye and serue other goddes, and worshippe the, then shal the wrath of the LORDE ware where ouer you, y<sup>e</sup> shal shortly destroye you out of the good londe, y<sup>e</sup> he hath geuen you.

I Iosua gathered all the trybes of Israel together vnto Sichem, and called the Elders of Israel, the heades, iudges and officers. And whā they were come befoie God, he sayde vnto all the people: Thus sayeth the LORDE the God of Israel: * Y<sup>e</sup> fathers dwelt afore time beyöde y<sup>e</sup> water, Abrahā y<sup>e</sup> Nahor y<sup>e</sup> Tarah their father y<sup>e</sup> serued other goddes. * Then toke I y<sup>e</sup> father Abraham beyöde the water, y<sup>e</sup> caused him to walke in the londe of Canaan, y<sup>e</sup> multiplied his sede, and gaue him Isaac, and vnto Isaac I gaue Jacob and Esau, and gaue Esau mount Seir to possesse. As for Jacob, y<sup>e</sup> his childre, they wente downe in to Egypte.

Then sent I Moses and Aaron, and plagued Egypte as I haue done amonge the. After y<sup>e</sup> brought I you and youre fathers out of Egypte. And whan ye came to y<sup>e</sup> see, and the Egipcians folowed vpon youre fathers with charettes and horse men vnto the reed see, then cryed they vnto the LORDE, which put a darcknesse betwene you and the Egipcians, and broughte the see vpon them, and ouerwhelmed them. And youre eyes haue sene what I dyd to y<sup>e</sup> Egipcians, y<sup>e</sup> ye dwelt in y<sup>e</sup> wilbernes a löge season. And I broughte you in to y<sup>e</sup> londe of the Amorites, which dwelt beyöde Iordane: y<sup>e</sup> whā they foughte agaynst you, I deliuered them in to y<sup>e</sup> hande, that ye mighte haue their countre in possession, and I destroyed them befoie you. * Then Balac the sonne of Ziphor the kynge of the Moabites gat him vp, and foughte agaynst Israel: and he sente and had call Balaam the sonne of Beor, to curse you, neuertheles I wolde not heare him, but I blessed you, and deliuered you out of his hande.

And whan ye wente ouer Iordane, and came vnto Jericho, the citesyns of Jericho foughte agaynst you, the Amorites, Phere sies, Cananites, Hethites, Girgositers, Hemiters, y<sup>e</sup> Jebusites: howbeit I deliuered the in to youre hande. * And I sent hornettes befoie you, which drewe them out befoie you, na mely the two kynges of the Amorites: not thou thy swerde, ner thou thy bowe. And I have geuen you a londe wher vpon ye bestowed no labour, and cities which ye have not buylded, that ye might dwell therein, and that ye might eate of the vnyardes and olyne trees which ye have not planted. Feare the LORDE now therfore, and serue him perfectly and in the truthe, and let go the goddes, whom youre fathers serued beyonde the water and in Egipte, and serue ye the LORDE.

D But yf ye like not to serue the LORDE, the chose you this daye whom ye wyll serue: the God whom youre fathers serued beyonde the water, or the goddes of the Amorites, in whose lode ye dwell. As for me and my house, we wyll serue the LORDE. Then answered the people, and saide: God forbidde, that we shulde forsake the LORDE, & serue other goddes. For the LORDE oure God brought vs and oure fathers out of the londe of Egipte fro the house of bondage, and did soch great tofens before oure eyes, and preserved vs all the waye that we wente, and amonge all the nations, whom we traauyled by. And the LORDE thrust out before vs all the people of the Amorites that dwell in the londe. Therfore wyll we also serue the LORDE, for he is oure God.

E Josua sayde vnto the people: Ye can not serue the LORDE: for he is an holy God, mighty, and gelous, which spareth not youre trangressions and synnes. But yf ye forsake the LORDE, and serue a straunge god, then shall the LORDE turne him, and do you euell, and consume you, after that he hath done you good. The people sayde vnto Josua: Not so, but we will serue the LORDE. Then sayde Josua vnto the people: Ye are witnesses ouer youre selues, that ye haue chosen you the LORDE, to serue him. And they sayde: Yee. Then put awaye from you (sayde he) the straunge goddes that are amonge you, and enclyne youre hert vnto the LORDE the God of Israel. And the people sayde vnto Josua: We wyll serue the LORDE oure God, and be obedient vnto his voyce. So Josua made a couenant with the people the same daye, and laied statutes & lawes before them at Sichem.

S And Josua wrote this acte in the booke of the lawe of God, and toke a greate stone, & set it vp there vnder an oke, which was in the Sanctuary of the LORDE, and sayde vnto all the people: Beholde, this stone shall be witnesse ouer you: for it hath herde all the wordes of the LORDE, which he hath spoken vnto vs, and shall be a witnesse ouer you that ye denye not youre God. So Josua the people go euery one to his enheritaunce.

And it fortuneth after these actes, that Josua the sonne of Nun & seruaunt of the LORDE dyed, whan he was an hundredth and ten yeare olde, and was buried in the border of his enheritaunce at Thimnath Serah, which lyeth on the mount Ephraim, on the north side of mount Gaas. And the children of Israel serued the LORDE as longe as Josua lyued, and the Elders (that lyued longe after Josua) which knewe all the workes of the LORDE, that he had done vnto Israel. The bones of Joseph, which the children of Israel had broughte out of Egipte, buried they at Sichem, in the pece of the londe, which Jacob boughte of the children of Hemor, father of Sichem for an hundredth pena, and was the enheritaunce of the children of Joseph. Eleazar the sonne of Aaron died also, and they buried him at Gibeath, which was phineas his sonnes, that neas his sonnes, that was geuen him vpon mount Ephraim.

The first Chapter.

After the death of Josua the children of Israel axed the LORDE, and sayde: Who shall go vp & be captayne of warre against the Cananites? The LORDE sayde: Juda shall go vp. Beholde, I haue deliuered the londe in to his hande. Then sayde Juda vnto his brother Simeon: Go vp with me in to my lot, and let vs fighte against the Cananites, then wyl I go agayne with the in to the lot: So Simeon wente with him.

Now whan Juda wente vp the LORDE deliuered the Cananites and pheresites in to their hades, & they slewe ten thousande men at Bezek: & they founde Adoni Bezek at Bezek, & foughte agaynst him, and slewe the Cananites and pheresites. But Adoni Bezek fled, and they folowed a fier him: and whan they had ouertaken him, they cut of the thymbes of his handes and fete.

Then sayde Adoni Bezek: Thre score and ten kynges were the thymbes of their hades & fete cut of, gathered vp the meate & was left vnder my table. Now as I haue done, so hath God rewarded me agayne. And he was broughte vnto Jerusalem, where he dyed.

But the childre of Juda soughte agaynst Jerusalem, and wane it, & smote it with the edge of the swerde, and set fyre vpon the cite. Then wente the children of Israel downe, to fighte agaynst the Cananites, & dwelt vpon the mount, and towarde the south, and in the valley. Juda wente agaynst the Cananites, which dwelt at Hebron. (As for Hebron, it was called Biriath harba afore tyme) and they smote Sesai, & Achiman, and Thalmai.

And from thence he wente agaynst the inhabitants of Debir (but Debir was called Biriath Sepher afore tyme.) And Caleb sayde: He that smyteth Biriath Sepher, & wythneth it, I wyl geue him my doughter Achsa to wife. Then Achisai the sonne of Benas, Calebs yongest brother wane it. And he gaue him his doughter Achsa to wife. And it fortuneth & whan they were in, she was counceled of hir housbande, to axe a pece of londe of hir father. And she fell from the asse. The sayde Caleb vnto her: What ayleth thee? She sayde: Geue me a blessinge, for thou hast geuen me a south & drye londe, geue me also a watery londe. Then gaue he her a londe that was watery above and beneth.

And the childre of Benyete Moses broder in lawe, wente vp out of the palme cite, with the children of Juda in to the wyldernes of Juda, that lyeth on the south syde of the cite Arab: and wente their waye, & dwelt amonge the people. And Juda wente with his brother Simeon, & they smote the Cananites at Zephath, & damned them, & called the name of the cite Bozma. Juda also wanne Gasa with the borders therof, & Ascalon with hir borders, & Accaron with the coastes therof. And the LORDE was with Juda, so that he conquered the mountaynes: but them that dwell in the valley coulde he not conquere, because they had yron charettes. And accordinge as Moses had sayde, they gaue Hebron vnto Caleb, which drew out the thre sonnes of Enak. Howbeit the children of Ben Jamin drew not out the Jebusites which dwelt at Jerusalem, but the Jebusites dwelt amonge the children of Ben Jamin at Jerusalem vnto this daye.

Likewyse the children of Joseph were vp also vnto Bethel, & the LORDE was with them. And the house of Joseph spied out Bethel (which afore tyme was called Lus) and the watch men sawe a man goinge out of the cite, and saide vnto him: Shewe vs where we maye come in to the cite. * 2 we wyl shewe mercy vpon the. And whan he had shewed them where they mighte come in to the cite,

they smote * cite w the edge of the swerde:
but they let the man go 2 all his frendes.

Then were the same man vp into y coun-tre of the Zechites, 2 buylded a cite, and called it Lus, 2 so is the name of it yet vnto this daye. And Manasses * drewe out Beth Sean w the vyllages therof, ner Thaanah
w the vyllages therof, ner the inhabitors of Doi w the vyllages therof: ner the inbiters of Jebteam w the vyllages therof, ner the inhabitors of Mageddo w the villages therof, and * Cananites beganne to dwell in the same londe. But whan Israel was mightie, he made the Cananites tributaries, and drewe them not out.

In like maner Ephraim drewe not out *
Cananites that dwelt at Gaser, but the Ca-nanites dwelt amonge them at Gaser.

Zabulon also drewe not out the inhabitors of Kitron and Nahalol, but * Cananites dwelt amonge them, 2 were tributaries.

Asher drewe not out y inhabitors of Aco,
2 y inhabitors of Sidon, of Ahelab, of Ach-sib, of Helba, of Aphik 2 of Rehob, but * Asserites dwelt amoge the Cananites that dwelt in the lode, for they drewe the not out.

Nephthali drewe not out y inhabitors of Beth Semes, ner of Beth Anath, but dwelt amonge the Cananites which dwelt in the londe: howbeit they of Beth Semes and of Beth Anath were tributaries.

And the Amorites subdued the childre of Dan vpon the mountaine, and suffred them not to come downe in to the valley. And the Amorites beganne to dwell vpo mount heres at Aiolon and at Saalim. Howbeit y hande of * house of Joseph was to sore for them, and they became tributaries. And the border of the Amorites was, as a ma goeth vp towarde Ararabim, and from the rocke, 2
from the toppe.

The II. Chapter.

Ut there came vp a messaiger of * LORDE from Gilgall vnto Bochim, and saide: I haue caried you vp hither out of Egipte, and broughte you in to the londe that I sware vnto youre fathers, 2 saide: I wyl neuer breake my couenaunt w
you, that ye shulde make no couenaunt with the dwellers of this londe, but breake dow ne their altares: Neuertheles ye haue not hearkned vnto my voyce. Wherefore haue ye done this: Then saide I morouer: I wil

driue them out before you, that they maye be a fall vnto you, and thair goddes ashamed. And whan y messaiger of the LORDE spoken these wordes vnto all the childre of Israel, the people leste vp their voyce, 2 we-te, and called y name of the place Bochim, and offred there vnto the LORDE.

For whan Josua had sente awaye y peple, and the childre of Israel were gone, enry one to his enheritaunce, for to take possession of the londe, the people serued the LOR-DE as longe as Josua lyued and y Elders, which lyued longe after Josua, and y same all the greates workes of the LORDE, which he dyd for Israel.

Now whan Josua the sonne of Nun, the seruaunt of the LORDE, was deed (whan he was an hūdieth and ten yeaere olde, they buried him in y border of his inheritaunce at Timnath Heres vpon mount Ephraim on the north syde of mount Gaas. And whan all the same generacion was gathered vnto their fathers, there came vp after them and ther generacion, which knew not the LOR-DE, ner the workes that he had done for Israel.

Then wroughte the childre of Israel
euell before the LORDE, and serued Baalim, and forsoke y LORDE the God of their fathers (which broughte them out of the lon-de of Egipte) and folowed other goddes 2
the goddes of the nacions that dwelt rounde aboute them, 2 worshipped them, 2 displeased the LORDE: for they forsoke y LOR-DE euere more and more, and serued Baal and Astaroth.

Then y wrath of the LORDE waxed w te vpo Israel, 2 he deliuered the in to y han-des of those y spoyled the, that they mighte spoyl them, 2 sold the in to the handes of their enemies rounde aboute, 2 they were not able to withstande their enemies any more,
but what waye so euer they wolde out, y hade of the LORDE was agaynst the to their hurte (euere as the LORDE sayde and swore vnto them) and they were sore oppressed.

Now whan the LORDE rayssed them vp iudges, which helped them out of the hande of such as speyled the, they folowed not the iudges nether, but wente a whoringe after other goddes, 2 worshipped them, and were soone gone out of y waye y their fathers walked in, to heare the comāndementes of the LORDE, 2 dyd not as they dyd.

But whan y LORDE rayssed vp iudges
vnto them, the LORDE was with y iudges

and helped them out of the hande of their enemies, as longe as the iudges lyued. * For the LORDE had pitie of their complaunte, which they made ouer those y subdued the
and oppressed them.

Nevertheless whan the iudge dyed, they turned backe, and marred all more the their fathers, so that they folowed other goddes to serue them and to bowe them selues vnto them: they wolde not fall from their purposes, ner from their obstinate waye.

Therfore waxed the wrath of the LORDE
allwaie so whore ouer Israel, that he sayde:
For so moch as the people haue transgressed my couenaunt, which I commaunded their fathers, 2 folowe not my voyce, I wil from hence forth driue out none of the Zeythen,
whos Josua leste behynde him, whā he dyed, * that by them I maye proue Israel, whether they wil kepe the waye of the LORDE, to walke therein, as their fathers dyd, or not.
Thus the LORDE suffred all these nacions,
so that in a shorte tyme he drewe them not out, whom he had not geuen ouer in to Josuas hande.

The III. Chapter.

These are the nacions, whom the LOR-DE suffred to remayne, y by them he mighte proue Israel, which had no vnderstandinge in the warres of Canaan:
enely because y the trybes of the childre of Israel mighte knowe 2 lerne to warre, which afore had no knowlege therof, namely: The syne lordes of y Philistynes, 2 all the Cananites, 2 Sidonians, 2 the Zechites y dwelt vpon mount Libanus, from mount Baal Hermon, vntill a man come vnto Hemath. The same remayned, that Israel mighte be proued by them, that it mighte be knowne whether they wolde herken to the comānde-mentes of the LORDE, which he commaunded their fathers by Moses.

Now whan the childre of Israel dwelt thus amoge the Cananites, Zechites, Amorites, Pheresites, Zenuites 2 Jebusites, * they toke their daughters to wyues, 2 gaue their daughters vnto their sonnes, 2 serued their goddes, and wroughte wickednes before the LORDE, 2 forgat the LORDE their God, 2 serued Baalim 2 Astaroth. Then y wrath of y LORDE waxed whore ouer Israel, 2
he solde the vnder the hāde of Cusan Risathaim kynge of Mesopotamia, 2 so y childre of Israel serued Cusan Risaithaim viij. yea-res.

The childre of Israel vnto (re-
the LORDE, 2 the LORDE rayssed the vp a sauour which deliuered the, namely * Achmiel y sonne of Renas, Calebs yongest brother.

And the spiete of the LORDE came vpon him, 2 he was indge in Israel, 2 wente out a warre fare. And y LORDE deliuered Cu-san Risaithaim the kynge of Syria in to his hāde, so y his hande was to stroge for him.
* Then was the londe in rest fortye yeaeres. * Par. 15
And Achmiel the sonne of Renas dyed.

But the childre of Israel dyd yet more euell before the LORDE. Then the LORDE strengthened Eglon the kynge of y Moabites agaynst y childre of Israel, because they wroughte wickednesse before y LORDE. And he gathered vnto him y childre of Ammon, 2 the Amalechites, 2 wete and smote Israel, and conquered the cite of the palme trees. Deut. 30
And the childre of Israel serued Eglon y kynge of y Moabites eightene yeaere. The cried they vnto the LORDE. And the LOR-DE rayssed the vp a sauoure, namely Ehud the sonne of Gera y sonne of Jemini, which was a man that mighte do nothings with his righte hande.

And whā the childre of Israel sent a pie-sent by him vnto Eglon the kynge of the Moabites, Ehud made him a two edged dagger of a spanne longe, 2 gyrded it vnder
his garmēt vpo his righte thye, 2 broughte
y present vnto Eglon the kynge of y Moabites. As for Eglon, he was a very fat man.

And whan he had deliuered the presente, he let the people go that had caried the present, and he himselfe turned backe from the Idols at Gilgall, 2 caused to saye thus (vnto the kynge: ) I haue a secrete thinge to tell the O kynge. And he commaunded to ke-pe sylence, 2 all they that stode aboute him, wente out from him.

And Ehud came in vnto him. He sat in a syled Sommer perler, which was for him selfe alone. And Ehud saide: I haue somwhat to saye vnto the of God. The rose he vp fro his seate. But Ehud put forth his leste han-de, 2 toke the dagger from his righte thye, 2 thrust it in to his bely, so y the heste wente in also after the blade, 2 the fatt closed the hete: for he due not y dagger out of his bely, 2 y fylthines departed fro him. But Ehud gat him out at the backe dore, 2 put to y dore after him, and lockte it.

Now whan he was gone, his seruantes came in, and sawe that the dore of the Sommer perler was lockte, and they sayde: perad-uenture he is gone to the preyie in the syled Sommer perler.

But whan they had wayted so lōge tyll they were ashamed ( for no man opened the perler dore) they toke the keye, and opened it.

Beholde, then laye their lorde deed vpo the earth. As for Ehud, he was gotten awaye, whyle they made so longe tarienge, & he wente ouer by the Idols, and ranne his waye vn to Seirath.

And whan he came in * he blew & trompet vpo mount Ephraim, and the children of Israel wente with him from the mount, and he before them, and he saide vnto them: Solowme me, for the LORDE hath deliuered the Moabites youre enemies in to yo' hande. And they folowed him, & wanne y ferye of Jordane, & goeth towarde Moab, & suffred no man to go ouer, and at y sametyme they smote of the Moabites vpo a ten thousande men, all nobles and men of armes, so that there escaped not one. Thus were the Moabites broughte vnder the hande of the children of Israel at that tyme, and the lande was in rest foure score yeares.

Afterwarde was * Samgar y sonne of Anath, which slewe sixe hundreth Philistynes with an ores gadd, and deliuered Israel also.

The III. Chapter.

Ut the children of Israel dyd yet more euell before y LORDE, whan Ehud was deed. And the LORDE solde the in to the hande of Jabin the kynge of the Cananites, which dwelt at Hazor, & the chefe captayne of his hooft was Sissera, and he dwelt at Haroseth of the Heythen. And the childre of Israel cried vnto the LORDE: for he had nyne hundreth yron charrettes, and subdued the children of Israel by violence twentye yeare.

At y sametyme was Judgesse in Israel the prophetisse Debboia, the wyfe of Lapidoth, and she dwelt vnder y palme of Debboia betwene Rama & Bethel, vpon mount Ephraim, and the children of Israel came vp vnto her to the lawe. She sent forth, * & called for Barak the sonne of Abi Noam of Kedess Nephtali, and sayde vnto him: Hath not y LORDE the God of Israel co maunded the: Go thy waye, and get the vp vnto mount Thabor, & take w the tenthousande men of the children of Nephtali & Zabulon: For I wil make Sissera the chefe captayne of Jabin's hooft to come to the vnto y water of Cyson, with his charrettes and with his multitude, and I wyll deliuer him in to thy hande. Barak sayde vnto her: If thou wilt come w me, I wil go: but yf thou wilt not come with me, I wil not go.

She sayde: I wyll go with the: neuertheless the prayse shal not be thine in this iour ney that thou goest, but y LORDE shal deliuer Sissera in to a womans hande. So Debboia gat hir vp, and wente with Barak vnto Kedess. Then Barak called Zabulon and Nephtali vnto Kedess, and wete on fore ten thousande men. And Debboia wente w him also. As for Heber the Kenyte he was departed from the Kenytes from the children of * Hobab Moses brother in lawe, and had pitched his tent by y Oke of Zaanaim besyde Kedess.

Then was it tolde Sissera, y Barak the sonne of Abi Noam, was gone vp vnto mount Thabor: & he gathered all his charrettes together, nyne C. yron charrettes, & all the people y was with him from Haroseth of the Heythen, vnto the water Cyson. Debboia sayde vnto Barak: Up, this is the daie wherein the LORDE hath deliuered Sissera in to y hande: for y LORDE shal go forth before y. So Barak wente fro mount Thabor, and y ten thousande men after him.

But the LORDE discomfited Sissera w all his charrettes & hooft, & made the a frayd of the edge of the swerde before Barak, so y Sissera leapt of his charret, & fled on fote. Neuertheless Barak folowed vpon the charrettes & the hooft vnto Haroseth of the Heythen, & all Sisseras hooft fell thorow y edge of the swerde, so y not one escaped. As for Sissera, he fled on fote vnto the tente of Jael, y wife of Heber y Kenite. For there was peace betwene kynge Jabin at Hazor, & the house of Heber the Kenite.

Jael wete forth to mete Sissera, & sayde vnto him: Turne in my lorde, turne in to me, & be not a frayd. And he turned in vnto her in to the tente, & she couered him with a garment. He sayde vnto her: I praye y geue me a litle water to drynke, for I am athyrist. The opened she a mylke pot, & gaue him to drynke, and couered him. And he sayde vnto her: Stode in the tente dore, & yf one come & aske, is there eny man here? saye I woman.

Then Jael the wife of Heber toke a nale of the tente, and an hammer in hir hande, & wente in priuely vnto him, & smote the nale in thorow the temples of his heade, so y he sancte to y earth. As for him, he was fallen on a slomber, and weery, and so he dyed.

But wha Barak folowed after Sissera, Jael wente for to mete him, and sayde vnto him: Come hither, I wil shewe the the man, whom thou seekest. And whan he came in vnto her, he sawe Sissera deed, & the nale sticke in his temples. Thus God broughte downe Jabin the kynge of the Cananites before the children of Israel at that tyme, & the hande of the children of Israel wente & subdued Jabin y kynge of the Cananites, tyll they had rote him out. Then Debboia and Barak the sonne of Abi Noam, sange at the same tyme, and sayde:

The V. Chapter.

Ow that ye are come to rest, ye quyetemen in Israel, prayse y LORDE, amonge soch of the people as be fre wyllinge.

Heare ye kynges, & herken to ye prynces: I wyl, I wyl synge to the LORDE, euen vnto the LORDE y God of Israel wil I playe.

LORDE, whan thou wentest out from Seir, & camest in from the felde of Edom, y earth quaked, the heauen dropped, and the cloudes dropped with water.

The hilles melted before the LORDE, Sinai before the LORDE the God of Israel.

In the tyme of * Sanger the sonne of Anath: In the tyme of * Jael the wayes fayled: and they that shulde haue gone in pathes, walked thorow croked wayes.

There was scarcenesse, there was scarcenesse of housbande men in Israel, vntyll J Debboia came vp, vntyll I came vp a mother in Israel.

God hath chosen a new thinge. He hath overcome y portes in battayll: and yet was there sene nether shyld nor speare amonge fortyethousand in Israel.

My herit louers y teachers of Israel: ye y are fre wyllinge amonge the people, prayse the LORDE.

Ye that ryde vpo sayre Asses, ye that syt in indgment and geue sentence, ye that go by the waye, prayse the LORDE.

Wha y archers cried betwene y drawers of water, then was it spok of y righteousness of the LORDE, of the righteousness of his husbande men in Israel: then ruled the people of the LORDE vnder the gates.

Up Debboia vp, get the vp, get the vp, & rehearse a songe. Arise Barak, & catch him y caught the, thou sonne of Abinoam.

Then had the desolate the rule with the mightie of the people. The LORDE had y dominion thorow the giantes.

Out of Ephraim was their rote against Amalek, and after him Ben Jamin in thy people.

Out of Machir haue teachers ruled, and out of Zabulon are there become gouernours thorow the wytyng penne.

And out of Issachar there were prynces with Debboia, and Issachar was as Barak in y valley, sent with his people on fote: As for Ruben, he stode hye in his awne consayte, and separated him selfe from vs.

Why abodest thou betwixte the borders, & whan thou herdest the noyse of the flockes because Ruben stode hye in his awne consayte, and separated him selfe from vs.

Gilead abode beyonde Jordane, and why drelt Dan amonge the shippes: Asser sat in the haue of the see, and caried in his portiens.

But Zabulons people ioperde their life vnto death: Nephtali also in the toppe of y felde of Merom.

The kynges came & foughte, then foughte y kynges of the Cananites at Thaanah by the water of Megiddo, but spoyle of money broughte they not there from.

From heauē were they foughte agaynst, the starres in their courses foughte with Sissera.

The broke Cyson ouerwhelmed them, the broke Adumim, yee the broke Cyson. My soule treade thou vpon the mightie.

Then made the horse fete a rushinge together, for the greates violence of their mightie herse men.

Curse the cite of Meros (sayde y angell of the LORDE) curse the cite syns therof, because they come not to helpe y LORDE, to helpe the LORDE to the giantes.

Blessynge amonge x men haue Jael the wife of Heber the Kenite: blessinge haue she in the tente amonge the women.

Whan he ayled water, she gaue him mylke, & broughte forth butter in a lordlyd f she.

She toke holde of the nale w hir hande, & the smyth hammer with hir righte hande, and smote Sissera, cut of his heade & pearced and boored thorow his temples.

He bowed him selfe downe at hir fete, he fell downe, and laye there. He sancte downe, and fell at hir fete: whan he had soncke downe, he laye there destroyed.

His mother looked out at the wyndowe, & cried piteously thorow the crallace: Why tarieth his charret out so longe, that he cometh not? Wherfore do the wheles of his charret make so longe tarienge?

The wyfest amonge his ladies answered, & sayde vnto her: Shulde they not finde & deuilde the spoyle, vnto enery man a saye mayde or two for a pray, & partye coloured garments of needle worke to Sissera for a spoyle, partye coloured garments of needle worke aboute the necke for a pray?

Thus all thine enemies must perishe

LORDE: but they that loue the, shal be euen as the Sonne rysinge vp in his myghte.

And the londe had peace fortye yeares.

The VI. Chapter.

And whan the children of Israel dyd dwell in the sighte of the LORDE, the LORDE deliuered them vnder the hande of the Madianites vij. yeares. And whā the hande of the Madianites was to myghte ouer the children of Israel, the children of Israel made them clyffes in y mountaynes, and caues and holdes, to defende them selues from y Madianites. And whan Israel sowed eny thinge, y Madianites and Amalechites, and the children towarde the south came vp vpon them, and pitched their tentes agaynst them, and destroyed the increase of the londe downe vnto Gasa, z let nothinge remayne ouer of the bestes in Israel, nether shepe, ner oxen, ner asses. For they came vp with their catell and tentes, as it had bene a greate multitude of greshoppers (so that ne ther they ner their camels myghte be nombred) and fell in to the londe, that they myghte destroye it. Thus was Israel excedinge small before the Madianites. Then cried the children of Israel vnto the LORDE.

But whan they cried vnto the LORDE because of y Madianites, y LORDE sent the a prophet, which sayde vnto the: Thus saith the LORDE the God of Israel: I caried you out of Egipte, z broughte you out of y house of bondage, z deliuered you from the hande of the Egiptians, z from the hāde of all them that oppressed you, and I haue thrust them out before you, z geuen you their lōde and sayde vnto you: I am the LORDE youre God. Feare not ye the goddes of the Amorites, in whose londe ye dwell: neuertheles ye haue not hearkened vnto my voyce.

And there came an angell of the LORDE, z sat him downe vnder an Oke at Aphia, which belonged vnto Joas the father of y Efites, and his sonne Gedeon was throsinginge wheate in the barne, that he myghte flye awaye before the Madianites.

CThen appeared vnto him the angell of y LORDE, and sayde vnto him: The LORDE with y thou myghtie giante. But Gedeon sayde vnto him: Syr, yf the LORDE be w vs, wherfore is all this then happened vnto vs? And where are all the wonders, which oure fathers tolde vs, z sayde: The LORDE brought vs out of Egipte? But now hath the LORDE forsaken vs, and deliuered vs in to the hande of the Madianites.

The LORD turned him vnto him, z say

The vi. Chap.

de: Go thy waye in this thy strength, then shalt deliuer Israel out of the hande of y Madianites. I haue sent the. But he sayde: My LORDE, wherwithall shal I deliuer Israel? Beholde, my kynred is the smallest in Manasse, z I am the leest in my fathers house. The LORDE sayde vnto him: I will be w the, so y thou shalt smyte the Madianites, euen as though they were but one man.

He sayde vnto him: Yf I haue founde grace in thy sighte, then make me a token, that it is thou, which speakest with me: go not awaye, tyll I come to y, and brynge a meat-offerynge, to set before the. He sayde: I wyll tary, tyll thou comest agayne. And Gedeon wete, and made ready a kydd, and an Ephā of unleuended floure, and layed the flesh in a mannde, and put the broth in a pot, and broughte it forth vnto him vnder the Oke, and came nye. But the angell of God sayde vnto him: * Take the flesh and the unleuended bried, z set it vpon the stonye rocke that is here, and poure the broth thereon. And he dyd so. Then the angell of the LORDE stretched out the staffe that he had in his hande, and with the ende of it he touched the flesh and the unleuended floure: and the fyre came out of the rocke, and consumed the flesh and the unleuended floure. And the angell of the LORDE vanysht out of his sighte.

Now whā Gedeon sawe that it was an angell of y LORDE, he sayde: O LORDE LORDE, haue I thus sene an angell of y LORDE face to face? The LORDE sayde vnto him: Peace be with the, feare not, thou shalt not dye. The Gedeon buylded an altare there vnto y LORDE, z called it: The LORDE of peace. The same stondesth yet vnto this daye at Apia, y beloggeth vnto the father of y Efiti.

And in y same night sayde y LORDE vnto him: Take a fedd bullocke fro amo ge thy fathers open, z another bullocke of seuen yeare olde, and breake downe the altare of Baal which is thy fathers, and cut downe the groue that stondesth by it, and buylde thou an altare vnto the LORDE y God aboue vpon the toppe of this rocke, and make it ready, and take the other bullocke, and offer a burnt offeringe with the woodd of the groue that thou hast hewen downe. Then toke Gedeon ten men of his seruantes, and dyd as y LORDE sayde vnto him: but he was afrayed to do this by daye tyme, for his fathers house and the people in y cite, and so he dyd it by nighte.

Now whan the people in the cite rose vp early in the mornynge, beholde, Baals altare re was broken, and the groue hewen downe by it, and the other bullocke a burnt offeringe vpon the altare that was buylded, z one sayde vnto another: Who hath done this? And whan they soughte z made searche, it was sayde: Gedeon the sonne of Joas hath done it. The sayde the people of y cite vnto Joas: Brynge forth y sonne, he must dye, because he hath broken Baals altare, and hewen downe the groue therby. But Joas sayde vnto all them that stode by him: Wyl ye stryue for Baal? Wil ye deliuer him? He ystryueth for him, shal dye this mornynge. Yf he be God, let him auēge him selfe, because his altare is broken downe. From y daye forth was he called Jerubaal, because it was sayde: Let Baal auenge him selfe, that his altare is broken downe.

GWhan y Madianites now z y Amalechites, z the childre towarde the south had gathered the selues together, z were passed the row (Jordane) z had pitched their tentes in the valley of Jestaal, the spere of the LORDE endued Gedeon, z he caused the trompet to be blowne, z called (the house of) Abiezer, that they shulde folowe him: z he sent messangers vnto all Manasse, z called them, y they shulde folowe him also: and he sent messangers likewise vnto Affer z Zabulon z Naphtali, which came vp to mete him.

And Gedeon sayde vnto God: Yf thou wilt deliuer Israel thorow my hande, as thou hast saide, the wil I laye a flese of woll in the courte: yf y dew be onely vpon y flese, z drye vpon all the grounde, then wyll I perceaue, that thou shalt deliuer Israel thorow my hande, as thou hast sayde. And it came so to passe. And whan he rose vp early on the morow, he wrāge y dew out of the flese, and fylled a dyshe full of water. And Gedeon sayde vnto God: Be not wroth at me, that I speake yet this one tyme. I wyll proue yet but once with the flese, let it be drye onely vpon the flese, and dew vpon all the grounde. And God dyd so the same nighte:

The vii. Chap. Ho. xiii.

so that it was drye onely vpon the flese, and dew vpon all the grounde.

The VII. Chapter.

Then Jerubaal (that is Gedeon) gat him vp early, and all the people that was with him, and pitched their tentes besyde the well of Harod, so that he had the hoost of the Madianites on the north side behynde the hyll of Mora in the valley. But the LORDE sayde vnto Gedeon: The people that be with y are to many for me to deliuer Madian in to their hande, lest Israel boost them selues agaynst me, and saye: My hande hath deliuered me. Cause a proclamation now to be made in the eares of the people, and saye: He that feareth, and is afrayed, let him turne backe, and get him soone from mount Gilead. Then returned there of the people aboute a two and twenty thousande so that there was left butten thousande.

And the LORDE sayde vnto Gedeon. The people are yet to many: brynge them downe to the water, there wyll I proue them for y: and of whom I saye that he shal go w the, the same shal go with the: but of whō I saie that he shal not go with the, the same shall not go. And he broughte the people vnto y water. And the LORDE sayde vnto Gedeon: Whosoever licketh of the water with his ege, as a dogg licketh, make him stonde asyde and lykewyse who soener falleth downe vps his knes to drynke. Then was the nombre of them that had licked out of the hande to the mouth, thie hundred men. And the LORDE sayde vnto Gedeon: Thorow the thie hundred which haue licked, wyll I deliuer you, and geue ouer the Madianites in to thy hāde: As for the other people, let them go euery one vnto his place.

And they toke vytayles with them for y people, and their trompettes: but the other Israelites let he go, euery one vnto his tente. And he strenghted himselfe with the thie hundred men, and the Madianites hoost laye before him beneth in the valley. And the same night sayde the LORDE vnto him: Up, and go downe in to the hoost, for I haue geuen them ouer in to thy hande. But yf thou be afrayed to go downe, then let y seruante Pura go downe with the vnto the hoost, y thou maiest heare what they saie: after that shalt thou be bolde, and thy honde stronge, that thou mayest go downe in to the hoost.

Then wente Gedeon downe with his seruante vnto y vtmost parte of y watchme of armes y were in y hoost. And y Madianites and Amalechites, and all the children of the south, had layed them selues beneth in the valley, as a multitude of greshoppers, and their Camels were not to be nombred for multitude, eue as the sonde on y see shore. Now whan Gedeon came, beholde, one tolde another his dreame, z sayde: Beholde, I haue dreamed a dreame: Me thoughte a barte barlye lose came rollinge downe to y hoost of y Madianites: and whan it came to the tente, it smote it, and ouerthrew it, and turned it vpsyde downe, so that the tente fell. Then answered the other: That is nothinge els then y swerde of Gedeon the sonne of Joas y Israelite: God hath geue euer the Madianites with all the hoost in to his hande.

Whan Gedeon herde this dreame tolde, z the interpretation of it, he worshipped, and came agayne in to the hoost of Israel, and sayde: Up, for the LORDE hath deliuered y hoost of the Madianites in to youre hade. And he deuoyded the thre hundred men in to thre partes, and gaue euery one a trompet in his hande, and emptye pytchers, and lampes therin, and sayde vnto them: Loke vnto me, and do ye eue so, and beholde, whā I come to the vttemost parte of the hoost, enen as I do, so do ye also. Whan I blew y trompet, and all that are w me, then shal ye blowe y troppettes also rounde aboute all the hoost, and saye: Here the LORDE z Gedeon. Thus came Gedeon and the thre hundred men with him vnto the vttemost parte of y hoost (aboute the tyme whan the mydwatche begynneth) and wakid vp the watchme, and blew with the trompettes, and smote asun der the pitchers in their handes.

So all the thre companies blew with y trompettes, and brake the pitchers. But the lampes helde they in their lefte hande, and the trompettes in their righte hade, so that they blew, and cried: Here the swerde of the LORDE and Gedeon. And euery one stode in his place aboute the hoost. Then ranne all the hoost, and cried and fled. And whyle the thre hundred men blew the trompettes, y LORDE broughte it so to passe, that euery mans swerde in all y hoost was agaynst another, and the hoost fled vnto Bethsitha Zereratha, and vnto the border of the playne of Mithobah besyde Tabath. And y men of Israel of Nephtali, of Asser, z of Manasse cried, and folowed vpon the Madianites.

And Gedeon sent messangers vp vnto all mount Ephraim, sayenge: Come downe agaynst the Madianites, and stoppe the water from them vnto Bethbara and Jordane. And then cryed all they that were of Ephraim, and stopped the water from them vnto Bethbara and Jordane, and toke two prynces of the Madianites Oreb and Zeb, and slewe Oreb vpon the rocke of Oreb, and Zeb in the wynepresse of Zeb, and folowed vpon the Madianites, and broughte the heades of Oreb and Zeb, vnto Gedeon ouer Jordane.

The VIII. Chapter.

And the men of Ephraim sayde vnto him: Wherfore hast thou done this vnto vs, that thou hast not called vs, whā thou wentest forth to fight agaynst y Madianites? and they chode sore with him. But he sayde vnto them: What haue I done now that is like youre acte? Is not the aftergadderynge of Ephraim better then the whole harvest of Abieser? God hath deliuered y prynces of the Madianites Oreb and Zeb in to youre hande, how coulde I do that ye haue done? Whā he had sayde this, their blast was swaged from him.

Now whan Gedeon came vnto Jordane, he wente ouer with the thre hundred men that were with him, and they were weery, and folowed vpon their chace. And he sayde vnto the men of Succoth: I praye you geue the people that are with me, some leaues of bried (for they are weery) that I maye folow vpon Zebea and Salmana the Kinges of the Madianites.

But the rulers of Succoth sayde: Are the handes of Zebea and Salmana in thy handes already, that we must geue bried vnto thy men of warre? Gedeon sayde: Well, whan the LORDE deliuereth Zebea and Salmana in to my hade, I wyll thref she youre flesh with thornes of the wyldernisse, and with breares. And from thence he wente vnto Penuel, and spake euen so vnto them. And the me of Penuel gaue him like answer as they of Succoth. And he sayde also vnto the men of Penuel: If I come peaceably agayne, I wil brake downe this tower.

As for Zebea and Salmana, they were at Barkar, and their hoost with them vpon a systene thousande, which were all that were lefte of the whole hoost of the children of the East: for there were fallen an hundred and twentye thousande, that coulde drawe the swerde.

And Gedeon wente vp by the waye, wher they dwell in the tentes on the east side of Nobah and Jakbeha, z smote the hoost, for the hoost was carelesse, and mistrusted nothinge. And Zebea and Salmana fled, but he folowed after them, and toke y two kynges of the Madianites Zebea and Salmana, and put all the hoost in feare.

Now whan Gedeon y sonne of Joas came agayne fro the battayll out of y east, he toke a lad of the men of Succoth, z examyned him, which wrote him vp the names of the rulers of Succoth, and their Elders, eue thre score and seuentene men.

And he came to the men of Succoth, z sayde: Beholde, here is Zebea z Salmana, cocer nyng whō ye laughed me to scorne, z sayde: Are the handes of Zebea and Salmana in thy handes all ready, that we must geue bried vnto thy men which are weery? And he toke the Elders of the cite, and thornes out of the wyldernes, and breares, and caused y men of Succoth to be tome therewith. And the tower of Penuel brake he downe, and slewe the men of the cite.

And he saide vnto Zebea and Salmana: What manner of me were they whō ye slewe at Thabor? They sayde: They were euen liethe, z goodly men, as yf they had bene a kynges childre. He sayde: They were my brethren, euen my mother sonnes: As truly as the LORDE lyueth, yf ye had lettē them lyue, I wolde not slaye you.

And he saide vnto his first borne sonne Jerther: Stonde vp, z slaye them. Howbeit the laddme not out his swerde, for he was afrayd, for so moch as he was yet but a lad. Zebea z Salmana sayde: Stonde thou vp, z slaye vs, for as the man is, soch is also his strength. So Gedeon arose, and slewe Zebea and Salmana, and toke the ornamentes that were aboute their Camels neckes.

Then sayde certayne in Israel vnto Gedeon: Bethou lorde ouer vs, thou and thy sonne, and thy sonnes sonne, for so moch as thou hast deliuered vs from y hande of y Madianites. Neuertheles Gedeon saide vnto them: I wil not be lorde ouer you, nether shal my sonne be lorde ouer you, but the LORDE shal be lorde ouer you.

Gedeon sayde vnto them: One thinge I desyre of you, Euery man geue me the earring that he hath spoyled. (For in so moch as y men were Ismaelites, they had earinges.) They sayde: Them wyll we geue the. And they spied out a cloth, and euery man cast the earringe theron that he had spoyled. And the golden earinges which he requyred, had in weight, a thousande and seuen hundred Syckles of golde, besyde the spanges and theymes, and scarlet rayment which the kynges of the Madianites dyd weere, and besyde the neckbandes of their Camels. And Gideon made a cote armoure therof, and set it in his cite at Aphra. And all Israel wente there a whoringe after it, and it turned to an occasion of fallinge vnto Gedeon and his house.

Thus were y Madianites broughte downe before the children of Israel, and lifte vp their heade no more: and the londe was in rest fortye yeares, as lōge as Gedeon lyued.

And Jerubaal the sonne of Joas wete z dwelt in his house. And Gedeon had thre score z ten sonnes, which were come out of his thye: for he had many wyues. And his concubyne which he had at Sichē, bare him a sonne also, whom he called Abimelech. And Gedeon the sonne of Joas dyed in a good age, z was buried at Aphra in y sepulchre of his father Joas the father of the Esrites.

But whan Gedeon was deed, the childre of Israel turned backe, and wente awhoringe after Baalim, and made a couenaunt w Baal Berith, y he shulde be their God. And y childre of Israel thoughte not on y LORDE their God, which had deliuered them fro the hande of their enemies rounde aboute: and they shewed not mercy vnto the house of Jerubaal Gedeon, acordinge to all the good that he had done vnto Israel.

The IX. Chapter.

Abimelech the sonne of Jerubaal wente vnto Sichē to his mothers brethren, z spake vnto them, z to all the kynred of his mothers fathers house, and sayde: I praye you speake in the eares of all the men at Sichem: What is better for you, that thre score and ten men all children of Jerubaal shulde be lordes ouer you, or that one man shulde be lorde ouer you? Remembre also that I am youre bone and youre flesh.

Then spake his mothers brethren all these wordes for him, in y eares of all y men at Sichem. And their hert enclyned to Abimelech, for they thoughte: He is oure brother: and gaue him thre score and ten syluerlinges out of y house of Baal Berith. And w them Abimelech hyred men that were vagabundes and of light condicions, which folowed him. And he came to his fathers house vnto Aphra, and slew his brethren the children of Jerubaal, euen thre score men and ten vpon one stone. But Jotham the yongest sonne of Jerubaal remayned ouer, for he was hydd. And all the men of Sichem, and all the house of Millo gathered them selues together, and wente and made Abimelech kyng by the Oke that stondech at Sichem.

B When this was tolde Jotham, he wente, and stode vpon the toppe of mount Gufim, and lifte vp his voyce, cried, and sayde: Heare me ye men of Sichem, that God maye heare you also. The trees wente to anointe a kinde ouer them, and sayde vnto the Olyue tre: Bethou oure kynge. But the Olyue tre answered them: Shall I go and leaue my fatnesse (which both God and men commende in me) and go to be pufte vp aboue the trees? Then sayde the trees vnto the fygge tre: Come thou and be kynge ouer vs. But the fygge tre sayde vnto the: Shall I leaue my sweetnes and my good frute, and go to be pufte vp aboue the trees? Then sayde the trees vnto the vyne: Come thou and be oure kynge. But the vyne sayde vnto them: Shall I leaue my swete wyne, which reioyseth God and men, and go to be pufte vp aboue the trees? The sayde all the trees vnto the thorne busshie: Come thou, and be kynge ouer vs. And the thorne busshie sayde vnto the trees: If it be true, & ye anoynte me to be kynge ouer you, the come, and put youre trust vnder my shadowe. If no, then go fyre out of the thorne busshie, & consume & Cedar trees of Liban.

C If ye haue done right now and iustly, & ye haue made Abimelech to be kynge: and yf ye haue done well vnto Jerubaal and to his house, and haue done vnto him as he deserued vnto you. Which (euen my father) foughte for youre sakes, and ioperde his lyfe, to deliuer out of the Madianites hande, eue you, which are rysen vp this daye agaynst my fathers house, & haue slaine his childre, thre score personnes & ten vpon one stone, and haue made you a kynge (euen Abimelech the sonne of his handmaide) ouer the men at Sichem, for somoch as he is youre brother.

If ye haue done right now and iustly vnto Jerubaal and his house this daye, then reioyse ouer Abimelech, and let him reioyse ouer you. If no, then go fyre out from Abimelech, and consume the men of Sichem and the house of Millo: And fyre go out also fro the men of Sichem, and from the house of Millo, and consume Abimelech. And Jotham (whan he had spoken this out) fled, and gat him out of the waye, and wente vnto Ber, and dwelt there because of his brother Abimelech.

D Now whan Abimelech had reigned thre yeare ouer Israel, God sent an euell mynde betwene Abimelech and the men of Sichem (for the men of Sichem despyed Abimelech), and rehearsed the wronge done to the sonnes of Jerubaal, and their bloude, and layed it vpon Abimelech their brethren which slewe them, and vpon the men of Sichem that strenghted his hande thereto, that he mighte slaye his brethren.

And the men of Sichem set an hynder watch vpon the toppes of the mountaynes, and spoyled all them that walked nye them by the waye, and it was tolde Abimelech. But there came Gaal the sonne of Ebed and his brethren, and entred into Sichem, and the men of Sichem put their trust in him, and were out in to the felde, and gathered their vynyardes, and pressed them, and made a daunse, and wente in to their gods house, and ate and drank, and cursed Abimelech.

And Gaal & sonne of Ebed sayde: Who is Abimelech? and what is Sichem, that we shulde serue him? Is he not the sonne of Jerubaal, and hath set Sebul his seruante ouer the men of & Hemor the father of Sichem? Wherfore shulde we serue him? Wolde God the people were vnder my hande, & I mighte put downe Abimelech.

And it was tolde Abimelech: Increasethine hooft, and departe. For Sebul the chiefe ruler of the cite, whan he herde the wordes of Gaal & sonne of Ebed, he was wroth fully displeased, and sente message secretly to Abimelech, and caused to saye vnto him: Beholde, Gaal the sonne of Ebed and his brethren are come to Sichem, and make the cite to be agaynst the.

Arise therfore by nyght, thou and thy people that is with the, and laye wayte for the in the felde: and tomorrow whan the Sonne aryseth, get the vp soone, and fall vpon the cite: and yf he and the people that is with him come out vnto the, the deale with him, as thynne hande fyndeth.

Abimelech stode vp by nyght, and all the people that was with him, and layed wayte for Sichem with foure companies of men of warre. And Gaal the sonne of Ebed went out and stode at the dore of the gate of the cite. But Abimelech gat him vp out of the hynder watch, and the people that was with him. Now whan Gaal sawe the people, he sayde vnto Sebul: Beholde, there cometh a people downe from the toppe of & mount. Sebul saide vnto him: Thou seist & shadowe of the mountaynes as though they were men. Gaal spake yet more and sayde: Beholde, there cometh a people downe from & mountes of the londe, & one bonde of men cometh by the waye to & witch Oke. The sayde Sebul: Where is now & mouth & sayde: Who is Abimelech, that we shulde serue him? Is not this & people, whom thou hast refused? Go forth now, and fighte with him.

Gaal wente forth before the citefyns of Sichem, and foughte with Abimelech. But Abimelech chased him, so that he fled, and there fell many slayne euen vnto the gate of the cite. And Abimelech abode at Aruma. But Sebul droue awaye Gaal and his brethren, so that they must not remayne at Sichem. Vpon the morowe wente the people forth in to & felde. Whan this was tolde Abimelech, he toke the people, and parted them in to thre boddes of men, and wayted for the in the felde. Now whan he sawe & the people were out of the cite, he rose agaynst the, and smote them.

G Abimelech and & company of men that was with him, fell vpon them, and stepte vnto the dore of the porte: but the other two companies fell vpon all them that were in the felde, and slewe them. The foughte Abimelech agaynst the cite all & same daye, and wanne it, and slewe the people that was therein, and brake downe & cite, and sowed salt thereon.

Whan all the men of the tower of Sichem herde this, they wente in to a stronge holde of & house of their God Berith. But whan Abimelech herde, that all the men of the tower of Sichem had gathered the felnes together, he wente vp vnto mount Zelmon, and all the people that was with him, and toke an are in his hande, and hewed downe a braunch of a tre, and toke it vp, & layed it vpon his shulder, and sayde vnto all the people that was with him: As ye haue sene me do, make ye haist, and do euen so as I. Then all the people hewed downe euery one a bransch, and folowed Abimelech: and they layed them to the holde, and set fyre vpon them agaynst them and the holde: and all the men of the tower of Sichem dyed thorough the smoke and fyre, vpon a thousande men and women.

As for Abimelech, he wente vnto Thebez, and layed sege vnto it, and wanne it. But in the myddes of the cite, there was a stronge tower, vnto the which all the men and women, and all the citefyns of the cite fled, and shutt it after them, and clymmed vp to the toppe of the tower. Then came Abimelech vnto the tower, and foughte agaynst it, and came nye vnto the dore of the tower, that he might burne it with fyre. But a woman cast a pece of a mylstone vpon Abimelechs heade, and brake his brane panne. Then Abimelech in all the haist, called the seruante that bare his wapen, and sayde vnto him: Drawe out thy sverde, and kyll me, that it be not sayde of me: A woman hath slayne him. Then his seruante thrust him thorow, and he dyed. Whan the Israelites which were with him, sawe, & Abimelech was deed, they gatt them awaye euery one vnto his awne place.

Thus God recompenced Abimelech the euell that he had done vnto his father, whan he slewe his thre score and ten brethren: like wyse all the euell of the men of Sichem, dyd God rewarde them vpon their heade: and so the curse of Jotham & sonne of Jerubaal came vpon them.

The X. Chapter.

After Abimelech there rose vp another sauoure in Israel, Thola a man of Isachar, and the sonne of Pua, the sonne of Dodo. And he dwelt at Samir vpon the mount Ephraim, and iudged Israel thre and twentye yeare, and died, and was buried at Samir.

After him stode vp one Jair a Gileadite, and iudged Israel two and twentye yeare, and hath thirtie sonnes, rydinge vpon thre tie asses soles: and had thirtie cities, whose names are Jauoth Jair (that is, the cities of Jair) vnto this daye, and lye in Gilead. And Jair dyed, and was buried at Camon.

But the children of Israel wrought wickednes in the sighte of the LORDE, and serued Baalim and Astaroth, and the goddesses of Siria, and the goddesses of Sidon, and the goddesses of Moab, and the goddesses of & children of Ammon, and the goddesses of the philistines, and forsoke & LORDE, and serued him not. Then was & wrath of & LORDE searce vpon Israel, and he gaue the ouer vnder the hande of the philistynes, and of the children of Ammon. And they vexed and oppressed & children of Israel eightene yeare longe, all the children of Israel that were beyonde Jordan in the londe of the Moabites, which lyeth in Gilead. The children of Ammon also wente ouer Iordane, and fought agaynst Juda, Ben Jamin, and agaynst the house of Ephraim, so that Israel was very sore troubled.

C Then cryed the children of Israel vnto the LORDE, and sayde: We haue synned agaynst the, for we haue forsaken oure God, & serued Baalim. But the LORDE sayde vnto the childre of Israel: Did not the Egipcians, the Amorites, the children of Ammon, & Philistines, the Sidonians, the Amalechites and Moabites oppresse you, and I helped you out of their hande, whan ye cryed vnto me? Yet haue ye forsaken me, and serued other goddes: Therfore wyll I helpe you no more. So youre waye, and crye vpon the goddes whom ye haue chosyn, let them helpe you in the tyme of youre trouble.

Deut. 32. 1-6

D But the childre of Israel sayde vnto the LORDE: We haue synned, do thou vnto vs what pleaseth the, onely deliuer vs at this tyme. And they put the straunge goddes fro them, and serued the LORDE. And his soule had pytie on the mysery of Israel.

And the children of Ammon called them selues together, and pitched in Gilead: But the children of Israel gathered them selues together also, and pitched at Mispa. And the people of the chiefe of Gilead sayde amōge them selues: Who so euer begynneth to fight agaynst the children of Ammon, shalbe heade ouer all them that dwell in Gilead.

The XI. Chapter.

A Ephthae a Gileadite was a valeant man of armes, but an harlottes child. Gilead begat Jephthae. But whan the wyfe had borne children vnto Gilead, and the same wyues childre were waxe greete, they thrust out Jephthae, and sayde vnto him: Thou shalt not be here in oure fathers house, for thou art another womans sonne. The fled he from his brethren, and dwelt in the londe of Tob. And there resorted vnto him vagabondes, and were cut with him. And after a certayne tyme foughte the children of Ammon with Israel.

Now whā the childre of Ammon foughte thus with Israel, the Elders wente from Gilead to fetch Jephthae out of the londe of Tob, and sayde vnto him: Come, and be oure caprayne, and fight agaynst the children of Ammon. But Jephthae sayde vnto the Elders of Gilead: Are not ye they that hate me and haue thrust me out of my fathers house, and now come ye to me whan ye are in trouble?

The Elders of Gilead sayde: Therfore me we now againe vnto the, that thou mayest go with vs, and fighte agaynst the children of Ammon, and be oure caprayne ouer all that dwell in Gilead. Jephthae sayde vnto the Elders of Gilead: If ye seeke me agayne to fighte agaynst the childre of Ammon, and the LORDE deliuer them before me, shal I then be youre heade? The Elders of Gilead saide vnto Jephthae: The LORDE be hearer betwene vs, yf we do not as thou hast sayde. So Jephthae wote with the Elders of Gilead. And the people made him heade and duke ouer them. And Jephthae spake all this before the LORDE at Mispa.

Then sente Jephthae messengers to the kynge of the children of Ammon, and caused to saye vnto him: What hast thou to do with me, that thou comest vnto me to fighte agaynst my londe? The kynge of the childre of Ammon answered Jephthaes messengers: Because that Israel toke awaye my londe (whan they departed out of Egypce) from Arnon vnto Iabock, and vnto Iordane: geue it me agayne now therfore peaceably.

But Jephthae sent yet mo messengers to the kynge of the children of Ammon, which sayde vnto him: Thus sayeth Jephthae: Israel hath taken no londe, nether from the Moabites ner from the children of Ammon: for when they departed out of Egypce, Israel walked thorow the wyldernes vnto the reed see, and came to Cades, and sent messengers to the kynge of the Edomites, and sayde: Let me go thorow thy londe. But the kynge of the Edomites wolde not heare the. They sent lykewyse vnto the kynge of the Moabites, which wolde not also. Thus Israel abode in Cades, and compassed the lode of the Edomites and Moabites, and came on the eastsyde of the londe of the Moabites and pitched beyende Arnon, and came not within the coaste of the Moabites. For Arnon is the border of the Moabites.

And Israel sent messengers vnto Sihon the kynge of the Amorites at Heshbon, and caused to saye vnto him: Let me go thorow thy londe vnto my place. Neuertheles Sihon wolde not trust Israel to go thorow the border of his londe, but gathered all his people, and pitched at Jahza, and foughte with Israel. Howebeit the LORDE God of Israel gaue Sihon with all his people in to Israels hande, so that they slewe them. Thus Israel conquered all the londe of the Amorites that dwelt in the same countre. And they toke possessio of all the borders of the Am mon, from Arnon vnto Iabock, & from the wyldernes vnto Iordane. So the LORDE God of Israel dioued awaye the Amorites before his people of Israel, and wilt thou conquere them? Is it not so, yf thy God Camos gaue the oughter to possesse, woldest thou not possesse it? What so euer the LORDE oure God hath geue vs before vs to possesse, that shal we conquere and take in possession.

E Hast thou better right (thinkest thou) the Balac the sonne of Ziphor, the kynge of the Moabites? Dyd he euer go to lawe or fighte agaynst Israel? Though Israel haue dwelt now vpo a thre hundred yere in Heshbon, and in the vyllages therof, in Arzer and in the vyllages therof, and in all the cities that lye by Arnon. Why dyd not ye rescue it at the same tyme? I haue not offended the, & thou doest me euill to fighte agaynst me? The LORDE geue sentence this daie betwene Israel and the children of Ammon.

Neuertheles the kynge of the children of Ammon wolde not heare the wordes of Jephthae, which he sent vnto him. Then came the sperte of the LORDE vpon Jephthae, and he wente thorow Gilead, and Manasse, and thorow Mispa which lieth in Gilead, and fro Mispa that lieth in Gilead, vnto the children of Ammon.

G And Jephthae vowed a vowe vnto the LORDE, and sayde: If thou wilt deliuer the childre of Ammon in to my hande, what so euer cometh (first) out at the dore of my house in my waye, whan I retorne agayne peaceably from the childre of Ammon, that same shalbe the LORDES, and I wyl offere it for a burnt offeringe.

So Jephthae wente vpon the children of Ammon, to fighte agaynst them. And the LORDE gaue them in to his hande, and he smote the from Arzer tyll thou comest vnto Minith, euen twenty cities, and vnto the playne of the vynyardes a very greete slaughter, and thus were the children of Ammon subdued before the children of Israel.

Now whan Jephthae came to Mispa vnto his house, beholde, his daughter wente out to mete him with tabrettes and daunces: and she was his onely childe, & he had els nether sonne ner daughter. And whan he sawe her, he rente his clothes, & sayde: Alas my daughter, thou makest my hert sorowfull, and discomfortest me: for I haue opened my mouth vnto the LORDE, and can not call it agayne.

She sayde: My father, yf thou hast opened thy mouth vnto the LORDE, then do vnto me as it is proceeded out of thy mouth, accordinge as the LORDE hath aneged the of thyne enemies the children of Ammon. And she sayde vnto hir father: Do this for me, geue me leue to go downe vpo the mountaynes two monethes, that I maye beweepe my virginite with my playfeeres. He sayde: Go thy waye. And he let her go two monethes. Then wente she with her playfeeres, and bewayled hir mayden heade vpon the mountaynes. And after two monethes she came agayne vnto hir father. And he dyd vnto her accordinge as he had vowed. And she had neuer bene in daunger of eny man. And it was a custom: in Israel, that the daughters of Israel shulde go euery yere, and mourne for the daughter of Jephthae the Gileadite, foure dayes in the yere.

The XII. Chapter.

Ald thry of Ephraim made insurrection, & wente northwarde, & sayde vnto Jephthae: Wherfore wetest thou to the battayll agaynst the children of Ammon, & hast not called vs, that we mighte go with the? We wil burne thy house and the with fyre. Jephthae sayde vnto the: I and my people had a greete matter with the children of Ammon, and I cried vpon you, but ye helped me not out of their handes. Now whan I sawe the there was no helper, I put my soule in my honde, and wente agaynst the children of Ammon, and the LORDE deliuered them in to my hande. Wherfore come ye vp to me, to fighte agaynst me?

Plal. 118.

And Jephthae gathered all the men in Gilead, & foughte agaynst Ephraim. And the men in Gilead smote Ephraim, because they sayde: Ye Gileadites are as they fle awaye before Ephraim, (and dwell) amōge Ephraim & Manasse. And the Gileadites toke the ferye of Iordane from Ephraim. Now whā one of the fugityue Ephraimites dyd saye: Let me go ouer, yf men of Gilead sayde: Art thou an Ephraimite? yf he answered: No, they bad him saye: Schiboleth, & he sayde: Siboleth, & coude not speake it righte: then they toke him, & slew him at the ferye of Iordane, so the same tyme there fell of Ephraim two & forty men. Jephthae iudged Israel sixe yeres. And Jephthae the Gileadite dyed, & was buried in one of the cities of Gilead.

After him iudged Israel one Ebez of Bethleem, which had thirtie sonnes and as many daughters: and his thirtie daughters gaue he forth to mariage, and thirtie daughters toke he from without for his sonnes, and iudged Israel seven yere, and died, and shoulders & loynes: and wete downe, & dwelt in the stone clyffe at Etam. Then wente the Philistynes vp, and layed sege vnto Iuda, & pitched at Lechi. But they of Iuda sayde: Wherfore are ye come vp against vs? They answered: we are come vp to bynde Samson, & we maye do vnto him, as he hath done vnto vs.

C Then wete there thre M. men of Iuda downe to the stone clyffe of Etam, & sayde vnto Samson: Knowest thou not that the Philistynes raigne ouer vs? Wherfore hast thou done this then vnto vs? He sayde: As they dyd vnto me, so haue I done vnto the agayne. They sayde vnto him: We are come downe to bynde the, & to delyuer & into the hãde of the philistynes. Samson sayde vnto the: Then sweare & promyse me, & ye wyll not slaye me. They answered him: We wyll not kyll the, we wil but bynde the, & delyuer the in to their hande, & wyl not slaye &. And they bounde him with two new coardes & caried him from the stone. And whan he came vnto Lechi, the Philistynes shouted, and rãne vnto him. But & spere of & LORDE came vpon him, & the coardes aboute his armes were like thiedes burnt in the fyre, so & the bondes were lowsed from his bondes.

D And he founde the cheke bone of a deed asse: then put he forth his hande, and toke it, & slewe a thousande men therewith: And Samson sayde: With an olde asses cheke bone, yee eue with the cheke bone of an asse haue I slayne a thousande men. And whan he had sayde &, he cast & cheke bone out of his hande, & called the place Ramath Lechi. But whã he was sore a thyist, he called vpo the LORDE, & saide: Soch greate healtch hast thou genẽ by the hãde of thy seruãnt, but now must I dye a thyist, & fall in to & hande of & vncircũcised. The God opened a gome to the in & cheke bone, so & water wete out: & whan he dranke, his spere came agayne, & he was refreshed. Therfore vnto this daye it is yet called & well of & cheke bone of him & made intercession. And he iudged Israel in the tyme of the philistynes. twetye yere.

The XVI. Chapter.

A Samson wente vnto Gasa: & there he sawe an harlot, & laye with her. The was it saide vnto the Gassites: Samson is come hither. And they compassed him aboute, & caused to laye wayte for him pryncely, & watched all the nyghte in the gate of & cite, & all that nyghte they helde them styll, & sayde: Abyde, tomorrow whan his lighte, we wyll slaye him. But Samson laye vnto mydnyghte, then rose he at mydnyghte, & toke holde on both & syde portes of & gate of the cite, & both the postes, & listethem out with the barres, & layed them vpon his shoulders, & bare them vp to & toppe of & mount over agaynst Hebron.

After this he fell into the loue of a woman by & broke of Sorek, whose name was Dalila, vnto whom the prynces of the philistynes came vp, and sayde vnto her: Persuade him, and loke wherin he hath soch greates strength, & how we maye ouercome him, & we mighte bynde him & subdue him, so wyll we gethe euery man a M. and an C. syluerlinges. And Dalila sayde vnto Samson: I praye the tell me, wherin thy greates strength is, & how thou mightest be bounde to be subdued. Samson sayde vnto her: If I was bounde with seue roapes of fresh senowes, which are not yet dried vp, I shulde be weake, and as another man. The prynces of the philistynes broughte vp vnto her seuen new roapes, which were not yet dried vp, And she bounde him therewith. (But there was wayte layed for him besyde her in the chamber) and she sayde vnto him: The philistynes vpon the Samson. Neuertheles he brake the roapes in sunder, eue as a twyned thiede breaketh, whan it hath catched the heate of the fyre. And it was not knowne wherin his strength was.

Then sayde Dalila vnto Samson: beholde, thou hast begyled me & dyssembled with me: tell me yet, wherwithall mayest thou be bounde? He answered her: If they bounde me with new coardes, wherwith no laber hath bene done, I shulde be feble, & as another man. Then toke Dalila new coardes, & bounde him withall, and sayde: The philistynes vpo the Samson (but there was wayte layed for him in the chamber.) And he bitte them from his armes, euen as it had ben a thiede.

Dalila sayde vnto him: Yet hast thou begyled me & dessembled to me: O tell me yet, wherwithall mightest thou be bounde? He answered her: If thou playtest seue hayre lockes of my heade together in a fyller, and fastenest them in with a nayle (I shulde be weake.) And she saide vnto him: The philistynes vpo the Samson. But he awaked out of his slepe, & drue out & playted hayre lockes with the nale and the fyller.

The sayde she vnto him: How cast thou saye & thou louest me, where as thine hart is not yet with me? Thre tymes hast thou discaued me, and not tolde me wherin thy greates strength is. So whan she was euery daye importune vpon him to her wordes, & wolde not let him haue rest, his soule was saynte euen vnto the deach, & he shewed her his whole hert, & sayde vnto her: There came neuer raseare vpon my heade, for I am a Nazaree of God fro my mothers wombe. If I were shaden, my strength shulde departe frome, so that I shulde be weake, and as all other men. Now whan Dalila sawe that he had opened all his hert vnto her, she sent & called for the prynces of the philistynes, & sayde: Come yet once vp, for he hath opened his whole hert vnto me.

E The came the prynces of the philistynes vnto her, & broughte the money to them in their handes. And she made him to slepe vpon hirlappe, & called one which shoue of the seue hayre lockes of his heade. And she beganne to vere him. The was his strength departed fro him. And she sayde vnto him: The philistynes vpon the Samson. Now whã he awoke out of his slepe, he thoughte: I wil go forth as I haue done aforetyme, & ease my selfe, & knewe not & the LORDE was departed from him. But the philistynes toke him, & put out his eyes, and broughte him downe to Gasa, & bounde him to setters, and made him to grynde in the prison. But the heer of his heade beganne to growe agayne, where it was shauen of.

S Whan & prynces of the philistynes were gathered together, to make a greates sacrifice vnto Dagon their god, and to be ioyfull, they sayde: Oure god hath delyuered Samson of enemye in to & hande. Like wyse whan & people sawe him, they praysed their god, & sayde: Oure god hath delyuered in to oure handes oure enemye, & destroyed oure londe, & slewe many of vs. Now whan their hert was ioyfull, they sayde: Let vs fetch Samson, that he maye make some pastyme before vs. Then fetched they Samson out of the prison, & he made pastyme before them. And they set him betwene two pilers. But Samson sayde vnto the lad & led him by the hande: Let me touche the pilers wher vpon the house stonderth, & I maye leane ther vnto. As for & house, it was full of men & women. All the prynces of the philistynes were there also, and vpon the rose were aboute a thie thousande men and women, which behelde what pastyme Samson made.

G But Samson called vpon the LORDE, & sayde: O LORDE LORDE, thynke vpon me, & strength me but this once O God I beseeke the, & for both myne eyes I maye auẽge me on the philistynes. And he toke holde of & two mydpilers, that the house stode vpon & was holden by, the one in his righte hãde, & & other in his lefte, & saide: My soule dyeth in the philistynes, & he bowed him selfe mightely. Then fell the house vpon the prynces & vpon all the people that were therein, so that there were mo of & slayne which dyed in his deach, the he slewe whyle he lyned. Then came his brethren downe and all his fathers house, and toke him, and caried him vp, and buried him in the grave of his father Manoah betwene Zarga and Esthaol. He iudged Israel twetye yere.

The XVII. Chapter.

T Here was a man vpo mount Ephraim named Micha, which sayde vnto his mother: The thousande and hundred syluerlinges which thou hast taken vnto the, & sworne, and spoken of before myne eares: beholde, & same money is by me, I haue taken it vnto me. Then sayde his mother: The blessinge of the LORDE haue thou my sonne. So he gaue his mother the thousande & hundred syluerlinges agayne. And his mother saide: That money haue I sanctified vnto the LORDE to my hande for my sonne, to make a molten ymage: therfore I geue it the agayne. Neuertheles he delyuered & money agayne vnto his mother.

Then toke his mother two hundred syluerlinges, & put them forth to & goldsyneth, which made a molten ymage, & was afterwarde in Michas house. And thus the man Micha had a gods house, & made an ouerbo dy cote, & Idols, and fylled & handes of one of his sonnes, & he mighte be his prest. At & tyme was there no kynge in Israel, & euery man dyd the thinge & was righte in his awne eyes. There was a ydgeman of Bethleem Iuda, amonge the kynreds of Iuda, and he was a Leuite, and was a straunger there. The same wente out of the cite of Bethleem Iuda, to walke whither he coulde.

And whã he came vp to mount Ephraim unto the house of Micha, to go on his journey. Micha axed him: Whence comest thou? He answered him: I am a Leuite of Bethleem Juda, and am walking where I can. Micha sayde unto him: Tarry with me, thou shalt be my father and my priest, I will geue thee every yeare ten syluerlinges and thy appointed raymer, and meate and drynke: and the Leuite wote on. And the Leuite agreed to abyde with the man: and he helde the yongema, as one of his owne sonnes. And Micha fylled the Leuites hande, that he might be his priest, and so he was in Michas house. And Micha sayde: I am sure the LORDE will do me good now, that I haue a Leuite to my priest.

The XVIII. Chapter.

AT that tyme was there no kynge in Israel. And y<sup>e</sup> trybe of Danites sought them an inheritaunce to dwell in, for vnto that daye there was no inheritaunce fallen vnto them amonge the trybes of Israel. And the childre of Dan sent out of their kynreds fyue captaynes, which were men of armes from Zarga and Esthaol, to spy and search out the londe. And they sayde vnto them: Go youre waie, and search out the londe. And they came vp to mount Ephraim in to y<sup>e</sup> house of Micha, and taried there all nighte. And whyle they were there wth Michas hussholde, they knewe y<sup>e</sup> voyce of the yonge man the Leuite, and sayde vnto him: Who broughte y<sup>e</sup> hither? What makest thou here? and why woldest thou come hither?

He answered the: Thus z thus hath Micha done vnto me, z hath hyed me to be his priest. They sayde vnto him: O are at God, y<sup>e</sup> we maye perceaue, whether oure iourney which we go, shal prospere well or not. The priest answered them: Go youre waie in peace, youre iourney y<sup>e</sup> ye go, is before the LORDE. Then the fyue men wente their waie, z came vnto Lais, and sawe that the people which was therein, dwelt sure, enen as y<sup>e</sup> Sidonians, at rest, and carelesse, and that there was no lorde in the londe to vexethem, and were farre from the Sidonias, and had nothinge to do with eny man.

And they came to their brethre to Zarga and Esthaol. And their brethrien saide vnto them: How is it wth you? They sayde: Arise, let vs go vp vnto them, for we haue sene the londe, y<sup>e</sup> it is a very good londe: make haist therfore, z be not slacke to go, that ye maye come to take possession of the londe. Whan ye come, ye shall come to a carelesse people, and the londe is wyde: for God hath delyue red this place in to y<sup>e</sup> hande, where nought wanteth of all y<sup>e</sup> is vpon earth.

Then wente there thence out of the kynreds of Dan from Zarga and Esthaol, six hundred men ready wapened to y<sup>e</sup> battayll, and wente vp, and pitched at Kiriath Jearim in Juda: therfore called they the same place, y<sup>e</sup> hoost of Dan, vnto this daye, which is behinde Kiriath Jearim.

And fro thence they wote vp vnto mount Ephraim, and came to the house of Micha. Then answered the fyue men that were out to spy the londe of Lais, z sayde vnto their brethrien: Knowe ye not that in these houses there is an overbody cote, Idols, z molten ymages? How maye ye loke what ye haue to do. They departed thence, and came to the house of the yonge man the Leuite in Michas house, and saluted him freely. And the six hundred men, which were of y<sup>e</sup> childre of Dan, stode ready harnessed before y<sup>e</sup> gate. And the fyue men that were gone out to spy y<sup>e</sup> londe, wote vp, and came thither, and toke the ymage, the overbody cote, z the molten Idols. In the meane whyle stode y<sup>e</sup> priest at the gate, with the six hundred ready harnessed.

How whā these were come in to Michas house, and toke the ymage, the overbody cote, and the molten Idols, the priest sayde vnto them: What do ye? They answered him: Holde thy peace, and laye thine hande vpon thy mouth, and go with vs, y<sup>e</sup> thou mayest be oure father z priest. Is it better for thee to be priest in one mans house, then amonge a whole trybe z kynred in Israel? This pleased the priest well, z he toke both the overbody cote, and the Idols, and the ymage, and came in amonge the people. And whan they turned them and wente thence, they sent their children, and catell, and soch precious thynges as they had, before them.

Whan they were come farre now from the house of Micha, the men y<sup>e</sup> were in Michas houses gathered the together by Michas house, z folowed y<sup>e</sup> childre of Dan, and cried vpon the childre of Dan. They turned their faces aboute, and sayde vnto Micha: What ayleth the, y<sup>e</sup> thou makest soch a crying? He answered: Ye haue taken awaye my goddes, and the priest, z are goinge y<sup>e</sup> waie, and what haue I behynde? What is here? And yet ye saye vnto me: What ayleth the? But the childre of Dan saide vnto him: Let not thy voyce be herde amonge vs, that some wrothfull mā thinke not at the, and so y<sup>e</sup> seule and the seule of y<sup>e</sup> house be destroyed. So the childre of Dan wote on their waie. And Micha, whan he sawe y<sup>e</sup> they were to stronge for him, turned backe, and came agayne to his house.

But they toke that Micha had made, z the priest whom he had, z came vnto Lais, to a quere carelesse people, and slew them with the edge of the sparde, and burnt the cite with fyre, and there was no man to delyuer them: for they laye farre fro Sidon, and had to do with no man. And they laye in the valley, which is besyde Beth Rehob. Then burylled they the cite, z dwelt therein, z called it Dan, after name of their father Dan, whom Israel began. And y<sup>e</sup> cite was called Lais afore tyme.

And the childre of Dan set up the ymage for them, and Jonathan, a sonne of Gerson the sonne of Manasse, z his sonnes, were pastes amonge the trybe of Danites, vnto the tyme y<sup>e</sup> they were led awaye captyues out of the londe. And thus they set amonge the ymage of Micha, which he had made, as longe as y<sup>e</sup> house of God was at Silon.

The XIX. Chapter.

AT the same tyme was there no kynge in Israel, and there was a man of Ephraim, which was a stranger besyde mount Ephraim, and had taken him a concubine of Bethleem Juda to wife. And whā she had played the harlot besyde him, she ranne fro him to hir fathers house vnto Bethleem Juda, z was there foure monethes longe. And hir hussholde gat him vp, z wente after her, to speake freely wth her, z to fetch her agayne, z had a seruauit z a couple of asses wth him. And she led him in to hir fathers house. But whan the damsels father sawe him, he was glad, z receaued him: z his father in lawe, y<sup>e</sup> the damsels father kepte him, so y<sup>e</sup> he taried thre dayes wth him: thus they ate and drinke, and remayned there all nighte.

But on y<sup>e</sup> fourth daye he gat him vp early, z wolde go his waie. Then sayde y<sup>e</sup> damsels father vnto his sonne in lawe: Refresh thine hert first wth a morsell of bried, and then shal ye go. And they sat them downe, z ate and dronke both together: Then sayde the damsels father vnto the man: Oh tarrye all nighte, y<sup>e</sup> we waite refresh thine hert. But y<sup>e</sup> mā arose, z wolde needs go. And his father in lawe constrained him to tarrye all nighte. On the fifth daye in the mornynge he gat him vp, and wolde be gone. Then sayde the damsels father: I praye the comfort thine hert, z let vs tarrye tyll y<sup>e</sup> daye be farther past, and so they ate both together.

And the man gat him vp, and wolde go with his concubine and with his seruauit. But his father in lawe the damsels father, saide vnto hit agayne: Lo, the daye is spent, z it begynneth to be euen, tarry all nighte beholde, here is lodgyng yet this daye, abyde here this night, it shal refresh thine hert tomorrow by tynes get you vp, and go youre waie vnto thy sent. Nevertheless the man wolde not tarry, but gat him vp, and wote his waye, and came ouer agaynst Jebus (that is Jerusalem) and his couple of asses lade, and his concubine with him.

How whan they were come nye vnto Jebus, the daye fell fast awaye. And y<sup>e</sup> seruauit saide vnto his master: I praye you go on, and let vs tyme in to this cite of the Jebusites, and tarrye therein all nighte. For withstonding his master sayde vnto him: I wil not turre in to y<sup>e</sup> cite of the alehunnites, that are not of the childre of Israel, but I wil go ether vnto Gibeā. And he sayde vnto his seruauit: Go thou before, that we maye come to some place, and tarrye at Gibeā or at Ramah all nighte. And they wente on and walked, and the Sonne wote downe vpon the harde by Gibeā, which lyeth in the trybe of Ben Jamin: and they turned in there, y<sup>e</sup> they mighte come in, and tarrye at Gibeā all nighte. But whan he came in, he sat him downe in y<sup>e</sup> strete of the cite: for there was noman that wolde lodge them in his house that night.

And beholde, then came there an olde mā from his worke out of the felde in the eueninge: and he was also of mount Ephraim, and a stranger at Gibeā: but y<sup>e</sup> mā of that place were y<sup>e</sup> childre of Jemini. And whan he lifte vp his eyes, z sawe the stranger in the strete he sayde vnto him: Whither wilt thou go? z whence comest thou? He answered him: We are goinge on oure iourney from Betleē Juda, vntill we come besyde mount Ephraim, whēce I am, and wente vnto Bethleem Juda: and now I go vnto y<sup>e</sup> house of y<sup>e</sup> LORDE: z no mā wil harborow me. We haue strawe and prouender for oure asses, and bried and wyne for me and thy handmayden, and for the yonge man which is with thy seruauit, so y<sup>e</sup> we wante nothinge.

The olde man sayde: Peace be with the: what soener thou wantest, thou findest it wth me, onely tarrye not in the strete all nighte. And he broughte him in to his house, and gaue the asses prouender: and they washed their fete, and ate z dronke. And whā their hert was now ioysfull, the men of the cite, the childre of Belial, came, and compassed

the house rounde aboute, and russhed at 3 dore, and sayde vnto 3 olde man, which was the good man of 3 house: Bynge out the mā which is come in to thy house, that we maye knowe him.

129. b

But the good man of the house wente
forth to them, and sayde vnto them: Oh no my brethren, do not so wickedly, consideringe this man is come in to my house: Oh do not soch folye. Beholde, I have a daughter yet a virgin, and this man hath a concubine, those will I brynge forth vnto you, that ye maye humble them, and do with them as ye lyke:
but do not soch foly vnto this man. Neuer-theles the men wolde not herten vnto him.
Then toke 3 man his concubine and brought te her forth vnto them: and they knewe her,
and dealee shamefully with her all 3 nyghte vntill the mornynge. And whan the mornyn-ge brake on, they let her go.

Then came the woman early in the mor-nynge, and fell downe at the dore of the mā's house that her lord was in, and laye there tyll it was light. Now whan hir lord rose vp in the mornynge, and opened the dore of the house, and wente forth to go on his iour-ney, beholde, his concubine laye at the dore of the house, and hir handes vpon the chief holde. He saide vnto her: stonde vp, let vs go.
Neuertheles she gaue him no answer. The toke he her vp vpon his asse, gat him vp, and wente vnto his place.

Now whan he came home, he toke a swerde, and helde his concubine, and cut her w
the bones and all in to twolue peces, and sent them in to all the coastes of Israel. Who so ever sawe it, sayde: Soch a thinge hath not bene done ner sene, sence the tyme that 3 children of Israel departed out of the londe of Egipte, vnto this daye. Now as concernyn-ge this, take youre aduysment, and gene ys
counsell, and shew it forth.

The XX. Chapter.

Then wente the children of Israel out and gathered a congregacion together as one man, fro Dan vntill Ber-saba, and from the londe of Gilead vnto the LORDE to Mispa: and there came together of all the quarters of the people, and of all the trybes of Israel in to the congregacion of the people of God, foure hundred thon-sande fore men that drewe out 3 swerde. But the children of Ben Jamin herde, how that 3 children of Israel were gone vp vnto Mis-pa. And the children of Israel sayde: Tell vs, how happened this euell?

Then answered the Leuite the husbände

of the woman that was slayne, and sayde:
came to Gibeā in Ben Jamin with my concubine, to tary there all nyght, then the opesins of Gibeā gat them vp agaynst me, and compased me aboute in the house by nyght, and thoughte to slaye me, and defyled my cubine, so that she dyed: then toke I my cubine, and cut her in peces, and sent the pe-ces in to euery countre of the inheritaunce of Israel: for they haue done an abhomincion and folye in Israel. Beholde, here are 3 children of Israel: aduysse you well, and take this matter in hande.

So all the people gat them vp as one man, and sayde: Noma shal go in to his tent, and departe to his house, but this wil we do now agaynst Gibeā: Let vs cast lot, and take men of an hundred, and an hundred of a thousande, and a thousande of ten thousande, out of all 3 trybes of Israel, 3 they maie take sode for 3 people, to come & do with Gibeā Ben Jamin, acordinge to their sotte, which they haue done in Israel. Thus all the men of Israel beyng confederate, gathered them selues together as one man vnto the cite: and the trybes of Israel sent men vnto
all the kindreds of Ben Jamin, and causede
saye vnto them: What maner of wickednes is this, that is done amonge you? Delyuer retherfore the men the children of Belial at Gibeā, that we maye put them to death, and do awaye the euell out of Israel. Neuertheles the children of Ben Jamin wolde not followe the voyce of their brethren the children of Israel, but gathered them selues out of 3
cites vnto Gibeā, to go forth in battaylle
agaynst the children of Israel.

And the same daye were there nombred
of the children of Ben Jamin out of the cities, fise and twentye thousande men, that drew the swerde, beside the cite syns of Gibeā of whom there were tolde sene hundred thon-sen men. And amonge all this people there were chosen out seven hundred men, which vsed not the right hande but the lefte, and yet w
the slynge coulde they touch an heer, and not myffe. But the men of Israel, beside them of Ben Jamin, were nobred foure hundred thousande, which drew the swerde, & were all men of armes. And the children of Israel arose, and wente vp to the house of God (in Silo)
and axed at God, and sayde: Who shal go vp for vs to begynne the battayll with 3 children of Ben Jamin? The LORDE saide: Iuda shal begynne.

So the children of Israel gat the vp in 3
mornynge, & pitched ouer agaynst Gibeā, & enman of Israel were out to fighte with Ben Jamin, and set them selues in araye to fighte agaynst Gibeā. Then fell the children of Ben Jamin out of Gibeā, and slewe the same daye amonge Israel two & twentye thousande to the grounde.

But the people of the men of Israel com-forced them selues, and made them ready to fighte yet more in the same place, after they had prepared them selues the daye afore.
And the children of Israel wente vp, and wepte before the LORDE vntill the euenyn-ge, and axed at the LORDE, & sayde: Shall we go enymore to fighte with oure brethren,
the children of Ben Jamin? The LORDE sayde: Go vp vnto them. And whan the children of Israel gat them vp to the childre of Ben Jamin on 3 next daye, the Ben Jami-tes fell out of Gibeā agaynst them the same daye, and slewe yet eightene thousande of 3 children of Israel to the grounde, which all drew the swerde.

Then wente all the children of Israel vp,
and all the people, and came to the house of God, and wepte, and caried there before the LORDE, & fasted that daye vntill the euening, and offered burnt offerynges and deed offerin-ges before the LORDE. And the children of Israel axed at the LORDE (the Arke of the covenant of God was there at that tyme, and phineas the sonne of Eleasar the sonne of Aaron stode before him at the same tyme) & they sayde: Shal we go forth enymore to fighte with oure brethren the childre of Ben Jamin, or shal we leaue of? The LOR-DE sayde: Go vp, tomorrow wyll I delyuer them in to youre handes.

And the children of Israel set a priuy watch agaynst Gibeā rounde aboute, and so the children of Israel wente vp to the children of Ben Jamin on the thirde daye, and set them selues in araye agaynst Gibeā like as the other two tymes afore. The came the children of Ben Jamin out agaynst the people, & brake out of the cite, & beganne to slaye certaine wounded of the people (like as the other two tymes afore) in the selde vpon two stretes: wher of one goeth towarde Bethel,

the other vnto Gilead vpon a thirtie men in Israel. Then thought the childre of Ben Jamin: They are smytten before vs like as afore. But the childre of Israel sayde: Let vs flye, that we maie prouoke them out of the cite in to the hye stretes.

Then all the men of Israel gat them vp from their place, and prepared them selues vnto Baal Thamar. And the hinder watch of Israel brake out of their place, from 3 caue of Gaba, and came vnto Gibeā, twentye thousande chosen men out of all Israel, so that it was a fore battayll: but they knewe
not that the euell shulde happen vnto them.
Thus the LORDE smote Ben Jamin before the children of Israel, so that the same daye
the children of Israel destroyed fyue & twen-tye thousande and an hundred men in Ben Jamin, which all drew the swerde.

For whan the childre of Ben Jamin sawe that they were smitten, the men of Israel ga-ue them rowme (to flye). For they trusted to the watch, which they had sett by Gibeā.
And the watch made haist also, & brake forth
vnto Gibeā, and wente vpon it, and smote all the cite with the edge of 3 swerde. They were appoynted betwene them selues the men of Israel and the hynder watch, to fall
vpon them with the swerde, whan the smoke of the cite arose. Now whan the men of Israel turned them in the battayll, and Ben Jamin beganne to smyte the wounded in Israel vpon a thirtie men, and thoughte, they are smytten before vs, like as in the battayll afore, then beganne there a piler of smoke to arise vp from the cite. And Ben Jamin looked behinde them: and beholde, the flamme of 3 cite wente vp vnto heauen. And the men of Israel turned them, and were fearce vpon 3 men of Ben Jamin: for they sawe that the euell wolde happen vnto them.

And they turned them before the men of Israel in the waye to the wyldernes, but the battayll folowed vpon them. And them of the cite destroyed they amonge them. And they compassed Ben Jamin rounde aboute, and folowed vpon them vnto Mennah, and trode them downe tyll afore Gibeā east-warde. And there fell of Ben Jamin eightene thousande men, which were all men of armes.

Whan the remmaunt of Ben Jamin sawe that, they turned them and fled towarde the wyldernes vnto the stonye rocke of Rimoni

The boke of the Judges.

But in the same strete they slewe fyue thousande men, and folowed vpon them vnto Gideon, and slewe two thousande of the: and so there fell the same daye of Ben Jamin fyue and twenty thousande men which drewe & siberde, and were all men of armes. Onely sixe hundred men turned backe, and fled toward the wyldernesse vnto the stonye rocke of Rimmon, and abode in the rocke of Rimmon foure monethes. And the men of Israel came agayne to the children of Ben Jamin, and smote them that were in the cite with the edge of the swerde, both men and catell and all that was founde: and what soeuer was founde in the cite, they cast it into the fyre.

The XXI. Chapter.

The men of Israel had sworn at Mizpa, and sayde: A man shal geue his daughter to the Ben Jaminites to wife. And the people came to the house of God (in Silo) and abode there before God vntill the enenyng, and lifte vp their voyce, and wept sore, and sayde: O LORD God of Israel, wherfore is this come to passe in Israel this daye? But on the morow the people gat the vp early, and builded there an altare, and offered burnt offerings and deed offerings.

And the children of Israel sayde: Where is there any man of the trybes of Israel, that is not come vp with the congregacion vnto the LORD? For there was a greete oath made, that whoso came not vp to Mizpa vnto the LORD, shulde dye the death. And the children of Israel were sorry for Ben Jamin their brother, and sayde: This daye is there one trybe lesse in Israel. How wyll we do that the remnant maye haue wyues? For we haue sworn by the LORD, that we wyl not geue the wyues of oure daughters. And they saide: Where is there any man of the trybes of Israel, that is not come vp to the LORD vnto Mizpa? And beholde, there was not one man of the citesyns of Jabes in Gilead.

Then sent the congregacion twelue thousande men of armes thither, and commaunded them, and sayde: Go youre waye, and smite the citesyns of Jabes in Gilead with the swerde, the women also and the children, but so that ye do after this maner: * Se that ye damne all them that are males, and all the women that haue lyen with men. And amonge the citesyns of Jabes in Gilead they founde foure hundred damselfs, which were virgins, and had lyen with noman: those they broughte into the hoost vnto Silo, which lyeth in the londe of Canaan.

The xxi. Chap.

Then sent the whole congregacion, and caused to talke with the children of Ben Jamin, which were in the stonye rocke of Rimmon, and called vnto them friendly. So the children of Ben Jamin came agayne at the same tyme, and they gaue them women which they had of the women of Jabes in Gilead, and founde no more after that maner. Then were the people sorry for Ben Jamin, that the LORD had made a gaffe in the trybes of Israel. And the Elders of the congregacion sayde: What wil we do, that the remnant maye haue wyues also: for the women in Ben Jamin are destroyed, and they sayde: The inheritance of them of Ben Jamin that are escaped, must nedes remayne, that there be not a trybe destroyed out of Israel: for we can not geue them oure daughters to wyues, for the children of Israel haue sworn and sayde: Cursed be he that geueth a wyfe to the Ben Jaminites.

And they sayde: Beholde there is a yearly feast of the LORD at Silo, which lieth on the northsyde of the Gods house, and on the eastsyde of the strete as a man goeth from Bethel vnto Sichem, and lieth on the southsyde of Libanus. And they commaunded the children of Ben Jamin, and sayde: Go youre waye, and wayte in the vynyards. And when ye see that the daughters of Silo go forth by companies to daunce, get you out of the vynyards, and every man take him a wyfe of the daughters of Silo, and go youre waye into the lode of Ben Jamin. As for their fathers and brethien, whan they come to lawe with vs, we wyll saye vnto them: Be favourable to them, for they haue not taken the in battail: but ye gaue them not vnto them by time, and it is youre faulte.

The children of Ben Jamin did so, and accordinge to their nombre toke them wyues from the daunce, whom they caught by violence, and wente their waye, and dwelt in their awne inheritance, and buylded cities and dwelt therein. The children of Israel also gat them vp from thence at the same time, every one to his trybe and to his kindred, and departed thence, every man to his awne inheritance. * At that tyme was there no kynge in Israel, and every man dyd as thinge he was right in his awne eyes.

The first Chapter.

At that tyme whan the Judges ruled, there was a deth in the londe. And there wente a man from Bethleem Juda to take his iourney into the londe of the Moabites with his wyfe and two sonnes, which man was called Elimelech, and his wyfe Naomi, and his two sonnes, the one Mahelon, and the other Chilion: these were Ephraites of Bethleem Juda. And whan they came into the londe of the Moabites, they dwelt there. And Elimelech Naomis husbände dyed, and she was left behinde with hir two sonnes, which toke Moabitish wyues: the one was called Arpa, the other Ruth. And whan they had dwelt there ten yere, they dyed both, Mahelon and Chilion, so that the woman remayned desolate of both hir sonnes and hir husbände.

Then gat she her vp with both hir sonnes wyues, and wente agayne out of the lode of the Moabites (for she had herde in the londe of the Moabites, that the LORD had visited his people and geuen them bried) and so she departed from that place where she was, and both hir sonnes wyues with her. And as they were by the waye to come agayne into the londe of Juda, she sayde vnto both hir sonnes wyues: Go youre waye, and turne backe ether of you to hir mothers house: the LORD shewe mercy vpon you, as ye haue done on the daye that ye departed from me. The LORD graunte you, that ye maye fynde rest ether of you in hir husbādes house (whom ye shal get) and she kysed them.

Then lifte they vp their voyce, and wepte, and sayde vnto her: We wil go with the vnto

& people. But Naomi sayde: Turne agayne my daughters, why wolde ye go with me? How can I haue children enymore in my body, to be youre husbādes? Turne agayne my daughters, and go youre waye, for I am now to olde to take an husbāde.

And though I shulde saye: I hope this might to take an husbāde and to brynge forth children, yet coulde ye not tary till they were growne vp: for ye shulde be to olde, so that ye coulde haue no husbādes. No my daughters, therfore am I sorry for you, for ye haue of the LORD is gone forth ouer me.

Then lifte they vp their voyce, and wept yet more, and Arpa kysed hir mother in lawe (and turned backe agayne but Ruth abode styll by her). Then theles she sayde: Beholde, thy syster in lawe is turned backe vnto hir people and to hir god, turne thou agayne also after thy syster in lawe. Ruth answered: Speake not come therof, that I shulde forsake the, and turne backe from the: whither so ever thou goest, thither wil I go also: and loke where thou abydest, there wil I abide also: Thy people is my people, and thy God is my God. Loke where thou diest, there wil I dye, and enen there wil I also be buried. The LORD do this and that vnto me, death only shal departe fro.

Now whan she sawe, that she wassted fastly mynded to go with her, she spake no more to her therof. So they wente on both together, till they came vnto Bethleem. And whan they were come in to Bethleem, the whole cite was moued ouer them, and sayde: Is not this Naomi? Then theles she sayde vnto them: call me not Naomi, but Mara: for the Almighty hath made me very sorry. I departed full, but the LORD hath brought me home agayne emptye. Why call ye me then Naomi? whan the LORD hath brought me lowe, and the Almighty hath made me sorry?

It was aboute the tyme of the begynninge of the barley harvest, whan Naomi and his sonnes wyfe Ruth & Moabitysse, came agayne from the londe of the Moabites vnto Bethleem. There was a kinsman also of the kynred of Elimelech Naomis husbāde, whose name was Boos, which was an honest man. The II. Chapter.

No Ruth the Moabitysse saide vnto Naomi: Let me go in to thy felde, and gather eares of corne, after him, in whose sight I shal fynde fauor. She sayde vnto her: Go & waite my daughter. She wente on, and came & gathered after the reapers in thy felde. And it fortuned that the same felde was the enheritaunce of Boos, which was of the kynred of Elimelech, and beholde, Boos came from Bethleem, and sayde vnto the reapers: The LORDE be with you. They answered: The LORDE blesse the. And Boos sayde vnto his yongman which had the oversight of 3 reapers. Whose damsell is this? The yonge man that was set ouer 3 reapers, answered and sayde: It is the damsell the Moabitisse, which came agayne with Naemi from the londe of the Moabites. And she sayde: Let me plucke vp and gather (I praye the) betwene the sheues after the reapers: and thus is she come, and hath stonde here ever sence the mourninge, and within a litle whyle she wolde haue bene gone home agayne.

Then sayde Boos vnto Ruth: Hearst thou my daughter? Thou shalt not come vpon another mans londeto gather, and go not awaye from hence, but tary with my dā sels, and loke where they reape in 3 felde, go thou after them: for I haue commaunded my seruauntes that no man touch the. And yf thou be a chyst, go thy waye to the vessell 2 drynke, where my seruauntes drawe. Then fell she downe vpon his face, and bowed herself downe to the earth, and sayde vnto him: How haue I founde this fauoure in 3 sighte, that thou woldest knowe me, which am yet a straunger?

Boos answered and sayde vnto her: It is tolde me altogether, what thou hast done vnto thy mother in lawe after thy husbandes death, how that thou hast left 3 father and thy mother, and thy native countre, and art come to a people, whom thou hast not knowne afore. The LORDE recompence the thy doinge, and thy rewarde be perfecte. The LORDE God of Israel, vnto whom thou art come to put thy trust vnder his wynges. She sayde: let me fynde fauoure (3r) before thyne eyes, for thou hast comforted me, and spoken frendly vnto thy handmayde, where as I am not yet like one of 3 handmaydes.

Boos sayde vnto her: Whan it is eatinge tyme, come hither, and eate of the bried, and dyppe thy morsell in the vyneger. And she sat hir downe besyde the reapers. And he set parched come before her, and she ate, 2 was satisfied, and lefte ouer. And whā she rose to gather, Boos commaunded his seruauntes, and sayde: Let her gather betwene the sheues also, and do her no dishonestye: and cast of the sheues vnto her, and let it lye that she maye gather it vp, and se that no man reprove her for it.

So she gathered in the felde vntill euen and she shated out what she had gathered, and it was almost an Ephā of barley: and she toke it vp, and came in to the cite, and shewed hir mother in lawe what she had gathered. She toke forth also, and gaue her of that which was left, wherof she was satisfied. The sayde hir mother in lawe vnto her: Blessinge haue the man that hath knowen the, where thou hast gathered and laboured this daye.

She tolde hir mother in lawe by whom she had laboured, and sayde: The mans name, by whom I haue wroughte to daye, is Boos. Naemi sayde vnto hir daughter in lawe: The blessinge of the LORDE haue, for he hath not lefte of to be mercifull vnto the lyuynge, and to the deed. And Naemi sayde vnto her: The same man belongeth to vs, and is oure nye kynsman. Ruth the Moabitisse saide: He saide mozeouer vnto me: Thou shalt resorte vnto my seruauntes, till they haue made an ende of all my harvest. Naemi sayde vnto Ruth hir daughter in lawe: It is better my daughter, that thou go forth with his damself, lest eny man withsede the in another felde. Thus she kepte herselfe with Boos damself, so that she gathered vntill the barley harvest and the wheat harvest was out, and came agayne to hir mother in lawe.

The III. Chapter.

And Naemi hir mother in lawe sayde vnto her: My daughter, I wyll prouyde rest for the, that thou maiest prosper. Boos oure kynsman, by whose damself thou hast bene, casteth vp barley now this night in his barne. Bathe thyselfe therfor, and mossell the, and put on thy clothes, and go downe vnto the barne, so 3 noma knowe the, till they haue all eaten and dynten.

Whan he layeth him downe then to sleepe, mark 3 place where he lyeth downe, and come thou, and take vp the conerynge at his fete, and laye the downe, so shall he tell the what thou shalt do. She sayde vnto her: what so euer thou saiest vnto me, I wil do it.

She wente downe to the barne, 2 byd all as hir mother in lawe had commaunded her. And whā Boos had eate 2 drynke, his hart was mery, 2 he came and layed him downe behynde a heape of sheues. And she came secretly, and toke vp the conerynge at his fete, and layed hir downe. Now whā it was midnight, the man was a frayd, and groped aboute him, and beholde, a woman laye at his fete. And he sayde: Who art thou? She sware: I am Ruth thy handmayden, spreade 3 wynges ouer thy handmayden: for thou art the nexte kynsman.

He sayde: The LORDEs blessinge haue thou my daughter. Thou hast done a better mercy here after then before, 3 thou art not gone after yonge men, nether riche ner poore. Feare not now my daughter: All 3 thou hast sayde, will I do for the: for all the cite of my people knoweth, 3 thou art a vertuous woman. Trueth it is now, 3 I am a nye kynsman, but there is one nyer then I. Tarye thou all night. Tomorrow yf he take the, well: yf he like not to take 3, then wil I take 3 my selfe, as truly as 3 LORDE lyueth. Slepe thou till 3 morninge. And she slepte at his fete vntill 3 morow. And she rose vp or euer one coulde knowe another. And he thoughte thus: That no mā knowe now 3 there hath come a woman in to the barne, and he sayde: Reach meth the cloke 3 thou hast on the, 2 holde it forth. And she helde it forth. And he meet her sixe measures of barley, and layed it vpon her, 2 she wente in to the cite, 2 came to hir mother in lawe, which sayde: How is it with the my daughter? And she tolde her all 3 she mā had done vnto her, 2 sayde: These sixe measures of barley gaue he me, for he sayde: Thou shalt not come emptye vnto 3 mother in lawe. She sayde: Abyde my daughter, till thou se what 3 matter wil growe to: for the man wil not ceasse, till he brynge it to an ende this daye.

The III. Chapter.

Boos wente vp to 3 gate, and sat him downe there: 2 beholde, whan 3 nye kynsman wente by, Boos spake vnto him, 2 sayde: Come 2 syt the downe here (and called him by his name.) And he came 2 sat him downe, 2 he toke ten men of the Elders of 3 cite, 2 sayde: Syt you downe here. And they sat the downe. The sayde he to the nye kynsman: Naemi which is come agayne fro the lode of the Moabites, offreth to sell 3 pece of londe, 3 was oure brothers Eli Melech, therfore thoughte I to shewe it before thine eares, 2 to tell the: Yf thou wilt rede me it, then bye it before the citesyns 2 before the Elders of my people: but yf thou wilt not rede me it, then tell me, 3 I maie knowe: for there is no nye kynsman excepte thou, and I nexte after the.

He sayde: I wil rede me it. Boos saide: In the daye 3 thou byest the lode out of 3 hande of Naemi, thou must take Ruth also the Moabitisse the wife of the deed, that thou mayest rayse vp a name to 3 deed in his inhe ritaunce. The sayde he: I can not rede me it, lest I haplye destroye myne awne enheritaunce. Redeme thou 3 I shulde rede me, for I can not rede me it. But this was an olde custome in Israel concernynge the redemynge 2 chaunginge, 3 all matters mighte be stable, the one put of his shue, 2 gaue it vnto 3 other: 3 was the testimony in Israel.

And the nye kynsman sayde vnto Boos: Bye thou it, 2 he put of his shue. And Boos sayde vnto the Elders and to all the people: Ye are witnesses this daie, 3 I haue boughte out of the hande of Naemi, all that belongeth to Eli Melech, and all that was Chelions and Mahelons: And Ruth the Moabitisse Mahelons wife, take I to wife, that I maye rayse vp a name vnto 3 deed in his inheritance, and that his name be not ro- ted out from amonge his brethren, and out of the gate of his place: Of this are ye witnesses. And all the people that was in the gate with the Elders, saide: We are witnesses. The LORDE make the woman that cometh in to thy house, as Rachel and Lea (which both haue bylded vpon the house of Israel) that she maye be an ensample of vertue in Ephraim, and haue an honorable name in Bethleem. And thy house be as 3 house of Phares (whos Thamar bare vnto Iuda) thow the sede, that the LORDE shall gene the of this damself.

So Boos roke Ruth, and she became his wife. And whan he laye with her, the LORDE graunted her 3 she conceived, and bare a sonne. The sayde the women vnto Naemi: Praysed be the LORDE, which hath not suffered a kynsman to ceasse from the at this tyme, that his name maye contynue in Israel: he shal restore thy life agayne, and prouyde for thine age. For 3 somes wife which hath loned the, hath borne him that is better vnto the, then seven sonnes.

And Naemi toke the childe, and layde it vpon hir lappe, and became the nurse of it, and hir neighbours gaue him a name 2 sayde: There is a childe borne vnto Naemi, and they called his name Obed. The same is the father of Isai, which is 3 father of Dauid.

This is 3 generacion of Phares. Phares begat Hesrom. Hesrom begat Aram. Aram begat Aminadab. Aminadab begat Naasson. Naasson begat Salmon. Salmon begat Boos. Boos begat Obed. Obed begat Isai. Isai begat Dauid.

The i. boke of the kynges.

The first Chapter.

There was a man of Ramathaim Sophim
of mount Ephraim,
whose name was Eli cana & sonne of Jero ham, & sonne of Eli
hu, & sonne of Tohu, & sonne of Zuph, &
was an Ephraite. And he had two wyues, & one was called Anna, & other Peninna.
As for Peninna, she had children, but Anna had no child. And yf same man wote vp fro his cite at his tyme, to worshippe, and to offer vnto the LORDE Zebaoth at Silo. The re were the prestes of the LORDE Ophni and Phineas, the two sonnes of Eli. Now whan it came vpon a daye that Elcana of fired, he gaue partes vnto his wife Peninna, and to all his sonnes and daughters. But vnto Anna he gaue one deale henely, for he loued Anna. Nevertheless the LORDE had closed hir wombe, & hir aduersary cast her in the tette with hir vnfructifullnes, be cause the LORDE had closed hir wombe:
thus dyd she every yere, whan they wente
vp to the house of the LORDE, and thus she prouoked her. So she wepte, and ate no thinge. But Elcana hir husbände sayde vn to her: Wherfore wepest thou? and why ea test thou not? And wherfore is thine hert so griued? Am not I better vnto the then ten sonnes?

Then stode Anna vp, whan she had ea ten and dronken at Silo. But Eli the prest sat vpon a stole by the poste of the temple of the LORDE. And she was full of henyn in hir herte, and prayed vnto the LOR DE, and wepte, and vowed a vowe, and say de: O LORDE Zebaoth, yf thou wilt lōke vpon the aduersite of thy handmayden, and thynte vpon me, and not forget thy hand mayden, and wilt geue thy handmayden a sonne, I wil geue him vnto the LORDE all his life longe, & and there shal no rasoure co me vpon his heade.

And whā she had prayed longe before & LORDE, Eli toke hede to hir mouth, for An na spake in hir hert, hir lippes onely moued, but hir voyce was not herde. Then thought te Eli she had bene dronken, and sayde vnto her: How longe wilt thou be dronken? Let come from the the wyne that thou hast by
the. Nevertheless Anna answered and sayde:
No my lord. I am a sorowfull woman, wy ne and stronge drynke haue I not dronken
but haue poured out my hert before & LOR DE. Counte not thy handmayden a dought ter of Belial: for out of my heuy thoughte and sorow haue I spoken hitherto.

Eli answered her, and sayde: Go y waye
in peace, the God of Israel shal graunte &
thy peticion that thou hast desired of him.
She sayde: Let thy handmayden synde fa uoure in thy sighte. So the woman wente hir waye and ate, and loked nomore so sorow fully: and on y morow they gat them vp by tymes. And whan they had worshipped be fore & LORDE, they returned, and came ho me vnto Ramatha.

And Elcana laye with Anna his wife, and the LORDE remembred her. And after certayne dayes, she conceaued and bare a son ne, and called his name Samuel, for I haue desired him (sayde she) of the LORDE. And whan the man Elcana wente vp with all his household to offre sacrifice and his vo
we vnto the LORDE at soch tyme as y cus
tome was, Anna wente not vp, but sayde vn to hir husbände: (I wil not go vp) tyll y chil de be weened: then will I brynge him, that he maye appeare before the LORDE, and co ntinue there for ever.

Elcana hir husbände sayde vnto her: D o as thou thyntest best, tary tyll thou haue weened him: but the LORDE persour me that he hath spoken. So the woman abo de, and gaue hir sonne sucke, tyll she weened him. And whan she had weened him, she broughte him vp with her, with the bulloc kes, with an Ephie of fyne floure, and a bot tell of wyne, and broughte him in to y hon
se of the LORDE at Silo.

Nevertheless the childe was yet but yon
ge. And they slewe a bullocke, and broughte the childe vnto Eli. And she sayde: O my lorde, as truly as thy soule lyueth my lord,
I am the woman that stode here by y, and made intercession vnto the LORDE, whan
I prayed for this childe. Now hath y LOR
DE graunted me my peticion, which I desy
re.

red of him, therefore haue I geuen him ouer vnto the LORDE, as long as he is lent vnto the LORDE. And they worshipped the LORDE there.

The II. Chapter.

And Anna prayed, and sayde:

My heart reioyseth in the LORDE, & my home is exalted in the LORDE.

My mouth is opened wyde vpon myne enemies, for I am glad of thy saluacion.

There is no man holy as the LORDE, for without the is nothinge, and there is no comferte like vnto oure God.

Let go ye greate boostinge of hye thynges, let go out of youre mouth that olde byworde: for the LORDE is a God & knoweth all thynges, & he hath set all workes in order.

The bowe of the mightie is broken, and the weake are gyrded aboute with strengthe.

They that were fylled afore, are solde for bryd: and they that were hongrie, are satisfied: vntyll the baren bare seuen, and tyll she that had many childre, was become weake.

The LORDE slayeth, and geueth life: he ledeth vnto hell, and bryngeth out agayne.

The LORDE maketh poore and maketh riche: he bryngeth lowe and exalteth.

He taketh vp the mealy out of the dust, and lifteth vp the poore out of the myre, that he maye set them amonge the prynces, and to let them inheret the seate of honoure: for the foundations and corners of the worlde are the LORDES, and he hath set the compass of the earth thereon.

He shall preserue the fete of his sayntes, but the vngodly shall be put to sylence in darkness. For there is no man that can do oughte of his owne power.

The LORDES enemies shall be put in feare before him, he shall thoder vpon the in heauē.

The LORDE shall iudge the endes of the worlde, & shall geue strengthe vnto his kynge, & shall exalte the home of his anoynted.

Elcana wente his waye to Ramath vnto his house. And the childe became the LORDES mynister before Eli the prest. But Elis sonnes were the childre of Belial, and knewe not the LORDE, ner the durye of the prestes vnto the people: but whan eny man wolde offre oughte, the prestes boye came, whyle the flesh was seethinge, and had a thre forked fleshoke in his hande, and thrust it in to the cauldron, or kettel, or panne, or pot: and toke what he dide forth with the fleshoke, that toke the prest therof. Thus dyd they vnto all Israel, which came thither vnto Silo.

Like wyse, or euer they burned the fatt, the prestes lad came, and sayde vnto him that broughte the offerynge: Geue me the flesh, that I maye roste it for the prest, for he wyl receaue no sodden flesh of y, but rawe. If eny man sayde then vnto him: Let the fat burne as it oughte to do this daye, and afterwarde take what thine heart desireth, then sayde he vnto him: Thou shalt geue me euen now: yf no, I wyl take it from the by violence. Therefore was the synne of the childre very greate before the LORDE, for they spake euell of the meatofferynge of the LORDE. But Samuel was a mynister before the LORDE, and the childe was gyrded with an ouer body cote of linnen. His mother also made him a litle cote of sylke, and broughte it vnto him at conuenient tymes, whan she wente vpon with hir husbunde to offer offerynge in due season.

The ii. Chap.

And Eli blessed Elcana & his wife, and sayde: The LORDE geue the seide of this woman, for this good that thou hast lent vnto the LORDE. And they wete vnto their place. And the LORDE visited Anna, so that she conceiued and bare thre sonnes and two daughters: but the childe Samuel grew vpon with the LORDE.

As for Eli, he was very olde, and herde of all that his sonnes dyd vnto all Israel, and how they laye with the women that serued God before the doore of the tabernacle of witnessse, and he sayde vnto them: wherfore do ye this? For I heare of youre euell consorsation of all this people. Not so my childre, this is no good repute that I heare, ye cause the people of the LORDE to offende. If eny man synne agaynst a man, the iudge care dresse it. But yf eny man synne agaynst the LORDE, who can redresse it? Neuertheles they hardened not vnto the voyce of their father, for the LORDES wyll was to slaye them. But the childe Samuel wente and grewe vpon, & was accepted of the LORDE of me.

There came a man of God to Eli, and sayde vnto him: Thus sayeth the LORDE: I shewed my selfe vnto thy fathers house, whan they were yet in Egypte vnder the house of Pharao, and chose him there vnto my selfe before all the trybes of Israel, for the presthode, that he shulde offer vpon myne altare, and burne incense, and weere the ouer body cote before me, & vnto thy fathers house I gaue all the offerings of the childre of Israel. Why layest thou thy selfe then agaynst my sacrifices and meatofferynges, which I commaunded (to offer) in the habitation: and thou honourest thy sonnes more then me, that ye mighte fede youre selues with the firstlinges of all the meatofferynges of my people of Israel?

The i. booke of the kynges.

Therefore sayeth the LORDE God of Israel: I haue spoken, that thy house and thy fathers house shulde walke before me for euer. But now sayeth the LORDE: That be farre fro me. But who so euer honoureth me, him wil I honoure also: as for those that despise me, they shal not be regarded. Beholde, the tyme shal come, that I wyl breake thine arme in two, and the arme of thy fathers house, so that there shal no oldeman be in thy house. And thou shalt se thine aduersaries in the habitation, in all the good of Israel, and there shal neuer be olde man in thy fathers house. Yet wyl I not rote out euery man of the fro myne altare, but thyne eyes maye be consumed, & that thy soule maye be fory: & a greate multitude of thy house shal dye, whan they are come to be men.

And this shalbe a token vnto the, that shal come vpon thy two sonnes Ophni and Phinias: They shall both dye in one daye.

But vnto my selfe I wyl rayse vp a faithfull prest, which shal do acordinge as it is in my heart & in my soule: vnto him wyl I buylde a sure house, that he maye allwaye walke before myne anoynted. And who so euer remaineth of thy house, shal come and worshipec him for a syluer peny and for a pece of bryd, and shall saye: I praye the leaue me to one prestes parte, that I maye eate a morsell of bryd.

The III. Chapter.

And whan the childe Samuel mynistered vnto the LORDE vnder Eli, the worde of the LORDE was deare at the same tyme, nerther was there eny sure & manifest vision. And it fortunied at the same tyme, that Eli laye in his place, & his eyes beganne to be dymme, so that he coulde not se. And Samuel had layed him downe in the temple of the LORDE (where the Arke of God was) before the lampe of God was put out. And the LORDE called Samuel. He answered: Beholde, here am I. And he ranne vnto Eli, & sayde: Beholde, here am I, thou hast called me. But he saide: I haue not called the, go thy waye agayne, and laye the downe to slepe. And he wente his waye, and layed him downe to slepe.

The LORDE called agayne: Samuel. And Samuel arose, & wente vnto Eli, & sayde: Beholde, here am I, thou hast called me. Neuertheles he sayde: My sonne, I haue not called the. So thy waye agayne, and laye the downe to slepe. As for Samuel, he knewe not the LORDE as yet, & the worde of the LORDE was not yet shewed vnto him. And the LORDE called Samuel the thirde tyme. And he arose, & wente vnto Eli, & sayde: Beholde, here am

I, thou hast called me. Then perceaued Eli the LORDE called the childe, & he sayde vnto him: Go thy waye agayne, & laye the downe to slepe: and yf the LORDE call the eny more, then saye: Speake LORDE, for thy seruauant heareth. Samuel wete his waye, and layed him downe in his place. The came the LORDE, & stode, and called like as afore: Samuel, Samuel. And Samuel sayde: Speake LORDE for thy seruauant heareth. And the LORDE saide vnto Samuel: Beholde, I do a thinge in Israel, & who so euer shall heare it, both his eares shal glowe. In the daie will I rayse vp vpon Eli & all that I haue spokē concerninge his house. I will take it in hande, & perfourme it: for I haue tolde him, & I wilbe Iudge ouer his house for euer, because of the wickednes, & he knewe how shamefully his childre behaued the selues, and hath not once looked sowerly therto. Therefore haue I sworne vnto the house of Eli, & this wickednes of the house of Eli shall not be recōcyled nether by sacrifice ner by meatofferinge for euer. And Samuel laye vnto the morow, & opened the doores of the house of the LORDE.

But Samuel was afrayed to tell the vision vnto Eli. Then Eli called him & sayde: Samuel my sonne. He answered: Beholde, here am I. He sayde: What is the worde of the LORDE hath spokē vnto the? hyde it not fro me. God do this & that vnto the, yf thou hyde oughte from me, of all that he hath talked with the. Then Samuel tolde him altogether, & hyd nothinge from him. He sayde: It is the LORDE, let him do what pleaseth him.

Samuel grewe vpon, & the LORDE was with him, & there fell none of all his wordes vpon the earth. And all Israel fro Dan vnto Bersaba, knewe that Samuel was faithfull to be a prophet of the LORDE. And the LORDE appeared agayne at Silo: for the LORDE shewed him selfe vnto Samuel at Silo, thow the worde of the LORDE.

The III. Chapter.

And all Israel spake of Samuel. And Israel wente forth to the battayll agaynst the Philistynes, & pitched besyde the helpe stone. As for the Philistynes, they pitched at Aphek, and prepared them selues agaynst Israel. And whan the battayll beganne, the hoost was denyed, so that Israel was smytte before the enemies, & in the edge in the felde they slewe aboute a foure thousande men. And whan the people came in to the hoost, the Elders of Israel sayde: Wherfore hath the LORDE caused vs to be smytten this daie before the Philistynes? Let vs take vnto vs the Arke of the LORDES co-

And the people sent vnto Silo, z caused to set thēce the Arke of y couenaunt of the LORDE Zebaoth, that syttech vpon the Cherubins. And with the Arke of the couenaunt of God there were the two sonnes of Eli, Ophni and Phineas.

B And whan the Arke of the couenaunt of the LORDE came in to the hoost, all Israel shouted w a greate shout, so that the earth sounded withall. But whan the philistynes herde y noyse of y shout, they sayde: what noyse is this of soch greate shoutinge in the tentes of the Zebines? And whan they perceived y the Arke of the LORDE was come in to the hoost, they were afayed z sayde: God is come in to the hoost. And they sayde morouer: Wo vnto vs, for it hath not bene thus afore tyme. Wo vnto vs, Who wil deliuer vs frō the hande of these hye goddes? These are the goddes that smote Egipte w all maner of plagues in the wyldernesse. Be stronge now and manly ye philistynes, that ye serue not the Zebines * as they haue serued you. Be manly and fighte.

C Then foughte the philistynes, z Israel was smytten, z euery one fled vnto his tere, z there was a very greate slaughter, so that there fell of Israel thirtie thousande fore me, z the Arke of God was take, * z the two sonnes of Eli, Ophni and Phineas dyed.

Re. 2. g Then rāne there one of Ben Jamin out of the fore fronte of the battayl, z came vnto Silo the samedaye, z had his clothes rent, and had earth vpo his heade. And whan he came in, Eli sat vpon the seate, that he mighte loke toward the waye: for his herde was fearfull aboute y Arke of God. And whan the man came in to the cite, he tolde it forth: and all the cite cried. And whan Eli herde y noyse of the cryge, he axed: What noyse of busynes is this? The man came haistely, and tolde Eli. (As for Eli, he was fourescore and eightene yere olde, * and his eyes were dymme, so that he coulde not se.) The man sayde vnto Eli: I come and am fled this daye out of the hoost. He sayde: How is it my sonne?

Reg. 2. a D Then answered the rydinge bringer, z sayde: Israel is fled before the philistynes, and a greate slaughter hath there bene amonge the people, z thy two sonnes Ophni z Phineas are deed, yee z the Arke of God is take awaye. Whan he had made mencion of the Arke of God, he fell downe backward from the seate by the gate, and brake his neck, and dyed: for he was olde, z an heny man. He iud

The wife of his sonne Phineas was w childe, z shulde shortly be deliuered, whan she herde the rydinges of the Arke of God was taken, and y hir bether in lawe and hir husbāde were deed, she bowed hir selfe and trauayled: for hir payne came vpon her. And whan she was now at the poynte of death, the women that stode by her, sayde: Feare not, thou hast a yōge sonne. But she gaueno answere, nether regarded it, and she called the childe Jacob, and sayde: The glory is gone from Israel, because the Arke of God was taken awaye, and hir brother in lawe and hir husbāde. And she sayde morouer: The glory is gone from Israel, for the Arke of God is take awaye.

The V. Chapter.

D S for the Arke of God, the philistynes toke it and broughte it from the stone of helpe vnto Asdod in to the house of Dagon, and set it besyde Dagon. And whan they of Asdod rose vp early on the morowe, they founde Dagon lyenge on his face vpon the earth, before the Arke of the LORDE. But they toke vp Dagon, and set him agayne in his place. Nevertheless whan they rose vp early on the nexte morowe, they founde Dagon lyenge on his face agayne vpon the earth before the Arke of the LORDE: but his heade and both his handes hewen of vpon the threshold, so that the block laie there onely. Therefore the prestes of Dagon, and all they that go into his house, treade not vpo the threshold of Dagon at Asdod vnto this daye.

But the hande of the LORDE was heny vpon them of Asdod, and destroyed them, and smote Asdod and all the borders thereof in secrete places. Whan the men of Asdod sawe that they were so plagued, they sayde: Let not the Arke of the God of Israel ry with vs, for his hande is to harde vpo vs z vpon o god Dagon. And they sent forth and gathered all the prynces of the philistynes vnto them, and sayde: What shal we do with the Arke of the God of Israel: Then answered they of Beth: Let the Arke of the God of Israel be borne aboute. And they carried the Arke of the God of Israel rounde aboute.

C But whā they bare it aboute, there was a very greate rumoure in the cite thorow the hande of the LORDE, and smote the people of the cite, from the smallest vnto the greatest, and destroyed them in the secrete places. Then sent they the Arke of the LORDE vnto Ekron. But whā the Arke of the LORDE came vnto Ekron, they of Ekron cried: They haue carried the Arke of God aboute vnto me, to slaye me and my people.

D Then sente they forth, and gathered all y prynces of the philistynes together, and sayde: Sende awaye the Arke of the God of Israel agayne vnto hir place, that it slaye not me z my people: for there is a very greate rumoure with the deed in all the cite, and the hande of God is there. And the people that dyed not, were smytten in secrete places, so that the noyse of the cite wite vp vnto heauen. The VI. Chapter.

A Thus was the Arke of the LORDE in the londe of the philistynes seuen monethes. And the philistynes called their prestes and soothsayers, and sayde: What shal we do with the Arke of the LORDE? Shewe vs, wher with shal we sende it vnto hir place? They sayde: If ye wyll sende awaye the Arke of the God of Israel, sende it not awaye emptye, but geue a trespasse offeringe: so shal ye be made whole, and ye shal knowe, why his hande departeth not from you.

They sayde: What is the trespasse offeringe that we shal geue him? They answered: Syue hynder partes of golde, and syue golden myce, acordinge to the nombre of the syue prynces of y philistynes. For there hath bene one maner of plage vpon you all, and vpon youre prynces. Therefore must ye make youre hynder partes of one fashyon and youre myce, which haue destroyed youre londe, that ye maye geue the God of Israel the honoure: peradventure his hāde shal be the lighter vpon you and vpon youre God, and vpon youre londe. Why harden ye youre hert, as the Egipcians and Pharao hardened their hert? Whan he shewed him selfe vpon them * dyd not they let them departe to go their waye?

Go to now therfore, and make a new cart, and take two mylke kyne, vpon y which there neuer came yock, and yocke them to y cart, and let their calues tary behynde them at home: and take ye the Arke of the LORDE and laye it vpon the cart: and the Jewels of golde that ye geue him for a trespasse offeringe put in a coffer beside it, z sende it awaye and let it go. And loke well: yf it go the waie of hir awne coaste Beth Semes, the hath he done vs all this greate euell: yf no, then shal ye knowe that his hande hath not touched vs, but y it is happened vnto vs by chauce.

The men dyd so, and toke two yonge mylke kyne, and yocked them to a cart, and helde their calues at home, and layed the Arke of the LORDE vpon the cart, and the coffer with the golden myce, and with the ymagines of their disease. And the kyne wente straight waye vnto Beth Semes vpon one hye strete, and wente on blearinge, and turned nether to the righte hande ner to the left. And the prynces of the philistynes wente after them vnto y coast of Beth Semes.

The Beth Samites were euen reapyng downe their wheate harvest in the valley, and lyfte vp their eyes, and sawe the Arke, and reioysed to se it. The cart came in to the felde of Josua the Beth Semite, and there it stode styll. And there was a greate stone, and they claued the tymber of the cart, and offred the kyne vnto the LORDE for a burnt-offerynge.

But the Leuites toke downe the Arke of the LORDE, and the coffer that was by it, wherin the Jewels of golde were, and set the vpon the greate stone. The men of Beth Semes offred burnt-offerynges, and other offeringes also vnto the LORDE the samedaye. And whan the syue prynces of the philistynes had sene it, they departed agayne the samedaye towarde Ekron.

D These are the golden diseases, that the philistynes offred for a trespasse offeringe vnto the LORDE: Asdod one, Gasa one: Ascalon one, Gath one, and Ekron one: and golden myce, acordynge to the nombre of all the cities of the philistynes amonge the syue prynces, from the walled cite vnto the vylage, and vnto the greate playne felde, wher vpon they set the Arke of the LORDE (which was) vnto this daye vpon the felde of Josua the Beth Semite.

And certaine of Beth Semes were slaine because they had sene y Arke of the LORDE, and he slewe fiftye thousande and seuentye men of the people. Then mourned the people, because the LORDE had done so greate a slaughter in the people. And the men at Beth Semes sayde: Who maye stode before the LORDE so holy a God? And to whō shal he go frō vs? And they sent messangers to y inhabitants of Axiath Jearim, sayge: The

The VII. Chapter.

Rc. 5. a So the men of Biriath Jearim came downe, & fetched vp the Arke of the LORD, & brought it in to the house of Abinadab at Gibeā, & they consecrated Eleazar his sonne, & he might kepe the Arke. And fro the daye that the Arke of the LORD abode at Biriath Jearim, the tyme extended forth so longe tyll it came to twentye yeaeres: and all the house of Israel wepte after the LORD.

Isa. 14. c
Isa. 5. c
Isa. 4. b But Samuel sayde vnto all the house of Israel: * If ye turne you withall youre hert vnto the LORD, then put awaye from you the straunge goddes and Astaroth, and directe youre hert vnto the LORD and serue him onely, so shall he deliuer you out of the hande of the philistynes. Then the childre of Israel put awaye Baalim and Astaroth from them, and serued the LORD onely.

B Samuel saide: Gather all Israel together vnto Mispa, that I maye praye for you vnto the LORD. And they came together vnto Mispa, and drue water, & poured it out before the LORD, and fasted the same daye, and there they sayde: We haue sinned vnto the LORD. So Samuel iudged the children of Israel at Mispa.

But whan the philistynes herde that the children of Israel were come together vnto Mispa, the prynces of the philistynes were vp agaynst Israel. Whan the childre of Israel herde that, they were afrayed of the philistynes, & sayde vnto Samuel: Ceasse not to crye vnto the LORD our God for vs, & he maie helpe vs out of the hande of the philistynes.

Isa. 4. c Samuel toke a fat lambe, & offered an whole burnt offering vnto the LORD, & cried vnto the LORD for Israel, and the LORD herde him.

C And whyle Samuel was offeringe the burnt sacrifice, the philistynes came to fight agaynst Israel. But the LORD thondred a thonder vpon the philistynes the same daye & discōfyted the, so the they were smytte before Israel. The wente the men of Israel forth, & chased the philistynes, & smote them till vnder Beth Car. Then toke Samuel a stone, & set it vp betwene Mispa & Sen, & called it the helpe stone, & sayde: Hitherto hath the LORD helped vs. Thus were the philistynes brought downe, & came nomore within the border of Israel. And the hād of the LORD was agaynst the philistynes, as longe as Samuel lyued.

Rc. 4. a D So Israel gat the cities agayne, that the philistynes had conquered, fro Ekron vnto Gath, with the borders therof, those did Israel rescue out of the hande of the philistynes.

nes: & Israel had peace with the Ammonites. Samuel iudged Israel as longe as he liued, & wrote aboute euery yeaere vnto Bethel & Gilgal & Mispa: & whā he had iudged Israel in all these places, he came agayne vnto Ramath, for there was his house, & there he iudged Israel, & builded an altare there vnto the LORD.

The VIII. Chapter.

But whan Samuel waxed olde, he set his sonnes to be iudges ouer Israel. His firstborne sonne was called Joel, & the secōde Abia, & they were iudges at Bersaba. Neuertheles his sonnes walked not in his wayes, but enclined vnto conetousnes, & toke gifies, & wastyed the lawe. Then all the Elders in Israel gathered the selues together, & came to Ramath vnto Samuel, & saide vnto him: Beholde, thou art waxen olde, & thy sonnes walke not in thy wayes, & set a kynge ouer vs therfore, to iudge vs, as all the heithē haue. The was Samuel displeased whā they sayde: Geue vs a kynge, to iudge as. And Samuel prayed before the LORD.

The LORD saide vnto Samuel: Herten thou vnto the voyce of the people in all that they haue sayde vnto the. For they haue not refused the, but me, & I shulde not be kynge ouer them. They do vnto the as they haue done euery sence the daie that I brought them out of the lande of Egypte vnto this daye, and haue forsaken me, and serued other goddes. Her tē now therfore vnto their voyce. Yet testifye vnto them, and shewe them the lawe of the kynge that shall raigne ouer them.

And Samuel tolde all the wordes of the LORD vnto the people, that requyied a kynge of him. This shal be the lawe of the kynge that shal raigne ouer you: * Your sonnes shal he take for his charettes, and for horsmen to runne before his charettes, and to be rulers & captaynes, to be plowemen to tyll his lande, and to be reapers in his harnesse, and to make his harnesse, and soch thinges as belongeto his charettes. As for yō daughters, he shal take the, to be Apotecaries, cokers and bakers. Your best lande and vynyardes, and oyle gardens shal he take, and geue vnto his seruantes: Of youre sedes also and vinyardes shal he take the Tithes, & geue vnto his chamberlaynes and seruantes. And youre seruantes and youre maydes, and youre best yonge men, and youre asses shal he take, and do his busynes withall. Of youre flockes shal he take the Tithes, and ye shal be his seruantes. Whan ye shal crye then at the same tyme ouer youre kynge, whom ye haue chosen you, the LORD shal not heare you at the same tyme. Neuerthelesse the people refused to heare the voyce of Samuel, and sayde: Not so, but there shall be a kynge ouer vs, & we maye be as all other heithē, & the kynge maie iudge vs, & go forth before vs, and gouerne oure warres. The herkened Samuel vnto all that the people sayde, & tolde it before the eares of the LORD. The LORD sayde vnto the: Her tē thou vnto their voyce, and make them a kynge. And Samuel sayde vnto the men of Israel: So youre waye euery one vnto his cite.

The IX. Chapter.

Bere was a man of Ben Jamin named Cis, the sonne of Abiel, the sonne of Zeor, the sonne of Bethorah, & sonne of Apiah, the sonne of a man of Jemini, a valeant man, which had a sonne named Saul, which was so goodly a yonge man, that there was not a goodlier amonge the children of Israel, higher by the heade then all the people. Cis the father of Saul had lost his asses, and he sayde vnto Saul his sonne: Take one of the children with the, get the vp, go thy waye, and seke the asses. And he wente his waye thorow mount Ephraim, and thorow the lande of Solisa, and founde them not. They wente thorow the lande of Saalim, & there they were not. They passed thorow the lande of Jemini, & founde the not. But whā they came in to the lande of Zaph, Saul sayde vnto the childre that was with him: Come, let vs go home agayne, lest my father let go the asses, and take care for vs. He sayde: Beholde, here is an honorable man of God in this cite, all that he sayeth, cometh to passe. Let vs go thither now, peradventure he maye shewe vs our waye which we go. But Saul saide vnto his childre: Though we shulde go, what brynge we the man? For the bred is gone out of the water, and els haue we no gifte to brynge the man of God, what haue we? The childre answered agayne, and sayde: Beholde, I haue the fourth parte of a syluer Sycle by me, & same wyll we geue the man of God, that he maye shewe vs our waye.

Before tyme in Israel, whan a man wente to afe counsell at the LORD, he sayde: Come, let vs go to the Seer: for they that now are called prophetes, were called Seers afore tyme. Saul sayde vnto his childre: Thou hast well spoken; come let vs go. And whan they wente vnto the cite where the man of God was, and came vp to the cite, they founde damfells which were gone forth to drawe water, vnto them they sayde: Is the Seer here? They answered them and sayde: Yee. Beholde, he is there, make haist, for he came in to the cite this daye, because the people haue a sacrifice to do to daye in the hye place. Whan ye come in the cite, ye shal fynde him, & afore he go vp to the hye place for to eate: for the people wyll not eate tyll he come. For he shall blesse the offeringe, then shal they eate that are called. Therfore go ye waie vp, for enū now shal ye fynde him.

C And whan they came vp to the cite, and were euē in the myddes of the cite, beholde, Samuel came forth in their waye, and wolde go vp to the hye place. * But the LORD had opened Samuels eare the daye afore, or euer Saul came, and sayde: Tomorrow aboute this tyme wyll I sende a man vnto the out of the lande of Ben Jamin, him shalte thou anoynte to be prynce ouer my people of Israel, that he maye deliuer my people from the hande of the philistynes: for I haue looked vpon my people, and their crye is come before me. Now whan Samuel behelde Saul, the LORD answered him: lo, & is the man of whom I tolde the, that he shulde raigne ouer my people.

Then came Saul vnto Samuel vnder the gate, and sayde: Tell me (I praye the) where is the Seers house? Samuel answered Saul, and sayde: I am the Seer. Go vp before me vnto the hye place: for ye shall eate with me to daye, tomorrow wyll I lett the go, and all that is in thine hert, wyll I tell the: and as for the Asses which were lost the dayes ago, care not thou for them, for they are founde. And to whom shal belonge all that is pleasaunt in Israel? Shall it not belonge vnto the and to all thy fathers house? Saul answered: Am not I a sonne of Jemini, & am of the smallest trybe, and my kynred the leest amonge all the kynreds of the trybe of Ben Jamin? Why speakest thou so the vnto me? Samuel toke Saul & his childre & brought them in to the perler where they shulde eate, and satt them aboute those that were called, of whom there were aboute a thirtie men. And Samuel sayde vnto the cokers: Geue me the porcion that I gaue the, and had the kepe it by the. Then the cokers toke vp a shulder, and bare it forth, and set it before Saul. And (Samuel) sayde: Beholde, this is left, laye it before the, and eate: for it was kepte for the agaynst this tyme, whan I called the people. Thus Saul ate with Samuel the same daye.

And whan they were gone downe from the hye place vnto the cite, he talked with Saul in the chamber. And they roste vpearly on the morow. And whan the mornynge sprynge arose, Samuel called Saul in the chamber, and sayde: Up, & I maye sende

Then toke Samuel a glasse of oyle, and poured it vpo his heade, and kysed him, and sayde: Seist thou that the LORDE hath anoynted the, to be the paince ouer his enheritaunce? Whan thou goest now fro me, thou shalt fynde two men besyde Rachels graue in the coast of Ben Jamin at Bethlah, which shal saie vnto the: The asses are founde, whom thou wentest to seke: and beholde, thy father hath put the asses out of his mynde, and takerth thoughte for the, and sayeth: What shall I do for my sonne?

And whan thou goest on forth from thence, thou shalt come to the Oke of Thabor, there shall thre men fynde the, which go vp vnto God towarde Bethel: one beareth thre kiddes, another thre loanes of bried the thyde a bottel with wyne: and they shall salute the, and geue the two loanes, which thou shalt take of their hande.

And the spere of the LORDE shall come vpon the, and thou shalt prophecy with them, and shalt be chaunged in to another man.

Whan these tokens now come vnto the, then do what so euer commeth vnder thyne hande: for God is with the. Thou shalt go downe before me vnto Gilgall: Beholde, thither wyl I come downe vnto the, that thou mayest offre burnt offerynges and beed offerynges. Seuen dayes shalt thou tarye till I come to the, and shewe the what thou shuldest do. And whan he turned his shulder to go from Samuel, God chaunged him another hert, and all these tokens came the same daye.

And whan they came vnto the hill, beholde, there met him a company of prophetes: and the spere of God came vpon him, so that he prophecyed amonge them. But whā they which knewe him before, sawe him that he prophecyed with the prophetes, they sayde all amonge them selues: What is hapened vnto the sonne of Cis? Is Saul also amonge the prophetes? And one 3 was there, answered and sayde: Who is their father? Hereof came the proverbe: Is Saul also amonge the prophetes? And whā he had left of prophecience, he came vp to the hyll.

Sauls vncle sayde vnto him and to his childe: Whither wente ye? They answered: To seke the asses. And whan we sawe that they were awaye, we came vnto Samuel. Then sayde Sauls vncle: Tell me, what sayde Samuel vnto you? Saul answered his vncle: He tolde vs, 3 the asses were founde. One of 3 kyngdome he tolde him nothinge what Samuel had sayde.

Samuel called the people together vnto the LORDE to Mizpa, and spake vnto the children of Israel: Thus saith 3 LORDE the God of Israel: I broughte Israel out of Egypte, and deliuered you from the hande of 3 Egipcians, and from the hande of all the kyngdomes that oppressed you. But now haue ye refused yo<sup>r</sup> God, which hath helped you out of all youre sorowes and troubles, & ye haue saide vnto him: Set a kinge ouer vs. Well, stonde ye now before 3 LORDE accordyng to youre trybes and kynreds.

Now whan Samuel had broughte forth all the trybes of Israel, the trybe of Ben Jamin was taken. And whan he had broughte forth the trybe of Ben Jamin with his kynreds, the kynred of Matri was takē, & Saul the sonne of Cis was takē. And they sought him, but they founde him not.

Then aied they further at the LORDE, whether he was for to come thither. The LORDE answered: Beholde, he hath byd him selfe amonge 3 vessels. Then ranne they thither, and fetched him. And whan he stode amonge the people, he was hygher by the heade then all the people. And Samuel sayde vnto all the people: There se ye him whom the LORDE hath chosen, for in all the people there is none like him. Then gaue all the people a shout, and sayde: God saue the new kynge.

Samuel tolde the people all the lawe of the kyngdome, and wrote it in a boke, and layed it before the LORDE. And Samuel let all the people go, every one to his awne house. And Saul wente home also vnto Gibeā, and there wente with him one parte of the hoost, whose hertes God had touched. But the childe of Belial sayde: What shal this felowe helpe vs, and despyed him, & broughte him no presente. But he made him as though he herde it not.

The XI. Chapter.

Ahas 3 Ammonite wete vp & layed sege vnto Jabes in Gilead. And all the men of Jabes sayde vnto Nabas: Be at one with vs, & we wyl serue the. But Nabas 3 Ammonite answered them: I wil make a covenaut with you, of this condicion, that I maye thrust out all youre right eyes, and put you to shame amonge all Israel. Then sayde all the Elders of Jabes vnto him: Geue vs seuen dayes respyte, that we maye sende messaungers into all 3 coastes of Israel: If there be then no sauoure, we wyl go forth vnto the.

So the messaungers came vnto Gibeā of Saul, and spake this befoie the eares of the people. Then all 3 people lifte vp their voyce, and wepte. And beholde, Saul came after the open out of the felde, and sayde: What ayleth the people that they wepe? So they tolde him the earande of the men of Jabes. Then came the spere of God vpon him, whan he had herde these wordes, and his wrath was sore moued, and he toke a couple of oxen, and hewed them in sunder, and sent them in to all the coastes of Israel by the messaungers, sayenge: Who so euer goeth not forth after Saul and Samuel, his oxen shalbe thus dealte withall.

Then fell the feare of the LORDE vpon the people, so that they wente forth like as one man, and they were tolde at Baseth, and of the childe of Israel there were thre hundred thousand men, and thirtie thousande of the children of Juda. And they spake vnto the messaungers that were come: Saye thus to the men of Jabes in Gilead: Tomorrow shal ye haue helpe, whan 3 Some is at the whotest. Whan 3 messaungers came and tolde this to the men of Jabes, they were glad. And the men of Jabes sayde: Tomorrow wyl we come forth vnto you, that ye maye do vnto vs, what so euer

it pleasech you. And on 3 nexte morow Saul set the people in thre partes, and came into the hoost abouite the mornyng watch, and smote the Ammonites tyll the daye was at the whotest. As for those 3 remayned, they were so scared, that two of them abode not together.

Then sayde the people vnto Samuel: Where are they that sayde: Shulde Saul raigne ouer vs? Deliyer vs here the men, that we maye put them to death. But Saul sayde: There shal noman dye this daye, for to daye hath the LORDE geuen health in Israel. Samuel sayde vnto the people: Come, let vs go vnto Gilgall, and renue the kyngdome there. Then wente all the people vnto Gilgall, and there they made Saul kinge befoie the LORDE at Gilgal, and offred deed offerynges befoie the LORDE. And Saul with all the men of Israel reioysed there greatly.

The XII. Chapter.

Samuel sayde vnto all Israel: Beholde, I haue hearkened vnto youre voyce in all that ye sayde vnto me, and haue made a kinge ouer you. And now lo, the re goeth youre kinge before you. As for me, I am waxen olde and graye heered, and my somes are with you: and I haue gone before you from my youth vp vnto this daye. Beholde, here am I: answere ye agaynst me befoie the LORDE and his anoynted, yf I haue taken eny mans ore or asse, yf I haue done eny man violence or wronge, yf I haue oppressed eny mā, yf I haue receaued a gifte of eny mans hande, and kepte it secretly, I wil restore it you agayne.

They saide: Thou hast done vs nether violence ner wronge, nether oppressed, ner taken ought of eny mans hande. He sayde: The LORDE be witnesse agaynst you, and so be his anoynted this daye, that ye haue founde nothinge in my hāde. They saide: Yee they shalbe witnesses. And Samuel sayde vnto the people: The LORDE which made Moyses and Aaron, and broughte youre fathers out of the londe of Egypte (is here present.) Seede forth now therfore, that I maye iudge you befoie the LORDE ouer the rightousnes of the LORDE, which he hath done for you and youre fathers.

* Whan Jacob was come in to Egypte, youre fathers cryed vnto the LORDE. And he sent Moyses and Aaron to brynge youre fathers out of Egypte, and to cause them for to dwell in this place.

But they cried vnto the LORDE, and sayde: We haue synned, in that we haue forsaken the LORDE, and serued Baalim and Astaroth. But now deliuer vs from the hande of oure enemies, and we wyl serue the. Then the LORDE sent Jerubaal, Bedan, Jephthac, and Samuel, z deliuered you from youre enemies rounde aboute, and caused you to dwell safe.

C But whan ye sawe that Nahas the kynge of the children of Ammon came agaynst you: ye sayde vnto me: Not thou, but a kynge shal raigne ouer vs, where as notwithstandinge youre God was youre kynge. Now, there haue ye youre kynge, whos ye haue chosen and desyred: for lo, the LORDE hath set a kynge ouer you. If ye shal feare the LORDE now, and serue him, and hearken vnto his voice, and not be disobedient vnto the mouth of the LORDE, then shall both ye and youre kynge that raigneth ouer you, folowe y LORDE youre God. But yf ye hearken not vnto y voyce of the LORDE, but be disobedient vnto his mouth, then shal the hande of the LORDE be agaynst you, and agaynst youre fathers.

Scorde forth now also, and beholde this greate thinge, that the LORDE shal do before youre eyes. Is not now the wheate harvest? Yet wyl I call vpo the LORDE, so that he shal cause it thonder and rayne, that ye shall knowe and se the greate euell, which ye haue done in the sight of the LORDE, in that ye haue desyred to haue a kynge.

And whan Samuel called vpon the LORDE, the LORDE caused it to thoder and raine the same daye.

D Then all the people feared the LORDE greatly and Samuel, and they sayde all vnto Samuel: praiue thou vnto the LORDE thy God for thy seruantes, that we dye not: for beside oure synnes we haue done this euell also, that we haue desyred vnto vs a kynge. Samuel sayde vnto the people: Feare not, ye haue done all this euell in dede. Neuertheles departe not backe from the LORDE, but serue the LORDE with all youre hert, and go not asyde after vanite, for it profyteth you nothinge, and can not deliuer you, in so muche as it is but a vaynethinge. For the LORDE shal not forsake his people because of his greate names sake: for the LORDE hath begonne to make you a people vnto him selfe. But God forbyd that I shulde synne so vnto the LORDE, to cease from prayenge for you, and from teachinge you the good z righteous waye. Feare ye the LORDE, and serue him faithfully with all y heart: for ye haue sene, how greate thinges he doth vnto you. But yf ye do wickedly, both ye z youre kynge shal perishe.

The XIII. Chapter.

Saul had bene kynge one yere, and wha he had raigned ouer Israel two yeres, he chose him thre thousande me out of Israel: two thousande were with Saul at Michmas vpon the mount of Bethel, and one thousande with Jonathan at Gibeon of Beniamin. As for the other people, he let them go euery one vnto his tent. But Jonathan smote y Philistynes in their awne watch, which was at Gibeon. That came to y Philistynes eares. And Saul caused to blowe the trompes in all the lande, z to saye: Let the Hebrues heare. And all Israel herde saye: Saul hath smytten the Philistynes. And all the people cried after Saul vnto Gilgal.

Then the Philistynes gathered themselves together to fighte w Israel, thirtie thousande charrettes, sixe thousande hoisemen, and other people besyde, in nombre as the sonde by the See shore, and wente vp, and pitched at Michmas on the eastsyde of Bethanem. Whan the men of Israel sawe that myfortune laye vpon the neckes of the (for the people was come therto) they crope in to caves and denues, in to rockes, and holes and welles. But the Hebrues wente ouer Iordane in to y lande of Gad and Gilead. As for Saul he was yet at Gilgal, and all the people were sayntharted after him. Then taried he ten dayes acordinge to the tyme apoynted of Samuel. And whan Samuel came not vnto Gilgal, the people were scattered abroad from him. Then sayde Saul: Brynge me hither a burnt offeringe and deed offeringes. And he offred a burnt offeringe. But whan he had made an ende of the burnt offeringe beholde, Samuel came. Then wente Saul forth to meete him, that he mighte salute him.

But Samuel sayde: What hast thou done? Saul answered: I sawe that the people was scattered abroad from me, and thou camest not in due season: and the Philistynes were gathered together at Michmas. Then sayde J. Now shall the Philistynes come downe to me vnto Gilgal, and I haue not besought at the face of the LORDE: z so I boldened myselfe, z offred a burnt offeringe.

Samuel sayde vnto Saul: Thou hast done foolishly, and not kepte the commandement of the LORDE thy God, which he commanded the. For (yf thou haddest not done this) he had prospered thy kyngdome vpo Israel for ever: but now shall not thy kyngdome contynue. The LORDE hath soughte him out a man after his owne hert: him hath the LORDE commanded to be pryncce ouer his people, for thou hast not kepte y the LORDE commanded y. And Samuel arose, and wente vp from Gilgal vnto Gibeon Beniamin.

D And Saul nombred the people that was founde with him, vpon a sixe hundred men. Saul z his sonne Jonathan, and y people that was with them, taried at Gibeon Beniamin: but y Philistynes had pitched their tentes at Michmas. And out of the host of the Philistynes there wente thre bondes of men to destroye: one turned the waye toward Ephraim in to the lande of Sual: another turned toward the waye of Bethoron: the thirde turned toward the waye, that reacheth to the valley of Zeboim vnto the wyl-dernes.

But there was not a smyth founde in all the lode of Israel: for y Philistynes thoughte: The Hebrues mighte happily make swerdes and speares. And all Israel were sayne to go downe to the Philistynes, whan eny man had a plowshare, a mattock, an axe, or a sythe to sharpe: and the edges of the plowshares, and mattocks, z forkes, and axes, were laboured, and the poyntes blont. Now whan the daye of the battayll came, there was nether swerde ner speare founde in the hande of all the people, that was with Saul and Jonathan: but for Saul and Jonathan his sonne there was somwhat founde. And y Philistynes watche wete out ouer by Michmas.

The XIII. Chapter.

It fortuned at y same tyme, y Jonathan sayde vnto his lad which was his wapen bearer: Come, let vs go ouer to the Philistynes watch y lyeth aboue, z he tolde not his father. Saul dwelt at y ende of Gibeon vnder a pomegranate tre, which was in the suburbe. And the people y were by him, were vpon a sixe hundred men. And Abia the sonne of Achitob the brother of Jacob, the sonne of Phineas y sonne of Eli y prest of the LORDE at Silo, waye the overbody cote. But the people knewe not that Jonathan was gone.

Betweene the passages where Jonathan soughte to go ouer vnto the Philistynes watch, there were two hye rockes, the one on the one syde, the other on the other: the one was called Bozez, the other Senné. And y one laye on the north syde toward Michmas, and the other on the south syde toward Gaba. And Jonathan sayde vnto his wapen bearer: Come, let vs go euery to y watch of these vncircumcised, peradventure the LORDE shal worke with vs. For it is no harde matter for the LORDE to helpe by many or by fewe. Then answered him his wapen bearer: Do all that is in thine hert, go on thy waie, beholde, I am with the, euen as thine hert wyl.

Jonathan sayde: Well than, whan we are gone ouer to the men, and come within the sighte of them, yf they saye: stonde styll, tyll we come to you, then wyl we stonde styll in oure place, and not go vp to them. But yf they saye: Come vnto vs, we wyl go vp to them, the hath the LORDE deliuered them in to oure hande, and this shalbe a token for vs. Now whan they came both in the sighte of the Philistynes watch, the Philistynes sayde: Se, y Hebrues are gone out of their holes, that they were crepte in to. And the men in the watch answered Jonathan and his wapen bearer, and sayde: Come vp to vs, and we wyl teach you what the matter is. Then sayde Jonathan to his wapen bearer: Come vp after me, the LORDE hath deliuered them in to Israels hande. And Jonathan claime vp with handes and fete, and his wapen bearer after him. And Jonathan smote them downe before him, and his wapen bearer slewe behynde him, so that the first slaughter that Jonathan and his wapen bearer dyd, was vpo a twentye men, with in the length of halue an aker of lande, which a pare of oxen maye tyll in one daye.

And there came a fearfulness and flighte in the host vpon the felde, and amonge all the people of the watch: and vpon the destroyers there came a fearfulness also and flighte, so that the lande was in a rumoure, and there came a flighte thow God. And Sauls watchmen at Gibeon Beniamin sawe, that y multitude gat them awaye, and ranne to and fro.

Saul sayde vnto the people that was with him: Tell and se which of vs is gone awaye. And whan they nombred, beholde, Jonathan z his wapen bearer was not there.

The i. boke of the kynges.

Then saide Saul vnto Abia: Brynge hither the Arke of God (for at that tyme was the Arke of God with the children of Israel.) And whyle Saul was yet speakyng to the priest, the multitude in the Philistynes hoost gat vp, ranne, and was greete. And Saul sayde vnto the priest: Withdrowethine hande. And Saul cried, and all the people that was with him, and came to the battayll. And beholde, * every mans swerde was agaynst another, and there was a very greater rumoure.

The hebrues also that were with * Philistynes afore, and had gone vp with them in the hoost on euery syde, ioyned them selues vnto Israel which were with Saul and Jonathas. And all the men of Israel which * had hyd the selues vpon mount Ephraim, whan they herde that the Philistynes fled, folowed after them in the battayll. Thus * the LORDE helped Israel at that tyme, and * the battayll lasted vnto Bethauen.

And whan the men of Israel came forth, Saul charged all the people the same daye, and sayde: Cursed be every man, which eateth bred vntyll euen, that I maye auenge me on myne enemies. Then all the people taisted no bred. And all the people of the land came in to the wodd. But there laye hony vpon the felde: and whan the people came in to the wodd, beholde, the hony flowed, but no man put of it to his mouth with his hande: for the people were afraied because of the oath. As for Jonathas he had not herde, that his father had charged the people, and he put forth his staff that he had in his hande, and dypped the ende of it in * hony corme, and turned his hande to his mouth, and his eyes were lighted.

Then answered one of the people, and sayde: Thy father hath charged the people, and sayde: Cursed be every man that eateth ought this daye. Neuertheles the people were saynte. Then sayde Jonathas: My father hath troubled the lande: Se how lighte myne eyes are become, because I haue taisted a litle of this hony. If the people this daie had eate of the spoyle of their enemies that they founde, the slaughter shulde haue bene greater agaynst the Philistynes. Yet smote they the Philistynes the same daye from Michmas vnto Aialon, and the people were very weery.

And * the people turned to the spoyle, and toke shepe and oren, and calues, and slewed them vpon the earth, * and ate them with the bloude. Then was it tolde Saul: Behol

The xiiij. Chap.

de, the people synne agaynst the LORDE, in that they eate bloude. He sayde: Ye haue done euell: roll vnto me now a greete stone. And Saul sayde morouer: Go abrode amonge the people, and saye vnto them, that euery one brynge me his oxe and his shepe, and slaye them here, that ye maye eate, and not to synne agaynst the LORDE with eatyng of bloude. Then broughte all the people euery one his oxe with his hande the same night, and slewed them there. And Saul buylded an altare vnto * the LORDE. This is the first altare that he buylded vnto the LORDE.

And Saul sayde: Let vs go downe after the Philistynes, by night, and spoyle them, yll it be cleare mornynge, that we let none escape. They answered: Do what so ever pleaseth the. But the priest sayde: Let vs go nye here vnto God. And Saul axed at God. Shal I go downe here after * the Philistynes? * and wilt thou deliuer the in to Israels hande? Neuertheles he answered him not at that tyme.

Then sayde Saul: Let all the armyes of the people come hither, and make search and se, in whom is this synne at this tyme. For as truly as God the Sauoure of Israel lyueth, * and though it be in my sonne Jonathas, he shal dye. And no man answered him of all the people. And he sayde vnto all Israel: Dye on the one syde, I * and my sonne Jonathas wyl be on this syde. The people sayde vnto Saul: Do as it pleaseth the. And Saul sayde vnto the LORDE the God of Israel: Do thou that right is. The was Jonathas and Saul taken: but the people wente forth free. Saul sayde: Cast the lot ouer me and my sonne Jonathas. So Jonathas was take. And Saul sayde vnto Jonathas: Tell me, what hast thou done? Jonathas tolde him, * and sayde: I taisted a litle hony with the staff that I had in my hande, and beholde, must I dye therfore? The sayde Saul: God do this and that vnto me, Jonathas thou must dye the death.

But the people sayde vnto Saul: Shal we be taken? Jonathas sayde, that hath done so greete health in Israel this night? God forbid. * As truly as the LORDE lyueth, there shal not one heer of his heade fall vpon * the earth: for with God hath he wroughte at this tyme. So the people deliuered Jonathas, that he dyed not. Then wente Saul vp from the Philistynes: and the Philistynes wente vnto their place.

But whan Saul had equered the kyngdome ouer Israel, he foughte agaynst all the enemies rounde aboute, agaynst the Moabites, agaynst the childre of Ammon, agaynst the Edomites, agaynst the kyng of Zoba, agaynst * the Philistynes: and whither so ever he turned him, he gat * victory. And he made an hoost, and smote * the Amalechites, and deliuered Israel from the hande of all those that spoiled them.

Saul had these sonnes: Jonathas, Isui, and Malchisua. And these were * the names of his two doughters: the first borne Merob, * and the yongest Michol. And Sauls wife was called Abinoam, the doughter of Ahimaas. And his chiefe captaynes name was Abner, the sonne of Ner, Sauls vncle. * Cis was * the father of Saul. But Ner * the father of Abner was the sonne of Abiel.

There was a mightie sore warre agaynst the Philistynes, as longe as Saul lyued. And where Saul sawe a man that was stronge and mere for * the warre, he toke him to him.

The XV. Chapter.

Amuel sayde vnto Saul: * The LORDE sent me to anoynte the for to be kyng ouer his people of Israel: heare now therfore the voyce of the wordes of the LORDE. Thus sayeth * the LORDE Zebaoth: I haue remembred what Amaleck dyd vnto Israel, * and how he layed wayte for him in * the waye, whan he wente out of Egipte: Go * the waye now therfore, and smyte the Amalechites, * and damne them with all that they haue, * and spare him not: but slaye both man and woman, children * and suckylnges, oren * and shepe, Camels and asses. Saul commaunded the people the same, and nombred them at Talaim, two hundred thousande fotemen, * and ten thousande men of Iuda.

And whan Saul came to the cite of the Amalechites, he set an hynder watch by the ryuer, and sayde vnto * the Kenites: Get you hence, departe, and go downe from * the Amalechites, * and I smyte you not with them, * for ye shewed mercy vnto all the children of Israel, whan they departed out of Egipte. So the Kenites gat them awaye from amonge the Amalechites.

Then smote Saul the Amalechites from Heula vnto Sur (which lyeth ouer agaynst Egipte) * and toke Agag the kyng of * the Amalechites alyue, * and dammed all * the people with the edge of the swerde. Neuertheles Saul and the people spared Agag, and the shepe and oren * and were good and fat, and the lambes, and all that was good, and wolde not damne the: but loke what was foule and nothinge worth, that they dammed.

The xv. Chap. Fo. xxxij.

Then came the worde of the LORDE vnto Samuel, and sayde: Repenteth me that I made Saul kyng, for he hath turned himselfe backe fro me, and not confirmed my wordes. Therefore was Samuel angrie, * and cried vnto the LORDE all that night. And Samuel gat him vp early, that he might mete Saul in * the mornynge. And it was tolde him, that Saul was come vnto Carmel, * and had set him vp a piler, and was gone aboute, and come downe to Gilgall.

Now whan Samuel came to Saul, Saul sayde vnto him: Blessed be thou vnto * the LORDE, I haue persourmed the worde of * the LORDE. Samuel answered: What crye is this then of shepe in myne eares, and the crye of oren which I heare?

Saul sayde: They haue broughte them from the Amalechites: for the people spared the best shepe * and oren for the offeringe of * the LORDE thy God, the other haue we dammed. Neuertheles Samuel answered Saul: Let me tell the what * the LORDE hath sayde vnto me this night. He sayde: Saye on. Samuel sayde: Whan thou wast but small in thine awne eyes, wast thou not * the heade amonge the trybes of Israel? * and the LORDE anoynted the to be kyng ouer Israel: and * the LORDE sent * the in to the waye, * and sayde: Go * and waite * and damne the synners the Amalechites, and fighte agaynst them, yll thou haue utterly destroyed the: Wherfore hast thou not hearkened vnto the voyce of the LORDE, but hast turned thy selfe to the spoyle, and done euell in the sighte of the LORDE?

Saul answered Samuel: Yee I haue hearkened vnto the voyce of the LORDE, * and haue gone the waye that * the LORDE sent me, and broughte Agag the kyng of the Amalechites, * and dammed the Amalechites: but * the people haue take of the spoyle, shepe * and oren, and * the best amonge the dammed, to offer vnto * the LORDE thy God in Gilgall. Samuel saide: Hath the LORDE pleasure in sacrifices and burnt offeringes, as in obeynge the voyce of the LORDE? Beholde, * obedience is better then offeringe, and to hearken is better then the fat of rammes. For disobedience is as * the synne of * witchcraft, and rebellion is as the blasphemy of Iolatrie. In so moch now as thou hast refused the worde of the LORDE, he hath refused the also, that thou shuldest not be kyng.

Then sayde Saul vnto Samuel: I haue synned, * and I haue transgressed the commaundement of the LORDE and thy worde: for I was afraied of the people, and hearkened unto their voyce. And now forgene me my synne, & retorne with me, that I maye wor- shippe y<sup>e</sup> LORDE. Samuel saide vnto Saul: I wil not turne backe with y<sup>e</sup>, for thou hast refused the worde of the LORDE, and the LORDE hath refused the also, y<sup>e</sup> thou shuldest not be kyng in Israel. And whan Samuel turned him backe to go his waye, he gat him by y<sup>e</sup> edge of his garment, & rete it. Then sayde Samuel vnto him: The LORDE hath rente the kyngdome of Israel from y<sup>e</sup> this daye, & genen it vnto y<sup>e</sup> neghbor, which is better then thou. The ouerwynner in Israel also shal not lye, nether shal he repent: for he is no man, that he shulde repent.

G He sayde: I haue synned, yet honoure me now before the Elders of my people and before Israel, and turne backe with me, that I maye worshippe the LORDE thy God. So Samuel turned agayne after Saul, that Saul mighte worshippe the LORDE. But Samuel sayde: Bynge me hither Agag the kyng of the Amalechites. And Agag wente vnto him tederly. And Agag saide: Thus departeth the bytternesse of death. Samuel sayde: * Like as thy swerde hath made women childlesse, so shal y<sup>e</sup> mother also be with out children amonge women. So Samuel hewed Agag in peces before y<sup>e</sup> LORDE in Gilgall.

Re. 17. d And Samuel departed vnto Ramath. But Saul wente vp to his house at Gibea. And Samuel sawe Saul no more vnto the daye of his death. Nevertheless Samuel mourned for Saul, because it repented the LORDE, that he had made Saul kyng ouer Israel. The XVI. Chapter.

AND y<sup>e</sup> LORDE sayde vnto Samuel: How longe mournest thou for Saul, whom I haue refused, that he shulde not be kyng ouer Israel: Fyll thine horne with oyle, go thy waye, I wyll sende the to Isai the Bethleemite: for amonge his sonnes haue I prouyded me a kyng. But Samuel sayde: How shal I go? Saul shal perceaue it, and shal slaye me. The LORDE sayde: Take the a calfe from the droue, & saye: I am come to do sacrifice vnto y<sup>e</sup> LORDE. And thou shalt call Isai to y<sup>e</sup> sacrifice, so shall I tell the what thou shalt do, that thou mayest anoynte me him, whom I shall shewe the. Samuel dyd as the LORDE sayde, and came to Bethleem. Then were the Elders of the cite astonnyed, and wente forth to mete him, and sayde: Is thy commynge peaceable? He sayde: Yee. I am come to do sacrifice vnto the LORDE. Sanctifye youre selues, & come with me to the sacrifice. And he sanctified Isai and his sonnes, and called them to the sacrifice.

Now whā they came in, he behelde Eliab, & thoughte, whether he shulde be his anoynted before the LORDE. But y<sup>e</sup> LORDE sayde vnto Samuel: loke not vpon his countenance, ner vpon the tallnesse of his person, for I iudge not after the sighte of man. A man hath respecte vnto the thinge that is before his eyes, but the LORDE loketh vpon the hert. Then Isai called Abinadab, & broughte him before Samuel. And he sayde: This hath not the LORDE chosen. Then Isai broughte Samma. But he sayde: This also hath not the LORDE chosen. Then broughte Isai his seven sonnes before Samuel. Nevertheless Samuel saide vnto Isai: The LORDE hath chosen none of these.

And Samuel sayde vnto Isai: Acheue all the childre: He sayde: There is yet one y<sup>e</sup> leest of all, and beholde, he kepeth the shepe. The sayde Samuel vnto Isai: Sende & call him to be fetcht, for we will not sit downe at the table, vntyll he come. Then sent he, & caused him be broughte. And he was well coloured & fayre eyes & of a beutyfull countenance. And the LORDE saide: Arise, and anoynte him, that is he.

Thē toke Samuel his oyle home, & anoynted him amonge his brethre. And the spire of the LORDE came vpo David fro y<sup>e</sup> daye forth. As for Samuel, he gat him vp, & wente vnto Ramath.

But the spire of the LORDE departed from Saul, and an euell spire from y<sup>e</sup> LORDE vexed him. Then sayde Sauls seruantes vnto him: Beholde, an euell spire from God vexeth the. Let oure lord saie vnto his seruantes which stonde before him, y<sup>e</sup> they seke a man which can playe vpon the harpe, and instrumente, that whan the euell spire of God cometh vpon the, he maye playe wth his hande, to ease the withall. Then sayde Saul vnto his seruantes: Prouyde me a m<sup>n</sup>, that can playe well vpon the instrumente, & brynge him vnto me.

D Then answered one of the children, & sayde: Beholde, I sawe a sonne of Isai y<sup>e</sup> Bethleemite, which can playe vpon the instrumente, an honest & valeant man, and one y<sup>e</sup> hath vnderstodunge in matters, & is wel fauoured. The Saul sent messaungers vnto Isai, saye: ge: Sende me David y<sup>e</sup> sonne, which is with the shepe. Then toke Isai an asse & bried, & a bottell wth wyne, and a kyd, and sent it vnto Saul by David his sonne. So David came to Saul, & stode before him, & he loued him well, and he became his wapen bearer. And Saul sente vnto Isai, saye: Let David remaine before me, for he hath founde fauor in my sighte. Now whan the spire of God came vpo Saul, David toke y<sup>e</sup> harpe, & played wth his hande: so was Saul refreshed, & eased, & the euell spire departed from him.

The XVII. Chapter.

The philistynes gathered their hoost to y<sup>e</sup> battayll, and came together to Socho in Iuda, & pitched their tentes betwene Socho & Aseka, at the ende of Damim. But Saul & the mē of Israel came together, & pitched in the Oke valley, & prepared them selues to the battayll agaynst the philistynes. And the philistynes stode vpon a hyll on the one syde, and the Israelites vpon a hyll on the other syde, so that there was a valley betwene them.

Then stepte there forth from amonge the philistynes a stoute bolde man, named Goliath of Gath, sixe cubites and an hande breth hie, and had an helmet of stele on his heade, and a fast habergion vpon him, and the weight of his habergion was fyue thou sande Sicles of stele, and harnessse of stele had he vpon his legges, and a shyld of stele vpon his shoulders: and the shaft of his speare was like a weuers lome, and the yron of his speare had sixe hundred Sicles of yron, and his wapen bearer wente before him.

D And he stode and called vnto the hoost of Israel, and sayde vnto them: Wherfore are ye come forth to prepare youre selues to the battayll? Am not I a philistyne, and ye the seruantes of Saul? Chose one amonge you to come downe vnto me: yf he can fighte agaynst me and slaye me, then wil we be youre seruantes: but yf I can ouercome him and slaye him, then shal ye be oure seruantes, to do vs seruyce. And the philistyne sayde: I haue spokē disdainedly vnto the hoost of Israel this daye. Geue me one, and let v<sup>s</sup> fighte together. Whan Saul and all Israel herde these wordes of y<sup>e</sup> philistyne, they were astonnyed, and sore afayed.

But David was the sonne of a man of Ephrata of Bethleem Iuda, whose name was Isai, which had eight sonnes, and was an olde man in Sauls tyme, and was well strycken in age amonge men. And the thre eldest sonnes of Isai were gone with Saul to the battayll. And there names were these: Eliab the first borne, Abinadab the seconde, and Samma the thirde. But David was the yongest of all. So whan the thre eldest were gone with Saul to the battayll, David wente agayne from Saul, to kepe his fathers shepe at Bethleem. But the philistyne stepte forth early in the mornynge and at even, and stode there fortye dayes.

Isai sayde vnto David his sonne: Take this Ephra of firmentye for thy brethien, and these ten loaves of bried (and runne to the hoost vnto thy brethien) & these ten new cheses, and brynge them to y<sup>e</sup> capayne, and loke how thy brethien do, whether it go well with them or no, and take what they byd the. But Saul and they, and all the men of Israel were in the Oke valley, and foughte agaynst the philistynes.

Then David gat him vpearly in the mornynge, and commytted the shepe to y<sup>e</sup> keeper, and toke his burthen, wente his waye, as Isai commaunded him, and came to the tē. And the hoost was gone forth, and had prepared them selues, and cried in the battayll: For Israel had set them selues in aray, and the philistynes were agaynst their hoost in their aray also.

Then leste David the vessell that he bare, with the keeper of the stuffe, and ranne to the hoost, and wente in, and saluted his brethien. And whyle he was yet talkynge with them, beholde, then came vp the stoute bolde man, whose name was Goliath, the philistyne of Gath, out of the philistynes hoost, and spakē like as afore, and David herde it. But every man of Israel, whan he sawe the man, fled from him, and was sore afayed of him.

And every man in Israel sayde: Haue ye sene the man commynge vp hither? For he is come vp hither, to speake disdainedly vnto Israel. And who so euer smyteth him, him wyll the kyng make ryche, and geue him his daughter, and make his fathers house fre in Israel.

Then sayde David vnto the men that stode by him: What shalbe done to the man, if iij that smyteth this philistyne, and turneth this shame away from Israel: For what is he this philistyne this uncircumcised, that defyeth the host of the living God? Then the people tolde him as afore. Thus shall it be done unto him: in that smyteth him. And Eliab his greater brother herde him talke with the men, and was very wroth agaynst David, and sayde: Wherfore art thou come downe: and why hast thou left a fewe shepe in the wyldernes? I knowe thy presumptuousnesse well ynough, and the wickednesse of thine hert: for thou art come downe to se the battayll. David answered: What haue I done now? Is there not an occasion? And he turned him selfe from him vnto another, and spake a cordinge as he had sayde before. Then the people answered him like as afore.

And whan they herde the wordes which David sayde, they tolde them in the presence of Saul, and he caused him be fetched. And David sayde vnto Saul: Let no man hert be discouraged because of him. Thy seruant shall go, and fighte with the philistyne. Neuertheles Saul sayde vnto David: Thou art not able to go agaynst this philistyne to fighte with him, for thou art but a childe: but this is a man of warre from his youth vp.

David sayde vnto Saul: Thy seruant kepte his fathers shepe, and there came a lyon and a bere, and caried awaye a shepe from the flocke, then wente I forth after him, and smote him, and delyuered it out of his mouth. And whan he wolde haue bene vpon me, I toke him by his beerde, and smote him, and slewe him. So thy seruant smote both the lyon and the bere. Therefore shall this philistyne this uncircumcised be euen as one of them: for he hath defyed the host of the living God. And David sayde: The LORD that delyuered me from the lyon and the bere, shall delyuer me also from this philistyne.

And Saul sayde vnto David: Go thy waye, the LORD be with the. And Saul clothed David with his clothes, and set an helmet of stele vpon his heade, and put an habergion vpon him. And David girded his swerde aboue his clothes, and beganne to go, for he had neuer bene used to it afore. Then sayde David vnto Saul: I can not go thus, for I haue not bene used to it, and so he laied it from him, and toke his staff in his hande, and chose fyue slighe stones out of the ryuer, and put them in the shepards bagge which he had by him, and toke a stone in his hande, and made him to the philistyne. And the philistyne wente forth, and made him to David, and his wapen beate before him.

Now whan the philistyne looked & sawe David, he thoughte some of him: for he was but a childe, well colourd, and beautifull to loke vpon. And the philistyne sayde vnto David: Am I a dogg then, that thou comest vnto me with a staffe? And he cursed David by his God, and sayde vnto David: Come hither to me, I wil geue thee flesh to the fowles vnder the heauen, and to the beastes in the felde. Neuertheles David sayde vnto the philistyne: Thou comest vnto me with swerde, speare and shyld. But I come vnto thee in the name of the LORD Zebaoth the God of the host of Israel, whom thou hast despyed. This daye shall the LORD deliuer thee into my hande, that I maye smyte thee, and take thy heade from thee, and geue the bodies of the host of the philistynes this daye vnto the fowles vnder the heauen, and to the wyld beestes vpon the earth, that all the lande maye knowe that Israel hath a God. And all this congregation shall knowe, that the LORD sauereth neither thow nor swerde nor speare: for the battayll is the LORDS, & he shall delyuer you in to oure handes.

Now whan the philistyne gat him vp, and wente forth and due nye vnto David, David made haifte, and ranne from the host vnto the philistyne. And David put his hande in his bagge, and toke out a stone, & thre it with the slynge, and hyt the philistyne euen in the fore heade, so that the stone sterte in his fore heade, and he fell downe to the grounde vpon his face.

So David ouercame the philistyne with the slynge and with the stone, and smote him, and slewe him. And for so moch as David had no swerde in his hande, he ranne and stode ouer the philistyne, and toke his sword de, and due it out of the sheeth, and slewe him, and smote of his heade withall. Whan the philistynes sawe that the strongest of them was ded, they fled. And the men of Israel and Juda gat the vp, and cryed and folowed vpon the philistynes, tyll they came vnto the valley, and to the portes of Ekron. And the philistynes fell downe slayne vnto Gath and to Ekron. And the children of Israel turned agayne from chassyng of the philistynes, and spoyled their tentes. But David toke the heade of the philistyne, and broughte it vnto Jerusalem, as for his armour, he layed it in his tente.

Whan Saul sawe David go forth agaynst the philistyne, he saide vnto Abner his chiefe captaigne: Abner, whose sonne is this childe? Abner sayde: As truly as thy soule lyueth O kynge, I wote not. The kynge sayde: Aye the whose sonne the yongeman is. Now whan David came agayne from the slaughter of the philistyne, Abner toke him, and broughte him before Saul, and he had the philistynes heade in his hande. And Saul sayde vnto him: Whose sonne art thou, thou yongeman? David sayde: I am a sonne of thy seruant Isai the Bethleemite.

The XVIII. Chapter.

And whan he had made an ende of talkyng with Saul, the soule of Jonathas was bounde with the soule of David, and Jonathas loued him as his owne soule. And Saul toke him the same daye, and let him not go agayne to his fathers house. And Jonathas and David made a covenante together, for he loued him as his owne soule. And Jonathas put of his owne cote that he had vpon him, and gaue it vnto David: yee and his cloke, his swerde, his bowe, and his girdell. And David wente forth whither so euer Saul sent him, and behaned him selfe wysely. And Saul set him ouer the men of warre, and he pleased all the people well, and all the seruantes of Saul.

It fortuneth, that whan David was come agayne from the slaughter of the philistyne, the women wente out of all the cities of Israel with songes & daunces, to meete kynge Saul, with tymbrels, with myrth, and with fyddels. And the women sange one to another, and played & sayde: Saul hath smytten his thousande: but David his tenthousand.

Then was Saul very wroth, and was wroth displeased him sore, and he sayde: They ha ue ascribed ten thousande vnto David, and but one thousande vnto me: what shal he haue more but the kyngdome? And from that daye forth, Saul looked sowerly vpon David.

The nexte daye after came the euell spiritte of God vpon Saul, and prophced in the myddes of the house. But David played on the instrumente with his hande, as he was wonte daylie. And Saul had a iauelynge in his hande, and cast it, and thoughte: I wyll stycke David fast to the wall. Neuerthelesse David turned himselfe twyse awaye from him. And Saul was afrayed of David: for the LORD was with him, and was departed from Saul. Then Saul put him from him, and set him to be pryncce ouer a thousande men, and he went out and in before the people. And David behaned him selfe wysely in all his doynges, and the LORD was with him.

Now whan Saul sawe that he was so exceedinglye wysely, he stode in feare of him. But all Israel and Juda loued David, for he wente out and in before them. And Saul sayde vnto David: Beholde, my greatest doughter Merob-wyl I geue thee to wyfe: be stronge now, & gouerne the warres of the LORD. For Saul thoughte: my hande shal not be vpon him, but the hande of the philistynes. Neuertheles David answered Saul: Who am I? & what is my life & the kynred of my father in Israel, that I shulde marrye the kynges doughter?

But whan the tyme came, that Merob & doughter of Saul shulde haue bene geue vnto David, she was geuen vnto Abiel the holathite to wyfe. Neuerthelesse Michol Sauls doughter loued David. Whan this was tolde Saul, & matter pleased him well, & he sayde: I wyll geue him her, & she maye be a snare vnto him, & that the handes of the philistynes maye come vpon him. And he sayde vnto David: This daye shalt thou be my doughters husbande & secōde time. And Saul spake vnto his seruantes: Take ye David secretly & saye: Beholde, the kynge hath pleasure in the, and all his seruantes loue the, marrye thou therfore the kynges doughter.

And Sauls seruantes spake these wordes in the eares of David. But David saide: Thynke ye it but a small matter, to marrye the kynges doughter? As for me, I am but a poore symple man. And Sauls seruantes tolde him agayne, and sayde: Soch wordes hath David spoken. Saul sayde: Then saye ye vnto David: The kynge defyeth no dowry, but onely an hundredth foreskynnes of the philistynes, that vengeance maye be taken of the kynges enemies. Howbeit Saul thought to cause Dauid be slayne by the handes of the philistynes. Then his seruantes tolde Dauid these wordes, and Dauid was contente with the matter, to marry the kynges doughter.

G And after a fewe dayes Dauid gatt him vp, and wente with his men, and smote two hundred men amonge the philistynes. And Dauid broughte their forefynnes, and made their nombre sufficient vnto the kyng, & he mighte marry the kynges doughter. The Saul gaue him his doughter Michol to wyfe. And Saul sawe and perceaued, that the LORDE was wth Dauid. And Michol Sauls doughter loued him. Then was Saul the more afrayed, and became his enemye as longe as he lyued. And whan the prynces of the philistynes were forth, Dauid behaued him selfe more wysely then all the seruantes of Saul in their outgoynge: so that his name was in greate reputacion.

The XIX. Chapter.

Saul spake to Jonathas his sonne, and to all his seruantes, that they shulde kyll Dauid. Neuerthelesse Jonathas the sonne of Saul loued Dauid exceedingly, and tolde him, and sayde: Saul my father goeth aboute to slaye the. Kepe the therfore (I praye the) in the mornynge and abyde in secrete, and hyde the. But I wyll go forth, and stonde besyde my father in the felde where thou art, and wyll speake of the vnto my father: and what soeuer I se I shal brynge the worde.

And Jonathas reported & best of Dauid vnto Saul his father, and sayde vnto him: Oh let not the kyng synne agaynst his seruante, for he hath not synned agaynst the, and his doynge is very necessary for the, he put his lyfe in his hande also, and smote the philistyne, & the LORDE dyd a greate health vnto all Israel: this hast thou sene, and reioysed therof. Wherfore wylt thou then offende agaynst innocent bloude, that thou woldest kyll Dauid without a cause? Then bethered Saul vnto the voice of Jonathas and sware: As truly as the LORDE lyueth, he shal not dye. Then Jonathas called Dauid, and tolde him all these wordes, and broughte him to Saul, so that he was in presence like as afore tyme.

But there arose a battayll agayne, and Dauid wente forth, and fought agaynst the philistynes, and smote a greate slaughter, so that they fled before him. Neuertheles enell sperte of the LORDE came vpon Saul, and he sat in his house, and had a iankeyng in his hande. But Dauid plaid vpon the instrument with his hade. And Saul thought with the iauelinge to sticke Dauid fast to the wall. Howbeit, he wente asyde fro Saul and the iauelinge smote in the wall. And Dauid fled, and escaped that night.

Notwithstandinge Saul sent his messengers to Dauids house, that they shulde laye wayte for him, and kyll him in the mornynge. Michol Dauids wyfe tolde him this, and sayde: If thou saue not thy soule this night, thou shalt dye tomorrow. Then Michol let him downe thorow the wyndow, so that he wente his waye, fled, and escaped. And Michol toke an ymage, and layed it in the bed, and laied a goates skynne at the heade of it, and couered it with clothes. Then Saul sent messengers, to fetch Dauid. But she sayde: He is sicke. Neuerthelesse Saul sent messengers to se Dauid, & sayde: Bynge him vp to me with the bed, that he maye be slayne.

Now whan the messengers came, beholde, the ymage laye in the bed, and a goates skynne at the heade of it. Then sayde Saul vnto Michol: Why hast thou begyled me, and let myne enemye go, that he mighte escape? Michol sayde vnto Saul: he sayde vnto me: Let me go, or I wyl kyll the. For Dauid, he fled, and escaped, and came to Samuel vnto Ramath, and tolde him all & Saul had done vnto him. And he wente wth Samuel, and they abode at Naioth.

And it was tolde Saul: Beholde, Dauid is at Naioth in Ramath. Then Saul sente messengers to fetch Dauid. And they sawe a company of prophetes prophcedinge, and Samuel had the oversight of them. Then came the sperte of God vpon the messengers of Saul, so that they prophceded also.

Whan this was tolde Saul, he sent other messengers, which prophceded likewise. Then sente he messengers the thyrd tyme, and they in like maner prophceded. Then wente he himselfe also vnto Ramath, and whan he came to the greate well which is at Secho, he ayled and sayde: Where is Samuel and Dauid? Then was it tolde him: beholde, at Naioth in Ramath. And he wente thither, enen vnto Naioth in Ramath. And y<sup>e</sup> sperte of God came vpon him also, and he wrote & prophceded till he came vnto Naioth in Ramath. And he put of his clothes, & prophceded likewise before Samuel, & fell downe nated all that daye and all that night. He re of came the prouerbe: Is Saul also amonge the prophetes?

The XX. Chapter.

Saul fled fro Naioth in Ramath, and came, & spake before Jonathas: What haue I done? What trespass haue I made? What haue I synned in & sighte of thy father, & he seeketh to kyll me? he sayde vnto him: God forbyd, thou shalt not dye. Beholde, my father doth nothinge, nether greate ner small, but he sheweth it be fore myne eares. Wherfore shulde my father the hyde this fro me? It shal not be so. The sware Dauid agayne, and sayde: Thy father knoweth well, & I haue founde fauoure in & sighte, therfore shal he thynke: Jonathas shal not knowe of this, lest it greue him. Verely, as truly as the LORDE lyueth, and as truly as & soule lyueth, there is but one steppe betwene me & death. Jonathas sayde vnto Dauid: I wil do for the what so euer thy heart desireth. Dauid sayde vnto him: Beholde, tomorrow is the new Mone, that I shulde sit at the table with the kyng. Let me hyde my selfe therfore in the felde vnto the thirde daye at enen. If thy father then are after me, saye: Dauid prayed me, & he mighte runne to Bethleem vnto his cite, for all his kynred haue there a yearly sacrifice. If he saye then: It is good, the stonde it well with & seruant. But yf he be wroth, thou shalt perceauie that he intendeth enell. Do mercy therfore vpon thy seruant: for with me & seruant hast thou made a couenaunt in the LORDE. But yf there be any trespass in me, then slaye me thy selfe, for why woldest thou brynge me vnto thy father?

Jonathas sayde: That be farre from the, that I shulde perceauie my father to intende eny euell agaynst the, and shulde not tell the. Dauid sayde: Who shal brynge me worde, yf thy father geue the an harde answer? Jonathas sayde vnto Dauid: Come, let vs go forth into the felde. And they wente out both in to & felde. And Jonathas sayde vnto Dauid:

LORDE God of Israel, yf I perceauie by my father tomorrow or on the thirde daye, that it goeth well with Dauid, & sende not vnto the, and shewe the before thine eares, then let the LORDE do this and that vnto Jonathas. But yf my father delyte in euell agaynst the, I wil shewe it before thine eares also, and let & go, that thou mayest departe in peace.

And the LORDE be with the, as he hath bene with my father. If I do it not, then do thou no mercy of the LORDE on me, while I lyue, no not whan I dye, and plucke thy mercy fro my house for euer. And whan the LORDE roterch out & enemies of Dauid, enery one out of the londe, then let Dauid rote out Jonathas also with his house, and the LORDE requyre it of the hande of Dauids enemies.

And Jonathas proceeded further, and sware vnto Dauid (he loued him so well: for he loued him enen as his owne soule) and Jonathas sayde vnto him: Tomorrow is & new Mone, and thou shalt be ayled after: for thou shalt be wanted where thou wast wonte to sit. But on the thirde daye come downe soone, & go in to & place where thou hydest the on the worck daye, & set the downe by the stone of Asel: then wyl I shute thie arrowes on & side, as though I wolde shute at a marke: and beholde, I wil sende the boye, and saye vnto him, Go seke & arrowes. If I saye now vnto the lad: Lo, the arrowes lye hitherwarde behynde &, fetch them, then come thou, for it is peace, and there is no parell, as truly as the LORDE lyueth. But yf I saye vnto the lad: beholde, the arrowes lye yonderwarde before the, then go thou thy waye, for the LORDE hath let the go. As for that which thou and I haue spoke together, the LORDE is betwene me and the for euer.

Dauid hid himself in the felde. And whan the new Mone came, the kyng sat him downe at the table to eate. Whan the kyng had set him downe in his place as he was wonte by the wall, Jonathas stode vp, but Abner sat him downe besyde Saul. And Dauid was myssed in his place. And Saul spake no thinge that daye, for he thought: There is somwhat happend vnto him, that he is not cleane. On the seconde daye of the new Mone, whan Dauid was myssed in his place, Saul saide vnto Jonathas his sonne: Wherfore is not the sonne of Isai come to the table nether yesterdaye ner to daye?

Jonathas answered Saul: he prayed me that he mighte go vnto Bethleem, and sayde: Let me go, for oure kynred hath a sacrifice to do in the cyte, and my brother hath sent for me himselfe: yf I haue founde fauoure now in thy syghte, I wyll go, and se my brethren: therfore is he not come to the kynges table. Then was the kyng wroth at Jonathas, and sayde vnto him: Thou wicked and vnchriste, I knowe how that thou hast chosen the sonne of Isai, to the shame of thy selfe and of y<sup>e</sup> shamefull moether. For as longe as y<sup>e</sup> sonne of Isai lyueth vpon earth neether thou ner thy kyngdome shal prosper. Sende now therfore, and cause him to be fetched vnto me,* for he is a childe of death.

Jonathas answered his father Saul and sayde vnto him: Wherfore shal he dye? what hath he done? Then shot Saul the iauelynge at him, that he might smite him. The per ceaued Jonathas, that his father was vterly determed to kyll Dauid, and he rose vp from y<sup>e</sup> table in a wrothfull displeasure, and ate no bried y<sup>e</sup> same seconde daye of the new Mone: for he was vexed because of Dauid, that his father had done him soch dishonour.

S On the morow wente Jonathas forth in to the felde, at the tyme appoynted of Dauid, and a litle boy with him, and sayde vnto y<sup>e</sup> boy: Runne and seke me the arrowes which I shute. Whan the boy ranne, he shot an arrowe ouer him. And whan the boy came to the place whither Jonathas had shot y<sup>e</sup> arrowe, Jonathas cryed after him, and sayde: The arrowe lyeth yonderwarde before the. And he cryed after him agayne: haist the, and stonde not styll. Then the boy gathered vp Jonathas arrowes, and brought them to his lorde. And the boy knewe nothinge, only Jonathas and Dauid knewe of y<sup>e</sup> matter.

Then Jonathas gaue his boy his wapens and sayde vnto him: Go thy waye, and cary them in to the cite. And whan the boy was gone, Dauid arose from the place towarde the south, and fell vpon his face to the ground, and worshipped thre tymes, and they kysed one another, and wepte together. But Dauid most specially. And Jonathas saide vnto Dauid: Go thy waye in peace. What soeuer we both haue sworne z spoke together in the name of the LORDE, the LORDE be witnesse betwene me and the, betwene my seide and y<sup>e</sup> seide for euer. And Jonathas gat him vp, and came in to the cite.

The XXI. Chapter.

Dauid came to Nob to y<sup>e</sup> prest Ahimelech. And Ahimelech was astonied, whan he sawe Dauid communinge, and sayde vnto him: Why comest thou alone, and noman is with the? Dauid sayde vnto Ahimelech the prest: The kyng hath comytted a matter vnto me, and sayde: Let noman knowe wherfore I haue sent the, and what I haue commaunded the: for I haue appoynted my seruantes to mete me here z there.* If thou haue now ought vnder thy hande, a loafe of bried or fyne, geue me the same in my hande, or what so euer thou findest.

The prest answered Dauid, and sayde: I haue no comen bried vnder my hande, but holy bried, yf the yonge men haue onely refused them selues from women. Dauid answered the prest, and sayde vnto him: The men were kepte thre dayes from vs whan we departed forth, and the yonge men selfes were holy. But this waye is unholy, nerthelesse it shalbe sanctified to daye in the instrumentes.* Then the prest gaue him y<sup>e</sup> holy, in so moch as there was none other bried but the shewbreads, which were layd vp before the LORDE, that there might be ther freshbreads for therin the daye whan he toke them awaye.

But the same daye was there a man appeared in before the LORDE, one of Sauls seruantes, named Doeg an Edomite, y<sup>e</sup> mightiest amonge Sauls hyrdmen. And Dauid sayde vnto Ahimelech: Is there not a spare or a swerde here vnder thine hande? I haue not taken my swerde and weapons with me: for the kynges matter requyred haist. The prest sayde: The swerde of Goliath the Philistyne* whom thou smotest in the Chel valley, is here wrapped in a cloth behynde the ouerbode cote. If thou wylt haue it, take it, for here is els none but it. Dauid sayde: There is not soch another, geue me it.

And Dauid gat him vp, and fled from Saul, and came to Achis y<sup>e</sup> kyng of Gath. But Achis seruantes sayde vnto him: This is Dauid the kyng of the londe, of whom they singe in the daunce, and sayde: Saul hath smytten his thousande, but Dauid hath ten thousande. And Dauid toke these wordes to hert, and was sore afraied of Achis the kyng of Gath, and altered his countenance before them, and shewed himselfe as he had bene madd in their handes, and stered towarde the doores of the gate, and his slauerynges ranne downe his beard. Then sayde Achis vnto his seruantes: Beholde, ye se that the man is out of his wyt, why haue ye brought him vnto me? Haue I to ferre madd men, that ye haue brought this hynde to be madd before me? Shulde he come in to my house?

The XXII. Chapter.

Dauid wente fro thence, z fled vnto the caue of Adullam. Whan his brethren and all his fathers house heard that, they came downe thither vnto him. And there gathered vnto him all men that were in trouble and det, and sorry of hert, and he became their heade, so that there were re with him vpon a foure hundred men.

And Dauid wente from thence towarde Mispah in the londe of the Moabites, and sayde vnto the kyng of the Moabites: Let my father and my mother go out and in amonge you, tyll I se what God wil do with me. And he leste them before the kyng of y<sup>e</sup> Moabites, so that they remayned by him, as longe as Dauid was in the castell. Nerthelesse the prophet Gad sayde vnto Dauid: Abide not in the castell, but go y<sup>e</sup> waye, and come in to the londe of Iuda. Then departed Dauid, and came in to the wodd of hareth. And Saul herde that Dauid and the men which were with him, were come forth.

Now whyle Saul dwelt at Gibeon vnder a groue in Rama, he had a Jauelynge in his hande, and all his seruantes stode by him. Then sayde Saul vnto his seruantes that stode by him: Heare ye children of Jeminis: Shal the sonne of Isai geue lodges and vnyardes vnto you all, z make you all captaynes ouer thousandes and ouer hundredes, that ye haue all conspyred agaynst me, and there is no man that sheweth it before myne eares, * for so moch as my sonne also hath made a couenaunt with the sonne of Isai: There is noman amonge you that letteth it for my sake, or y<sup>e</sup> openeth it vnto myne eares: for my sonne hath stered vp my seruantes against me, that he maye laye wayte for me, as it is manifest.

Then answered Doeg y<sup>e</sup> Edomite which stode besyde Sauls seruantes, and sayde: I sawe the sonne of Isai, that he came vnto Nob, to Ahimelech y<sup>e</sup> sonne of Achitob, which aied counsell at the LORDE for him, and gaue him sode, z the swerde of Goliath the Philistyne.

Then sent the kyng, and caused to call Ahimelech the prest the sonne of Achitob, and all his fathers house, the prestes that were at Nob, and they came all to the kyng. And Saul sayde: Heare thou sonne of Achitob. He saide: Here am I my lorde. And Saul sayde vnto him: Wherfore haue ye conspyred agaynst me, thou z the sonne of Isai, that thou hast geuen him bried and a swerde, and aied counsell at God for him, to stere him vp, that he mighte laye awayte for me, as it is manifest?

Ahimelech answered the kyng and saide: And who is amonge all thy seruantes like Dauid, which is faithfull, and hath married the kynges doughter, and goeth in thine obedience, z is honorably taken in thine house?

Haue I begonne then first this daye to aie counsell at God for him? That be farre from me. Let not the kyng laie soch to his seruantes charge in all my fathers house: for thy seruante knewe not of all these thinges neether small ner greate. Nerthelesse the kyng saide: Ahimelech thou must dye y<sup>e</sup> death, thou and all thy fathers house. And the kyng sayde to his fore men that stode by him: Turne you, and slaye the prestes of the LORDE, for their hande is with Dauid also.

Not withstandinge the kynges seruantes wolde not laye their handes vpon y<sup>e</sup> prestes of the LORDE, to slaye them. Then saide y<sup>e</sup> kyng vnto Doeg: Turne the, and slaye the prestes.* Doeg the Edomite turned him, and slewe the prestes, so that the same daye there dyed fyue and foure score men, which wayre ouerbode cotes of linnen. And Nob the cite of the prestes smote he with the edge of the swerde, both men and women, children and sucklynges, oxen and asses, and shepe.

Nerthelesse there escaped a sonne of Ahimelech (the sonne of Achitob) whose name was Abiathar, and fled after Dauid, and tolde him, that Saul had slayne y<sup>e</sup> prestes of the LORDE. Dauid sayde vnto Abiathar: I knewe well the same daye that Doeg the Edomite was there, that he wolde tell Saul. I am guiltye of the soules of thy fathers house. Abide thou with me, and feare not. He that layeth wayte for my lyfe, shall laye wayte for thine also, and thou shalt be preferred with me.

The XXIII. Chapter.

It was tolde Dauid: Beholde, the Philistynes fight agaynst Cegila, and spoyle the barnes. Then Dauid aied at the LORDE, and sayde: Shal I go, z smyte these Philistynes? And the LORDE sayde vnto Dauid: Go thy waye, thou shalt smyte the Philistynes, and deluyne Cegila. But y<sup>e</sup> men that were with Dauid, sayde vnto him: Beholde, we are here in feare in Jewry, and shall we go to Cegila vnto the hoost of the Philistynes? The Dauid aied at the LORDE agayne. And the LORDE answered him, and sayde: Up, ge: the downe to Cegila, for I wil deluyne the Philistynes in to thy hande.

So Dauid wente with his men vnto Cegila, and fought agaynst the Philistynes, z dioune awaye their catell, and smote them with a greate slaughter. Thus Dauid deluynered them of Cegila. For whan Abiathar the sonne of Ahimelech fled vnto Dauid at Cegila, he bare downe the ouerbode cote with him.

Thē was it tolde Saul, that David was come to Cegila, and he sayde: God hath deliuered him in to my hāde, for he is shut fast in, now that he is come in to a cite which is kepe wth gates and barres. And Saul caused for to call all the people downe to & battail vnto Cegila, & they might beseege David and his men. But whan David perceaued & Saul intended euell against him, he saide vnto Abiathar & prest: Brynge me hither the ouerboddy cote. And David sayde: O LORDE God of Israel, thy seruauunt hath herde, that Saul goeth aboute to come for to destroye the cite of Cegila for my sake. Shal the citysens of Cegila deliuer me ouer in to his handes? And shal Saul come downe, as thy seruauunt hath herde? Tell thy seruauunt this, O LORDE God of Israel. And the LORDE saide: He shal come downe.

David sayde: Shall the citysens of Cegila deliuer me and my men in to Sauls handes? The LORDE sayde: Yee. Thē David gat him vp with his mē, of whom there were vpon a hire hundreth, & walked whither they coude. Now whan it was tolde Saul that David was escaped from Cegila, he let his iourneysonde. As for David, he remayned in the wilderness in the castell, and abode vpon the mount in the wilderness of Siph. But Saul sought him as longe as he luyed. Nevertheless God gaue him not in to his handes. And David sawe, that Saul was gone forth to seke after his life. But David was in the wilderness of Siph, in the wodd.

Then Jonathan the sonne of Saul gat him vp, and wēt vnto David in to the wodd, and strengthened his hande in God, and sayde vnto him: Feare not, my father Sauls hande shal not finde & and thou shalt be kynge ouer Israel, so will I be the nexte vnto the. And & my father knoweth right well. And they made a couenauent both together before the LORDE. And David remayned in the wodd. As for Jonathan, he wente home agayne.

But the Siphites wente vp to Saul vnto Gibeath, and sayde: Is not David hyd with vs in the castell in & wodd, vpon mount Hachila, which lyeth on the righte hande of the wilderness? Let the kynge come downe now therfore accordinge to all the desyre of his hert, and we will deliuer him in to the kynge's hande. Then sayde Saul: Blessed be ye of the LORDE, that ye haue had pytie vpon me: Go youre waye now therfore, and be sure, that ye maye knowe and se in what place his fete haue bene, and who hath sene him there: for it is tolde me, that he is full of subtiltye. Take well and spye out all the places, where he hydeh him, and come agayne to me, whan ye are sure, and I will go with you. If he be in the londe, I will enquire after him amonge all the thousandes in Israel.

Then gat they them vp, and wente their waye vnto Siph before Saul. But David and his men were in the wilderness of Mahon, even in the felde on the righte hande of the wilderness. Now whan Saul wente thither with his men to seke him, it was tolde David, and he gat him downe to the rocke, and abode in the wilderness of Mahon. Whan Saul herde that, he folowed a fter David in the wilderness of Mahon. And Saul with his men wente on the one syde of the hill. But whan David made haist to escape from Saul, Saul with his men compassed aboute David and his men, that he might take them. Nevertheless there came a messenger vnto Saul, and sayde: Make haist and come, for the philistynes are fallē in to the londe. Thē Saul turned him from chasinge of David, and wente agaynst the philistynes. Therfore is & place called * Sela Nabeloth. And David wente vp from thence, and abode in the castell at En Gaddi.

The XXIII. Chapter.

Now whan Saul came agayne from the philistines, it was tolde him: Beholde, David is in the wilderness of Engaddi. And Saul toke thre thousand chosen men out of all Israel, and wente to seke David with his men vpon the stony rockes of the wylde goates. And whan he came to the shepe foldes by & waye, there was a cave, and Saul wente in to couer his fete. But David and his men sat behinde within the cave.

Then sayde Davids men vnto him: This is the daye, wherof the LORDE thy God hath sayde vnto the: Beholde, I will deliuer thine enemye in to thy hande, that thou mayest do wth him what it pleaseth the. And David stode vp, & cut of the tye of Sauls garment quietly. Nevertheless it smote him afterwarde in his hert, because he had cut of the tye of Sauls garment, and sayde vnto his men: The LORDE let that be farrest from me, that I shulde do it, & laye my hande vpon my lord the LORDES anoynted: for he is anoynted of the LORDE. And David withheld his seruantes with wordes, & suffered them not to ryse vp agaynst Saul.

But whan Saul gat him vp out of the cave, and was goinge his waye, David rose vp also after him, and wente out of the cave, and cried behynde Saul, & sayde: My lord the kynge. And Saul looked behynde him. And David bowed downe his face to the earth, and worshipped, and sayde vnto Saul: Why herkenest thou vnto the wordes of men, that saye: David sekerh thy myssfortune? Beholde, thine eyes se this daye that the LORDE gaue the in to my hande in the cave, and I was counceled to slaye the: Nevertheless thou wast sauoured, for I sayde: I will not laye my hande vpon my lord, for he is the LORDES anoynted. Beholde, my father the tye of thy garment in my hande, that I wolde not slaye the, whan I cut of the tye of thy garment. Nowe and fi, & there is no euell ner trespass in my hand: neither haue I offended the, and thou followest after my soule, to take it awaye. The LORDE shal be iudge betwene me and the, and auenge me on the, but my hāde shal not be vpon the, accordinge as it is sayde after the olde proverbe: Vngodlynes commeth of the vngodly: but my hande shal not be vpon the. Whom persecutest thou O kynge of Israel, whom persecutest thou? a deed dogg: a fleece. The LORDE be iudge, and geue sentence betwene me and the, and cōsidre it, and defende my cause, and deliuer me from thy hande.

Now whan David had spoken out these wordes vnto Saul, Saul saide: Is not this thy voyce my sonne David? And Saul lifte vp his voyce, and wepte, and saide vnto David: Thou art more righteous then I: for thou hast recompensed me good, but I haue rewarded the euell. And this daye hast thou shewed me how thou hast done me good, for so much as & LORDE hath deliuered me in to thy hande, and thou neuertheless hast not slaine me. What is he, which yf he fynde his enemye, wyll let him go in a good waye? The LORDE reward the good for & thou hast done vnto me this daye. Beholde now, I knowe that thou shalt be kynge, & the kynge dome of Israel stondesth in thy hande: sweare now therfore vnto me by the LORDE, & thou shalt not rote out my sede after me, neither destroye my name out of my fathers house. And David swore vnto Saul. Then went he Saul home, but David gat him vp with his men vnto the castell.

The XXV. Chapter.

Now Samuel dyed, and all Israel gathered them selues together, mourned for him, & buried him in his house at Ramath. As for David, he rose, and wente downe in to the wilderness of Paran. And there was a man at Maca, and his possession at Carmel, and the man was of greate power, and had thre thousande shepe, and a thousande geates. And it fortuned that he clypped his shepe at Carmel, and his name was Nabal, but his wyues name was Abigail, and she was a woman of good understandinge, & bewtyfull of face. But the man was harde, and wicked in his doynges, and was one of Caleb.

Now whan David herde in the wilderness & Nabal clypped his shepe, he sent out ten yonge men, & saide vnto them: Go vp vnto Carmel, & whan ye come to Nabal, salute him frendly on my behalfe, & saye: Good lucke, peace be wth the & thine house, & with all & thou hast. I haue herde saye that thou hast shepe clyppers. Now & shepherdes whom thou hast, haue bene with vs, we haue done them no dishonoure, and they wated no thinge of their nombre, as longe as they were at Carmel: Are thy yonge men, they shal tell the, and let thy yonge men fynde sauoure in & sighte: for we are come in a good daye, geue thy seruantes & thy sonne David what thy hande syndeth.

And whan Davids yonge men came, and spake all these wordes on Davids behalfe vnto Nabal, they lefte of. But Nabal answered Davids seruantes, & sayde: What is he & David? & who is the sonne of Isai? There are many seruantes now & runne awaye from their masters. Shulde I take my bried, water and flesh, that I haue slayne for my clyppers, & geue it vnto me whom I knowe not whence they are?

Thē Davids yonge mē turned their waye agayne. And whan they came agayne vnto him, they tolde him all these wordes. Thē sayde David vnto his men: Euery man gyde his swerde aboute him. And euery one gyde his swerde aboute him. And David gyde his swerde aboute him also, and there wēt he vp after him vpon a fowre hundreth men, but two hundreth remayned wth the stuffe.

Nevertheless Abigail Nabals wife tolde one of hir yonge men, and sayde: Beholde, David sent messaungers out of the wilderness to blesse oure lord, & notwithstandinge he was scarce vpon them, and yet haue they bene very profitable men vnto vs, and haue done vs no dishonoure, and we wated none of the nombre as lōge as we walked with them, whan we were in the felde: but they haue bene oure wall daye and nighte, as lon ge as we kepte the shepe by them. Take he-de now therfore, and loke well what thou doest, for there is surely a myffortune at han-de agaynst oure lorde, & agaynst all his house. And he is a man of Belial, to whom no man darre saye any thinge. Then Abigail made haist, and toke two hundred loanes of bied, and two botels of wyne, and fyue she-pe ready dighte, and fyue measures of firmentye, and an hundred frayles of rasens,

and two hundred frayles of fygges, & layed
them vpon asses, and sayde to hir yonge men:
Go ye youre waye before me, beholde, I wyl come after. And she tolde Nabal hir housbade nothings therof. And as she rode vpon the asse, and wente downe in the shadowe of a hill, beholde, Dauid & his men met hir dow-ne, so that she came vpon them.

D But Dauid sayde: Wel, all that this man had in a wyldernes, haue I kepte for naughte, so that there wanted nothings of all that he had, and he rewardeth me euell for good.
God do this and yet more vnto the enemies of Dauid, yf vntyll to morow in the mornyn-ge I leaue this man (of all that he hath) so much as one that maketh water agaynst a wall. Now whan Abigail sawe Dauid, she lighte downe from the asse in all the haist, and fell vpon hir face before Dauid, and worshipped him to the grounde, and fell at his fete, and sayde: Oh my lorde, let this trespass be myne, and let thy handmayde speake before thine eares, and heare the wordes of thy handmayden: Let not my lorde set his hert agaynst this Nabal the man of Belial, for he is a foole, accordinge as his name is called: his name is foole, and foolishnes is with him. As for me thy handmayde, I sawe not my lordes yonge men, whom thou dydest sende.

But now my lorde, as truly as the LORDE lyueth, and as truly as thy soule lyueth, the LORDE hath kepte thee backe, & thou shuldest not come agaynst bloude, and he hath deliuered thine hande.

E Thine enemies be now as Nabal, and so be they that wolde my lorde euell. Here is a blessynge, & thy handmayde hath brought my lorde, take it, and geue it vnto the yonge men, that walke vnder my lorde. For a sure house shal a LORDE make my lorde, which fightheth the fighthe of the LORDE, and no
euell shal be founde in the all thy life longe.
And yf any man ryse vp to persecute a, and to laye wayte for thy soule, then shal the soule of my lorde be bounde in the bundell of a lyuynge, euen with the LORDE thy God.

But a soule of thine enemies shal be turned backe to the slynge. Whan the LORDE therfore doth all this good for my lorde (which he hath promysed thee) and commaundeth a,
to be his Duke ouer Israel, then shal it be stomblinge blocke ner occasion of fallinge vnto my lordes hert, that thou hast not shod bloude without a cause, and auenged thy selfe, then shal a LORDE do good vnto my lorde, and thou shalt thynke vpon thy hand-mayden.

Then saide Dauid vnto Abigail: Blessed be the LORDE God of Israel, which hath sent thee to mete me this daye: and blessed be thy speach, and blessed be thou, which hast kept me backe this daye, that I am not come agaynst bloude, to auenge me with my ne awne hande. Verely (as truly as the LOR-DE the God of Israel lyueth, which hath hyndred me that I shulde do the noeuell.)
If thou haddest not met me in all the haist, Nabal shulde not haue had leste him vntill
a lichte mornynge, so much as one that ma-keth water agaynst the wall. So Dauid to-ke of hir haire what she had brought him, and sayde vnto her: Go vp in peace vnto thy house: beholde, I haue hearkened vnto thy voce, and accepted thy personne.

But whan Abigail came to Nabal, be-holde, he had prepared a feast in his house for a kynge's feast, and his hert was merry, for he was very dronken. And she tolde him nothings, nether small ner greete vntill a clea-re mornynge. But whan it was daye, & the wyne was come from Nabal, his wife tolde him these thinges.

Then was his hert deede in his body, so that he became euen as a stone: and ouer ten dayes the LORDE smote him, so that he dyed.
Whan Dauid herde that Nabal was deede,
he sayde: Blessed be a LORDE which hath auenged my rebuke on Nabal, and preserued his seruauit from euell. And the LORDE hath rewarded Nabal that euell vpon his heade.

And Dauid sent, and caused to talke with Abigail, & he mighte take her to wife. And whan Dauid's seruantes came to Abigail
vnto Carmel, they spake vnto her, and saide:
Dauid hath sent vs vnto thee, that he may take a to wife. She rose vp, and worshipped vpon hir face vnto the earth, and sayde: be-holde, here is thy handmayde, that she may do seruyce vnto the seruantes of my lorde, and to washe their fete. And Abigail made haist, and gat her vp, and rode vpon an asse, and fyue maydens that were vnder her, and wente after Dauid's messengers, and became his wife. Dauid toke Abinoam of Jesrad also, and they both became his wyues.

But Saul gaue Michol his daughter the wife of Dauid vnto Phalti a sonne of Laish of Gallim.

The XXVI. Chapter.

They of Siph came to Saul vnto Gi-beath, & sayde: Is not Dauid hyd
vpon the hill of Hachila, which lyeth ouer agaynst the wyldernes? Then Saul gat him vp, and wente downe to the wil-dernes of Siph, and thre thousande chosen men of Israel with him, to seke Dauid in the wil-dernes of Siph, and pitched vpon the hill of Hachila, which lyeth by the waye before the wyldernes. But Dauid remayned in the wyldernes, and whan he sawe that Saul came after him in to the wyldernes, he sent out spyes, and knewe of a suertie, that he was come in dede.

And Dauid gat him vp, and came to the place where Saul had pitched his tent, and sawe the place where Saul laye with his chefe capteyne. Abner a sonne of Ner: for Saul laye in the tent, and the host aboute
him. Then answered Dauid, and sayde vnto Abimelech the Hethite, and to Abisai the sonne of Jeru Ja a brother of Joab: Who wil go downe to me to Saul in to the host?
Abisai sayde: I wil go downe with thee.

D So Dauid and Abisai came to the people in the nyght season, & beholde, Saul laye
and slepte in the tent, and his speare sticke in a grounde at his heade. But Abner and the people laye rounde aboute him. The sayde Abisai vnto Dauid: God hath closed thine enemye in thine hande this daye. Therfore will I now thrust him thorow once with the speare euen in to the grounde, & he shall haue ynough of it. Tenecherles Dauid sayde vnto Abisai: Destroye him not, for who wil laye hande vpon the anoynted of a LOR-DE, & remayne vngiltye? Dauid sayde mor-ouer: As truly as the LORDE lyueth, yf a LORDE him selfe smyte him not, or excepte his tyme come that he dye, or that he go in to the battayll and perishe, the LORDE let it be farre fro me, that I shulde laye my han-de on the LORDE'S anoynted. Take a spea-re now therfore at his heade, & the cuppe of water, & let vs go. So Dauid toke a speare & the cuppe of water at Saul's heade, & they wente their waye. And there was no man sawe it, ner perceaued it, nether awaked, but they slepte euery one, for there was a depe
sleepe fallen vpon them from the LORDE.

Now whan Dauid was come ouer on a other syde, he stode vpon the toppe of the mount a farre of (so that there was a wyde space betwene them) and cried vpon a people, and vpon Abner the sonne of Ner, & sayde: Hearest thou not Abner? And Abner answered and sayde: Who art thou that cryest so, and disekest the kynge? And Dauid sayde vnto Abner: Art thou not a man? And where is there such one as thou in Israel?
Why hast thou not then kepte thy lorde a kynge? for there is one of a people come in to destroye thy lorde a kynge. It is not well that thou hast done. As truly as the LORDE lyueth, ye are the children of death, because ye haue not kepte youre lorde the LORDE'S anoynted. Beholde now, where is a kynge's speare, and the cuppe of water that was at his heade.

Then knewe Saul the voyce of Dauid,
and saide: Is not that thy voyce my sonne Dauid? Dauid sayde: It is my voyce my lorde the kynge. And he sayde morouer: Why doth my lorde so persecute his seruauit?
What haue I done? and what euell is there in my hande? Yet let my lorde the kynge heare but the wordes of his seruauit: If a LORDE promote the agaynst me, let there be smelled a mentofferynge: but yf the childre of men do it, cursed be they before the LOR-DE, because they haue thrust me out this daye (that I shulde not dwell in the LORDE'S inheritaunce), and saye: Go a waye, and ser-ue other goddes. So fall not now my blou-de vpon the earth from the face of the LOR-DE. For the kynge of Israel is gone forth to seke a flee, as a partridge is folowed on vpon
the mountaynes.

And Saul sayde: I haue synned: Come a-gayne Dauid my sonne, I wil do the nomore hurte, because my soule hath bene deare in a fighthe this daye. Beholde, I haue done foolishly and very vnwysely. Dauid answered and sayde: Beholde, here is the kynge's spea-re, let one of the yongemen come ouer here and fetch it. But the LORDE shal reward euery one accordinge to his righteousnes and faith, for a LORDE deliuered a this daye into my hande: neuertheles I wolde not laie my hande vpon the LORDE'S anoynted. And as a soule hath bene greatly reputed in my fighthe this daye, so let a LORDE repente my soule in his fighthe, & deliuer me from all trouble. Saul saide vnto Dauid: Blessed be thou Dauid my sonne, thou shalt do it, & be able.
But Dauid wente his waye, and Saul turned agayne vnto his place.

Amid thoughte in his hert: One of these dayes shal I fall into the handes of Saul: It is better that I get me my waye into y<sup>e</sup> londe of y<sup>e</sup> philistynes, that Saul maye leaue of from sekynge me in all the coastes of Israel, so shal I escape his handes. And he gat him vp, and wente ouer (with the sixe hundred men that were with him) vnto Achis the sonne of Maach kyng of Gath. So David remayned by Achis at Gath, with his mē, every one with his housholde, and David with his two wyues, Ahinoam the Iesraelitisse, and Abigail Nabals wife of Carmel. And whan worde came to Saul that David was fled vnto Gath, he soughte him nomore.

And David sayde vnto Achis: If I haue founde grace in thy sighte, then let there be geuen me a place in one of the cities of the londe, that I maye dwell therein. Wherfore shulde thy seruauant dwell in the kynges cite with the? Then Achis gaue him Siclag the same daye. Therfore belongeth. Siclag to the kynges of Iuda vnto this daye. The tyme that David dwelt in the londe of the philistynes, is foure monethes.

B David wente vp with his men, and fell in to the londe of the Gessurites and Girsites, and Amalechites: for these were the inhabitants of this londe of olde, as thou comcest to Sur vnto the lode of Egipte. But whā David smote y<sup>e</sup> londe, he let nether man ner woman lyue, and toke the shepe, oxen, asses, Camels and rayment, and returned and came to Achis. So whan Achis spake: Whither fell ye in to daye? David sayde: Towarde the south parte of Iuda, towarde y<sup>e</sup> south parte of the Ierahmuelites, z towarde the south parte of the Benites. But David let nether man ner woman come lyrynge vnto Geth, and thoughte: They mighte peradventure speake z reporte agaynst vs: thus dyd David, and this was his maner as longe as he dwelt in y<sup>e</sup> londe of the philistynes. Therfore Achis gaue credence vnto David, and thoughte: he hath made him selfe stynte before his people of Israel, therefore shal he be my seruauant for ever.

At fortunat at y<sup>e</sup> same tyme, that the philistynes gathered their hoost together to the battayll, to go agaynst Israel. And Achis sayde vnto David: Thou shalt knowe, that thou and thy men shal go forth with me in the hoost. David sayde vnto Achis: Well, thou shalt se what thy seruant shal do. Achis saide vnto David: The fore wyll I ordeyne the to be the kper of my heade as longe as I lyue. As for Samuel, he was ded, and all y<sup>e</sup> people had mourned for him, z buried him in his cite Ramath. So Saul had dryuen the soychsayers and expounders of tokens out of y<sup>e</sup> londe. Now whan the philistynes gathered them selves together, and came and pitched their tents at Sunem, Saul gathered all the people together, z they pitched at Gilboa. But whan Saul sawe the hoost of the philistynes, he was afraied, and his hert was discouraged, and he aied counsell at the LORDE. But y<sup>e</sup> LORDE gaue him no answer, nether by dreames, ner by the lighte, ner by prophetes.

Thē sayde Saul vnto his seruantes: Seke me a womā which hath a spere of soych sayge, that I maye go vnto her, and aske her. His seruantes sayde vnto him: Beholde, at Endor is there a woman, which hath a spere of soychsayenge. And Saul chaunged his clothes, and put on other, and wente his waye and two men with him, and came by nighte vnto the woman, and sayde: prophesye vnto me. I pray the chorow the spere of soychsayenge, and brynge me him vnto whom I shal name vnto the. The woman saide vnto him: Beholde, thou knowest what Saul hath done, how he hath rote out the soychsayers z witches from the londe, wherfore wilt thou brynge my soule then into y<sup>e</sup> nett, that I maye be slayne? But Saul swore vnto her by y<sup>e</sup> LORDE, and sayde: As truly as the LORDE lyne, there shal no harme happen vnto the for this. Then sayde y<sup>e</sup> woman: Whom shal I brynge vp vnto the? He sayde: Brynge me vp Samuel.

Now whan y<sup>e</sup> woman sawe Samuel, she cryed loude, and sayde vnto Saul: Wherfore hast thou begyled me? Thou art Saul. And the kyng sayde vnto her: Feare not, what seist thou? The woman sayde vnto Saul: I se goddes cōmyng vnto y<sup>e</sup> earth. He sayde: How is he shapened? She sayde: There cometh vp an olde man, and is clothed with a longe garment. Then perceaued Saul that it was Samuel, z bowed him selfe downe to his face to the ground, and worshipped him.

Samuel saide vnto Saul: Why hast thou disquyeted me, to cause me be broughte vp? Saul sayde: I am sore troubled, the philistynes fighte agaynst me, z God is departed from me, z geuech me no answer, nether by prophetes ner by dreames: therefore haue I called the, y<sup>e</sup> thou mightest shewe me, what I shal do. Samuel sayde: What wilt thou aie at me, seynge the LORDE is departed from the, and is become thine enemye? The LORDE shal do vnto the euen as he spake by me, and shal plucke the kyngdome out of thy hande, and geue it vnto David thyneighbour, because thou hast not hearkened vnto the voyce of the LORDE, ner persourmed the displeasure of his wrath agaynst Amalek. Therfore hath the LORDE done this now vnto the. Moreover the LORDE shal deliuer Israel with the also into the handes of the philistynes: tomorrow shalt thou and thy sonnes be with me. And the hoost of Israel shal the LORDE deliuer in to the handes of the philistynes. Then fell Saul immediatly vnto the earth, for he coulde not stonde, and was sore afraied at these wordes of Samuel, so that there was nomore strength in him: for he had eaten no bried all that daye and all that night.

E And the woman wente into Saul, z sawe that he was sore vexed, and sayde vnto him: Beholde, thy hand maye hath hearkened vnto thy voyce, and I haue put my soule in my hande, so that I haue hearkened vnto y<sup>e</sup> wordes which thou spakest vnto me. Therfore folow thou also the voyce of thy handmaye. I wil set a morsell of bried before the to eate, that thou mayest come to thy strength, z go y<sup>e</sup> waye. But he refused, and sayde, I wil not eate. Then his seruantes z the woman compelled him, so that he hearkened vnto their voyce.

And he rose vp from y<sup>e</sup> ground, and sat vpon the bed. The woman had a fat calfe at home, so she made haist, and kyled it, and toke meell and dyd kneet it, and baked sweete cakes, z broughte them forth before Saul, z before his seruantes. And whan they had eaten, they stode vp, and wete their waye y<sup>e</sup> nighte.

The philistynes gathered all their armies together at Aphek. But Israel pitched at Ain in Iesrael. And the prynces of the philistynes wete forth with hundreds and with thousandes, but David and his men wete behynde with Achis. Thē sayde the prynces of the philistynes: What shal these Iebus do? Achis saide vnto the: Is not this David y<sup>e</sup> seruauant of Saul kyng of Israel, which hath bene with me now yeres and dayes, z I haue founde no euell in him sence the tyme that he fell to me vnto this daye? Nevertheless the prynces of y<sup>e</sup> philistynes were wroth at him, z sayde vnto him: Let the man turne backe agayne, z abyde in his place, which thou hast appoynted him, that he go not downe with vs to y<sup>e</sup> batayll, and become oure aduersary in y<sup>e</sup> felde. For wherin coulde he better do his lorde a pleasure, thē in the heades of these men? Is not this David, of whom they singe in the daunce? Saul hath smytte his thousande, but David his ten thousande. Then Achis called David, and sayde vnto him: As truly as the LORDE lyne, I take the for an honest man, and thy our goynge and ingoynge with me in y<sup>e</sup> hoost pleasech me well, and no euell haue I marked in the, sence y<sup>e</sup> tyme that thou camest to me vnto this daye. But thou pleasest not the prynces. Returne now therfore, and go y<sup>e</sup> waye in peace, that thou do no euell in the sighte of the prynces of y<sup>e</sup> philistynes.

B David sayde: What haue I done, z what hast thou marked in thy seruauant, sence y<sup>e</sup> tyme that I haue bene in y<sup>e</sup> presence vnto this daye, that I shulde not come and fighte agaynst the enemies of my lorde the kyng? Achis answered and sayde vnto David: I knowe well that thou pleasest myne eyes eue as an angell of God. But the prynces of y<sup>e</sup> philistynes haue sayde: Let him not go vp with vs vnto the batayll. Set the vp therfore tomorrow by tymes, and y<sup>e</sup> lordes seruantes which are come with the. And whan ye haue gotten you vp early in the mornynge, whan it is lighte, go y<sup>e</sup> waye. So David z his men gat them vp early, to go their waye in the mornynge, and to come agayne in to the londe of the philistynes. But the philistynes wente vp towarde Iesrael.

On whan David came to Siclag, z on the thirde daie with his men, the Amalechites had falle in on y<sup>e</sup> south parte and at Siclag, and had smytten Siclag, and burned it with fyre, and had caried awaye the womē out of it, both small z greete. Nevertheless they had slayne no man, but dryuen the thence, and were goynge on their waye. Now whan David with his men came to the cite, and sawe that it was brent with fyre, and that their wyues, sonnes z daughters were led awaye captyue, David and the people that was with him leste vp their voyce, and wepte so longe tyll they coulde wepe nomore. For Davids two wyues also were caried awaye captyue, Ahinoam y<sup>e</sup> Iesraelitisse, and Abigail Nabals wife of Carmel. And David was very sorowfull, for the people wolde haue stoned him: for y<sup>e</sup> soule of all the people was in greete hevynes, every one over his sonnes and daughters.

B Nevertheless David strenghted him selfe in the LORDE his God, & sayde vnto Abiathar & priest the sonne of Ahimelech: Bring me hither the overbody cote. And whan Abiathar had broughte the overbody cote vnto David, David arood at the LORDE, and sayde: Shal I folowe vpon the men of warre, and shal I ouertake them? He sayde: Yee, folowe vpon them, thou shalt ouertake them, and shalt rescue the pray. Then wente David his waye, and the sixe hundred men that were with him. And whan they came to the ryuer of Besor, some stode styll. But David and the foure hundred men folowed after: As for the two hundred men that stode styll, they had bene slowe to go ouer the ryuer of Besor.

C And they founde a man of Egiptee vpon the felde, him they broughte vnto David, & gaue him bried to eate, and water to drynke, and gaue him a quantite of fygges, & two quantities of rasyns. And whan he had eaten, his spere came to him againe: for in thre dayes and thre nightes he had eate no bried, and dronke no water.

C David sayde vnto him: Whose art thou? & whence art thou? He sayde: I am a childe of Egipte, an Amalechites seruaunt, & my master hath forsaken me, because I was sicke thre dayes a goo. We fell her in towarde & south syde of Chierhus, and vpon Iuda, and towarde & south parte of Caleb, & haue burned Siclag with fyre.

David sayde vnto him: Wilt thou bringe me downe to these men of warre? He sayde: Swear vnto me by God, & thou shalt not slaye me, ner deluyner me in to my masters hande, and I wil bringe the downe to these men of warre. And he broughte the downe, and behelde, they were scatred vpon all & ground, eatinge and drynkyng, and kepyng holy daye, and were makinge mery there, because of all the greate spoyle that they had taken out of the londe of the philistynes and of Iuda.

D And David smote them from & morow tyll the euen, agaynst the nexte daye, so that there escaped none, excepte foure hundred yonge men, which rode vpon camels, & fled. So David rescued all that the Amalechites had taken, and his two wyues, & there mysfled nothinge, nether small ner greete, nether sonnes ner daughters, ner spoyle: and what so euer they had taken, David broughte all agayne. And David toke the shepe and oxe, and broue & catell before him. And they sayde: This is Davids spoyle.

And whan David came to the two hundred men, which had bene slowe to folow after David, and abode at the ryuer of Besor, they wente forth to meete David, and the people & was with him. And David came to the people, and saluted them frendly.

Then answered soch men as were called Belials men (amonge them that had gone with David) and sayde: Seynge they were not wth vs, they shal haue none of the spoyle that we haue rescued: but let every man ke his wife & his children and be gone.

Then sayde David: Ye shall not do so, my brethren) with that which & LORDE hath given vs, and hath preserved vs, and deluynered these men of warre (which were come agaynst vs) in to oure handes. Who shulde sentence vnto you herin? like as the porcion of them that wente downe to the battayll, so shal & porcion be of them also that abode wth the staffe, & shalbe deuyded a lyte.

From that tyme forth hath this bene an ordinaunce & lawe in Israel vnto this daye. And whan David came to Siclag, he sent of the spoyle vnto the Elders in Iuda his neighbours, and sayde: Beholde, there haue ye the blessinge out of the spoyle of the enemies of the LORDE, namely vnto them of Bethel, vnto them at Ramath in the south, vnto them at Jathir, vnto them at Aroer, vnto them at Siphamoth, vnto them at Eschemoa, vnto them at Rachal, vnto them in the cities of the Jerahmeelites, vnto them in the cities of the Kenites, vnto them at Hazor, vnto them at Borasan, vnto them at Arad, vnto them at Hebion, and vnto all the places where David had walked wth his men.

The XXXI. Chapter.

B Ut & philistynes foughte agaynst Israel, and the men of Israel fled before the philistynes, and fell downe smytten vpon the mount Gilboa. And the philistynes preassed vpon Saul and his sonnes, and slewe Jonathas, & Abinadab and Malchisua the sonnes of Saul. And the battayll was sore agaynst Saul, & the archers fell vpon him with bowes, and he was sore wounded of the archers.

Then sayde Saul vnto his wapenbearer: Drawe out thy swerde, and thrust it thorow me, that these vncircumcised come not and flate me, and make a laughinge stocke of vs. Nevertheless his wapenbearer wolde not, for he was sore afayed. Then toke Saul his swerde, and fell therein. Now whan his wapenbearer sawe that Saul was deed, he fell also vpon his swerde, and dyed with him. Thus dyed Saul and his thre sonnes, & his wapenbearer, and all his men together the same daye.

Whan & men of Israel which were beyonde the valley, and beyonde Jordane, sawe, & the men of Israel were fled, and that Saul and his sonnes were deed, they leste & cities, and fled also. Then came the philistynes, & dwelt therein.

C On the nexte daye came the philistynes to spoyle & slayne, and founde Saul and his thre sonnes lyenge vpon mount Gilboa, and smote of his heade, and toke of his harnesse, and sent it in to the lande of the philistynes rounde aboute, to shewe it in the house of their Idols, and amonge the people, & layed his harnesse in & house of Astaroth: but his body hanged they vp vpon the wall of Bethsan.

Whan they of Jabes in Gilead herde, what the philistynes had done vnto Saul, they gat them vp, as many as were men of armes, and wente alle the nighte, and toke & body of Saul, and the bodies of his sonnes from & wall of Bethsan, broughte the to Jabes, & burnt them there, and toke their bones, and buried them vnder & at Jabes, & fasted seuen dayes.

The first Chapter.

After the death of Saul when David was come agayne from the slaughter of the Amalechites, and had remayned two dayes at Siglag, beholde, on the thirde daye there came a man out of Sauls hoost, with his clothes rente, and earth vpon his heade. And when he came vnto David, he fell downe to the grounde, and worshipped. David sayde vnto him: Whence comest thou? He sayde vnto him: Out of the hoost of Israel am I fled. David sayde vnto him: Tell me, what is the matter? He sayde: the people is fled from the battayll, and many of the people are fallen: See and Saul also is deed and his sonne Jonathas. David sayde vnto the yonge man that brought him this worde: How knowest thou that Saul and Jonathas his sonne are deed? The yonge man answered him this, sayde: I came by chauce vnto mount Gelboa, and beholde, Saul leaned vpon his speare, and the charrettes and horses folowed harde after him: and he turned him aboute, and sawe me, and called me. And I sayde: Here am I. And he sayde vnto me: What art thou? I sayde vnto him: I am an Amalechite. And he saide vnto me: Come to me, and kyll me, for anguyshe hath gotten holde of me: for my life is yet whole within me. Then strepte I to him, and slewe him, for I knowe well that he coulde not lye after his fall. And I toke the crowne from his heade, and the armelet fro his arme, and haue broughte it here vnto my lord. Then toke David holde of his clothes, and rente them, and so dyd all the men that were with him, and mourned, and wepte, and fasted vntill the even, ouer Saul and Jonathas his sonne, and ouer the people of the LORDE, and ouer the house of Israel, because they were fallen thorow the swerde.

And David sayde to the yonge man that broughte him worde: What art thou? He sayde: I am the sonne of a straunger an Amalechite. David sayde: How happeneth it that thou wast not afrayed to laye thine hand vpon the LORDES anointed to destroye him? And David sayde vnto one of his yonge men: Come hither, and slaye him. And he smote him that he dyed. Then sayde David vnto him: Thy bloude be vpon thyne owne heade. For thy mouth hath spoken against thyselfe and sayde: I haue slayne the anointed of the LORDE. And David mourned this lamentacion ouer Saul and Jonathas his sonne, and commaunded to teach the childre of Juda the bowe. Beholde, it is wyrtten in the boke of the righteous.

The Elders in Israel are slayne vpon the heighe of the. How are the Worthies fallen. Tell it not at Gath: speake not of it in the stretes at Ascalon: lest the daughters of the Philistynes reioyse, lest the daughters of the vncircumcised triumphe.

Ye mountaynes of Gelboa, nether dener rayne come vpon you, nether lode be wher of cometh heue offeringes: for there is the shyld of the Worthies smytten downe, the shyld of Saul, as though he had not bene anointed with oyle.

The bowe of Jonathas sayled not, and the swerde of Saul came not agayne vnto the bloude of the slayne, and fro the fat of the giantes.

Saul and Jonathas lonely and pleasant in their lyfe, and in their deeth were not parted asunder: lighter then Eagles, and stronger then Lyons.

Ye daughters of Israel wepe ouer Saul which clothed you with purple in pleasures, and decked you with Jewels of golde on youre garmentes.

How are the Worthies fallen so in the battayll: Jonathas is slayne vpon the heighe of the.

I am sorry for the my brother Jonathas: thou hast bene very lowly vnto me: Thy loue hath bene more speciall vnto me, then the lone of women.

How are the Worthies fallen, and the weapons destroyed?

The II. Chapter.

After these actes David abode at the LORDE, and sayde: Shall I go vp in to one of the cities of Juda? And the LORDE sayde vnto him: Go vp. David sayde: Whither? He sayde: Vnto Hebron. So David wente thither with his two wyues, Ahinoam the Iesraelitisse, and Abigail the bals wyfe of Carmel. And David broughte vnto the men that were with him also, every one with his housholde, and they dwelt in the cities of Hebron. And the men of Juda came, and there they anointed him kyng over the house of Juda.

And when it was tolde David, that they of Jabes in Gilead had buried Saul, he sent messengers vnto them, sayenge: Blessed be ye of the LORDE, that ye haue done such mercy vpon youre lord Saul, and haue buried him. The LORDE therefore shewe maner now and faithfulness vpon you. And because ye haue done this, I also will do you good. Let youre harte now therfore be comforted, and be ye stronger: for though Saul youre lord be deed, yet hath the house of Juda chosen me to be kyng over them.

But Abner the sonne of Ner, which was Sauls chiefe capteyne, toke Iffobosech the sonne of Saul, and broughte him thorow the hoost, and made him kyng over Gilead, Assuri, Iesrael, Ephraim, Ben Jamin and ouer all Israel. And Iffobosech the sonne of Saul was fourtye yere olde, when he was made kyng of Israel, and he reigned two yeres. But the house of Juda helde with David: The tyme that David was kyng at Hebron ouer the house of Juda, was seven yere and sixe monethes longe.

And Abner the sonne of Ner wente forth with the seruantes of Iffobosech the sonne of Saul, out of the hoost vnto Gibeon. And Joab the sonne of Zeruija wente forth with Davids seruantes, and they met together by the pole at Gibeon, and theselaye on the one syde of the pole, the other on the other syde. And Abner sayde vnto Joab: Let the yonge men get them vp, and playe before vs. Joab sayde: Let them aryse. Then gat they them vp, and wente in nombre twelue of Ben Jamin on Iffobosech Sauls sonnes syde, and twelue of Davids seruantes. And every one gat another by the heade, and thrust his swerde in his syde, and fell together: therfore is the place called Helath hazurim (that is, the felde of the Worthies) which is at Gibeon.

And there arose a sore harde battayll the same daye. But Abner and the men of Israel were put to flight of Davids seruantes. The sonnes of Zeruija were there, Joab, Abisai and Asahel. As for Asahel, he was lighte of fete as a Roode in the felde, and folowed after Abner, and turned not asyde nether to the righte hande ner to the lefte from Abner. Then Abner turned him aboute, and sayde: Art thou Asahel? He sayde: Yee. Abner sayde vnto him: Go thy waye ether to the righte hande or to the lefte, and get the one of the yonge men, and take his harness from him. Nevertheless he wolde not leane of fro him. Then sayde Abner agayne to Asahel: Get the awaye from me, why wilt thou that I smyte thee to the grounde? and how darre I lifte vp my face before thy brother Joab? Howbeit he wolde not go his waye.

Then Abner thrust him in with a speare into his bely, so that the speare wente out behynde him. And there he fell and dyed before him: and who so came to the place where Asahel laye died, stode still there. But Joab and Abisai folowed vpon Abner, till the sonne wente downe. And when they came to the hyll of Amma, which lieth before Giah, by the waye to the wilderness of Gibeon, the children of Ben Jamin gathered them selues together behynde Abner, and grewe to a multitude, and stode vpon the toppe of an hyll.

And Abner called vnto Joab, and sayde: Shal the swerde the deuoure without end? Knowest thou not, that it will be bytter at the last: How longe wil it be or thou saie vnto the people, that they leaue of from their brethren? Joab sayde: As truly as God lyueth yf thou haddest sayde thus daye in the morninge, the people had ceased every one from his brother. And Joab blew the trompet, and all the people stode still, and folowed nomore vpon Israel, nether foughte they enymore.

Abner and his men wente all that same night ouer the playne felde, and passed ouer Jordane, and walked thorow all Bichron, and came to the tentes. Joab turned him from Abner, and gathered all the people together. And of Davids seruantes there myssed nyntene men, and Asahel. But Davids seruantes had smytten so amonge Ben Jamin and the men of Abner, that thre hundred and thre score men were deed. And they toke vnto Asahel, and buried him in his fathers graue at Bethleem. And Joab with his men wente all that night: and at the breake of the daye they came vnto Hebron.

The III. Chapter.

And there was a longe battayll betwene the house of Saul and the house of David. But David wente and increased, and the house of Saul wente and diminished. And vnto David were children borne at Hebron. His firstborne sonne Amnon of Ahinoam the Iesraelitisse: the seconde Chisleab of Abigail the wyfe of Nabal of Carmel: the thirde Absalon the sonne of Maacha the daughter of Thalmay kyng of Gesur: the fourth Adonia the sonne of Hagith: the fyfth Saphatiah the sonne of Abital: the sixte Iethream of Egla Davids wife. These were borne vnto David at Hebron.

Now when it was warre betwene the house of Saul: the house of David, Abner strengthened Sauls house. And Saul had had a concubine, whose name was Rissa the daughter of Aia. And Iffobosech sayde vnto Abner: Wherfore liest thou with my fathers concubine?

The ii. boke of the kynges.

Then was Abner very wroth at these wordes of Iſbosheth, and sayde: Am I a dogges heade then, that I agaynst Iuda do mercy vnto the house of Saul thy father, and vnto his brethren and kynnsfolkes? and haue not deliuered the into thy hande of David, and thou layest a trespass to my charge this daye for a womans sake? God do Abner this and that, yf I do not: as the LORD hath sworn vnto David, that the kyngdome maye be taken fro the house of Saul, and yf seate of David set vp ouer Iſrael and Iuda, from Dan vnto Bersaba. Then coulde he not answere him one worde agayne, he feared him so.

And Abner sent messaungers vnto David, sayenge: Whose is the londe? And sayde: Make thy coneuant with me. Beholde, my hande shall be with the, to turne all Iſrael vnto the.

He sayde: Wel, I wyll make a coneuant with the, but one thyng I desyre of the, that thou se not my face, excepte thou brynge me first Michol Sauls doughter, whan thou comest to se my face. David sent messaungers also vnto Iſbosheth the sonne of Saul, sayenge: Give me my wyfe Michol, whom I married with an hundred shekels of the philistynes. Iſbosheth sent, and caused for to take her from the man: Paltiel the sonne of Laish. And his husbände wente with her, and wepte behynde her vnto Bahurim. Then sayde Abner vnto him: Turne backe agayne, and go thy waye. And he turned backe agayne.

And Abner talked with the Elders in Iſrael, and sayde: Your myndes haue bene set afore tyme and longe ago vpon David, that he mighte be kyng ouer you, do it now therfore, for the LORD hath sayde of David: I wil deliuer my people of Iſrael by the hande of David my seruante, from the hande of the philistynes, and from the hande of all their enemies.

Abner spake also before the eares of Ben Jamin, and wente to speake before the eares of David at Hebron all that Iſrael and the whole house of Ben Jamin was contented withall. Now whan Abner came to Hebron vnto David, and twenty men with him, David made them a feast. And Abner sayde vnto David: I wyll get me vp, and go gather all Iſrael together to my lord the kyng, and that they maye make a coneuant with the, that thou mayest be kyng, at thy soules desyre.

So David let Abner go from him in peace. And beholde, David seruantes and Iſbosheth came from the men of warre, and brought a greatespoyle with them. And Abner was not now with David at Hebron, for he had sent him from him, so that he was gone his waye in peace.

But whan Joab and all the hoost with him was come, it was tolde him that Abner the sonne of Ner came to the kyng, and how he had sent him fro him, so that he was gone his waye in peace. Then wente Joab in to the kyng, and sayde: What hast thou done? Beholde, Abner came to the, why hast thou sent him from the, that he is gone his waye? Knowest thou not Abner the sonne of Ner? For he came to the to disceuer, that he mighte knowe thy outgoynge, and ingoynge, and to spie out all that thou doest. And whan Joab wente out from David, he sent messaungers after Abner, to fetch him agayne from Boharsira, and David knewe not therof. Now whan Abner came agayne vnto Hebron, Joab brought him in to middes vnder the gate, to talke wth him secretly, and thrust him there in to the bely, that he dyed, because of his brother Abshels bloud.

Whan David knewe of it therafter, he sayde: I am vngiltye, and so is my kyngdome for ever before the LORD. Concerninge the bloude of Abner the sonne of Ner: but vpon the heade of Joab fall it, and vpon all his fathers house, and in the house of Joab there ceasse not one to haue a remynge yf he be a leprosy, and to go vpon a staffe, and fall thorow the swerde, and to haue carnell of bled. Thus Joab and his brother Abshai slew Abner, because he had slayne their brother Abshai in the battaill at Gibeon.

David sayde vnto Joab and to all the people that was with him: Rente youre clothes, and gyrded sack cloth aboute you, and make lamentacion for Abner. And the kyng wente after the bere. And whan they buried Abner at Hebron, the kyng lifte vp his voyce, and wepte besyde Abners graue, and all the people wepte also.

And the kyng mourned for Abner, and sayde: Abner is not deed as a foole dyeth. Thy handes were not bounde, thy fete were not vexed with fetters, thou art fallen as a man falleth before wicked vnthiftes. Then all the people bewailed him yet more.

Now whan all the people came in to eate with David, whyle it was yet hye daye, David swaie, and sayde: God do this and that vnto me, yf I caist ether bled or oughte afore the Sone go downe. And all the people knewe it, and it pleased them well all that the kyng dyd in the sighte of all the people. And all the people and all Iſrael perceaued the same daye, that it came not of the kyng, that Abner the sonne of Ner was slayne. And the kyng sayde vnto his seruantes: Knowe ye not that this daye a pryncce and a greates man is fallen in Iſrael? As for me, I am yet but tender and anoynted kyng. But the men the children of Zeruia are to harde for me. The LORD recompence him that doth euell, accordinge to his wickednes.

The III. Chapter.

Whan Sauls sonne herde that Abner was deed at Hebron, his handes were feeble, and all Iſrael was sory. But there were two men captaynes ouer the soudyers vnder the sonne of Saul, the one was called Baena, the other Rehob, sonnes of Rimmon the Berothite, of the childre of Ben Jamin: for Beroth was contred also in Ben Jamin. And the Berothites were fled vnto Gethaim, and were straungers there vnto this daye. Jonathas also the sonne of Saul had a sonne which was lame on his fete, and was fyue yeare olde whan the rumoure of Saul and Jonathas came from Iſrael. And his name was Mephibosheth.

Then wente the sonnes of Rimmon the Berothite, Rehob and Baena, and came to the house of Iſbosheth, in the heate of the daye, and he laye vpon his bed at the noone daie. And they came in to the house to fetch wheate, and thrust him in the bely, and gat them awaye. For whan they came into the house, he laye vpon his bed in his chamber, and they sticke him to death, and smote of his heade, and toke his heade, and departed by the waye of the playne felde all that nighte, and broughte the heade of Iſbosheth to David vnto Hebron, and sayde vnto the kyng: Beholde, there is the heade of Iſbosheth the sonne of Saul thine enemye, which layed wayte for thy soule. This daye hath the LORD auenged my lord the kyng of Saul and his seide.

Then answered David vnto Rehob and Baena his brother, the sonnes of Rimmon the Berothite, and sayde: As truly as the LORD liueth, which hath deliuered my soule out of all trouble, I toke him and brought me worde and sayde: Saul is deed, and he thoughte he had bene a good messaunger, and at Sidalag I put him to death, vnto whom I shulde haue geuen a rewarde for his message,

The v. Chap. Fo. xliij.

And these vngodly personnes haue slayne a righteous man in his owne house vpon his bed. See shulde not I requyre his bloude of youre handes, and take you a waye from the earth? And David commaunded his yongmen, which slew them, and smote of their handes and fete, and hanged them vp by the pole at Hebron. But the heade of Iſbosheth toke they, and buried it in Abners graue at Hebron.

The V. Chapter.

And all the trybes of Iſrael came to David vnto Hebron, and sayde: Beholde, we are thy bone and thy flesh. And afore tyme whan Saul was kyng ouer vs, thou leddest Iſrael out and in. So the LORD hath sayde: Thou shalt kepe my people of Iſrael, and shalt be the duke ouer Iſrael. And all the Elders in Iſrael came to the kyng vnto Hebron. And kyng David made a coneuant with them at Hebron before the LORD. And they anoynted David to be kyng ouer Iſrael. Thirtie yeare olde was David whan he was made kyng, and reigned fortye yeares. At Hebron raigned he seuen yeares and sixe monethes ouer Iuda: but at Jerusalem he reigned thre and thirtie yeares ouer all Iſrael and Iuda.

And the kyng wente with his men to Jerusalem, agaynst the Jebusites, which dwelt in the londe. Neuertheles they sayde vnto David: Thou shalt not come hither but the blynde and lame shal dryue thee awaye. (They thoughte plainly, that David shulde not come in.) Howbeit David wanne the castell of Sion, which is the cite of David. Then sayde David the same daye: Who so ener smyteth the Jebusites, and opayneth the perquellies, the lame and the blynde, which (Jebusites) Dauids soule hateth. Herof cometh the prouerbe: Let no blynde ner lame come in to the house. So David dwelt in the castell, and called it the cite of David. And David builded rounde aboute fro Millo and within. And David grewe, and the LORD the God Zebaoth was with him.

And Hiram the kyng of Tyre sent messaungers vnto David, and Cedar trees for walles, and Carpenters, and Masons, to build David an house. And David knewe, that the LORD had confyrmid him kyng ouer Iſrael, and exalted his kyngdome for his people of Iſraels sake. And David toke yet more wyues and concubynes at Jerusalem, after he was come from Hebron, and there were yet more sonnes and doughters borne vnto him. And these are the names of them that were borne vnto him at Jerusalem: Samma Sobab, Nathan, Salomon, Iehohar, Elifua, Nepheg, Japhia, Elisama, Eliada, Eliphale.

The ii. boke of the kynge.

And whan the philistines herde that Dauid was annoynted kinge ouer Israel, they wote vp all to sette Dauid. Whan Dauid perceaued that, he wote downe in to a castell. But the philistines came and scatered them selues beneth in the valley of Rephaim. And Dauid axed at the LORDE, and sayde: Shal I go vp agaynst the philistines? and wylt thou deliuer them in to my hande? The LORDE sayde vnto Dauid: Go vp, I wyl deliuer the philistines in to thy hande.

And Dauid came vnto Baal prazim, and smote the there, and sayde: The LORDE hath deuoyded myne enemies, euen as the waters parte asunder: therfore is the same place called Baal prazim. And they lefte their ymagines there, but Dauid and his men caried the awaye.

Neuerthelasse the philistines wente vp agayne, and scatered them selues beneth in the valley of Rephaim. And Dauid axed at the LORDE. The LORDE sayde: Thou shalt go vp, but compasse them behinde, that thou mayest be vpon them euer agaynst the peertrees: and whan thou hearest vpon the toppe of the peertrees, the sounde of the goinge be helde, for then is the LORDE gone forth before the, to smyte: the hoost of the philistines Dauid dyd as the LORDE commaunded him and smote the philistines from Geba, tyll thou comcest vnto Gaser.

The VI. Chapter.

And Dauid gathered agayne all the yonge chosen men in Israel, euen thre thousande, and gat him vp, and wente with all the people that was with him of the tribes of Juda, to fetch vp the Arke of God from thence: whose name is: The name of the LORDE Zebaoth dwelleth thereon betwene the Cherubins. And they caused the arke of God to be caried vpon a new cart, and fetched it out of the house of Abinadab, which dwelt at Gibeon. Vsa and Ahio the sonnes of Abinadab drewe the new cart. And whan they broughte it with the Arke from the house of Abinadab which dwelt at Gibeon, Ahio wente before the Arke: and Dauid and all the house of Israel played before the LORDE, with all maner of instrumentes of pine tre, with harpes, and psalteries, and tabrettes, and belles, and Cymbals.

And whan they came to the barnefloore of Nahon, Vsa stretched out his hande,

The vi. Chap.

and helde the Arke of God, for the open te out asyde. Then waxed the wrath of the LORDE against Vsa, and God smote him there because of his presumption, so that he dyed there besyde the Arke of God. Then was Dauid sorry, because the LORDE had made soch a rente vpon Vsa, and he called the same place Perez Vsa vnto this daye. And Dauid feared the LORDE the same daie, and sayde: How shall the Arke of the LORDE come vnto me? And he wolde not let it be broughte to him in to the cite of Dauid, but caused it be brought in to the house of Obed Edom the Gathite. And whan the Arke of the LORDE had contynned thre monethes in the house of Obed Edom the Gathite, the LORDE blessed him and all his house.

And it was tolde kynge Dauid, that the LORDE had blessed the house of Obed Edom and all that he had because of the Arke of God. Then wente he, and fetched vp the Arke of God out of the house of Obed Edom in to the cite of Dauid with ioye. And whan they were gone sixe steppes in with the Arke of the LORDE, they offered an ore and a shepe. And Dauid daunced wth all his might before the LORDE, and was girded with an ouerbord cote of lynn. And Dauid with all Israel brought vp the Arke of the LORDE with tabrettes and trompettes.

And whan the Arke of the LORDE came in to the cite of Dauid, Michol the daughter of Saul looked out at a window, and sawe kynge Dauid leaping, springing and dauncing before the LORDE, and despyed him in his hert. But whan they brought in the Arke of the LORDE, they set it in his place in the myddes of the Tabernacle, which Dauid had pitched for it. And Dauid offred burnt offeringes and deedofferinges before the LORDE. And whan Dauid had made an ende of offeringe the burnt offeringes and deedofferinges, he blessed the people in the name of the LORDE Zebaoth, and deale out vnto all the people, and to the multitude of Israel, both to man and woman, vnto every one a cake of bred, and a pece of flesh, and a mece of pottage. Then wente all the people their waye, every one vnto his house.

Whan Dauid came agayne to blesse his house, Michol the daughter of Saul wente forth to mete him, and sayde: How glorious hath the kynge of Israel bene to daye, which hath covered himselfe before the maydens of his seruantes, like as the rascall people discover them selues. But Dauid saide vnto Michol: I wil playe before the LORDE, which hath chosen me afore the father, and afore all his house, because he hath commaunded me to be the pryncce ouer the people of the LORDE, euen ouer Israel, and yet wyl I be vylen then so, and wyl be lowe in myne owne sight: and with the maydens wherof thou hast spoken, wyl I be honoured. As for Michol the daughter of Saul, she had no childe vnto the daye of hir death.

The ii. boke of the kynge.

The VII. Chapter.

Now whan the kynge sat in his house, and the LORDE had geuen him rest from all his enemies on euery syde, he sayde vnto the prophet Nathan: Beholde, I dwell in a house of Cedre, and the Arke of God dwelleth amonge the curtaynes. Nathan sayde vnto the kynge: Go thy waye, what so euer thou hast in thine hert, do for the LORDE is wth the. But the same night came the worde of the LORDE vnto Nathan, and sayde: Go and speake to my seruant Dauid: Thus sayeth the LORDE: Shalt thou buylde me an house to dwell in? I haue dwelt in no house sence the daye that I broughte the children of Israel vnto this daye, but haue walked in the Tabernacle and habitacion, whiche so euer I wente with the children of Israel. Dyd I euer speake to eny of the trybes of Israel (whom I commaunded to kepe my people of Israel)? sayde: Wherfore do ye not buylde me an house of Cedar wood?

So shalt thou speake now vnto my seruant Dauid: Thus sayeth the LORDE Zebaoth: I toke the from the pasture whan thou wentest behynde the shepe, and thou shalt be the pryncce ouer my people of Israel, and haue bene wth the whiche so euer thou wentest, and haue roted out all thine enemies before the, and haue made the a greate name, accordinge to the name of the greate men vpon earth. And for my people of Israel I wyl appoynte a place, and wyl plante them, that they maye remayne there, nomore to be remoued, and the children of wickednes oppresse them nomore, like as afore, and sence the tyme that I ordeyned Iudges ouer my people of Israel. And I wyl geue the rest from all thine enemies. And the LORDE sheweth the, that the LORDE wyl make the a house.

Now whan the tyme is fulfilled, and thou shalt slepe wth thy fathers, I wil after the rayse vp thy syde, which shall come of thy body: his kynngdome wyl I stablish, he shall buylde an house for my name, and I wyl stablish the seate of his kynngdome for euer. And wyl be his father, and he shall be my sonne. Whan he doth a trespase, I wyl reprove him with the rodd of men, and with the plagges of the children of men: But my mercy shall not be withdrawn fro him, as I haue with drawen it fro Saul, whos I haue take awaye before the. As for the house and thy kynngdome, it shall be stablished for euer before the, and thy seate shall endure fast for euermore.

The vii. Chap. Fo. xliij.

Whan Nathan had tolde all these wordes, and all this vision vnto Dauid, kynge Dauid came and sat him downe before the LORDE, and sayde: O LORDE God, who am I? and what is my house, and thou hast brought me thus farre? This O LORDE God hast thou thoughte to litle also, but hast spoken of the house of thy seruant yet longe for to come. O LORDE God, is that the lawe of men?

And what shall Dauid speake vnto the? thou knowest thy seruant O LORDE God, for thy wordes sake and accordinge to what thou hast done all these greates thinges, and thou mightest shewe the vnto thy seruant. Therfore art thou greatly magnified O LORDE God: for there is none like the, and there is no God but thou, accordinge vnto all that we haue herde with our eares. For where is there a people vpon earth as thy people of Israel? For whose sake God wente to deliuer him a people, and to make him selfe a name, and to do them soch greates and terrible thinges in thy lode before the people, whom thou hast deliuered vnto thy selfe fro Egypte, from the people, and from their goddes. And thy people of Israel hast thou prepared the to be a people vnto thyne owne selfe for euer, and thou O LORDE art become their God.

Stablish now the worde therfore for euer (O LORDE God) which thou hast spokē ouer thy seruant and ouer his house, and do accordinge as thou hast sayde. So shall thy name be greates for euer, so that it shall be sayde: The LORDE Zebaoth is the God ouer Israel, and the house of thy seruant Dauid shall be made sure before the. For thou LORDE Zebaoth, thou God of Israel hast opened the eare of thy seruant, and sayde: I wil buylde the an house. Therfore hath the seruant founde his hert, to praye this prayer vnto the. Now LORDE God thou thy selfe art God, and thy wordes shall be the truerth. Thou hast spoken soch good ouer thy seruant. Begynne now therfore, and blesse the seruantes house, that it maye be before the for euer, for thou LORDE God thine awne selfe hast spoken it: and with thy blessinge shal thy seruantes honse be blessed for ever.

The VIII. Chapter.

And it fortunēd after this, & David smote & philistynes, and discomfited
them, and toke the brydell of bondage out of the philistynes hande. * He smote the Moabites also to the grounde, so that he broughte two partes of them to death, and let one parte lyue. Thus the Moabites were subdued vnto David, so & they brought te him giftes.

David smote Hadad Eser also the sonne of Rehob kyng of Zoba, whan he wote to fetch his power agayne at & water Euphrates. And of them toke David a thousande & seuen hundred horsmen, and twenty thousande fet: men, and lamed all the charettes,
saue an hundred which he kepte behynde.
But the Siryans came from Damascon to helpe Hadad Eser kyng of Zoba. And Da-uid smote two and twenty thousande men of the Syrians, and layed people vnto Damascus in Syria.

Thus was Syria subdued vnto David,
so that they broughte him giftes: for & LOR-DE helped David whither so euer he wente.
And David toke & shyldes of golde, which Hadad Eser's seruantes had, and broughte te them to Jerusalem. But from Bethah & Berochai & cities of Hadad Eser toke Da-uid very moch brasse.

B * Whan Thoi the kyng of Hemath her-de, that David had smytten all the power of Hadad Eser, he sent his sonne Joram vnto
David to salute him frendly, & to blesse him, because he had foughten with Adad Eser and smytten him (for Thoi had warre with Hadad Eser) and had Jewels with him of syluer, of golde, and of brasse: which kyng David halowed also vnto & LORDE, with the syluer and golde which he sanctified vnto the LORDE from all the heythe, whom he subdued, from Siria, fro Moab, from the childre of Ammon, from the philistynes, fro Amalek, from the spoyle of Hadad Eser & sonne of Rehob kyng of Zoba.

C David gat him selfe a name also whan he came, * and smote eightene thousande of & Sirians in & Salt valley. And he layed people in all Edomea, * and all Edom was subdued vnto David: for the LORDE helped David, whither so euer he wente. Thus was David kyng ouer all Israel. And he executed iudgmente and righteousnes vnto all & people. * Joab & sonne of Zeru Ja was captayne ouer the hoost. Josaphat the sonne of thians & Plethians. And the sonnes of Da-

The IX. Chapter.

And David sayde: Remayneth there yet enymman of Sauls house, that I maye do mercy vpon him for Jona-thas sake? There was a seruauit of Sauls house, named * Siba, whom they called vnto David, & the kyng sayde vnto him: An-thou Siba? He sayde: Yee thy seruauit. The kyng sayde: Is there yet enymman of Sauls house, & I maye do the mercy of God vpon him? Siba sayde vnto the kyng: * There is yet a sonne of Jonathas, lame on his fet.
The kyng sayde vnto him: Where is he? Si-ba sayde vnto & kyng: Beholde, he is at Ladaber in & house of Machir & sonne of Am-muel. The kyng sayde vnto David thither, & caused for to fetch him from Ladaber out of & house of Machir the sonne of Ammuel.

Now whan Mephiboseth the sonne of Jonathas the sonne of Saul came vnto Da-uid, he fell vpon his face, & worshiped him.
David sayde: Mephiboseth. He sayde: I am
I thy seruauit. David sayde vnto him:
Feare not, for I wyll do mercy vpon the for thy father Jonathas sake, and wil restore vnto the all the londe of thy father Saul: but thou shalt eate bried daylie at my table. * He worshiped and sayde: Who am I thy seruauit, that thou turnest the to a deed dogg
as I am?

Then the kyng called Siba & seruauit of Saul, and sayde vnto him: All & hath belonged vnto Saul & to all his house, haue I geuen to thy lordes sonne. Tyll his londe for him therfore, thou & thy children & seruau-tes, & brynge it in, & it maye be bried for & let des sonne, and & he maye emoye it: but Mephiboseth & lordes sonne shal eate bried day-lie at my table. Siba had systene sonnes & twenty seruantes. And Siba sayde vnto & kyng: Acordinge vnto all as my lord the kyng hath commaunded his seruauit, so shal his seruauit do. And let Mephiboseth (sayde David) eate at my table, as one of the kynges owne children. And Mephiboseth had a yonge sonne, whose name was Micha.
But all & dwelt in the house of Siba, serued Mephiboseth. As for Mephiboseth him selfe, he dwelt at Jerusalem: for he ate daylie
at the kynges table * and was lame on both his fete.

The X. Chapter.

And it fortunēd after this, that & kyng of the children of Ammon dyed, & his sonne Hanun was kyng in his steade. Then sayde David: I wyll do mercy vpon Hanun the sonne of Nahas, as his father dyd mercy vpon me. And so he sent, and comforted him by his seruantes ouer his fathers death. Now whan Davids seruantes came into the londe of the children of Ammon, the mightie men of the children of Ammon sayde vnto Hanun their lord: Thyn-kest thou it is for the hono of & father in & sight, & David hath sent comforters vnto
the? hath he not sent his seruantes vnto & (thynkest thou) to spy and search out the cite and to ouerthrowe it?

B Then toke Hanun the seruantes of Da-uid, and shoue of the one halve of their beer-des, and cut of the halfe of their garmetes enby the girdell, and so let them go. Whā this was tolde David, he sent to mete them:
for the men were put to greate shame. And the kyng caused to saye vnto them: Abyde
at Jericho, tyll youre beerdes be growne, &
then come agayne.

Whan the childre of Ammon sawe that they stynted in the sighte of David, they sent and hyed the Sirians of the house of Rehob, and the Sirians at Zoba enen twentye thousande fote men, and from the kyng of Maacha a thousande men, and from Jstob two hundred thousande men. Whan David herder that, he sent Joab with all the hoost of & men of warre. And the children of Ammon wente forth, and prepared them selues to & battayll before the intrauce of the gate.
But the Sirians of Soba, of Rehob, of Jstob and of Maacha were alone in the felde.

C Now whan Joab sawe that the battayll was set vpo him before and behynde, he chose of all the best yongemen in Israel, & prepared him selfe agaynst the Syrians. And the resydue of the people put he vnder the hande of his brother Abisai, that he mighte prepare him agaynst the childre of Ammon.
And sayde: Yf & Syrians be to mightie for me, helpe thou me: but yf the children of Ammon be to mightie for the, I shal helpe the.
Take a good corage vnto the, and let vs be stronge for oure people, and for & cite of oure God: neuertheles the LORDE do what pleaseth him.

And Joab made him forth with the people that was with him, to fighte agaynst the Syrians: and they fled before him. And

The xi. Chap. Ho. xliii.

whan the children of Ammon sawe that the Syrians fled, they fled also before Abisai, & wente in to the cite. So Joab turned agayne from the children of Ammon, & came to Jerusalem. And whan the Syrians sawe & they were smytten before Israel, they came together.

And Hadad Eser sent & broughte out &
Syrians beyonde the water, and conueyed their power in, & Sobath the chese captay-ne of Hadad Eser wente before the. Whan this was tolde David, he gathered all Israel together, & wente ouer Jordane, and came to Helam, & the Syrians prepared them sel-ues agaynst David to fighte with him, howbeit the Syrians fled before Israel. And Da-uid slewe of the Syrians seuē hundred charettes, & fourye thousande horsmē, & Sobath
the chese captayne smote he also, so that he dyed there. Whan the kynges which were vnder Adad Eser, sawe, that they were smytten before Israel, they made peace with Israel, and were subdued vnto them. And the Syrians were afrayed to helpe the children of Ammon enymore.

messainger, and caused for to fetch her. And house. And the womā was with childe, and sent, and caused to tell David and to saye: I am with childe. David sent vnto Joab (saye ge:) Send me Uias & Hethite. And Joab sent Uias vnto David. And whan Uias came to him, David asked him yf it stode well with Joab, and with the people and with the battayll.

B And David sayde to Uias: Go downe in to thy house, and wash thy fete. And whan Uias wente out of the kynges palace, the kynges giste folowed him. And Uias layed him downe to slepe before the kynges palace gate, where all his lordes seruantes laye, & wente not downe in to his house. Whan word came to David: Uias is not gone downe in to his house, David sayde vnto him: Camest thou not ouer the felde? Why wentest thou not downe in to thy house? Uias sayde vnto David: The Arke and Israel & Iuda abyde in the tentes: And Joab my lord and my lordes seruantes lye in & felde, and shal I go in to my house to eate and drynke, and to lye with my wife? As truly as thou lynest, and as truly as thy soule lyneth, I wyll not do this thinge. David sayde vnto Uias: Abyde here then to daye, tomorrow wil I let the go. So Uias abode at Jerusalem the same daye, and the nexte also. And David called him to eate & drynke before him, & made him dronken. And at even he wente to lye him downe for to slepe vpon his couche with his lordes seruantes, and wente not downe in to his house.

C On the morow wrote David a letter vnto Joab, & sent it by Uias. After this maner wrote he in the letter: Set Uias in & forest parte of & batayll, & turne you behynde him, & he maye be slayne. Now whā Joab layed sege to the cite, he set Uias in & place, where he knewe & the mightiest men of Aimes were. And whan the men of the cite fell out and foughte agaynst Joab, there fell certayne of & people of Davids seruantes. And Uias the Hethite dyed also.

Then sent Joab, and caused to tell & kyng all the matter concernynge the battayll, and commaunded the messaunger, and sayde: Whan thou hast tolde & kyng all the matter concernynge the batayll, and seist that he is wroth, and yf the kyng saye vnto the: Wherfore came ye so nye the cite with the battayll? Knowe ye not how they vse to shute from the wall? Who smote Abimelech the sonne of Jerubaall? Dyd not a womā cast a pece of a mylstone vpon him from the wall, so that he dyed at Thebez? Why came ye so nye the wall? Then shalt thou saye: Thy seruant Uias the Hethite is dead also.

The messaunger wente his waye, and came and tolde David all together, wherfore Joab had sent him. And the messaunger sayde vnto David: The men preuayled agaynst vs, and fell out vnto vs in to & felde: and we were vpon them harde at the doore of & porte. And the archers shot from the wall vpon thy seruantes, and slewe certayne of the kynges seruantes: and thy seruant Uias the Hethite is deed also.

David sayde vnto the messaunger: Thus shalt thou saye vnto Joab: Let not & wep the, for the swerde consumeth now one now another. Go forth with the battayll agaynst the cite, that thou mayest destroye it, and coforce the men. And whan Uias wife herde that Uias was deed, she mourned for her husbāde. But whā she had made an ende of mounyng, David sent, and caused her be fetched vnto his palace, and she became his wyfe, and bare him a sonne. Nevertheless this dede & David dyd, displeased the LORDE.

The XII. Chapter.

And the LORDE sent Nathan vnto David. Whan he came to him, he tolde him: There were two men in one cite, the one riche, the other poore. The riche man had very many shepe and oren: but the poore man had nothynge saue one litle shepe, which he had boughte, and nourished it, so that it grewe vp with him and his children together. It ate of his bred, and drank of his cuppe, and slepte in his lappe, and he helde it as a daughter. But whan there came a straunger vnto the riche man, he spared to take of his awne shepe & oren (to prepare oughte for the straunger that was come vnto him) and toke the poore mans shepe, and prepared it for the man that was come vnto him.

Thē was David wroth with greated displeasure agaynst that man, and sayde vnto Nathan: As truly as the LORDE lyneth, the man that hath done this, is the childe of death. The shepe also shal he make good foure folde, because he hath done soch a thinge, and not spared it.

Then sayde Nathan vnto David: Thou art even the man. Thus sayeth the LORDE the God of Israel: I haue anoynted thee to be kyng ouer Israel, and deliuered thee out of the hande of Saul, and haue geuen thee & lordes house, and his wyues in to thy lappe, and the house of Israel and Iuda haue I geuen the: and yf that be to litle, I wyll yet do this and that for the also. Wherfore hast thou then despysed the worde of the LORDE, to do soch euell in his sighte? Uias the Hethite hast thou slayne with the swerde: his wife hast thou taken to be thy wyfe, but him hast thou slayne with & swerde of the children of Ammon.

C Now therfore shal not & swerde departe from thy house for ouer, because thou hast despysed me, and taken the wife of Uias the Hethite, to be thy wife. Thus sayeth the LORDE: Beholde, I wyll rayse vp euell of thine awne house, and wyll take thy wyues before thine eyes, and wyll geue them vnto thy neighbour, so that he shal lye with thy wyues by Sonnelighte. For thou hast done it secretly, but I wyll do this in the sighte of all Israel, and by Sonnelighte.

Then sayde David vnto Nathan: I haue synned vnto the LORDE. Nathan sayde vnto David: So hath the LORDE also taken awaye thy synne, thou shalt not dye. But for somoch as thou chorow this dede hast caused the enemies of the LORDE to blaspheme, & sonner that is borne vnto the, shal dye the death. And Nathan wente home. As for the childe which Uias wife bare vnto David, the LORDE smote it, so that it was deede sicke.

D And David besoughte God for the childe, and fasted, and wente in, and laie all nyght vpon the earth. Then rose the Elders of his house, and wolde haue taken him vp fro the grounde: neuertheles he wolde not, neither ate he w them. Vpon the seuenth daye & childe dyed. And Davids seruantes durst not tell him that the childe was deed. For they thoughte: Beholde, whan the childe was yet alyue, we spake vnto him, and he hearkened not vnto oure voyce, how moch more shal it grene him, yf we saye: The childe is deed? And David saue that his seruantes made a whisperinge together, and perceaued that the childe was deed, and sayde vnto his seruantes: Is the childe deed? They sayde: Yee. Then rose David vp from the earth, and washed him selfe, and anoynted him, and put on other garmentes, & wente in to the house of the LORDE, and worshipped.

E And whan he came agayne, he commaunded to set bred before him, and ate. Then sayde his seruantes vnto him: What maner of thinge is this that thou doest? Whan the childe was alyue, thou fastedst and wepest:

The xii. Chap. Ho. xlii.

but now that it is deed, thou stdest vp and eatest? He sayde: I fasted and wepte for the childe whan it was yet a lyue, for I thoughte: Who knoweth, peradventure the LORDE maye be gracious vnto me, that the childe maye lyue. But now that it is deed, wherfore shulde I fast? Can I fetch it agayne? I shal go vnto it, but it shal not come agayne vnto me. And whan David had comforted Bethseba his wife, he wente in vnto her, and laye with her. And she bare a sonne, whom he called Salomon. And the LORDE loued him. And he put him vnder the hāde of Nathan & prophet, which called him Jedidia because of the LORDE.

So Joab foughte agaynst Rabba of & children of Ammon, and wanne the kynges cite, & sent messaungers vnto David, & caused to saye vnto him: I haue foughte agaynst Rabba, and haue wonne the water cite also. Gather thou therfore the residue of the people together, and laye sege to & cite, and wyne it, that I wyne it not, and haue the name therof. So David gathered all & people together, and wente, & foughte agaynst Rabba, and wanne it, and toke their kynges crowne fro his heade (which in weighte had a talent of golde, and precious stones) and was set vpon Davids heade, and very moch spoyle caried he out of the cite. As for the people that was therein, he broughte them forth, and layed them vnder yron sawes and hokes and wedges of yron, and burned them in tyle ouens. Thus dyd he vnto all the cities of the children of Ammon. Then returned David and all the people vnto Jerusalem agayne.

The XIII. Chapter.

And it fortuneth after this, that Absalom & sonne of David had a fayre sister, whose name was Thamar, & Ammon the sonne of David loued her. And Ammon was in greate combrance, in so moch that he was euensicke, because of Thamar his sister. For she was a virgin, and Ammon thoughte it shulde beharde for him to do eny thinge vnto her. But Ammon had a frende, whose name was Jonadab the sonne of Simea Davids brother, And the same Jonadab was a very wyse man, which sayde vnto him: Why art thou so leane (thou kynges sonne) from daye to daye? Mayest thou not tell me? Then sayde Ammon vnto him: I loue Thamar my brother Absaloms sister exceedingly.

Jonadab sayde vnto him: laye the downe vpon thy bedd, and make the sicke. And whanthy father cometh to lōke how thou doest, saye vnto him: Oh let my sister Thamar come, that she maye fede me, and make a meece of meate before me, that I maye se it, & eate it of hir hande. So Ammon layed him downe, and made him sicke. Now whā the kyng came in to lōke how he dyd, Ammon sayde vnto the kyng: Oh let my sister Thamar come, and make me a syppynge or two, and that I maye eate it of hir hande. Then sent David for Thamar in to the house, and sayde vnto her: Go thy waye to thy brother Ammons house, & make him a meece of meate. Thamar wente vnto hir brother Ammons house, but he laye in his bed. And she toke flour, and mixte it, and dighte it before his eyes, and made him a syppynge. And she toke the meece of meate, and poured it out before him: but he wolde not eate.

C And Ammon saide: Put forth every man from me. And every man wete forth from him. Then sayde Ammon vnto Thamar: Brynge me that meece of meate in to the chamber, that I maye eate it of thy hande. Then toke Thamar & syppynge that she had made, and broughte it vnto Ammon hir brother in to the chamber.

And whan she broughte it vnto him & he mighte eate, he toke holde of her, & sayde vnto her: Come my sister, lye with me. Nevertheless she saide: Oh no my brother, force me not: for so do they not in Israel, do not thou soch foly. Whither shal I go with my shamer? And thou shalt be as one of the unwise in Israel. But speake vnto the kyng, he shal not withholde me from the.

D Howbeit he wolde not herken vnto her, and overcame her, & forced her, and laye with her. And Ammon hated her exceedingly, so that the hate was greater then the love was before. And Ammon sayde vnto her: Up, and get the hence.

She saide vnto him: This euell that thou thrustest me out, is greater then the other, that thou hast done vnto me. Nevertheless he herkened not vnto her, but called his boye that serued him, and sayde: Put awaye this woman from me, and locke the doore after her. And she had a partye garment on: for soch garmentes waye & kynges. doughsters whyle they were virgins.

And whā his seruauent had put hir forth, & lockte the doore after her, Thamar strowed asshes vpon hir heade, and rente the partye garment which she had vpon her, and layed hir hande vpon hir heade, and wente on, and cryed. And hir brother Absalom sayde vnto her: Hath thy brother Ammon bene with the? Now holde thy peace my sister, it is thy brother, and take not the matter forthert.

So Thamar remayned a wyddowe in brother Absaloms house. And whan kyng David herde of all this, he was very sore. As for Absalom, he spake nether euell nor good to Ammon: but Absalom hated Ammon, because he had forced his sister Thamar.

After two yeaeres had Absalom shepe clyppers at Baal hazor, which lyeth by Ephraim. And Absalom called all the kynges children, and came to the kyng, and sayde: Beholde, thy seruauent hath shepe clyppers, let it please & kyng with his seruantes to go with his seruante. But the kyng sayde vnto Absalom: To my sonne, let vs not all go, lest we be to chargeable vnto the.

And he wolde nedes haue had him to go, howbeit he wolde not, but blessed him. Absalom sayde: Shall my brother Ammon go with vs then? The kyng sayde vnto him: Wherfore shall he go with the? Then was Absalom so importune vpon him, that he let Ammon and all the kynges childre go with him.

But Absalom commaunded his yonge men, and sayde: Take hede whan Ammon is mery with wyne (and I saye vnto you: Smyte Ammon, and slaye him) that ye be not afrayed: for I haue commaunded you, be stronge, and playe the men. So Absaloms yonge men dyd vnto Ammon, as Absalom had commaunded them. Then stode all the kynges children vp, and every one gat him vp vpon his Mule, and fled. And whyle they were yet on their waye, the rumoure came to kyng David, that Absalom had slayne all the kynges children, so that not one of them was lefte.

Then stode the kyng vp, and rente his clothes, & layed him downe vpon the earth, and all his seruantes that stode aboute him, rente their clothes. Then answered Jonadab & sonne of Simea Davids brother, and sayde: Let not my lord thynte that all the yongemen the kynges children are deed, but & Ammon is deed onely: for Absalom hath kepte it in him selfe sence the daie that he forced his sister Thamar. Therfore let not my lord the kyng take it so to hert, that all the kynges children shulde be deed, but that Ammon is deed onely.

G As for Absalom, he fled. And the yonge man that kepte the watch, lifte vp his eyes, and loked, and beholde, A greate people came in the waye one after another by the hill syde. Then sayde Jonadab vnto the kyng: Beholde, the kynges children come. Euen as thy seruauent sayde, so is it happened. And whan he had ended his talkynge, the kynges children came, and lifte vp their voyce, and wepte.

The kyng and all his seruantes wepte also very sore. But Absalom fled, and wente vnto Thalmay the sonne of Ammihud kyng of Gesur. As for David, he mourned for his sonne every daye. Whan Absalom was fled and gone vnto Gesur, he was there thre yeaere. And kyng David ceased from goynge out agaynst Absalom, for he had comforted him selfe ouer Ammon that he was deed.

The XIII. Chapter.

Joab the sonne of Jeru Ja perceaued & the kynges hert was agaynst Absalom, and sent vnto Thecoa, and caused to fetch from thence a prudent woman and saide vnto her: Make lamentacion, and weere mournynge garmentes, & anoynte the not with oyle: but sayne thy selfe as a woman which hath mourned longe ouer a deed, and thou shalt go in to the kyng, and speake so & so vnto him. And Joab tolde her what she shulde saye.

And whan the woman of Thecoa wolde speake with the kyng, she fell vpon hir face to the grounde, and worshipped, and sayde: helpe me O kyng. The kyng sayde vnto her: What ayleth the? She sayde: I am a wedowe, a woman that meurneth, and my husbāde is deed. And thy handmayde had two sonnes, which stroue together in the felde: and whyle there was noman to partethe a sunder, the one smote the other, and slewe him.

And beholde, all the whole kynred ryseth vp agaynst thy handmayden, and saye: De lyuer him which hath smytten his brother, that we maye kyll him, for the soule of his brother whom he hath slayne, and that we maye destroye the heire also. And thus are they mynded to put out my sparke, which yet is lefte, that there shulde no name ner eny thinge els remayne ouer vnto my husbāde vpon earth.

B The kyng sayde vnto the woman: Go & waye home, I wil geue a comaundement for & And the woman of Thecoa saide vnto &

kyng: The trespase be vpon me (my lord & kyng) and vpon my fathers house: but the kyng and his seate be vngiltye. The kyng sayde: He that speaketh agaynst the, brynge him vnto me, so shall he touch the nomore. She sayde: Let the kyng thynte vpon the LORDE his God, that there be not to many auengers of bloude to destroye, and that they brynge not my sonne to naught. He sayde: As truly as the LORDE lyueth, there shall not one heer of thy sonne fall vpon the earth. And the woman sayde: Let thy handmayde speake somewhat to my lord the kyng. He sayde: speake on. The woman sayde: Wherfore hast thou deuised soch a thinge agaynst the people of God? And how happeneth it that the kyng speaketh soch, to make himselfe giltye, and causeth not his outlawe to be broughte agayne? For we all dye the death, and as the water that sinketh in to the earth, which is not taken vp. And God will not take awaye the lyfe, but vnbethynketh himselfe, & euen the very outlaws be not cleane thrust out from him.

C Thus am I come also to speake this to my lord the kyng in the presence of the people, for thy handmayden thoughte: I wyll speake to the kyng, peradventure he shall do that his handmayden sayeth, for he shall heare his handmayden, to delyuer me from the hande of all them, that wolde destroye me with my sonne from the inheritaunce of God. And thy handmayden thoughte, & worde of my lord the kyng shall be as a meat offerynge, for my lord the kyng is as an angell of God, so that he can heare good and euell, therefore shall the LORDE thy God be with the.

The kyng answered and sayde vnto the woman: Kepe nothyng from me that I aye the. The woman sayde: Let my lord the kyng speake on. The kyng sayde: Is not the hande of Joab with the in all this? The woman answered and sayde: As truly as thy soule lyueth (my lord O kyng), there is els noman nether at the righte hande ner at & lefte, but euen as my LORDE the kyng hath sayde, for thy seruauent Joab hath commaunded me, and he himselfe hath taughte thy handmayden all these wordes, that I shulde carynethis matter of this sassyth, this hath Joab thy seruauent done. But my lord is wyse, as the wysdome of an angell of God, so that he knoweth all thynges vpon earth.

Then sayde the kyng vnto Joab: Beholde, I haue done this: go thy waye ther. D

fore and brynge the childe Absalom agayne. Then fell Joab vpon his face vnto the grounde, and worshipped, and thanked the kyng, and sayde: This daye doth thy seruante perceane, that I haue founde grace in thy syghte my lord the kyng, in that the kyng doth as his seruante hath sayde. So Joab gat him vp, and wente vnto Gesur, and broughte Absalom to Jerusalem. But the kyng sayde: Let him go agayne in to his house, and not se my face. Thus Absalom came agayne to his house, and sawe not the kynges face.

But in all Israel there was not so fayre, and so marvelous goodly a man, as Absalom. From the sole of his fote vnto the toppe of his heade there was not one blemish in him. And whan his heade was rounded (that was comonly every yere, for it was so heuy for him, so that it must nedes haue bene rounded) the heer of his heade weyed two hundred Sicles after the kynges weight. And vnto Absalom there were borne thre sonnes and one daughter, whose name was Thamar, and she was a woman of a fayre bewtye: So Absalom abode two yere at Jerusalem, and sawe not the kynges face.

And Absalom sent for Joab, that he mighte sende him to the kyng. And he wolde not come to him. But he sent the sercond tyme, yet wolde he not come. Then sayde he vnto his seruantes: Ye knowe Joabs pece of londe that lyeth by myne, and he hath barlye thereon: go youre waye therfore and set fyre vpon it. So Absaloms seruantes set fyre vpon Joabs pece of londe.

Then Joab gat him vp, and came to Absalom in to the house, and sayde vnto him: Wherfore haue thy seruantes set fyre vpon my pece of londe? Absalom sayde vnto Joab: Beholde, I sent for the, and caused to saye vnto the: Come hither, that I maye sende the to the kyng, and to saye: Wherfore came I from Gesur? It were better for me that I were there yet. Let me therfore se the kynges face. But yf there be any trespase in me, then put me to death. And Joab wente in to the kyng, and tolde him. And he called Absalom, to come in to the kyng, and he worshipped vpon his face to the grounde before the kyng. And the kyng kysed Absalom.

The XV. Chapter.

And after this it fortuneth that Absalom caused to prepare himselfe charettes

tes and horses, and fiftye men, which went with him. And Absalom gat him vp allway early in the mornynge, and stode in the waye by the porte: and whan any man had a matter which shulde come to the kyng for iudgment, Absalom called vnto him and sayde: Of what cite art thou? If he sayde that thy seruante is of one of the trybes of Israel, then sayde Absalom vnto him: Beholde, thy matter is righte and plaine: but there is no man appoynted of the kyng to heare the.

And Absalom sayde: O who setteth me to be iudge in Israel, that every man which hath a plee or matter to do in Israel, might come to me, that I might helpe him to right? And whan any man came to him to do worshippe, and to do him obeisance, he put forth his hande, and helde him, and kysed him. After this maner dyd Absalom vnto all Israel whan they came to the lawe vnto the kyng, and so dyd he steale awaye the hert of the men of Israel.

After fortye yeres sayde Absalom vnto the kyng: I wil go and persourne my wyfe at Hebron, which I made vnto the LORDE. For thy seruante made a vowe, when I dwelt at Gesur in Siria, and sayde: Whan the LORDE bryngeth me agayne to Jerusalem, I shal do a Gods seruyce vnto the LORDE. The kyng sayde vnto him: Go thy waye in peace. And he gat him vp, and wente vnto Hebron.

But Absalom had sent out spyes in all the trybes of Israel, sayenge: Whan ye heare the noyse of the trompe, saye: Absalom is made kyng at Hebron. There wente with Absalom two hundred men called from Jerusalem, but they wente on sylmyly, and knewe not of the matter. Absalom sent also for Achitophel (the Gilonite) Dauids counsellor, out of his cite Gilo. Now whan he did the sacrifice, the conspiracion was mighty, and the people ranne together, and multiplied with Absalom.

Then came one which tolde Dauid, and sayde, that the hert of every man in Israel folowed Absalom. Dauid sayde vnto all his seruantes that were with him at Jerusalem: Up, let vs fle, for here shall be no escape vnto vs before Absalom.

Make haist that we maye be goynge, lest he ouertake vs and catch vs, and dryne some my fortune vpon vs, and smyte the eye with the edge of the swerde. Then sayde the kynges seruantes vnto him: Loke what my LORDE the kyng choseth, beholde, here are thy seruantes. And the kyng wente forth on fote with all his household. But ten concubynes lefte he to kepe the house.

And whan the kyng and all the people came forth on fote, they were farre from home, and all his seruantes wente by him, and all the Chierchians and Plethians, and all the Gethites (euen sixe hundred men) which were come on fote from Gath, wente before the kyng.

And the kyng sayde vnto Jethai the Gethite: Why goest thou also with vs? Turne backe, and byde with the kyng, for thou art a straunger: get the hence agayne vnto thy place. Thou camest yester daye, and to daye thou iurdest to go with vs: As for me, I wil go whither I can: turne thou backe agayne, and mercy and faithfulness happen vnto thy brethren with the. Jethai answered, and sayde: As truly as the LORDE lyneth, and as truly as my lord the kyng lyneth, loke in what place my lord the kyng shalbe, (whether it chaunce to life or death) there shal thy seruante be also.

Dauid sayde vnto Jethai: Then come, and go with vs. So wente Jethai the Gethite and all his men, and the whole multitude of the children that were with him. And all the lande wepte with loude voyce, and all the people with them. And the kyng wente ouer the broke Cedron, and all the people wente ouer by the waye that goeth to the wyldernes.

And beholde, Sadoc was there also, and all the Levites that were with them, and they bare the Arke of the couenant of God, and set it there. And Abiathar wente vp, tyll all the people came out of the cite. But the kyng sayde vnto Sadoc: Brynge the Arke of God in to the cite agayne. If I shal fynde grace before the LORDE, he shal fetch me agayne, and shall let me se it, and the house of it. But yf he saye thus: I haue no pleasure to see the, beholde, here am I, let him do with me as it pleaseth him.

And the kyng saide vnto Sadoc the priest: O thou seer, turne agayne to the cite with peace, and Ahimaas thy sonne with the, and Jonathas the sonne of Abiathar: beholde, I wil tary in the playne of the wyldernes, tyll the message come from yon, and tell me. So Sadoc and Abiathar broughte the Arke of God agayne to Jerusalem, and remayned there.

But Dauid wente vp to mount Olyneth and wepte, and his heade was couered. And all the people that was with him, had eueryman his heade couered and wente on and wepte. And whan it was tolde Dauid, that Achitophel was in the confederacy with Absalom, he sayde: LORDE turne thou Achitophels counsell to foolishnes.

And whan Dauid came vp to the toppe of the mount, where the vse was to worshippe God, Chusai the Arachite met him with his cote rent, and earth vpon his heade. And Dauid sayde vnto him: If thou go with me, thou shalt be chargeable vnto me: but yf thou goest agayne in to the cite, and sayest vnto Absalom: I am thy seruant, O kyng, euen as I was thy fathers seruant, so wyll I now be thy seruant. Then shalt thou brynge Achitophels counsell to naughte. So is Sadoc and Abiathar the prestes with the, and all that thou hearest out of the kynges house, tell it vnto Sadoc and Abiathar the prestes. Beholde, their two sonnes are with the: Ahimaas the sonne of Sadoc, and Jonathas the sonne of Abiathar, by them mayest thou sende me worde what thou hearest. So Chusai Dauids frende came in to the cite. And Absalom came to Jerusalem.

The XVI. Chapter.

And whan Dauid was gone a lytle by from the toppe of the mount, beholde, Siba the seruante of Mephiboseth met him with a couple of asses saddled, whereon were two hundred loaves of bred, and an hundred quantities of rasyns and an hundred quantities of fygges, and a bottell of wyne. Then sayde the kyng vnto Siba: What wilt thou do herewith? Siba sayde: The asses shalbe for the kynges household to ryde vpon, and the loaves and fygges for the yonge men to eat, and the wyne shalbe for them to drynke whan they are weery in the wyldernes. The kyng sayde: Where is thy lordes sonne? Siba sayde vnto the kyng: Beholde, he abyde that Jerusalem, for he saide: To daye shal the house of Israel restore my fathers kyngdome vnto me. The kyng saide vnto Siba: Beholde, all that Mephiboseth hath, shalbe thine. Siba sayde with reuerence, Let me finde grace in thy syghte my lord the kyng.

But whan the kyng Dauid came to Bahurim, beholde, there wente out a man of the kynged of the house of Saul, whose name was Semei the sonne of Gera, which wente forth and cursed, and cast stones at Dauid, and at all the kynges Dauids seruantes, and all the people and all the mighty men men were at his righte hande and at his left. Thus sayde Semei whan he cursed: Get the forth, get the forth thou bloody hounde, thou man of Belial. The LORDE hath rewarded the for all the bloude of the house of Saul, & thou becamest kynge in his steade. Now hath the LORDE geuen the kyngdome into y<sup>e</sup> hande of Absalom thy sonne, and beholde, now stickest thou in thine owne myf thefe, for thou art a bloody hounde.

But Abisai the sonne of Neru Ja sayde vnto the kynge: Shall this deed dogg curse my lord the kynge? I wyl go and take the heade awaye from him. The kynge saide: He childien of Neru Ja, what haue I to do wth you? Let him curse on, for the LORDE hath commaunded him: Curse Dauid. Who can saye now: Why doest thou so?

C And Dauid sayde vnto Abisai and to all his seruantes: Beholde, my sonne which came of my body, seteth after my lyfe, how moch more now the sonne of Iemini? Let him curse on, for the LORDE hath commaunded him: * peradventure the LORDE shall consydre my aduersyte, and recompence me good for his cursynge this daye. So Dauid wente on his waye with his men. But Semei wente on by the mount besyde him, and cursed, and cast stones at him, & threwe clottes of earth.

And the kynge came in and all the people that was with him, weery, and refreshed him selfe there. But Absalom and all the people of the men of Israel came to Jerusalem and Achitophel with him. Whan Chusai the Arachite Dauids frende came into Absalom, he sayde vnto Absalom: God saue the kynge.

D Absalom sayde vnto Chusai: Is this thy mercy vnto thy frende? Why art thou not gone with thy frende? Chusai sayde vnto Absalom: Not so, but loke whom the LORDE choseth, and this people, and all the men in Israel, his wyl I be, and byde with him. Secondly, whom shulde I serue? Shulde I not do seruyce before his sonne? Like as I haue serued in the presence of thy father, so wyl I do seruyce before the also.

And Absalom sayde vnto Achitophel: Geue vs youre counsell what we shal do? Achitophel sayde vnto Absalom: * Go lye with thy fathers concubynes, whom he hath left to kepe the house, so shall all Israel heare that thou hast made thy father to stynte, and the hande of all them that are with y<sup>e</sup>, shal be the bolder. Then made they a tente vnto Absalom vpon the house toppe. And Absalom laye with his fathers concubynes in the sighte of all Israel.

At that tyme whan Achitophel gaue counsell, that was euen as yf a man gaue counsell at God: So were all the counsailes of Achitophel both wth Dauid and wth Absalom.

The xvij. Chapter.

Achitophel sayde vnto Absalom: I wil chose out twelue thousande men, and wyl get me vp, and persue Dauid by nighte, and fall vpon him whan he is feyge and weery: When I vexe him the, so that all the people which is by him, flieth, I wil sette the kynge onely, and brynge all the people vnto the agayne. So whan euery man is brought vnto the as thou desyrest, then shal all the people be in peace. Absalom thought that good, and so dyd all the Elders in Israel. But Absalom sayde: I praye you call Chusai the Arachite also, and let vs heare what he sayeth therto. And whā Chusai came in to Absalom, Absalom saide vnto him: Thus hath Achitophel spoken, Saye thou now, shal we do it or not?

Then sayde Chusai vnto Absalom: It is no good counsell y<sup>e</sup> Achitophel hath geuen at this tyme. And Chusai sayde morouer: Thou knowest thy father well and his men, that they are stronge and of a wrothfull stomack, euen as a Beer that is robbed of his yonge ones in the felde. Thy father also is a man of warre, and wyl not be negligēt wth the people. Beholde, he hath now peradventure hyd hymselfe in some caue or in some place. If it came to passe then that it chaunced euell at the first, & there shulde come a rumour and saye: There is a slaughter done in the people that folowed Absalom: the shulde euery man be discouraged, which els is valeant, & hath a hert like a lyō: for all Israel knoweth that thy father is stronge, and that all they which be with him, are mightie men.

But this is my counsell, that thou gather together all Israel from Dan vnto Bersabe in nombre as the sonde of the See, and go thou thine owne person amonge them, then wil we fall vpon him in what place we finde him, and wyl ouerwhelme him euen as the dew falleth vpon the earth, so that we shal not leaue one of him and of all his men. But yf he resorte in to a cite, then shal all Israel cast roapes aboute the same cite, and drawe it in to the river, so that there shal not one stone of it be founde.

Then sayde Absalom and euery man in Israel: The counsell of Chusai the Arachite is better then Achitophels counsell.

But the LORDE broughte it so to passe, that y<sup>e</sup> good counsell of Achitophel was hyndred, that the LORDE mighte brynge euell vpon Absalom.

And Chusai sayde vnto Sadoc & Abiathar the prestes: Thus and thus hath Achitophel counceled Absalom and the Elders in Israel: but so and so haue I counceled. Sende now therfore in all the haist, and tell Dauid, and saye: Abyde not all nighte in the playne felde of the wyldernes, but get the ouer, that the kynge be not swallowed vp, and all the people that is with him. As for Jonathas and Ahimaaz, they stode by the well of Rogel, and a damsell wente thither and tolde them. They wente on their waye, and tolde the kynge Dauid, for they durst not be sene to come in to the cite.

But a lad sawe them, and tolde Absalom. Therfore they wente on their waye, and came to a mans house at Bahurim, which had a well in his courte, and they wete downe in to it. And the woman toke and spred a couerynge ouer the welles mouth, & strowed fennel seede thereon, that it was not perceaued. Now whan Absaloms seruantes came to the woman in to the house, they sayde: where is Ahimaaz and Jonathas? The woman sayde vnto them: They are gone ouer the litle water.

And whā they soughte and founde them not, they wente agayne to Jerusalem. And whan they were gone, they clymmed vp out of the well, and wente their waye, and tolde Dauid y<sup>e</sup> kynge, and sayde vnto Dauid: Get you vp, and go soone ouer y<sup>e</sup> water, for thus and thus hath Achitophel geuen counsell agaynst you.

Then Dauid gat him vp, and all the people that was with him, and passed ouer Jordan: yllit was cleare mornynge. And there was not one, but he wente ouer Jordane.

Whan Achitophel sawe that his counsell wente not forth, he sadled his asse, gat him vp, and wete home in to his cite and put his house to poynte, and hanged him selfe, and dyed, and was buried in his fathers grane.

And Dauid came to Mahanaim, and Absalom wente ouer Jordane, & all the men of Israel wth him. And Absalom had set Amasa ouer the hoost in Joabs steade. Amasa was the sonne of a man, whose name was Iethra a Jesraelite, which laye with Abigail the daughter of Nahas the sister of Neru Ja Joabs mother. But Israel and Absalom pitched in Gilead.

Whan Dauid was come to Mahanaim, * Nahas of Rabbath of the childre of Ammon, and * Machir the sonne of Ammiel of Lodebar, and * Barsillai a Gileadite of Roglim broughte bedstufte, tapestrie worke, bassens, earthen vessel, where, barley, meel, parched corne, beenes, oremeele, ryse, hony, butter, shepe and fat oxen vnto Dauid, and to y<sup>e</sup> people that was with him, for to eate: for they thought, The people shal be hongrie, weerye and thirstye in the wyldernes.

The xviii. Chapter.

Achitophel mustred the people y<sup>e</sup> was with him, and set captaynes ouer the, ouer thousandes and ouer hundredes. And sent out of the people one thirde parte vnder Abisai the sonne of Neru Ja Joabs brother, and one thirde parte vnder Jethai the Gethite. And the kynge sayde vnto the people: I wyl go forth with you also. Therfore the people sayde: Thou shalt not go forth, for though we sle, or die halfe of vs they shal not regarde vs. For thou art as ten thousande of vs. Therfore is this better that thou mayest helpe vs out of the cite. The kynge sayde: Loke what ye are content withall, that wyl I do. And the kynge stode in the gate, and all the people wente forth by hundredes and by thousandes. And y<sup>e</sup> kynge commaunded Joab and Abisai, and Jethai, and sayde: Intreate me the yonge man Absalom gently. And all the people herde it, whā the kynge commaunded all the captaynes concerning Absalom. And whan the people were come forth in to the felde agaynst Israel, the battayll beganne in the wod of Ephraim. And the people of Israel were smitten there before Dauids seruantes, so that there was a greate slaughter the same daye, of twentye thousande men. And the battayll was scattede abroad there in the londe. And the wod consumed moch more people the same daye, then the swerde consumed.

And Absalom met Dauids seruantes, and rode vpon a Mule. And whan the Mule came vnder a greate thicke Oke tre, his heade toke holde on the Oke, and so hanged he betwene heauen and earth, but the Mule ranne awaye from vnder him. Whan a certayne man sawe that, he tolde Joab, and saide: Beholde, I sawe Absalom hange vpon an Oke tre. And Joab saide vnto the mā y<sup>e</sup> tolde it him: Beholde, sawest thou that, why smotest thou him not there to the ground? so wolde I haue geuen the of myne awne behalfe ten syluerlynges and a gyrdell.

C The man sayde vnto Joab: If thou haddest weyed me a thousande syluerlynges in my handes, yet wolde I not haue layed my handes on the kynge's sonne. For the kynge commaunded the and Abisai and Jehai before oure eares, and sayde: Kepe me the yonge man Absalom. Or yf I had dyssembled vpon the ioperdy of myne owne soule (for so moch as nothynge shulde be hyd from y<sup>e</sup> kynge) thou thy selfe shuldest haue stode against me. Joab sayde: Not so, I wil vpon him be fore thy face.

Then toke Joab thre speares in his hande, and thrust Absalom thorow y<sup>e</sup> hert, while he was yet alyue vpon the Oke. And ten yonge men Joab's weapenbearers, came aboute him, and smote him to death. Then blew Joab the trompe, and broughte the people agayne, that they shulde folowe nomore vpon Israel. For Joab wolde fauoure the people. And they toke Absalom, and cast him in the wod in to a greate pytt, and layed a grea te heape of stones vpon him. And all Israel fled, euery one vnto his tente.

D Absalom had set him vp a piler whyle he was yet alyue, which stode in the kynge's val ley, for he sayde: I haue no sonne, therefore shall this be a remembraunce of my name: and he called the piler after his owne name. And vnto this daie it is yet called Absaloms place.

Abimaas the sonne of Sadoc sayde: Let me runne now, and brynge the kynge worde, that the LORDE hath gotten him righte fro the hande of his enemies. But Joab sayde: Thou shalt bringe no good tidynge to daie another daie shalt thou brynge him worde, and not to daie, for the kynge's sonne is deed. But vnto Chusi sayde Joab: Go thou thy waye, and tell the kynge what thou hast se ne. And Chusi did his obeysaunce vnto Joab, and ranne. Abimaas the sonne of Sadoc sai de agayne vnto Joab: What and I ranne also? Joab sayde: What wilt thou runne my sonne? Come hither, thou shalt brynge no good tydynge. (He answered:) What and I ranne yet. He sai de vnto him: Runne on y waye, then. So Abimaas ranne the straight waye, and came before Chusi.

As for Dauid, he sat betwenethe two gates. And the watchman wente vp to y<sup>e</sup> toppe of the porte vpon the wall, and lifte vp his eyes, and sawe a man renninge alone, and cryed, and tolde the kynge. The kynge sayde: If he be alone, then is there good tydynge in his mouth. And as the same wente and came forth, the watchman sawe another man renninge, and cryed in the porte and sayde: Beholde, there renneth a man alone. The kyn ge sayde: The same is a good messaunger al so. The watchman sayde: I se the rennyng of the first as it were the rennyng of Abi maas the sonne of Sadoc. And the kynge sayde: He is a good man, and bryngeth good tidynge. Abimaas cryed, and sayde vnto y<sup>e</sup> kynge: Peace, and worshipped before the kyn ge vpon his face to the grounde, and sayde: Praised be the LORDE thy God, which hath genen ouer y<sup>e</sup> men that lifte vp their handes agaynst my LORDE the kynge.

The kynge sayde: Goeth it well with the yonge man Absalom? Abimaas sayde: I sawe a grea te vproure, whan Joab the kyn ges seruaunt sent me thy seruaunt, and I wote not what it was. The kynge sayde: God bouthe, and stonde here. And he wente aboute and stode there. Beholde, then came Chusi and sayde: I brynge good tydynge my lord the kynge: The LORDE hath executed righte for the this daie, from the hande of all them that rose vp agaynst the. But the kynge say de vnto Chusi: Goeth it well with the yonge man Absalom? Chusi sayde: Euen so go it w all the enemyes of my lord the kynge, and with all them that ryse vp agaynst the to do enell, as it goeth with the yonge man. Then was the kynge sorowfull, and wente vp into the perler vpon the gate, and wepte, and as he wente, he sayde thus: O my sonne Absal, my sonne, my sonne Absalom, wolde God y<sup>e</sup> I shulde dye for the. O Absalom my sonne, my sonne.

The XIX. Chapter.

And it was tolde Joab: beholde, y<sup>e</sup> kyn ge wepeth z mourneth for Absalom. And so out of y<sup>e</sup> victory of y<sup>e</sup> daye the re came a mourninge amonge all the people. For the people had herde the same daie, y<sup>e</sup> the kynge toke on heuely because of his son ne. And y<sup>e</sup> people stole awaye the same daie, so that they came not in to the cite: as a peo ple that is put to shame, pyteth them selfe awaye, whan they are fled in a battayll. As for the kynge, he had couered his face, and cryed loude, and sayde: Oh my sonne Absalom, Absalom my sonne, my sonne.

But Joab came to the kynge in to the house, and sayde: This daie hast thou sha med all thy seruauntes (which haue deliue red thy soule this daie, and the soules of thy sonnes, of thy dongheers, of thy wyues, and of thy concubynes) in that thou louest them that hate the, and hatest those that loue y<sup>e</sup>. For to daie thou shewest thy selfe, that thou carest not for the captaynes and seruaun tes: for I perceaue this daie, that yf Absa lom onely were alyue, and we all deed this daie, thou woldest thynke it were well.

B Get the vp now therfore, and go forth, and speake longyngly vnto thy seruauntes. For I sweare vnto the by y<sup>e</sup> LORDE, yf thou go not forth, there shall not be leste the one man this nyght: this shalbe worse vnto y<sup>e</sup>, than all the euell that happened the sence y<sup>e</sup> youth vp hither to. The kynge gat him vp, and sat in the gate. And it was sayde vn to the people: beholde, the kynge sitteth in the gate. Then came all the people before y<sup>e</sup> kynge. But Israel was fled euery one vnto his tent.

And all the people stroue in all the trybes of Israel, and sayde: The kynge ryd vs from the hande of oure enemies, and deliuered vs from the hande of the Philistynes, and was sayne to fle out of the lode for Absalom. So Absalom whom we had anoynted ouer vs, is deed in the battayll. Why are ye so styll now, that ye fetch not the kynge agayne?

C The kynge sent vnto Sadoc z Abiathar the prestes, z caused to saye vnto the: Spea ke to the Elders of Juda, z saye: Why wyl ye be the last to fetch the kynge agayne vnto his house? (for y<sup>e</sup> sayenge of all Israel was come before the kynge in to his house) ye are my brethren, my bone, and my flesh. Wherfo re wyl ye then be the last to brynge the kyn ge agayne? And saye vnto Amasa: Art not thou my bone and my flesh? God do this z that vnto me, yf thou shalt not be the chiefe captayne before me in Joab's steade, as lon ge as thou lyuest.

And he bowed the hert of all the men of Juda as of one man. And they sent vnto y<sup>e</sup> kynge: Come agayne, thou and all thy seruauntes: So the kynge came agayne. And whan he came vnto Jordane, y<sup>e</sup> men of Ju da were come to Gilgal, for to go downe to mete the kynge, that they mighte brynge y<sup>e</sup> kynge ouer Jordane. And Semei the sonne of Gera the sonne of Jemini, which dwelt at Bahurim, made haist, and wente downe with y<sup>e</sup> men of Juda to mete kynge Dauid, and there were with him a thousande me of Ben Jamin. Siba also the seruaunt of the house of Saul with his systene sonnes and twenty seruauntes, z gat them thorow Jor dane and passed ouer y<sup>e</sup> fery, that they mighte brynge ouer the kynge's housholde, and to do him pleasure.

D But Semei the sonne of Gera fell downe before the kynge, whan he passed ouer Jor dane, and sayde vnto the kynge: O my lord, laye not the trespase vnto my charge, z thyn kenot vpon it that thy seruaunt vexed the, in the daie whan my lord the kynge wente out of Jerusalem: and let not y<sup>e</sup> kynge ta ke it to hert, for thy seruaunt knoweth that he hath synned. And beholde, this daie am I come the first amonge all the house of Jo seph, for to go downe to mete my lord the kynge.

Nevertheless Abisai the sonne of Jeru Ja ansered and sayde: And shulde not Semei dye therfore, seynge he hath cursed y<sup>e</sup> anoynt ed of y<sup>e</sup> LORDE? But Dauid sayde: What haue I to do with you ye children of Jeru Ja, that ye wyl become Sathan vnto me this daie? Shulde eny man dye this daie in Israel? Thynkest thou that I knowe not, y<sup>e</sup> I am become kynge ouer Israel this daie? And y<sup>e</sup> kynge sayde vnto Semei: Thou shalt not dye: And the kynge swore vnto him.

E Mephiboseth the sonne of Saul came downe also to mete the kynge. And he had not made cleane his fete ner combed his beer de, nether had he washed his clothes from the daie that the kynge was gone awaye, vntyll the daie that he came agayne in pea ce. Now whan he came to Jerusalem for to mete the kynge, the kynge sayde vnto him: Mephiboseth, wherfore wentest thou not with me? And he sayde: My lord the kynge, my seruaunt hath dealte vnrighteously with me: for thy seruaunt thoughte: I wil saddell an asse and ryde thereon, and go vnto the kyn ge: for thy seruaunt is lame, and he hath ac cused thy seruaunt before my lord y<sup>e</sup> kynge.

* But my lord y<sup>e</sup> kynge is an angell of God, and thou mayest do what pleaseth the. For all my fathers house was nothynge, but peo ple of death before my lord y<sup>e</sup> kynge. * And yet hast thou set thy seruaunt amonge them that eate at y<sup>e</sup> table. What other righteous nes haue I, that I shulde crye eny more vn to the kynge? The kynge sayde vnto him: What speakest thou yet more of thy mat ter?

ter: I haue sayde: Thou and Siba parte the lande betwene you. Mephiboseth sayde vnto the kyng: Let him take it all, in as moch as my lord & kyng is come home in peace.

S And Barzillai the Gileadite came downe from Roglim, and broughte the kyng ouer Jordane, that he mighte conuey him in Jordane. And Barzillai was very olde, so good as foure score yere olde, & the same had prouyded & kyng of fode whyle he was at Mahanaim, for he was a very noble man. And the kyng sayde vnto Barzillai: Thou shalt go ouer with me, I wyll take care for the & myne a wne selfe at Jerusalem. But Barzillai sayde vnto the kyng: What haue I yet to lyue, that I shulde go vp to Jerusalem to the kyng? This daye am I foure score yere olde. How shulde I knowe what is good or enell, or taist what I eate or drynke, or heare what the Musicians do synge? Why shulde chy seruauunt be chargeable first vnto my lord the kyng? chy seruauunt shall go a litle with the kyng ouer Jordane. Why wil the kyng recompence me after this maner? Let chy seruauunt turne backe agayne, that I maye dye in my cite besyde my father and my mothers graue. Beholde, there is chy seruauunt Chimeam, let him go ouer with my lord the kyng, and do vnto him what please the.

S The kyng sayde: Chimeam shall go ouer with me, and I wyll do for him what liketh the: and what so ever thou desirest of me, that wyll I do for the also. And whan all & people was gone ouer Jordane and the kyng ge lykewyse, the kyng kyssed Barzillai and blessed him, and he turned vnto his place. And & kyng passed ouer vnto Gilgal, and Chimeam wente with him. And all the people of Juda broughte the kyng ouer, howbeit there was but halfe of the people of Israel there.

And beholde, the came all the men of Israel vnto the kyng, & sayde vnto him: Why haue oure brethien the men of Juda stollen the awaye, and haue conueyed & kyng and his housholde ouer Jordane, and all Dauids men with him? Then answered they of Juda vnto them of Israel: The kyng is of oure nye kyndred, why are ye angrie therfore? Thynke ye that we haue receaved eny fode or giftes of the kyng? Then answered they of Israel vnto them of Juda, & sayde: We haue ten tymes more with the kyng and with Dauid, the thou, why hast thou regarded me then so lightly, that oures were not the first to fetch oure kyng agayne? But they of Juda spake harder then they of Israel.

The XX. Chapter.

There was a famous man of Belai there, whose name was Seba & sonne of Bichri, a mā of Jemini, which blew the trompe, and sayde: We haue no porcion in Dauid, ner inheritaunce in & sonne of Isai: let every get him to his tent, & Israel. Then fell every man in Israel from Dauid, and folowed Seba the sonne of Bichri. But the men of Juda cleued vnto the kyng from Jordane vnto Jerusalem. Whan Dauid came home to Jerusalem, he toke the ten concubynes (whom he had leste to kepe the house) and put them in a holde to be kept, and made prouysion for them: but he laye not with them, and so were they shut vp vnto their death, and lyued wedowes.

And & kyng sayde vnto Amasa: Call all the men of Juda together agaynst the thirde daye, & be thou here present also. And Amasa wote to call Juda together. And he was slacke to come at & tyme which he had appoynted him. And Dauid sayde vnto Achisai: Now shall Seba the sonne of Bichri do vs more harme then Absalom. Take thou lordes seruantes, and folowe vpon him, & he synde not some ströge cities for him, and so escape out of oure sighte. Then wente Joab with him forth after him, and the Chieftians and plethians, and all the mightie mā: and they wote out of Jerusalem to folowe vpon Seba the sonne of Bichri.

But whan they were by the greete stow at Gibeon, Amasa came before them. As for Joab, he was gyrded aboue his garment which he had on, and vpon it he had a sword gyrded, which hanged by his thye in the sheeth, and wente easely out and in, and fell fro him. And Joab sayde vnto Amasa: Peace be with the my brother. And Joab toke Amasa by the beerde with his righte hand, to kyss him. And Amasa toke no hede vnto & swerde in Joabs hande, and he thrust him therewith in to the bely, & his bowels ran out vpon the earth, and he thrust at him more. And so he dyed.

Joab & his brother Abisai folowed vpon Seba & sonne of Bichri. And one of Joabs seruantes stode by him, and sayde: What is he this & wolde be agaynst Joab to please Dauid, and to be with Dauid in Joabs steade? As for Amasa, he laye rolled in the bloude in & myddes of the strete. But whan one sawe that all the people stode there, he removed Amasa from the strete vnto the felde, and cast a clothe vpon him, for so moch as he sawe, that who so ever came by him, stoode still. Now whan he was put out of the waye, every man wote after Joab, to folowe vpon Seba the sonne of Bichri.

And he wente thorow all & trybes of Israel vnto Abel Beth Maacha, and all the best chosen men gathered them selues together, & folowed after him, and came and beseged him at Abel Beth Maacha, and made a banke aboute to cite harde on & wall. And all the people that was with Joab, layed to their ordynance, and wolde haue cast downe the wall.

Then cried there a wyse womā out of & cite: heare, heare, saye vnto Joab that he come hither, I wyll speake with him. And whan he came to her, the woman sayde: Art thou Joab? he sayde: Yee. She sayde vnto him: heare the wordes of chy handmayden. he sayde: I heare. She sayde: The comon sayenge was somtyme: Who so wyll are, let him are at Abel, and so came it to a good ende. This is & noble and faithfull cite in Israel, and wilt thou destroye the cite and the mother in Israel? Why wilt thou swalowe vpon the inheritaunce of the LORDE?

Joab answered and sayde: That be farre, that be farre frome, that I shulde swalowe vpon and destroye. The matter is not so, but a certayne man of mount Ephraim named Seba the sonne of Bichri, hath lifte vpon him selfe agaynst kyng Dauid, desyuer him one ly, and I wyll departe from the cite. The woman sayde vnto Joab: Beholde, his heade shall be cast vnto the ouer the wall. And the woman came in to all the people with hir wysdome. And they smote of the heade of Seba the sonne of Bichri, and cast it vnto Joab. Then blew he the trompe, and they departed from the cite, every one vnto his tent. But Joab came agayne to Jerusalem vnto the kyng.

Joab was capayne ouer all the hoost of Israel: Benaia & sonne of Joiada was ouer the Chieftians and plethians: Adoram was rent gatherer: Josaphat the sonne of Ahilud was Chaunceler: Seia was the scribe: Sadoc and Abiathar were the prestes: Ira also & Jairite was Dauids prest.

The XXI. Chapter.

There was a derth also in Dauids tyme thre yeres together. And Dauid soughte the face of & LORDE. And the LORDE sayde: Because of Saul and because of that bloudy housholde & he slewe the Gibeonites. Then the kyng caused for to call the Gibeonites, and spake vnto them. (As for the Gibeonites, they were not of & children of Israel, but a remnaunt of the Amonites: howbeit & the children of Israel had sworne vnto the, and Saul soughte for to synce them in his gelousy, for the childre of Israel and Juda.) Then sayde Dauid to the Gibeonites: What shall I do vnto you? And wherewithall shall I make the attonement, that ye maye blesse & inheritaunce of & LORDE? The Gibeonites sayde vnto him: It is not for golde and syluer that we haue to do w Saul and his house, nether haue we oughte to do for to slaye eny mā in Israel.

he sayde: What saye ye then, that I shall do vnto you? They sayde vnto & kyng: The man that hath destroyed vs and broughte vs to naughte, shulde we destroye, that nothinge be leste him in all the coastes of Israel. Let there be geuen vs seven men of his sonnes, that we maye hange them vpon the LORDE at Gibeon of Saul the chosen of the LORDE. The kyng sayde: I wyll geue them. Howbeit the kyng spared Mephiboseth & sonne of Jonathas & sonne of Saul, because of the oath of the LORDE & was betwene them: namely, betwene Dauid & Jonathas the sonne of Saul. But the two sonnes of Rissa & daughter of Aia, whom she had borne vnto Saul, Armoni & Mephiboseth, And the fyue sonnes of Michol the daughter of Saul, whom she bare vnto Adriel the sonne of Barzillai the Mahalothite, dyd the kyng take, and gaue them in to the handes of & Gibeonites, which hanged the vpon vpon the mount before the LORDE.

So these seven fell at one tyme, and dyed in the tyme of the first haruest, whan & barley haruest begynneth. Then toke Rissa the daughter of Aia a sack cloth, & spred it vpon the rock in the begynnyng of the haruest, tyll the water from the heauen dropped vpon them, and suffred not the soules of the heauen to rest on them on the daye tyme, nether the wyld beestes of the felde on the nyghte season. And it was tolde Dauid what Rissa the daughter of Aia Sauls concubine had done.

And Dauid wente and toke the bones of Saul and the bones of Jonathas his sonne from & citisens at Jabes in Gilead (which they & had stollen from & strete at Bethsan, where & Philistynes had hanged the, what tyme as the Philistynes had syncten Saul vpon mount Gilboa) and broughte them vpon from thence, and gathered them together w the bones of them that were hanged. And the bones of Saul and of his sonne Jonathan buried they in ʒ londe of Ben Jamin, besyde ʒ grane of his father Cis. So after this was God at one with the londe.

But there arose warre agayne of ʒ philistynes agaynst Israel. And David wente downe ʒ his seruauntes with him, ʒ foughthe agaynst the philistynes. And David was weery, ʒ Iessi of Tob (which was one of the children of Rapha, and the weight of his speare was thre C. weight of bresse, and had a new harnesse vpon him) thoughte to smyte David. Neuertheles Abisai the some of Jeru Ja helped him, ʒ smote the philistyne to death. Then swaue Davids men vnto him, ʒ sayde: * Thou shalt nomore go forth with vs vnto the warre, that the lanterne in Israel be not put out.

1. Re. 18. a

¶ Afterwarde there arose yet warre at Tob with the philistynes. Then Sibechai the husathite smote Saph, which also was one of the childre of Rapha.

1. Par. 21. a

And there arose yet warre at Gob with the philistynes. Then Elhanan the sonne of Jaere Origim a Bethleemite smote Goliath the Gethite, which had a speare, whose shaft was like a weeners lome.

And there arose yet warre at Gath, wherether was a cōtencious man, which had fire fyngers on his handes, and fire toes on his fete, that is foure and twety in the nombre, and he was borne also of Rapha. And whan he spake despitely vnto Israel, Jonathan ʒ sonne of Simea Davids brother smote him. These foure were borne vnto Rapha at Gath, and fell thorow the hande of David and of his seruauntes.

The XXII. Chapter.

¶ David spake the wordes of this songe before the LORDE, what tyme as the LORDE had delyuered him fro the hande of all his enemies, and from the hande of Saul, and he sayde.

The LORDE is my stony rock, ʒ my castell, and my delyuerer.

God is my strength, in him wyl I put my trust: my shyld ʒ the horne of my saluacion, my defence ʒ my refuge, my Sauoure, thou shalt helpe me from violent wronge.

1. Sa. 17. a

I wil call vpon the LORDE with prayse, so shal I be delyuered fro myne enemies.

For the sorowes of death cōpased me, and the brokes of Belial made me a frayd.

The paynes of hell came aboute me, and the snares of death had overtaken me.

¶ Whā I was in trouble, I called vpon the LORDE, yee euen my God called I vpon, ʒ

The xxij. Chap.

so he herde my voyce fro his holy temple, ʒ my cōplaynte came into his eares.

The earth trembled and quaked, the foundations of the heauen shoke and moved, because he was wroth.

Smoke wente vp from his nose, and consuminge fyre out of his mouth, coles were kyndled therof.

He bowed the heauens and came downe, and it was darke vnder his fete.

He sat vpon Cherub and dyd flye, and appeared vpon the fethers of the wynde.

He made darknes his paulyon round aboute him, thicke water in the cloudes of ʒ ayre.

At the brightnesse of him were the fyre coles kyndled.

The LORDE thondered from heane, and the ʒyest put forth his voyce.

He shot his arrowes, and scatered them: he lightened, and discomfited them.

The pourynges out of the See were seene, and the foundations of the earth were discovered at the chydyinge of the LORDE, ʒ at the bierth of the spere of his wrath.

He sent downe from aboue, and receaued me, and droue me out of many waters.

He delyuered me fro my stronge enemy, from them that hated me, for they were to mightie for me.

They overtoke me in the tyme of my trouble, but the LORDE was my succoure.

He broughte me forth in to liberty: he delyuered me, because he had a fauoure vnto me.

The LORDE shal rewarde me after my righteousness, and a cordinge to the clemmes of my handes shal he recompence me.

For I haue kepte ʒ waye of the LORDE, ʒ haue not bene vngodly agaynst my God.

For I haue an eye vnto all his lawes, and haue not put his ordinaunces fro me.

Therefore wil I be perfecte vnto him, and wyl eshew myne awne wickednes.

So shal ʒ LORDE rewarde me after my righteousness, a cordinge to the clemmes of my handes in his eye sighte.

With the holy shalt thou be holy, and with the perfecte thou shalt be perfecte.

With the cleane thou shalt be cleane, and with the frowarde thou shalt be frowarde.

For thou shalt saue the poore oppressed people, and shalt set thine eyes agaynst the proude to brynge them downe.

For thou O LORDE art my lanterne. The LORDE shal lighte my darknesse.

For in ʒ I shal discōfite an hoost of men, ʒ in my God I shal leape ouer the wall.

The ii. boke of the kyniges.

The waye of God is perfecte: ʒ wordes of the LORDE are tryed in the fyre: he is a shyld for all the that put their trust in him.

For where is there a God, excepte ʒ LORDE? O who hath eny strength without oure God?

God hath strenghted me with power, and made playne a perfecte waye for me.

He hath made my fete like hartes fete, ʒ hath set me vp an hye.

He teacheth my handes to fighte, and benedict the stele bowe with myne armes.

And thou hast geuen me the shyld of ʒ health, and with ʒ lounge correccion shalt thou multiplie me.

Thou hast enlarged my goinge vnder me, and myne ankles haue not slyded.

I wyl folowe vpon myne enemies, and destroye the: and wyl not turne backe agayne, tyll I haue broughte them to naught.

I wil cōsume them and thrust them thorow, that they come not vp: they shal fall vnder my fete.

Thou hast girded me with strength to ʒ battayll, and hast subdued them vnder me ʒ rose vpon agaynst me.

Thou hast made myne enemies to turne their backs vpon me, that I might destroye them that hate me.

They shal crye, but there shalbe no Sauoure: yee euen vnto the LORDE, but he answereth them not.

I wil beate them as small as the dust of the earth: euen as ʒ claye of the stretes wil I make them thynne, and spiede them out abroad.

But me shalt thou delyuer from the strynges of the people, and shalt kepe me to be ʒ heade of the ʒeythen: A people whom I haue not knowne shal serue me.

The straunge children haue denyed me: at the hearynge of the eare shal they herkē vnto me.

The straunge children are waken olde, ʒ are shut vp in their prisons.

The LORDE lyueth, and blessed be my God, and magnified be the strength of my health.

God seyth that I be auenged, and subdueth the people vnto me.

He bryngeth me out fro myne enemies: ʒ from them ʒ ryse vp agaynst me, shalt thou exalte me, and from ʒ cruell man shalt thou delyuer me.

¶ For this cause wyl I geue thankes vnto the amonge the ʒeythen, and synge prayses vnto thy name.

The xxij. Chap. Fo. li.

Which doth greate health for his kynge, ʒ sheweth mercy vnto David his anoynted, and to his sede for euermore.

The XXIII. Chapter.

These are the last wordes of David: 2

David the sonne of Iai sayde. The man, that was set vp to be ʒ anoynted of the God of Jacob, ʒ a pleasaunt dyter of songes of Israel, sayde: The spere of the LORDE hath spoken by me, and the veteraunce therof is done thorow my tunge. He sayde: The God of Israel hath spokē vnto me, the strength of Israel, the gouernoure amonge men, the righteous gouernoure in the feare of God. As the lighte is in ʒ morninge whan the Sonne aryseth, so that for the brightnesse therof no cloude remayneth: and as the grasse loketh vpon the earth thorow the rayne, euen so shal my house be with God. * For he hath made an euerastringe cōuenant with me, well appoynted on euery syde and sure. For this is all my health ʒ pleasure, that it shal growe. But the Belial shal be utterly ʒ cleane roted out as the thornes, which me take not in their hādes. And they ʒ touch them, shal destroye them w yrons ʒ speares: ʒ in the fyre shal they be brent, that they maye be broughte to naught.

1. Re. 7. c

These are the names of Davids Worthies: Jasabeam ʒ sonne of Zachmoni, the cheffest amonge thre, which lifte vp his speare, ʒ slewe eight hundred at one tyme.

1. Par. 11. f

After him was Eleasar the sonne of Dothi the sonne of Ahohi amonge the thre Worthies with David, whan they spake despitely to the philistynes, and were gathered together to the battayll, and the men of Israel wente vp. Then stode he vp and smote the philistynes, tyll his hande was so weery that it cromptled with the swerde. And the LORDE gaue a greate victory at the same tyme, so that the people turned after him to spoyle. After him was Samma the sonne of Age ʒ Hararite. Whā the philistynes had gathered themselves in a company, and in the same place there was a pece of lōde full of small corne, and the people fled before the philistynes, the stode he in the myddes of ʒ pece of londe, ʒ delyuered it, ʒ smote ʒ philistynes. And God gaue a greate victory.

And these thre pryncipall amonge thirtie, came downe in the harnest vnto David, into the caue of Adullam, ʒ the hoost of ʒ philistynes laye in ʒ valley of Rephaim. But David was at the same tyme in the castell, and ʒ philistynes people laye at Bethleem. And David was despyous, and sayde: Wol-

be God & seme man wolde fetch me a drynke of water out of the well at Bethleem vnder the gate. The brake the thre Worthies into the hoost of the philistynes, and drue of the water out of the well at Bethleem vnder & gate, & caried it & broughte it vnto Dauid: neuertheles he wolde not drynke it, but offered it vnto the LORDE, & sayde: The LORDE let this be farre fro me, that I shulde do it. Is it not the bloude of the men that ioperded their lyues, and wente thither? And he wolde not drynke it. This dyd the thre Worthies.

D * Abisai & brother of Joab the sonne of Zeru Ja was one also chese amōge thre. He lifte vp his speare & smote thre hundreth, & was an auncient man amōge thre, & the noblest amōge thre, & was their ruler. But he came not vnto the thre. * And Benaia the sonne of Joiada, the sonne of Ishai (a man of greates actes of Cabzeell) smote two mighty gaintes of & Moabites, & wete downe, & slewe a lyon at a well in the snowe tyme. He smote also a fayre goodly man of Egipte, which had a speare in his hande. But he wete downe to him with a staffe, and toke the speare out of the Egiptians hande by violence, and slewe him with his owne speare. This dyd Benaia the sonne of Joiada, and was a famous man amōge thre Worthies, and more honorable then the thirtie, but he came not vnto the thre. And Dauid made him of his secreete counsell.

Asahel the brother of Joab is amōge & thirtie: Elham his vnckles sonne at Bethleem. Samma the Haradite, Eliza the Haradite, Helez the Palitite, Ira the sonne of Tekoite, Abiser the Anthothite, Mebunai the Husathite, Salmon the Ahobite, Mahera the Netophatite, Jethai the sonne of Kibai of Gibeon of the childre of Ben Jamin, Benaia the Pirgathonite, Hidaia of the brooke of Gaas, Abialbon the Arbathite, Asmauerth the Bahumite, Eliaheba the Baalbomite. The children of Jaser and Jonathas: Samma the Haradite, Eliphelet the sonne of Ahasbai & sonne of Maachathi, Eliam the sonne of Achitophel & Gilonite, Hesrai of Carmel, Paerai the Arbite, Jegael the sonne of Nathan of Soba, Dani the Gadite, Zeleg the Ammonite, Naharai the Beerothite, the weapon bearer of Joab the sonne of Zeru Ja, Ira the Jethite, Gareb the Jethite, Urias the Hethite. These are altogether seven and thirtie.

The XXIII. Chapter.

The xxiii. Chap.

AND the LORDE was wrothfully displeased of & new agaynst Israel, and moued Dauid amonge them, because he saide: Go, nombre Israel and Juda. And the kynges sayde vnto Joab & chese capteyne of his hoost: Go aboute in all the trybes of Israel, from Dan vnto Berseba, and nombre the people, that I maye knowe how many they be. Joab sayde vnto the kyng: The LORDE thy God adde vnto this people an hundreth tymes as moch as it is now, that my lord the kyng maye se his eyes lust theron. But why hath my lord the kyng a desire to this thynge? Neuertheles the kynges worde preuailed agaynst Joab and the capteynes of the hoost.

So Joab and & capteynes of the hoost wente forth from the kyng, to nombre the people of Israel, and passed ouer Jordan, and pitched at Arzer, at the righte hande of the cite which lyeth in & ryuer of Gad, and at Jaser, & came to Gilead, and in the lowe countre of Hadsi, and came vnto Dan Jaan, and aboute Sidon, and came to the stronge cite of Tyrus, and all the cities of the Hewites and Cananites, and came forth to the south parte of Juda vnto Berseba, and wete rounde aboute that countre, and after nyne monethes and twenty daies they came to Jerusalem. And Joab deliuered vnto & kyng the summe of the people that was nombred. And in Israel there were eight hundred and thre score thousande men, and in Juda fyue hundreth thousande men. And after that the people was nombred, Dauides hert smote him selfe. And Dauid sayde vnto & LORDE: I haue synned sore, that I haue done this. And now LORDE take away the trespass of thy seruauant. For I haue done very vnwysely.

And whan Dauid rose vp in the morninge, the worde of the LORDE came vnto the prophet Gad, Dauides Seer, & sayde: Go & speake vnto Dauid. Thus sayeth the LORDE: I bringe the thre thynges, chese the one of them, that I maye do it vnto the. Gad came vnto Dauid, and tolde him, and sayde vnto him: Wilt thou that seven yere derth shall come in to thy londe? Or that thou be sayne to flye before thine aduersaries thre monethes, and they to persecute the? Or that there be pestilence thre dayes in the londe? Take aduysment therfore and se, what answerest thou. Ishal bringe agayne vnto him & sent me.

Dauid sayde vnto Gad: I am in extreme trouble. Neuertheles (yf it maye be) let me rather fall in to & handes of the LORDE (for his mercy is greates) I wyll not fall in to the handes of men.

The ii. booke

So the LORDE sent pestilence in to Israel from the morow vnto the tyme appoynted, so that there dyed of the people from Dan vnto Berseba, thre score and ten thousande men. And whan the angel stretched his hande ouer Jerusalem to destroye it, the LORDE repented ouer the euell, and sayde vnto the angel: It is ynough, holde now thy hande. The angel of the LORDE was besyde the barne of Arafna the Jebusite. But whan Dauid sawe the angel that smote the people, he sayde vnto the LORDE: beholde, It is I that haue synned, I haue done the trespass: As for these shepe, what haue they done? Oh let thy hande be agaynst me and agaynst my fathers house.

And Gad came to Dauid at the same tyme, and saide vnto him: Go vp, and set vp an altare vnto the LORDE in & barne of Arafna the Jebusite. So Dauid wete vp as Gad sayde, and as the LORDE had commaunded. And whan Arafna looked aboute him, he sawe the kyng with his seruantes goinge vnto him, and he worshipped vpon his face to the grounde, and sayde: Wherfore commeth my lord & kyng vnto his seruauant? Dauid sayde: To bye the barne of the, and to buylde an altare vnto the LORDE, that the plage maye cease from the people.

But Arafna sayde vnto Dauid: Let my lord the kyng take it, and offre what pleasech him. Beholde, there is an oxe for a burnt offeringe, and sleddes, and vessels of oxen to the wodd. All this gaue Arafna vnto the kyng. And Arafna sayde vnto & kyng: The LORDE thy God make the accepted vnto him. Neuertheles & kyng sayde vnto Arafna: Not so, but I wyll bye it of the for as moch as it is worth. For I wyll not offre burnt offeringes vnto & LORDE, of & which I haue for naughte. So Dauid boughte the barne and the oxe for fiftie Sicles of syluer, and buylde an altare there vnto the LORDE, and offered burnt offeringes & dede offeringes. And the LORDE was mercifull vnto & londe, and & plage ceased from the people of Israel.

And whā kinge David was olde & well strycke in age, he coulde not be warme, though he was covered with clothes. Then sayde his seruantes vnto him: Let vs seke a yonge damsell a virgin for oure lorde the kyng, to stonde before the kyng, and to nourish him, & to slepe in his armes, and to warme oure lorde the kyng. And they sought a fayre damsell in all the coastes of Israel, and founde Abisag of Sunem, and brought her vnto the kyng. And she was a very fayre damsell, and nourished the kyng, and serued him. Howbeit the kyng knewe her not.

Adonias the sonne of Hagith lifte vp him selfe, and sayde: I wyl be kyng. And he prepared him charrettes and horsmen, and syster men to be renners on fore before him. And his father reproveth him not therfore, so much as to saye: Wherfore doest thou so? And he was a man of a very fayre bewtye, and he had begotten him nexte after Absalon. And his matter stode by Joab the sonne of Zeruia and by Abiathar the prest, which helped Adonias. But Sadoc the prest, and Benaia the sonne of Joiada, and Nathan the prest and Semei and Rei, and Davids Worthies were not with Adonias.

And whā Adonias offred shepe and oxe, and fat catell besyde the stone of Seheleth, which lyeth by the well of Rogel, he called all his brethren the kynges sonnes, and all the men of Juda the kynges seruantes. But the prophet Nathan and Benaia, and the Worthies, and his brother Salomon called he not. Then sayde Nathan vnto Bethseba Salomons mother: Hast thou not herde the Adonias is kyng, and oure lorde David knoweth not therof? Come now therfore, I wyl geue thee counsell, that thou mayest deliuer thy soule and the soule of thy sonne Salomon. Come now and go in to kinge David and saye vnto him: Hast not thou my lorde the kyng sware and sayde vnto thy handmayden: Salomon thy sonne shall be kyng after me, and he shall sitt vpon my seate? Why is then Adonias made kyng? Beholde, while thou art yet there, and talkest with the kyng, I wyl come in after the, and tell forth thy tale. And Bethseba wente in to the kyng to the chamber. And the kyng was very olde. And Abisag of Sunem serued

the kyng. And Bethseba bowed herself, and worshipped the kyng.

The kyng sayde: What wilt thou? She sayde vnto him: My lorde, Thou hast sware vnto thy handmayde by the LORDE thy God: Thy sonne Salomon shall be kyng after me and sitt vpon my seate. But now lo, Adonias is kyng, and my lorde the kyng knoweth it not. He hath offred oren and fat catell, and many shepe, and hath called all the kynges sonnes, and Abiathar the prest, and Joab the chiefe captaigne. But thy seruant Salomon hath he not bydden. Nevertheless thou my lorde art kyng, the eyes of all Israel loke vnto the, that thou shouldest shewe them who shall sitt vpon the seate of my lorde the kyng after the. And whā my lorde the kyng slepeth with his fathers then shal I and my sonne Salomon be sayne to be synners.

But while she yet spake to the kyng, the prophet Nathan came, and she tolde the kyng: beholde, there is the prophet Nathan. And whā he came in before the kyng, he worshipped the kyng vpon his face to the grounde, and sayde: My lorde the kyng, hast thou saide: Adonias shal be kyng after me, & sitt vpon my seate? For he is gone downe this daye, and hath offred oren, and fat catell, & hath called all the kynges sonnes, and the captaynes, and the prest Abiathar. And behold, they eate and drynke before him, and saye: God saue the kyng Adonias. But me thy seruant, and Sadoc the prest, and Benaia the sonne of Joiada, and thy seruant Salomon hath he not called. Hath my lorde the kyng commaunded this, and not certified his seruantes who shall sitt vpon the seate of my lorde the kyng after him?

The kyng answered and saide: Call Bethseba vnto me. And she came in before the kyng. And whā she stode before the kyng, the kyng sware and sayde: As truly as the LORDE lyueth (which hath deliuered my soule out of trouble,) I wyl do vnto the this daye, euen as I sware vnto the by the LORDE the God of Israel, so that Salomon thy sonne shal be kyng after me, and he shal sitt vpon my seate in my steade.

Then Bethseba bowed hir selfe with hir face to the grounde, and thanked the kyng and sayde: God saue my lorde kyng David for evermore. And the kyng sayde: Call me the prest Sadoc & the prophet Nathan, and Benaia the sonne of Joiada.

And whā they came in before the kyng,

the kyng sayde vnto them: Take your lordes seruantes with you, and set my sonne Salomon vpon my Mule, and cary him downe to Gihon: and let Sadoc the prest and the prophet Nathan, and anoynte him there to be kyng ouer Israel, and blowe the trompe, and saye: God saue kyng Salomon, and go ye vp after him: and whā he cometh, he shal sitt vpon my seate, and be kyng in my steade: for I haue ordeyned him to be pryncce ouer Israel and Juda. Then answered Benaia the sonne of Joiada vnto the kyng, & sayde: Amen. The LORDE God of my lorde the kyng saye thus also. As the LORDE hath bene with my lorde the kyng, so be he with Salomon also, that his seate maye be greater then the seate of my lorde kyng David.

Then wente they downe, the prest Sadoc and the prophet Nathan, and Benaia the sonne of Joiada, and the Chierchians, & plethians, & set Salomon vpon kyng Davids Mule, & broughte him to Gihon. And Sadoc the prest toke the oyle horne out of the Tabernacle, and anoynted Salomon. And they blew the trompe: And all the people sayde: God saue kyng Salomon.

And all the people wente vp after him, and the people pyped with pypes, and was very ioyfull, so that the earth range at the noyse of them. And Adonias herde it, and all they whom he had called, which were with him, and they had new eaten. And whā Joab herde the noyse of the trompe, he sayde: What meaneth this noyse of the cite and this busynes? But while he yet spake, behold, Jonathas the sonne of Abiathar the prest came.

And Adonias sayde: Come in, for thou art a valeant man, and bringest good tydings. Jonathas answered and sayde vnto Adonias: Alas, & lorde kyng David hath made Salomon kyng, and hath sent with him Sadoc the prest, and the prophet Nathan, and Benaia the sonne of Joiada, and the Chierchians and Plethians, and they haue set him vpon the kynges Mule: and Sadoc the prest with the prophet Nathan hath anoynted him kyng at Gihon, and from thence are they gone vp with ioye, that the cite range with all: that is the noyse that ye haue herde.

Salomon also sitteth vpon the kynges seate, and the kynges seruantes are gone in to wish good lucke vnto oure lorde kyng David, and haue sayde: Thy God make Salomon a better name then thy name is, and make his seate greater then thy seate. And they haue wysshed the kyng good lucke vpon the bed. Moreover the kyng hath sayde thus: Prayed be the LORDE God of Israel, which this daye hath made one to sitt vpon my seate, that myne eyes haue sene it.

mon a better name then thy name is, and make his seate greater then thy seate. And they haue wysshed the kyng good lucke vpon the bed. Moreover the kyng hath sayde thus: Prayed be the LORDE God of Israel, which this daye hath made one to sitt vpon my seate, that myne eyes haue sene it.

Then were they afrayed, and gatt them vp all that were called by Adonias, and so they departed euery man his waye. But Adonias was afrayed of Salomon, and gat him vp, and wrote his waye, & toke holde of the hornes of the altare. And it was tolde Salomon: beholde, Adonias feareth kyng Salomon, & beholde, he taketh holde of the hornes of the altare, & sayeth: Let kyng Salomon sweare vnto me this daye, that he shall not slaye his seruant with the swerde. Salomon sayde: If he wil be an honest man, there shall not one heer fall from him vpon the earth: but yf there be euell founde in him, he shall dye. And kyng Salomon sent, and caused him to be fetched from the altare. And whā he came, he fell downe before kyng Salomon. But Salomon sayde vnto him: Go thy waye in to thy house.

Now whā the tyme came that David shoulde dye, he commaunded Salomon his sonne, and sayde: I go the waye of all the worlde, be thou stronge therfore, and shewe thyselfe a man, and kepe the watch of the LORDE thy God, that thou walke in his wayes, and holde his ordinances, his commaundementes, his lawes, and his testimonies, as it is writen in the lawe of Moses, that thou mayest be wise in all that thou doest, and whither so euer thou turnest the: that the LORDE maye raise vp his worde, which he hath spokē ouer me, and saide: If thy children kepe their waye and walke before me faithfully and truly and with all their hert and with all their soule, they shal there neuer fayle the a man vpon the seate of Israel.

Thou knowest well also what Joab the sonne of Zeruia hath done vnto me, what he dyd vnto the two chiefe captaynes of Israel, Abner the sonne of Ner, and Amasa the sonne of Jether, whom he slewe and shed the bloude of warre whā it was peace, & put the bloude of warre vpon his girdel & was aboute his loynes, and in his shues that were vpon his fete: Do thou bringe not his graye heer downe to the graue in peace.

And to the childien of Barsyllai the Gileadite, thou shalt shewe mercy, that they maye eat at thy table. For so iointed they the selues vnto me, when I fled before thy brother Absalom. And beholde, thou hast with the * Semei the sonne of Gera the sonne of Jemini of Bahurim, which cursed me with very bytter and shamefull cursynges, what tyme as I wente to Mahanaim. Yet came he downe to mete me at Jordan, where I swaie vnto him by the LORDE, and sayde: I wyll not slaye the with the swerde. But suffre not thou him to be vngiltye, for thou art a wyse man, and shalt wel knowe what thou oughtest to do vnto him, that thou mayest brynge his graye heer downe to the graue with bloude.

* So David slepte with his fathers, and was buried in the cite of David. The tyme that David was kynge ouer Israel, is fortie years. Seven yeares was he kynge at Hebrō and thrie and thirtie yeare at Jerusalem. And Salomon sat vpon the seate of David his father, and his kyngdome was made very sure.

But Adonias the sonne of Hagith came into Bethseba Salomons mother. And she sayde: Is thy commynge peaceable? He spake: Yee, and sayde: I haue somwhat to saye to the. She sayde: Saye on. He sayde: Thou knowest that the kyngdome was myne, and that all Israel had sett them selues vpon me, that I shulde be kynge, but now is the kyngdome turned, and become my brothers: for he hath it of the LORDE.

Now desyre I one petition of the, Make not my face ashamed. She sayde vnto him: Saye on. He sayde: Speake vnto kynge Salomon (for he shall not shame thy face) that he maye geue me Abisag to wyfe. Bethseba sayde: Wel, I wil speake to the kynge for the.

And Bethseba came in to kynge Salomon to speake with him. And the kynge stode vp, and wente to mete her, and worshipped her, and sat him downe vpon his seate. And there was a chayre set for the kynges mother, so that she sat at his righte hande. And she sayde: One petition desyre I of the make not my face ashamed. The kynge sayde: Are O my mother, I wyll not shame thy face. She saide: Let Abisag of Sunem be geuen thy brother Adonias to wyfe.

Then answered kynge Salomon, and saide vnto his mother: Why desyrest thou Abisag of Sunem for Adonias? Are the kyngdome or him also, for he is my greater brother, * and hath Abiathar the prest, and Joab the sonne of JeruJa. And the kynge swaie by the LORDE, and sayde: God be this and that vnto me, Adonias shall haue spoken this agaynst his lyfe. And now as truly as the LORDE lyueth which hath ordeyned me, and made me to sit vpon the seate of my father David, and hath made me a house (* acordinge as he sayde) this daye shal Adonias dye.

And kynge Salomon sent thither by Benaia the sonne of Joiada, which smote him that he dyed. And to the prest Abiathar sayde kynge: Go thy waye vnto Anathoth thy londe, for thou art a man of deeth. Neuerthelesse I wyll not slaye the this daye, for thou hast borne the Arke of the LORDE God before my father David, and hast suffered also where my father suffered.

Thus Salomon put forth Abiathar, that he must nomore be the prest of the LORDE, that the worde of the LORDE mighte be fulfilled, * which he spake ouer the house of Eli at Silo.

And this rumoure came before Joab: for Joab cleued vnto Adonias, and not vnto Salomon. Then fled Joab in to the Tabernacle of the LORDE, and toke holde of the hornes of the altare. And it was tolde kynge Salomon, that Joab was fled in to the Tabernacle of the LORDE, and beholde, he stondeth at the altare.

Then sent Salomon Benaia the sonne of Joiada, and sayde: Go slaye him. And when Benaia came to the Tabernacle of the LORDE, he sayde vnto him: Thus sayeth the kynge: Come forth. He sayde: No, I wyll dye here. And Benaia tolde this vnto the kynge agayne, and sayde: Thus hath Joab spoken, and thus hath he answered me.

The kynge saide vnto him: Do as he hath spoken, and slaye him, and bury him, that thou mayest put fro me and my fathers house the bloude which Joab hath shed with out a cause, and that the LORDE maye recompence him his bloude vpon his heade, because he smote two men, which were more righteous and better then he, and slewe them with y swerde that my father David knewe not of: namely, Abner y sonne of Neri the chiefe captaine ouer Israel, and Amasa the sonne of Jether y chiefe captaine ouer Iuda y their bloude maye be recompensed vpon y heade of Joab and of his seide for ever: but David and his seide, his house and his seate

haue peace for evermore of the LORDE.

And Benaia the sonne of Joiada wente vp, and smote him, and slewe him: and he was buried in his house in the wyldernes. And y kynge set Benaia y sonne of Joiada in his steade ouer the hoost. And Sadoc y prest byd the kynge set in the steade of Abiathar.

And the kynge sent, and caused for to call Semei, and sayde vnto him: Buylde the an house at Jerusalem, and dwell there, and departe not from thence, nether hither ner thither. In what daye so euer thou departest forth, and goest ouer y broke Cedron, be thou sure, that thou shalt dye the deeth: thy bloude be vpon thy heade. Semei sayde vnto the kynge: This is a good meanyng, as my lord the kynge hath sayde, so shal thy seruauunt do. So Semei dwelt at Jerusalem a longe season. But after thrie yeare it fortuneth that two seruantes ranne awaye from Semei vnto Achis the sonne of Maacha kynge of Gath.

And it was tolde Semei: beholde, thy seruantes are at Gath. Then Semei gat him vp, and sadled his asse, and wete vnto Gath to Achis, for to seke his seruantes. And when he came thither, he broughte his seruantes from Gath.

And it was tolde Salomon, that Semei wente from Jerusalem vnto Gath, and was come agayne. Then sent the kynge, and caused for to call Semei, and sayde vnto him: Swaie not I to the by the LORDE, and assured the, and sayde: Loke what daye so euer thou departest out and goest hither or thither, be sure that thou shalt dye the death? And thou saydest vnto me: I haue herde a good meanyng. Why hast thou not kepte the then acordinge to the ooth of the LORDE, and commaundement that I commaunded the?

And the kynge sayde vnto Semei: Thou remembrest all y wickednes, which thy hert knoweth * that thou dydest vnto my father David. The LORDE hath recompenced y thy wickednes vpon thy heade. And kynge Salomon is blessed, and the seate of David shalbe stablished before y LORDE for ever. And the kynge commaunded Benaia y sonne of Joiada, which wente forth, and smote him that he dyed. And the kyngdome was stablished by Salomons hande.

house, and the LORDES house, and the walles rounde aboute Jerusalem. But the people offred yet vpon the hye places: for as yet there was no house buylded vnto the name of the LORDE vnto that tyme. But Salomon loued the LORDE, and walked after the ordinaunces of David his father: excepte onely that he offred and brent incense vpon the hye places.

* And the kynge wente vnto Gibeon, to do sacrifice there: for that was a goodly hye place. And Salomon offred a thousande burnt offerynges vpon the same altare. And the LORDE appeared vnto Salomon at Gibeon in a dreame of the nighte, and God sayde: Are what I shal geue y. Salomon saide: Thou hast done greate mercy vnto my father David thy seruauunt. Like as he walked before the in faithfulness and righteousness, and in a true hert with the, and this greate mercy hast thou layed vp for him, and geuen him a sonne to sit vpon his seate, as it is now come to passe.

* Now LORDE my God, thou hast made thy seruauunt kynge in my father Davids steade: As for me, I am but a small yonge man, knowynge nether my outgoynge ner ingoynge. And thy seruauunt is amonge the people whom thou hast chosen: which is so greate, that no man can nombrer them ner descrybe them for multitude. Geue thy seruauunt therfore an obedient hert, that he maye iudge thy people, and vnderstonde what is good and bad: for who is able to iudge this thy mightie people?

This pleased the LORDE well, that Salomon axed soch a petition. And God sayde vnto him: For so moch as thou axest this, and desyrest not longe lyfe, nether riches, nether y soules of thine enemies, but vnderstondinge to heare iudgment, beholde, therfore haue I done acordinge to thy wordes. * Beholde, I haue geuen the an hert of wysdomme and vnderstondynge, so that soch one as thou hast not bene before the, nether shall ryse vp after the.

Yee and that thou hast not prayed for, haue I geuen the: also, namely, ryches, and honoure, so that amonge the kynges in y tyme there is not soch one as thou. And yf thou wilt walke in my wayes, so that thou kepe myne ordinaunces and lawes, as David thy father hath walked, then wyll I geue the a longe lyfe.

And when Salomon awaked, beholde, it was a dreame, and he came to Jerusalem, and stode before the Arke of the LORDES covenant: and offred burnt offeringes, and health offeringes, and made a greate feast vnto his seruantes.

At the same tyme came there two harlots vnto the kynge, and stode before him. And the one woman sayde: Oh my lord, I and this woman dwelt in one house, and I was deliuered of a childe in the house with her: on the thirde daye after that I was deliuered, she was deliuered of a childe also. And we were together, so that there was no stranger in the house, but we two: and this woman's sonne died in the nighte (for she smothered him in the slepe) and she rose vp in the nighte, and toke my sonne from my syde (where thy hand-mayde slepte,) and layed it in hir arme, and hir deed sonne layed she in myne arme. And whan I rose vp in the mornynge to geue my sonne sucke, beholde, he was deed. But in the mornynge I looked well, and beholde, it was not my sonne, whom I had borne.

D The other woman sayde: Not so, my sonne lyueth, and thy sonne is deed. But she sayde: Not so, thy sonne is deed, and my sonne liueth. And thus spake they before the kynge. And the kynge sayde: This woman saith: my sonne lyueth and thy sonne is deed: Yonder woman sayeth: Not so, thy sonne is deed, and my sonne lyueth. And the kynge saide: Fetch me a swerde. And whan the swerde was brought before the kynge, the kynge sayde: Parte the lyuynge childe in two partes, and geue this woman the one halfe, and yonder woman the other halfe.

Then sayde the woman whose sonne lyued, vnto the kynge: (for hir motherly hert was kyndled with pite over hir sonne) Oh my lord, geue hir the childe alyue, and kyll it not. But the other sayde: Let it nether be myne ner thine, but let it be parted. Then answered the kynge, and sayde: Geue this woman the lyuynge childe, and slaye it not, for she is his mother. And all Israel herde of this iudgment that the kynge had geuen: and they feared the kynge, for they sawe that the wysdome of God was in him to kepe iudgment.

frende: Abisar was steward: Adoniram the sonne of Abda was rent gatherer.

And Salomon had twelue officers ouer all Israel, which made prouision of fode for the kynge and his house: One had a month longe in the yere to make prouision: The sonne of Hur vpon mount Ephraim. The sonne of Deber at Macaz, and at Saalbaim, and at Bethsames, and at Elon, and Beth Zani. The sonne of Zased at Aruboth, and had therto Socho and all the londe of Zepher. The sonne of Abinadab all the lordshippes at Dor: and had Taphat Salomons daughter to wife. Baena the sonne of Abilud at Thachnach, and at Magiddo, and ouer all Beth Sean, which lyeth besyde Zarthana vnder Ierusalem from Beth Sean vnto the playne of Meholo, tyll the other syde of Jakmeam. The sonne of Geber at Ramoth in Gilead: he had the townes of Jair the sonne of Manasse in Gilead, and had the coastes of Argob which lyeth in Basan, euen thre score greate walled cities, and with brasen barres. Abinadab the sonne of Jodo at Mahanaim. Abimaas in Nephtali: and he also toke Basmath Salomons daughter to wife. Baena the sonne of Husai in Asser and at Aloth. Josaphat the sonne of Paruba in Isachar. Semei the sonne of Ela in Ben Jamin. Geber the sonne of Vri in the londe of Gilead, in the londe of Sihon kynge of the Amontes, and of Og the kynge in Basan. One officer was in the same londe. As for Juda and Israel, they were in nombre as the sonde of the see, and ate and dronke, and were mery. Thus was Salomon lord ouer all the kyngdomes (from the water of the londe of the Philistynes, vnto the border of Egipte) which brought him gytes, and serued him as longe as he lyued.

And Salomon had daylie to his vytayles thirtie quarters of fyne meel, thre score quarters of oother meel, ten fat oren, and twety small catell, and an hundred shepe, besyde hartes and Koes, and wilde goates, and fat capons, and foules. For he had the lordshippes of all the londe on this syde the water, fro Tiphsa vnto Gasa, and ouer all the kyngdomes on this syde the water: and had peace of all his subiectes rounde aboute, so that Juda and Israel dwelt safe, every one vnder his vyne, and vnder his figge tre, from Dan vnto Bersaba, as longe as Salomon lyued.

And Salomon had fortye thousande catt-horses, and twelue thousande horsmen. And the officers prouyded the kynge Salomon with vytayles: and what soeuer belonged to the kynges table, that brought every man in his moneth, and myssed not: Barlye also and strawe for the horses and coursers, and brought them vnto the place where the kynge was, every one after his charge.

And God gaue Salomon maruelous greate wysdome and vnderstandinge, and a large hert, as the sonde that lyeth vpon the See shore: so that the wysdome of Salomon was greater then the wysdome of all the children toward the south and of all the Egipcians. And he was wyser then all men, yee wyser then Ethan the Etahite, Heman, Chalcal, and Darda, the sonnes of Mahol: and had a greate name amonge all the heythe on every syde. And he spake thre thousande proverbes, and his songes were a thousand and fyne. And he spake of trees, from the Cedar of Libanus vnto the Ilope, and groweth out of the wall: he talked also of catell, of foules, of wormes, of ffishes. And there came of all nacions to heare the wysdome of Salomon, and there came of all the kynges of the earth, which had herde of his wysdome.

The V. Chapter.

Ald Hiram the kynge of Tyre sent his seruantes vnto Salomon, for he had herde, that they had annoynted him kynge in his fathers steade: For Hiram loned Dauid as longe as he lyued. And Salomon sent vnto Hiram, sayenge: Thou knowest that my father might not buylde an house vnto the name of the LORDE his God, because of the warre that was aboute him, vntill the LORDE deliuered them vnder the soles of his fete: But now hath the LORDE my God geuen me rest on every syde, so that there is no aduersary ner enell hynderaunce: Beholde, I am therfore aduysed to buylde an house vnto the name of the LORDE my God, acordinge as the LORDE spake vnto Dauid my father, and sayde: Thy sonne, whom I shal set vpon thy seate in thy steade, shal buylde an house vnto my name. Commaunde therfore that they hewe me downe Ceders out of Libanus, and that thy seruantes be with my seruantes, and the reward of thy seruantes wyll I geue the, what soeuer thou shalt are: for thou knowest, that with vs there is no man which can hewe tymber as the Sidonians.

D Whan Hiram herde the wordes of Salomon, he was very glad, and sayde: Praised be the LORDE this daye, which hath geuen Dauid a wyse sonne ouer this greate people. And Hiram sent vnto Salomon, sayenge: I haue herde what thou hast sent vnto me: I wyll do acordinge vnto all thy desyre with Ceders and pyne trees. My seruantes shall brynge them downe from Libanus vnto the See, and I royl make them to flore vpon the See, vnto the place which thou shalt shewe me, and there wyll I cause them to aryue, and thou shalt make the to be fetchted. But thou shalt fulfyll my desyre also, and geue fode vnto my householde folkes. So Hiram gaue Salomon Ceders and pyne trees acordinge to all his desyre. But Salomon gaue Hiram twentye thousande quarters of wheate to eate for his householde, and twety quarters of beaten oyle. This gaue Salomon yearly vnto Hiram.

And the LORDE gaue Salomon wysdome, acordinge as he had sayde vnto him, and there was peace betwene Hiram and Salomon, and they made a conenante both together. And Salomon made an outchosinge (of workmen) thorow out all Israel. And the outchosinge was thirtie thousande men, and he sent the to mount Libanus every two monethes ten thousande, so that they were one moneth vpon Libanus, and two monethes at home. And Adoniram was ouer the outchosinge.

And Salomon had thre score thousande and ten that bare burthens, and foure score thousande that hewed tymber vpon the mount, besyde Salomons chiefe officers, which were ordeyned ouer the worke: namely thre thousande and thre hundred, which ruled the people that laboured there in the worke. And the kynge commaunded, that they shulde breake out greate and costly stones, namely freestone, for the foundacion of the house. And Salomons masons, and Hirams, and they that were in those coastes, hewed out and prepared tymber and stones to the buyldinge of the house.

The VI. Chapter.

In the foure hundred and foure score yere after the departinge of the children of Israel out of the londe of Egipte, in the fourth yere of the raigne of Salomon ouer Israel, in the moneth Sif (which is the seconde moneth) was the house buylde vnto the LORDE. This house that kynge Salomon buylde vnto the LORDE, was thre score cubytes longe, twenty cubytes brode, and thirtie cubytes hye. And he buylde a porche before the temple of twenty cubytes longe after the bredth of the house, and ten cubytes brode before the house. And in the house he made wyndowes, which might be opened and shut with lyddes.

se he buylded a compase, so þæt it wente both aboute the temple and the quere, and made his outwarde wall rounde aboute. The nether most stacion was fyue cubytes wyde, and þæt myddest fyue cubytes wyde, and the thirde seuē cubytes wyde. For he layed balkes rounde aboute the house, that they touched not þæt wall of the house.

B And whan þæt house was buylded, it was buylded of whole and outbroken stones, so þæt there was herde nether hammer ner axe, ner eny other instrument of yron, whan the house was a buyldinge.

But on the righte syde of the myddes of the house there was a dore, so þæt they might go vp to the myddest stacion by a turne grese, and from the myddest stacion vnto þæt thirde. Thus buylded he the house, and fynished it, and syled þæt house both aboue and by the walles with Cedar wodd. He buylded a galery also aboue vpon the whole house fyue cubytes hie, and couered the house with Cedar tymber.

And the worde of the LORDE came vnto Salomon, and sayde: Let this be the house þæt thou buyldest. If thou shalt walke in myne ordinaunces, and do acordyng to my lawes, and kepe all my comaundementes, to walke therein, then wyl I stablysshe my worde with þæt, (as I sayde vnto Dauid thy father) and wyl dwell amonge the childre of Israel, and wil not forsake my people of Israel.

Re. 7. b

C Thus Salomon buylded the house, and fynished it, and buylded the walles on the insyde with Cedar tymber, from the grounde of þæt house vnto the rose, and syled it with tymber on the insyde, and ouerlayed the floore of þæt house with bordes of Pyne tre.

And behynde in the house he buylded a wall of Cedar tymber twentye cubytes longe, from the floore vnto the rose. And there on the insyde buylded he the quere for the most holy. But the house of the temple before the quere was fortye cubytes longe: on the insyde was the whole house of Cedar with throwne knoppes and floures, so that there was no stone sene. As for the quere, he prepared it on the insyde of the house, that the Ark of the couenant of the LORDE might be set therein. And before the quere (which was twentye cubytes longe, twentye cubytes brode, and twentye cubytes hie, and ouerlayed with pure golde) he syled the altare with Cedar.

D And Salomon ouerlayed the house on þæt insyde with pure golde, and shot barres of golde before the quere, which he had ouerlayed with golde, so that þæt whole house was layed ouer with golde. And all the altare also before þæt quere ouerlayed he with golde.

* He made also in the quere two Cherubins ten cubytes hie of Olyue tre. One wyng of ether of the Cherubs had fyue cubytes, so that from the edge of his one wyng to the edge of his other wyng there were ten cubytes. Euen so had the other Cherub ten cubytes also, and both the Cherubs were of one measure and of one quantitie so þæt ether Cherub was ten cubytes hie. And he put the Cherubins within in the house. And the Cherubins spred forth their wynges, so that the wyng of the one touched the one wall, and the other Cherub wyng touched the other wall. But in the myddes of þæt house the one wyng touched another. And he ouerlayed the Cherubins with golde.

And on all the walles of the house rounde aboute, he caused to make carued worke, with carued Cherubins, palme trees, and floures. And the pauement of the house ouerlayed he also with golde plates. And at the intrance of the quere he made two dores of olyue tre with fyue squared postes, and caused carued worke to be made therof with Cherubins, palme trees and floures, and ouerlayed them with plates of golde. So made he also at the intrance of the temple, four squared postes of Olyue tre, and two dores of Pyne tre (so that ether dore had two sydes doores one hanginge to another) and made carued worke therof, palme trees and floures, right as it was appoynted.

And he buylded a court also within þæt thre rowes of fre stone, and with one rowe of playne Cedar tymber.

In the fourth yere in the moneth Siff, was the foundation of the LORDES house layed: and in the eleuenth yere in the moneth Bul (that is the eight moneth) was the house fynished as it shulde be, so that they were seven yere a buyldinge of it.

The viij. Chapter.

But Salomon was a buyldinge his awne house thirtene yere, and fynished it, namely, he buylded an house of the wodd of Libanus, an hundred cubytes longe, fiftye cubytes wyde, and thirtie cubytes hie, four squared with rowes of pilers, and carued Ceders. And the rose aboue syled he also with Cedar wodd vpon the fyue and four pilers, for one rowe had fyfene pilers, so that there stode euer thre pilers one right over agaynst another: so that enery space betwixte the pilers was one over agaynst another four squared with the pilers.

The iij. boke of the kynges.

And he made a porche with pilers which was fiftye cubytes longe, and thirtie cubytes brode, and yet a porche before it with pilers and a greate poste. He made a porche also vnto þæt kynges seate (wherin þæt iudgment was kepte) and made it to be the porche of iudgment, and syled it with Cedar from the pauement vnto the pauement agayne, and his owne house wherin he dwelt, in þæt back court made betwene þæt house and the porche like the other. And like vnto the porche made he a house for Pharaos daughter, whom Salomon had taken to wife.

All these were costly stone hewen after þæt measure, cut with sawes on euery syde, from the grounde vnto the rose: and without the greate court also. As for the foundations, they were costly and greate stones, ten and eighte cubytes greate: and costly fre stones theron acordyng to þæt measure, and Ceders. But the greate court rounde aboute had thre rowes of fre stone, and one rowe of playne Ceders: Euen so also the court by þæt house of the LORDE within, and the porch by the house.

And kyng Salomon sent to fetch one Hiram of Tyre a wedowes sonne, of the trybe of Nephthali, and his father had bene a man of Tyre, which was a connyng man in metall, full of wysdome, vnderstandyng and knowlege to worke all maner of metall worke. Whan he came to kyng Salomon, he made all his worke, and made two brasen pilers, ether of them eightene cubytes hie: and a threde of xij. cubytes was the measure aboute both þæt pilers: and he made two knoppes of brasse molten, to set aboue vpon the pilers: and euery knoppe was fyue cubytes hie: and on euery knoppe aboue vpon þæt pilers seuē wyrtchen ropes like cheynes. And vpon euery knoppe he made two rowes of pomgranates rounde aboute on one rope, wherewith þæt knoppe was couered. And the knoppes were like roses before þæt porche four cubytes greate. And the pomgranates in the rowes rounde aboute were two hundred aboue and beneth vpon the rope, which were rounde aboute the thiknes of the knoppe, on euery knoppe vpon both the pilers. And set vp the pilers before the porche of the temple. And that which he set on the right hande, called he Jachin: and that which he set on the lefte hande, called he Boas. And so stode it aboue vpon the pilers enen like roses. Thus was the worke of þæt pilers fynished.

D And he made a molten lauer ten cubytes wyde from the one syde to the other rounde aboute, and fyue cubytes hie, and a threde of thirtie cubytes longe was þæt measure rounde aboute: and aboute the same lauer that was then cubytes wyde, there wente knoppes on the edge therof rounde aboute the lauer. Two rowes were there of the knoppes molten with the lauer.

And it stode vpon twolue bullockes, wherof thre were turned towarde the north, thre towarde the west, thre towarde the south, and thre towarde the east, and the lauer aboue theron, so that all their hynder partes were within vnder the lauer: wherof the thiknesse was an handbreth: and the edge of it was like the edge of a cuppe, and as a floured rose, and it conteyned two thousande Battes.

And he made ten brasen seates, euery one foure cubytes longe and brode, and thre cubytes hie. The seate was made so, that it had sydes betwene the ledges. And on the sydes betwene the ledges there were lyons, bullockes and Cherubins. And on þæt ledges which were aboue and beneth the lyons and bullockes, were the sydes made so, that they were set downwardes. And euery stole had foure brasen wheles with brasen axeltrees. And vpon the foure corners there were proppes molten, euery one over agaynst another, vnder set vnto the kettell.

And the soket vpon the stole was a cubyte hie and rounde, a cubyte and an halfe wyde: and on the soket there were knoppes in foldes, which were foure squared and not rounde. The foure wheles stode beneth by the sydes, and the axeltrees of the wheles were harde on þæt seate. Euery whele was a cubyte and an halfe hie, and they were wheles like cart wheles. And their axeltrees, spokes, nales, and shaftes were all molten. And the foure proppes vpon the foure corners of euery seate were harde on the seate.

And on the soket aboue vpon the seate a cubyte and an halfe rounde aboute, there were ledges and sydes harde on the seate. And on the plat of the same sydes and ledges, he caused to carue Cherubins, lyons and palme trees, one by another rounde aboute theron. After this maner made he ten molten seates, one maner of measure and widenes was in all.

And he made ten copper kettels, so that one kettell conteyned fortye Battes, and was foure cubytes greate, and vpon euery seate was a kettell. And fyue seates set he on the righte syde of the house, and the other fyue on the lefte syde. But the lauer set he before on the righte hande towarde the south.

And Hiram made pottes also and shouels and basens, & so fynished he all the worke, that kynge Salomon caused to be made in the house of the LORDE: namely & two pilers, and the rounde knoppes aboue vpon the two pilers, and the two wythen ropes to cover the two rounde knoppes vpon the pilers. And the foure hundred pomgranates on the two wythen ropes, euer two rowes of pomgranates vnto every rope, to cover the two rounde knoppes vpon the pilers. And the ten seates, and ten kettels theron, and the lauer, and twelue bullockes vnder f lauer. And the pottes, shouels and basens. And all the ornaments which Hiram made vnto kynge Salomon for the house of the LORDE, were of pure metall. In the countre by Jordane, caused the kynges them to be molten in thicke earth, betwene Sucoth and Zarchan. And Salomon let all the apparell be vnweyed, because the metall was so moch.

Morouer Salomon made all the apperell that belonged vnto the house of the LORDE: namely a golden altare, a golden table that he shewbized laye on, fyue candelsstickes on the righte hande, and fyue candelsstickes on the lefte (before the quere) of pure golde, w floures, lampes and snoffers of golde, cherto flat peces, charges, basens, spones and censours of pure golde. And the hokes of & dores on the insyde of the house in the most holy, and in the doores of the house of the temple of the LORDE were of golde.

Thus all the worke that kynge Salomon made in & house of the LORDE, was fynished. And Salomon brought in that his father David had sanctified, of syluer and golde and ornaments, and layed it amonge the treasures of the house of the LORDE.

The VIII. Chapter.

When gathered kynge Salomon all & Elders in Israel together, all the rulers of the trybes and prynces of the fathers amonge the children of Israel, vnto Jerusalem, to brynge vp the Arke of the couenant of the LORDE, out of the cite of David, that is Sion. And there resorted vnto kynge Salomon all the men in Israel, at the feast in the moneth Ethanim, that is & seventh moneth. And whan all & Elders of Israel came, the prestes toke the Arke of the LORDE, and broughte it vp, and the Tabernacle of witness, and all the ornaments of the Sanctuary that were in the Tabernacle. This dyd the prestes and the Lewites.

The viij. Chap.

And kynge Salomon and all the congregation of Israel & were gathered vnto him, wente with him before the Arke, and offered shepe and bullockes, so many, that they coulde not be nombried ner tolde.

So the prestes broughte the Arke of the LORDES couenant vnto hir place, euen in to & Quere of the house in the most holy under & wynges of the Cherubins. For & Cherubins spied out their wynges in the place where the Arke stode, and covered the Arke and the stanes therof from aboue. And the stanes were so loge, that & knoppes of them were sene from the Sanctuary before & quere, but on the out syde were they not sene, and they were there vnto this daye.

And in the Arke there was nothinge, but onely the two tables of stone, which Moses had layed therein at Horeb, whan & LORDE made a couenant with the children of Israel, what tyme as they were departed out of the lande of Egypte.

But whan the prestes wente out of the Sanctuary, a cloude fylled the house of the LORDE, so & the prestes coulde not stonde & executethe office for the cloude: for the glory of the LORDE fylled the LORDES house. Then sayde Salomon: The LORDE sayde, that he wolde dwell in a darke cloude. I haue buylded an house, to be an habitation vnto theia seate, & thou mayest dwell there for euer. And & kynge turned his face, & blessed all the congregacion of Israel. And all the congregacion of Israel stode, & he sayde:

praysed be the LORDE God of Israel, which promised by his mouth vnto my father David, and by his hade hath fulfilled it, and sayde: Sence the daye & I broughte my people of Israel out of Egypte, haue I chosen no cite amonge all the trybes of Israel, to buylde me an house, that my name might be there. But David haue I chosen, to be ouer my people of Israel.

And in dede my father David was mynded to buylde an house vnto the name of the LORDE God of Israel: neuertheles the LORDE sayde vnto my father David: Where as thou wast mynded to buylde an house vnto my name, thou hast done well, that thou art so aduysed. Howbeit thou shalt not buylde the house, but thy sonne which shal come out of thy loynes, he shal buylde an house vnto my name. And the LORDE hath performed his worde that he spake: For I am come vp in my father Davids steade, and syt vpon the seate of Israel, as the LORDE sayde: and haue buylded an house vnto the name of the LORDE God of Israel: and there haue I ordeyned a place for the Arke, wherin is the LORDES couenant, which he made with oure fathers, whan he broughte them out of & lande of Egypte.

And Salomon stode before the altare of the LORDE in the presence of the whole congregacion of Israel, and helde out his handes towarde heauen, and sayde: O LORDE God of Israel, there is no god like the, neither aboue in heauen, ner beneth vpon earth, thou that kepest couenant and mercy for all thy seruantes that walke before & with all their hert, thou that hast kepte promes with my father David thy seruant: With thy mouth thou saydest it, and with thy hande hast thou fulfilled it, as it is come to passe this daye. Now LORDE God of Israel make good vnto my father David & seruant, that which thou hast promysed him, and sayde: Thou shalt not wante a man before me to syt vpon the seate of Israel, yf thy childre kepe their waye, so & they walke before me like as thou hast walked before me. Now thou God of Israel, let & worde be verified, which thou hast promysed vnto my father David thy seruant.

For thou testest thou & God dwelleth vpon earth: Beholde, the heauens and the heauens of all heauens maye not coneyne the: how shulde then this house do it, that I haue buylded? But turne the vnto the prayer of thy seruant, and to his supplicacion (O LORDE my God) that thou mayest heare the thankesgeuyng and prayer, which thy seruant maketh before the this daye, so that thine eyes be open ouer this house night and daye, euen ouer this place (wherof thou saydest: My name shall dwell there.) That thou mayest heare the prayer which thy seruant maketh in this place, & heare the intercession of & seruant & of thy people of Israel, which they shall make here in this place of thy habitation in heauen: and whan thou hearest it, be gracious.

Whan any man synneth agaynst his neyghboure, and taketh vpon him an oath wherewith he byndeth himselfe, and & oath cometh before thine altare in this house, then heareth thou in heauen, and se that thy seruantes haue right, to condemne the vngodly, and to brynge his waye vpon his owne head, and to iustifie the righteous, to geue him accordinge to his righteousnes.

Whan thy people of Israel is synneten before their enemies (whyle they haue synned agaynst the) and yf they turne vnto the

and knowlege thy name, & make their prayer and intercession vnto the in this house, the heare thou them in heauen, and be mercifull vnto the synne of thy people of Israel, and brynge them agayne in to the lande, & thou hast geuen vnto their fathers.

Whan the heauen is shut vp, so & it rayneth not (for so moch, as they haue synned agaynst the) and yf they make their prayer in this place, and knowlege thy name, and turne from their synnes whan thou troublest them, heare thou them then in heauen, and be mercifull vnto the synnes of thy seruantes, and of thy people of Israel, that thou mayest shewe them the good waye, wherin they shulde walke, and let it rayne vpon the lande that thou hast geuen thy people to inheritance.

Whan a deth, or pestilence, or drought, or burnynge, or greshopper or catirpiller, is in their lande, or whan his enemye layeth lege to his portes in the lande, or whan any other plague or disease happeneth, who so euer then maketh his prayer and petition, whether it be any other men or thy people of Israel (which the are aware of their plague) euery one in his hert, and spredeth out his handes vnto this house: Heare thou then in heauen in the seate where thou dwellest, and be mercifull, & se that thou geue euery one accordinge as he hath walked, like as thou knowest his hert (for thou onely knowest the hert of all the children of men) that they maye allwaye feare the, as long as they lyue in the lande, which thou hast geuen vnto oure fathers.

And whan any straunger, that is not of thy people of Israel, cometh out of a farre countre for thy names sake (for they shall heare of thy greates name, and of thy mightie hade, and of thy outstretched arme) and cometh to make his prayer in this house, heare thou him then in heauen, euen in the seate of thy dwellinge, and do all for the which that straunger calleth vpon the, that all the nations vpon earth maye knowe thy name, and that they maye feare the, as thy people of Israel do: and that they maye knowe, how that this house which I haue buylded, is named after thy name.

Whan thy people go forth to the battayll agaynst their enemyes, the waye that thou shalt sende them, and shall praye vnto the LORDE towarde the waye of the cite which thou hast chosen, and towarde the house that I haue buylded vnto thy name, heare thou then their prayer and petition

 * And when Salomon had ended all this prayer and petition before the LORDE, he rose vp from the altare of the LORDE, and lefte of from Enelynge and holdyng out of handes towarde heauen, and stode and blessed all the congregacion of Israel with loude voyce, and sayde: Praise be the LORDE which hath geuen rest vnto his people, accordinge as he sayde. There hath not one fayled of all his good wordes, which he spake by his seruauit Moses. The LORDE oure God be with vs, as he hath bene with oure fathers, and forsake vs not, nether withdrawe his hande from vs, but bowe oure hertes vnto him, that we maye walke in all his wayes, and kepe his commaundementes, ordinaunces and lawes, which he commaun-

ded oure fathers. And these wordes wherewith I haue made my petition before the LORDE, come nye vnto the LORDE oure God daye and nighte, that he maye execute iudgment for his seruauit and for his people of Israel, euery one at his tyme: that all nations vpon earth maye knowe, that the LORDE is God, & that there is none other. And let your hert be perfecte with the LORDE oure God, to walke in his statutes, and kepe his commaundementes, as it is this daye.

And the kyng with all Israel his people offred sacrifice before the LORDE. And Salomon offred deed offerynges (which he offred vnto the LORDE) two and twenty thousand oren, and an hundred & twenty thousand shepe. So the kyng and all the children of Israel dedicated the house of the LORDE. The same daye dyd the kyng dedicate the myddelmoust court, which was before the house of the LORDE: that he mighte there performe the burnt offerynges, meat offerynges, and the fat of the deed offerynges: for the brasen altare that stode before the LORDE, was to litle for the burnt offerynges, meate offerynges, and for the fat of the deed offerynges.

And at the same tyme made Salomon a solempne feast, and all Israel a greates congregacion with him, from the border of the math vnto the ryuer of Egipte, before the LORDE oure God, seven dayes, and yet seven dayes, that were fourtene daies. And on the eight daye he let the people go. And they blessed the kyng, and wente vnto their tentes reioysinge and with a mery hert, because of all the good that the LORDE had done vnto Dauid his seruauit, & to his people of Israel.

The IX. Chapter.

And when Salomon had fynished the buyldinge of the house of the LORDE, and the kynges house, and all that his desyre and pleasure was to make, & the LORDE appeared vnto him the seconde tyme, * euen as he appeared vnto him at Gibeon. And the LORDE sayde vnto him: I haue heard thy prayer and petition, that thou hast made before me, and haue sanctified this house which thou hast buylded, that I maye see my name there for ever: and myne eyes and my hert shall be there allwaye. And yf thou walke before me (as thy father Dauid walked) with a perfecte and a true hert, so that thou do all that I haue commaunded the, and kepe myne ordinaunces and lawes, then will I stablish the seate of thy kyngdome ouer Israel for ever, accordinge as I promysed thy father Dauid, and sayde: * Thou shalt not wante a man from the seate of Israel.

But yf ye turne back fro me, ye and your childre, and kepe not my commaundementes and ordinaunces which I haue layed before you, but go and serue other goddes, and worshipethem, then wyll I rote Israel out of the londe that I haue geuen them. And the house that I haue halowed vnto my name, wyll I put awaye fro my face. And Israel shall be come a byworde and sabell amonge all nations, and so shall this hye house: so that euery one that goeth by, shall be astonyed, and make an hyssyng, and saye: * Wherfore hath the LORDE done thus vnto this londe and to this house? Then shall it be answered: Because they forsoke the LORDE their God, (which brought their fathers out of the londe of Egipte) and haue receaued other goddes, and worshipped them, and serued them. Therfore hath the LORDE brought all this euill vpon them.

Now when the twentye yeares were ended, wherin Salomon buylded the two houses, the LORDES house and the kynges house, * where vnto Hiram the kyng of Tyre brought Salomons Cedar trees & Pyne trees, and golde after all his desyre, then gaue kyng Salomon vnto Hiram twentye cities in the countre of Galile. And Hiram departed from Tyre to vyset the cities which Salomon had geuen him, & they pleased him not, and he sayde: What maner of cities are the se my brother that thou hast geue me? And he called them the londe of Cabul vnto this daye. And Hiram sent vnto the kyng, sixe score hundred weight of Golde. And the same is the summe of the care, that kyng Salomon raysed to the buyldinge of the house of the LORDE, and his awne house, & Millo, and the walles of Jerusalem, and Hasor, and Megiddo, and Gaser.

For Pharaos kyng of Egipte came vp, and wane Gaser, & brent it with fyre, & slewe the Cananites that dwelt in the cite, & gaue it for a gifte vnto his daughter Salomons wyfe. So Salomon buylded Gaser, & the lower Bethoron, and Baelath and Thamar, in the wyldernes, in the londe, & all the cities of the come houses that Salomon had, and all the cities of the charrettes, & all the cities of the husmen, and what it pleased him to buylde at Jerusalem, in Libanus, & in euery countre of his domynion.

The x. Chap. Ho. lviij.

And all the remnaunt of the people of the Amorites, Hethites, Pheresites, Kenites and Jebusites, which were not of the children of Israel, their children which they lefte behynde them in the londe (whom the children of Israel coude not utterly destroye) those dyd Salomon make tributaries vnto this daye.

But of the children of Israel he made no bondmen, but let them be men of warre, and his seruantes, and prynces, and knightes, and ouer his charrettes and husmen. And the officers which were ouer Salomons buyssesse, were fyue hundred and fiftye, which ruled the people, and performed the worke.

And Pharaos daughter wente vp from the cite of Dauid, in to hir house * which he had buylded for her. * Then buylded he Millo likewise. And thietymes in the yeare dyd Salomon offre burnt offerynges and deed offerynges vpon the altare * that he had buylded vnto the LORDE, and burnt incense vpon it before the LORDE, and so was the house ended and fynished.

* And Salomon made shippes also at Ezion Geber, which lyeth by Eloth besyde the Reed See shore in the londe of the Edomites. And Hiram sent his seruantes by shippe, which were shipmen, and had experience of the See, with Salomons seruantes, and they came vnto Ophir, and fetched from thence one & twenty score hundred weight of golde, and brought it vnto Salomon.

The X. Chapter.

And when kyng Salomons came of the name of the LORDE came to the eares of the Quene of riche Arabia, she came to proue him with darke sentences. And she came to Jerusalem with a marvellous greates trayne, with camels which bare spyces, and moch golde, and precious stones. And when she came in to kyng Salomon, she spake vnto him all that was in hir hert. And Salomon tolde her euery thinge, and the kyng had nothinge in secrete, but he tolde it her. But when the Quene of riche Arabia sawe all the wysdome of Salomon, and the house that he had buylded, and the meates of his table, and the dwellinges of his seruantes, & the offyces of his ministers, and their garmentes, and his butlers and the burnt offerynges which he offred in the house of the LORDE, she wondred exceedingly, and coude no longer restrayne, but sayde vnto the kyng: It is true that I haue herde in my londe of thy behauiour and of thy wysdome. And I wolde not beleue it, tyll I came and sawe it with myne eyes: and beholde, the halfe hath not bene tolde me.

Thou hast more wysdome and good, the same is that I haue herde. Happye are thy people and thy seruautes, that allwaie stonde before the, and heare thy wysdome. Praise be the LORDE thy God, which had such a pleasure vnto the, that he set the vpon the seate of Israel: because he hath allwaie loued Israel, and hath set the to be kyng, that thou shuldest mantayne iustyce and equitye.

And she gaue the kyng fyre score hundred weighte of golde, and very moch spyce, and precious stones. There came neuer so moch spyce thither, as the Quene of riche Arabia gaue vnto kyng Salomon. And Hiram shippes, which caried golde out of Ophir, broughte maruelous moch costly tymber and precious stones from Ophir. And of that costly tymber the kyng caused to make pilers in the house of the LORDE, and in the kynges house, and harpes and psalteries for the Musicians. There came nemo re such costly tymber, nether was it sene vnto this daye. And kyng Salomon gaue the quene of riche Arabia, all that she desired and asked, besydes that which he gaue her of a fyre hande. And she returned, and departed in to hir lande with hir seruautes.

The golde that came to Salomon in one yere, was nyne and thyrty score hundred weighte, besydes that which came of chapmen, marchautes and Apotecaries, and of the nexte kynges, and of the mightie men in the londe. And kyng Salomon caused to make two hundred speares of beaten golde, fyre hundred peces of golde put he to euery speare: and thre hundred shyldes of the best golde, euen thre pounde of golde vpon euery shyld. And the kyng put them in the house of the wod of Libanus.

And the kyng made a greatesse of vnerie, and overlaid it with the most precious golde. And the seate had fyre stepes, and the heade of the seate was rounde behynde. And there were two postes to leane vpon on both the sydes of the seate, and two lyons stode vpon the leanyng postes, and twelue lyons stode vpon the fyre stepes on both the sydes. Soch one hath not bene made in eny kyngdome. All kyng Salomons drynke vessels were of golde, and all the vessels in the house of the wod of Libanus were of pure golde also: for syluer was not regarded in Salomons tyme. For the kynges Seeshippe, which sayled vpon the See with the shippe of ram, came once in thre yere, and broughte golde, syluer, vnerie, Apes, and pecoctes.

Thus was kyng Salomon greater in riches and wysdome, then all the kynges vpon earth: And all the worlde desired to se Salomon, that they mighte heare the wysdome which God gaue him in his hert. And they broughte him yearly euery man his present, vessels of syluer and golde, rayment and harness, spyces, horses and Mules. And Salomon broughte charettes and horsmen together, so that he had a thousande and foure hundred charettes, and twelue thousande horsmen: and those he put in the charet cities, and with the kyng at Jerusalem.

And the kyng broughte it to passe, that there was as moch syluer at Jerusalem as stones: and as many Ceders as there were wyde figge trees in the valleys. And Salomons horses were broughte out of Egypte, and from Keua: for the kynges marchautes fetcht them from Keua for money. And a charre came vpon out of Egypte for fyre hundred syluer, and an horse for an hundred and fyfetye. Thus were they broughte also vnto all the kynges of the Zethites and to the kynges of Siria by their handes.

The XL Chapter.

But kyng Salomon loued many outlandish women, Pharaes daughter, and women of Moab, of Ammon, of Edom, of Sidon, and of Zeth, euen of the seynacions, that the LORDE spake of vnto the children of Israel: So not ye vnto them, and let not them come vnto you: they shal surely bowe youre hertes after their goddes: Vnto these dyd Salomon encline with affection. And he had seven hundred women to wyues, and thre hundred concubynes, and his wyues turned his hert asyde. And when he was now olde, his wyues bowed his hert after straunge goddes, so that his hert was not whole with the LORDE his God, as was the hert of Dauid his father.

So Salomon walked after Astaroth the god of the Sidonians, and after Malcom the abhominacion of the Ammonites. And Salomon dyd that which displeased the LORDE, and folowed not the LORDE to the vttermost as dyd his father Dauid. The bylde of Salomon an hie place vnto Chamos the abhominacion of Moabites (vpon the mount that lyeth before Jerusalem) and vnto Moloch the Abhominacion of the Ammonites.

Thus dyd Salomon for all his outlandish wyues, which brennt incense, and offred vnto their goddes. But the LORDE was wroth at Salomon, because his hert was turned asyde from the LORDE God of Israel, which had two tymes appeared vnto him, and commaunded him, that he shulde not walke after other goddes: and yet kepte he not that the LORDE commaunded him. Therefore sayde the LORDE vnto Salomon: For so moch as this is done with the, and hast not kepte my couenaunt and myne ordinaunces, which I commaunded the, therefore wyll I also plucke thy kyngdome from the, and geue it vnto thy seruauant: Neuertheles in thy tyme wyll I not do it, for thy father Dauids sake, but from the hande of thy sonne wyll I plucke it. Howbeit I wyll not plucke thy kyngdome cleane awaye. One trybe wyll I geue vnto thy sonne, for Dauid my seruauant sake, and for Jerusalem sake which I haue chosen.

And the LORDE raysed vp an aduersary vnto Salomon, euen Hadad the Edomite of the kynges sede, which was in Edom. For when Dauid was in Edom, and Joab the chefe captaigne wente vp to bury the slayne, he smote all the males in Edom. (For Joab remayned there fyre monethes and all Israel, tyll he had retyed out all the males that were in Edom.) Then fled Hadad, and certayne men of Moabites with him, of his fathers seruauantes. As for Hadad, he was a yonge man.

And they gat them vp fro Madian, and came vnto Paran, and toke men with them out of Paran, and came in to Egypte vnto Pharaos the kyng of Egypte: which gaue him an house and certayne vytales appoynted, and gaue him a countre. And Adad founde greatesse fauoure in the sighte of Pharaos, so that he gaue him to wife euen the sister of his owne wife Thaphenes the Quene. And Thaphenes sister bare him Genubath his sonne, and Thaphenes nourished him vp in Pharaos house, in so moch that Genubath was in Pharaos house amonge Pharaos children.

Now when Hadad herde in Egypte, that Dauid was falle on slepe with his fathers, and that Joab the chefe captaigne was deed, he sayde vnto Pharaos: Let me go in to my countre. Pharaos sayde vnto him: What lackest thou with me, that thou wilt go in to thy countre? He sayde: Nothyng, but yet let me go.

God raysed him vp another aduersary also, one Rezon the sonne of El Jada, which fled from his lord Hadad the kyng of Zeba, and gathered men agaynst him, and was a captaigne of the men of warre when Dauid slewe them: and they wente vnto Damascus and dwelt there, and reigned at Damascus, and he was Israels aduersary as long as Salomon lyued. This is the harme that Hadad suffred: therefore had he euell will at Israel, and was kyng ouer Israel.

Moreover Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat an Ephraite Salomons seruauant (and his mothers name was Zeruga, a wedowe) lifte vp his hande also agaynst the kyng. And this is the cause wherfore he lifte vp his hande agaynst the kyng: When Salomon bylde the temple, he shut vp a gappe in the cite of Dauid his father. And Jeroboam was a man of armes. And when Salomon sawe that it was a mere yonge man, he set him ouer all the burthens of the house of Joseph.

But at the same tyme it fortuneth, that Jeroboam wente out from Jerusalem, and the prophet Abias of Silo founde him by the waye, and he had a new cloke vpon him, and they two were alone in the felde. And Abias toke holde of the new cloke that he had on, and rente the same in to twelue peces, and sayde vnto Jeroboam: Take thou ten peces vnto the.

For thus sayeth the LORDE God of Israel: Beholde, euen thus wyll I rente the kyngdome from the hande of Salomon, and wyll geue the ten trybes. One trybe shall he haue for my seruauant Dauids sake, and because of the cyte of Jerusalem, which I haue chosen out of all the trybes of Israel: for they haue forsaken me, and worshipped Astaroth the god of the Sidonians, Chamos the god of the Moabites, and Malcom the god of the children of Ammon, and haue not walked in my wayes, to fulfill my pleasure, myne ordinaunces, and lawes, as dyd Dauid his father.

Notwithstandyng I wyll not take the whole kyngdome from out of his hande, but wil make him a pryncce as longe as he lyueth for my seruauant Dauids sake, whom I dyd chose, which kepte my commaundementes and ordinaunces. From out of the hande of his sonne wyll I take the kyngdome, and wyll geue ten trybes vnto the, and one vnto his sonne, that Dauid my seruauant maye allwaie haue a lanterne before me in the cite of Jerusalem, which I haue chosen, that I maye set my name there. Therefore wyll I take the now, to raygne ouer all that thine hert desireth, and thou shalt be kyng ouer Israel. G If thou folowe now all that I shall commaunde the, and walke in my wayes, and fulfill my pleasure to kepe myne ordinaunces and commaundementes, as dyd my seruante Dauid, then wyll I be with the, and buylde the a sure house, as I buylde vnto Dauid, and wyl geue Israel vnto the and therewith wyll I subdue the sede of Dauid, but not for euermore. But Salomon soughte to kyll Jeroboam. Then Jeroboam gat him vp, and fled in to Egipte to Sisak the kyng of Egipte, and remayned in Egipte, tyll Salomon dyed.

What more there is to saye of Salomon, and all that he dyd, and his wysdome, it is wyrtten in the Cronicles of Salomon. The tyme that Salomon was kyng at Jerusalem ouer all Israel, is fortye yere. And Salomon fell on slepe with his fathers, and was buried in the cite of Dauid his father, and Roboam his sonne was kyng in his steade.

The XII. Chapter.

And Roboam wene vnto Sichem, for all Israel was come to Sichem to make him kyng. And whan Jeroboam & sonne of Nebat herde that, while he was yet in Egipte, (whither he was fled for Salomon) he came agayne out of Egipte. And they sent for him, and called him. And Jeroboam with all the congregacion of Israel came and spake to Roboam, and sayde: Thy father made oure yock to harde: therfore make thou now the harde bondage and the sore yock lighter, and we wyll submytte oure selues vnto the. He sayde vnto them: Go youre waye vnto the thirde daye, and then come to me agayne. And the people wente their waye.

And Roboam the kyng helde a counsell with the Elders that stode before Salomon his father whyle he lyued, & he sayde: What is youre counsell, that we maye geue this people an answer? They sayde vnto him: If thou do this, people a pleasure to daye, and folowe their mynde, and heare them, and geue them good wordes, then shal they be obedient vnto the as longe as thou liuest. Neuertheles he forsoke the counsell that & Elders had geuen him, and axed counsell at the yonge men which were growne vp with him, and stode before him.

B And he sayde vnto them: What is youre counsell that we maye answer this people which haue sayde vnto me: Make the yock lighter, that thy father hath layed vpon vs. And the yonge men that were growne vp with him, sayde vnto him: Where as the people haue sayde vnto the: Thy father hath made oure yock to sore, make thou it easer for vs. Thus shalt thou saye vnto them: My litle synger shall be thicker then my fathers loynes. Now, my father layed a sore yock vpon you, but I wyl yet laye more thereon: My father correcte you with scourges, but I wyl nourture you with scorpions.

So vpon the thirde daye came Jeroboam with all the people vnto Roboam, as & kyng had appoynted and saide, come to me agayne on the thirde daye. And the kyng gaue the people an harde rough answer, and forsoke the counsell that the Elders had geuen him, and talked with them after the counsell of the yonge men, and sayde: My father made youre yock sore, but I wyl make it yet sorer vpon you. My father correcte you with scourges, but I wyl nourture you with scorpions. Thus the kyng folowed not the peoples mynde, for he was turned so fro the LORDE, that he mighte stablish his worde: which he spake by Abias of Silo vnto Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat.

But whan all Israel sawe that the kyng wolde not heare them, the people gaue & kyng an answer, and sayde: What portion haue we then in David or inheritance in the sonne of Isai? Get the to thy tentes O Israel. Loke thou now to thy house thou David. So Israel wente vnto their tentes. As for Roboam, he raigned but ouer & children of Israel, which dwelt in the cities of Juda. And whan kyng Roboam sent thither Adoram the rentgatherer, all Israel stoned him to death. But kyng Roboam strenghted himselfe, and gat him vp in to a charet, to fle vnto Jerusalem. Thus departed Israel from the house of David vnto this daye.

Now whan all Israel herde, that Jeroboam was come agayne, they sent for to call him to the whole congregacion, and made him kyng ouer all Israel. And no man folowed the house of David, save onely the tribe of Juda. And whan Roboam came to Jerusalem, all the house of Juda and the tribe of Ben Jamin (even an hundred and threescore thousande chosen men of armes) gathered themselves together to fight agaynst & house of Israel, & to brynge the kyngdome agayne vnto Roboam & sonne of Salomon.

But the worde of God came to Samuyl the man of God, and sayde: Speake thou to Roboam the sonne of Salomon kyng of Juda, and to all & house of Juda and Ben Jamin, and to the other people, and saye: Thus sayeth the LORDE: Ye shall not go vp and fight agaynst youre brethien the children of Israel. Let every man go home agayne, for this is my dede. And they herked vnto the worde of the LORDE, and turned back, to go their waye, as the LORDE sayde. But Roboam buylde Sichem vpon mount Ephraim, and dwelt therein, and departed thence, and buylde Peniel.

Jeroboam thoughte in his hert: The kyngdome shall fall agayne now vnto the house of David, yf this people go vp to offere in the LORDES house at Jerusalem, and so shall the hert of this people turne to their lord Roboam kyng of Juda, and the shal they slaye me, and fall agayne to Roboam kyng of Juda. And the kyng helde a counsell, and made two golden calves, and sayde vnto them: It is to moch for you to go to Jerusalem: beholde, there is thy God (O Israel) which broughte & out of Egipte. And the one set he at Bethel, & the other in Dan. And this dede turned to synne, for the people wente before the one vnto Dan.

He made an house also in the hye places, and made prestes of the smallest in the people, which were not of the childre of Levi. And vpon the fifte daye of the eighte moneth he made an holy daye, like as the solempne feast in Juda, and offered vpon the altare. Thus dyd he at Bethel, in doyng sacrifice vnto the calves which he had made, and at Bethel he ordeyned the prestes of the hye places that he had made: and offred vpon the altare (which he had made) at Bethel, the fifte daye of the eighte moneth, which he inuented of his owne hert. And he made the children of Israel an holy daye, & wente vp to the altare to burne incense.

The XIII. Chapter.

And beholde, there came a man of God from Juda (thorow the worde of the LORDE) vnto Bethel, and Jeroboam stode by the altare to burne incense. And he cried agaynst the altare thorow the worde of the LORDE, and sayde: O altare, altare, thus sayeth the LORDE: Beholde, there shal be borne vnto & house of David a sonne, Josias by name: which on the shal offer the prestes of the hye places, that burne incense vpon the, and mens bones shal be burne on the. And he gaue a wonder token the same daye, and sayde: This is the token, that the LORDE hath spoken it, beholde, the altare shall ryue, and the ashes, that are thereon, shall be poured out.

But whan the kyng herde the worde of the man of God, that cried agaynst the altare at Bethel, he stretched out his hande by & altare, and sayde: Laye bondes on him. And his hande that he stretched out, wythered, and he coude not drawe it vnto him agayne. And & altare reue, and the ashes nere poured out from the altare, accordinge to the wonder token that the man of God had geuen by the worde of the LORDE.

And the kyng answered, and sayde vnto the man of God: O praye the face of the LORDE thy God, and make intercession for me, that my hande maie be restored vnto me agayne. Then prayed the man of God vnto the face of the LORDE. And the kynges hande was restored him agayne, and became as it was afore. And the kyng sayde vnto the man of God: Come home with me, and dyne, and I wyl geue the a rewarde.

But the man of God sayde vnto the kyng: If thou geuest me halfe thy house, I wil not come with the: for in this place wyll I nether eate bred, ner drynke water. For thus am I commaunded, and thus is it sayde vnto me by the worde of the LORDE: Thou shalt eate no bred, and drynke no water, neither retorne the waye that thou wentest.

And he departed another waye, and returned not agayne the waye that he came to Bethel. But at Bethel there dwelt an olde prophet vnto whos his sonnes came, & tolde him all the woikes & the man of God had done that daye at Bethel, & the wordes that he had spoken vnto the kyng. And their father sayde vnto them: Which waye is he gone? And his sonnes shewed him the waye that the man of God was gone: which came from Juda. He sayde vnto his sonnes: Saddell me the asse. And whan they had saddled him the asse, he rode thereon, and wente after the man of God, and founde him syttinge vnder an Oke tre, and sayde vnto him: Art thou the man of God that came from Juda? He sayde: Yee.

He sayde vnto him: Come home with me, and eate bred. He sayde: I maye not turne backe with the, and come with the. Neither wyll I eate bred, ner drynke water with the in this place: for it is spoken vnto me by the worde of the LORDE: Thou shalt nether eate bred there, ner yet drynke water, neither shalt thou go agayne by the waye which thou wentest. He sayde vnto him: I myselfe am a prophet as well as thou, and an angell hath spoken with me by y worde of the LORDE, and saide: Bring him agayne with the, that he maye eate bried, and drynke water. But he lyed vnto him, and broughte him agayne, so that he ate bried, and drank water in his house.

And whan they sat at the table, the worde of the LORDE came to the prophet that had broughte him agayne, and cryed vnto the man which was come fro Juda, and sayde: Thus sayeth the LORDE: Because thou hast bene disobedient vnto the mouth of y LORDE, and hast not kepte the commaundement that the LORDE thy God commaunded the, but hast turned backe, and hast eaten bried, and drynke water in y place, wher of he saide vnto the: Thou shalt nether eate bried ner drynke water, therefore shall not thy body come in to thy fathers graue.

And whan he had eaten bried and drynke the asse was sadled vnto the prophet whom he had broughte agayne. And whā he was gone, a lyon founde him by the waye, z slewe him, and his body was cast in y waye. And the asse stode by him, and the lyon stode by the body. And whā men wente by, they sawe the body cast in the waye, and the lyon stondynge besyde the body, and came and tolde it in the cite, where the olde prophet dwelt.

Whan the prophet which had broughte him agayne, herde that, he sayde: It is the man of God, that hath bene disobedient vnto the mouth of the LORDE, therefore hath y LORDE deliuered him vnto the Lyon, which hath rente him, and slayne him, acordynge to the worde that the LORDE spake vnto him. And he sayde vnto his sonnes: Saddell me the asse. And whan they had sadled it, he wente, and founde his body cast in the waie and the asse and the lyon stondynge beside y body. The lyon had eate nothynge of the body, nether had he tome the asse. Then toke the prophet the deed carcase of the man of God, and layed it vpo the asse, and broughte it agayne into the cite of the olde prophet, to mourne, and to burye him.

And he layed the carcase in his awne graue, and they mourned for him: Alas my brother. And whan they had buried him, he saide vnto his sonnes: Whan I dye, burye me in the graue where the mā of God is buried, and laye my bones besyde his bones. For it shall come to passe, that he cried (thorow the worde of the LORDE) against Bethel, and agaynst all y houses of the hye places, which are in the cities of Samaria.

Howbeit after this acte dyd not Jeroboā

turne from his euell waye, but was peruer- ted, and made prestes of the hye places, eni of the smallest of the people: Loke whom it pleased him, his handes he fylled, z he was prest of the hye places. And this turned to synne vnto the house of Jeroboā, to destroye him and to brynge him to naughte.

The XIII. Chapter.

At the same tyme was Abia the sonne of Jeroboam sicke, and Jeroboam saide vnto his wyfe: Get the vp, and disguise the, so that noman perceaue that thou art Jeroboams wyfe, and go vnto Silo: behold, there is the prophet Abias, * which promysed me y I shulde be kynge ouer this people: and take with the ten loanes of bried and cakes, and a cuppe with hony, z go to him, that he maye tell the how it shal go to the childe. And Jeroboams wyfe did so, and gat hir vp, and wente vnto Silo, and came in to the house of Abias. But Abias coulde not se, for his eyes were dynne for age. Nevertheless the LORDE sayde vnto Abias: Beholde, Jeroboams wyfe commeth, to ax a matter at the for hir sonne, for he is sicke. Speake thou therfore vnto her thus z thus: Now whan she came in, she shewed hirselfe straunge. But whan Abias herde the noyse of hir fete goynge in at the dore, he saide: Come in thou wyfe of Jeroboā. Why shewest thou thy selfe so straunge? I am sent vnto y an harde messaunger.

Go thy waye and tell Jeroboam: Thus sayeth y LORDE God of Israel: I haue exalted the from amonge the people, and set the to be prynce ouer my people of Israel, and haue rente the kyngdome from the house of Dauid, and geuen it the. But thou hast not bene as my seruauent Dauid, which kepte my commaundementes, and walked after me with all his hert, so that he did onely y thinge that was righte in my sighte: and thou hast done worse then all they that haue bene before the: thou hast gone thy waye and made the other goddes, and molten ymages, to prouoke me vnto wrath, and hast cast me behynde thy backe.

Beholde therfore, I wil brynge myffortune vpon the house of Jeroboam, and wylrote out from Jeroboam enē him that maketh water agaynst the wall, the presoner and forsaken in Israel: and the posterite of y house of Jeroboam wyl I swepe out, as donge is swepte out, tyll he be cleane broughte to naught. * He that dieth (of Jeroboam) in the cite, the dogges shal eate him vp. But him y dyeth in the felde, shall the foules of the aere eat vp, for the LORDE hath spoken it.

Get the vp therfore, and go home, z whan thy fete enter in to y cite, the childe shal dye. And all Israel shal bewaile him, and burye him. For he onely of Jeroboam shal come to the graue, because there is some good founde in him before the LORDE God of Israel, in Jeroboams house. * But the LORDE shal raise him vp a kynge, which shal rote out y house of Jeroboam in that daie. And what is it, y is now in hande all ready: And the LORDE shal smyte Israel, like as a rede is mowed in the water: z shal rote out Israel from this good londe, that he gaue vnto their fathers, z shal scatter them beyonde the water, because they haue made their groves to prouoke the LORDE vnto wrath. And Israel shall be geuen ouer because of the synne of Jeroboam, which hath synned him selfe, z made Israel to synne.

And Jeroboams wyfe gat her vp, wente hir waye, z came vnto Thirza. And whan she came vpo the thirsholde of the house, y childe dyed, z they buried him, z all Israel made lamentacion for him, * acordinge to y worde of the LORDE, which he spake by his seruauent Abia y prophet. * What more the reis to saye of Jeroboam, how he fought z raigned, beholde, it is wyrtten in the Cronicles of the kynes of Israel. The tyme that Jeroboam raigned, was two z twentye years. And he slepte with his fathers. And Naab his sonne was kynge in his steade.

Roboam y sonne of Salomon was kynge in Juda. * One and fortye yeare olde was Roboam whā he was made kynge, z seven tyme yeare raigned he at Jerusalem, in the cite y the LORDE had chosen out of all y tribes of Israel, to set his name there. His mothers name was Naema an Ammonitisse. And Juda dyd y which displeased the LORDE, z prouoked him to indignacion more the all y their fathers had done w their synnes which they dyd: for they likewise buylde them hye places, pilers, and groves vpo euery hye hill, and amonge all grene trees. The re were whoremogers also, z they dyd all y abhominacions of y heythē, whom y LORDE drewe out before the children of Israel.

But in y fift yeare of kynge Roboam wrote Sisack y kynge of Egipte vp agaynst Jerusalem, z toke the treasure out of y house of the LORDE, z out of the kynes house, z all that mighte be gotten, z toke all the shyldes of golde, * which Salomon caused to be made. In steade wherof y kynge Roboam caused for to make shyldes of stele, z commytted them vnder the handes of the chese foremen, which kepte the dore of the kynes house. And as oft as the kynge wente in to y house of the LORDE, the fore men bare them, and broughte them agayne in to the fore mens chamber.

What more there is to saye of Roboam, and all that he dyd, beholde, it is wyrtten in the Cronicles of the kynes of Juda. But betwene Roboam z Jeroboam there was warre as long as they lyued. And * Roboam slepte with his fathers, z was buried w his fathers in the cite of Dauid. And his mothers name was Naema an Ammonitisse. And his sonne Abia was kynge in his steade.

The XV. Chapter. At the eighteenth yeare of kynge Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat, was Abia kynge in Juda, and reigned thre years at Jerusalem. His mothers name was. * Maecha, the doughter of Abisalom, and he walked in all the synnes of his father, which he had done before him, and his hert was not perfecte with the LORDE his God, as was the hert of Dauid his father. * For because of Danids sake dyd the LORDE his God geue him a lanterne at Jerusalem, so y herayed his sonne after him, z manteyned him at Jerusalem, because Dauid dyd the thinge y was righte in y sighte of the LORDE, and departed not from all that he commaunded him as long as he lyued (sauynge in the matter with * Orias y Hethite). But there was warre betwene Roboam and Jeroboam, as long as he lyued.

What more there is to saye of Abia, and all that he dyd, beholde, it is wyrtten in the Cronicles of the kynes of Juda. There was warre also betwene Abia and Jeroboam. And Abia slepte with his fathers, and they buried him in the cite of Dauid. And Asa his sonne was kynge in his steade. * In y twentyeth yeare of kynge Jeroboam ouer Israel, was Asa kynge in Juda, and reigned one z fortye yeare at Jerusalem. His graund mothers name was Maecha the doughter of Abisalom. And Asa dyd that which was righte in the sighte of the LORDE, as dyd his father Dauid. And he remoued y who remongers out of the londe, and put downe all the Idols that his fathers had made. * He put his mother from the mynistracion, that she had made vnto Miplezeth in y grove. And Asa rote out hir Miplezeth, and brent it in the broke Cedron: but the hye places put he not downe. Yet was the hert of Asa perfecte with the LORDE as long as

C Baesa the kyng of Israel wente vp agaynst Juda, and buylded Rama, that no man shulde go out and in of Asas syde the kyng of Juda. Then toke Asa all the syluer and golde that was lefte in the treasure of the house of the LORDE, and in the treasure of the kynges house, and deliuered it in to his seruantes handes, & sent it vnto Benadab the sonne of Tabrimon the sonne of Hesion kyng of Siria, which dwelt at Damascus, and let saye vnto him: There is a couenaunt betwene me and the, and betwene my father and thy father: therfore sende I the a present of syluer and golde, that thou shuldest breake the couenaunt which thou hast with Baesa the kyng of Israel, that he maye departe fro me.

Benadab agreed vnto kyng Asa, and sent his captaines agaynst the cities of Israel, and smote Zion and Dan, & Abel Beth Maacha, and all Cineroth with the whole londe of Naphtali. Whā Baesa herde that, he left of from buyldinge Rama, and wente agayne vnto Thirza.

D Kyng Asa caused it be proclaimed in all Juda: here be no man excepte. And they toke awaye the stones and tymber from Rama, & herewith Baesa had buylded. And kyng Asa buylded Geba Ben Jamin & Mispa therewith.

What more there is to saye of Asa, and of all his power, and all that he dyd, and of y cities which he buylded, beholde, it is wrytten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Juda: sayunge that in his olde age he was diseased in his fete. And Asa slepte with his fathers, and was buried with his fathers in the cite of Dauid his father. And Josaphat his sonne was kyng in his steade.

E But Nadab the sonne of Jeroboam was kyng ouer Israel in the secōde yeare of Asa kyng of Juda, & raigned ouer Israel two yeare, and dyd euell in the sighte of the LORDE, and walked in the waye of his father, and in his synnes, wherewith he made Israel to synne. Howbeit Baesa the sonne of Abia of the house of Isachar conspired agaynst him, & smote him at Gibbethon, which was the Philistynes: for Nadab and all Israel layed sege to Gibbethon. So Baesa slewe him in the thirde yeare of Asa kyng of Juda, & was kyng in his steade. Now whan he was kyng, he smote all the house of Jeroboam, and let nothinge of Jeroboam remayne that had breth, tyll he had destroyed it, acordyng to þe worde of the LORDE, which he spake by his seruauit Abia of Silo, because of Jeroboams synnes which he dyd, & made Israel synne withall: euen with þe prynces wherewith he displeased the LORDE God of Israel.

What more there is to saye of Nadab, & all that he dyd, beholde, it is wrytten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Israel, and there was warre betwene Asa & Baesa the kyng of Israel, as longe as they lyued.

In the thirde yeare of Asa kyng of Juda was Baesa þe sonne of Abia kyng ouer all Israel at Thirza foure and twentye yeare, and dyd that which was euell in the sighte of the LORDE, and walked in the waye of Jeroboam, and in his synnes, wherewith he made Israel to synne.

Neuertheles the worde of the LORDE came vnto Jehu the sonne of Hanani agaynst Baesa, and sayde: For so moch as I lifted the out of the dust, and made the pryncce ouer my people of Israel, and thou walkest in the waye of Jeroboam, and makest my people ouer Israel for to synne, to prouoke me vnto wrath thorow their synnes, beholde, therfore wyll I take awaye the posterite of Baesa, and the posterite of his house, and wyll sethine house euen as the house of Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat. He that of Baesa dyeth in the cite, the dogges shal deuoure him: and he so beyng of him dyeth in the felde, the foules of the ayre shal eate him vp.

What more there is to saye of Baesa, & what he dyd, & of his power, beholde, it is wrytten in þe Cronicles of the kynges of Israel. And Baesa slepte with his fathers, & was buried at Thirza: & his sonne Ella was kyng in his steade. And the worde of þe LORDE came by the prophet Jehu the sonne of Hanani, ouer Baesa, and ouer his house, and agaynst all the euell that he dyd in the sighte of þe LORDE, to prouoke him vnto wrath thorow the workes of his handes: so that he became as the house of Jeroboam, and because he slewe this man.

And Simri came in, and slewe him in the seven & twentieth yeare of Asa kyng of Juda, and was kyng in his steade. And whan he was kyng, and sat vpon his seate, he smote all the house of Baesa, & lefte not so moch as one to make water agaynst þe wall: his bloud & vengens also & his frendes. Thus dyd Simri destroye all the house of Baesa, acordyng to the worde of the LORDE, which he spake ouer Baesa by the prophet Jehu, because of all the synnes of Baesa and of Ella his sonne, which they dyd, and made Israel for to synne, to prouoke the LORDE God of Israel vnto wrath thorow their vanities. What more there is to saye of Ella, and all that he dyd, beholde, it is wrytten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Israel.

In the seven and twentieth yeare of Asa kyng of Juda, was Simri kyng viij. dayes at Thirza, and the people laye before Gibbethon of the Philistynes. But whan the people in the hoost herde saye þe Simri had conspyred and slayne the kyng, then all Israel the same daye made Amri the chiefe capteyne kyng ouer all in the hoost. And Amri wente vp and all Israel with him from Gibbethon, and layed sege vnto Thirza. But whan Simri sawe þe cite shulde be wonne, he wente in to the palace in the kynges house, & brent it with þe kynges house, & dyed because of his synnes which he had committed, in that he dyd euell in the sighte of the LORDE, and walked in the waye of Jeroboam, and in his synnes which he dyd, wherewith he made Israel to synne.

What more there is to saye of Simri, and how he conspyred, beholde, it is wrytten in y Cronicles of the kynges of Israel. At the same tyme were y people deuyled in two partes: the one parte helde with Tibni the sonne of Ginath, that they might make him kyng: the other halfe helde with Amri. But the people that helde with Amri, were mightier then the people which helde with Tibni y sonne of Ginath. And Tibni dyed, and Amri was kyng.

In y one and thirtieth yeare of Asa kyng of Juda, was Amri kyng ouer Israel twelue yeares, & raigned at Thirza sixe yeares. He boughte the mount of Samaria of Semer for two hundred weight of syluer, & buylded vpon the mount, and called the cite which he buylded, after y name of Semer y owner of y mount of Samaria. And Amri dyd that which was euell in y sighte of the LORDE, and was worse then all they that were before him, and walked in all y wayes of Jeroboam y sonne of Nebat, and in his synnes, wherewith he made Israel to synne, so that they prouoked the LORDE God of Israel vnto wrath in their vanities. What more there is to saye of Amri, & all that he dyd, and his power that he exercysed, beholde, it is wrytten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Israel. And Amri slepte with his fathers, & was buried in Samaria, and Achab his sonne was kyng in his steade.

In the eigh & thirtieth yeare of Asa kyng of Juda, was Achab the sonne of Amri kyng ouer Israel, & raigned ouer Israel at Samaria two & twentye yeare, & dyd euell in the sighte of the LORDE, more then all they that were before him. And he thoughte it but a small matter to walke in the synnes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat: & toke Jesabel the daughter of Eth Baal kyng of Sidon to wife, and wente and serued Baal, and worshiped him. And vnto Baal he set vp an altare in Baals house, which he buylded him in Samaria, and made a groue: so that Achab dyd more to prouoke the God of Israel vnto wrath, then all the kynges that were before him in Israel.

At y same tyme dyd Zziel of Bethel buylde Jericho: & it cost him his first sonne Abiram, y he layed y foundation: & his yongest sonne Segub, y he set vp the portes: Accordyng to the worde of the LORDE, which he spake by Josua the sonne of Nun.

The XVII. Chapter.

In the first & thirtieth yeare of the inhabytors of Gilead, saide vnto Achab: As truly as the LORDE God of Israel lyueth, whose seruauit I am, there shal neether rayne ner dew come this yeare, excepte I speake it.

And the worde of the LORDE came vnto him, and sayde: Get the hence, and turne the towarde the east, and hyde the by the ryuer Crith, which is ouer agaynst Jordane, and thou shalt drynke of the ryuer: and I haue commaunded the rauens, that they shal fede the there. He departed, and dyd accordyng to the worde of the LORDE, and wente his waye, and sat him downe by the ryuer Crith, which is ouer agaynst Jordane. And the rauens broughte him bred and flesch in the mornynge and in the euenynge, and he drank of the ryuer.

B And he gat him vp, and wente vnto Sarepta. And whan he came to the gate of y cite, beholde, the wedowe was there, and gathered stickes. And he called her, and sayde: Fetch me a litle water in a vessell, y I maye drinke. And as she was goinge to fetch it, he cried vnto her, z sayde: Brynge me a morsell of bred also in thine hande. She sayde: As truly as the LORDE y God lyueth, I haue no bred, but an handfull of floure in a pitcher, z a curtesy oyle in a cruse: and beholde, I haue gathered vp one or two stickes, z wyll go and prepare it for me and my sonne, that we maye eate and dye.

Elias sayde vnto her: Feare not, go thy waye, z do as thou hast sayde: yet make me first a morsell of bred therof, z brynge it me forth: z afterwarde shalt thou make it for y z thy sonne. For thus sayeth y LORDE God of Israel: The meell in the pitcher shall not be spent, z the oyle in y cruse shall not fayll, vnto the daye y the LORDE shall cause it for to rayne vpo earch. She wente z dyd as Eli as sayde. And he ate, z she also, and hir house a certayne season. The meel in the pitcher was not mynished, and the oyle in the cruse fayled not, acordinge to the worde of y LORDE which he spake by Elias.

C And after these actes the sonne of the wi fe of y house was sicke: and his sicknes was so excedinge sore, that there remayned no breth in him. And she sayde vnto Elias: What haue I to do with the, thou man of God? Art thou come in vnto me, y my synne shulde be kepte in remembraunce, z that my sonne shulde be slayne? He sayde vnto her: Geue me thy sonne. And he toke him fro hir lappe, z caried him vp into y chamber where he him selfe dwelt, and layed him vpo his bed, z called vpon the LORDE, and sayde: O LORDE my God, hast thou dealt so euell w the wedow with whom I dwell, y thou woldest slaye hir sonne? And he stretched out him selfe ouer the childe thre tymes, z called vpon the LORDE, and saide: O LORDE my God, let the soule of this childe come agayne into him. And the LORDE herde the voy ce of Elias. And the soule of the childe came agayne vnto him, z he reuyned. And Eli as toke the childe, and broughte him downe from the chamber into the house and deli uered him vnto his mother, and sayde: Be-

The XVIII. Chapter.

After a longe season came y wo de of the LORDE vnto Elias in the thirde years, z sayde: * Go thy waye, z shewe y selfe vnto Achab, y I maye cause it for to rayne vpon earch. And Elias wen te to shewe him selfe vnto Achab. But there was a greates derth i Samaria. And Achab called Abdia his chiefe officer: (As for Ab dia, he feared y LORDE greatly: for wha Je sabel roted out y prophetes of y LORDE, Ab dia toke an C. prophetes, and hyd them in ca ues, here fiftye, z there fiftye, z prouyded for them w bred and water.) Achab now sayde vnto Abdia: Go thorow the londe vnto all the welles of water z ryuers, yf happyly we maye finde hay, z to saue y horses z mules, y all the catell perishe not. And they parted the selues into the londe, to go thorow it. Achab departed the one waye alone, and Ab dia y other waye alone.

Now whan Abdia was on y waye, Eli as met him. And whan he knewe him, he fell downe vpon his face, z sayde: Art not thou my lord Elias? He sayde: yee, go thy waye, and tell y lord: beholde, Elias is here. But he sayde: What haue I offended, that thou wilt deliuer thy seruaunt in to the handes of Achab, that he maye slaye me? As truly as the LORDE thy God lyueth, there is no people ner kingdome, but my lord hath sent thither to seke the. And whan they sayde: He is not here, he toke an ooth of the same kingdome and nacion, that they had not founde the. And now thou sayest: Go tell y LORDE: beholde, Elias is here. Now whan I were gone from the, the spere of the LORDE shulde take y awaye, I cannot tell whither: and yf I then came and tolde Achab, and forde de the not, he shulde slaye me: But thy seruaunt feareth the LORDE from his youth vp. Hath it not bene tolde my lord what I dyd, whan Jesabel slewe the prophetes of the LORDE, how that I hyd an hundred of the LORDES prophetes, here fiftye, and there fiftye in the caues, and prouyded for them with bred and water? And then sayest thou: Go thy waye, tell thy lord: Elias is here, that he maye slaye me. Elias saide: As truly as y LORDE Zebaoth lyueth, before whom I stode, I wil shewe my selfe vnto him this daye. Then were Abdia to mete Achab, z tolde him. And Achab were for to mete Eli as.

The iij. boke of the kynge.

And whan Achab sawe Elias, Achab say de vnto him: Art thou he that troublest Israel? He sayde: I trouble not Israel, * but it is thou and thy fathers house, because ye haue forsaken the commaundementes of the LORDE, and walke after Baal. Go to, sende forth now, and gather me all Israel toge ther vnto mount Carmell, and the foure hundred and fiftye prophetes of Baal, and the foure hundred prophetes of y groue, which ate of Jesabels table. So Achab sent vnto all the children of Israel, z gathered the pro phetes toge ther vnto mount Carmell.

Then stepte Elias vnto all the people, z sayde: How longe halte ye on both y sydes? If the LORDE be God, the walke after him: but yf Baal be he, the folowe him. And the people gaue him no answer. The sayde Eli as vnto the people: I onely am lefte a pro phet of y LORDE: but Baals prophetes are foure C. and fiftie mē. Geue vs now two bul lockes, z let them chose one bullocke, z hewe him in peces, z laye him vpo the wod, z put no fyre theron: so wil I take y other bullock, z laye him vpo the wod, z put no fyre theron also: call ye then vpo the name of y god, z I wil call vpo the name of the LORDE: lo the which God now answereth with fyre, let the same be God. And all the people answered z sayde: That is righte. And Elias say de vnto Baals prophetes: Chose ye one bul lock, and do ye it first (for ye are many) and call ye vpon the name of youre god, z laye no fyre theron.

D And they toke the bullock which he gaue them, z prepared it, z called vpon the name of Baal from the mornynge vntyll the noo ne daye, and sayde: O Baal heare vs. But there was nether voyce ner answer. And they hopped aboute the altare, as their vse was to do. Now whan it was noone daye, Elias mocked them, and sayde: Crye loude. For he is a god, peradventure he is musynge, or hath somwhat to do, or is gone some iour neye, or happyly he slepeth, so that he wolde be waked vp. And they cried loude, and pro uoked the selues with knyues z botkens, (as their maner was) tyll y blonde folowed. But whan y noone daye was past, they prophe cied vntyll the tyme that the meat offerynge shulde be offered, z there was nether voyce ner answer, ner one to regarde them.

Then sayde Elias vnto all the people: Come hither all ye people vnto me. And whan all y people came to him, he repayred y al tare of the LORDE y was broken, * z toke twelue stones acordinge to the nombre of y rybes of the childe of Jacob (vnto whom the worde of the LORDE spake, and sayde: * Thy name shall be Israel) and of y stones he buylded an altare in the name of the LOR DE, z made a pytt rounde aboute the altare, like two forowes in the come londe, z prepara red the wod, z hewed y bullock in peces, and layed him vpon the wod, z sayde: Fetch fou re pitchers full of water, and poured it vpo the burnt offerynge, and vpon the wod. And he sayde: Do it yet once. And they dyd it once agayne. And he sayde: Do it y thirde tyme. And they dyd it the thirde tyme. And y wa ter ranne aboute the altare, and y pytt was full of water also.

And whan the tyme was to offer y meat offerynge, Elias stepte forth, and sayde: O LORDE God of Abraham, of Isaac and of Israel, let it be knowne this daye, that thou art God in Israel, and I thy seruaunt, and that I haue done all this acordinge vnto y worde. Heare me O LORDE, O heare me, y this people maye knowe, how that thou art the LORDE God, that thou mayest after warde turne their hertes. * Then fell downe the fyre of the LORDE, and consumed the burnt offerynge, the wod, the stones and the earth, and licked vp the water that was in the pytt. Whan all the people sawe that, they fell vpon their faces, and sayde: The LORDE is God, y LORDE is God. Elias sayde vnto them: * Laye handes vpon Ba als prophetes, y none of them escape. And they toke them. And Elias broughte them downe vnto y brook Cyson, z slewe the there.

And Elias sayde vnto Achab: Go vp, ea te z drynke, for it soundeth as though it wol de rayne sore. And whan Achab were vp to eate z drinke, Elias ascended vp to the toppe of Carmel, z bowed him selfe downe to the earth, z put his heade betwene his knees, z sayde vnto his lad: Go vp, and loke towarde the See. He wente vp z loke, z sayde: There is nothinge. He sayde: Go agayne seuen ty mes. And at the seuenth tyme he sayde: Behol

And or a man coude turne him, the heauen was blacke wth cloudes & wynde, & there came a greate rayne. But Achab rode his waie, & departed vnto Iesrael. And the hāde of ꝑ LORDE came vpo Elias, and he gyde his loynes, & ranne before Achab, tyll he came vnto Iesrael.

The XIX. Chapter.

AND Achab tolde Iesabel all ꝑ Elias had done, & how he had slayne all Baals prophetes wth the swerde. The sent Iesabel a messaunger vnto Elias, sayenge: The goddes do this & that vnto me, yf I to-morrow aboute this tyme, make not thy soule as one of these. Then was he afrayed, & gat him vp, & wente where he wolde, & came vnto Bersaba in Iuda, and leste his lad there. But he him selfe wente a daies iourney in to ꝑ wyldernes, & came in, & sat him downe vnder a Juniper tre, & wysshed vnto his soule ꝑ he mighte dye, & sayde: It is now ynough LORDE, take my soule, for I am no better then my fathers. And he layed him downe & slepte vnder the Juniper tre.

And beholde, ꝑ angell touched him, & sayde vnto him: Stonde vp, and eate. And he looked aboute him, & beholde, at his heade there was a bred baken on the coles, & a cruse wth water. And whan he had eaten and dronke, he layed him downe agayne to slepe.

B And ꝑ angell of the LORDE, came agayne the seconde tyme, & touched him, & sayde: Stonde vp, and eate, for thou hast a greate waye to go. And he arose, and ate and drake, and wente on thorow the strength of that meate & fortye dayes and fortye nightes, vnto Horeb ꝑ mount of God: and there he came to a cane, and abode there all nighte. And beholde the worde of the LORDE came to him, and sayde vnto him: What doest thou here Elias? He sayde: I haue bene zelous for the LORDE God Zebaoth: for the children of Irael haue forsaken thy couenaunt, and broken downe thine altares, and slayne thy prophetes with the swerde, and I am leste onely, & they seke to take awaye my life. He sayde: Go forth, and stonde vpon the mount before the LORDE. And beholde, the LORDE w<sup>te</sup> ouer: and a greate mighte wynde, which rouethe mountaynes, and brake the harde stones, came before the LORDE, but the LORDE was not in the wynde. After the wynde came there an earthquake, but the LORDE was not in the earthquake.

The xx. Chap.

And after the earth quake there came a fyre, but the LORDE was not in the fyre. And after the fyre came there a styll softe byssinge. Whan Elias herde that, he covered his face with his cloke, and wente forth, and stode in the dore of the cane. And beholde, there came a voyce vnto him, and sayde: What hast thou here to do Elias?

He sayde: I haue bene zelous for the LORDE God Zebaoth: for the children of Irael haue forsake thy couenaunt, broken downe thine altares, slayne ꝑ prophetes wth the swerde, & I onely am leste, and they seke to take awaye my life. But the LORDE sayde vnto him: Go ꝑ waye agayne thorow the wyldernes vnto Damascon, & go in, & annoynthe Ihesaiael kyng over Siria, & Jehu the sonne of Nimfi kyng over Irael, & Elisens ꝑ some of Saphat of Abel Mehola to be prophet in ꝑ steade. And it shal come to passe, ꝑ, who so escapeth the swerde of Ihesaiael, Jehu shal slaye him, & who so escapeth ꝑ swerde of Jehu, Elisens shal slaye him. And I wil reue vnto me vij. M. men in Irael: namely, all ꝑ knees which haue not bowed the selues vnto Baal, and every mouth ꝑ hath not kyssed.

And he departed thence, & found him. Elisens ꝑ some of Saphat, plowing wth twolue yocke of oxen before him, & he him selfe was amōge the twolue. And Elias w<sup>te</sup> vnto him, & cast his cloke vpon him. And he leste the oxen, & ranne after Elias, & sayde: Let me kysse my father & my mother, and so wil I folowe the. And he sayde vnto him: Go thy waye, & come agayne, for I haue some what to do with the. And he ranne agayne from him, and toke a yock of oxen, and offered it, and sod ꝑ flesh with the wod of the oxen plowes, and gaue it vnto the people to eate, and gat him vp, & folowed Elias, and mynistred vnto him.

The XX. Chapter.

AND Benadab ꝑ kyng of Siria gathered all his power, & there were two & thirtie kynges wth him, & horses & charettes, and he wente vp, and layed sege vnto Samaria, & foughte agaynst it. And he sent messaungers vnto Achab ꝑ kyng of Irael in to ꝑ cite, & caused to saye vnto him: Thus sayeth Benadab: Thy syluer & thy golde is myne, and thy wyues & thy best children are myne also. The kyng of Irael answered, & sayde: My lord ꝑ kyng, even as thou hast sayde, I am thine, and all that I haue.

And the messaungers came agayne, & sayde: Thus sayeth Benadab: For so moch as I haue sent vnto the, sayenge: Thy syluer & thy golde, thy wyues & thy childre shal thou geue me, to-morrow aboute this tyme wil I sende my seruantes vnto the, ꝑ they maye serch thynne house and the houses of thy subiectes: & loke what pleasaunt thinge thou hast, ꝑ shal they take in their handes, and cary it awaye. So the kyng of Irael called all ꝑ elders of the lōde, & sayde: Mark well & se, what myschese this mā seketh: He sent vnto me for my wyues & children, for syluer & golde, & I haue not sayde him naye. Then sayde all the elders and all the people vnto him: Thou shalt not cōsente ner agree vnto him. And he spake vnto Benadabs messaungers, Saye vnto my lord ꝑ kyng: All ꝑ thynnes wherfore thou dydest sende vnto me ꝑ seruauant at ꝑ first, wil I do, but this can I not do. And ꝑ messaungers w<sup>te</sup>, and tolde this agayne. The sent Benadab vnto him sayenge: The goddes do this and ꝑ vnto me, yf the dust of Samaria shalbe ynough, for every one of my people to brynge me an handfull therof. But ꝑ kyng of Irael answered, & sayde: Tell him, Let not him ꝑ putteth on ꝑ harness, make his boast like him ꝑ hath put it of. Whā Benadab herde ꝑ (enē as he was drynkinge wth the kynges in ꝑ panylion) he sayde vnto his seruantes: Set y<sup>r</sup> selues in aray. And they set the selues in aray agaynst.

And beholde, there came a prophet vnto Achab ꝑ kyng of Irael, & saide: Thus sayeth the LORDE: Hast thou sene all this greate multitude? Beholde, this daie wil I deliuer the in to ꝑ hande, so ꝑ thou shalt knowe, how ꝑ I am ꝑ LORDE. Achab sayde: By whom? He sayde: Thus sayeth the LORDE: Euen by the yonge men of the rulers of the lōde. He sayde: Who shal order the battayl? He sayde: Thou. Then mustered he the yonge men of the rulers of the lōde, & there were two hundred and two and thirtie of them: & after the mustured he of the whole people of all the childre of Irael, sene thou sande men, and they wente out in the noone daie. As for Benadab, he drank and was drunken in the panylion with the two & thirtie kynges which were come to helpe him. And the yonge men of the rulers of the lōde wente forth first.

Benadab sent forth, & they brought him worde, & sayde: There come men out of Samaria. He sayde: Take them alyne, whether they be come forth for peace, or for warre. But whan the lōde rulers yonge men were gone forth, and the hoost behynde them, eue ry one smote him ꝑ came in his waye. And the Sirians fled, and Irael folowed after them. And Benadab the kyng of Syria escaped with horses and horsmē. And the kyng of Irael wente forth, and smote horses and charettes, and dyd a greate slaughter on the Syrians.

Then came there a prophet vnto the kyng of Irael, and sayde vnto him: Go thy waye and strength the, and take hede, and loke well what thou doest: for whan the yea re is aboute, the kyng of Syria shal come agaynst the of the new. For the kyng of ꝑ Syrians seruantes sayde vnto him: Their goddes are goddes of the mountaynes, therfore haue they gotten the victory.

But let vs fyghte with them on the playne, and thou shalt se that we shal ouercome them. Do thus, put awaye the kynges euery one from his place, and set dukes in their steads, and appoynte the an hoost as was that which thou hast lost, & horses & charettes as the other were, and let vs fight agaynst the in the plaine, and thou shalt se that we shal haue the victory. He cōsented vnto their voyce, and dyd so.

Now whan the yea re was gone aboute, Benadab appoynted the Sirians, and wente vp towarde Aphek, to fyghte agaynst Irael, and the childre of Irael mustured, and prouyded them selues with vytailes, and w<sup>te</sup> to mete them, and pitched their cētres ouer agaynst them, like two litle flockes of goates but the lōde was full of the Syrians.

And there came a man of God, and sayde vnto the kyng of Irael: Thus sayeth the LORDE: Because the Syrians haue sayde, that the LORDE is a God of the mountaynes and not a God of the valleys, therfore haue I genen all this greate heape in to thy handes, that ye maye knowe how that I am ꝑ LORDE. And they pitched their tentes right ouer agaynst them seven dayes. But vpon ꝑ seuenth daie they wente together in to the battayll: and the children of Irael smote of the Sirians an hundred thousande fore men in one daie, and the remnaunt fled to Aphek in to the cite, and the wall fell vpon the other seven and twenty thousande men. And Benadab fled also vnto the cite in to a litle chamber.

Then sayde his seruantes vnto him: Beholde, we haue herde that the kynges of the house of Irael are mercifull kynges, let vs therfore put sack cloth aboute oure loynes, and halters abente oure neckes, & go forth to the kyng of Irael, peradventure he shal let ꝑ soule lyue.

And they put sack cloth aboute their loynes, and halters aboute their neckes, and came to the kyng of Israel, and sayde: Vena-dab thy seruauunt sayeth vnto the: O let my soule lyue. He sayde: yf he be yet alyue, he is my brother. And the men toke him shortly at his worde, and expounded it for them selves and sayde: Yee Venadab is thy brother. He sayde: Come and brynge him. The wente Benadab forth vnto him, and he caused him to syt vpon the charer, and sayde vnto him: The cities that my father toke from thy father, wyl I geue the agayne. And make thou stre-tes for thyselfe at Damasco, as my father did at Samaria, so wyl I let the go with a bon-de of peace. And he made a conenauit with him, and let him go.

Then spake there a man amonge the children of the prophetes vnto his neighbour
by the worde of the LORDE: I praye the smi-te me. But he refused to smite him. Then saide he vnto him, because thou hast not herkened vnto the voyce of the LORDE, beholde, therfore shall there a lyon smyte the, whan thou goest fro me. And whan he wente fro him, a lyon founde him, and slewe him.

And he founde another man, and sayde:
I praye the smyte me. And the man smote him, and wounded him, Then wente the prophet, and stepte vnto the kyng by the waye syde, and altered his face with asshes. And whan the kyng wente by, he cried vpon y
kyng, and sayde: Thy seruauunt wente forth in to the battayll, and beholde, there wente
one asyde, and broughte a man vnto me, and sayde: Kepe this man: yf he be myssed, thy soule shall be in steade of his soule, or els thou shalt weye downe an hundred weighte of syluer. And whyle thy seruauunt had here there to do, he was awaye. The kyng of Israel sayde vnto him: It is thine owne iud-gment, thou hast geuen it thyselfe.

Then put he the asshes from his face in all the haist. And the kyng of Israel knewe him, that he was one of the prophetes. And he sayde vnto him: Thus sayeth the LORDE:
Because thou hast let the damned man go, therfore shall thy soule be for his soule, and thy people for his people. And the kyng of Israel departed vnto his house, beinge troubled in his mynde and full indignacion, and came to Samaria.

The XXI. Chapter.

After these actes it fortuneth, that Na-

Jesreel besyde the palace of Achab kyng of Samaria. And Achab spake to Naboth, and sayde: Geue me thy vinyarde,

I wyl make me an herbyarden therof, because it is so nye my house: I wyl geue the a better vynyarde for it: or yf it please the, I wyl geue the syluer for it, as moch as it is worth. But Naboth sayde vnto Achab:
The LORDE let that be farre fro me, that I shulde geue y my fathers heretage. Then came Achab home, beinge moued and full of indignacion, because of the worde that Na-booth the Iesraelite had spoken vnto him, &
sayde: I wyl not geue the my fathers inheritance. And he laied him downe vpon his bed, and turned his face asyde, and ate no bied. Then Jesabel his wyfe came in to him and sayde vnto him: What is y matter, that thy sperte is so cōbried, and that thou eatest
no bied? He sayde vnto her: I haue spokē to Naboth the Iesraelite, and sayde: Geue me thy vynyarde for money: or yf it please y, I wyl geue the another for it. But he sayde: I wyl not geue the my vynyarde.

Then sayde Jesabel his wyfe vnto him:
What kingdome were in Israel, yf thou diddest it? Stonde vp, and eate bied, I wyl ge-the the vynyarde of Naboth the Iesraeli-te. And she wrote a letter vnder Achabs name, and sealed it with his signet, and sent it vnto y Elders and rulers in his cite, which dwelt aboute Naboth, and wrote thus in y letter: Proclame a fast, and set Naboth aboue in the people, and set two men of Belial before him, to testifie and saye: Thou hast blasphemed God and the kyng. And brynge him forth, and stone him to death.

And the Elders and rulers of his cite,
which dwelt in his cite, dyd as Jesabel had commaunded them, acordynge as she had wrytten in the letter that she sent vnto them and they proclaimed a fast, and caused Na-booth to syt aboue amonge the people. Then came the two men of Belial, and stode before him, and testified agaynst Naboth in y presence of the people, and sayde: Naboth hath blasphemed God and the kyng.

Then broughte they him out of the cite,
and stoned him to death. And they sent Jesabel worde, sayenge: Naboth is stoned & put to death. Whā Jesabel herde that Naboth was stoned and deed, she sayde vnto Achab:
Up, and take possession of the vynyarde of Naboth the Iesraelite, which he denyed to geue the for money: for Naboth lyueth no more but is deed. And whan Achab herde y Naboth was deed, he roseto go downe into the vynyarde of Naboth the Iesraelite, and to take possession of it.

But the worde of the LORDE came to Elias the Thesbite, and sayde: Get the vp, and go downe to mere Achab the kyng of Israel, which is at Samaria: beholde, he is in Naboths vynyarde, in to the which he is gone downe to take possi- sion of it, and talke thou with him, and speake: Thus sayeth the LORDE: Thou hast slayne, and taken in possession. And thou shalt talke morouer vnto him, and saye: Thus sayeth the LORDE: Euen in the place where the dogges lic-ted vp Naboths bloude, shall the dogges lick thy bloude also. And Achab sayde vnto Elias: Hast thou euer founde me thine enemy? He said: Yee, I haue founde the, because thou art euen solde to do euell in the sigh-te of the LORDE. Beholde, y wyl brynge my fortune vpon the, and take awaye thy posterite, and wil rote out from Achab, euen him that maketh water agaynst the wall,

and him that is shut vp and leste behynde in Israel: and thy house wyl I make as the house of Jeroboam y sonne of Nebat, and as the house of Baesa the sonne of Ahia, because of y prouocacion wherwhitch thou hast prouoked me vnto wrath, and made Israel to synne.

And ouer Jesabel spake the LORDE also and sayde: The dogges shal deuoure Jesabel in y felde of Israel. Who so of Achab dyeth in y cite, him shal the dogges eate vp:
and who so dyeth in the felde, the foules vnder the heauen shal eate him vp. So cleane solde to do myschese in y sighte of the LOR-DE hath no man bene, as Achab: for his Je-sabel hath so disceaued him; and he maketh him selfe a greate abhominacion, that he goeth after Idols, acordige vnto all as dyd
the Amouites, whom the LORDE expelled
before the children of Israel.

But whan Achab herde these wordes, he rete his clothes, & put a sack cloth on his body, & fasted, and slepte in sackcloth, and wen-te aboute hanginge downe his heade. And the worde of the LORDE came to Elias the Thesbite, & sayde: Hast thou not sene how Achab humbleth him selfe before me? For so moch now as he humbleth him selfe in my sigh-te, I wil not brynge that plague whyle he lyueth: but by his sonnes life wil I brynge my fortune vpon his house.

The XXII. Chapter.

And there passed ouer thie yeares, that there was no warre betwene the Si-rians & Israel. But in the thirde yea-re wente Josaphat the kyng of Iuda dow-ne to the kyng of Israel. And the kyng of Israel sayde vnto his seruantes: Knowe ye not y Ramoth in Gilead is oures? and we syt styll, and cal'e it not out of the hande of the kyng of Syria. And he sayde vnto Josa-phat: Wilt thou go with me to the battaill vnto Ramoth in Gilead? Josaphat sayde vnto the kyng of Israel: I wyl be as thou my people as thy people, and my horses as thy horses. And Josaphat sayde vnto y kyng of Israel: Are this daye at the worde of the LORDE. Then the kyng of Israel gathered the prophetes aboute a foure hundred men, and sayde vnto them: Shal I go vnto Ramoth in Gilead to fighte, or shal I let it alone? They sayde: Go vp, y LORDE shal de-lyuer it in to y kynges hande. But Josaphat sayde: Is there not one prophet here more of y LORDE, that we maye are at him?

The kyng of Israel saide vnto Josaphat
Here is yet a man, one Micheas the sonne of Jemla, at whom we maye are of the LOR-DE: but I hate him, for he prophecieth me no good, but euell. Josaphat sayde: Let not the kyng saye so. Then called the kyng of Israel a chamberlayne, and sayde: Brynge hither soone Micheas the sonne of Jemla. As for the kyng of Israel and Josaphat y kin-ge of Iuda, they sat ether of them vpon his seate, arayed in their garmentes in the place at y dore of the porte of Samaria, and all y prophetes prophecied before the. And Sedechias the sonne of Cnaena had made him hories of yron, and sayde: Thus sayeth the LORDE: With these shalt thou puffed be at y
Syrians, tyll thou brynge them to naughte
And all the prophetes prophecied likewise,
and sayde: Go vp vnto Ramoth in Gilead, thou shalt prospere right well, & the LORDE shal deliuer it in to the kynges hande. And the messaunger that wente to call Micheas sayde vnto him: Beholde, The wordes of y prophetes are with one acorde good before the kyng, let thy worde therfore be as their worde, and speake thou good also.

Micheas sayde: As truly as the LORDE li-ueth, I loke what the LORDE sayeth vnto me, y wyl I speake. And whan he came to the kyng, the kyng sayde vnto him: Micheas, shal we go vnto Ramoth in Gilead to fight or shal we let it alone? He sayde vnto him:
Yee, go vp, thou shalt prospere right well,
the LORDE shall geue it in to the kynges hande. But the kyng sayde vnto him agayne: I charge y that thou saye no ocher thin-ge vnto me but the truthe, in the name of y LORDE. He sayde: I sawe all Israel scatted abrode vpon the mounaynes, as the she-per that haue no shepherd. And the LORDE

saide: Have these no lord: Let every one turne home agayne in peace. Then sayde y kynge of Israel vnto Josaphat: Toldst not I y that he wolde prophesye me no good, but euell?

D He sayde: Heare now therfore the worde of the LORDE: I sawe the LORDE syt vpon his seate, and all the hoost of heauen stödinge by him at his righte hande & at his lefte. And the LORDE saide: Who wil disceave Achab to go vp, & fall at Ramoth in Gilead. And one sayde this, another that. Then wote there forth a spiete, & stode before the LORDE, and sayde: I wyl disceave him. The LORDE sayde vnto him: Wherwith? He sayde vnto him: I wyl go forth, and be a false spiete in the mouth of all his prophetes. He saide: Thou shalt disceave him, and shalt be able: go forth and do so. Beholde now, the LORDE hath geue a false spiete in y mouth of all these y prophetes, and the LORDE hath spoken euell ouer the. Then stepte forth Sedechias the sonne of Cnaena, and smote Michias as vpon the cheeke, and sayde: What, is the spiete of the LORDE departed fro me, to speake with the? Michias sayde: Beholde, thou shalt se it in y daye, whan thou shalt go fro one chamber to another to hyde the.

The kynge of Israel sayde: Take Michias, and let him remayne with Amon the ruler of the cite, and with Joas the kynge's sonne, and saye: Thus sayeth the kynge: Put this man in prison, and fede him with bread and water of trouble, tyll I come agayne in peace. Michias sayde: If thou comest agayne in peace, then hath not the LORDE spoken thorow me. And he sayde: herken to all ye people.

So the kynge of Israel and Josaphat y kynge of Juda wente vp vnto Ramoth in Gilead. And the kynge of Israel sayde vnto Josaphat: Chaunge thy clothes, and come in to y battayll in thine arae. The kynge of Israel chaunged his clothes also, and wote in to the battayll. But the kynge of Siria commaunded the rulers of his charettes (of whom there were two and thirtie) and saide: Ye shal fight nether agaynst small ner greater, but onely agaynst the kynge of Israel. And whan the rulers of the charettes sawe Josaphat, they thought it had bene the kynge of Israel, and fell vpon him with fightinge. But Josaphat cried. So whan the rulers of the charettes sawe that it was not y kynge of Israel, they turned back fro him. A certayne man bended his bowe harde, and shotte the kynge of Israel betwene the marve and y longes. And he sayde vnto his charetman: Turne thine hāde, and cary me out of the hoost, for I am wounded. And y battayll was fore the same daie. And the kynge stode vpo his charet, agaynst the Syrians and dyed in the eueninge, and the bloude ranne from the wounde in to the myddes of the charet. And whan the Sonne wente downe there was a proclamation made in the hoost, and sayde: Every one gett him in to his cite, and to his countre. Thus the kynge dyed, and was broughte vnto Samaria, and they buryed him in Samaria. And whan they wasshed the charet in the pole of Samaria, y dogges licked his bloude, (but the harlottes wasshed him) acordinge to the worde of y LORDE which he spake.

What more there is to saye of Achab, & all y he dyd, and of the Query house which he buylde, beholde, it is wrytten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Israel. So Achab slepte with his fathers, and his sonne Ahasia was kynge in his steade.

* And Josaphat the sonne of Asa was kynge ouer Juda in the fourth yeare of Achab kynge of Israel, and was fyue and thirtie yeare olde whan he was made kynge, and raigned fyue and twenty yeare at Ierusalem. His mothers name was Asuba y daughter of Silhi, and he walked in all the waye of his father Asa, & departed not there from. And he dyd that which was right in y sighte of the LORDE, yet put he not awaye y high places, and y people offred and brent incense yet vpon the hye places, and he had peace with the kynge of Israel.

What more there is to saye of Josaphat and the mighte that he exercised, and how he fought, beholde, it is wrytten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Juda. * He put out of the londe also the whoremongers that yet were leste, which remayned ouer in the tyme of his father Asa. And at that tyme there were no kynges in Edom. And Josaphat had caused to make shippes vpon the See, which shulde go to fetch golde in Ophir, but they wente not: for they were broken at Ezion Gaber. At that tyme sayde Ahasia the sonne of Achab vnto Josaphat: Let my seruantes passe with thy seruantes in the shippes. But Josaphat wolde not. And Josaphat slepte with his fathers, and was buryed in y cite of David. And Joram his sonne was kynge in his steade.

The fyfth Chapter.

Ahasia the sonne of Achab was kynge ouer Israel at Samaria in y seuententh yeare of Josaphat kige of Juda, & reigned ouer Israel two yeares, & dyd

y which was euell in y sight of the LORDE, and walked in the waye of his father and of his mother, & in the waie of Jeroboam y sonne of Nebat, which made Israel for to synne. And serued Baal, and worshipped him, and displeased the LORDE God of Israel, euell as his father dyd. The Moabites also fell awaye from Israel, whan Achab was deede.

And Ochozias fell thorow y grate in his chāber at Samaria, and was deede sicke, and sent messaungers, and sayde vnto them: Go youre waye, and axe counsell at Beelzebub the god of Ekron, whether I shal recover from this sicknesse. But the angell of y LORDE sayde vnto Elias the Thessbite: Up, & go mete the messaungers of the kynge of Samaria, and saie vnto them: Is there no God in Israel, that ye go to axe counsell at y god of Ekron? Therfore thus sayeth the LORDE: Thou shalt not come from the bed wheron thou lyes, but shalt dye the death.

And Elias wente his waye. And whā y messaunges came to Ochozias agayne, he sayde vnto the: Why come ye agayne? They sayde vnto him: There came vp a man in oner waye, and sayde vnto vs: Go agayne to the kynge that hath sent you, and saie vnto him: Thus saith the LORDE: Is there no God in Israel, y thou sendest to axe coucel at Beelzebub y god of Ekron? Therfore shalt thou not come from y bed wheron thou lyes, but shalt dye the death. He sayde vnto them: What maner of man was it that mett you, and sayde this vnto you? They sayde vnto him: he had a rough heer vpon him, and a letheren gyrdell aboute his loynes. he sayde: It is Elias the Thesbite.

C And he sent vnto him a captayne ouer fiftye, with the same fystye. And whan he came vnto him, beholde, he sat aboue vpon the mount. he sayde vnto him: Thou man of God, the kynge sayeth: Thou shalt come downe Elias answered the captayne ouer fystye, and sayde vnto him: If I be a man of God, the fyre fall downe then from heauen, and consume the and thy fystie. Then fell there fyre from heauen, and consumed him and his fystie. And agayne he sent another captayne ouer fystye vnto him, with his fystie, which answered, and sayde vnto him: Thou man of God, thus sayeth the kynge: Come downe in all the haist. Elias answered, and saide: If I be a man of God, yf fyre fall downe from heauen, and consume the and thy fystie. Then fell the fyre of God from heauen, and consumed him, and his fystie. Agayne, he sent vnto him the thirde captayne ouer fystie, with his fystie.

D Now whan he came to him, he kneled to Elias, and besoughte him, and sayde vnto him: Thou man of God, let my soule and yf soules of thy seruantes these fystye, be som what worth in thy syghte. Beholde, the fyre fell downe from heauen, and hath consumed the first two captaynes ouer fystie with their fysties. But now let my soule be som what worth in thy syghte. Then saide the angel of the LORDE vnto Elias: Go downe with him, and feare him not. And he gatt him vp, and wente downe with him vnto yf kynge.

And he sayde vnto him: Thus saith the LORDE: Because thou hast sent forth messengers, and caused to be counsell at Beelzebub the god of Ekron, as though there were no God in Israel to be counsell at his worde, therefore shalt thou not come from the bed wheron thou hast layed the, but shalt dye yf death. So he dyed, acordinge to the worde of the LORDE which Elias sayde. And Joram (his brother) was kynge in his steade in the seconde yeare of Joram the sonne of Josaphat kynge of Juda: for he had no sonne.

What more there is to saye of Ochosias, what he dyd, beholde, it is wyrtte in the Cronicles of the kynges of Israel.

The ii. Chapter.

Whan the LORDE was mynded to take vp Elias in the tempest, Elias and Eliseus wente from Gilgall. And Elias sayde to Eliseus: Tary thou here I praye the, for the LORDE hath sent me vnto Bethel. But Eliseus sayde: As truly as the LORDE liueth, and as truly as thy soule lyueth, I wyll not forsake the. And whan they came downe vnto Bethel, the prophetes children that were at Bethel, were forth to Eliseus, and sayde vnto him: Knowest thou not, that the LORDE wyll take thy lorde awaye from thy heade this daye? he saide: I knowe it well, holde ye youre peace.

And Elias sayde vnto him: Eliseus, tary thou here I praye the, for the LORDE hath sent me vnto Jericho. Neuerthelesse he sayde: as truly as the LORDE lyueth, and as truly as thy soule lyueth, I wyll not forsake the.

And whan they came vnto Jericho, the prophetes children which were at Jericho, stepte forth to Eliseus and sayde vnto him: Knowest thou not that the LORDE wyll take yf lorde awaye from thy heade this daye? he sayde: I knowe it well, holde ye yf peace. And Elias sayde vnto him: I praye the tary here, for yf LORDE hath sent me vnto Jordane. But he sayde: As truly as the LORDE lyueth, and as truly as thy soule lyueth, I wyll not forsake the. And they wente both together. But fiftye men of yf prophetes children were forth, and stode ouer agaynst the a farre of: but they both stode by Jordane. Then toke Elias his cloke, and wrapped it together, and smote the water, which denyed it selfe on both the sydes, so that they were dry shod thorow it. And whan they were come ouer, Elias sayde vnto Eliseus: What shall I do for the, afore I be taken awaye from the. Eliseus saide: That thy spate maye be vpo me to speake twyse as much.

he sayde: Thou hast desired an hard thinge: neuertheles yf thou shalt se me what I am taken awaye from the, it shal be so: if no, the shal it not be. And as they were goinge together, and he talked, there came a fyrie charet with horses of fyre, and parted the both asunder. And so wente Elias vp to heauen in the storme. But Eliseus saide: I cryed: My father, my father, the charetman of Israel and his horses. And he sawe him nomore.

And he toke holde of his clothes, and rent them in two peces, and toke vp Elias cloke that was fallen from him, and turned backe, and stode by the shore of Jordane, and toke the same cloke of Elias which was fallen from him, and smote it in the water, and saide: Where is now the LORDE God of Elias? And he smote it in to the water, and then parted it asunder on both the sydes, and he-

Eliseus wente thorow.

D And whan the prophetes children which were at Jericho ouer agaynst him, sawe him, they sayde: The spere of Elias resteth vpo Eliseus, and so they were forth to mete him, and worshipped him to the grounde, and sayde vnto him: Beholde, there are fiftye valeaunt me amonge thy seruantes, let them go and seke thy lorde, peradventure the spere of the LORDE hath taken him, and cast him vpon some mountaine or in some valley. But he saide: Sende them not. Neuertheles they constrained him, tyll he was ashamed, and sayde: Let them go. And they sent fiftye men, which soughte him thre dayes: but they founde him not, and came agayne vnto him. And he abode at Jericho, and sayde vnto them: Tolve not I you, that ye shulde not go? And the men of the cite sayde vnto Eliseus: Beholde, there is good dwellynge in this cite, as my lorde seyth, but the water is euell, and the londe vnfrutefull.

he sayde: Bringe me hither a new vessell, and put salt in it. And they broughte it him. Then were he forth vnto the well of water, and cast the salt therin, and sayde: Thus sayeth the LORDE: I haue healed this water: from hence forth shal there no deed ner vnfrutefulnes come of it. So the water was healed vnto this daye, acordinge to the worde of Eliseus which he spake.

And he wente vnto ward Bethel. And as he was goynge vp by the waye, there came litle boyes out of the cite, and mocked him, and sayde: Come vp here thou balde heade, come vp here thou balde heade. And he turned him aboute. And whan he sawe them, he cursed them in the name of the LORDE. Then came there two Deeres out of the wod, and rente two and fortye of the children. From thence were he vp vnto mount Carmel, and from thence turned he backe to Samaria.

The iii. Chapter.

Ioram the sonne of Achab was kynge ouer Israel at Samaria in yf eighth tenth yeare of Josaphat kynge of Juda, and reigned xij. yeares, and dyd yf which was euell in yf syghte of yf LORDE, but not as his father yf his mother: for he put awaye yf pilers of Baal, which his father caused to make. Neuertheles he cleued vnto yf synnes of Jeroboam yf sonne of Nebat, which made Israel for to synne, and departed not there fro.

Mesa yf kynge of the Moabites had many shepe, and payed tribute vnto the kynge of Israel with the woll of an hundred thousande shepes, and of an hundred thousande rames.

* But whan Achab was deed, the kynge of Moabites fell awaye fro the kynge of Israel. At yf same tyme were kynge Joram fro Samaria, and mustered all Israel, and sent vnto Josaphat kynge of Juda, sayenge: The kynge of the Moabites is fallen awaye fro me, come thou with me to fighte agaynst yf Moabites. he sayde: I wil come vp. I am even as thou, and my people as yf people, and my horses as thy horses. And sayde morouer: Which waye wil we go vp? he sayde: by the waye in the wyldernes of Edom.

So the kynge of Israel, the kynge of Juda, and the kynge of Edom wente forth. And whan they had gone aboute seven dayes iourney, yf hoost and the catell yf were amonge the had no water. Then sayde the kynge of Israel: Alas, the LORDE hath called these thre kynges, to deliuer the in to the hande of the Moabites. But Josaphat sayde: Is here no prophet of yf LORDE, yf we maye be counsell at yf LORDE by him? Then answered one of yf kynge of Israels seruantes, and saide: he re is Eliseus yf sonne of Saphat, which poured water vpon Elias handes. Josaphat sayde: The worde of yf LORDE is with him. So the kynge of Israel and Josaphat, and yf kynge of Edom wente downe vnto him.

But Eliseus sayde vnto the kynge of Israel: What hast thou to do with me? go to the prophetes of thy father and to yf mothers prophetes. The kynge of Israel saide vnto him: No, for yf LORDE hath called these thre kynges, to deliuer them in to the handes of the Moabites. Eliseus sayde: As truly as the LORDE Zebaoth lyueth, before whom I stode, yf I regarded not Josaphat the kynge of Juda, I wolde not regarde the, ner see oughte by yf. So bringe me now a mynstrell. And whan the mynstrell played vpo the instrument, the hande of the LORDE came vpo him. And he sayde: Thus sayeth the LORDE: Make pittes by this broke. For thus sayeth the LORDE: Ye shal se nether wynde ner rayne, yet shal the broke be full of water, that ye and youre householdes and youre catell maie drynke. See and that is but a small thinge in the syghte of the LORDE. And the Moabites shal be deliuered in to youre handes, so yf ye shal smyte all the stronge cities, and all yf chosen cities: yf shal fell downe all the good trees, and stoppe all the welles of water, and all the good felde shal ye make waiste with stones.

On the morow, whan the meat offeringe is offered, beholde, there came water yf waye from Edom, and fylled yf londe with water.

The iiii. boke of the kyniges.

But whan the Moabites herde, & the kynges came vp to fight agaynst the, they called all & harnessed men, & their rulers, & stode on & border. And whan they rose early in & moynynge, & the Sonne wete vp vpon & water, the Moabites thoughte the water ou-er agaynst the to be euē as reed as blonde, & they sayde: It is blonde, & kyniges haue destroyed them selues wth the swerde, & one hath smytten another. Now Moab get the vp to the spoyle. But whan they came to the ten-tes of Israel, the Israelites gat vp, & smote
the Moabites, & they fled before them.

E Neuertheles they came in, & smote Moab, & brake downe the cities, & every one cast his stone vpon all the good felde, and made them full, and stopped all & welles of water, and felled downe all the good trees, tyll
there remayned but the stones in the brick-wall, and they compassed them aboute with slynges, and smote them.

But whā the kynge of & Moabites sawe & the battayll was to strōge for him, he to-ke to him seven C. men, which dūe & swerde, to fall vpon the kynge of Edom: neuertheles they were not able. Then toke he his first sonne, which shulde haue bene kynge in his steade, and offred him for a burnt offryng vpon the wall. Then came there a greate wrath ouer Israel, that they departed from him, and turned agayne in to their londe.

The iii. Chapter.

And there cried a woman amōge the wyues of the prophetes children vnto Eliseus, and sayde: Thy seruau<sup>t</sup> my hūsbāde is deed, and thou knowest that thy seruau<sup>t</sup> feared the LORDE. Now commeth the man that he was better vnto, and wyl take awaye both my children to be bon-de seruantes. Eliseus sayde vnto her: What shal I do for the? Tell me, what hast thou in the house? She sayde: Thy handmayden hath nothinge in the house but a pitcher wth oyle. He sayde: Go & waye, borowe without of all thy neghbours emptye vessels, & that not a fewe, and go in, and shut & dore behyn de the with thy sonnes, and poure of it in to all & vessels: & whan thou hast fylled them, delyuer them forth.

She wente, and shut the dore vnto her with hir sonnes, which broughte her the vessels, and so she poured in. And whan the vessels were full, she sayde vnto hir sonne: Bryn-ge me yet one vessell. He sayde vnto her: There is not one vessell more here. Then stode & oyle styll. And she sent, and tolde the man of God. He sayde: Go thy waye, sell the oyle, and paye the creditour: but lyeue thou and & son-nes of the resydue.

And it fortunēd at & same tyme, that El-seus wente vnto Sunem. And there was a riche woman, which helde him to eate wth
her: & as he passed oft thorow & waye, he ente in vnto her: & ate wth her. And she sayde vnto hir hūsbāde: Beholde, I perceaue that this is an holy man of God, which goethe
uer thorow this waye, let vs make hi a litle chamber of boordes, & set a bed, a table, a stole & a candelsicke therein, that whan he commeth vnto vs, he maye resorte thither.

And it fortunēd vpon a tyme, that he came in, & layed him downe in the chamber, & slepte therein. And he saide vnto Gehasi his childe: Call this womā of Sunem. And whā he had called her, she stode before him. He sayde vnto him: Speake thou vnto her, be-holde, thou hast mynistrēd vnto vs in all these thinges, what shal I do for the? Hast thou eny matter to be spoken for to the kynge, or to the chiefe captayne of the hoost? She sayde: I dwell amonge my people. He sayde:
What hast thou then to do? Gehasi sayde:
Alas, she hath no sonne, and hir hūsbāde is olde. He sayde: Call her. And whā he had called her, she stode at the dore. And he sayde:
Aboute this tyme yf & frute can lyeue, thou shalt embrace a sonne. She sayde: Alas, no my lorde, thou man of God, lye not vnto thy handmayden. And the woman conceaued, and bare a sonne aboute the same tyme, whā
the frute coulde lyeue, acordyng as Eliseus had sayde vnto her.

But whan & childe was growne, it four-ned, & he wente forth to his father vnto the reapers, & sayde vnto his father: Oh my hea-de, my heade. He saide vnto his seruau<sup>t</sup>: Bynge him to his mother. And he toke him, and broughte him to his mother: and she set him vpon hir lappe vntyll & noone daye, & the he dyed. And she wente vp, and layed him vpon
the bed of the man of God, & shut the dore, and wete forth, & called hir hūsbāde, & say-
de vnto him: Send me one of the seruantes, and an asse, I wyl go quykly vnto the man of God, and come agayne. He sayde: Why wilt thou go vnto him? To daye is it nerher new moone ner Sabbath. She sayde: Well.
And she sadled the asse, & sayde to the yongman: Dyrue forth, and kepe me not bak wth
rydinge, and do as I byd the.

So she wente, and came to the man of God vnto mount Carmell. Whā the man of God sawe her ouer agaynst him, he sayde vnto his childe Gehasi: Beholde, the Sunamite.

is there, runne now & mete her, and axe
her yf it go well with her, and hir hūsbāde & hir sonne. She sayde: Well. But whan she came to the man of God vpon & mount,
she helde him by his fete. And Gehasi stepte to her, to put her awaye. But & man of God sayde: Let her alone, for hir soule is in heunes, and the LORDE hath hyd it fro me, and not shewed it me. She sayde: Whan desyred
I a sonne of my lorde? Sayde I not, & thou shuldest not mocke me?

D He sayde vnto Gehasi: Girde vp thy loynes, and take my staffe in thy hande, and go thy waye. & yf eny man mete the, salute him not: and yf eny man salute the, thanke him not, and laye thou my staffe vpon & childe's face. But the childe's mother sayde: As truly as the LORDE lyncheth, and as truly as & soule lyncheth, I wyl not leaue the. Then gat he vp, and wente after her. As for Gehasi, he wente before them, and layed the staffe vpon
the childe's face, but there was nether voyce ner felynge. And he wente agayne to mete him, and shewed him, and sayde: The childe is not rylen vp.

And whan Eliseus came into the house, beholde, & childe laye deed vpon his bed. And he wete in, & shut the dore on the both, & made his prayer vnto the LORDE, & wente vp, & layed him selfe vpon the childe, & layed his mouth vpon the childe's mouth, and his eyes vpon his eyes, and his handes vpon his han-des, & so stretched him selfe forth vpon him, so & the childe's body was warme. And he rose vp, & wente in to the house once hirther and thirther, & wente vp, & layed him selfe a longe vpon him. Then nese the childe seuen tymes, and afterwarde the childe opened his eyes.
And he cried vpon Gehasi, and sayde: Call the Sunamite. And whan he had called her, she came in vnto him. He sayde: Take there thy sonne. Then came she, and fell at his fete, and worshipped vnto the grounde,
and toke hir sonne, and wente forth.

E But whā Eliseus came agayne vnto Gilgal, there was a derth in the londe, & the prophetes children dwelt before him, & he sayde vnto his seruau<sup>t</sup>: Set on a greate pot, and make potage for the children of the prophetes. Then wente there one into the felde, to gather herbes, and founde a Cucumbers stalle, & gathered wyld Cucumbers therof his core full. And whan he came, he chopped it small for potage to the pott, for they knewe it not. And whā they poured it forth for the me to eate, & they ate of & potage, they cried and sayde: O thou man of God, death is in the pot: for they mighte not eate it. Neuer-theles he sayde: Brynge meel hirther. And he put it in the pot, & sayde: Poure it out for the people, that they maye eate. And then was it not bytter in the pot.

There came a man from Baal Salisa, & broughte the man of God bried of the first frutes, namely twentye barlye loaves, & new come in his garment. But he sayde: Geue it vnto & people, that they maye eate. His mynister sayde: How shall I geue an hūdrēth men of this? He sayde: Geue it vnto the people, that they maye eate. For thus sayeth the LORDE: They shal eate, and there shall be lefte ouer. And he set it before them, so that they ate, and there lefte ouer, acordinge to & worde of the LORDE.

The V. Chapter.

Aaman the chiefe captayne of the kynge of Syria, was an excellēt mā in the sighte of his lorde, and much set by (for thorow him the LORDE gaue health vnto Syria) and he was a mightie man, but a leper. And there had men of war re fallen out of Syria, and caried awaye a litle damsel out of the londe of Israel: the same was in seruyce with Naamās wife, and sayde vnto hir mastresse: O that my master were with the prophet at Samaria, he wol-de heale him from his leprosy.

Then wente he in to his lorde, and tolde him, and sayde: Thus and thus hath the damsel of the londe of Israel spoken. The kynge of Syria sayde: Go thy waye then, & I wyl wrytte a letter vnto the kynge of Israel.

And he wente, and toke with him ten hundred weighte of syluer, and sixe thousande guldens, & ten chaunge of frayment, & broughte the letter vnto the kynge of Israel, with these wordes:

Whan this letter commeth vnto the, be-holde, thou shalt vnderstonde & I haue sent my seruau<sup>t</sup> Naaman vnto the, that thou mayest heale him of his leprosy.

And whan the kynge of Israel red the letter, he rente his clothes, & sayde: Am I God
then, that I can kyll and quykē agayne, & he sendeth vnto me, to heale the man fro his leprosy? Considre and se, how he seeketh an occasion vnto me.

Whan Eliseus the man of God herde, & the kynge of Israel had rente his clothes, he sent vnto him, sayenge: Why hast thou ren-te thy clothes? Let him come to me, that he maye knowe, & there is a prophet in Israel.

So Naaman came with horses and cha-rettes, and helde still at the dore of Eliseus house. Then sent Eliseus a messaunger vnto him, sayenge: Go thy waye, and washe the seven tymes in Iordane, so shal thy flesh be restored the agayne, & be clensed. Then was Naaman wroth, & wente his waye, & sayde: I thoughte he shulde haue come forth vnto me, & to haue stode here & to haue called vpon the name of the LORDE his God, & to haue touched the place with his hande, & so to haue put awaye the leprosy. Are not y waters of Amara and Pharphar at Damascon better then all the waters in Israel, & I might washe me therin & be clensed? and he turned hym, and wente his waye in displeasure. Then his seruantes gat the to him, and sayde: Father, yf the prophet had commaunded the eny greute thinge, shuldest thou not haue done it? moche more the yf he saye vnto the: Washe the, & thou shalt be cleane. Then wente he downe, & washed himselfe in Iordane seuen tymes (as the man of God sayde) & his flesh was restored him agayne, enen as the flesh of a yonge childe. and he was clensed.

D And he turned agayne to y man of God with all his armye. And whan he came in, he stode before him, and sayde: Beholde, I knowe that in all londes there is no God, but in Israel. Take now therfore this blessinge I praye the of thy seruauant. Neuertheles he sayde: As truly as the LORDE lyeth, before whom I stonde, I wil not take it. And he wolde nedes haue him to take it, but he wolde not. Then sayde Naaman: Mighte there not a burthe of this earth be geue vnto y seruauant, as moch as troye Mulles maye beare? For thy seruauant wyll nemo red do sacrifice and offer burnt offerynges vnto other goddes, but vnto the LORDE. That the LORDE maye be gracious vnto thy seruauant, yf I worshippe in the house of Rimmon, whan my lord goeth there in to y house to worshipp, & leaneth vpon my hande. He sayde vnto him: Go thy waye in peace.

And as he was gone from him a felde bredth in the londe, Gehasi the seruauant of Eliseus y man of God thoughte: beholde, my lord hath spared Naaman this Syrian, so that he hath not taken from him y which he broughte: As truly as y LORDE lyeth, I wil rüne after him, & take somthinge of him.

E So Gehasi folowed Naaman. And whan Naaman sawe y he ranne after him, he lighted downe from the charet to mete him, & sayde: Are all thinges well? He sayde: Yee. But my lord hath sent me, & caused to saye vnto the: Beholde, there are now come to me from mount Ephraim two yonge men of the prophetes childre, geue them a talere of syluer (I praye the) & two chaunge of rayment. Naaman saide: Go to, take two taleres. And he compelled him, & banded two talentes in two bagges, and two chaunge of rayment, and deliuered it vnto two of his seruantes, which bare it before him. And whan he came in y darcke, he toke it from their handes, & layd it a syde in the house, & let the men go.

And whan they were gone their waye, he stode before his lord. And Eliseus sayde vnto him: Whence comest thou Gehasi? He sayde: Thy seruauant wente nether hither nor thither. But he sayde vnto him: Wentest thou not my hert to the, whan the man turned backe from his charet to mete the? Now thou hast take the syluer & the rayment, olyue trees, & nyardes, shepe, oxen, seruantes & maydens. But the leprosy of Naaman shal cleue vnto the & to thy seide for ever. Then wente he forth from him leporous as snowe.

The VI. Chapter.

The childre of y prophetes sayde vnto Eliseus: Beholde, the place where we dwell before y, is to narrow for vs, let vs go vnto Iordane, & euery one fetch tymbre there, & we maye there buyde vs a place to dwell in. He saide: Go ye waye. And one sayde: Go to then, & come w thy seruantes. He sayde: I wil go with you. And he wente with them. And whan they came to Iordane, they hewed downe tymbre. And as one was fellynge downe a tre, the yron fell in to the water, and he cried and sayde: Alas my lord, & it is burrowed. But the man of God sayde: Where fell it in? And whan he had shewed him the place, he cut downe a stick, and thrust it in there. Then swame the yron. And he sayde: Take it vp. So he put forth his hande, and toke it.

And the kynge of Syria warred agaynst Israel, and toke conncell at his seruantes, and sayde: There & there will we lye. But the man of God sent to y kynge of Israel, sayenge: Bewarre y thou go not vnto that place, for the Syrians rest there. So the kynge of Israel sent vnto y place wher y man of God tolde him, & kepte it, & helde watch there, & dyd that not once or twyse only.

Then was y kynge of Syrias herte vexed therfore, and called his seruantes, and sayde vnto them: Wyll ye not tell me, which of oure men is fled vnto the kynge of Israel? Then sayde one of his seruantes: Not so my lord O kynge, but Eliseus the prophet in Israel telleth the kynge of Israel all that thou speakest in thy chamber whan thou lvest. He sayde: Go youre waye the and loke where he is, that I maye sende, and cause him be fetcht. And they shewed him and sayde: Beholde, he is at Dorhan. The sent he thither houses & charettes, & a greute power. And whan they came thither by nighte, they compassed the cite aboute. And the mynister of the ma of God arose early to get him vp. And as he wente forth, beholde, there laye an hoost of men aboute y cite with horses and charettes.

D Then saide his childe vnto him: Alas syr, how wyll we now do? He sayde: Feare not, for there are mo of them y are with vs, then of those that are with them. And Eliseus prayed & sayde: LORDE open his eyes, & he maye se. Then the LORDE opened y childes eyes, & he sawe, & beholde, y mount was full of fyue houses & charettes rounde aboute Eliseus. And whan they came downe vnto him, Eliseus made his prayer, & sayde: LORDE smyte this people w byndnes. And he smote the with byndnes acordinge to the worde of Eliseus. And Eliseus saide vnto them: This is not y waye nor the cite, folowe me, I wil brynge you to the man whom ye seke. And he broughte them vnto Samaria.

E And whan they came to Samaria, Eliseus sayde: LORDE open these mens eyes, & they maye se. And the LORDE opened their eyes, & they sawe, & beholde, they were in the myddes of Samaria. And whan the kynge of Israel sawe them, he saide vnto Eliseus: My father, shal I smyte the? He saide: Thou shalt not smyte the: loke whom thou takest with thy swerde and bowe, smyte those. Set bryd and water before them, that they maye eate and drynke, and let them departe vnto their lord. The was there a greute dyner prepared. And whan they had eaten and dronken, he let them go to departe vnto their lord. From that tyme forth came the men of warre of the Syrians nomore into the londe of Israel.

F After this it fortuneth, that Benadab the kynge of Syria gathered all his hoost, and wente vp, & layed sege vnto Samaria: & there was a greute derth at Samaria. But they layed sege to the cite so longe, tyll an Asses heade was worth foure score syluer pes, and the fourth parte of a Cab of dones donge worth fyue syluer pens. And whan the kynge of Israel wente vnto the wall, a woman cried vnto him and sayde: Helpe me my lord O kynge. He sayde: Yf the LORDE helpe the not, wherwith shal I helpe the? with y barn or with the wyne presse? And the kyn ge sayde vnto her: What ayleth y? She sayde: This woman sayde vnto me: Geue vs y sonne, that we maye eate him, tomorrow wyll we eate my sonne. So we sod my sonne, & haue eaten him, and I sayde vnto her on y thirde daye: Geue vs thy sonne and let vs eate him, but she hath hyd him awaye.

Whan the kynge herde the womans wordes, he rente his clothes, whyle he was goynge to the wall. The sawe all the people, that he had a sackcloth vnder vpon his body. And he sayde: God do this and that vnto me, yf the heade of Eliseus the sonne of Saphat shal this daye stonde vpon him. As for Eliseus, he sat in his house, & the Elders sat by him. And he sent a man before him, but ouer the messaunge came to him, he sayde vnto y Elders: Haue ye not sene how this childe of murthure hath sent hither, to take awaye my heade? Take hede, whan the messaunger cometh, & ye holde him at the dore. Beholde, y noyse of his lordes fete foloweth him. Whyle he was thus talkynge w them, beholde, y messaunger came to him, & sayde: Beholde, this euell cometh of y LORDE, and what more shal I loke for of the LORDE?

The VII. Chapter.

Eliseus sayde: Heare the worde of the LORDE. Thus sayeth the LORDE: Tomorrow aboute this tyme shal a busshel of fyne meel be solde for one Sycke, and two busshels of barley for one Sycke vnder the poite of Samaria. Then a knyghte (vpon whose hande the kynge leaned) answered the ma of God, and sayde: And though the LORDE made wyndowes in heauē, how coulde soch a thinge come to passe? He saide: Beholde, thou shalt se it with thine eyes, & shalt not eate therof.

And there were foure leporous men at y dore before the poite, and one sayde vnto another: Why tary we here whyle we dye? Though we thoughte to come in to the cite, yet is there derth in y cite, and there shulde we be sayne to dye. And yf we tary here, we must dye also. Let vs go now, and flye vnto the hoost of the Syrians. Yf they let vs lye, we shall lye: yf they slaye vs, then are we deed. And so they gat them vp early, to come vnto the hoost of the Syrians. And whan they came to the vttemost ende of y tentes, beholde, there was no body.

For the LORDE had made the Syrians to heare a noyse of horses, charettes, and of a mightie greute hoost, so that they sayde one to another amonge the selues: Beholde, the kynge of Israel hath byred the kynge of the Zethites, and the kyng of the Egipcians agaynst vs, to come vps vs. And they gat them vp, and fled early in the twylight, and lefte their bothes, and horsen and asses in the tentes as they stode, & fled enery man where hemighte saue his life.

C Now whan the lepers came to the place of the tentes, they wente in to the tentes, ate and dronke, and toke syluer, golde and rayment, and wente and hyd it: & came agayne & entred in to another tent, and toke therout, and wente and hyd it. But one of them saide vnto another: Let vs not do thus, this daye is a daye of good tidynge. If we kepe this secrete and hyde tyll the lighte mornynge, oure trespase wyl be founde out. Let vs go now therfore, that we maye come, & tell the kynges house.

And whan they came, they cried at the poite of the cite, and tolde them, and sayde: We came to the tentes of the Sirians, and beholde, there is no mā there, nether yet eny mans voyce, but horsen and asses bounde, and the bothes as they stonde. Then cried the porters and tolde it within in the kynges house. And the kyng arose in the nighte, & sayde vnto his seruantes: I will tell you how the Syrians deale with vs: they knowe we suffer hunger, and are gone out of the cētes, to hyde them selues in the felde, and thynke thus: whan they go out of the cite, we wyl take them alyue, & come in to the cite. Then answered one of his seruantes, and sayde: Let vs take the fyne horsen that remayne, which yet are lefte in the cite (beholde, these are lefte therein for all the multitude in Israel, which is destroyed) let vs sende these and se. The toke they two charettes with the horsen. And the kyng sent them vnto the tentes of the Syrians, and sayde: Go youre waye and se.

D And whan they wente after the vnto Jordane, beholde, the waye laye full of garmettes and vessels, which the Syrians had cast from the, whyle they made haist. And whan the messangers came agayne, and tolde the kyng, the people wente forth, and spoyled the tentes of the Syrians. And a busshel of fyne meell was solde for a Syckle, and two busshels of barley for a Syckle also, according to the worde of the LORDE. But the kyng appoynted the knyghte (vpon whose hande he leened to be at the gate, & the people trode vpon him, so that he dyed, even as the man of God sayde, whan the kyng came downe vnto him. And it came to passe even as the man of God tolde the kyng, whā he sayde: Tomorrow aboute this tyme shall two busshels of barley be solde for one Syckle, and a busshel of fyne meel for one Syckle, vnder the gate at Samaria. And the knyghte answered the man of God, and sayde: Beholde, though the LORDE made wyndowes in heauen, how coulde soch a thinge come to passe? Nevertheless he sayde: Beholde, with thine eyes shalt thou se it, and shalt not write therof. And even so fortunedit vnto him, for the people trode vpon him in the gate, & he dyed.

The viij. Chapter.

Elisus spake vnto the womā, whose sonne he had restored vnto life agayne, and sayde: Get the vp, & go with thine household, and be a straunger wher thou canst: for the LORDE shall call for a derth, which shall come in to the londe seven yere lōge. The woman gat her vp, and dyd as the man of God sayde, & wente with hir household, and was a straunger in the londe of the Philistynes seven yere. But whan the seven yeres were ended, the woman came agayne out of the Philistynes lōde, and wente forth to crye vpon the kyng for hir house and londe. The kyng spake vnto Gehazi the seruant of the man of God, & sayde: Tell me all the greates actes that Elisus hath done. And whyle he was tellinge the kyng how he had made one that was dead, to lyue agayne, beholde, the woman whose sonne he had caused to reuue, came euen in the meane season, and cried vnto the kyng for hir house and londe. Then sayde Gehazi: My lord the kyng, this same is the womā, and this is hir sonne, whom Elisus restored vnto life agayne. And the kyng axed the woman, and she tolde him. Then the kyng delynered her a chamberlayne, & saide: Restore her agayne all that is hers, and all the increase of the londe, sence the tyme that she lefte the londe vntyll now.

* And Elisus came to Damascon, & Benadab the kyng of Syria laye sicke. And it was tolde him, and sayde: The man of God is come hither. Then sayde the kyng vnto Hazael: Take giftes with the, & go mete the man of God, and are counsell at the LORDE by him, and saye: Maye I recover from this sicknesse? Hazael wente for to mete him, and toke rewardes with him, and of all the goodes at Damascon, as moch as fortye Camels mighte beare. And whan he came, he stode before him, and sayde: Thy sonne Benadab the kyng of Syria hath sent me vnto the, sayenge: Maye I recover from this sicknesse?

Elisus sayde vnto him: Go thy waye and tell him: Thou shalt recover. But the LORDE hath shewed me, & he shall dye & death. And the man of God loked earnestly, & made a troublous countenance, & wepte. The sayde Hazael: Wherfore wepeth my lord? He sayde: I knowe what euell thou shalt do vnto the children of Israel. Thou shalt burne their stronge cities with fyre, and slaye their yonge men with the swerde, and kyll their yonge children, and ryppye vp their women with childe.

E Hazael sayde: How so, is thy seruant a dogg, that he shulde do soch a greates thyng? Elisus saide: The LORDE hath shewed me, & thou shalt be kyng of Syria. And he wete his waye from Elisus, & came to his lord, which saide vnto him: What saierth Elisus vnto the? He sayde: He tolde me, Thou shalt recover. But on the nexte daye he toke & bed couerynge, and dyppe it in water, and spred it ouer him, and he dyed, & Hazael was kyng in his steade.

In the fyfth yere of Joram the sonne of Achab kyng of Israel, was Joram & sonne of Josaphat kyng of Juda. Two & thirtie yere olde was he whā he was made kyng, & reigned eighte yere at Jerusalem, & walked in the waye of the kynges of Israel, as the house of Achab dyd (for Achabs daughter was his wife, & he dyd & which was euell in the sighte of the LORDE). Nevertheless the LORDE wolde not destroye Juda for his seruant Dauids sake, as he promysed him, to geue him euer a lantern amonge his children.

* At the same tyme fell the Edomites awaye from Juda, & made a kyng ouer them selues: & cause was this, Joram had gone thow Seira, and all the charettes with him, & had gotten him vp by nighte, and smytten the Edomites that were aboute him, and & ruler ouer the charettes, so that the people fled vnto their tentes: therfore fell the Edomites awaye from Juda vnto this daye. At the same tyme fell Libna awaye also.

What more there is to saye of Joram, & all that he dyd, beholde, it is wyrtten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Juda. And Joram fell on slepe with his fathers, & was buried w his fathers in the cite of David, & Ochozias his sonne was kyng in his steade.

In the twelveth yere of Joram the sonne of Achab kyng of Israel, was Ochozias & sonne of Joram kyng in Juda. Two and twenty yere olde was Ochozias whan he was made kyng, and reigned one yere at Jerusalem. His mothers name was Atalia

the daughter of Amri kyng of Israel, & he walked in the waye of the house of Achab, & dyd that which was euell in the sighte of the LORDE, even as dyd the house of Achab: for he was sonne in lawe in the house of Achab. And he wente with Joram the sonne of Achab in to the battayll agaynst Hazael & kyng of Syria vnto Ramoth in Gilead, but the Syrians smote Joram. Then Joram the kyng turned backe, to be healed at Jesreel of his woundes, wherewith the Syrians had wounded him at Ramoth, whā he soughte with Hazael kyng of Syria. And Ochozias & sonne of Joram kyng of Juda, came downe to viset Joram the sonne of Achab at Jesreel, for he laye sicke. The ix. Chapter.

Elisus the prophet called one of the prophetes children, & sayde vnto him: Girde vp thy loynes, and take this cruise of oyle with the, and go vnto Ramoth in Gilead: and whā thou comest thither, thou shalt se there one Jehu, & sonne of Josaphat the sonne of Amsi, and go in, and byd him stonde vp amonge his brethren, and brynge him in to the ynnmost chamber, & take thou & cruse of oyle, and poure it vpon his heade, & saye: Thus saierth the LORDE: I haue anointed the to be kyng ouer Israel: & thou shalt open the dore, and flye, and not tary. And the prophetes yonge man, the childe wente his waye vnto Ramoth in Gilead. And whan he came in, beholde, the captaynes of the hoost sat there, and he sayde: I haue som what to saye vnto the O captayne. Jehu saide: Vnto whom amonge vs all? He sayde: Euen vnto the O captayne.

Then stode he vp, and wente in. So he poured the oyle vpon his heade, and sayde vnto him: Thus saierth the LORDE God of Israel: I haue anointed the to be kyng ouer the LORDES people of Israel, and thou shalt smyte thy lord Achabs house, that I maye auenge the bloude of my seruantes the prophetes, and the bloude of all the LORDES seruantes, from the hande of Jesabel, that all the house of Achab maye perissh. And J wyl rote out from Achab, euen him that maketh water agaynst the wall, and the closed vp and the desolate in Israel: and the house of Achab wyl I make euen as the house of Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat, and as the house of Baesa the sonne of Abia, and & dogges shall eate vp Jesabel vpon the felde at Jesreel, and nomā shall burye her. And he opened the dore, and fled.

And whā Jehu came forth to his lordes seruantes, they saide vnto him: Are all chin

ges well: Wherefore came this madd felowe vnto the: he saide vnto them: Ye knowe the man well, & what he hath spoken. They sayde: That is not true, but tell thou vs. He sayde: Thus and thus hath he spoken vnto me, and sayde: Thus sayeth the LORDE: I haue anoynted the to be kynge ouer Israel. Then made they haist, and euery one toke his garment and laied them vnder him in maner of a iudges seate, and blew the trompet, and sayde: Jehu is made kynge. So Jehu the sonne of Josaphat the sonne of Nimsi, made a confederacion agaynst Joram. As for Joram he laye before Ramoth in Gilead with all Israel agaynst Hasael the kynge of Syria. But Joram the kynge was turned backe, & he might be healed of the woundes wherewith the Syrians had wounded him, whā he foughte with Hasael the kynge of the Syrians.

And Jehu sayde: If it be youre mynde, there shall noman escape out of the cite, to go and tell it at Iesrael. And he rode, and departed vnto Iesrael: for Joram laye there, and Ochosis the kynge of Iuda was come downe to vysee Joram. But the watchman that stode vpon the tower at Iesrael, sawe the company of Jehu commynge, and sayde: I see a company. Then sayde Joram: Take a charret, and sende to mete the, and saye: Is it peace? And the charretman rode to mete them, and sayde: Thus sayeth the kynge: Is it peace? Jehu sayde: What hast thou to do with peace? Turne the behynde me. The watchman tolde it, and sayde: The messaunger is come vnto them, and cometh not agayne. Then sent he another charretman, which whan he came to them, saide: Thus sayeth the kynge: Is it peace? Jehu sayde: What hast thou to do with peace? Turne & behynde me.

And the watchman tolde it, and sayde: He is come to them: and cometh not agayne, and the goynge is as it were the goynge of Jehu the sonne of Nimsi: for he dryuerh on as he were mad. Then sayde Joram: Bind the charret fast. And they bound the charret, and so they wente forth, Joram the kynge of Israel, and Ochosis the kynge of Iuda, euery one vpon his charret, to mete Jehu. And they founde him vpon the felde of Naboth the Iesraelite. And whan Joram sawe Jehu, he sayde: Jehu, is it peace? But he sayde: What peace? The whordome and witchcraft of thy mother Iesabel is not yet come to an ende.

Then turned Joram his hande and fled, and sayde vnto Ochosis: There is treasoun vnto thee. But Jehu toke his bowe, & shot Joram betwene the armes, that the arrow wente thorow his hert, and he fell downe in his charret. And Jehu sayde vnto Bidpai the knyghte: Take and cast him in the peece of londe of Naboth the Iesraelite: for I remember sence thou rodest with me in a charret after Achab his father, that the LORDE wolde laye this heuy burthen vpon him. I holde (sayde the LORDE) I wyl recomence the & bloude of Naboth and of his children, euen in this peece of londe. Take him now and cast him in to that peece of londe, & accorde vnto the worde of the LORDE.

Whan Ochosis the kynge of Iuda sawe this, he fled by the waie vnto & garden house. But Jehu folowed after him, and commaunded to smyte him also vpon his charret in the goynge vp towarde Gur, which lieth by Jebelaam: and he fled vnto Megiddo, and dyed there. And his seruantes caused him to be caried vnto Jerusalem, and there they buryed him in his awne graue with his fathers in the cite of David. Ochosis reigned ouer Iuda in & eleventh yere of Joram the sonne of Achab. And whan Jehu came to Iesrael, and Iesabel herde therof, she coloured hir face, and decked hir heade, and looked out at the wyndowe. And whan Jehu came vnder the gate, she sayde: & prospered Symi well that slewe his lord?

And he lifte vp his face to the wyndow, and sayde: Who is with me? Then resorted there two or thre chamberlaynes vnto him. He sayde: Cast her downe headlinges. And they cast her downe headlynges, so that & wall and the horses were sprentled with hir bloude, and she was troddē vnder fete. And whan he came in, and had eaten and drunken, he sayde: Loke vpon yonder cursed woman, & burye her, for she is a kynges soughter. Nevertheless whan they wente in to burye her, they founde nothyng of her, but the skull and the fete, and the palmes of her handes. And they came agayne and broughte him worde. He saide: This is euen it that the LORDE spake by his seruant Elias the Thessbite, and sayde: In the felde of Iesrael shal the dogges eate Iesabels flesh. So the deed carcase of Iesabel became euen as donge in the felde of Iesrael, so & a man coulde not saye: This is Iesabel.

The X. Chapter.

At Samaria. And Jehu wrote a letter, and sent it to Samaria, vnto the ulers of the cite Iesrael, euen vnto the Elders, & to Achabs tutors, sayenge these wordes: Whan this letter cometh vnto you whom are youre lordes sonnes, charetes, horses, stronge cities, & ordynance, loke which is the best and most righteous amonge youre lordes sonnes, & set him vpon his fathers seate, and fighte for youre lordes house.

Nevertheless they were sore afraied, and sayde: Beholde, two kynges were not able to stonde before him, how wyl we then endure? And they that were ouer the house and ouer the cite, and the Elders and tutors sent vnto Jehu, sayenge: We are thy seruantes, we wyl do all that thou sayest vnto vs: We wyl make noman kynge, do thou what pleaseth the. Then wrote he the seconde letter vnto them with these wordes: If ye be myne, and herken vnto my voyce, then take the heades of the men youre lordes sonnes, and brynge me them tomorow by this tyme vnto Iesrael.

The kynges sonnes were thre score men and ten, and & chese men of the cite broughte the vp. Now whan this letter came they toke the kynges sonnes, and slewe them euen thre score men and ten, and layed their heades in baskettes, and sent them to him vnto Iesrael. And whan the messaunger came, & tolde him, and sayde: They haue broughte the heades of the kynges children. he sayde: Laye them vpon two heapes at the doore of the porte tyll tomorow.

And on the morow whan he wente forth, he stode, and sayde vnto all the people: Are ye righteous? Beholde, I haue made an appoyntment agaynst my lord, and slayne him, who hath slayne all these then? Vnderstande ye now therfore, that there is not fallen vpon the earth one worde of the LORDE, which he spake agaynst the house of Achab: and the LORDE hath done, euen as he sayde by his seruant Elias. So Jehu smote all the remnant of the house of Achab at Iesrael, all his greates men, his kynnsfolkes, and his prestes, tyll there was not one lefte ouer. And he gat him vp, wente his waye, and came to Samaria.

By the waye there was a shepherdes house, where Jehu founde the brethren of Ochosis kynge of Iuda, and sayde: Whence are ye? They sayde: We are Ochosis brethren, and are goynge downe to salute the kynges children, and the quenes children. He sayde: Take them alyue. And they toke them alyue, and slewe them by the welles syde at the shepherdes house, euen two and forty men, and let not one of them remayne.

And whan he wente from thence, he founde Jonadab & sonne of Rechab, which met him, & saluted him. And he sayde vnto him: Is thyne hert righte, as myne hert is with thyne hert? Jonadab sayde: Yee. If it be so (sayde he) then geue me thy hande. And he gaue him his hande. And so he caused him to syt besyde him in the charret, and saide: Come with me, and se my zeale for the LORDE. And they caryed him with him vpon his charret. And whan he came to Samaria, he smote all that remayned of Achab at Samaria, tyll he had destroyed him, accordynge to the worde of the LORDE, which he spake vnto Elias.

And Jehu gathered all the people together, and saide vnto them: Achab did Baal but litle seruyce, Jehu wyl serue him better. Call vnto me now therfore all Baals prophetes, all his seruantes and all his prestes, that there be none wantynge, for I haue a greatesacrifice to do vnto Baal. Who so euer is myssed, shal not lyue. But Jehu dyd it craftely, that he mighte destroye all the mynisters of Baal. And Jehu sayde: Sanctifie & feast vnto Baal, and proclame it. And Jehu sent in to all Israel, and caused all Baals ministers to come, so that there was noma lefte behynde, which came not. And they came into Baals house, so that the house of Baal was full from one corner to another.

Then sayde he vnto him that had the rule of the vestrye. Brynge forth rayment for all Baals mynisters. And he broughte forth the rayment. And Jehu wente in to Baals house with Jonadab the sonne of Rechab, and sayde vnto Baals mynisters: Search and seth that there be not here amonge you eny mynister of the LORDE, but onely Baals mynisters.

And whan they came in to offer sacrifices and burnt offerynges, Jehu appoynted him foure score men without, & sayde: If eny of these men escape whom I deliuer vnder your handes, then shal the same mans soule be for his soule. Now wha he had made an ende of the burnt offerynge, Jehu sayde vnto the foremen and knyghtes: Go in, & smyte every man, let noman go forth. And they smote the with the edge of the swerde. And the fore men and knyghtes threw the awaie and were vnto the cite of Baals house, and brought forth the piler in y house of Baal, and brent it, and brake downe Baals pyler with the house of Baal, and made a prieny house therof vnto this daie. Thus Jehu destroyed Baal out of Israel. But Jehu lefte not of from the synnes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat (which caused Israel to synne) namely, from the golden calves at Bethel and at Dan. And the LORDE sayde vnto Jehu: Because thou hast bene wyllinge to do that which was righte in my sighte, & hast done vnto Achabs house all that was in my hert, & therfore shal thy children syt vpon y seate of Israel vnto the fourth generacion.

¶ Neuerthelesse Jehu was not diligent to walke in the lawe of the LORDE God of Israel with all his hert: for he lefte not of fro the synnes of Jeroboam which made Israel to synne. At the same time beganne the LORDE to be greued at Israel. For Hasael smote them in all the borders of Israel from Jordan Eastwarde, and all the londe Gilad of the Gaddites, Rubenites and Manassites, from Aroer that lyeth on the ryuer by Arnon, and Gilad and Basan.

What more there is to saye of Jehu, and all that he dyd, and all his power, beholde, it is wryten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Israel. And Jehu fell on slepe with his fathers, & they buryed him in Samaria. And Joahas his sonne was kyng in his steade. The tyme that Jehu reigned ouer Israel, is eight and twenty yeares at Samaria.

The XI. Chapter.

¶ Athalia the mother of Ochosias, wha she sawe that hir sonne was deed, gat her vp, and destroyed all the kynges seide. But Joseba kyngs daughter the syster of Ochosias, toke Joas the sonne of Ochosias and stole him awaye with his nurse in the chamber from amonge the kynges children which were slayne, and she hyd him from Athalia, so that he was not slayne. And he was hyd with her in the house of the LORDE sixe yeares. But Athalia was quene in the londe.

¶ Neuertheles in the seventh yeare sent Joiada, and toke the rulers ouer hundreds with the captaynes and fore men, and caused the

to come to him in to the house of the LORDE and made a couenaunt with them, and toke an ooth of them in the house of the LORDE, and shewed them the kynges sonne, and commaunded them, and sayde: This is it that ye shall do: One thirde parte of you which enter on the Sabbath, shall kepe the watch in the kynges house, and one thirde parte shal be at the poire of Sur, and one thirde parte shal be at y poire which is behynde the fore men, and ye shal kepe the watch at the house of Massa. But two partes of you all that go of on the Sabbath, shal kepe the watch in the house of the LORDE aboute the kyng and ye shall get you rounde aboute y kyng and every one with his weapen in his hande: and who so euer cometh within y wall, let him die, so that ye be with the kyng, wha he goeth out and in.

And the rulers ouer the hundreds dyd all as Joiada the prest had commaunded them, and toke vnto them their men which entred vpon the Sabbath, with those that went of on the Sabbath, and came to Joiada y prest. And the prest gaue the captaynes speeres and shyldes, which had bene kyngs Dauids, and were in the house of the LORDE. And the fore men stode aboute the kyng, & every one with his weapen in his hande, fro the corner on the righte syde of the house vnto the corner of the lefte syde, euen vnto the altare and to the house. And he brought forth the kynges sonne, and set a crowne vpon his heade, and toke the witnes, and made him kyng, and they were glad, and clapped their handes together, and sayde: God saue the kyng.

¶ And whan Athalia herde the noyse of the people that ranne rogether, she came to the people into the house of the LORDE, and looked, and beholde, the kyng stode by the piler, as the vse was, and the syngers and trompettes by the kyng: and all the people of y londe were glad, and blew with trompettes. But Athalia rente hir clothes, & sayde: Vproure, vproure. Neuertheles Joiada y prest commaunded y rulers ouer hundreds, which were appointed ouer the hoost, and saide vnto them: Brynge her without the wall, and whoso euer foloweth hir, let him dye of the swerde (for the prest had sayde, that she shulde not dye in the house of the LORDE.) And they layde handes vpo her, and she wente in by the waye wher the horses go into y kynges house, and there was she slayne.

Then made Joiada a couenaunt betwene the LORDE and the kyng, and the peo ple, & they shulde be the people of the LORDE. Likewise also betwixte the kyng and y people. Then wente all the people of the londe into the house of Baal, and brake downe his altares, and destroyed his ymages right well. And Nathan the prest of Baal slewe they before the altare: And the prest appoynted the officers in the house of the LORDE, and toke the rulers ouer hundreds, and the captaynes, and the fore men, and all y people of the londe, & broughte the kyng downe from the house of the LORDE, and came the waye from the poire of the fore men vnto the kynges house, and he sat vpon the kynges seate. And all the people of the londe were glad, and the cite was at rest. As for Athalia, they slewe her with the swerde in y kynges house. And Joas was seven yeare olde, whan he was made kyng.

The XII. Chapter.

¶ In the seventh yeare of Jehu, was Joas made kyng, and reigned fortye yeare at Jerusalem. His mothers name was Zibea of Bersaba. And Joas dyd that which was righte in the sighte of the LORDE, as longe as Joiada y prest taught him. But they put not downe y hye places: for the people offred & brent incense yet vpon the hye places.

And Joas sayde vnto the prestes: All the money that is sanctified to be bestowed vpo y house of the LORDE, namely the money y every man genneth vnto the treasury, and y money that every man genneth for his soule, and all the money that every man genneth of a fre hert, to be bestowed on the house of the LORDE, let the prestes take it vnto them, every one his porcion: with that shall they repaie the decaye in the house of the LORDE, where they fynde that there is eny decaye.

But whan y prestes repaied not the decaye in the house vnto the thre and twetieth yeare of kyng Joas, Joas the kyng called Joiada the prest with the other prestes, and sayde vnto them: Wherfore do ye not repaie the decaye in the house?

¶ Therfore shall ye not take the money vnto you now every one his porcion, but shall geue it to the decaye of the house. And the prestes agreed to take no money of the people, and to repaie the decaye of the house.

Then Joiada the prest toke a chest, and bored an hole abone therin, and set it on the righte hande besyde the altare, at the entryn gein to the house of the LORDE. And the prestes that kepte the thresholde, put all the money therin that was broughte vnto the house of the LORDE. Whan they sawe then that there was much money in the chest, & y kynges scribe came vp with the hye prest, and bounde the money together, and tolde it as much as was founde in the house of the LORDE. And so the ready money was geuen vnto them that wrought and were appoynted to the house of the LORDE, and they gaue it forth to the carpenters and to the that buylded and wroughte in the house of the LORDE, namely, to the dawbers and masons, and to them that boughte tymbre and fre stone, to repaie the decaye in the house of the LORDE and all that they founde to haue nede of repayinge in the house.

¶ Howbeit there were no syluer chargers, flat peces, basens, trompettes, ner eny other vessell of golde and syluer made on the house of the LORDE, of the money that was brought vnto the LORDES house: but it was geuen vnto the workmen to repaie the decaye in the house of the LORDE therewith. The men also that the money was deliuered vnto, for to geue the workmen, neded not to make eny accomptes, but did their busynes vpon credence. But the money of trespass offerynges and synne offerynges was not broughte vnto the house of the LORDE: for it was the prestes.

¶ At the same tyme wente Hasael the kyn of Syria vp, and foughte agaynst Gath, and wanne it. And whan Hasael set his face to go vnto Jerusalem, kyng Joas toke all that was sanctified, which his fathers Josaphat, Joram and Ochosias the kynges of Juda had halowed, and what he himselfe had sanctified, and all the golde that was founde in the treasures of the house of the LORDE, and in the kynges house, and sent it vnto Hasael the kyng of Syria. And so he departed from Jerusalem.

¶ What more there is to saye of Joas, and all that he dyd, it is witten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Juda. And his seruantes made insurreccion and conspyred, and smote him in the house of Nillo, at the goynge downe vnto Silla. For Josebar the sonne of Simeath, and Josabad the sonne of Somer his seruantes smote him to death: and he was buried with his fathers in the cite of David. And Amasias his sonne was kyng in his steade.

The XIII. Chapter.

¶ In y XXIII. yeare of Joas the sonne of Ochosias kyng of Juda, was Joas has the sonne of Jehu kyng ouer

The iij. boke of the kynges.

Israel at Samaria, seuentene yeare: & dyd & which was euell in the sighte of the LORDE, and walked after the synnes of Jeroboam & sonne of Nebat (which caused Israel to synne) and leste not of from them. And yf wrath of the LORDE wared whore vpon Israel, & he deliuered them ouer vnder the hande of Hasael kyng of Syria, and vnder the hande of Benadad the sonne of Hasael, as longe as they lyued.

And Joahas besoughte the face of the LORDE. And the LORDE herde him, for he considered the myserie of Israel, how the kyng of Syria oppressed them. And & LORDE gaue Israel a sauoure, which broughte them out of the power of the Syrians, so & the children of Israel dwelt in their tentes, like as afore tyme.

¶ Yet leste they not from the synnes of the house of Jeroboam, which caused Israel to synne, but walked in them. The groue at Samaria stode styll also. For of the people of Joahas there were no mo leste, but fyfye horsmen, ten charrettes, and ten thousande fote men: for the kyng of Syria had destroyed them, and made them as the dust in the barne.

What more there is to saye of Joahas, and all that he dyd, and his power, beholde, it is wrytten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Israel. And Joahas fell on slepe with his fathers, and was buried in Samaria, & Joas his sonne was kyng in his steade.

¶ In the seuen and thirtieth yeare of Joas kyng of Juda, was Joas the sonne of Joahas kyng ouer Israel at Samaria sixtene yeare. And he dyd that which was euell in the sighte of the LORDE, and departed not from all the synnes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat, which made Israel for to synne, but walked in them. What more there is to saye of Joas, and what he dyd, & his power, how he foughte with Amasias kyng of Juda, beholde, it is wrytten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Israel. And Joas fell on slepe with his fathers, and Jeroboam sat vpon his seate. And Joas was buried in Samaria with the kynges of Israel.

¶ As for Eliseus, he fell into a sicknes, wher of he dyed. And Joas the kyng of Israel came downe vnto him, and wepte for him, and saide: My father, my father, the charet man of Israel, and his horsmen. Eliseus sayde vnto him: Take the bowe and the arrowes. And whan he had taken the bowe and the arrowes, he sayde vnto the kyng of Israel: Bende the bowe with thine hande. And he bent it with his hãde. And Eliseus layed his hande vpon the kynges hande, and sayde: Open that wyndowe towarde the East. And he opened it. And Eliseus saide: Shoo. And he shot. He sayde: one arrowe of the saluacion of the LORDE, one arrowe of saluacion agaynst the Syrians: and thou shalt smyte the Syrians at Aphek, tyll they be brought to naughte.

The xiiij. Chap.

And he sayde: Take yf arrowes. And whan he had taken them, he sayde vnto the kyng of Israel: Smyte the earth. And he smote thre tymes and stode still. Then was the mynde of God wroth at him, and sayde: If thou haddest smyten syne or sixe times, thou shouldest haue smyten yf Syrians, tyll thou haddest vtterly brought them to naughte. But now shalt thou smyte them thre tymes.

¶ Whan Eliseus was deed and buried, the men of warre of the Moabites fell in to the londe the same yeare. And it fortuneth & they buried a certaine man. But whan they sawe the men of warre, they cast the man into Eliseus graue. And whan he was therein, and touched Eliseus bones, he reuiued, and stood vpon his fete.

¶ So Hasael the kyng of Syria oppressed Israel, as longe as Joahas lyued. But the LORDE was gracious vnto them, and had mercy vpon them, and turned him to them for his coneuantes sake, with Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, and wolde not destroye them: neither dyd he cast them out from his presence vnto this houre.

¶ And Hasael the kyng of Syria dyed, and Benadad his sonne was kyng in his steade. But Joas turned backe, and toke out of the hande of Benadad the sonne of Hasael the cyties which he had takẽ in battaill out of the hande of his father Joahas: Thre tymes dyd Joas smyte him, and broughte the cyties of Israel agayne.

The XIII. Chapter.

¶ In the seconde yeare of Joas & sonne of Joahas kyng of Israel, was Amasias the sonne of Joas kyng of Juda made kyng: & syne and twenty yeare olde was he, whan he was made kyng, & reigned nyne and twenty yeare at Ierusalem. His mothers name was Ioadan of Ierusalem. And he dyd that which was righte in the sighte of the LORDE: yet not as his father David, but even as his father Joas did: so dyd he also: for yf hye places were not put downe, but the people offred and brent incense yet vpon the hye places. Now whan he had gotten the power of the kyngdome, he smote his seruantes which had smyttẽ the kyng his father: but the children of & deed slayers slewe he not, acordinge to & which is wrytten in the boke of the lawe of Moyses, where the LORDE hath comaunded & sayde: The fathers shal not dye for the children, & the children shal not dye for the fathers: but every one shal dye for his awne synne.

¶ Ten thousande of the Edomites smote he also in the Salt valley, and wanne Sela in battayll, and called it Jatheel vnto this daye. ¶ Then sent Amasias messaungers vnto Joas the sonne of Joahas the sonne of Jehu kyng of Israel, sayenge: Come hither, let vs se one another. But Joas & kyng of Israel sent vnto Amasias the kyng of Juda, sayenge: The hawthorne that is in Libanus, sent to the Cedar tre in Libanus, sayenge: Geue thy doughter vnto my sonne to wife. But a wyld beest of the felde ranne ouer yf hawthorne, and trode it downe. Thou hast smyttẽ the Edomites, therfore is thine hert waren proude: Take the prayse, and hyde at home: why stryuest thou for myffortune, & thou mayest fall, and Juda with the? Howbeit Amasias consented not.

¶ Then were Joas the kyng of Israel vp, and they sawe one another, he and Amasias the kyng of Juda at Beth Semes which lyeth in Juda. But Juda was smyten before Israel, so that every one fled in to his tente. And Joas the kyng of Israel toke Amasias the kyng of Juda, the sonne of Joas the sonne of Ochosis at Beth Semes, and came to Ierusalem, and brake downe & wall of Ierusalem from & poorte of Ephraim vnto the corner poorte, even foure hundred curibites lãge: and toke all the golde and syluer, and ornaments that were founde in the house of the LORDE, and in & treasures of the kynges house, & the children also to pled ge, & departed agayne to Samaria.

¶ What more there is to saye of Joas, what he dyd, and of his power, & how he foughte with Amasias the kyng of Juda, beholde, it is wrytten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Israel. And Joas fell on slepe with his fathers, and was buried at Samaria amonge & kynges of Israel. And Jeroboam his sonne was kyng in his steade.

¶ But Amasias the sonne of Joas kyng of Juda, lyued after the death of Joas the sonne of Joahas kyng of Israel, sixtene yeare. What more there is to saye of Amasias, it is wrytten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Juda. And they conspyred agaynst him at Ierusalem, but he fled vnto Lachis. And they sent after him vnto Lachis, and slewe him there. And they broughte him vpon horses, & he was buried at Ierusalem with his fathers in & cite of David. And all the people of Juda toke Azarias in his sixteenth yeare, and made him kyng in steade of Amasias his father. He buylded & cloth, and broughte it agayne vnto Juda, after that the kyng was fallen on slepe with his fathers.

¶ In the fyfteenth yeare of Amasias the sonne of Joas kyng of Juda, was Jeroboam the sonne of Joas kyng ouer Israel at Samaria, one and forty yeare. And he dyd that which was euell in the sighte of the LORDE, and departed not from all the synnes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat, which caused Israel for to synne.

¶ But the borders of Israel broughte he agayne from Zemarath vnto & see that lyeth in the playne felde, acordinge to the worde of the LORDE God of Israel, which he spake by his seruant & Jonas & sonne of Amithai the prophete, which was of & Gath Ephraim. For the LORDE considered the myserable affliction of Israel, how that euen they which were shut vp and desolate, were awaye, and that there was no helper in Israel. And the LORDE sayde not that he wolde destroye the name of Israel from vnder heauẽ. And he helped the by Jeroboam the sonne of Joas.

¶ What more there is to saye of Jeroboam, and all that he dyd, and of his power, how he foughte, and how broughte Damascus and Zemarath agayne vnto Juda in Israel, beholde, it is wrytten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Israel. And Jeroboam fell on slepe with his fathers, with the kynges of Israel. And Zacharias his sonne was kyng in his steade.

The XV. Chapter.

¶ In the seuen & twentieth yeare of Jeroboam kyng of Israel, reigned Azarias the sonne of Amasias kyng of Juda: and & was sixtene yeare olde whan he was made kyng, and reigned two and fyf-tye yeare at Ierusalem. His mothers name was Jechalia of Ierusalem. And he dyd righte in the sighte of the LORDE, acordinge to all as dyd Amasias his father, sayenge that they put not downe the hye places. For the people dyd sacrifice and brent incense yet vpon the hye places. Howbeit the LORDE smote the kyng, so that he was leper vnto his death, & and dwelt in a frye house. But Joatham the kynges sonne ruled the house, and iudged the people in the londe.

What more there is to saye of Asarias, z all þ he dyd, beholde, it is wrytten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Iuda. And Asarias fell on slepe with his fathers, z was buried with his fathers in the cite of David, z Jotham his sonne was kyng in his steade.

B In the eight and thirtieth yere of Asarias kyng of Iuda, was Zacharias the sonne of Jeroboam kyng ouer Israel at Samaria sire monethes. And he dyd þ which was euell in the sighte of the LORDE, even as his fathers dyd. He departed not from þ synnes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat, which caused Israel for to synne. And Sellum the sonne of Jabes conspyred agaynst him, and smote him in the presence of þ people, and slewe him, z was kyng in his steade. What more there is to saie of Zacharias, beholde, it is wrytten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Israel. And this is it, þ the LORDE sayde vnto Jehu: Thy children shall sit vpon the seate of Israel vntyll the fourth generation. And even so came it to passe.

C Sellum the sonne of Jabes reigned in þ nyne z thirtieth yere of Asarias kyng of Iuda, z reigned one moneth at Samaria. For Menahem the sonne of Gadi wete vp from Thirza, z came to Samaria, and smote Sellum the sonne of Jabes at Samaria, z slewe him, and was kyng in his steade.

What more there is to saye of Sellum, z of his sedicion which he stered vp, beholde, it is wrytten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Israel. At the same tyme dyd Manahem smyte Tiphsa, z all þ were therein, z the coastes therof from Thirza, because they wolde not let him in, and smote all their women w childre, and ryppe them vp.

D In the nyne z thirtieth yere of Asarias kyng of Iuda, beganne Manahem the sonne of Gad to reigne ouer Israel ten yeres at Samaria, and dyd that which was euell in the sighte of the LORDE. As longe as he lyued, departed he not from þ synnes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat, which caused Israel for to synne. And Phul the kyng of Assiria came in to the lode. And Manahem gaue vnto Phul a thousande talentes of syluer to holde with him, and to cofirme him in the kyngdome. And Manahem raysed vp a taxe in Israel vpon the richest, fiftye Syckles of syluer vpon every man, to geue vnto þ kyng of Assiria. So the kyng of Assiria wete home agayne, and taried not in the londe.

What more there is to saye of Manahem, z all þ he dyd, beholde, it is wrytten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Israel. And Manahem fell on slepe w his fathers. And Pecahia his sonne was kyng in his steade.

In the fiftieth yere of Asarias kyng of Iuda, beganne Pecahia the sonne of Manahem to reigne ouer Israel at Samaria two yere, and dyd that which was euell in the sighte of the LORDE: for he departed not fro the synnes of Jeroboam þ sonne of Nebat, which caused Israel for to synne. And Pecah the sonne of Romelia his knyghte conspyred agaynst him, z smote him at Samaria in þ palace of the kynges house w Argob and Ariah, and fiftye men w him of þ childre of Gilead, z slewe him, z was kyng in his steade. What more there is to saye of Pecahia, z all that he dyd, beholde, it is wrytten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Israel.

In the two and fiftieth yere of Asarias kyng of Iuda, beganne Pecah the sonne of Romelia to reigne ouer Israel at Samaria, twentye yere, z dyd that which was euell in the sighte of þ LORDE: for he departed not from the synnes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat, which caused Israel for to synne.

In the tyme of Pecah the kyng of Israel, came Teglatphalasser the kyng of Assiria, z toke Lion, Abel Beth Maecha, Janoha, Kedes, Hazer, Gilead, Galile, and all the londe of Nephtali, z caried the awaye in to Assiria.

And Osea the sonne of Ela conspyred agaynst Pecah the sonne of Romelia, z slewe him, and was kyng in his steade in the twetieth yere of Jotham the sonne of Oσίας. What more there is to saye of Pecah, z all that he dyd, beholde, it is wrytten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Israel.

In the seconde yere of Pecah the sonne of Romelia kyng of Israel, was Jotham the sonne of Oσίας kyng of Iuda, z was fyne and twentye yere olde whan he was made kyng, and reigned sixtene yere at Jerusalem. His mothers name was Jerusa the daughter of Sabot. And he dyd þ which was righte in þ sighte of the LORDE, accordinge vnto all as dyd Oσίας his father, save yunge that he put not downe the hye places: for the people offred z brent incense yet vpon the hye places. He buylded the hye part of the house of the LORDE. What more there is to saye of Jotham, and all that he dyd, beholde, it is wrytten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Iuda.

At þ same tyme beganne þ LORDE to sende Rezin þ kyng of Syria, z Pecah þ sonne of Romelia in to Iuda. And Jotham fell on slepe with his fathers, and was buried w his fathers in the cite of David his father. And Achas his sonne was kyng in his steade.

The XVI. Chapter.

In the seventeenth yere of Pecah þ sonne of Romelia, was Achas the sonne of Jotham kyng of Iuda. Twetye yere olde was Achas whan he was made kyng, z reigned sixtene yere at Jerusalem, z dyd not þ which was righte in the sighte of þ LORDE his God, as dyd David his father: for he walked in the waye of the kynges of Israel. And he caused his sonne to go thorow the fyre, after the maner of the abhominacions of the heythen, whom the LORDE drove awaye before the childre of Israel. And he dyd sacrifice, and brent incense vpon the hye places, z vpon all hilles, and amonge all grene trees. Then wente Rezin the kyng of Syria, and Pecah the sonne of Romelia kyng of Israel vp to Jerusalem to fighte agaynst it, and layed sege to Achas: but they coulde not wyne it. At the same tyme dyd Rezin the kyng of Syria, bryng. Elath agayne vnto Syria, and thrust þ Jemes out of Elath. But the Syrians came z dwelt therein vnto this daye.

D Nevertheless Achas sent messaungers vnto Teglatphalasser þ kyng of Assiria, saye ge: I am thy seruauunt z thy sonne, come vp z helpe me out of þ hande of the kyng of Syria, z of the kyng of Israel, which are ryisen vp agaynst me. And Achas toke the syluer z golde þ was founde in þ house of þ LORDE, z in the treasures of þ kynges house, z sent a present to þ kyng of Assiria. And þ kyng of Assiria cosented vnto him, z wente vp to Damascon, z wanne it, z caried them awaye vnto Cira, z slewe Rezin. And kyng Achas wete to Damascon for to mete Teglatphalasser þ kyng of Assiria. And whan he sawe an altare þ was at Damascon, kyng Achas sent a patrone z synilitude of þ same altare vnto the prest Dias, even as it was made. And Dias the prest buylded an altare, and made it accordinge as kyng Achas had sent vnto him from Damascon, tyll Achas þ kyng came from Damascon.

And whan þ kyng came from Damascon, and sawe the altare, he offred thereon, z kyndled his burnt offerynges and meat offerynges vpon it, and poured his drynt offeringes thereon, z caused the bloude of þ deed offerynges which he offred, to be sprentled vpon the altare. But the brasen altare that stode before the LORDE, put he awaye, so that it stode not betwene the altare and the house of the LORDE, but set it in the corner on the north syde of the altare.

And Achas the kyng commaunded Dias þ prest, z sayde: Vpon the greate altare shalt thou kyndle þ burnt offryng in the mornynge, z the meat offryng in the euenynge, z the kynges burnt offryng z his meat offryng, z the burnt offryng of all the people in the londe, w their meat offryng z drynt offrynges. And all the bloude of the burnt offerynges, z all the bloude of the other offrynges shalt thou sprentle thereon: but with the brasen altare wyll I deuise what I can. Dias the prest dyd all accordinge as Achas the kyng commaunded him.

And kyng Achas brake downe the seates, and put awaye the ketell from aboue, and toke the lauer from the brasen bullockes that were there vnder, and set it vpon þ pavement of stone. And the pulpit for the Sabbath which they had buylded in the house, and þ entree of the kynges house turned he vnto the house of the LORDE, for the kyng of Assiria sake.

What more there is to saye of Achas, what he dyd, beholde, it is wrytten in þ Cronicles of the kynges of Iuda. And Achas fell on slepe with his fathers, z was buried w his fathers in the cite of David. And Ezechias his sonne was kyng in his steade.

The XVII. Chapter.

In the twelue yere of Achas the kyng of Iuda, beganne Osea þ sonne of Ela to reigne ouer Israel at Samaria nyne yere, and dyd þ which was euell in þ sighte of the LORDE, but not as þ kynges of Israel þ were before him. Agaynst him dyd Salmanasar þ kyng of Assiria come vp. And Osea was subiecte vnto him, z gaue him trybutes. But whan the kyng of Assiria perceaued þ Osea had conspyred z sent messaungers to Sna þ kyng of Egypte, z payed not trybute yearly to þ kyng of Assiria, he besiged him z put him in prison. And the kyng of Assiria wente vp in to all the londe and to Samaria, and layed sege vnto it thre yere. And in the nyenthy yere of Osea dyd þ kyng of Assiria wyne Samaria, and caried Israel awaye in to Assiria, and set them at Halah and at Habor by the water Gosan, and in the cities of the Medes.

For whan the childre of Israel synned agaynst þ LORDE their God, þ broughte the out of þ londe of Egypte, from the hande of Pharaos kyng of Egypte, and serued other goddes: and walked after the customes of the heythen, whom the LORDE had dryuen out before the children of Israel, and dyd as the kyniges of Israel, and prouoked the LORDE their God, and dyd secretly the thynges that were not righte in the sighte of the LORDE their God: namely in that they buylded them hye places in all cities, both in castels and stronge cities, and set vp pilers and groves, vpon all hye hilles, and amonge all greie trees, and brent incense there in all the hye places, euen as dyd the heythen, whom the LORDE had cast out before them, and wroughte wicked thynges, wherewith they prouoked the LORDE vnto wrath, and serued the Idols, wherof the LORDE sayde vnto them: * Ye shal not do soch a thyng.

And whan the LORDE testified in Israel and Iuda by all the prophetes and Seers, sayenge: * O turne agayne from youre euell wayes, and kepe my commaundementes and ordynances, accordinge to all the lawe which I gaue vnto youre fathers, and that I sent vnto you by my seruantes the prophetes: they wolde not herken, but herdened their neckes, accordinge to the hardnes of their fathers, which beleued not on the LORDE their God. Yee they despyled his ordynances and his couenaunt which he made with their fathers, and his testimonies which he witnessed amonge them, and walked in their awne vanities, and became vayne folowinge the heythen, which dwelt rounde aboute them, concernynge whom the LORDE had commaunded them, that they shulde not do as they dyd. Neuertheles they forsoke all the commaundementes of the LORDE their God, and made them two molten calves and groves, and worshipped all the host of heauen, and serued Baal, and caused their sonnes and daughters to go thorow the fyre, and medled wth soothsayers and witches, and gaue them selues ouer to do that which was euell in the sighte of the LORDE, to prouoke him vnto wrath.

Then was the LORDE very wroth at Israel, and put them awaye fro his presence, so that there remayned none but onely the trybe of Iuda. Neither dyd Iuda kepe the commaundementes of the LORDE their God, but walked after the customes of Israel, which they dyd. Therfore dyd the LORDE cast awaye all the sede of Israel, and troubled them, and deliuered them in to the handes of the spoylers, tyll he had cast them out of his presence: for Israel was denyed from the house of David. And they made the kynge, one Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat, which turned Israel backe from the LORDE, and caused the synne so sore. Thus walked the childre of Israel in all the synnes of Jeroboam, which he had done, and departed not fro them, vntyll the LORDE put Israel out of his presence, accordinge as he had spoke by all his seruantes and prophetes. So Israel was caried awaye out of their awne londe to Assyria vnto this daye.

The kynge of Assyria caused men to come fro Babilon, from Cutha, fro Aua, from Hamath and Sepharuaim, and caused them to inhabite the cities in Samaria in steade of the children of Israel. And they toke possession of Samaria, and dwelt in the same cities. But whan they begane to dwell there, they feared not the LORDE, the LORDE sent Lyons amonge them, which slewe them. And they caused it be sayde vnto the kynge of Assyria: The heythen whom thou hast broughte hither, they can not inhabite the cities of Samaria, knowe not the lawe of the God of the londe. Therfore hath he sent Lyons amonge them, and beholde, they slaye them, because they knowe not the ordynance of the God of the londe.

The kynge of Assyria commaunded and sayde: Bring thither one of the prestes, which were caried awaye fro thence, and let him go thither, and dwell there, and teach them the ordynance of the God of the londe. Then came one of the prestes, which were caried awaye from Samaria, and dwelt at Bethel, and taught them how they shulde feare the LORDE. But every people made the goddes, and put them in the houses vpon the hye places, which the Samaritanes had made, every people in their cities wherin they dwelt. They of Babilon made Sochor and Benoth. They of Chut made Nergel. They of Hamath made Asima. They of Aua made Nibhas and Tharthak. They of Sepharuaim burnt their sonnes vnto Adramelech and Anamelech, the goddes of the of Sepharuaim.

And whyle they feared the LORDE, they made prestes in the hye places of lowest amonge them, and put them in the houses of the hye places: thus they feared the LORDE, and serued the goddes also, accordinge to the custome of every nacion, from whence they were broughte. And vnto this daye do they after the olde fashon, so that they neither feare the LORDE, nor yet kepe their awne ordynances and lawes, after the lawe and commaundement that the LORDE commaunded the childre of Jacob, vnto whom he gaue the name of Israel, and made a couenaunt with them, and commaunded them, and sayde: * Feare none other goddes, and worshippe them not, and serue them not, and offer not vnto them.

but the LORDE which broughte you out of the lode of Egypte, with greate power and outstretched arme, in my feare, him worshippe, and vnto him do sacrifice: and the statutes, ordynances, lawe and commaundement which he hath caused to be wyrtten vnto you, those se that ye kepe, that ye allwaye do thereafter, and feare none other goddes. And forget not the couenaunt which he hath made with you, lest ye feare other goddes. But feare the LORDE your God, he shall deliuer you from all youre enemies. Neuertheles they wolde not herken, but dyd after their olde custome.

Thus these heythen feared the LORDE, and serued their Idols also, and so dyd their children and childers childre likewise. Euen as their fathers haue done before them, so do they vnto this daye.

The XVIII. Chapter.

In the thirde yeare of Oseas the sonne of Ela kynge of Israel, reigned Ezechias the sonne of Achaz kynge of Iuda. And he was fyne and twentie yeare olde whan he was made kynge, and reigned nyne and twentie yeare at Jerusalem. His mothers name was Abi the daughter of Zachary. And he dyd that which was righte in the sighte of the LORDE, accordinge vnto all as dyd David his father. He put awaye the hye places, and brake downe the pilers, and roted out the groves, and brake the brasen serpente, which Moses had made. For vnto that tyme had the childre of Israel brent incense vnto it. And it was called Nehusthan. He put his trust in the LORDE God of Israel, so that after him there was not his like amonge all the kyniges of Iuda nether had bene before him. He cleued vnto the LORDE, and departed not backe from him, and kepte his commaundementes, which the LORDE had commaunded Moses. And the LORDE was wth him. And whither so euer he wote forth, he behaued him selfe wysely. He resisted the kynge of Assyria, and was not subdued vnto him. He smote the philistynes also vnto Gasa, and their borders, from the castels vnto the stronge cities.

In the fourth yeare of Ezechias kynge of Iuda, which was the seventh yeare of Oseas the sonne of Ela kynge of Israel, came Salmanasar the kynge of Assyria vpon agaynst Samaria, and layed sege vnto it, and wanne it after thre yeares in the sixte yeare of Ezechias, that is in the nyenth yeare of Oseas kynge of Israel, the was Samaria wonne. And the kynge of Assyria caried Israel awaye vnto Assyria, and set them at Halah and Habor by the water Gusan, and in the cities of the Medes. And all because they herkened not vnto the voyce of the LORDE their God, and had transgressed his couenaunt: And as for all that Moses the seruant of the LORDE had commaunded them, they had nether herkened vnto any of those, nor done them.

In the fourth yeare of Ezechias dyd Sennacherib the kynge of Assyria come vpon agaynst all the stronge cities of Iuda, and conquered them. Then sent Ezechias the kynge of Iuda to the kynge of Assyria vnto Lachis, sayenge: I haue offended, turne backe from me: loke what thou layest vnto me, I wil beare it. The kynge of Assyria layed vnto Ezechias the kynge of Iuda, thre hundred talentes of syluer, and thirtie talentes of golde. So Ezechias gaue all the syluer which was founde in the house of the LORDE, and in the treasures of the kynges house. At the same tyme brake Ezechias the kynge of Iuda the doores of the temple of the LORDE, and the plates of golde which he him selfe had caused to laye ouer them, and gaue them vnto the kynge of Assyria.

And the kynge of Assyria sent Thartan, and the chiefe chamberlayne, and the chiefe butler from Lachis to Ezechias with a greate power vnto Jerusalem. And they wote vp: and whan they came there, they stode styll at the condyte by the ouer pole, which lyeth in the waye vnto the fullers londe, and called vnto the kynge. The came there forth vnto them Eliachim the sonne of Ezechias the steward, and Eobna the scribe, and Joah the sonne of Assaph the Secretary.

And the chiefe butler sayde vnto them: Tell Ezechias: Thus sayeth the greate kynge, euen the kynge of Assyria: What presumption is this, that thou trustest vnto? Thinkest thou, that thou hast gett conncell and power to fighte? Where vnto trustest thou then, that thou art fallen of from me? Beholde, puttest thou thy trust in this broken staffe of reede, in Egypte: which who leaneth vpon, it shall go into his hande, and pearse it thorow. Euen so is Pharaos the kynge of Egypte vnto all them that put their trust in him. But yf ye wolde saye vnto me: We put oure trust in the LORDE our God. Is not that he, whose hye places and altars Ezechias hath take downe, and sayde vnto Iuda and Jerusalem: Before this altare which is at Jerusalem, shal ye worshippe?

Make a multitude now therefore vnto my lorde the kynge of Assyria, and I wil geue you two thousande horses, let se yf thou be able to man them: how wilt thou then endure before the smallest pryncce of my lordes subiectes? And trustest thou vnto Egypte because of the charrettes and hoysmen? But thinkest thou that I came vp hither without y<sup>e</sup> LORDE to destroye these cities? The LORDE hath commaunded me: Go vp in to that londe and destroye it.

Then sayde Eliachim the sonne of Zechia z Sobna and Joah vnto the chese butler: Speake to thy seruantes in the Syriās language, for we vnderstande it, and speake not vnto vs in the Jewes speche before the eares of the people that are vpon the wall. Neuertheles y<sup>e</sup> chese butler sayde vnto the: Hath my lorde then sent me vnto thy lorde, or to the, to speake these wordes? Yee even vnto the men, which syt vpon the wall, that they maye eate their owne donge and drynke their owne stale wth you. So the chese butler stode and cried with loude voyce in the Jewes language, and spake and sayde: Heare the worde of the greate kynge the kynge of Assyria. Thus sayeth the kynge: Let not Zechias disceane you, for he is not able to delyuer you fro my hāde: z let not Zechias make you to trust in the LORDE, sayenge: The LORDE shall delyuer vs, and this cite shal not be geuen in to the handes of y<sup>e</sup> kynge of Assyria. Solowe not ye Zechias, for thus sayeth the kynge of Assyria:

Do methis blessinge, and come forth vnto me, so shal everyman eate of his vyne and of his sygge tre, and drynke of his well, tyll I come in y<sup>e</sup> selfe and fetch you in to a londe, which is like youre awne lōde, wherein is corne, wyne, bred, vynyardes, oyle trees, oyle and hony, so shal ye lyue, and not dye. Solowe not ye Zechias, for he disceaueth you, when he sayeth: The LORDE shal delyuer vs. Have the goddes of the heythē delyuered every one his londe from the hande of the kynge of Assyria? Where are the goddes of Hemath and Arphad? Where are the goddes of Sepharuaim Zena and Iua? Have they delyuered Samaria fro my hande? Where is there one god amonge the goddes of all londes, which hath delyuered his londe fro my hande: that the LORDE shulde delyuer Jerusalem fro my hande.

As for the people, they helde their peace, and gaue him no answer: for the kynge had commaunded and sayde: Answer him nothinge. Then came Eliachim the sonne of Zechia y<sup>e</sup> stewarde, and Sobna the scribe, and Joah the sonne of Asaph the secreta

tary vnto Zechias with rente clothes, and tolde him the wordes of the chese butler.

The XIX. Chapter.

Whan Zechias y<sup>e</sup> kynge herde this, he rente his clothes, z put on a sack cloth, z wente in to y<sup>e</sup> house of the LORDE, z sent Eliachim the stewarde z Sobna the Scribe with the Eldest prestes; clothed in sack cloth, vnto the prophet Esay y<sup>e</sup> sonne of Amos, z they saide vnto him: Thus sayeth Zechias: This is a daye of trouble, z of desiaunce z blasphemy. The childre are cometo the byrth, z there is no strengthe to be delyuered of them. Yf happily the LORDE thy God wil heare all the wordes of y<sup>e</sup> chese butler, whom his lorde the kynge of Assyria hath sent, to blasphemie y<sup>e</sup> lyuynge God, z to desye him with soch wordes as the LORDE thy God hath herde, therfore liste thou vp thy prayer for the remnaunt, which are yet leste behynde.

And whā kynge Zechias seruantes came to Esay, Esay sayde vnto them: Speake thus vnto youre lorde: Thus sayeth the LORDE: Feare not thou the wordes y<sup>e</sup> thou hast herde, wherwith the kynge of Assyrias seruantes haue blasphemed me. Beholde, I wil put him in another myrde, so y<sup>e</sup> he shall heare tydings, z go agayne in to his awne countre, and in his awne londe wil I cause him to fall thorow the swerde.

And whan y<sup>e</sup> chese butler came agayne, he founde the kynge of Assyria fightinge agaynst Libna: for he had herde that he was departed from Lachis. And he herde of Taracha the kynge of the Morians: Beholde, he is gone forth to fighte with the. Thenturned he back, z sent messangers to Zechias, z caused to saye vnto him: Let not thy God disceane the, on whom thou trustest z sayest: Jerusalem shal not be geue in to the hāde of the kynge of Assyria. Beholde, thou hast herde what the kynges of Assyria haue done vnto all londes, z how they dāned them, z shalt thou be delyuered? Have y<sup>e</sup> goddes of y<sup>e</sup> heithē delyuered the, whom my father destroyed, as Gosan, Haran, Reseph, z the childre of Eden which were at Thalassar: Where is y<sup>e</sup> kynge of Hemath, y<sup>e</sup> kynge of Arphad, z y<sup>e</sup> kynge of y<sup>e</sup> cite Sepharuaim, Zena z Iua?

And whan Zechias had receaued the letters of the messangers and had red them, he wente vp vnto the house of the LORDE, and layed them abedde before the LORDE, z made his prayer before the LORDE, and sayde: O LORDE God of Israel, thou that sytest vpo the Cherubins, thou onely art God

amonge all y<sup>e</sup> kyngdomes of the earth, thou hast made heauen and earth. Enclyne thine eare O LORDE, and heare: open thine eyes, and beholde, and heare the wordes of Sennacherib, which hath sent hither to blasphemie the lyuynge God. It is true (O LORDE) that the kynges of Assyria haue destroyed the heythē and their londe with the swerde, and haue cast their goddes in the fyre: for they were not Goddes, but y<sup>e</sup> worke of mens handes, wodd and stone, therfore haue they destroyed them. But now O LORDE helpe thou vs out of his hande, that all the kyngdomes vpon earth maye knowe, that thou LORDE art God alone.

Then sent Esay the sonne of Amos vnto Zechias, sayenge: Thus sayeth the LORDE God of Israel: Where as thou hast made thy prayer vnto me concernynge Sennacherib y<sup>e</sup> kynge of Assyria, I haue herde it. This is it that the LORDE hath spoken agaynst him: he hath despyed y<sup>e</sup> and mocked the O virgin thou doughter Sion: he hath shakē his heade at the O doughter Jerusalem. Whom hast thou despyed z blasphemed? Over whom hast thou liste vp thy voyce? Eue agaynst y<sup>e</sup> holy one in Israel hast thou liste vp thine eyes: thou hast blasphemed y<sup>e</sup> LORDE by thy messangers, and sayde: Thou row the multitude of my charrettes haue I gone vp to the toppes of the mountaynes, vpon the sydes of Libanus. I haue hewen downe his hye Ceders and his chosen pyne trees, and am come to the vttemost habitation of the wod of Carmel that belongeth vnto it. I haue dygged and dronke vp the straunge waters, and with y<sup>e</sup> soles of my feete haue I dryed vp the See.

But hast thou not herde how that I haue done this longe agoo, and haue prepared it from the begynnyng: Now haue I caused it for to come, that contencious stronge cities mighte fall in to a waiste heape of stones, z they that dwell therein, shal be saynte, and fearfull and a shamed, and shal be as the grasse vpon the felde, and as y<sup>e</sup> grene herbe and hay vpon the house toppes, that wythereth afore it be growne vp. I knowe thy habitation, thy out and ingoynge, and that thou ragest agaynst me. For so moch then as thou ragest agaynst me, and seynge thy presumption is come vp to myne eares, therfore wyll I put a ryng in thy nose, and a bydle bytt in thy lippes, and wyll brynge the agayne, enen the same waye thou camest.

And let this be a token vnto the O Zechias.

In this yeare eate y<sup>e</sup> which is fallen, in the seconde yeare soch as groweth of it selfe: In y<sup>e</sup> thirde yeare sowe and reape, and plante vynyardes, and eate the frute therof. And the doughter Iuda which is escaped z remayneth, shall from hence forth take rote beneth, and beare frute aboue. For the remnaunt shal go forth from Jerusalem, z they y<sup>e</sup> are escaped, shall go out fro mount Sion. The gelousy of the LORDE Zebaoth shall brynge this to passe.

Therfore thus sayeth the LORDE concernynge y<sup>e</sup> kynge of the Assyrians: he shall not come in to this cite, and shall shure no arrowe therein, nether shal there come eny shyld before it, nether shall he dygge eny backe aboute it, but shal go agayne the waye that he came, and shall not come in to this cite, sayeth the LORDE: and I wyll defende this cite, to helpe it for myne awne sake, and for my seruauit Dauids sake.

And in the same nighte wente the angell of the LORDE, and smote in the hoost of the Assyrians, an hundred and fyue and foure score thousande men. And whan they gatte them vp in the mornynge, beholde, all laye full of deed coarces. So Sennacherib the kynge of Assyria brake vp, and departed, and returned, and abode at Ninive. And as he worshipped in y<sup>e</sup> house of Nisrach his god, his awne sonnes Adramalech and Sarazer smote him with the stoerde, and fled in to y<sup>e</sup> londe of Ararat. And Asarhadon his sonne was kynge in his steade.

The XX. Chapter.

That tyme was Zechias deedisicke. And the prophet Esay y<sup>e</sup> sonne of Amos, came to him, z sayde vnto him: Thus sayeth y<sup>e</sup> LORDE: Set thine house in orde for thou shalt dye z not lyue. And he turned, his face to the wall, and prayed vnto y<sup>e</sup> LORDE, and sayde: Remembre (O LORDE) that I haue walked faithfully before the, z with a perfecte hert, and haue done y<sup>e</sup> which is good in thy syghte. And Zechias wept sore. But whan Esay was not gone out of halfe the cite, y<sup>e</sup> worde of y<sup>e</sup> LORDE came to him, z sayde: Turne back, z tell Zechias y<sup>e</sup> pryncce of my people: Thus sayeth y<sup>e</sup> LORDE God of thy father Dauid: I haue herde thy praier, z considered y<sup>e</sup> reares. Beholde, I wil heale y<sup>e</sup>: on the thirde daye shalt thou go in to y<sup>e</sup> house of the LORDE, z fiftene yeares wil I adde vnto y<sup>e</sup> life, z wyll delyuer the z this cite from the kynge of Assyria, z this cite wil I defende for myne awne sake, and for my seruauit Dauids sake. And Esay sayde: But

Ezechias sayde vnto Esay: Which is þe token, that the LORDE wyll heale me, and that I shal go vp in to the house of þe LORDE on the thirde daye? Esay sayde: This to ken shalt thou haue of the LORDE, that the LORDE shal do acordynge as he hath sayde. Shall the shadowe go ten degrees forwarde, or shal it turne ten degrees backwarde? Ezechias sayde: It is an easy thinge for the shadowe to go ten degrees downewarde, þe is not my mynde: but that it go ten degrees backwarde. Then cryed the prophet Esay vnto the LORDE, * and the shadowe wente backe ten degrees in Achas Dyal, which he was descended afore.

At the same tyme Merodach Baladan the sonne of Baladan kynge of Babilon, sent letters and presentes vnto Ezechias, for he had herde that Ezechias had bene sicke. And Ezechias reioysed with them, and shewed them all the house of rotes, the syluer, golde, spices, and the best oyle, and the house of ordinaunce, and all that was founde in his treasures. There was nothyng in his house and in all his domynion, but Ezechias shewed it them.

Then came Esay the prophet vnto kynge Ezechias, and sayde vnto him: What haue these men sayde? and whence came they vnto the? Ezechias sayde: They came to me out of a farre countre, even from Babilon. He sayde: What haue they sene in thyne house? Ezechias sayde: They haue sene all that is in my house, and there is nothyng in my treasures but I haue shewed it them. Then sayde Esay vnto Ezechias: Heare the wordes of the LORDE: Beholde, * the tyme cometh, that it shall all be caryed awaye vnto Babilon, and whatsoeuer thy fathers haue layed vp vnto this daye, and there shall nothyng be left, sayeth the LORDE. * Yee and the children which come of the, whom thou shalt beget, shalbe taken awaye, to be chamberlaynes in the kynge of Babilons palace. Ezechias sayde vnto Esay: It is good that the LORDE hath spoken. And he sayde morouer: Let there be peace yet and faithfulness in my tyme.

The XXI. Chapter.

Manasses was twelue yeare olde, whan he was made kynge, and reigned syue and fyftee yeare at Jerusalem. His mothers name was Zephziba. And he dyd that which was euell in þe sight of the LORDE (even after the abhominacions of the Zeithen, whom the LORDE expelled before the children of Israel) and wared forwarde, and builded vp the hye places which his fathr Ezechias had destroyed, and set vp Baals altares, and made grones (as Achab the kynge of Israel dyd) and worshipped all the hoost of heauen, and serued them. And buylded altares in the LORDES house, wherof the LORDE sayde: I wyll set my name at Jerusalem. And in both the courtes of the house of the LORDE buylded he altares vnto all the hoost of heauē. And caused his sonne to go thorow the fyre, and regarded byrdes cryenge and tokens, and maynteyned soothsayers, and expounders of tokens, and so moch dyd he of this which was euell in the sight of the LORDE, that he prouoked him vnto wiath.

A groue Idol also which he had made, set he in the house, wherof the LORDE sayde vnto Dauid and to Salomon his sonne: In this house, and at Jerusalem, which I haue chosen out of all the trybes of Israel, wil I set my name for ever, and wyl not cause þe fore of Israel to be remoued eny more from the londe, which I gaue vnto their fathers, yee so that they obserue and do acordynge vnto all that I haue charged them, and after all the lawe that my seruauit Moses commaunded them. Neuertheles they wolde not herken, but Manasses disceined them, so þe they dyd worse then the Zeithen, whom the LORDE expelled before þe children of Israel.

Then spake the LORDE by his seruantes the prophetes, and saide: Because that Manasse the kynge of Iuda hath gone these abhominacions, which are worse then all of abhominacions that the Amorites haue done which were before them, and hath caused Iuda also to synne agaynst their God, therefore thus sayeth the LORDE God of Israel: Beholde, I wyll brynge soch a plage vpon Jerusalem and Iuda, that who so euer heareth it, both his eares shal glowe, and ouer Jerusalem wyll I stretch forth the lyne of Samaria, and the weighte of the house of Achab, and wyll wype out Jerusalem, even as one wyppeth a platter, and I wyl querthron it.

The iiii. boke of the kyniges.

And þe remnaunt of myne inheritaunce wil I cast out, and seater them abroad, and wil deliuer them in to the handes of their enemies, to be spoyled and rent of all their enemies: because they haue done þe which is euell in my sight, and haue prouoked me vnto wiath, sence the daye that I broughtre their fathers out of Egypte, vnto this daye. Manasses also shed excedinge moch innocent bloude, so longe tyll Jerusalem was full on euery syde, with out the synnes wherwith he caused Iuda for to synne, so þe they dyd that which was euell in the sight of the LORDE.

What more there is to saie of Manasses, and all that he dyd, and his synnes which he comytted, beholde, it is wrytten in the Cronicles of the kyniges of Iuda. And Manasses fell on slepe with his fathers, and was buried in the garden besyde his house, namely, in the garden of Osa, and Amon his sonne was kynge in his steade.

Two and twenty yeare olde was Amon whan he was made kynge, and he reigned two yeare at Jerusalem. His mothers name was Mesumleth, þe doughter of Harus of Iarba, and he dyd euell in the sight of the LORDE, as Manasses his father had done, and walked in all the waye which his father walked, and serued the Idols which his father had serued, and worshipped them, and forsoke the LORDE the God of his father, and walked not in the waye of the LORDE.

And his seruantes conspyred agaynst Amon, and slewe the kynge in his house. But the people of the londe slewe all them þe had conspyred agaynst kynge Amon. And the people of the londe made Josias his sonne kynge in his steade. As for other thinges that Amon dyd, beholde, they are wrytten in the Cronicles of the kyniges of Iuda. And he was buried in his graue in Osa's garde. And Josias his sonne was kynge in his steade.

The XXII. Chapter.

Josias was eight yeare olde whan he was made kynge, and reigned one and thirtie yeare at Jerusalem. His mothers name was Jedida the doughter of Adaia of Bascath, and he dyd that which was righte in þe sight of the LORDE, and walked in all þe waye of Dauid his father, and turned not asyde, nether to the righte hande nor to the lefte.

And in the eighteenth yeare of kynge Josias, the kynge sent Saphan þe sonne of Asaia the sonne of Mesulam the scribe, in to þe house of the LORDE, and sayde: * Go vp to Helchias the hye prest, that the money that is brought vnto þe house of þe LORDE (which the tresholde keepers haue gathered of þe people) maye be deliuered vnto them, that they maye geue it to the workmen which are appoynted in the house of the LORDE, and to geue it vnto the labourers in the house (þe they maye repayre the decaye of the house) namely, vnto the carpenters, and buylders, and masons, and to them þe bie timber and fre stone for the repainge of the house: but so þe there be no accomptes taken of them concernynge the money, that is vnder their hande, but þe they deale withall vpon credence.

And Helchias þe prest sayde vnto Sapha the scribe: * I haue founde the boke of the lawe in the house of the LORDE. And Helchias gaue the boke vnto Saphan, that he might reade it. And Saphan the scribe bare it vnto the kynge, and brought him worde agayne, and sayde: Thy seruantes haue gathered together þe money þe was founde in the house, and haue deliuered it vnto the workmen, which are appoynted in þe house of the LORDE. And Saphan the scribe tolde the kynge and sayde: Helchias the prest hath deliuered me a boke, and Saphan red it before the kynge.

2. Pa. 24. e

But whan the kynge herde the wordes of the boke of lawe, he rente his clothes. And the kynge comaunded Helchias the prest, and Ahicam the sonne of Saphan, and Achbor the sonne of Michaia, and Saphan the scribe, and Asaia þe kynges seruauit, and sayde: Go ye waye and axe counsell at the LORDE for me, for the people, and for all Iuda, concernynge the wordes of this boke that is founde: for greate is the wiath of the LORDE that is kyndled ouer vs, because of fathers haue not herkened vnto the wordes of this boke, to do all that is wrytten vnto vs therin.

Iere. 27. a

Then wente Helchias the prest, and Ahicam, Achbor, Saphan and Asaia vnto Hulda the prophetisse þe wyfe of Sellu the sonne of Thecua the sonne of Harham the keeper of þe clothes, and she dwelt at Jerusalem in the seconde porte, and they spake vnto her. And she sayde vnto them: Thus sayeth þe LORDE God of Israel: Tell the man that sent you vnto me, Thus sayeth the LORDE: Beholde, I wil brynge euell vpon this place, and the inhabiteurs therof, euen all the wordes of þe lawe which the kynge hath caused to be red, because they haue forsaken me, and brent incense vnto other geddes, to prouoke me vnto wiath with all the workes of their handes. Therefore is my wiath kyndled agaynst this cite, and shall not be quenched.

But tell this vnto the kyng of Iuda, which hath sent you to are counsell at the LORDE: Thus sayeth the LORDE God of Israel: Because thine hert is not departed fro the wordes which thou hast herde, and hast humbled thyselfe before the LORDE, to heare what I haue spoken agaynst this place and the inhabiteres therof (how that they shall become a very desolacion and curse) & hast rente thy clothes, and wepte before me, I haue herde it, sayeth the LORDE: & therfore wyll I gather the vnto thy fathers, so & thou shalt be put in to thy graue in peace, and thine eyes shall noyse all the euell that I wyll brynge vpon this place. And they brought the kyng worde agayne.

The XXIII. Chapter.

And the kyng sent forth, and all the Elders in Iuda and Jerusalem resorted vnto him, and the kyng wente vp in to the house of the LORDE, and all the men of Iuda, and all the inhabiteres of Jerusalem with him, the prestes and prophetes and all the people both small and greate, & all the wordes of the boke of the coneuant that was founde in the house of the LORDE, were red in their eares. And the kyng stode vpon a piler, and made a coneuant before the LORDE, that they shulde walke after the LORDE, and to kepe his commaundementes, witnessses, and ordinaunces with all their hert and with all their soule, & they shulde set vp the wordes of this coneuant, which are wyrtten in this boke. And all the people entred in to the coneuant.

And the kyng commaunded helchias the hye prest, and the prestes of the secōde course, and the keepers of the thresholde, & they shulde put out of the temple all the vessels which were made for Baal, and for the groue, and for all the hoost of heauen, & he brent them without Jerusalem in the valley of Cedron, and the dust of them was carryed vnto Bethel.

And he put downe the Remurims, whiche

the kynges of Iuda had founded, to burne incense vpon the hye places, in the cities of Iuda, and aboute Jerusalem. He put downe also them that brent incense vnto Baal, to the Sonne, and the Mōne, and the twolue tokens, and to all & hoost of heauen. And the groue caused he to be carryed from the house of the LORDE out of Jerusalem in to & valley of Cedron, and brent it in the valley of Cedron, and made it to dust, and cast the dust vpon the graues of y comen people. And he brake downe the whoredopers houses which were by the house of the LORDE, wherin the women made mansions for the groue.

And he caused all the prestes for to come out of the cities of Iuda, and suspended & hye places, where the prestes brent incense, from Geba vnto Bersēba. And brake downe the hye places in the portes, that were at & dore of the gate of Josia & shreue of the cite, at the lefte hande as one goeth to the cite porte. Yet had not the prestes of the hye places offred vpon the altare of the LORDE at Jerusalem, but ate vnteuened bread amonge their brethren.

He suspended & Tophet also in the valley of the children of Ennon, that noman shulde cause his sonne or his doughter to go thow & fyre vnto Moloch. And he put downe the hoyses, which & kynges of Iuda had set vnto the Sonne, at the intringe in to the house of the LORDE, besyde the chest of Neham Melech the chamberlayne which was at Paruarim, and the charettes of the Sonne brent he with fyre, and the altares vpon the rose of Achabs perler, which the kynges of Iuda had made. And the altares, which Manasses had made in the two courtes of the house of the LORDE, dyd the kyng brake downe. And rannefrom thence, and cast the dust of them in to the broke Cedron.

And the hye places that were before Jerusalem on the righte hande of Mount Mōshich, which Salomon the kyng of Israel had buylded vnto Astaroth the abhominacion of Sidon, and to Camos the abhominacion of Moab, and to Malcem the abhominacion of the children of Ammon, those dyd the kyng suspende, and brake the pilers, and roted out the grones, and fylled their places with mens bones.

And the altare at Bethel, and the hye place that Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat made, which caused Israel to synne, the same altare brake he downe, and the hye place, & brent the hye place, and made it to dust, and brent vpon the groue. And Josias turned him aboute, and sawe the granes that were vpon the mount, and caused the bones to the sethed out of the graues, and brent them vpon the altare, and suspended it, acordinge to the worde of the LORDE, & which the man of God cryed out, that tolde this before.

And he sayde: What titell is this, that I se here? And the men of the cite sayde vnto him: It is the graue of the man of God, which came from Iuda, and cried out this that thou hast done agaynst & altare of Bethel. And he sayde: Let him lye, no man touche his bones. Thus were his bones deliuered with the bones of the prophet that came from Samaria.

He put awaye also all the houses of the hye places in the cities of Samaria (which the kynges of Israel had made to prouoke & LORDE vnto wrath) and dyd with them acordinge to all as he had done at Bethel. And all & prestes of the hye places that were there, offred he vpon the altares, and so brent he mens bones thereon, and came agayne to Jerusalem.

And the kyng commaunded the people, and sayde: Kepe Easter vnto the LORDE your God, & as it is wyrtten in the boke of this coneuant. For there was no Easter so keppe as this, sence the tyme of the Judges which indged Israel, and in all the tymes of the kynges of Israel, and of the kynges of Iuda: but in the eighteenth yere of kyng Josias, was this Easter keppe vnto the LORDE at Jerusalem.

And Josias expelled all soythsayers, expounders of tokes, ymages and Idols, and all the abhominacions which were sene in the londe of Iuda and at Jerusalem, that he mighte set vp the wordes of the lawe, which were wyrtten in the boke, that helchias y prest foude in the house of & LORDE.

His like was no kyng before him, which so conuerted vnto & LORDE w all his hert, w all his soule, & with all his strength, acordinge to all the lawe of Moyses. And after him came there not vp soch another. Yet turned not the LORDE from the indignacion of his greate wrath, wherewith he was displeased ouer Iuda, because of all the prouocation wherewith Manasses had prouoked him. And & LORDE sayde: I wil put Iuda out of my presence also, even as I haue put awaye Israel: and this cite which I haue chosen, wyll I cast out, namely, Jerusalem, & the house wherof I sayde: My name shalbe there. What more there is to saye of Josias, and all that he dyd, beholde, it is wyrtten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Iuda.

In his tyme were Pharaos Necho & kyng of Egypte vp agaynst the kyng of Assyria by the water Euphrates. But kyng Josias wente agaynst him, and dyed at Megiddo, whā he had sene him. And his seruantes caried him deed fro Megiddo, & brought him to Jerusalem, & buryed him in his graue. And the people of the londe toke & Joahas the sonne of Josias, and anoynted him, and made him kyng in his fathers steade.

Ther & twentye yere olde was Joahas whā he was made kyng, & reigned thre monethes at Jerusalem. His mothers name was Hamutal & doughter of Jeremia of Libna. And he dyd & which was euell in & sight of & LORDE, even as his fathers had done. But Pharaos Necho toke him prisoner of Reblatha in the londe of Hemath, & he shulde not reigne at Jerusalem: & rayssed a tare vpon the londe, an hundredth talētes of siluer, & one talente of golde. And Pharaos Necho made Eliachim & sonne of Josias kyng in his father Josias steade, & turned his name Joachim. But Joahas toke he, & brought him in to Egypte where he dyed. And Joachim gauethe siluer & golde vnto Pharaos, yet taxed he the londe, & he mighte geue & syluer acordinge to Pharaos comaundement. Eue ry one amonge the people in & londe taxed he after his abilitie in siluer & golde, to geue it vnto Pharaos. Syne & twentye yere olde was Joachim whan he was made kyng, & reigned eleuen yeres at Jerusalem. His mothers name was Sevida & doughter of Pe daia of Ruma, & he dyd euell in the sight of the LORDE, even as his fathers had done.

The XXIII. Chapter.

In his tyme came vp Nabuchodonosor & for & kyng of Babilon, & Joachim was in subieccion vnto him iij. yere. And he turned back, & rebelled agaynst him. And & LORDE sent men of watre vpon him out of Chaldea, out of Syria, out of Moab, & fro amonge the childre of Ammon, & caused the for to come in to Iuda, to destroe it acordinge to the worde of the LORDE, which he spake by his seruantes the prophetes. It fortuned enē so vnto Iuda, & acordinge to & worde of the LORDE, that he wolde put them awaye from his presence, because of & synnes of Manasses which he dyd, & because of the innocent bloude that he shed. And he fylled Jerusalem with innocent bloude, therfore wolde not the LORDE be reconcyled.

the Cronicles of the kyniges of Juda. And Joachim fell on slepe with his fathers. And Joachim his sonne was kynge in his steade. And the kynge of Egypte came nomore out of his londe: for the kynge of Babilon had conquered all that was the kynge of Egypte, from the ryuer of Egypte vnto the water Euphrates. Eightene yeare olde was Joachim whan he was made kynge, and reigned thre monethes at Jerusalem. His mothers name was Nebustha the daughter of Elnathan of Jerusalem. And he dyd euell in the sighte of the LORDE, euen as his father had done.

C At the same tyme wente the seruantes of Nabuchodonosor kynge of Babilon vnto Jerusalem, and came vpon the cyte with ordinaunce of warre. And whan Nabuchodonosor and his seruantes came to the cite they layed sege vnto it. But Joachim & kynge of Juda wente forth to the kynge of Babilon with his mother, with his seruantes, with his rulers and chamberlaynes. And the kynge of Babilon receaued him in the eight yeare of his reigne.

A And he toke forth fro thence all the treasure in the house of the LORDE, and in the kynges house, and brake all the golden vessell & Salomon the kynge of Israel had made in the house of the LORDE (acordynge as the LORDE had sayde) and caryed awaye all Jerusalem, all the rulers, all the mightie men, euen ten thousande prisoners, and all the carpenters, and all the smithes, and lefte none behynde but the poore people of the londe.

1. Re. 31. a

The philistynes foughte agaynst Israel. And they of Israel fled before the philistynes, and 3 wounded fell vpon mount Gilboa. And the philistynes followed vpon Saul and his sonnes, and smote Jonathas, Abinadab and Malchisua 3 sonnes of Saul. And the battayll was sore a-gaynst Saul. And the archers came vpon him, so that he was wounded of the archers. Then sayde Saul vnto his weapenbearer, Drawe out thy swerde, and thrust it thorow me, that these vncircumcised come not, and deale shamefully with me. Neuertheles his weapenbearer wolde not, for he was sore afraied. Then toke Saul his swerde, and fell therein. Whan his weapenbearer sawe that Saul was deed, he fell vpon his swerde also, and dyed.

Thus dyed Saul and his thre sonnes, and all his housholde together. And whan the men of Israel which were in 3 valley, sawe that Saul and his sonnes were deed, they left their cities and fled: and the philistynes came and dwelt therein.

On the morowe came the philistynes to spoyle the slayne, and founde Saul, and his sonnes lyenge vpon mount Gelboa, and streped him out, and toke his heade, and his harness, and sent it aboute in to 3 londe of the philistynes, and caused it to be shewed before their Idoles and the people. And his weapons layed they in the house of their god, and styckte vp his heade vpon the house of Dagon.

But whan all they of Jabes in Gilead herde of euery thinge, that the philistynes had done vnto Saul, they gat them vp (as many as were men of armes) and toke the body of Saul and of his sonnes, and broughte them vnto Jabes, and buryed their bones vnder the Oke at Jabes, and fasted seven dayes.

Thus dyed Saul in his trespass which he comytred agaynst the LORDE, because he kepte not the worde of the LORDE: because he axed counsell at the soothsayers, and axed not at the LORDE, therefore slewe he him, and turned the kyngdome vnto Dauid.

The XII. Chapter.

All Israel resorted to Dauid vnto Hebron, and sayde: Behelde, we are 3 bone and thy flesh. And afore tyme whan Saul reigned, thou leddest Israel out and in. So the LORDE thy God hath sayde vnto the: Thou shalt kepe my people of Israel, and thou shalt be the pryncer ouer my people of Israel. And all the Elders of Israel came to the kyng vnto Hebron. And Dauid made a covenante with them at Hebron before the LORDE. And they anoynted Dauid to be kyng ouer Israel: accordyng to the worde of the LORDE by Samuel.

And Dauid and all Israel were vnto Jerusalem, that is Iebus: for the Jebusites dwelt in the lode. And the citesyns of Iebus saide vnto Dauid: Thou shalt not come in hither. Howbeit Dauid wane 3 castell of Iebus, which is 3 cite of Dauid. And Dauid sayde: who so euer smyteth 3 Jebusites first, shall be a pryncer & capayne. The Joab 3 sonne of Zeruia clymmed vp first, and was made capayne. So Dauid dwelt in 3 castell, therefore was it called 3 cite of Dauid. And he buylded 3 cite rounde aboute, fro Millo forth on euery syde. As for 3 remnant of 3 cite, Joab buylded it, and repayed it. And Dauid wrote forth 3 grewe, and the LORDE Zebaoth was with him.

These are 3 chese amonge 3 mightie men of Dauid, which dealt valeantly with him in his kyngdome with all Israel, to make him kyng, accordyng to the worde of 3 LORDE ouer Israel. And this is 3 nombre of Dauids mightie men: Jesbeam the sonne of Achmoni the chiefe amonge thirtie. He lifte vp his speare, and smote thre Canaanites.

After him was Eleasar the sonne of Dothai the Ahechite, and he was amonge the thre mightie. This man was with Dauid whan they blasphemed, and the philistynes gathered themselves there to 3 battayll. And eue then was there a pece of londe full of barly, and the people fled before the philistynes. And they stood in the myddes of the londe, and rescued it, and smote the philistynes. And the LORDE gaue a greate health.

And thre of the chiefe thirtie were downe to the rocke vnto Dauid in to the caue of Adullam. But the philistynes hoost laye in the valley of Rephaim. As for Dauid, he was in the castell. And the philistynes people were then at Bethleem. And Dauid was desirous, and sayde: O that some wolde geue me to drynke of the water out of the well at Bethleem vnder the gate. The thre braketose thre in to the philistynes hoost, and drue of the water out of the well at Bethleem vnder the gate, and caried it, and broughte it vnto Dauid. Neuertheles he wolde not drynke it, but poured it vnto the LORDE, and sayde: God let this be farre fro me, 3 I shal de do it, and drynke the bloude of these men in 3 parell of their life: for with the parell of their life haue they broughte it: therfore wolde he not drynke it. This dyd the thre Worthies.

Abisai the brother of Joab, he was the chiefe amonge thre. And he lifte vp his speare, and smote thre hundred. And he was famous amonge thre, and before the thirde, more honorable then the two, yet came he not vnto the thre.

The xij. Chap. Fo. lxxxij.

Benaia the sonne of Joiada the sonne of Dathai of Cabzeel, was a man of greate actes. He smote two Lyons of the Moabites. And he wente downe, and smote a Lyon in the myddes of a well in the tyme of snowe. He smote a man of Egypte also, which was fyue cubites greate of stature, and had in his hande a speare like a weeners lome. Yet wente he downe to him with a staffe, and toke the speare out of his hande, and slewe him with his awne speare. This dyd Benaia the sonne of Joiada, and was a famous man amonge thre Worthies, and most auuncient amonge thirtie. But vnto the thre came he not. Howbeit Dauid made him of his secreete counsell.

The XIII. Chapter.

The fyfth Eser, the seconde Obadia, the thyrde Eliab, the fourth Masmana, z fyfth Jeremia, the sixte Abhai, the seuenth E liel, the eight Johanna, the nyenth Elabad the tenth Jeremia, z eleuenth Machbanai. These were of the children of Gad, heades in the hoost, the leest ouer an hundreth, and z greatest ouer a thousande. These are they which in the fyfth moneth wente ouer Jor dane, whan it was full on both the shores, so that all the valleys were cauen both towar de the East and towarde the West.

There came of the children of Ben Jamin also and of Juda vnto the castell of David. But David wente forth vnto them, and an swered and sayde vnto them: Yf ye come to me in peace, and to helpe me, my hert shal be with you. But yf ye come vpo disceate, and to be mine aduersaries (where as there is yet no vnrighthe in me) the God of oure fathers loke vpon it, and rebuke it. Neuertheles the spiete endued Amasai the capayne amon ge thirtie, and he sayde: We are thine O Da uid, and holde with the thou sonne of Isai. Peace, peace be with the, peace be with thy helpers, for thy God helpeth the. Then Da uid receaued them, and made them captay nes ouer the men of warre.

And of Manasses there fell certaine vnto David, whan he came to the battayll with the philistynes agaynst Saul, and helped them not, for the prynces of z philistynes counceled to let him go from them, and say de: Yf he fell vnto his lorde Saul, it mighte cost vs oure neckes. Now whā he departed vnto Siclag, there fell vnto him of Manas ses, Adna, Josabad, Jediel, Michael, Josa bad, Elihu, Silthai, heades ouer thousandes in Manasses. And they helped David a-gaunst the men of warre: for they were all va leant Worthies, and were captaynes ouer the hoost. And every daye came there some to David, to helpe him, till there was a grea te hoost as an hoost of God.

And this is the nombre of the heades harnessed vnto the warre, which came to Da uid vnto Hebron, for to turne the kyngdome of Saul vnto him, accordyng to the worde of the LORDE.

The childre of Juda, which handled spea res and swerdes, were sixe thousande, z eight hundreth ready harnessed vnto z warre. Of the children of Simeon noble men of armes for the battayll, seuen thousande and an hu drieth. Of the children of Levi foure thousan de and sixe hundreth. And Joiada the pry nce amonge them of Aaron with thre thou sande and seuen hundreth. Sadoc the yonge valeant man of armes with his fathers house, two and twentye rulers. Of the chil dren of Ben Jamin Sauls brother, thre thou sande: for vnto that time helde many of the yet with the house of Saul.

Of z children of Ephraim, twentie thou sande and eighte hundreth valeant men of armes, and famous in the house of their fa thers. Of the halfe trybe of Manasses, eigh ten thousande, named by name, to come and make David kyng. Of the children of Ja char (which were men of vnderstandyng, whan nede requyred to knowe what Israel shulde do) two hundreth captaynes, and all their biethrien folowed their worde. Of Sa bulon, soch as wente forth in the hoost to z warre, ready with all maner of weapens for the battayll, fyfye thousande, beyng of o ne mynde to kepe them selues in ordie.

Of Nephtali, a thousande captaynes, z with them soch as handled shyld and spea re, seuen and thyrty thousande. Of Dan, re dy harnessed to the battayll, eight and twen tye thousande, and sixe hundreth. Of Asser, soch as wente forth in y hoost, ready harnes sed to the battayll, fortye thousande. From beyonde Jordane, of the Rubenites, Gadites and the halfe trybe of Manasses, with all maner of weapens to the battayll, an hu drieth and twentye thousande.

All these men of warre, ready harnessed to the battayll, came with a whole hert vnto Hebron, to make David kyng ouer all Is rael. And all Israel besyde were of one hert, that David shulde be made kyng. And the re were they with David thre dayes, earynge and drynkyng: for their biethrien had prepared for them. And soch neighbours were aboute them vntyll Isachar, Zabulon and Nephtali, brought bried vpon Asses, Ca mels, Mules and oxen to eate: meel, fyges, ra sens, wyne, oyle, oxen, shepe, very many: for there was ioye in Israel.

The XIII. Chapter.

David helde a counsell with the captaynes ouer thousandes and ouer hundreds, and with all the prynces, and sayde vnto all the congregacion of Is rael: Yf it lyke you, and yf it be of the LOR DE oure God, let vs sende forth on euery sy de to oure other biethrien in all the countrees of Israel, and to the prestes and Levites in the cities where they haue suburbs, z they maye be gathered together vnto vs, and let vs fetch the Arke of oure God agayne vnto vs: for by Sauls tyme we ayed after it. The sayde the whole cōgregacion, that the same shulde be done, for it pleased all the people well.

So David gathered all Israel together from Sihor of Egipte, tyll a man come vn to Hemath, to fetch the Arke of God from Biriath Jearim. And David wente vp w all Israel to Biriath Jearim, which lieth in Juda, to bryng from thence the Arke of God the LORDE, that sitteth vpo the Che rubins, where the name is named: and they caused the Arke of God to be caried vpo a new cart from the house of Abinadab.

Ufa and his biethrien drewe the cart. As for David and all Israel, they played with all their strength before God, with songes, with harpes, with psalteries, with tabietres, with Cymbales and trompes.

But whan they came to the barne floore of Chidon, Ufa stretched out his hande to holde the Arke: for the oxen wente out asyde. Then waxed the wiath of the LORDE fearce ouer Ufa, z smote him, because he stretched out his hāde to the Arke, so y he dyed there before God. The was David fory, because y LORDE had made soch a rente vpo Ufa, and called the place Perez Ufa, vnto this daye. And David stode in feare of God the same daye, z sayde: How shal I bryng z Arke of God vnto me? Therfore wolde he not let z Arke of God be broughte vnto him in to z cite of David, but caried it in to z house of Obed Edom the Gathite. So the Arke of God abode with Obed Edom in his house thre monethes. And y LORDE blessed Obed Edoms house and all that he had.

The XV. Chapter.

Ufa and Hiram y kyng of Tyre sent mes sangers vnto David and Cedre tym ber, and masons and carpenters, to buylde him an house. And David perceaued, that the LORDE had confirmed him kyng ouer Israel: for his kyngdome increased for his people of Israels sake. And David toke yet mo wyues at Jerusalem, z begat yet mo son nes z doughters. And the names of them y were borne vnto him at Jerusalem, are the se: Samma, Sobab, Nathan, Salomon, Jebhar, Elisua, Elipaler, Uoga, Nepheg, Japhia, Elisanima, Baal Jada, Elipaler.

And whan the philistynes herde that David was anoynted kyng ouer all Israel, they wente vp all to seke David. Whan Da uid herde that, he wente forth agaynst them. And the philistynes came, and scatered the selues beneth in y valley of Rephaim. And David ayed counsell at God, z sayde: Shal I go vp agaynst the philistynes? and wilt thou delyuer them in to my hande? The LOR DE sayde vnto him: Go vp, and I wil dely uer them in to thy hande. And whan they were gone vp to Baal Prasim, David smote them there. And David sayde: God hath deuyled myne enemies thorow my hande, euen as the water parteth asunder: therfore called they the place Baal Prasim. And the re leste they their goddes. Then comman ded David to burne them with fyre.

But the philistynes gat them thither a gayne, and scatered them selues beneth in y valley. And David ayed counsell at God agayne. And God sayde vnto him: Thou shalt not go vp behynde them, but turne the from them, that thou mayest come vpon the ouer agaynst the peertrees. So whan thou hearest aboue vpon the peertrees the noyse of the goyng, go thou forth then to the ba tayll: for God is gone forth then before the to smyte the hoost of the philistynes. And David dyd as God commanded him. And they smote the hoost of the philistynes from Gibeon forth vnto Gaser. And Davids na me was noysed out in all londes. And the LORDE caused y feare of him to come vpo all the heythen.

The XVI. Chapter.

Ufa he buylde him houses in the cite of David, z made ready a place for y Arke of God, z pitched a Tabernacle for it. At that tyme sayde David: The Ar ke of God is not to be borne, but onely of y Levites: for them hath the LORDE cho sen to beare the Arke of the LORDE, and to mynister vnto him for ever. Therfore gathe red David all Israel together vnto Jerusa lem, to bryng up the Arke of the LORDE unto the place which he had prepared for it.

And David broughte the children of Aaron & the Levites together. Of the children of Abiathar: Oziel the chiefe & his brethren, an C. and twentye. Of the children of Merari: Asaia the chiefe & his brethren, two C. and twentye. Of the children of Gerson: Joel the chiefe & his brethren, an C. and thirtie. Of the children of Elizaphan: Semaia the chiefe & his brethren, two hundred. Of the children of Hebron: Eliel the chiefe, with his brethren, foure score. Of the children of Usiel: Amminadab the chiefe, with his brethren, an hundred and twelue.

B And David called Sadoc and Abiathar the prestes, and the Levites, namely Oziel, Asaia, Joel, Semaia, Eliel, Amminadab, and sayde vnto them: Ye are the heades of the fathers amonge the Levites: sanctifye y<sup>e</sup> selues therfore & youre brethren, & ye maye brynge vp the Arke of the LORDE God of Israel, to the place & I haue prepared for it.

Par. 4. b * For afore whan ye were not there, the LORDE oure God made a rent amonge vs, because we soughte him not, as we shulde haue done. So the prestes & the Levites halowed the selues, & they mighte brynge vp the Arke of the LORDE God of Israel. And the children of Levi bare the Arke of God the LORDE vpon their shulders with the stauers thereon, xx. 3. b as Moses commaunded accordinge to the worde of the LORDE.

And David spake vnto the rulers of the Levites, that they shulde ordeyne some of their brethren to be syngers with psalteries, harpes and loude instrumentes, and Cymbales, to synge loude with ioye.

C Then the Levites appoynted Heman & sonne of Joel: and of his brethren Assaph the sonne of Barachias: and of the children of Merari their brethren, Ethan the sonne of Cusaia: and with them their brethren of the seconde course, namely Zacharias, Jaesiel, Semiramoth, Jehiel, Unni, Eliab, Benaia, Maaseia, Machibia, Eliphecia, Mikneia, Obed EDOM, Jeiel, the doore keepers. For Heman, Assaph and Ethan were syngers, with brasen belles makinge a loude noyse: but Zacharias, Jaesiel, Semiramoth, Jehiel, Unni, Eliab, Maaseia & Benaia with psalteries to Alamoth: Machibia, Eliphecia, Mikneia, Obed EDOM, Jeiel & Asaia with harpes to synge aboue them on hye. Chenania the ruler of the Levites was the master of Musick to teach them for to synge, for he was a man of vnderstandinge.

And Barachias and Elcana were the dorekeepers of the Arke. But Sachania, Josphar, Nathaneel, Amasai, Zacharias, Benaia, Eliezer the prestes, blew the trompettes before the Arke of God. And Obed EDOM and Jehia were doorekeepers of the Arke.

So David and the Elders of Israel, and the captaynes ouer thousandes wente vnto fetch the Arke of the couenaunt of the LORDE out of the house of Obed EDOM with ioye. And whan God had helped the Levites & bare the Arke of the LORDES couenaunt, there were offred seven bullockes & seven rames, And David had a lynnè garment vpon him, and so had all the Levites & bare the Arke, and the syngers, and Chenania the master of Musick & the syngers. David had an ouerbody care of linnen vpon him also.

Thus all Israel brought vp the Arke of the couenaunt of the LORDE with mynth, with trompettes, tabrettes, & loude Cymbales, with psalteries and harpes. Now whan the Arke of the couenaunt of the LORDE came in to the cite of David, Michol & daughter of Saul looked out at a wyndowe: & when she sawe kynge David dauncynge & playynge, she despyed him in hir hert.

The XVII. Chapter.

When whā they brought in the Arke of God, they set it in the Tabernacle, that David had pitched for it, and offred burnt offerynges & thank offerynges before God. And whā David had ended the burnt offerynges and thank offerynges, he blessed the people in the name of the LORDE, & distributed vnto every man in Israel (boch vnto man and woman) a cake of bred, and a peece of flesh and a meece of potage.

And he appoynted before the Arke of the LORDE certayne Levites to mynister, that they shulde geue prayse, thankes and laudes vnto the LORDE God of Israel: namely Assaph the first, Zacharias the seconde, Jeiel, Semiramoth, Jehiel, Machibia, Eliab, Benaia, Obed EDOM and Jehiel, with psalteries and harpes. But Assaph with loude Cymbales. Benaia and Jehasiel the prestes with tabrettes, allwaye before the Arke of the couenaunt of God.

At the same tyme ordeyned David first of all to geue thankes vnto the LORDE by Assaph and his brethren.

O geue thankes vnto the LORDE, call vpon his name, tell the people what thynges he hath done.

O let youre songes be of him: prayse him, and let youre talkynge be of all his wondrous workes.

Geue his holy name a good reporte: let the hart of them reioyce, that seke the LORDE.

O seke the LORDE and his strength, seke his face enmore.

Remembre his marvelous workes that he hath done, his wonders, and the iudgements of his mouth.

Re sede of Israel his seruauit, ye children of Jacob his chosen.

He is the LORDE oure God, his iudgements are in all londes.

C Be mynde full euer of his couenaunt what he hath commaunded in to a thousande generations.

* Which he made with Abraham, & his oath vnto Isaac.

And he confirmed the same vnto Jacob for a perpetuall lawe, and to Israel for an euerlastinge couenaunt.

And sayde: Vnto the wyl I geue & londe of Canaan, & metelyne of y<sup>e</sup> inheritauce.

Whā they were yet but small & fewe in n<sup>o</sup>bre, and straungers in the same londe.

And they wente from one nation to another, & from one realme to another people.

He suffred no man to hurte them, and reproved euen kynge for their sakes.

* Touch not myne anoynted, & do my prophetes no harme.

O synge vnto the LORDE, let all the earth be tellinge of his saluacion from daye to daye.

Declare his holynes amonge the heathen, & his wonderous workes amonge the people.

For the LORDE is greate, and can not worthely be praysed, and more to he had in awethen all goddes.

As for all the goddes of the heathen, they are but Idols: * but it is the LORDE that made the heauens.

Thankes geuynge and worshipec are before him, strength and ioye is in his place.

Ascrybe vnto the LORDE ye kynreds of nations: ascrybe vnto the LORDE worshipec and strength.

Ascrybe vnto the LORDE the honoure of his name: brynge presentes, and come before him, and worshipec the LORDE in the bewtye of holynes.

Let the whole earth stande in awe of him: he hath made the compasse of the worlde so fast, that it can not be moued.

Let the heauens reioyse, and let the earth be glad: and let it be tolde amonge the heathen, that the LORDE reigneth.

Let the See make a noyse, and the fulnesse thereof: let the selde be ioyfull, and all that therein is.

The xvij. Chap. Fo. lxxxvi.

Let all the trees in the wod leape for ioye before the LORDE, for he commaundeth to iudge the earth.

O geue thankes vnto the LORDE, for he is gracious: and his mercy endureth for euer.

And saye: Helpe vs O God oure Saviour, and gather vs together, and deliuer vs from the heathen, that we maye geue thankes vnto the holy name, and synge prayses vnto the in thy psalmes.

Praysed be the LORDE God of Israel from euerlastinge to euerlastinge: and let all people saye, Amen, And: Prayse be vnto the LORDE.

So he lefte Assaph and his brethren there before the Arke of the couenaunt of the LORDE, to mynister allwaye before the Arke, every daye his daye worke. But Obed EDOM and their brethren, eight and threescore, and Obed EDOM the sonne of Jedithun, and Hosai, to be doorekeepers. And Sadoc the prest, & his brethren the prestes, lest he before the habitacon of the LORDE vpon the hye place at Gibeon, to offre burnt sacrifices daylie vnto the LORDE vpon the altare of burnt offerynges in the mornynge & in the euenynge, as it is wyrtten in the lawe of the LORDE, which he commaunded vnto Israel. And with them Heman & Jedithun, and other chosen, which were named by name to geue thankes vnto the LORDE, because his mercy endureth for euer. And with them Heman & Jedithun to stryke vpon the tabrettes and Cymbales, and the muscical instrumentes of God. As for the children of Jedithun, he made them doorekeepers. So all the people departed, every one to his house: and David returned also to blesse his house.

The XVIII. Chapter.

It fortuned whā David dwelt in his house, he sayde vnto the prophet Nathan: Beholde, I dwell in a house of Cedar, and the Arke of the couenaunt of the LORDE is amonge the curtaynes.

Nathan saide vnto David: What so euer is in thine hert, that do: for God is with the. But the same night came the worde of God vnto Nathan, and sayde: Go and speake to David my seruauit: Thus sayeth the LORDE: Thou shalt not buylde me an house to be an habitacon: for I haue dwelt in no house sence the daye that I broughte forth the children of Israel, vnto this daye: But where the Tabernacle and habitacon hath bene, there haue I bene where so euer I haue walked in all Israel. the Judges in Israel (whom I commaunded to kepe my people) and sayde: Wherefore do ye not buyde me an house of Cedre tymber?

B So shalt thou speake now vnto my seruauunt David: Thus sayeth the LORDE Zebaoth: I toke the from the pasture behynde the shepe, that thou shuldest be the prynce ouer my people, and haue bene with the whither so euer thou wertest, and haue roted out all thine enemies before the, and haue made the a name, accordinge to the name of the greates men that are vpon earch. And for my people of Israel, I wyll appoynte them a place, and wyl plante them, that they maye dwell there, and nomore to be remoued. And the childre of wickednes shal oppresse them nomore, like as afore tyme, whan I commaunded the Judges ouer my people of Israel. And I wyl subdue all thine enemies, and do declare vnto the, that the LORDE wyl buyde the an house.

B But whan thy dayes are fulfilled, that thou departest hence with y fathers, I wyl after the raise vp y sede, which shall be eue one of thy sonnes: his Kyngdome wyl I stablish, he shal buyde me an house, z I wyl make his seate sure for euer. I wyl be his father, and he shal be my sonne. And I wyl not withdraue my mercy from him, as I haue withdrawen it fro him that was before the: But I wyl set him in my house and in my Kyngdome for euer, so that his seate shalbe sure for euermore.

C And whā Nathan had spoken vnto David accordinge to all these wordes z all this vision, Kyng David came and sat him downe before the LORDE, and sayde: O LORDE God, what am I? and what is my house, y thou hast brought me thus farre: And this (O God, hast thou thoughte yet to litle, but hast spoken of thy seruantes house yet longe for to come. And thou LORDE God hast looked downe vpon me from above, even as one man looketh vpon another. What more shal David saye vnto the, y thou bringest y seruauunt to soch honoure? Thou knowest thy seruauunt O LORDE, for thy seruantes sake and accordinge to thy hert hast thou done all these greates thinges, that thou mightest shewe all greates thinges vnto thy seruauunt. LORDE, there is none lyk the, and there is no God but thou, of whom we haue herde with oure eares. And where is there a people vpon earth as thy people of Israel, where God wente to deliuer him a people, and to make him selfe a name thorow greates terrible thinges, to cast out the heychen before thy people, whom thou hast deliuered out of Egypte: and y people of Israel hast thou made y people for euer, and thou LORDE art become their God.

Now LORDE, let the worde be verified for euer, that thou hast spoken ouer thy seruauunt and ouer his house, z do as thou hast spoken: and let thy name endure and be magnified for euer, that it maye sayde: The LORDE Zebaoth, the God of Israel is the God in Israel, and that the house of thy seruauunt David maye be stablyshed before the: for thou LORDE hast opened the eare of y seruauunt, that thou wilt buyde him an house. Therfore hath thy seruauunt founde (confidence) to make his prayer before the. Now LORDE, thou art God, and hast promysed soch good vnto thy seruauunt. Begynne now to blesse the house of thy seruauunt, that it maye be euermore before the: for loke what thou blessest (O LORDE) the same is blessed for euer.

The XIX. Chapter.

After this smote David the philistynes, and subdued them, and toke Gath z the villages therof out of the hande of the philistynes. He smote the Moabites likewise, so that the Moabites were subdued vnto David, and gaue him tribute. He smote Hadad Eser also y Kyng of Zoba in Zemarh, whan he wente to set vp his power by the water Euphrates.

And David toke from him a thousande charrettes, seven thousande hoisemen, and twe tye thousande fore men. And David lamed all the charrettes, and kepte an hundred charrettes ouer. And the Syrians came from Damascus, to helpe Hadad Eser the Kyng of Zoba. Howbeit David smote two z twentie thousande of the same Syrians, and layed men of warre at Damascus in Syria, so that the Syrians were subdued vnto David, and broughte him tribute. For the LORDE helped David, whither so euer he wente.

And David toke the shylbes of golde, y Hadad Eser's seruantes had, z broughte the to Jerusalem. And out of Tibeath z Chon the cities of Hadad Eser, toke David very moch brasse, whereof Salomon made the brasen lauer, and pilers, and brasen vessels.

And whā Thogu the Kyng of Zemarh herde, y David had smytten all y power of Hadad Eser, he sent his sonne Hadad vnto Kyng David, to salute him z to blesse him, because he had foughte w Hadad Eser, z smytte hī (for Thogu had warre w Hadad Eser)

The i. boke of the Cronicles.

and all the same vessels of golde, syluer and of brasse, dyd Kyng David consecrate vnto the LORDE, with the syluer and golde that he had taken from the heychen, namely, from the Edomites, Moabites, Ammonites, philistynes, and Amalechites.

C And Abisai the sonne of Zeru Ja smote eightene thousande of the Edomites in the Salt valley, and layed me of warre in Edom, so that all the Edomites were subdued vnto David: for y LORDE helped David, whither so euer he wente.

Thus David reigned ouer all Israel, and executed iudgment and righteounes vnto all the people. Joab the sonne of Zeru Ja was captaune ouer the hoost. Josaphat the sonne of Achitob, and Ahimelech y sonne of Abiathar, were prestes. Sausa was scribe. Benaia the sonne of Joiada was ouer the Chethians z pethians. And David's sonnes were chiefe at y Kynges hande.

The XX. Chapter.

After this dyed Nabal y Kyng of the childre of Ammon, and his sonne was Kyng in his steade. Then sayde David: I wil do mercy vpon Hanun the sonne of Nabal, for his father dyd mercy vpon me: and so he sent messaungers to comforte him ouer his father. And whā David's seruantes came in to the londe of the childre of Ammon vnto Hanun to comforte him, the prynces of the childre of Ammon sayde vnto Hanun: Thinkest thou that David honoureth thy father in thy sight, that he hath sent comforters vnto the? See his seruantes are come vnto the, to search and to ouerthrowe, and to spye out the londe. Then toke Hanun the seruantes of David, and shoue them, z cut the halfe of their garmettes of, eue by the loynes, z so let the go. And they wence their waye, z sent men to tell David. Neuertheles he sent to mete them (for y men were put to greates shame) and the Kyng sayde: Abide at Jericho, tyll youre beedes be growne, and then come agayne.

Whan the childre of Ammon sawe, that they stynted in y sighte of David, both Hanun and the childre of Ammon sent a thousande talentes of syluer, to hyre charrettes and hoisemen out of Mesopotannia, out of Maacha and out of Zoba: and hyed two and thirtie thousande charrettes, z y Kyng of Maacha with his people, which came z pitched their tentes before Medba. And the childre of Ammon gathered them selues together out of their cities, and came to the battayll.

The xx. Chap. Fo. lxxxvii.

Whan David herde that, he sent Joab thither with all the hoost of the men of armes. And the childre of Ammon were gone forth, and prepared them selues to the battayll before the gate of the cite. But the Kynges y were come, kepte them asyde in the felde.

C Now whā Joab sawe that the battayll was agaynst him both before and behynde, he chose of all the best yonge men in Israel, and prepared him selfe agaynst y Syrians. As for y residue of the people, he put them vnder the hande of Abisai his brother, that they shulde prepare them selues agaynst the childre of Ammon, and he sayde: If y Syrians be to mighty for me, helpe thou me: but if the childre of Ammon be to stroge for y, I shall helpe the: take a good corage vnto the, and let vs quyte oure selues manly for oure people and for the cities of oure God: neuertheles the LORDE do what pleaseth him. And Joab made him forth with y people that was with him, to fighte agaynst y Syrians: z they fled before him. And whan the childre of Ammon sawe y the Syrians fled, they fled also before Abisai his brother, and wente in to the cite. And Joab came to Jerusalem.

D But whan the Syrians sawe that they were smytte before Israel, they sent messaungers, and broughte forth y Syrians which were beyonde the water. And Sophach the chiefe captaune of Hadad Eser wente before them. Whā this was tolde David, he gathered all Israel together, and wente ouer Jordane. And whan he came at them, he set y battayll in aray agaynst them. And David prepared him selfe to y battayll agaynst y Syrians, z they foughte with him: but y Syrians fled before Israel. And David slewe of the Syrians seven thousande charrettes, z fortye thousande fore men. And Sophach the chiefe captaune slewe he also. And whan Hadad Eser's seruantes sawe that they were smytte before Israel, they made peace w David z his seruantes. And the Syrians wolde helpe the childre of Ammon nomore.

The XXI. Chapter.

After whā y yeare came aboute, what tyme as y Kynges use to go forth, Joab broughte the power of the hoost, z destroyed the londe of the childre of Ammon, and came and layed sege vnto Rabba. But David abode at Jerusalem. And Joab smote Rabba, and brake it downe. And David toke their Kynges crowne from his heade, and founde the weighte of a talent of golde theron, z precious stones. And it was set vpo Davids heade. And very moch spoy le caried he out of the cite. As for the peo ple that were therin, he broughte the forth, & parted them in sunder w saxes, & hokes & betels of yron. Thus dyd David vnto all & cities of the childre of Ammon. And David departed againe, with the people vnto Je rusalem.

B Afterwarde arose there warre at Gasar with the Philistynes. Then Sibechai & Hu sathire smote Sibai, which was one of the childien of Achaim, and he subdued him. And there arose warre agayne w the Philis ty nes. The Elhamah & sonne of Jair smote Lahemi & brother of Goliath & Gathite, whose speares staff was like a weeners leme. Afterwarde was there a battayll at Gath, where there was a man of a greate stature, & had sixe fyngers and sixe toes, which ma ke foure and twentye. And he was borne al so of Rapha, and spake despytefully vnto Israel. But Jonathas the sonne of Simea Davids brother smote him. These were the childre of Rapha at Gath, & fell thorow & hande of David, and of his seruantes.

The XXII. Chapter.

Uld Sathan stode agaynst Israel, & entysed David to nombre Israel. And David sayde vnto Joab & to & rulers of the people: Go ye waye, nombre Israel from Bersaba vnto Dan, and brynge me the nom bre of the, that I maye knowe it. Joab sayde: The LORDE make his people an hun dieth tymes mo then they are now. But my lorde & kynge, are they not all my lordes & r uantes? Why doth my lorde then are ther after? Wherfore shal there a trespase come vpon Israel?

Nevertheless the kynges worde preuailed agaynst Joab. And Joab wente forth, and walked thorow all Israel, and came to Jeru salem, and deliuered vnto David & nombre of the people that was tolde. And of all Is rael there were a thousande tymes a thou sande, and an hundred thousande men, that dme out the swerde: and of Juda foure hun dieth thousande and seutye thousande men, which dme out the swerde. As for Levi and Ben Jamin, he nombred them not amonge the: for the kynges worde was at homina ble vnto Joab.

B But this displeased God righte sore: for he smote Israel. And David sayde vnto God: I haue synned greuously, that I haue done this. But now take awaye the trespas ce of thy seruant: for I haue done very vn wysely. And the LORDE spake vnto Gad

Davids Seer, & sayde: So speake to David, & saye: Thus saith the LORDE: The thing ges laye I before the, chose y one of them, & I maye do it vnto the. And whā Gad came to David, he spake vnto him: Thus sayeth the LORDE: Chose & ether thie yeare death, or thie monethes to flye before thine aduersa ries, & beset the swerde of thine enemies, & it maye ouertake the: or thie dayes & swere of the LORDE, & pestilence in the londe, & the angell of the LORDE maye destroye in all & coastes of Israel. Loke now what answer I shal geue vnto him & sent me. David say de vnto Gad: I am in greate trouble: wyl I rather fall in to & hande of the LOR DE, for his mercy is exceedynge greare, & I wil not fall in to the handes of men.

Then dyd the LORDE cause pestilence to come into Israel, so that there fell of Israel thie score & ten thousande me. And God sent the angell to Jerusalem for to destroye it. And even in the destruccion the LORDE conside red, and he repeted of the euell, and sayde vnto the angell & destroyer: It is ynough, hol de now thy hande.

The angell of the LORDE stode besyde & barne of Arnan & Jebusite. And David lif te vp his eyes, and sawe the angell of & LOR DE stondinge betwene heauē and earth, and a naked swerde in his hande stretched ouer Jerusalem. Then David and & Elders beyng clothed with sack cloth, fell vpo their faces. And David sayde vnto God: Am not I he that caused the people to be nombred? I am he that hath synned and done euill: as for these shepe, what haue they done? LORDE my God, let thine hande be agaynst me and agaynst my fathers house, and not agaynst thy people to plage them.

And the angell sayde vnto Gad, that he shulde speake vnto David, that David shul de shulde go vp, & set vp an altare in the bar ne of Arnan the Jebusite. So David went vp acordinge to & reorde of Gad, which he spake in the name of the LORDE. But whā Arnan turned him, and sawe the angell (and his foure sonnes with him) they hyd the sel ues: for Arnan throsshed wheate.

Now whan David came to Arnan, Ar nan loked, and was aware of David, and wete forth out of the barne, and worshipped David with his face to the grounde. And David sayde vnto Arnan: Geue me rowme in the barne, to buylde an altare vnto the LORDE therin: for & full money shal thou geue it me, that the plage maye cease from the people.

But Arnan sayde vnto David: Take it vnto the, and let my lorde the kynge do as pleaseth him. Beholde, that ore geue I for a burnt offeringe, and those vessels to the ore, and wheate for the meat offeringe, I geue it all. Nevertheless the kynge sayde vnto Ar nan: Not so, but for & full money wyl I bye it: for that which is thine wyl not I take for the LORDE, and offre a burnt offeringe for naughte.

E So David gaue Arnan for & rowme, sixe hundred. Syckles of golde in weight. And there buylde David an altare vnto & LOR DE, & offred burnt offerings & slayn offeringes. And whan he called vpo the LORDE, he herde him thorow the fyre from heauē vpon & altare of the burnt offeringe. And & LOR DE sayde vnto the angell, that he shulde put his swerde in to his sheeth.

At the sametyme whā David sawe, that the LORDE had herde him vpon the come floore of Arnan & Jebusite, he dyd sacrifice there. For & habitacion of & LORDE which Moses had made in the wyldernes, and the altare of burnt offerings, was at that ty me in the hye place at Gibeon. But David coude not go thither to seke God before it, for he feared the swerde of the LORDES an gell. And David sayde: Here shal be & hou se of God & LORDE, and this the altare of burnt offerings for Israel.

The XXIII. Chapter.

Uld David commaunded to gather to gether the straungers that were in & londe of Israel, and appoynted ma sons to hewe stone for the buyldinge of the house of God. And David prepared moch yron for nales in the doores of the portes, and for such thinges as were to be naled toge ther, and so moch brasfe, that is was not to be weyed: and Cedre trees innumerable: for they of Zidon & Tyre brought David moch Cedre tymber: for David thoughte, Saloms my sonne is but a childe and tender: But the house that shal be buylde vnto the LORDE, shal be greate, that his name & prayse maye be exalted in all londes, therefore wyl I pro uide for him. So David made greate prouy sion before his death.

B And he called Salomon his sonne, & com maunded him to buylde the house of LOR DE God of Israel, and sayde vnto him: My sonne, I was minded to buylde an house vnto the name of the LORDE my God, but the worde of & LORDE came vnto me, and say de: Thou hast shed moch bloude, and stry cken many battayls, therefore shalt thou not buylde an house vnto my name, for as moch as thou hast shed so moch bloude vpon the earth before me. Beholde, the sonne which shal be borne vnto the, shal be a quyet man: and I wyl cause him to be in rest from al his enemies on euery syde, for his name shal be Salomon: for I wyl geue peace and rest vpon Israel as longe as he lyueth. He shal buylde an house vnto my name. He shal be my sonne, and I wyl be his father. And I wyl stablyshe & seate of his kyngdome vpo Israel for euer.

Now my sonne, the LORDE shal be wyth the, and thou shalt prospere, that thou may est buylde an heuse vnto the LORDE thy God, acordynge as he hath spoken of the. The LORDE also shal geue the wysdome & vnderstondynge, and shal commytte Israel vnto the, that thou mayest kepe the lawe of the LORDE thy God. But then shal thou prospere, yf thou take hede to do after the ordynaunces and lawes which the LORDE commaunded Moses vnto Israel. Be stronge, and take a good corage vnto the, feare not, and be not faynt harted. Beholde, I haue in my pouerte prouyded for the house of the LORDE, an hundred thousande ta lentes of golde, and a thousande tymes a thousande talentes of syluer, and brasfe and yron without nombre: for there is so moch of it.

And tymber and stone haue I prepared, thou mayest get more therof. Thou hast many workmen also, mesons and carpenters in stone and tymber, and all maner of men that haue vnderstondinge in all worke off golde, syluer, brasfe, and yron without nom bre. Yet get the vp, and be doynge, and the LORDE shal be with the.

And David commaunded all the rulers of Israel, to helpe Salomon his sonne, and sayde: Is not the LORDE youre God with you, and hath geuen you rest on euery syde? for he hath deliuered the inhabitants of the londe in to youre handes, and the londe is subdued before the LORDE and before his people. Geue ouer youre hert now therfore and youre soule, to seke the LORDE youre God, and get you vp, and buylde a Sanc tuary vnto the LORDE God, that the Arke of the couenaint of the LORDE and the ho ly vessels of God, maye be brought in to the house, which shal be buylde vnto the name of the LORDE. So David made Salomon his sonne kynge ouer Israel, whan he him self was olde, and had lynyed ynough.

Nevertheless he ordeyned them by lot, because that both the pryncipall of the children of Eleasar and of Jethamar were in & Sanctuary, and chese before God. Amonge Dan was Asarel the sonne of Jeroham. These are the princes of the trybes of Israel.

But David toke not the nombre of them that were twentye yere olde and there vnder: for the LORDE had promysed to multiplye Israel as the starres of the skie. * Howbeit Joab the sonne of Zeruia had begonne to nombre them, and persourmed it not: for there came wrath vpon Israel for the same cause, therfore came not the nombre in to & Cronicles of Kinge David.

Ouer the Kinges treasures was Asmaueth the sonne of Adiel. And ouer the treasures in the lode, in the cities, villages and castels was Jonathan the sonne of Osa. Ouer the husbandmen to till the londe was Esri the sonne of Chelub. Ouer the vynyardes was Simeel the Ramathite. Ouer the wyne Cellers and treasures of wyne was Sadi the Siphumite. Ouer the oyle gardens and Molbertyrees in the lowe felde, was Baal Hanan the Gaderite. Ouer the treasure of the oyle was Joas. Ouer y open of the pasture at Saron was Sitari the Saronite. Ouer the open in the valleys was Saphath the sonne of Adlai.

Ouer the Camels was Obil the Ismaelite. Ouer the asses was Jehethia the Meronothite. Ouer the shepe was Jasis the Hagarite. All these were rulers ouer Kinge Davids goodes. Jonathan Davids vncle was of the counsell a wysse man and a scribe. And Jehiel the sonne of Zachmon <sup>1. Re. 16. d</sup> was with the kynges children. Achitophel also was of the kynges counsell. Hysai the Arachite was the kynges frende. After Achitophel was Jojada & sonne of Benaia and Abiathar. As for Joab, he was the kynges chiefe captayne of warre.

The XXIX. Chapter.

<sup>a. Re. 7. a</sup> And David gathered vnto Jerusalem all the rulers of Israel, namely & prynces of the trybes, the rulers ouer the courses, which wayted vpon the kyng, the captaynes ouer thousandes and ouer hundreds, the rulers ouer the goodes and catell of the kyng and of his sonnes, with the chāberlaines, warryers and valeaunt men. And David the kyng stode vp vpon his fete, and saide: Heare me my brethien and my people: <sup>1. Par. 23. b</sup> I was mynded to buylde an house, where the Arke of the couenaunt of the LORDE shulde rest, and a fete stole for the fete of oure God, and prepared my selfe for to buylde. But God sayde vnto me: Thou shalt not buylde an house vnto my name, for thou art a man of warre, and hast shed bloude.

And thou my sonne Salomon, knowe thou the God of thy father, and serue him with all thy hert, and with the desyre of thy soule: for the LORDE searcheth all hertes, and vnderstandeth all thoughtes & ymaginacions. If thou seke him, thou shalt fynde him: but yf thou forsake him, he shall refuse the for euer. Take hede now, for the LORDE hath chosen the, to buylde an house to be the Sanctuary: be stronge, and make it.

And David gaue Salomon his sonne a patrone of the porche, and of his house, and of the celles and perlers and ynnner chambers, and of the house of the Mercysseate, of all that he had in his mynde, namely of the courtes of the LORDES house, and of all the oratories rounde aboute the treasures of the house of God, and of the treasures of shethinges as were halowed, of the ordinances of the prestes, and Levites, and of all the busynesse of the offyces in the house of the LORDE.

Golde (gaue he him) after & golde weight for all maner of vessels of enery offyce, and all siluer ornaments after the weight for all maner of vessell of enery offyce: and weight for the golden candilsticks and golden lampes, for enery candilsticke and his lampes his weight: likewise for the siluer candilsticks gaue he the weight to the candilsticks: his lampes, accordyng as was requyred for enery candilsticke. He gaue golde also for tables of the shewbred, for enery table his weight: and siluer likewise for the siluer tables. And pure golde for the fleshyokes, besens and censors: and for the golden cuppes, vnto enery cuppe his weight: and for the siluer cuppes, vnto enery cuppe his weight: and for the altare of incense his weight, of the most pure golde.

And a patrone of the charett of the golden Cherubins, that they mighte spiede out them selues, and couer the Arke of the couenaunt of the LORDE. All this is geuen me in wytyng of the hande of the LORDE, to make me vnderstande all the workes of the patrone.

And David sayde vnto Salomon his sonne: Be thou manly and stronge, and make it, feare not, and be not fayntharted, the LORDE God my God shal be with the, and shall not withdraue his hande, ner fayle the: yll thou haue fynished enery worke for the seruice in the house of the LORDE. Beholde, the courses of the prestes and Levites to all the offyces in the house of God are with the in enery worke, and are willinge, and haue comēdome to all the offyces: and so haue the prestes and all the people for enery thinge that thou hast to do.

The XXX. Chapter.

<sup>a. b</sup> <sup>a. c</sup> And kyng David sayde vnto all the congregacion: God hath chosen Salomon one of my sonnes, which yet is yonge and tender. But the worke is greater: for it is not a mans palace, but the LORDE Gods. Yet haue I after all my abilitie pre-red vnto the house of God, golde for the vessels of golde, siluer for them of siluer, brasse for them of brasse, yron for the of yron, wood for them of wood, Onix stones, set Rubyes, & stones of dyuerse coloures, & all precious stones, & Marble stones in multytude. Besydes this, for the good wyl & I haue to the house of God, I haue of myne awne proper good thre M. talētes of golde of Ophir, & seuen M. talētes of pure siluer, which I geue vnto the holy house of God, besyde all & I haue prepared, to ouerlaye & walles of the house, & the same which ought to be of golde, maye be of golde: & that it which ought to be of siluer, maye be of siluer: and for all maner of worke by the hande of the craftesmen. And who is now fre wyllinge, to fyll his hande this daye vnto the LORDE?

Then were the prynces of the fathers, & prynces of the trybes of Israel, the captaynes ouer thousandes & ouer hundreds, the rulers ouer the kynges busynes, fre wyllinge, & gaue to & mynistracion in the house of God fyne M. talētes of golde, and ten M. guldens, and ten M. talētes of siluer, eightene M. talētes of brasse, and an hundred M. talētes of yron. And by whom so euer were founde stones, they gaue them to the treasure of the house of the LORDE, vnder the hāde of Jehiel the Gersonite.

And & people were glad that they were fre wyllinge: for they gaue it wth a good wyl (euen with all their hert) vnto the LORDE. And David also & kyng reioysed greatly, and praysed God, and sayde before the whole congregacion: praysed be thou O LORDE God of Israel oure father, vnto the belongeth worshippe and power, glory, victory & thankes: for all that is in heauen and earth, is thine: thine is & kyngdome, and thou art exalted aboue all prynces. Thine are riches and honoure before & thou reignest ouer all, in thy hande consisteth power and might, in thy hāde is it to make enery man greate and stronge.

Now take we the oure God, and prayse & name of thy glory: for who am I? What is my people? that we shulde be able with a fre wyl to offre, as this is done? For of the cometh all, and of thy hande haue we geuen it the: for we are but pilgrims & strangers before the, as were all oure fathers. Our life vpon earth is as a shadowe, and here is no abydinge. O LORDE oure God, all this abundance that we haue prepared to buylde the an house vnto thy name, came of thy hande, and is thine all together. I knowe my God, that thou tryest the hert, and that thy fayne dyes is acceptable vnto the: therefore haue I geue all this with an vnfayned hert, euen with a good wyl, and now haue I had ioye to se thy people (which here are present) offre with a fre wyl vnto the. O LORDE God of oure fathers Abraham, Isaac, & Israel, kepe then euermore soch purposes and thoughtes in & hertes of thy people, & prepare thou their hertes vnto the. And graunte my sonne Salomon a perfecte hert, that he maye kepe thy comāndementes, thy testimonies, & thy statutes, that he maye do all, & buylde this palace, which I haue prepared.

And David sayde vnto the whole congregacion: O prayse the LORDE y<sup>e</sup> God. And all the congregacion praysed & LORDE God of their fathers, & bowed them selues, & worshipped the LORDE & then the kyng, and offered sacrifices vnto the LORDE. And on y<sup>e</sup> nexte morow offered they burnt offerynges, a M. bullockes, a M. rāmes, a M. lābes & their drynt offerynges, & plenteously offred they amonge all Israel. And they ate and dranke the same daie before the LORDE with greate ioye, and made Salomon the sonne of David kyng & seconde tyme, and anoynted him to be & prynce for the LORDE, & Sadocto be the prest.

Thus sat Salomon vpon the seate of & LORDE, kyng in his fathers steade, & prospered. And all Israel obeyed him, & all & rulers & mightie men, & all kyng Davids children submytted them selues vnto kyng Salomon. And & LORDE made Salomon excellent & greate in & sighte of all Israel, & and gaue him soch a glorious kyngdome, as none had before him ouer Israel.

So had David now bene kyng ouer all Israel. And & tyme that he was kyng ouer Israel, is fortye yeares: At Hebron reigned he seuen yeare, and at Jerusalem thre & thirtie yeare, & dyed in a good age, full of dayes, riches and honoure. And Salomon his sonne was kyng in his steade.

These actes of kyng David (both & first and last) beholde, they are wyrtten amonge the actes of Samuel the Seer, and amonge the actes of the prephet Nathan, and amonge the actes of Gad the Seer, with all his kyngdome, power and tymes which passed vnder him, both vpon Israel & vpon all the kyngdomes of the earth.

The first Chapter.

And Salomon the sonne of David was stablished in his Kyngdome, and the LORDE his God was with him, & made him exceedingly greate. And Salomon spake vnto all Israel, to the capraynes ouer thousandes and ouer hundreds, to the Judges, and to all & princes in Israel, and to the chiefe fathers, so that they wente (Salomon and the whole congregacion with him) vnto the hye place which was at Gibeon: for there was & Tabernacle of & witnesse of God, & which Moses the seruaunt of the LORDE had made in & wyldernes. For David had brought vp the Arke of God from Kiriaath Jearim, whan he had prepared for it: for he had pitched a tent for it at Jerusalem. As for & his sonne of Hur had made, it was there before the habitation of the LORDE: and Salomon and the congregacion soughte God. And Salomon offered a thousande burnt offerings vpon the brasen altare that stood before the Tabernacle of witnesse.

In the same night appeared God vnto Salomon, and sayde vnto him: Aye, what shal I geue thee? And Salomon sayde vnto God: Thou hast done greate mercy vnto my father David, and hast made me Kyng in his steade. Now LORDE God, let & wether that thou hast promised vnto my father

David, be verified, & for thou hast made me Kyng ouer a people, which is as many in number as the dust vpon the earth. Graunte me wysdome therfore and knowlege, & I maye go out and in before this people: for who is able to iudge this greate people of thine?

Then sayde God vnto Salomon: For so much as thou art so mynded, and hast not desired riches ner good, ner hono<sup>r</sup>, ner the soules of thine enemies, ner longe life, but hast requyred wysdome and knowlege, to iudge my people, ouer whom I haue made the Kyng, wysdome therfore and knowlege be geuen thee. Moreover, riches & good and honoure wyll I geue thee, so that soch one as thou hath not bene before the amogge the Kynges, nether shal be after thee.

So came Salomon from the hye place (which was at Gibeon) vnto Jerusalem from & Tabernacle of witnesse, and reigned ouer Israel. And Salomon gathered him charrettes and horsmen, so that he had a thousande and foure hundred charrettes, & twolue thousande horsmen: and those appoynted he to be in the charret cities, and with the Kyng at Jerusalem. And the Kyng broughte it so to passe, that there was as much syluer & golde at Jerusalem as stones: and as many Ceders, as the Molberyes trees, that are in the valleys. And there were horses broughte vnto Salomon out of Egypte, & the Kynges marchauntes fetched them from Kena for monye. And they came vp, and broughte out of Egypte a charret for sixe hundred syluer pēs, and an horse for an hundred and fiftye. Thus broughte they also vnto all the Kynges of the Hethites, and to the Kynges of & Syrians.

The II. Chapter.

And Salomon thoughte to buylde an house vnto the name of the LORDE, & an house for his Kyngdome: and tolde on thre score and ten thousande men to beare burthens, and foure score thousande that hewed tymber vpon the mount, and thre thousande and sixe hundred officers ouer them. And Salomon sent vnto Hiram the Kyng of Tyre, sayenge: As & thou dydest with my father, & sendest him Cedar trees, to builde an house for to dwell in (euen so do thou to me also.) Beholde, I wyl buylde an house vnto the name of the LORDE my God, to sanctifie it, for to burne good incense before him, and allwaye to prepare & shewbread, and burnt offerings in the mornynge and in the euenynge, on the Sabbathes & New moones, and solempne feastes of & LORDE oure God euermore for Israel.

And the house that I wyl buylde, shal be greater: for oure God is greater then all goddes. But who is able to buylde him an house? For heauen & the heauens of all heauens maye not cōprehende him. Who am I then, that I shulde buylde him an house? But onely for this intent to burne incense before him.

Seede me now therfore a wyse mā to worke with golde, syluer, brasse, yron, scarlet, purple, yalow sylke, and soch one as can graue carued worke with the wyse men that are with me in Ieriry and Jerusalem, whom my father David ordeyned. And sende me tymber of Cedar, pyne tre and costly wodde from Libanus: for I knowe that & seruantes can hewe tymber vpon Libanus. And be holde, my seruantes shalbe with & seruantes, to prepare me much tymber: for the house that I wyl buylde, shalbe greate & marvellous goodly.

And beholde, I wyl geue vnto the carpenters thy seruantes which hewe the tymber, twetye thousande quarters, of beaten wheate, and twetye thousande quarters of barley, and twetye thousande Batthes of wyne, and twetye thousande Batthes of oyle.

Then sayde Hiram the Kyng of Tyre by wrytinge, and sent it vnto Salomon: Because the LORDE loueth his people, therfore hath he made & to be Kyng ouer them. And Hiram sayde moreover: Praysed be & LORDE God of Israel, which made heauen earth, that he hath geue Kyng David a wyse and prudent sonne, and soch one as hath vnderstandynge to buylde an house vnto the LORDE, & an house for his realme. Therfore sende I now a wyse man that hath vnderstandynge, & euen Hiram Abi (which is the sonne of a woman of the daughters of Dan, and his father was of Tyre) which can worke in golde, syluer, brasse, yron, stone, tymber, scarlet, yalowe sylke, lymmen, purple and to carue all maner of thinges, and to make what cōnyng thinge so euer is geuen him, with thy wyse men, and with the wyse men of my lord Kyng David & father. And now let my lord sende the wheate, barley, oyle and wyne vnto his seruantes, acordynge as he hath sayde, and so wyll we hewe & tymber vpon Libanus, as much as thou nedest, and wyll brynge it by fletes in the See vnto Japho, from whence thou mayest brynge it vp to Jerusalem.

And Salomon nombred all the strangers in the londe of Israel, acordynge to the nombre whan David his father nombred them: and there were founde an hundred and fiftie thousande, thre thousande and sixe hundred. And of the same he made thre score and tenthousande beares of burthens, and foure score thousande hewers vpon y mount, and thre thousande and sixe hundred over-seers, which helde y people at their worke.

The III. Chapter.

And Salomon beganne to buylde the house of the LORDE at Jerusalem vpon the mount Moria, that was shewed vnto David his father, which David had prepared for the rowme, vpon the corne floore of Arnan the Jebusite. In the seconde daye of the seconde moneth in the fourth yeare of his reigne began he to buylde. And so layed Salomon the foundation to buylde the house of God: first the length thre score cubytes, the bredth twentye cubytes: and the porche before the wydenes of the house, was twentye cubytes longe, but the height was an hundred and twentye, and he overlaid it on the ynsyde with pure golde.

But the greates house syled he with py-netre, and overlaid it with the best golde, and made palme trees and thronne worke theron, and overlaid the house with precious stones to beautifye it. As for the golde, it was golde of Paruaim. And the balkes and postes aboue, and the walles, and the dores of it overlaid he with golde, and caused Cherubins to be carued on the walles.

He made also the house of the Most holy, whose length was twentye cubytes accordinge to the wydenesse of the house: and the bredth of it was twentye cubytes likewise, and he overlaid it with the best golde by fiftie hundred talentes. And for males he gaue fiftie Sicles of golde in weight, and overlaid the chambers with golde. He made also in the house of the most holy, two Cherubins of carued worke, and overlaid them with golde: and the length on the wynges of the Cherubins, so that one wyng had fyue cubytes, and touched the wall of the house: and the other wyng had fyue cubytes also, and touched the wynges of the other Cherub.

¶ Euen so had one wyng of the other Cherub fyue cubytes likewise, and touched the wall of the house: and his other wyng had fyue cubytes also, and touched the wynges of the other Cherub: so that these wynges of the Cherubins were spred out twentye cubi-tes wyde. And they stode vpon their fete, and their face was turned to the house warde.

He made a vayne also of yalow sylke, scarlet, purple and lynworke, and made Cherubins theron. And before the house he made two pilers fyue and thirtie cubites longe, and the knoppes aboue theron, fyue cubytes. And he made thronne worke for the quere, and put it aboue vpon the pilers: and made an hundred pomgranates, and put them on the wythien worke. And he set vpon the pilers before the temple, the one on the righte honde, and the other on the lefte: and that on the righte honde called he Jachin, and that on the lefte honde called he Boos.

The III. Chapter.

He made a brasen altare also, twentye cubytes longe, and twentye cubytes brode, and ten cubytes hye. And he made a molten lauer ten cubites wyde, the one syde to the other rounde aboute, and fyue cubytes hye. And a metelyne of thirtie cubites mighte compiehende it aboute. And ymages of Bullockes were vnder it. And aboute the lauer (which was ten cubites wyde) there were two rowes of knoppes, y were molten withall.

It stode so vpon the bullockes, that they were turned towarde the north, thre towarde the west, thre towarde the south, and thre towarde the east, and the lauer aboue vpon them, and all their hynder partes were on the ynsyde. The thiknesse of it was an hand bredth, and the edge of it was like the edge of a cuppe, and as a floured rose. And it comteyned thre thousande Batthes.

And he made ten kettels, wherof he set fyue on the righte hande and fyue on the lefte, to washe in them soch thinges as belonged to the burnt offeringe, that they mighte thrust them therin: but y lauer (made he) for the prestes to wash in.

Ten golden candestickes made he also as they ought to be, and set them in the temple: fyue on the righte hande, and fyue on the lefte. And made ten tables, and set them in the temple: fyue on the righte hande, and fyue on the lefte. And made an hundred basens of golde. He made a court likewise for the prestes, and a greates court, and dores in the court, and overlaid y dores with brasse. And the lauer set he on the righte syde towarde the south east. And Hiram made cauldrons, shouels and basens.

So Hiram fynished the worke which he made for Kyng Salomon in the house of God: namely the two pilers with the roundels and knoppes aboue vpon both the pilers, and both the wythien ropes to couer both the roundels of y knoppes aboue vpon the pilers, and the foure hundred pomgranates on both the wythien ropes, two rowes of pomgranates on every rope, to couer the roundels of the knoppes that were aboue vpon the pilers.

¶ He made the stoles also and y kettels vpon the stoles, and a lauer, and twelue bullockes there vnder. And pottes, shouels, fleshpots, and all their vessels made Hiram Abif of pure metall for Kyng Salomon vnto the house of the LORDE. In the coaste of Jordan byd the Kyng cause them to be molten in thicke earth betwene Suchoth and Zaredatha.

And Salomon made all these vessels which were so many, that the weight of y metall was not to be soughte out. And Salomon made all the ornamentes for the house of God: namely, the golden altare, the tables and the shewbrides theron, the candestickes with their lampes of pure golde, to burne before the Quere accordinge to the manner: and the floures and the lampes and the snuffers were of golde, all these were of pure golde.

And the knyves, basens, spones and pottes, were of pure golde. And the intrance and his dores within vnto the Most holy, and the dores of the house of the temple were of golde. Thus was all y worke fynished, which Salomon made in the house of the LORDE.

The V. Chapter.

And Salomon broughte in all y his father David had sanctified, namely, syluer and golde, and all maner of ornamentes, and layed them in the treasures of the house of God. The gathered Salomon all the Elders in Israel together, all y heades of the trybes, prynces of the fathers amonge the childre of Israel vnto Jerusalem, to bringe vpon the Arke of the couenaunt of the LORDE out of the cite of David, that is Sion. And there resorted vnto the Kyng all the men in Israel at the feast, that is in the seventh moneth, and all y Elders in Israel came.

And y Levites toke the Arke, and broughte it vpon the Tabernacle of witnesse, and all the holy vessels that were in the Tabernacle: and y prestes and Levites broughte them vpon. As for Kyng Salomon and all the congregacion of Israel that was gather-red vnto him before the Arke, they offered shepe and oxen, so many, that no man coulde nombre ner reken them.

Thus the prestes broughte the Arke of y couenaunt of the LORDE vnto hir place in to the quere of the house, euen in to y Most holy vnder the wynges of the Cherubins, so that the Cherubins spied out their wynges ouer the place of the Arke: and the Cherubins covered the Arke and the staves therof from aboue. And the staves were so longe, y the knoppes of them were sene from the Arke before the quere, but on the outsyde were they not sene. And it was there vnto this daye. And there was nothinge in the Arke, save the two tables, which Moses put ther in at Horeb, whan the LORDE made a couenaunt with the childre of Israel, what tyme as they were departed out of Egipte.

And whan the prestes wente out of the Sanctuary (for all y prestes that were founde, sanctified them selues, because the courses were not kepte) the Levites with all those that were vnder Asaph, Heman, Jedithun and their children and brethren, beyng clothed in lynnen, songe with Cymbales, psalteries and harpes, and stode towarde the east parte of the altare, and an hundred and twentye prestes with them, which blew y trompettes. And it was, as yf one byd trompet and synge, as though a voyce had bene herde of praylinge and genynge thankes vnto the LORDE.

And whan the voyce arose from y trompettes, cymbales and other instrumentes of musick, and from praylinge the LORDE (because he is gracious, and because his mercy endureth for ever) the house of the LORDE was fylled on the ynsyde with a cloude, so y the prestes coulde not stonde to mynister for the cloude: for the glory of the LORDE fylled the house of God.

The VI. Chapter.

Then sayde Salomon: The LORDE sayde, that he wolde dwell in a darke cloude: I haue buylde an house to be an habitacion vnto the: a seate, y thou mayest dwell there for ever. And the Kyng turned his face, and blessed all the congregacion of Israel: for the whole congregacion of Israel stode, and he sayde: Prayse be the LORDE God of Israel, which promysed by his mouth vnto my father David, and with his hande hath fulfilled it, whan he sayde: See the tyme that I broughte my people out of the lande of Egipte, I haue chosen no cite in all y trybes of Israel, to buylde an hon-

Par. 7. c se for my name to be there, nether haue I chosen any man to be pryncce ouer my people of Israel. * But Jerusalem haue I chosen, for my name to be there: * David haue I elected, to be pryncce ouer my people of Israel.

B And whan my father David was mynded to buylde an house vnto the name of the LORDE God of Israel, the LORDE sayde vnto David my father: Where as thou wast mynded to buylde an house vnto my name, thou hast done well: howbeit thou shalt not buylde the house, but thy sonne which shall come out of thy loynes, shal buylde the house vnto my name.

Thus hath  $\gamma$  LORDE now performed his worde, that he spake: for I am come vp in my father Davids steade, and syt vpon the seate of Israel, euen as the LORDE sayde, \* haue buylded an house vnto the name of  $\gamma$  LORDE God of Israel, \* in it haue I put  $\gamma$  Arke, wherein is the couenant of  $\gamma$  LORDE, which he made with the childre of Israel.

C And he stode before the altare of the LORDE in the presence of the whole congregacion of Israel, and spred out his handes: for Salomon had made a brasen pulpit, and set it in the myddes of the courte, syue cubites longe, and syue cubites brode, and thre cubites hye: vpon the same stode he, and fell downe vpon his knees in the presence of the whole congregacion of Israel, and helde out his handes toward heaue and sayde: \* O LORDE God of Israel, there is no god like the, nether in heauen ner vpon earth, thou that kepest couenant and mercy for thy seruantes, that walke before the with all their hert. Thou hast kepte promes w my father David thy seruante: With thy mouth thou saydest it, and with thy hande hast thou fulfilled it, as it is come to passe this daye. Now LORDE God of Israel, make good vnto my father David  $\gamma$  seruante, that which thou hast promysed him, \* sayde: Thou shalt not want a man before me, to syt vpon the seate of Israel: yf thy children kepe their waye, so  $\gamma$  they walke in my lawe, like as thou hast walked before me: Now LORDE God of Israel, let  $\gamma$  worde be verified, which thou hast promysed vnto David thy seruante.

D For thinkest thou that God in very dede dwelleth amonge men vpon earth? \* Beholde, the heauen and  $\gamma$  heauens of all heuens maye not cōteyne the: how shulde then this house do it, which I haue buylded: But turne the vnto the prayer of thy seruante, and to his supplicacō (O LORDE my God) that thou mayest heare the thankesgeuynges and prayer, which thy seruante maketh before the, so that thine eyes be open ouer this house daye and night, euen ouer this place (wherin thou saydest thou woldest sit in name) that thou mayest heare the prayer, which thy seruante shall make in this place. Heare now therfore the intercession of thy seruante and of thy people of Israel, who so euer they shall desyre in this place: heare thou it from the place of thy habitacion, out from heauen: and whan thou hearest it, be mercifull.

Whan any mā synneth agaynst his neighbour, and an ooth be put vpon him which he ought to sweare, and the ooth cometh before thine altare in this house, then heare thou from heauen, and se  $\gamma$  thy seruante haue righte, so that thou rewarde the vngodly, and recōpence him his waye vpon his arme heade, and to iustifye the righteous, and to geue him acordinge to his righteousnes.

Whan thy people of Israel is synned before their enemies (whyle they haue synned agaynst the) and yf they turne vnto the, and knowlege thy name, and make their prayer and intercession before the in this house, then heare thou them from heauen, and be mercifull vnto the synne of thy people of Israel, bynging them agayne into the londe,  $\gamma$  thou hast geuen them and their fathers.

* Whan the heauen is shut vp, so that it rayne not (for so moch as they haue synned agaynst the) and yf they make their prayer in this place, and knowlege thy name, and turne from their synnes (whan thou hast brought them lowe) heare thou them then in heauen, and be mercifull vnto the synne of thy seruantes, and of thy people of Israel, that thou mayest teach them the good waye wherein they shulde walke, and let it rayne vpon thy londe which thou hast geuen thy people to possesse.

Whan a verth, or pestilence, or drought, or blastinge, or greshopper or caterpillar, is in the londe: Or whan their enemye layeth siege to their portes in the lōde, or whan any cōtē plague or disease happeneth, who so euer they maketh his prayer or petition amonge any maner of men, or amonge all thy people of Israel, yf any man fele his plague and distresse, and spredeth out his handes vnto this house, heare thou then from heauen, euen from  $\gamma$  seate of thy habitacion, and be mercifull: and geue every man accordinge to all his wayes, in so moch as thou knowest his hart (for thou onely knowest the hert of the children of men) that they maye feare the, and all waye walke in thy wayes, as longe as they lyue in the londe, which thou hast geuen vnto oure fathers.

And whan any straunger which is not of thy people of Israel, cometh out of a farre countre because of thy greate name, and mightie hande, and out stretched arme, and cometh to make his prayer in this house, heare thou him then from heaue, euen from the seate of thy habitacion: and do all for  $\gamma$  which that straunger calleth vpo the, that all the nacions vpon earth maye knowe thy name, and feare the, as thy people of Israel do: and that they maye knowe, how  $\gamma$  this house which I haue buylded, is named after thy name.

Whan thy people go forth to  $\gamma$  battayll agaynst their enemies, the waye that thou shalt sende them, and shall praye vnto the toward the waye of this cite which thou hast chosen, and towards the house that I haue buylded vnto thy name, heare thou the their prayer and petition from heauen, and helpe them to their righte.

G Whan they synne agaynst the (\* for there is no man that synneth not) and thou be wroth at them, and geue them ouer before their enemies, so that they cary them awaye captiue into a countre farre or nye, and yf they turne within their hertes in the londe where they are prisoners, and so conuerte, and make their intercession vnto the in the londe of their captiuite, and saye: We haue synned, and done amysse, and haue bene vngodly: and so turne them selues vnto  $\gamma$  with all their hert and with all their soule in the londe of their captiuite, wherein they are prisoners: and make their prayer toward the waye of their owne londe, which thou gauest vnto their fathers, and toward the cite which thou hast chosen, and toward the house that I haue buylded vnto thy name: then heare thou their prayer and supplicacion from heauen, euen from the seate of thy dwellinge, and helpe them to their righte, and be mercifull vnto thy people that haue synned agaynst the. My God, let thine eyes now be open, and let thine eares geue hede vnto prayer in this place. \* Arise now O LORDE God vnto thy restinge place, thou and the Arke of thy strength. Let thy prestes O LORDE God be clothed with health, and let thy sayentes reioyse ouer this good. LORDE God, turne not awaye the face of thine anoynted: thinke vpon the mercies of thy seruante David.

The VII. Chapter.

A And whā Salomō had ended his prayer, there fell a fyre from heauen, and consumed the burnt offeringe and the other offeringes. And the glory of the LORDE fylled the house, so that  $\gamma$  prestes coulde not go in to the house of the LORDE, while  $\gamma$  glory of the LORDE fylled  $\gamma$  LORDES house. And all the children of Israel sawe the fyre fall downe, and the glory of the LORDE ouer the house: and they fell on their knees w their faces to the grounde vpon the pauement, and worshipped, and gaue thankes vnto the LORDE, because he is gracious, and because his mercy endureth for euer. As for the kyng and all the people, they offred before the LORDE.

For kyng Salomon offred two and twety thousand bullockes, and an hundred thousand and twenty thousand shepe, * so both the kyng and all the people dedicated the house of God.

But the prestes stode in their watches, * the Levites with the muscical instrumentes of the LORDE, which kyng David had caused to make for to geue thankes vnto the LORDE, (because his mercy endureth for euer) w psalmes of David thorow their hande. And the prestes blew trumpettes ouer agaynst them, and all Israel stode.

And Salomon halowed the myddelmost courte, which was before the house of the LORDE, for there prepared he the burnt offerings and the fat of the slayne offeringes: for the brasen altare that Salomon made, might not conteyne all the burnt offerings, meat offerings, and the fat.

* And at the same tyme helde Salomon a feast seven daies longe, and all Israel with him a very greate congregacion, from Hamath vnto the ryuer of Egipte, and on the eight daye helde he a conuocacion. For the dedicacion of the altare helde they seven daies, and the feast seven dayes also.

But on the thre and twentyeth daye of the seventh month he let the people go vnto their tentes ioyfull and with mery hertes because of all the good, that the LORDE had done vnto David, vnto Salomō, and to his people of Israel.

\* Thus fynished Salomō the house of  $\gamma$  LORDE, and the kynges house, and all  $\gamma$  came in his hert to make in the house of the LORDE, and in his awne house, prosperously. And the LORDE appeared vnto Salomon in the night season, and sayde vnto him: I haue herde thy prayer \* and chosen this place vnto my selfe for an house of sacrifice.

Beholde, when I shut the heauē so & it raine nor, or commaunde the gresshopper to consume the londe, or cause a pestilence to come amonge my people, to humble my people, which is named after my name: and yf they praye, and seke my face, and turne from their euell wayes, the wyl I heare them from heauen, and wyl forgene their sinne, and heale their londe. So shal myne eyes now be open, and myne eares shal be attente vnto prayer in this place. Thus haue I now chosen this house, and sanctified it, that my name maye be there for ever: and myne eyes and my hert shal allwaye be there.

D And yf thou walke before me, as thy father David walked, so that thou do all that I commaunde the, and kepe myne ordinaunces and lawes, then wyl I stablishe the seate of thy kyngdome, acordynge as I promysed thy father David, and sayde: Thou shalt not wante a man to be lorde ouer Israel. But yf ye turne backe, and forsake myne ordynaunces and commaundementes which I haue layed before you, and so go youre waye, and serue other goddes, and worshippe them, the wyl I rote you out of my londe that I haue geuen you: and this house which I haue sanctified vnto my name, wyl I cast awaye out of my presence, and geue it ouer to be a byworde and fabell amonge all nations. And euery one that goeth by, shall be astonnyed at this hye house, and shall hyffe at it, and saye: Wherefore hath the LORDE dealt thus with this londe and with this house? Then shall it be sayde: Euen because they haue forsaken the LORDE God of their fathers (which brought them out of the londe of Egypte) & haue cleued vnto other goddes, & worshipped them, and serued the: therefore hath he brought all this euell vpon the.

The viii. Chapter.

After twentye yeares (wherein Salomon buylded the house of the LORDE and his awne house) he buylded the cyties also which Hiram gaue vnto Salomon, and caused the children of Israel to dwell therein. And Salomon wente vnto Zemarath Zoba, and made it stronge, and buylded Thadmor in the wyldernes, and all the cornecities which he buylded in Zemarath. He buylded the vpper and lower Bethoron likewise, so that they were stronge cities w walles, portes and barres. And Baelath, and all the cornecities which Salomon had, and all the cities of the charettes and of the horse men, and all that Salomon had lust to buylde, both at Jerusalem and vpon Li-bannus, and in all the londe of his domynion.

All the remnant of the people of the cherites, Amontes, pheresites, Zentites and Jebusites, which were not of the children of Israel, and their children which they had lefte behynde them in the londe, (whom the children of Israel had not utterly destroyed) those dyd Salomon make trybutaries vnto this daye. As for the children of Israel, Salomon made no bondmen of them vnto his worke, but they were men of warre, and chiefe capraynes, and ouer his charettes & horsemen. And the chiefe of kyng Salomons officers were two hundred and fystie, which ruled the people.

And Salomon caused pharaos daughter to be fetchd vp out of the cite of Dam, into the house that he had buylded for her: for he sayde: My wyfe shall not dwell in the house of David the kyng of Israel, for it is sanctified, in as moch as yf Arke of the LORDE is come into it.

Then offered Salomon burnt offerings vnto the LORDE vpon the LORDES altare, which he had buylded before the porte, euery one vpon his daye to offre after the commaundement of Moses, on the Sabbathes, Newmones & at the appoynted seasons of the yere, euenthietymes, namely in yf fast of vnterended bried, in the feast of wokes, & in the feast of Tabernacles.

And he set the prestes in ordie to their ministracion: acordynge as David his father had appoynted, and the Leuites in their offyces, to geue thanks and to mynister in the presence of the prestes, euery one vpon his daye. And the doorekeepers in their courses, euery one at his dore, for so had David the ma of God commaunded.

And they departed not from the kyngs commaundement ouer the prestes and Leuites in euery matter and in the treasures. Thus was all Salomons busynesse made ready, from the daye that the foundation of the LORDES house was layed, tyll it was finished, so that the house of the LORDE was all prepared.

Then wente Salomon vnto Ezeon Geber, and vnto Elath by the See syde in the londe of Edomea. And Hiram sent him shippes by his seruantes which had knowledge of the See, and they wente with Salomons seruantes vnto Ophir, and fetchd from thence foure hundred and fystie talentes of golde, and broughte it vnto kyng Salomon.

The ix. Chapter.

After the same of Salomon, she came with a very greate tryne to Jerusalem (with Camels that bare spyces and golde, and precious stones) to proue Salomon with darke sentences. And when she came vnto Salomon, she spake vnto him all that she had deuysed in hir mynde. And the kyng tolde her all hir matters, & Salomon had nothinge in secrete, but he tolde it her.

And when the Quene of riche Arabia sawe the wysdome of Salomon, and yf howe that he had buylded, the meates of his table, the dwellinges of his seruantes, & offices of his mynisters and their garmentes, & his butlers and their apparell, and his parler where he wente vp in to the house of the LORDE, she coulde no longer refrayne. And she sayde vnto the kyng: It is true that I haue herde in my londe of thy behaueoure and of thy wysdome: howbeit I wolde not beleue their wordes, tyll I came my selfe, & sawe it with myne eyes: and beholde, the halfe of thy greate wysdome hath not bene tolde me: there is more in yf then the same that I haue herde. Happye are thy men, and happye are these thy seruantes, yf allwaye stonde before the, and heare thy wysdome. Prayed be the LORDE thy God, which had soch pleasure vnto the, that he hath set the vpon his seate to be kyng vnto the LORDE thy God. Because thy God loueth Israel, to set them vp for ever, therfore hath he ordeyned yf to be kyng ouer them, that thou shuldest mayntayne iustice and equitye.

And she gaue yf kyng an hundred and twentye talentes of golde, & very moch spyce & precious stones. There were no mo soch spyces as these that the Quene of riche Arabia gaue vnto kyng Salomon. And Hiram's seruantes and the seruantes of Salomon, which broughte golde from Ophir, broughte costly tymbre also & precious stones.

And of the same costly tymbre dyd Salomon cause to make staires in the house of the LORDE, and the kynges house, and harpes and psalteries for the Musicians. There was no soch tymbre sene before in the londe of Iuda. But kyng Salomon gaue the Quene of riche Arabia all that she desired and axed, & moch more then she had broughte vnto the kyng. And she returned, and departed in to hir londe with hir seruantes.

The golde that was broughte vnto Salomon in one yere, was sixe hundred and sixe and thre score talentes, besydes that yf chap men and marchautes broughte. And all the kynges of the Arabians, and the lordes in yf londe broughte golde and syluer vnto Salomon. Of the which kyng Salomon made two hundred speares of beaten golde, & yf sixe hundred peces of beaten golde came vpon one speare: & thre hundred shildes of beaten golde, so that thre hundred peces of beaten golde came to one shylde: and the kyng put the in the house of the wod of Libanus.

And the kyng made a greate seate of Query, and ouerlaid it with pure golde: and the seate had sixe steppes, and a forestole of golde festened vnto the seate, and it had two leanyng postes vpon both the sydes of the seate, and two lyons stode beside the leanyng postes, and there stode twolue Lions vpon the syre steppes on both the sides. In all realmes hath not soch one bene made.

And all kyng Salomons drynkyng vessels were of golde, and all the vessels of the house of the wod of Libanus, were of pure golde: for syluer was rekened nothinge in Salomons tyme. For the kynges shippes wente vpon the See with the seruantes of Hiram, & came once in thre yere, and broughte golde, syluer, Query, Apes and pecocces.

Thus was kyng Salomon greater then all the kynges vpon earth, in riches and wysdome. And all the kynges of yf earth desired (to se) Salomons face, and to heare his wysdome, which God had geuen him in his hert. And they brought him yearly euery ma his present: Jewels of syluer and golde, raymes, harness, spyces, horses and Mules.

And Salomon had foure thousande charettes, and twolue thousande horsemen, and put them in the charet cities, and with the kyng at Jerusalem. And he was lorde ouer all the kynges from the water vnto the londe of the Philistynes, and to the coaste of Egypte. And the kyng brought it so to passe, that there was as moch syluer at Jerusalem as stones: and as many Ceders, as there were Molbery trees in the valleys. And there were horses broughte vnto him out of Egypte, and out of all countres.

What more thre is to saye of Salomon, both of his first and of his last, beholde, it is writte in the Cronicles of the prophet Nathan, and in the prophecies of Ahia of Silo, & in yf actes of Jeddi the Seer against Jeroboam yf sonne of Nebat. And Salomon reigned at Jerusalem ouer all Israel fortie yeres. And Salomon fell on slepe w his fathers, & was buried in the cyte of David his father. And Roboam his sonne was kige i his steade.

The X. Chapter.

2
1. Re. 12. 2

Roboam wente vnto Sichem: for all Israel was come vnto Sichem: to make him kinge. And whan Jeroboā the sonne of Nebat herde that, which was
1. Re. 12. g
in Egip̃te (whither he was fled for kyng Salomon) he came agayne out of Egip̃te.
And they sent for him and called him. And Jeroboam came with all Israel, and spake to Roboam, and sayde: Thy fater made & yocfe greuous: make thou lighter now y harde bondage of thy fater, and I henry yocfe that he layed vpon vs, and we wyll submyt te oure selues vnto the. He sayde vnto them:
Come to me agayne ouer thre dayes. And I people wente their waye.

B And Reboam the kynge axed counsell at the Elders, which had stonde before Salomon his father whyle he lyued, and he sayde: What is youre counsell, that I maye geue this people an answer? They spake vnto him, and sayde: If thou be lounge vnto this people, and deale gently with them, and geue them good wordes, then shal they allwaye be obedient vnto the. Neuerthelesse he forsoke the counsell of the Elders that they had geuen him, and toke counsell at yonge men which were growne vp wth him, and stode before him. And he sayde vnto the: What is youre counsell, that we maye answer this people, which haue spoken vnto me, and saide: Make oure yock lighter, & thy father layed vpon vs. The yongemen & we re growne vp with him, spake vnto him, and sayde: Thus shalt thou saye vnto the people, that haue talked with the & spoken: Thy father made oure yock to heuy, make thou o<sup>u</sup>er yock lighter, Thus shalt thou saye vnto them: My litle finger shalbe thicker then my fathers loynes. If my father hath layed an heuy yock vpon you, I wyl make youre yock the more. My father chaffened you wth scourges, but I wyl beate you with scorpions.

Now whan Jeroboam and all the people came to Roboam on the thirde daye (accordynge as 3 kynges sayde: Come to me agayne on the thirde daie) the kyng gaue the harde answer. And Roboam the kyng forsoke 3 counsell of the Elders, & spake vnto the after 3 yonge mens counsell, & sayde: If my father haue made y<sup>e</sup> yock to heuy, I wil make it yet heuyer. My father chastered you wth scourges, but I wyl beate you wth scorpions. Thus the kyng folowed not 3 peoples minde: for so was it determyned of God, 3 3 LORDE might stablishe his worde, which he spake by Ahia of Silo, vnto Jeroboam 3 sonne of Uebat. But whan all Israel sawe that the Kynge wolde not consente vnto them, & people answered the Kynge, and sayde: When porcion haue we then in Dauid, or inheritance in the sonne of Isai? Let every man of Israel get him to his tent. Loke thou now to thy house Dauid. And all Israel wente into their tentes, so that Roboam reigned but ou-er the children of Israel that dwelt in the cities of Iuda. And Roboam sent forth Ada-ram the rent gatherer, but the children of Israel stoned him to death. And Kynge Roboam strengthened himselfe vpon his charet, to flye vnto Ierusalem. Thus fell Israel awaie fro the house of Dauid vnto this daye.

The XI. Chapter.

When Roboam came to Jerusalem, he gathered together the house of Juda and Ben Jamin (even an hundred and foure score thousande chosen men of armes) to fyghte agaynst Israel, that they mighte brynge the kyngdome agayne vnto Roboam. But þe worde of the LORDE came to Semaia the man of God, and sayde: Speake to Roboam the sonne of Salomon kyng of Juda, and to all Israel þe man in Juda and Ben Jamin, and saye: Thus saith the LORDE: Ye shal not go vp, ner fyghte agaynst youre brethren: let every man go to his owne house. For this is my dede. They hearkened vnto the wordes of þe LORDE, and went not forth agaynst Jeroboam. As for Roboam, he dwelt at Jerusalem, and buylded vp thre stronge cities in Juda, namely Bethleem, Ekron, and Tekoa, Bethzur, Socho, Adullam, Gath, Maresha, Siph, Adoraim, Laches, Ashtart, Beleg, Alalon, and Hebron (which were the fenced cities in Juda and Ben Jamin): he made them stronge, and set prynces therein: he prouyded them of vntayles, oyle and wyne, and in all cities prepared he shildes and speares, and made them very stronge. And Juda and Ben Jamin were vnder him.

The prestes and Levites also came vnto him out of Israel and from all the borders therof, And lefte their suburbes z possession, and came to Iuda vnto Jerusalem: for Jeroboam and his sonnes expelled them, that they shulden not execute the offyce of ꝑꝛesthode vnto ꝑ LORDE. But for himselfe he founded prestes to ꝑ hye places, z to feldedenals z calues, which he caused to make. And after them came there men out of all the trybes of Israel, which gaue ouer their hertes to sitte ꝑ LORDE God of Israel, z came to Jerusalem: for to offre vnto the LORDE God of their fathers. And so strengthed they ꝑ kingdom of Juda, and mātayned Roboam the sonne of Salomon thre yeare longer: for they walked in the waye of David ⁊ Salomon thre yeares.

And Roboam toke Mahelath & doughter of Jeremoth & sonne of David to wife, & Abihail the doughter of Eliab & sonne of Isai, which bare him these sonnes: Jeus, Se maria & Saham. After her toke he Maecha the doughter of Absalom, which bare him Abia, Athai Sisa and Selomith. But Roboam loved Maecha the doughter of Absalom better then all his wyues & concubynes: for he had eightene wyues and thrie score concubynes, and begat eight & twentye sonnes, and thrie score doughters. And Roboam set Abia the sonne of Maecha to be heade and prynce amonge his brethzen: for he thought to make him kynge: for he was wyse, & more mightie then all his sonnes in all the countrees of Juda & Ben Jamin, and in all the stronge cities. And he gaue them plenteousnes of fode, and desyred many wyues.

The XII. Chapter.

Wht whā the kyngdome of Roboam was confirmed and stablyshed, he forsoke the lawe of the LORDE z all Israel with him. And in the fyfth yere of Roboam wete Sisack the kyng of Egipte vpagaynst Jerusalem ( for they had transgressed agaynst the LORDE ) with a thousande and two hundred charettes, and with thre score thousande horsmen, and the people were reynnumerable that came with him out of Egipte, Libya, Suchim z out of Ethiopia, and he wanne the strōge cities that were in Iuda, and came to Jerusalem.

Then came Semaia y prophet vnto Ro boam and to y rulers of Iuda (which were gathered together at Jerusalem for Sisack)
z sayde vnto them: Thus sayeth y LORDE:
Ye haue leste me, therfore haue I leste you also in Sisack's hande. The rulers in Israel with the kynge submytted them selues, and sayde: The LORDE is righteous.

But whā the LORDE sawe & they hūbled themselues, & worde of the LORDE came to Semaia, z sayde: They haue humbled them selues, therfore wyl I not destroye them, but I wyl gene them a litle delyueraunce, that my indignacion fall not vpon Ierusalem by Sisak: for they shalbe subdued vnto him, &
they maye knowe what it is to serue me, z
to serue the Kingdomes of the worlde.

Thus were Sissack the kynge of Egipte vpto Jerusalem, 7 toke the treasures in the house of the LORDE, 7 the treasures in the kynges house, and caried all awaye, and toke

the shylde of golde, that Salomon caused to make: in steade wherof kynge Roboā made shylde of stele, and commytted the vnto the chese foremen, which kepte the dore of the kynges house. And as oft as the kynge wente in to the house of the LORDE, & foremen came & bare them, & brough hem agai-ne in to y fore mens chāber. And for so moch as he submytted himselfe, & wiath of y LOR-DE turned fro him, so that all was not des-troied: for there was yet some good in Iuda.

Thus was Roboam the kinge stablished in Jerusalem, and reigned. One and fortye yeare olde was Roboam whā he was made kyng, and reigned seuentene yeare at Jerusalem in the cite, which the LORDE had chosen out of all the trybes of Israel, to set his name there. His mothers name was Naemia an Ammonitisse: and he did euell, and prepared not his hert to seeke the LORDE.

These actes of Roboam, both fyrst and last, are wrytten in the actes of Semaia the prophet, & of Iddo the Seer, and are noted, & so are the warres that Roboam and Ieroboam had together as longe as they lyued. And Roboam fell on slepe with his fathers and was buryed in the cite of David, & Abia his sonne was kynge in his steade.

The XII. Chapter.

In the eighteenth yeare of Kyng Jeroboam, was Abia Kyng in Iuda, & reigned thre yeare at Ierusalem. His mothers name was Michaia the doughter of Viel of Gibeā. And there was warre be-twene Abia and Jeroboam. And Abia prepared himselfe to the battayll with foure hu-drieth thousande stronge chosen men of war-re. But Jeroboam made himselfe ready to fight agaynst him wth eight hundredth thousande chosen men of strength.

And Abia gatt him vp vpon the hyll Zemaraim, which lyeth vpon mount Ephraim and sayde: Herken vnto me thou Jeroboam and all Israel: Knowe ye not that the LORD God of Israel hath geuen Dauid y<sup>e</sup> kyngdome of Israel for euer, vnto him and his sonnes with a salt couenaunt? But Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat, the seruaunt of Salomon Dauids sonne, gat him vp & fell awaye from his lorde. And there resorted vnto him vagaboundes and children of Belial, and haue strengthened them selues against Roboam the sonne of Salomon: for Roboam was but yonge and of a fearfull hert, and coulde not resiste them.

Now thinke ye to see your selues against the Kingdome of the L O R D E amonge

the sonnes of David, for so much as there is so greete a multitude of you, and haue 3 golden calues * 3 Jeroboam made you for goddes. Have ye not expelled the prestes of the LORDE the children of Aaron and the Levites; and haue made you prestes of youre ownne, even as the people of the landes? Who so ever commeth to fyll his hande with a yonge bullocke and seven rammes, shal be prestie vnto them that are not goddes.

But with vs is 3 LORDE oure God, who we forsake not: and the prestes that minister vnto the LORDE, the children of Aaron and the Levites in their busines, and every morninge and every euenynge. Kyndle they the burnt offerynges vnto the LORDE, and the swete incense, and prepare the shewbried vps the pure table, and the golden candilstick with his lampes, to be kyndled every euenynge: for we maye vps the LORDE oure God.

As for you, ye haue forsaken him. Beholde, God is the captayne of oure hoost, and with vs are his prestes, and the blowinge trompettes, to trompe agaynst you. Ye children of Israel, fight not agaynst the LORDE God of y<sup>r</sup> fathers: for ye shal not prosper.

Neuertheles Jeroboam made a prieny watch on every syde, to come vpon them behynde, so that they were before Juda, and y prieny watch behynde. Now whā Juda trined them, beholde, there was battayll before the z behynde. Then cryed they vnto y LORDE, z the prestes tromped with the trompettes, z whā every man in Juda gaue a shoute, God plagued Jeroboam and Israel before Abia and Juda. And the children of Israel fled before Juda, and God gaue them in to their handes, so that Abia z his people dyd a greate slaughter vpon them, and there fell wounded of Israel fyue hundred thousande chosen men.

Thus were the children of Israel subdued at that tyme, but the children of Juda were comforted, for they put their trust in 3 LORDE God of their fathers. And Abia folowed vpon Jeroboam, and wanne cities fro him, Bethel with the villages therof, Jesana w hir villages, and Ephron with the villages therof, so that Jeroboam came nomore to strength, as longe as Abia lyued. And the LORDE smote him that he dyed.

Now whan Abia was strengthed, he toke fourtene wyues, and begat two and twenty sonnes and sixtene daughters. What more there is to saye of Abia, and of his wayes and his doynges, it is wrytten in the storye of the prophet Idoo. And Abia fell on slepe with his fathers, and they buryed him in cite of David: and Asa his sonne was in his steade. In his tyme was the londe rest ten yeaeres.

The XIII. Chapter.

And Asa dyd that which was good right in the sighte of the LORDE God, and put awaye the straungelaters, and the hye places, and brake the lters, and hewed downe the grones, and de vnto Juda, that they shulde seke the LORDE God of their fathers, and to do after the lawe and commaundementes. And the hye places and ymages put he awaye out of the cities of Juda: and the kyngdome rest before him. And he builded stronge citie in Juda, whyle the londe was in quietnes: whyle there was no warre agaynst him in the same yeaeres: for 3 LORDE gaue him rest.

And he sayde vnto Juda: Let vs buyld vps these cities, and fence them rounde aboute with walles and towres, with portes and barres, while the londe is yet with vs: for we haue soughte the LORDE oure God, and he hath geuen vs rest on every syde. So they buylded, and it wente prosperously with the. And Asa had an hoost of mē which bare sheldes z speares, out of Juda thre C. thousande, and out of Ben Jamin two hundred thre score thousande, that bare shyldes z bowes, and all these were mighty stronge men.

But Serah the Mooryan came oute agaynst the w an hoost of a thousande chariottes, and came vnto Maresa. And Asa wente forth agaynst him. And they prepared their selues to the battayll in the valley Zephath beside Maresa. And Asa called vpon y LORDE his God and sayde: * LORDE, it is no beneferece w 3, to helpe by fewe or by many, but pe vs O LORDE oure God: for oure trust is in the, z in thy name are we come forth agaynst this multitude. LORDE oure God, let no man preuaile agaynst the.

And the LORDE smote the Mooryas before Asa and before Juda, so that they fled. And Asa with 3 people that was by him, folowed vpon them vnto Gerar. And the Mooryas fell, so that none of them remained alyue, but were smytten before the LORDE and before his hoost. And they caried exceedinge much spoyle from thence. And he smote all the cities aboute Gerar, for a fearfulness of the LORDE came vpon them. And they spoyled all the cities, for there was much spoyle in them. They smote the tentes of the cattell so, and toke many shepe and Camels, and came agayne to Jerusalem.

The XV. Chapter.

And the spere of God came vps Asarias the sonne of Obed, which wente forth to Asa, and sayde vnto him: Heare me Asa and all Juda z Ben Jamin: The LORDE is with you, whyle ye are with him: and yf ye seke him, he wylbe founde of you. But yf ye forsake him, he shal forsake you also. Neuertheles there shal be many dayes in Israel, that there shalbe no true God, no prest to teach, z no lawe. And whan they turne in their trouble vnto the LORDE God of Israel, and seke him, he shalbe founde. At that tyme shall it not be well with him that goeth out and in: for there shal be greete vproutes vpon all them 3 dwell on the earth. For one people shal all to smyte another, z one cite another: for God shal vexethem w all maner of trouble. But be ye stronge, and let not youre handes be feble: for youre worke hath his rewarde.

Whan Asa herde these wordes, and the propheciage of Asarias the sonne of Obed the prophete, he toke a corage vnto him, and put awaye the abhominacions out of all 3 londe of Juda and Ben Jamin, and out of the cities that he had wonne vpon mount Ephraim: and renued the LORDES altare, which stode before the porche of the LORDE. And all Juda and Ben Jamin gathered them selues together, and the straungers with them out of Ephraim, Manasses and Simeon: for there fell many vnto him out of Israel, whan they sawe that the LORDE his God was with him. And they resorted vnto Jerusalem in the thirde moneth of the fyfteenth yeaere of the reigne of Asa, and the same daye offred they vnto the LORDE of the spoyle that they had broughte, seven hundred open, and seven thousande shepe.

And they entred in to 3 couenaunt, that they wolde seke the LORDE God of their fathers, with all their hert and with all their soule. And who so ever wolde not seke 3 LORDE God of Israel, shulde dye, both small z greete, both man and woman; and they swaie vnto the LORDE with loude voyce, with shoutinge, with trompettes and with shawmes. And all Juda were glad ouer the ooth: for they had swome with all their hert, and they soughte him with a whole wyll: and he was founde of them, and the LORDE gaue them rest on every syde.

And Asa 3 kynge put downe his mother from the mynistracion, that she had founde bed in the groue vnto Miplezeth. And Asa roted out hir Miplezeth, and beate it in sunder, and brent it by the broke Cedron. But the hye places were not put downe out of Israel. Yet was the hert of Asa perfecte as longe as he lyued. And loke what his father had halowed, and that he him selfe had halowed, he broughte it into 3 house of God, syluer, golde and ornamente. And there was no warre vnto the fyue and thirtieth yeaere of the reigne of Asa.

The XVI. Chapter.

At the sixe and thirtieth yeaere of 3 reigne of Asa, wente Baesa the kynge of Israel vpon agaynst Juda, and buylded Rama, to let Asa the kynge of Juda, 3 he shulde not go out and in: But Asa toke forth the treasure in the house of the LORDE, and the syluer and golde in the kynge's house, and sent it vnto Benadad 3 kynge of Syria, which dwelt at Damascon, and caused to saye vnto him: There is a couenaunt betwene me and the, betwene my father and thy father, therfore haue I sent 3 syluer and golde, that thou mayest breake 3 couenaunt with Baesa the kynge of Israel, that he maye departe frome.

Benadad herkened vnto kynge Asa, and sent his hoost agaynst the cities of Israel, which smote Lion, Dan and Abel Maim, and all the come cities of Neptali. Whan Baesa herde that, he lefte of from buyldinge Rama, and ceassed from his worke. But kynge Asa toke all Juda vnto him, and caried awaye 3 stones and tymber (wherewith Baesa buylded) and he buylded Geba z Mizpa withall.

At the same tyme came Hanani the Seer vnto Asa the kynge of Juda, and sayde vnto him: Because thou hast trusted vnto the kynge of Syria, and not put thy trust in the LORDE thy God, therfore is the power of the kynge of Syria escaped thy hande. * We re not the Mooryans and Lybians a greete multitude with exceedinge many chariettes and horsemen: Yet gaue the LORDE them in to thy hande, whan thou dydest put thy trust in him: for the eyes of the LORDE loke rounde aboute all landes, to strength them 3 are in him with all their hert. Thou hast done vnwysely, therfore shalt thou haue warre from hence forth. But Asa was wroth at 3 Seer, and put him in prison: for he murmured with him ouer this thinge. And Asa oppressed certayne of the people at 3 same tyme.

These actes of Asa both first and last, be.

holde, they are wrytten in the boke of 3 kynges of Juda & Israel. And Asa was diseased in his feet in the nyne and thirtieth yere of his reigne, and endured ther ouer. * Nether sought he the LORDE in his sicknesse, but trufte vnto phisicians. Thus fell Asa on flepe with his fathers, & dyed in the one and fortieth yere of his reigne, & was buried in his awne sepulchre which he had caused to be grauen for him selfe in the cite of Dauid.
And they layed him vpon his bed, which was fylled with swete odoures & all maner of spyes (made after 3 Apotecaries craft)
and made a very greate burnynge.

The XVII. Capter.

And Josaphat his sonne was kynge
in his steade, & waxed mightie agaynst Israel. And he put men of warre in all the stronge cities of Juda, and set officers in the londe of Juda, and in the cities of Ephraim, which Asa his father had won-ne. And the LORDE was wth Josaphat: for he walked in the olde wayes of his father Da-uid, & soughte not Baalim, but the God of his father, & walked in his commandementes, & not after the workes of Israel: therfore dyd the LORDE stablyshe the kynngdome in his hāde. And all Juda gaue presentes vnto Josaphat, & he had greate riches & worshippe. And whan his hert was coraged in the wayes of the LORDE, he put downe styll
the hye places and grones out of Juda.

In the thirde yere of his reigne sent he his prynces, Benhail, Obadia, Zacharias, Nethaneel & Michaia, to teach in the cities of Juda: & with them the Levites: Semaia, Nethania, Sebadia, Asahel, Semiramoth, Jonathan, Adonia, Tobia & Tob Adonia, & with them 3 prestes Elisama & Joram. And they taughte in Juda, & had the boke of the lawe of 3 LORDE wth them, & wente aboute in all 3 cities of Juda, & taughte the people.

And the feare of the LORDE came vpon
all 3 kynngdomes in the countrees that laye
aboute Juda, so 3 they soughte not agaynst Josaphat. And the philistynes broughte presentes and trybute of syluer vnto Josaphat.
And the Arabians broughte him se-uenthoufande and seven hundred rammes, and seven thousande and seven hundred he goates. Thus increased Josaphat, & grewe euer greater. And he buylded castles and cor-ne cities in Juda. And dyd much in the cities of Juda, and had valeaunt and mightie men at Jerusalem.

And this was 3 ordinaunce thorow out
the house of their fathers, which were rulers ouer the thousandes in Juda. And captayne, & wth him were thre hundred sande mightie men. Nerte vnto him was hanan 3 chese, and with him were two hundred and foure score thousande. Nerte was Amasia the sonne of Sichu the first linge of 3 LORDE, and with him were two hundred thousande valeaunt men. Of the childien of Ben Jamin was Eliada a mightie man, and with him were two hundred thousande ready with bowes and shylles.

Nerte vnto him was Josabed, and with him were an hundred and foure score thousande harnessed men of warre. All these were vnto the kynge, besydes those that the kynge had layed in the stronge cities thorow out all Juda.

The XVIII. Chapter.

And Josaphat had greate riches and woishippe, and made frendshippe wth Achab. * And after two yeres wen-te he downe to Achab vnto Samaria. And Achab caused many shepe and oxen to be slay-ne for him and for 3 people that were wth
him. And he counceled him to go vnto Ramoth in Gilead. And Achab the kynge of Israel sayde vnto Josaphat the kynge of Juda: Go with me vnto Ramoth in Gilead. He sayde vnto him: I am as thou, and my people as thy people, wth we will go wth
the vnto the battayll.

But Josaphat sayde vnto the kynge of Israel: Are counsell (I praye the) this daye
at the wynde of the LORDE. And the kynge of Israel gathered the prophetes together, euen foure hundred men, & sayde vnto them:
Shal we go to the battayll vnto Ramoth in Gilead, or shal I let it alone? They sayde:
Go vp, God shal delyner it into the kynge's hāde. But Josaphat sayde: Is there not yet one prophet of the LORDE here, 3 we may are at him? The kynge of Israel sayde vnto Josaphat: There is yet one man, at whom we maye are of 3 LORDE: but I hate him,
for he prophecieth me no good, but alwaye
euell, namely Micheas the sonne of Jemla.
Josaphat sayde: Let not the kynge saye so.
And the kynge of Israel called one of his chamberlaynes, & sayde: Brynge hither sone Micheas the sonne of Jemla.

And the kynge of Israel, and Josaphat
the kynge of Juda, sat either of them vpon his seate, arrayed in their garmentes. And in the place at the dore of the porte of Samaria sat they, and all 3 prophetes prophecied before them. And Sedechias the sonne of Enania had made him homes of p<sup>er</sup>

and sayde: Thus sayeth the LORDE: With these shalt thou pushe at the Syrians, tyll thou brynge them to naughte. And all the prophetes prophecied likewise, & sayde: Go vp vnto Ramoth in Gilead, and thou shalt prosper, and 3 LORDE shal delyner it in to the kynge's hande.

And the messaunger that wente to call Micheas, spake vnto him, and sayde: Beholde, 3 wordes of the prophetes are with one acorde good before the kynge: let thy worde
(I praye the) be as one of theirs, and speake thou good also. But Micheas sayde: As truly as the LORDE lyeth, loke what my God sayeth vnto me, 3 wyl I speake. And whan
he came to the kynge, the kynge sayde vnto him: Micheas, shulde we go vnto Ramoth in Gilead to the battayll, or shulde we let it alone? He sayde: Go vp, and ye shal prospere.
It shal be gen<sup>e</sup> you in your handes. But 3
kynge sayde vnto him: I charge 3 yet agayne, that thou tell me noching but 3 trueth
in the name of the LORDE.

Then saide he: I sawe all Israel scatered abode v<sup>po</sup> the mountaynes, as the shepe 3
have no shepherde. And the LORDE sayde: Hane these no lord: Let every one turne home agayne in peace. The kynge the kynge of Israel vnto Josaphat: Dyd not I tell the,
3 he wolde prophecie me no good, but euell?

And he sayde: Therefore heare ye the worde of the LORDE: * I sawe the LORDE syt vpon his seate, and all the hoost of heaven
standinge at his righte hande & at his lefte.
And the LORDE sayde: Wo wyl disceane Achab the kynge of Israel, that he maye go vp & fall at Ramoth in Gilead? And whan one sayde thus, another so, there came forth a spiete, and stode before 3 LORDE, and sayde: I wyl disceane him. The LORDE sayde vnto him: Wherwith? He sayde: I wyl go forth, and be a false spiete in the mouth of all his prophetes. And he sayde: Thou shalt disceane him, and shalt be able: go thy waye, and do so. Beholde now, * the LORDE hath geuen a false spiete in the mouth of all these thy prophetes, and the LORDE hath spokē euell agaynst the.

Then stepte forth Sedechias the sonne of Enania, and smote Micheas vpon the che-ke, and sayde: Which waye is the spiete of 3 LORDE departed fro me, to speake thorow
the? Micheas sayde: Beholde, thou shalt se it, whan thou comest in to 3 ynnmost chamber to hyde the. But the kynge of Israel sayde: Take Micheas, and let him remayne wth
among the ruler of the cite, and with Joas

the sonne of Melech, and saye: Thus sayeth
the kynge: Put this man in prison, and fede him wth bred and water of trouble, tyll I come agayne in peace. Micheas saide: If thou comest agayne in peace, then hath not the LORDE spoken thorow me. And he sayde:
Herten to all ye people.

So the kynge of Israel, and Josaphat 3 kynge of Juda wente vp vnto Ramoth in Gilead. And 3 kynge of Israel sayde vnto Josaphat: Chaunge thy clothes, and come to the battayll in thine araye. And 3 kynge of Israel chaunged his rayment, & came in to the battayll. But the kynge of Syria had commaunded the rulers of his charrettes: Ye shal fighte nether agaynst small ner greate,
but onely agaynst the kynge of Israel.

Now whan the rulers of the charrettes
sawe Josaphat, they thoughte: It is 3 kynge of Israel, and they wete aboute to fighte agaynst him. But Josaphat cryed, and the LORDE helped him. And God turned them from him: for whan the rulers of the char-rettes sawe that it was not 3 kynge of Israel, they turned backe from him. But a certayne man bended his bowe harde, & shot the kynge of Israel betwene the mawe and the lon-ges. The kynge he vnto his charret man: Turne thine hāde, and cary me out of the hoost, for I am wounded. And the battayll was fore the same daye. And the kynge of Israel stode vpon his charret agaynst the Syrians vntyll the euenynge, and dyed whā the Son ne wente downe.

The XIX. Chapter.

And Josaphat the kynge of Juda came home agayne in peace vnto Jerusalem. And Jehu 3 sonne of Zana-ni the Seer wete forth to mete him, & sayde vnto kynge Josaphat: Shuldest thou so helpe the vngodly, and loue them that hate the LORDE? And for this cause is 3 wrath v<sup>po</sup> the from the LORDE: neuertheles there is some good founde in the, that thou hast put the grones out of the londe, and hast prepared thine hert to seke God. So Josaphat abode at Jerusalem.

And he wente agayne amonge the people, from Bersaba vnto mount Ephraim, and broughte them agayne to the LORDE God of their fathers. And he set Judges thorow out the londe, in all the stronge cities of Juda, and a certayne in every cite. And sayde vnto the Judges: Take hede what ye do: for ye execute not the indgment of man, but of the LORDE, and he is with you in indgmet:
therefore let the feare of the LORDE be with re ij

you, and beware, and do it: for with the LORD our God there is no unrighteousness, nor respect of persons, nor accepting of gifts.

C And at Jerusalem byd Josaphat ordeyne certayne of the Levites and prestes, and of the awncient fathers of Israel for judgment of the LORD, and over the matter of the lawe, and caused them to dwell at Jerusalem, and commaunded them, and sayde: Se that ye do thus in the feare of the LORD, in faithfulness and in a perfect hert. In all causes that come vnto you from youre biethren (which dwell in their cities) betwene bloude and bloude, betwene lawe and commaundement, betwene statutes and ordinaunces ye shal enforme them, & they synne not against the LORD, and so the wrath to come vpon you and youre biethren. Do thus, and ye shal not offende.

Beholde, Amaria the prest is chiefe over you in all causes of the LORD: so is Sabadiah the sonne of Ismael pryncce in the house of Juda in all the kynges matters: Ye have officers likewise the Levites before you. Take a good courage vnto you, and be doynge, and the LORD shalbe with the good.

The XX. Chapter.

After this came the childre of Moab, the children of Ammon, and certayne of Amanini with them, to fighte against Josaphat. And they came and tolde Josaphat, and sayde: There cometh a greate multitude agaynst the from beyonde the See of Syria, & beholde, they are at Hazazon Tamar, that is Engaddi.

And Josaphat was afrayed, & set his face to seeke the LORD, & caused a fast to be proclaimed in all Juda. And Juda came together to seeke the LORD. And out of all the cities of Juda came they to seeke the LORD. And Josaphat stode amonge the congregacion of Juda & Jerusalem in the house of the LORD before the new courte, and sayde:

O LORD God of our fathers, art not thou God in heaven, and hast domynion in all the kyngdomes of the heythen? And in thy hande is strength and power, and there is no man that can withstande the. Hast not thou O God expelled the inhabiteurs of this lande before thy people of Israel? and hast gaue it vnto the sede of Abraham thy louer for ever? so that they have dwelt in it, & have buylde the a Sanctuary vnto thy name therein, and sayde: If there come any plague, sword, and gmet, pestilence, or derth vpon vs, we wyll stande before this house even before the

(for thy name is in this house) and wyll cry vnto the in our trouble, and thou shalt heare, and shalt saue vs. Beholde now, the childre of Ammon, of Moab, & they of mount Seir, vpon whom thou woldest not suffice the childre of Israel to go, whan they wente out of the lande of Egypte, but they were sayne to departe from the, and not to destroye them: and beholde, they deale contrary with vs, and come to thrust vs out of the inheritance, that thou hast geuen vs in possession. O our God, wylt thou not inge them? For in vs is no strength to withstande this greate multitude that cometh agaynst vs. We knowe not what we shulde do, but our eyes loke vnto the. And all Juda stode before the LORD, with their children, wyues and sonnes.

But vpon Jehasiel the sonne of Zacharias, the sonne of Benaia, the sonne of Jehiel, the sonne of Machania the Levite of the childre of Assaph, came the spire of the LORD in the myddes of the congregacion, and sayde: Gene hede all thou Juda, and ye inhabiteurs of Jerusalem, and thou kyng Josaphat: Thus sayeth the LORD vnto you. Be not ye afrayed, nether feare ye this greate multitude: for it is not ye that fighte, but God. Tomorrow shal ye go downe vnto the. And beholde, they go vp by Sis, and ye shal fynde them at the reed see by the broke before the wyldernes of Jermel: for ye shall not fighte in this cause. Do ye but steepe forth, and stonde, and se the health of the LORD that is with you. Feare not O Juda and Jerusalem, and be not afrayed, tomorrow go ye forth agaynst them, and the LORD shal be with you.

The Josaphat bowed him selfe to his face to the earth, & all Juda, & the inhabiteurs of Jerusalem fell before the LORD, & worshipped the LORD. And the Levites of the childre of the Aharathites & of the childre of the Corahites arose to prayse the LORD God of Israel with loude voyce on hye. And they gat them vp early in the mornynge, and wete forth by the wyldernes of Thekoa.

And whan they were goynge out, Josaphat stode, & sayde: Herke vnto me O Juda, & ye indwellers of Jerusalem: Put youre trust in the LORD your God, & ye shal be safe: and gene credence vnto his prophetes, & ye shall prospere. And he gaue counsell vnto the people, and appoynted the syngers vnto the LORD, and them that gaue prayse in the berye of holynes, to go before the harnessed men, & to saye: O gene thankes vnto the LORD for his mercy endureth for ever. And whan they beganne to geue thankes and prayse, the LORD caused the hynder watch that was come agaynst Juda, to come vpon the childre of Ammon, Moab & them of mount Seir, and they smote them. Then stode the childre of Ammon & Moab agaynst them of mount Seir, to damne them, and to destroye them. And whan they had destroyed them of mount Seir, one helped another to destroye them selues also. And whan Juda came to Mispa vnto the wyldernes, they turned them towarde the multitude, and beholde, the deed bodies laye vpon the earth, so that none was escaped.

And Josaphat came with his people to deuote the spoyle of them. And they founde amonge them so moch goodes and rayment and precious Jewels (which they toke from them) that they coulde not beare them. And the dayes were they deuoydinge the spoyle, for it was so moch. On the fourth daye came they together into the valley of blessinge: for there blessed they the LORD. Therefore is the place called the valley of blessinge vnto this daye.

So every man of Juda & Jerusalem turned backe agayne, & Josaphat before them, to go to Jerusalem with ioye: for the LORD had geuen them gladnesse on their enemies. And they entred in to Jerusalem with psalteries, harpes & trompettes vnto the house of the LORD. And there came a feare of God over all the kyngdomes in the landes, whan they herde that the LORD had foughte agaynst the enemies of Israel. Thus was the kyngdome of Josaphat in quyetnes, & God gaue him rest on every syde.

And Josaphat reigned ouer Juda, & was fyue & thirtie yeare olde whan he was made kyng, & reigned fyue & twentye yeare at Jerusalem. His mothers name was Asuba the daughter of Gilhi. And he walked in the waye of his father Asa, & departed not asyde from doynge that which was righte in the sighte of the LORD: sayynge that the hye places were not put downe, for the people had not yet prepared their hert to the God of their fathers. What more there is to saye of Josaphat, both the first & the last, beholde, it is wyrtten in the actes of Jehu & sonne of Hanani, which he noted vp in the boke of the kynges of Israel.

Afterwarde byd Josaphat the kyng of Juda agree with Ahasia the kyng of Israel, which was vngodly in his doynge. And he agreed with him to make shippes, for to go vpon the see. And they made the shippes at Ezion Gaber. But Elieser the sonne of Dodana of Maresa prophecied agaynst Josaphat, and sayde: Because thou hast agreed with Ahasia, therefore hath the LORD brokenth thy workes. And so the shippes were broken, & mighte not go vpon the See.

The XXI. Chapter.

After Josaphat fell on slepe with his fathers, & was buried with his fathers in the cite of David, & Joram his sonne was kyng in his steade. And he had byethers the sonnes of Josaphat: Asaria, Jehiel, Zacharias, Asaria, Michael & Sepharia. All these were the childre of Josaphat kyng of Juda. And their father gaue them many giftes of syluer, golde & Jewels, & stronge cities in Juda. Vnto the kyngdome gaue he vnto Joram: for he was the first borne.

But whan Joram came vp ouer his fathers kyngdome, & had gotten the power of it, he slewe all his biethers with the swerde, & certayne rulers also in Israel. Two & thirtie yeare olde was Joram whan he was made kyng, & reigned eight yeare at Jerusalem, & walked in the waye of the kynges of Israel, euen as the house of Achab byd (for Achabs daughter was his wife) & he byd that which was euell in the sighte of the LORD.

Nevertheless the LORD wolde not destroye the house of David, for the coneuantentes sake, which he made with David, and accordinge as he had sayde, & he wolde geue him and his childre a lanterne for evermore.

At the same tyme fell the Edomites awaye from Juda, and made a kyng ouer them selues: for Joram had gone ouer with his captaynes and all the charettes with him, & had gotten him vp in the night season, and slayned the Edomites on every syde, and the rulers of the charettes: therefore fell the Edomites awaye from Juda vnto this daye. At the same tyme fell Lybna awaye from him also: because he forsoke the LORD God of his fathers. He made hye places also on the mountaynes in Juda, & caused them of Jerusalem to go awhorynge, and disceined Juda.

But there came a wyrtynge vnto him fro the prophet Elias, sayynge: Thus sayeth the LORD God of thy father David: Because thou hast not walked in the wayes of thy father Josaphat, nether in the wayes of Asa the kyng of Juda, but walkest in the waye of the kynges of Israel, and makest Juda and them of Jerusalem to go awhorynge after the whordome of the house of Achab, and hast slayne thy biethren also of thy fathers house, which were better the thou. Be holde, the LORDE shal smyte the w a grea te plage on thy people, on thy children z thy wyues, and on all thy substance. But thou thy selfe shalt haue moch sickness in thy bowels, tyll thy bowels go forth from daye to daye for very disease.

D So z LORDE rayseb vp agaynst Joram, the spere of the Philistynes, z Arabians, which lye besyde the Morians, and they wente up in to Juda, and waysted it, and caried awaye all the substance that was founde in the kynges house, z his sonnes, and his wyues, so z there was not one sonne lefte him, save Joahas his yongest sonne. And after all this dyd z LORDE smyte him in his bowels, with such a sickness as coulde not be healed. And whyle that endured from daye to daye, whan the tyme of two yeares was expyred, his bowels wente from him w his sickness, and he dyed in euell diseases.

And they made not a burninge ouer him, as they dyd vnto his fathers. Two and thirtie yeare olde was he whā he was made kyng, and reigned eight yeare at Ierusalem, and walked not well. And they buried him in the cite of Dauid, but not amōge the sepulchres of the kynges.

The XXII. Chapter.

And they of Ierusalem made Ochosias his yongest sonne kyng in his stead: for the men of warre that came w the hoost of the Arabians, had slayne all z first, therfore reigned Ochosias the sonne of Joram kyng of Juda. Two and fortye yeare olde was Ochosias whan he was made kyng, and reigned one yeare at Ierusalem. His mothers name was Athalia the daughter of Amri. And he walked also in z wayes of the house of Achab: for his mother enty sed him so z he was vngodly. Therfore dyd he euell in z sighte of the LORDE, euen as z house of Achab: for they were his counsell geuers after his fathers death, to destroye him, and he walked after their counsell.

B And he wente with Joram the sonne of Achab kyng of Israel, to the battayll vnto Ramoth in Gilead, agaynst Hasael the kyng of Syria. But the Syrians smote Joram, so z he returned back to be healed at Iesreel: for he had woundes that were geuen him at Rama, whan he foughte with Hasael the kyng of Syria. And z Asarias the sonne of Joram kyng of Juda were downe to vyset Joram z sonne of Achab at Iesreel, which laye sicke: for it was ordeyned of God vnto Ochosias, that he shulde come to Joram, z

so to go forth with Joram agaynst Jehu z sonne of Nimshi, z whom the LORDE had anoynted to rote out the house of Achab.

Now whan Jehu wolde be aneged of z house of Achab, he founde certayne rulers of Juda, and z childre of Ochosias brethien which serued Ochosias, and he slewe them. z And he soughte Ochosias, and they ouertoke him, whā he had hyd him at Samaria: z he was broughte vnto Jehu, which slewe him, and they buried him, for they sayde: he is his the sonne of Josaphat, which soughte z LORDE with all his hert. And there was no man more of the house of Ochosias that mighte be kyng.

Whan Athalia the mother of Ochosias sawe z hir sonne was deed, she gat hir vp, z destroyed all the kynges sede in the house of Juda. But Josabeath z kynges sister toke Joas z sonne of Ochosias, and stalle him awaye fro amonge the kynges childre z were slayne, z put him with his nurse in a chamber. Thus Josabeath kynges Jorams donghter, the wyfe of Joiada the prest, hyd him from Athalia, so z he was not slayne: for she was Ochosias sister. And he was hyd with them in the house of God sixe yeares, for so moch as Athalia was quene in the londe.

The XXIII. Chapter.

But in the seuench yeare was Joiada bold, and toke the rulers ouer hundreds: namely Asaria z sonne of Jeraham, Ismael z sonne of Johanan, Asaria z sonne of Obed, Macseia z sonne of Abaia, and Elisaphat z sonne of Sichu with him, into the covenant: and they wente aboute in Juda, and broughte z Levites together out of all the cities of Juda, and the chiefe fathers of Israel, to come vnto Ierusalem. And all the cōgregacion made a covenant with the kyng in the house of God, and he sayde vnto them: Beholde, the kynges sonne shal be kyng, z eue as the LORDE spake z cernyng the children of Dauid.

This is it therfore z ye shal do: The thirde parte of you that entre on the Sabbath, shalbe amonge the prestes z Levites, which are doctepers at the chiese holdes: z one thirde parte in the kynges house, and one thirde parte at the grounde porte. But all the people shalbe in the courtes of the house of the LORDE, and that no man go in to the house of the LORDE, excepte the prestes and Levites that mynister there, they shal go in: for they are halowed. And let all z people wayte vpon the LORDE. And the Levites shal get them rounde aboute z kyng, every with his weapen in his hande. And who so els goeth in to z house, let him dye. And they shal be z the kyng whā he goeth out z in.

And the Levites z all Juda dyd as Joia da z prest had commaunded, and every one toke his men that entred on the Sabbath, z those z wente of on the Sabbath: for Joia da z prest suffred not those two companies to parte asunder. And Joiada z prest gaue the captaynes ouer hundreds speares z shyl des, and kynges Dauids weapens, which were in the house of God, and set all the people every one w his weapen in his hande, from the righte corner of the house, vnto the lefte corner of the altare, and to the house warde aboute the kyng. And they broughte forth the kynges sonne, z set the crowne vpon his heade, and gaue them the z wyneesse, z made him kyng. And Joiada z his sonnes anoynted him, z sayde: God saue the kyng.

D But whan Athalia herde the noyse of z people z ranne together and praysed z kyng, she wente forth to the people in to z house of the LORDE, and looked: and beholde, z kyng stode in his place at z intraunce, and the rulers and trompettes aboute z kyng: and all the people of the londe were glad, z blew the trompes, and there were syngers z coulde playe w all maner of muscalle instruments. But she rete hir clothes, z sayde: Sedicion, sedicion. Neuertheles Joiada z prest gat him forth with the captaynes ouer hundreds and rulers of the hoost, and sayde vnto them: Brynge her forth betwene z walles, z who so euer foloweth her, shal be slayne with z swerde: for the prest had commaunded, that she shulde not be slayne in z house of the LORDE. And they layed handes on her. And whan she came at the intraunce of the hoist gate of the kynges house, they put her to death there.

And Joiada made a covenant betwene him and all the people, and the kyng, z they shulde be the people of the LORDE. The wēte all the people in to the house of Baal and destroyed it, z brake downe his altares z ymagēs, z slewe Mathan the prest of Baal besore the altare. And Joiada appoynted z officers in the house of the LORDE amōge the prestes z Levites z whom Dauid had ordeyned for z house of the LORDE, to offre burnt sacrifices vnto z LORDE, as it is wrytten in the z lawe of Moyses: w ioye z songes made by Dauid. And z porters set he at z gates of z house of z LORDE, z none shulde entre, which were defiled w eny maner of thinge.

And he toke the captaynes ouer hundreds and the mightie men and lordes of z people, and all the people of the londe, and brought the kyng downe from the house of the LORDE, and broughte him thorow the hye porte of the kynges house, and caused the kyng sit vpon the seate royall. And all the people of the londe were glad, and the cite was at rest. But Athalia was slayne with the swerde.

The XXIII. Chapter.

Joas was seuen yeare olde whan he was made kyng, and reigned fortie yeare at Ierusalem. His mothers name was Zibea of Beiseba. And Joas dyd that which was right in the sight of the LORDE, as longe as Joiada the prest lyued. And Joiada gaue him two wiues, z he begat sonnes z daughters. Afterwarde deuysed Joas to renne the house of the LORDE, z gathered together the prestes and Levites, z sayde vnto the: Go forth vnto all the cities of Juda, z gather the money of all Israel, to repayre z house of God yearly, and do it righte soone: but the Levites made no haist.

Then the kyng called Joiada the pryncipall, and sayde vnto him: Why lokest thou not vnto the Levites, z they brynge in from Juda and Ierusalem, the colleccion which Moyses the seruaunt of the LORDE appoynted to be gathered amōge Israel for the Tabernacle of witnes: for z vngodly Athalia z hir sonnes haue waisted the house of God: and all that was halowed for the house of the LORDE, haue they bestowed on Baalim.

Then commaunded the kyng to make a chest, and to set it without at the intraunce of the house of the LORDE: z caused it to be proclaimed in Juda and Ierusalem, that they shulde brynge in to the LORDE, the colleccō, which Moyses the seruaunt of God appointed vnto Israel in z wilderness. The were all z rulers glad, z so were all z people, z broughte it, and cast it in to the chest, tyll it was full.

And whan the tyme was z the Levites shulde brynge the Arke at z kynges cōmāndement (whan they sawe z there was moch money therein) then came the kynges scribe, z he z was appoynted of the chiese prest, and emptyed the chest, and caried it againe in to his place. Thus dyd they every daye, so that they gathered moch money together. And z kyng z Joiada gaue it vnto z workmasters of z house of the LORDE, and they hired masons z carpenters to repayre the house of z LORDE, and men that coulde worke in yron and brasse, to repayre the house of z LORDE.

And the labouers wrought, so that z repairinge in z worke wente forwarde thorow their hande, and they set the house of God in his bewtye, and made it stronge. And whan they had perfourmed this, they brought the resydue of the money before the kynge and Joiada, wherof there were made vessels for the house of the LORDE, vessels for the ministration and burnt offeringe, spones and ornaments of golde and silver. And they offred burnt offeringes allwaye in the house of the LORDE, as longe as Joiada lyued.

And Joiada waxed olde, and had lyued longe ynough, and dyed, and was an hundred and thirtie yeare olde whan he dyed: and they buried him in the cite of David, amonge the kynge, because he had done good vnto Israel, and towarde God and his house. And after the death of Joiada, came the rulers in Juda, and worshipped the kynge.

Then consented the kynge vnto the. And they forsoke the house of the LORDE God of their fathers, and serued y groves and ymagges. Then came y wrath of the LORDE vpo Juda and Jerusalem because of this trespass of theirs. Yet sent he prophetes vnto the, y they shulde turne vnto the LORDE, and they testified vnto the: but they wolde not heare.

at. 13 e

And the spiete of God came vpon Zachary the sonne of Joiada the prest, which stode ouer y people, and sayde vnto the: Thus sayeth God: Wherfore do ye transgresse the comaundementes of the LORDE, which shall not be to y prosperite: for ye haue forsaken y LORDE, therfore shal he forsake you. Neuer theles they conspyred agaynst him, and stoned him at y kynge's comaundement in y courte of the house of the LORDE. And Joas y kynge thought not on the mercy y Joiada his father had done for him, but slewe his sonne. Notwithstandinge whan he dyed, he sayde: The LORDE shal loke vpon it, and requyre it.

And whan the yeare was gone aboute, y power of the Syrians wente vp, and came to Juda and Jerusalem, and destroyed the rulers in the people, and sent all the spoiles of them vnto Damascon. For the power of the Syrians came but with a few men, yet gane y LORDE a very greate power in to their hande: because they had forsaken y LORDE God of their fathers. They executed iudgment also vpon Joas. And whan they departed fro him, they lefte him in greate sicknesses.

Neuertheles his seruantes conspyred agaynst him (because of the bloude of the childre of Joiada the prest) and slewe him vpo his bed, and he dyed, and they buried him in the cite of David, but not amonge the sepulchres of the kynge. They that conspyred agaynst him, were these: Sabad y sonne of Simeath the Ammonitisse, and Josabad the sonne of Simrith the Moabitisse. As for his sonnes, and the summe that was gathered vnder him, and the buyldinge of the house of God beholde, they are wrytten in the storie in the boke of the kynge. And Amasias his sonne was kynge in his steade.

The XXV. Chapter.

Yne and twentye yeare olde was Amasias whan he was made kynge, and reigned nyne and twentye yeare at Jerusalem. His mothers name was Joazan of Jerusalem. And he dyd y which was right in the sighte of the LORDE, but not w a whole her. Now whan his kingdome was in strenght, he slewe his seruantes which had slayne the kynge his father. But their childre slewe he not, for so is it wrytten in the boke of the lawe of Moses, where the LORDE comaundeth, and sayeth: The fathers shal not dye for the children, nether shal the children dye for the fathers: but every one shal die for his awne synne.

And Amasias broughte Juda together, and set them after the fathers houses, after the rulers ouer thousandes and ouer hundredes amonge all Juda and Ben Jamin, and nombred them from twentye yeare olde and aboue, and founde of the thre hundred thousande chosen men, which were able to go forth to the warre, and caryed speares and shyldes. And out of Israel appoynted he an hundred thousande stronge men of warre for an hundred talentes of silver.

But there came a man of God vnto him, and sayde: O kynge, let not the hoost of Israel come w the: for the LORDE is not with Israel, nether with all the childre of Ephraim. For yf thou comest to shewe y boldnes in the battail, God shal make the fall before thine enemies. For God hath power to helpe, and to cause for to fall. Amasias sayde vnto the man of God: What shal be done then with y hundred talentes y I haue geue y souldyers of Israel? The ma of God sayde: The LORDE hath yet more the this to geue the. So Amasias separated out the men of warre which were come to him out of Ephraim, y they shulde departed vnto their place. Then waxed their wrath very whor agaynst Juda, and they wente agayne vnto their place in wrothfull displeasure. And Amasias strenghted himselfe, and caryed out his people, and wente forth in to the Salt valley, and smote ten thousande of the childre of Seir.

And the childre of Juda toke ten thousande of the alnye, whom they broughte vp to the toppe of a mountayne, and cast the downe headlinges from the toppe of the mount, so that they all to barst in sunder. But y childre of the men of warre whom Amasias had sent awaye agayne (that they shulde not go to the battayll with his people) fell in to the cities of Juda, from Samaria vnto Beth Horon, and smote thre thousande of me, and toke moch spoyle.

And whan Amasias came agayne from the slaughter of the Edomites, he broughte the goddes of the children of Seir, and made them his goddes, and worshipped before them, and brent incense vnto them. Then was the LORDE very wroth at Amasias, and sent vnto him a prophet, which sayde vnto him: Why sekest thou the goddes of the people, which coulde not deliuer their folke from y hande? And whan he talked with him, the kynge sayde vnto him: Haue they made y of the kynge's counsell? Ceasse, why wilt thou be smytten? Then the prophet ceased, and sayde: I perceaue, that the LORDE is mynded to destroye y, because thou hast done this, and hertenest not vnto my counsell.

And Amasias y kynge of Juda toke counsell, and sent vnto Joas the sonne of Joahas y sonne of Jehu, kynge of Israel, sayenge: Come, let vs se one another. But Joas the kynge of Israel sent vnto Amasias y kynge of Juda, sayenge: The hawthorne in Libanus sent vnto y Cedre tre in Libanus, sayenge: Get thy daughter vnto my sonne to wife. But a wyld beast in Libanus ranne ouer y hawthorne, and trode it downe. Thou thinkest: Beholde, I haue smytten the Edomites, therfore is thine hert proude to boaste. Now byde at home: why stryuest thou after my fortune, that thou mayest fall? And Juda w the?

Neuertheles Amasias consented not: for so was it broughte to passe of God, y they mighte be geuen in to the handes of the enemies, because they soughte the goddes of y Edomites. Then wente Joas the kynge of Israel vp, and they sawe one another, he and Amasias the kynge of Juda, at Beth Semes which lyeth in Juda. But Juda was smytte before Israel, and they fled euery one vnto his tent.

And Joas the kynge of Israel toke Amasias y kynge of Juda, the sonne of Joas y sonne of Joahas, at Beth Semes, and broughte him to Jerusalem, and brake downe the wall of Jerusalem, from y porte of Ephraim vnto the corner porte, euere foure hundred cubites longe: and toke with him all the golde, and silver, and all the ornaments that were founde in y house of God with Obed EDOM, and in the treasures in the kynge's house, and the childre to pledge vnto Samaria. And Amasias the sonne of Joas kynge of Juda, liued after the death of Joas the sonne of Joahas kynge of Israel fiftene yeare.

What more there is to saye of Amasias (both the first and last) beholde, it is wrytten in y boke of the kynge of Juda and Israel. And fro the tyme forth that Amasias departed from the LORDE, they conspyred agaynst him at Jerusalem. But he fled vnto Lachis. The sent they after him vnto Lachis, and slewe him there. And they brought him vpo horses and buried him beside his fathers in the cite of Juda.

The XXVI. Chapter.

Then all the people of Juda toke Osias, which was syxtene yeare olde, and made him kynge in steade of his father Amasias. He builded the wall, and broughte it agayne vnto Juda, after that the kynge was fallen on slepe with his fathers. Sixtene yeare olde was Osias whan he was made kynge, and reigned two and fiftie yeare at Jerusalem. His mothers name was Jehalia of Jerusalem. And he did right in the sighte of the LORDE, as his father Amasias had done, and soughte God as longe as Zacharias lyued, which taughte in the visions of God: and as longe as he sought the LORDE, God made him to prospere.

For he wente forth, and soughte agaynst the philistynes, and brake downe y walles of Gath, and the walles of Jabne, and the walles of Asdod, and buylded cities aboute Asdod, and amonge the philistynes. For God helped him agaynst the philistines, agaynst the Arabians, agaynst them of Gur Baal, and agaynst the Meunites. And y Ammonites gaue Osias presentes, and his name came in to Egypte: for he was excedinge stronge. And Osias buylded towres at Jerusalem vpon the corner porte, and on the valley gate, and on other corners, and made them stronge. He buylded castles also in the wyldernes, and dygged many welles: for he had many catell, both in the medewes and in the playnes, husbandmen also and wynegardeners on the mountaynes and on Carmel: for he deliued in husbandrye.

And Osias had an hoost of men of warre goynge forth to the battail, which were nombred vnder the hande of Jeiel the scribe and of Maasa the offycer, vnder the hande of Hanania of the kynge's rulers. And the nombres of the chiefe fathers amonge the stronge me of warre, was two thousande and fyve hundred. And vnder the hande of the hoost thre hundred thousande, and seven thousande and fyve hundred mete for the battayll, in the strength of an armie to helpe the kinge agaynst the enemies. And Osiat prepared for all the hoost, shylde, speares, helmettes, brest plates, bowes and slyngstones. And at Jerusalem he made ordinaunce conyngly, to be vpon the towres and in the pynacles, to shute arrowes and greates stones. And the fame of him came farre abroad, because he was specially helped, tyll he became mightie.

And whan his power was greates, his hert arose to his awne destruccion: for he trespassed agaynst the LORDE his God, and wente in to the temple of the LORDE, to burne incense vpon the altare of incense. But Asarias the prest wente after him, and soure score prestes with him, valeaunt men, and withstode kynge Osiat, and saide vnto him: It belongeth not vnto thy office (Osiat) to burne incense vnto the LORDE, but vnto the prestes belongeth it, enen vnto the children of Aaron, which are halowed to burne incense. Go forth out of the Sanctuary: for thou offendest, and it shall be no worshippe vnto the before God the LORDE.

And Osiat was wroth, and had a censoure in his hande. And whyle he murmured with the prestes, the leprosy spronge out of his foreheade in the presence of the prestes in the house of the LORDE before the altare of incense. And Asarias the chiefe prest turned his heade towarde him, and so dyd all the prestes, and beholde, he was leper in his foreheade. And they put him out from thence. Yee he made haist himselfe to go forth, for his plage came of the LORDE. Thus became Osiat kynge a leper vnto his death, and dwelt full of leprosy in a fire house: for he was put out of the house of the LORDE. But Joram his sonne had the ouersight of the kynges house, and iudged the people in the londe.

What more there is to saie of Osiat (both first and last) I say the sonne of Amos hath wrytten it. And Osiat fell on slepe with his fathers, and they buried him with his fathers in the pece of grounde beside kynge Joram's sepulchres: for they sayde: he is leprous. And Joram his sonne was kynge in his steade.

The XXVII. Chapter.

Joram was fyve and twentye yeare olde whan he was made kynge, and reigned sixtene yeare at Jerusalem.

His mothers name was Iersa the daughter of Sadoc: he dyd righte in the sighte of the LORDE as did Osiat his father: I saynge he wente not in to the temple of the LORDE, and the people yet married them selues. He buylded the hye porte of the house of the LORDE, and on the wall of Ophel buylded he moche, and buylded the cities vpon the mountaynes of Iuda, and in the woddes buylded he castels and towres.

And he fought with the kinge of the children of Ammon, and ouer came them, so that the childre of Ammon gaue him the same yeare an hundred talentes of siluer, ten thousande quarters of wheate, and ten thousande of barley. So moche dyd the children of Ammon geue him also in the seconde and thirde yeare. Thus became Joram mightie, for he gyded his wayes before the LORDE his God.

What more there is to saie of Joram, and all his warres, vnd his waies, beholde, it is wrytten in the boke of the kynges of Israel and Iuda. Fyne and twentye yeare olde was he whan he was made kynge, and reigned sixtene yeare at Jerusalem. And Joram fell on slepe with his fathers, and they buried him in the cite of David, and Achaz his sonne was kynge in his steade. The XXVIII. Chapter.

Achaz was twentye yeare olde whan he was made kynge, and reigned sixtene yeare at Jerusalem, and dyd not that which was righte in the sighte of the LORDE, as did David his father, but walked in the wayes of the kynges of Israel, and made molten ymages vnto Baalim, and burnt incense in the valley of the children of Hennon, and breth his awne sonnes in the fire, after the abominacions of the heithen, whiche the LORDE expelled before the childre of Israel. And he dyd sacrifice and burnt incense vpon the hye places and vpon the hilles, and amonge all grene trees.

Therefore dyd the LORDE his God deliuer him in to the hande of the kynge of Syria, so that they smote him, and caryed awaye a greates multitude of his men prisoners, and broughte them to Damascon. He was geuen also vnder the hande of the kynge of Israel, so that he dyd a greates slaughter vpon him. For Peacah the sonne of Remaliah smote in Iuda an hundred and twentye thousande in one daye (which all were valeaunt men) enen because they had forsaken the LORDE God of their fathers. And Sichri a mightie man of Ephraim slewe Maaseia the kinges sonne, and Asikam the pryncce of the house, and Elitana the nexte vnto the kynge. And the childre dyd of Israel caryed of their brethren prisoners two hundred thousande, women, sonnes and daughters, and toke a greates spoyle from them, and broughte the spoyle vnto Samaria.

But enen there was there a prophet of the LORDE, whose name was Obed, which wente out to mete the hoost that came to Samaria, and sayde vnto them: Beholde, because the LORDE God of youre fathers is wroth at Iuda, therefore hath he geuen them ouer in to youre handes: but ye haue slayne them so abhominably, that it is come vnto heauē. Now thinke ye to subdue the children of Iuda and Jerusalem, to be bondmen and bond maydens vnto you. Is not this a trespase then to you agaynst the LORDE your God? Herken now vnto me, and sende the prisoners hence agayne, whom ye haue caryed awaye from youre brethren: for the wraith of the LORDE is scarce ouer you.

Then gat vp certayne of the chiefe of the children of Ephraim, Asarias the sonne of Johanan, Barachias the sonne of Mesillemoth, Ezechias the sonne of Sallum, and Amasa the sonne of Hadlai, agaynst them, and came from the battayll, and sayde vnto them: We shal not brynge the prisoners in hither, for youre mynde is but to make vs trespase before the LORDE, to make oure synnes and offences the greater: for the trespase is to moche allready, and the wraith is scarce ouer Israel. So the hoost lefte the prisoners and the spoyle before the rulers and before the whole congregacion.

Then stode vp the men (which now were rehersed by name) and toke the prisoners, and as many as were naked amonge them, clothed they with felle, and decked them, and put shues vpon their fete, and gaue them to eate and drynke, and anoynted them, and caryed them vpon asses (as many as were felle) and broughte them to Jericho to the palme cite vnto their brethren, and came agayne to Samaria. At the same tyme sent kynge Achaz vnto the kynges of Assur, and they shulde helpe him. And the Edomites came agayne, and smote Iuda, and caryed some awaye captiue. The philistynes also fell in to the cities in the playne, and towarde the south parte of Iuda, and wanne Beth Semes, Aialon, Gederoth, and Socho with the villages therof, Timna with the villages therof, and Gimzi with the villages therof, and dwelt therein. For the LORDE subdued Iuda for Achaz sake, the kynge of Iuda, because he made Iuda naked, and rebelled agaynst the LORDE. And Teglatpineser the kynge of Assur came me agaynst him, and beseged him, and he was not mightie ynough for him.

For Achaz spoyled the house of the LORDE, and the kynges house, and of the rulers, to geue vnto the kynge of Assur, but it helped him not. Moreover kynge Achaz trespassed yet more agaynst the LORDE enen in his trouble, and dyd sacrifice vnto the goddes of them of Damascon, which had smitten him, and sayde: The goddes of the kynges of Syria helpe them, therefore wil I offre vnto them, that they maye helpe me also, where as the same yet were a fall vnto him and to all Israel.

And Achaz gathered the vessels of the house of God together, and brake the vessels in the house of God, and shut the doores of the house of the LORDE, and made him altares in all corners at Jerusalem, and euery where in the cyties of Iuda made he hye places to burne incense vnto other goddes, and provoked the LORDE God of his fathers vnto wraith.

What more there is to saie of him and of all his wayes (both first and last) beholde, it is wrytten in the boke of the kynges of Iuda and Israel. And Achaz fell on slepe with his fathers, and they buried him in the cite of Jerusalem: for they brought him not amonge the sepulchres of the kynges of Israel. And Ezechias his sonne was kynge in his steade.

The XXIX. Chapter.

Ezechias was fyne and twentye yeare olde whan he was made kynge, and reigned nyne and twentye yeares at Jerusalem. His mothers name was Abia the daughter of Zachary. And he dyd that which was righte in the sighte of the LORDE, as did his father David. He opened the doores of the house of the LORDE in the first moneth of the first yeare of his raigne, and made them stronge, and brought in the prestes and Levites, and gathered them together vnto the East streete and sayde vnto them: Herken vnto me ye Levites, sanctifye youre selues now, for ye maye halowe the house of the LORDE God of youre fathers, and put fylchines out of the Sanctuary: for oure fathers haue trespassed, and done that which was euell in the sighte of the LORDE our God, and haue forsaken him. For they turned their faces from the habitacion of the LORDE our God, and turned their backs on it, and shut the doores of the porche, and put out the lampes, and burnt no incense, and offered no burnt sacrifices in the Sanctuary vnto the God of Israel.

Therefore is the wraith of the LORDE come ouer Iuda and Jerusalem, and he hath geuen them ouer to be scatred abroad, desolate and to be hyssed at, as yese with yō eies. For beholde, euen for the same cause sell oure fathers thorow the swerde, oure sonnes daughters and wyues were caryed awaye captyue. Now am I mynded to make a cōuenant with the LORDE God of Israel, & he maye turne awaie from vs his wrath & indignacion. Now my sonnes, be not ye negligent: for the LORDE hath chesen you to stōde before him, and to be his mynisters and to burne incense vnto him.

Then rose the Leuites: Mahath the sonne of Amasai, and Joel the sonne of Asaria of the children of the Ahathites: Of the children of Merari: Cis the sonne of Abdi, & Asaria the sonne of Jehaleleel. Of the children of the Gersonites: Joab the sonne of Simma, and Eden the sonne of Joab. And of the childrē of Elizaphan: Simri & Zeiel. And of the childrē of Assaph: Sachary and Nathania. And of the children of Seman: Jehiel and Simei. And of the children of Jedihun: Semaia and Usiel.

And they gathered their brethren together, and were sanctified, and wente in accordinge to the Kynges commaundement at the worde of the LORDE, to clesse the house of & LORDE. And the prestes entred within in the house of the LORDE to purifye, and put out all the vnclennes that was founde in the temple of the LORDE, in the courte of the LORDES house: and the prestes toke it vp, and a ryed it out in to the broke Cedron. The first daye of the first moneth beganne they to sanctifye them selues, and on the eight daye of the moneth wente they in to the porche of the LORDE, and halowed the house of & LORDE eight dayes, and fynished it on the sixteenth daye of the first moneth.

And they wete in to the Kynges Ezechias, and sayde: We haue clesed all the house of the LORDE, the altare of burntofferings, and all his vessels, the table of the shewbread and all the apparell therof: and all the ornamentes that Kyng Achas cast awaye whā he was Kyng, what tyme as he transgressed, those haue we prepared: and halowed. Beholde, they are before the altare of the LORDE.

Then the Kyng Ezechias gat him vpe early, and gathered together the Elders of the cite, and wete vp vnto the house of the LORDE, and they broughte seven bullockes, seven rammes, seven lambes, and seven he goates to be the synofferynge, for the Sanctuary, & for Juda. And he spake vnto the prestes the children of Aaron, that they shulde offer vpon the altare of the LORDE.

So they slewe the bullockes, and the prestes toke the bloude, and sprentled it vpon the altare: and slewe the rammes, and sprentled the bloude vpon the altare: and slewe the lambes, and sprentled the bloude vpon the altare. And y goates to & synofferynge brought they before the Kyng and the congregacion, and layed their handes vpon them: and the prestes slewe them, and sprentled their bloude vpon the altare to make attonement for all Israel: for the Kyng commaunded to offre burnt sacrifices and synofferynges for all Israel.

And he set the Leuites in the house of the LORDE with Cymbales, psalteries and harpes, as Dauid had commaunded, and Gad the Kynges Seer, and the prophet Nathan: for it was the commaundement of the LORDE by his prophetes. And the Leuites stode with the muscalle instrumentes of Dauid, & the prestes with the trompettes. And Ezechias commaunded them to offre burnt sacrifices vpon the altare. And aboute the tyme that the burnt sacrifice begane to be offered the songe of the LORDE beganne also, and & trompettes, and dyuerse instrumentes of Dauid the Kyng of Israel and all the congregacion gaue praise & thankes: and the songe of the Musicians, and & blowinges of the trompetters, endured all tyll the burnt offeringe was fynished.

Now whan the burnt offeringe was perfourmed, the Kyng and all they that were with him, bowed them selues, and gaue praise and thankes. And Ezechias the Kyng & the rulers commaunded the Leuites to prayse the LORDE with the songes of Dauid and Assaph the Seer. And they gaue prayse tyll they were ioyfull, and they bowed them selues, and worshipped.

And Ezechias answered and saide: Now haue ye fylled youre hādes vnto the LORDE: steppe forth, and brynge hither & sacrifices and thankofferynges vnto the house of the LORDE. And the congregacion broughte sacrifices and thankofferynges, and euery mā of a fre wyllinge hert brought burnt offerings. And the nombre of the burnt offerings that the congregacion broughte, was thre score bullockes and ten, an hundred rammes, and two hundred lambes, and all the synofferynges vnto the LORDE, and they sanctified six hundred bullockes, and thre thousand shepe.

But the prestes were to fewe, and coulde not plynck of the skynnes of all the burnt offerings, therfore toke they their brethren the Leuites, tyll the worke was fynished, and tyll the prestes were halowed (for the Leuites are easier to be halowed then the prestes) and many of the burnt offerings were with the fat of the thankofferynges and drynt offerings to the burnt sacrifices. Thus was the ministracion of the house of the LORDE prepared. And Ezechias reioysed with all the people, that they were prepared with God: for it was done righte hastily.

The XXX. Chapter.

And Ezechias sent in to all Israel and Juda, and wrote letters vnto Ephraim and Manasses, that they shulde come to the house of the LORDE at Jerusalem, to kepe easter vnto the LORDE God of Israel. And the Kyng helde a counsell with his rulers, and all the cōgregacion at Jerusalem, to kepe passeouer in the seconde moneth: for at that tyme they coulde not kepe it, because the prestes were not sanctified ynough, and the people were not yet come together vnto Jerusalem. And it pleased the Kyng well and all the cōgregacion. And they appointed it to be proclaimed thorow out all Israel from Berseba vnto Dan, that they shulde come to kepe passeouer vnto the LORDE God of Israel: for they were not many to kepe it as it is wrytten.

And the postes wente with the letters from the hande of the Kyng and of his rulers thorow out all Israel and Juda, at y Kynges commaundement, and sayde: Ye children of Israel, turne you vnto the LORDE God of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, and he shal turne to y escaped, which are lefte ouer amonge you from the hande of the Kyng of Assur: and be not ye as youre fathers and brethren, which rebelled agaynst the LORDE God of their fathers, and he gaue the ouer in to desolacion as ye se youre selues. Be not ye hardned now as were youre fathers, but offre youre hāde vnto the LORDE, and come to his sanctuary, which he hath sanctified for ener, and serue the LORDE youre God, & so shal the indignacion of his wrath turne awaie from you. For yf ye turne vnto the LORDE, then shal youre brethren and children haue mercy in the sighte of them which holde them in captiuyte, that they maye come agayne in to this londe: for the LORDE youre God is gracious and mercifull, and shal not turne awaie his face from you, yf ye conuerte vnto him.

And the postes wente from one cite to another in the londe of Ephraim and Manasses, and vnto Zabulon. But they mocked them and laughed them to scorne. Yet were there some of Asser and Manasses, and of Zabulon, that submytted them selues, and came to Jerusalem. And the hande of God came in to Juda, so that he gaue the one here to do after the commaundement of the Kyng and the rulers at the worde of the LORDE. And there came together vnto Jerusalem a greate people, to kepe the feast of vnleued bried in the seconde moneth, a very greate congregacion.

And they gat them vp, and put downe y altars that were at Jerusalem, and all the incense put they awaye, and cast it in to the broke Cedron, and slewe the passeouer on the fourteenth daye of the seconde moneth. And y prestes and Leuites were ashamed, and halowed them selues, and broughte the burnt offerings to the house of the LORDE, and stode in their ordinaunce, as it was acordinge, after the lawe off Moses the man of God. And the prestes sprentled the bloude from the hande of the Leuites: for there were many in the cōgregacion which were not sanctified, therfore dyd the Leuites kyll passeouer for them which were not clesed, that they mighte be sanctified vnto the LORDE.

There were many people also of Ephraim, Manasses, Issachar and Zabulon, which were not cleane, but ate the Easter lambe not as it is wrytten: for Ezechias prayed for them, and sayde: The LORDE, which is gracious, shalbe mercifull vnto all them that prepare their hertes vnto God, to seke the LORDE God of their fathers, though they be not clesed after the holy purification. And the LORDE herde Ezechias, and healed the people. Thus the children of Israel that were founde at Jerusalem, helde y feast of vnleued bried seven dayes with greate ioye. And the Leuites and prestes prayed the LORDE euery daye with the loude instrumentes of the LORDE. And Ezechias spake hertely vnto all y Leuites, which had good vnderstandinge in the LORDE, and they ate the feast seven dayes, and offered thankofferynges, and gaue thankes vnto y LORDE God of their fathers.

And all the congregacion deuysed to kepe the feast yet other seven dayes, and so they helde it those seven dayes also with ioye: for Ezechias the Kyng of Juda gaue an heue-offerynge for the cōgregacion, euen a thou-lande bullockes, and seven thousande shepe. But the rulers gaue an heueofferinge for y congregacion, euen a thousande bullockes, and ten thousande shepe. And many of the prestes sanctified them selues.

And the whole congregacion of Juda reioysed, the prestes and Levites, and all the congregacion that came out of Israel, and the straungers that were come out of the londe of Israel, and they that dwelt in Juda, and greate ioye was there at Jerusalem: for sence the tyme of Salomon the sonne of Dauid the kynge of Israel, was there no soch (ioye) at Jerusalem. And the prestes and Levites stode vp and blessed the people, and their voyce was herde, and their prayer came in to his holy habitacion in heauen.

The XXXI. Chapter.

And whan all this was fynished, all the Israelites that were founde in y cities of Juda, wente out, and brake the pilers, and hewed downe the groues, and brake downe the hye places and altars out of all Juda, Ben Iamin, Ephraim and Manasses, tyll they had destroyed the. And all the children of Israel wente agayne every one to his possession vnto their cities.

But Ezechias set the prestes and Levites in their ordinaunces, eury one after his office, both the prestes and Levites, for the burnt sacrifices and thankeofferynges, to my nister, to geue thankes and prayse in the gates of the hoost of the LORDE. And the kynge gaue his porcion of his substance for the burnt offerynges in the moynynge and euenynge, and for the burnt offerynges of the Sabbath, and of the new mone and of the feastes, as it is wyrtten in the lawe of the LORDE.

But he spake vnto y people which dwelt at Jerusalem, that they shulde geue porcions vnto the prestes and Levites, y they mighte the more stedfastly endure in the lawe of the LORDE. And whā y worde came forth, the childre of Israel gaue many fyist frutes of come, wyne, oyle, hony, and all maner increace of the felde, and broughte in moch of all maner tithes. And the children of Israel and Juda which dwelt in the cities of Juda, broughte the tithes also of oxen and shepe, and the tithes of soch thinges as were sanctified, which they had halowed vnto the LORDE their God, and made here an heape, and there an heape. In the thirde moneth begane they to laye vpon heapes, and in the seventh moneth dyd they fynishen.

And whā Ezechias with the rulers wente in, and sawe the heapes, they prayed the LORDE, and his people of Israel. And Ezechias axed the prestes and Levites concerninge the heapes. And Asaria the prest the chiefe in the house of Sadoc, sayde vnto him: Sence the tyme that they beganne to brynge the heueofferynges in to y house of the LORDE, we haue eaten, and are satisfied, and yet is there leste ouer: for the LORDE hath blessed his people, therfore is this heape leste ouer. Then commaunded the kynge, that they shulde prepare chestes in the house of the LORDE. And they prepared them, and put in the heueofferynges, and tithes, and that which was halowed, faithfully.

And the ouersight of the same had Chanania the Leuite, and Simei his brother the seconde, and Jehiel, Asasia, Haglath, Asahel, Jerimoth, Josabad, Eliel, Jesmachia, Mahath and Benaia, ordeyned of the hande off Chanania and Simei his brother, accordinge to the commaundement of Ezechias. But Asaria was pryncer in the house of God. And Coze y sonne of Iemua the Leuite the porter of the Eastgate was ouer the frewyllinge giftes of God (which were geuen for heueofferynges vnto the LORDE) and ouer the Most holy. And vnder his hande were, Eden, Miniamin, Jesua, Semai, Amaria, and Sachania in the cities of the prestes vpon credence, that they shulde geue vnto their brethren accordinge to their courses, to the leest as to the greatest.

And vnto them that were counted for men childre from thre yeare olde and aboue, amonge all the that wete in to the house of the LORDE, eury one vpo his daye to their office in their attendaunces after their courses. And they that were rekened for prestes in the house of their fathers, and the Levites from twentye yeare and aboue, in their attendaunces after their courses. And they that were rekened amonge their children, wyues, sonnes and daughters amonge the whole congregacion: for that which was halowed, sanctified they vpon credence. There were men also named by name amonge Aarons children the prestes vpon the feldes of the suburbs in all y cities, that they shulde geue porcions vnto all the men children amonge the prestes, and to all them that were renombred amonge the Levites.

Thus dyd Ezechias in all Juda, and dyd that which was good, righte and true in the sighte of the LORDE his God. And in all the busynes that he toke in hade concerninge the seruyce of the house of God, accordinge to the lawe and commaundement, to seke his God, that dyd he with all his hert, and therfore prospered he well.

The XXXII. Chapter.

After these actes and faithfulness came Sennacherib the kynge of Assur, and wente in to Juda, and pitched before the stronge cities, and thoughte to plucke them vnto him. And whan Ezechias sawe that Sennacherib came, and that his face stode to fighte agaynst Jerusalem, he deuysed with his rulers and mightie men, to couer the waters of the welles that were without the cite, and they helped him: and there gathered together a greate people, and couered all y welles and water brokes in the myddes of the londe, and sayde: Lest the kynge of Assur fynde moch water whā they come. And he toke a courage vnto him, and buylded all the walles where they were in decaye, and made towres thereon, and buylded yet another wall without, and strengthened Millo in the cite of Dauid. And made moch ordinaunce and shyldes, and set captaynes of warre ouer the people.

And gathered them vnto him vpon the biode strete by the gate of the cite, and spake hertely vnto them, and sayde: Be stronge and bolde, feare not, and be not afrayed for the kynge of Assur, ner all y multitude that is with him: for there is one greater with vs then with him. With him is a fleschly arme, but with vs is the LORDE oure God, to helpe vs and to fighte for vs. And y people trusted vnto the wordes of Ezechias kynge of Juda.

Afterwarde sent Sennacherib the kynge of Assur his seruantes vnto Jerusalem (for he laye before Lachis, z all his hoost w him) to Ezechias y kynge of Juda, z to all Juda that was at Jerusalem, sayenge: Thus sayeth Sennacherib y kynge of Assur: Wherin put ye youre trust ye that dwell in the beseged Jerusalem? Ezechias disceaueth you, that he maye deliuer you vnto death, honger and thurst, and sayeth: The LORDE oure God shal deliuer vs from the hande of the kynge of Assur. Is it not Ezechias, that hath put awaye his hye places and altars, and sayde vnto Juda and Jerusalem: Before one altare shal ye worshippe, and burne incense thereon?

C And we ye not what I and my fathers

haue doneto all y people in the londes: haue the goddes of the heythen in the londes bene able to deliuer their countrees fro my hande? What is he amonge all the goddes of these heythen (whom my sather dammed) that was able to deliuer his people fro my hande? y youre God shulde be able to deliuer from my hande. Therfore let not Ezechias now disceauye you, and let him not persuaue you eny soch thinge, and beleue him not. For yf no god of all the heythe and kyngdomes might deliuer his people fro my hande and from the hande of my progenitours, then shal not youre goddes be able to deliuer you fro my hande.

His seruantes also spake yet more against the LORDE God, and agaynst his seruant Ezechias. And he wrote a letter to blasphemethe LORDE God of Israel, and spake of him, and sayde: Like as the goddes of the heythen in their londes haue not bene able to deliuer their people from my hande, euen so shal not the God of Ezechias deliuer his people fro my hande.

And the cryed with loude voyce in the Jewish langage vnto the people of Jerusalem that were vpon the wall, to make them fearfull and to be sayntharted, that they mighte wyne the cite. And they spake agaynst the God off Jerusalem, euen as agaynst the goddes off the nacions vpon earth, which were but the workes of mens hondes.

But contrary wyse the kynge Ezechias and the prophet Eay the sonne of Amos prayed, and cryed vnto heauē. And the LORDE sent an angell, which destroyed all the mightie men of the hoost, and the prynces and rulers in y tentes of the kynge of Assur, so that he departed agayne with shame in to his owne londe. And whan he wente in to his gods house, they y came of his owne body, slew him there with the swerde. Thus the LORDE helped Ezechias and them at Jerusalem, out of the hade of Sennacherib y kynge of Assur, and of all other, and mayn tained the frō all on eury syde, so y many broughte presentes vnto the LORDE to Jerusalem, and Jewels vnto Ezechias the kynge of Juda. And afterwarde was he exalted in the sighte of all heythen.

At y same tyme was Ezechias deediscke, and he prayed vnto the LORDE, which made him promes, and gaue him a wonder to ken. But Ezechias recōpensed not accordinge as was geuen vnto him, for his hert was lifted vp: therfore came the wrath vpon him, and vpon Juda and Jerusalem. Nevertheless Ezechias humbled him selfe because his hert had bene exalted, with them at Jerusalem: therefore came not the wrath of the LORD vpon them, whyle Ezechias lyued.

And Ezechias had very greater riches and worshippe, and made him treasures of syluer, golde, precious stones, spices, shyldes, and all maner costely vessell, and corne houses for the increace of corne, wyne and oyle, and stalles for all maner catell, and foldes for the shepe, and buylded him cities, and had many catell of shepe and oxen: for God gaue him very moch good.

S It is the same Ezechias that covered the hye water condyte in Gihon, and conveyed it vnder on the west syde of y<sup>e</sup> cite of David: for Ezechias prospered in all his workes. But whan the interpreters the chiefe of Babilon were sent vnto him, to aske question at him (concernynge the wonder toke that had happened in the londe) God leste him: to be tempted, that it mighte be knowne what soener was in his hert.

Deut. 32

What more there is to saye of Ezechias, and of his mercifulnes, beholde, it is wyrtte in the vision of the prophet Esay the sonne of Amos, and in the boke of the Kynges of Juda and Israel. And Ezechias fell on slepe with his fathers, and they buried him ouer the sepulchres of the children of David, and all Juda and they of Jerusalem dyd him worshippe in his death: and Manasses his sonne was kynge in his steade.

The XXXIII. Chapter.

A Manasses was twolue yeare olde whā he was made kynge, and reigned fyue and fiftye yeare at Jerusalem, and dyd that which was euell in the sighte of the LORD (euē after the abominacions of the heythen, whom the LORD expelled before the children of Israel) and turned backe, and buylded the hye places, (which his father Ezechias had broken downe) and set vp altares vnto Baalim, and made groues, and worshipped all the hoost of heauen, and serued them. He buylded altares also in y<sup>e</sup> LORDES house, wherof the LORD had sayde: At Jerusalem shal my name be for ever. And vnto all the hoost of heauen buylded he altares in both the courtes of y<sup>e</sup> house of the LORD. And in the valley of the sonne of Zennon caused he his arrene sonnes to go thorow the fyre, and chosed dayes, & regarded bydes cryenge, and wittches, and founded soyth sayers and expounders of tokens, and dyd moch that was euell in the sighte of the LORD to prouoke him vnto wrath.

Earned ymages also and Idols (which he caused to make) set he vp in Gods house, wherof the LORD said vnto David and to Salomon his sonne: In this house at Jerusalem which I haue chosen out of all the trybes of Israel, wyl I set my name for ever, and wyl nomore let the fore of Israel rane ne fro the londe that I appoynted for their fathers, so farre as they obserue to do all I haue commaunded them, in all the lawe, statutes and ordinaunces by Moyses. But Manasses disceined Juda and them of Jerusalem, so that they dyd worse then the heythen, whom the LORD destroyed before the children of Israel. And the LORD espate vnto Manasses and his people, and they regarded it not.

Therefore dyd the LORD cause the rulers of the hoost of the kynge of Assur to come vpo the, which toke Manasses prisoner with bodes, and bounde him with cheynes, & broughte him vnto Babilon. And whan he was in trouble, he made intercession before the LORD his God, and humbled him selfe greatly before the God of his fathers, and prayed and besoughte him. Then he he his prayer, and broughte him agayne to Jerusalem to his kyngdome. And Manasses knewe that the LORD is God.

Afterwarde buylded he y<sup>e</sup> vttemost wall of the cite of David, on the west syde of Gihon by the broke, and at the entraunce of the Jyshgate, and rounde aboute. Ophel, and made it very hye. And layed captaynes in y<sup>e</sup> stronge cities of Juda, & put awaye y<sup>e</sup> strange goddesses & Idols out of y<sup>e</sup> house of y<sup>e</sup> LORD, and all the altares which he had buylded vpo the mount of the house of the LORD, and in Jerusalem, and cast them out of the cite, and buylded the altare of the LORD, and offred slayn offer ynges and thank offer ynges thereon, and commaunded Juda, that they shulde serue the LORD God of Israel. Nevertheless though the people offred vnto the LORD their God, yet offred they vpon the hye places.

What more there is to saye of Manasses, and of his prayer to his God, and the wordes of the Seers that spake vnto him in the name of the LORD God of Israel, beholde, they are amonge the actes of the Kynges of Israel. And his prayer and intercession, and all his synne and offence, & the rowmes wherin he buylded the hye places & groues and founded ydols, afore he humbled himselfe, beholde, they are wyrtten amonge the actes of the Seers. And Manasses fell on slepe with his fathers, and they buried him in his house, and Amon his sonne was kynge in his steade.

Two and twetye yeare olde was Amon whā he was made kynge, and reigned two yeare at Jerusalem, and dyd euell in the sighte of the LORD, as Manasses his father had done. And Amon offred vnto all the Idols that his father Manasses had made and serued the. Yet dyd not he humble himselfe before the LORD, as Manasse his father had submitted himselfe: but Amon trespassed euē more and more. And his seruantes conspyred agaynst him, and slewe him in his house. Then smote the people in the londe all them that had conspyred agaynst kynge Amon. And the people in the londe made Josias his sonne kynge in his steade.

The XXXIII. Chapter.

J Josias was eight yeare olde whan he was made kynge, and reigned one and thirtye yeare at Jerusalem, and dyd that which was righte in the sighte of the LORD, and walked in the wayes of David his father, and turned not asyde, ne ther to the righte hande ner to the lefte. For in the eight yeare of his reigne whā he was yet but a childe, he beganne to seke the God of his father David: and in the twolue thre yeare beganne he to clense Juda and Jerusalem from the hye places and groues, and carued Idols, and molten ymages: and caused the altares of Baalim to be broken downe before him, and the ymages that were thereon, hewed he downe. And y<sup>e</sup> groues and carued Idols and molten ymages brake he in peces, and made them to dust, and scatred it vpon the graves of them that had offred vnto them. And the bones of the prestes brent he vpo the altares, and so clesed he Juda & Jerusalem, & in y<sup>e</sup> cities of Manasses, Ephraim, Simeon, and vnto Nephtali in their wyldernes on euery syde. And whā he had broken downe the altares and groues, and smyt ten the Idols in peces, and hewed downe all the ymages in all the londe of Israel, he came agayne to Jerusalem.

In the eighteth yeare of his reigne whā he had clesed the londe and the house, he sent Saphan the sonne of Asalia and Maaseia the Shreue of the cite, and Joath the sonne of Joahas the Chaunceler, to repayre the house of the LORD his God. And they came to Zechias y<sup>e</sup> hye prest, and there was deliuered vnto them the money that was broughte vnto the house of God, which the Leuites (that kepte the thresholdes) had gathered, of Manasses, Ephraim, and of all the residue in Israel, and of all Juda & Ben Jamin, and of them that dwelt at Jerusalem, and they deliuered it vnto the hādes of the worke men in the house of the LORD, and gaue it vnto those that wrought in the house of the LORD, where it was in decaye, & they shulde repayre it. And the same gaue it forth vnto the carpenters and buylders, to bye fre stone and hewen tymber for the balikes in the houses, which the Kynges had destroyed. And the men laboured faithfully in the worke.

And ouer them were ordeyned, Jathath and Obadia the Leuites of the children of Merari: Zachary and Mesullam of the children of the Kahathites, to further the worke, and they were all Leuites that coulde playe vpon instrumentes. But ouer them that bare burthens and furthured all manner of worke in all the offices, there were scribes, officers and dore keepers of the Leuites. And whā they toke out the money that was broughte vnto y<sup>e</sup> house of the LORD, Zechias the prest founde the boke of the lawe of the LORD geuen by Moyses. And Zechias answered, and saide vnto Saphan the Scribe: I haue founde the boke of the lawe in y<sup>e</sup> house of y<sup>e</sup> LORD. And Zechias deliuered the boke vnto Saphan. And Saphan bare it vnto the kynge, and broughte y<sup>e</sup> kynge worde agayne, and sayde: All that was geuen vnder the handes of thy seruantes, that make they: and y<sup>e</sup> money that was founde in y<sup>e</sup> house of the LORD, haue they gathered together, and deliuered it vnto y<sup>e</sup> officers, and to the workmen. And Saphan the Scribe tolde the kynge, and sayde: Zechias the prest hath deliuered me a boke.

4. Re. 22. b

And Saphan red therein before the kynge. And whan the kynge herde the wordes of the lawe, he rente his clothes. And the kynge commaunded Zechias and Ahicam the sonne of Saphan, and Abdon the sonne of Micha, and Saphan the Scribe, and Asaia the kynges seruante, and sayde: Go youre waye, &e counsell at the LORD for me and for the remnaunt in Israel, and for Juda, concernynge these wordes of the booke that is founde. For greate is the indignacion of the LORD that is gone forth ouer vs, because oure fathers haue not kepte the worde of the LORD, to do acordinge as it is wrytten in this boke. Then wete helchias (with the other that were sent from the kynge) vnto the prophetisse Hulda the wife of Sallum the Sonne of Thecoath the sonne of Hasra the keeper of the clothes, which dwelt at Jerusalem in the secōde parte, and they spake this vnto her.

E And she sayde vnto them: Thus sayeth the LORDE God of Israel: Tell the man I sent you vnto me: Thus sayeth I LORDE: Beholde, I wil brynge plagues vpon this place and the inhabitants thereof, all the curses which are wrytten in the boke, that was red before the kynge of Iuda: because they haue forsake me, and brete incense vnto other goddes, to prouoke me with all the workes of their handes. And my indignacion shal go forth vpon this cite, and shal not be quenched.

And after this maner shal ye saye vnto the kynge of Iuda, that sent you to a counsell at the LORDE: Thus sayeth I LORDE God of Israel concernynge the wordes that thou hast herde: Because thine hert is moued, and because thou hast humbled thy selfe in the sighte of God, whan thou herdest his wordes agaynst this place and the inhabitants thereof, and hast submytted thy selfe before me, and rent thy clothes, and wepte before me, therefore haue I herde the, sayeth I LORDE. Beholde, I wil gather the vnto thy fathers, and thou shalt be layed in thy graue with peace, so I thine eyes shal not se all the euell that I wil brynge ouer this place, and the indwellers thereof. And they broughte the kynge worde agayne.

S Then sent I kynge, and caused all the elders in Iuda and Jerusalem to come together. And the kynge wente vp into the house of the LORDE, and all the men of Iuda and inhabitants of Ierusalem, the prestes, the Levites, and all the people both small and greete: and all the wordes in the boke of the couenaut that was founde in the house of the LORDE, were red in their eares. And I kynge stode in his place, and made a couenaut before the LORDE, that they shulde walke after the LORDE, to kepe his commaundementes, his testimonies, and his statutes with all their hert and with all their soule, to do accordinge vnto all the wordes of the couenaut that are wrytten in this boke.

And there stode all they that were founde at Jerusalem and in Ben Jamin. And I inhabitants of Jerusalem dyd accordinge to the couenaut of God the God of their fathers. And Josias put away all abhominacions out of all the londes that were the children of Israels, and caused all them that were founde in Israel, to serue the LORDE their God. As longe as Josias lyued, departed they not from the LORDE the God of their fathers.

The XXXV. Chapter.

And Josias kepte Passeouer vnto the LORDE at Jerusalem, and slewe the Passeouer on the fourtenth daye of the first moneth, and set the prestes in their offices, and strenghted them to their ministracion in the house of the LORDE, and sayde vnto the Levites that taught in all Israel, and were sanctified vnto I LORDE: Put the holy Arke in the house that Salomon I sonne of David kynge of Israel dyd buylde. Ye shal beare it nomore vpon your shulders. Se that ye serue now the LORDE your God, and his people of Israel, and prepare the house of your fathers in your courses, as it was appoynted by David the kynge of Israel, and by Salomon his sonne: and stonde in the Sanctuary after I course of the fathers houses amonge your brethren the children of the people. And after the course of the fathers houses amonge the Levites, and kyll Passeouer, sanctifie and prepare your brethren, that they maye do accordinge to the worde of the LORDE by Moses.

And Josias gaue lambes and yongelodes which were males, to the Zeneofferynge for the comontye (all to the Passeouer for euery one that was founde) in the nombre thirtie thousande, and thre thousande oxen, all of the kynges good. And his prynces of their awne good wyl gave to the Zeneofferynge for the people, and for the prestes and Levites (namely, helchias, Zachary and Jehiel the prynces in I house of God amonge the prestes) for the Passeouer, two thousande and sixe hundred. And thre hundred oxen. But Chania, Semaia, Nathanel and his brethren, Gasabia, Jeiel and Josabab the chiefe of the Levites gaue the Levites to the Zeneofferynge for the Passeouer, fyue thousande shepes, and fyue hundred oxen.

Thus was the Gods seruyce prepared, and the prestes stode in their place, and the Levites in their courses accordinge to the kynges commaundement. And they kyll the Passeouer, and the prestes toke it off their handes, and sprentled it: and the Levites toke the synnes off them, and remoued the burnt offerynge there from, to geue

it amonge the porcions of the fathers houses in the multitudes of their congregacion to offere vnto the LORDE, as it is wrytten in I boke of Moses. Euen so dyd they with the oxen also. And they dighte the Passeouer at the fyre accordinge to the lawe. And that which was halowed, dighte they in pottes, kettels, and pannes, and made haist for the comon people. Afterwarde prepared they for them selues also and for I prestes: for the prestes the children of Aaron were occupied in the burneofferynges and sat vntill the nyghte. Therefore must the Levites prepare for them selues and for the prestes the children of Aaron.

And the syngers the children of Asaph stode in their place (accordinge to I Dauids commaundement) and Asaph and Zeman, and Jedithim the kynges seer, and the porters at all the gates. And they departed not from their office. For the Levites their brethren prepared for them. Thus was all the Gods seruyce prepared the same daye, that the Passeouer mighte be kepte, and the burnt sacrifices offred vpon the altare off the LORDE accordinge to the commaundement of kynge Josias.

So the children of Israel that were at hande, helde Passeouer at that tyme, and the feast of vnleuened bred, seven dayes. Sence I tyme of Samuel the prophet, was no Passeouer kepte in Israel like this: and no kynge of Israel had holde soch a Passeouer as Josias dyd, and the prestes, Levites, all Iuda, and soch as were founde of Israel, and the inhabitants of Jerusalem. In the eighteth yere of the reigne of Josias was this Passeouer kepte.

After this, whan Josias had prepared the house, Necho the kynge of Egypte wente vp to fighte agaynst Carcamis besyde Euphrates. And Josias wete forth agaynst him. But he sent messaungers vnto him, sayenge: What haue I to do with the kynge off Iuda? I am not come now agaynst the, but I fighte agaynst another house: and God hath sayde, that I shal make haist. Ceasse from God which is with me, that he destroye the not. Neuertheles Josias turned not his face from him, but prepared himselfe to fighte with him, and herkened not vnto the wordes of Necho out of the mouth of God, and came to fighte with him vpon the playne besyde Mageddo. But the Archers shot at kynge Josias. And the kynge sayde vnto his seruantes: Cary me awaye, for I am sore wounded. And his ser-uantes toke him from the charet, and caried him vpon his seconde charet, and broughte him to Jerusalem. And he dyed, and was buried amonge the sepulchres off his fathers.

And All Iuda and Jerusalem mourned for Josias, and Jeremy bewayled Josias, and all the synginge men and women, spake their lamentacions ouer Josias vnto this daye, and made a custome therof vnto this daye. Beholde, it is wrytten also amonge the Lamentacions. What more there is to saye of Josias, and his mercy accordinge to the scripture in the lawe of the LORDE, and of his actes (both first and last) beholde, it is wrytten in the boke of the kynges of Israel and Iuda.

The XXXVI. Chapter.

And the people of the londe toke Joahas the sonne of Josias, and made him kynge in his fathers steade at Jerusalem. Thre and twenty yere olde was Joahas whan he was made kynge, and reigned thre monethes at Jerusalem. For the kynge of Egypte deposed him at Jerusalem, and condemned the londe in an hundred talentes of syluer, and one talent off golde. And the kynge of Egypte made Eliahim his brother kynge ouer Iuda and Jerusalem, and turned his name Joachim. But Necho toke his brother Joahas, and caried him in to Egypte.

Syne and twenty yere olde was Joachim whan he was made kynge, and reigned cleue yere at Jerusalem, and dyd that which was euell in the sighte of the LORDE his God. And Nabuchodonosor the kynge of Babilon wente vp agaynst him, and bounde him with cheynes, to cary him vnto Babilon. And Nabuchodonosor broughte certayne vessels of I house of the LORDE vnto Babilon, and put them in his temple at Babilon. What more there is to saye of Joachim, and off his abhominacions which he dyd, and that were founde in him, beholde, they are wrytten in the boke of the kynges of Israel and Iuda. And Joachim his sonne was kynge in his steade.

Eight yere olde was Joachim whan he was made kynge, and reigned thre monethes and ten dayes at Jerusalem, and dyd I which was euell in the sighte of I LORDE. But whan the yere came aboute, Nabuchodonosor sent thither, and caused him be fetched vnto Babilon with the costly vessels and Jewels of the house of the LORDE, and made Sedechias his brother kyng over Iu-da and Jerusalem.

One and twentye yere olde was Sede-chias whan he was made kyng, & reigned eleuen yere at Jerusalem, and dyd that which was euell in the sighte of the LORDE his God, and submytted not himselfe before the face of the prophet Jeremy, which spake out of the mouth of the LORDE. He fell awaye also from Nabuchodonosor the kyng of Babilon (which had taken an oath of him by God) and was styfnecked, and hardened his hert, that he shulde not conuerte vnto the LORDE God of Israel. And all y chefe amonge the prestes, and the people, multiplied their synnes, acordinge to all the abominacions of the Zeythen, and dys-led the house of the LORDE, which he had sanctified at Jerusalem.

And the LORDE God of their fathers sent vnto them early by his messauingers (for he spared his people and his habitacion)
but they laughed the messauingers of God to scorne, and despyed his wordes, and had his prophetes in derision, so longe tyll the in-dignacion of the LORDE increased ouer his people, and there was no remedye of healinge. For he broughte the kyng of the Caldees vpon them, and caused for to slaye all their yonge men with the swerde in the house of their Sanctuary, and spared nether yongemāner virgin, nether aged ner graūd
father, but gaue them all in to his hande.
And all the vessels in the house of God, greate and small, the treasures in the house of y LORDE, and the treasures of the kyng and of his prynces, all this caused he to be caried vnto Babilon. And they brent the house of God, and brake downe the wall of Jerusale, and all the palaces therof brent they with fyre, so that all the costly ornaments of it were destroyed.

And loke who escaped y swerde, hi caried
he awaye vnto Babilon, & they became his seruautes, & the seruautes of his sonnes, tyll
the persians had the empyre: that y worde of the LORDE by the mouth of Jeremy myghte be perfourmed, euen vntyll the londe had ynough of hir Sabbathes: for all the tyme of the desolacion was it Sabbath, vnttyll the seuentye yeres were fulfilled.

But in the first yere of Cyus the kyng of Persia (that the worde of the LORDE spoken by the mouth of Jeremy myghte be fulfylled) the LORDE raysed vp the spiete of Cyus the kyng of Persia, that he caused
it be proclaimed thorow out all his empyre, ye and by wytyng also, sayenge: Thus sayeth Cyus the kyng of Persia: The LOR-DE God of heauen hath geuen me all the kyngdomes in the londe, and hath commaunded me to buylde him an house at Jerusalem in Iuda. Who soeuer now amonge you is of his people, the LORDE his God be with him, and let him go vp.

The first Chapter.

In the first yere of Cyrus kyng of Persia (that the worde of the LORDE spoken by the mouth of Jeremy myghte be fulfilled) the LORDE stered vp the spiete of Cyus kyng
of Persia, & he caused it be proclaimed tho-
row out all his empyre, ye and by wytyng
also, sayenge: Thus sayeth Cyus the kyng of Persia: The LORDE God of heauen hath geuen me all the kyngdomes in the londe & hath commaunded me to buylde him an house at Jerusalem in Iuda. Who soeuer now amonge you is of his people, the LOR-DE his God be with him, and let him go vp to Jerusalem in Iuda, and buylde the house of the LORDE God of Israel. He is y God that is at Jerusale. And whoso euer remayneth yet in eny maner of place (where he is a straunger) let the mē of his place helpe him with syluer and golde, with good and catell of a good frewill, for the house of God at Jerusalem.

Then gat vp the pryncipall fathers of Iuda and Ben Jamin, and the prestes and Leuites, and all they whose spiete God had raysed to go vp, and to buylde the house of the LORDE at Jerusale. And all they that were aboute them, strenghted their hande with vessels of syluer and golde, with good and catell, and Jewels, besydes that which they gaue of their awne frewill. And kyng Cyus brought forth the vessels of the LOR-DE house, which Nabuchodonosor had take out of Jerusalem, and put in his gods house. But Cyus y kyng of Persia brought the forth by Michiedath the treasurer, and nombred the vnto Sessbazar the prynce of Iuda. And this is the nombre of them:
thirtye basens of golde, and a thousande ba-sens of syluer, and nyne and twentye knyues,

thirtye cuppes of golde, and of other syluer cuppes foure hundred and ten, and of other vessels a thousande. So that all the vessels both of golde and syluer, were fyue thousande and foure hundred. Sessbazar broughte them all vp, with them that came vp out of the captiuyte off Babilon vnto Jerusalem.

The II. Chapter.

Nabuchodonosor the kyng of Ba-

And of the children of the prestes. The children of Habaia, the children of Hacom, the children of Barfillai, which toke one of the daughters of Barfillai the Gileadite to wife, and was counted amonge the same names: these soughte the register of their byrth, and founde none, therefore were they put from the presthode. And Hathiratha sayde vnto them, that they shulde not care of the most holy, tyll thererose vp a prest with the lighte and perfectnesse.

The whole congregacion as one man, was two and fortye thousande, thre hundred and thre score: besyde their seruantes and maydes, of whom there were seue thousande, thre hundred and seuen and thirtye. And certayne of these fathers, whan they came to the house of the LORDE at Jerusalem, they were well mynded vnto the house of God, that it shulde be set in his place, and gave after their abylte vnto the treasure of the worke, one and thre score thousande guldens, and fyue thousande pounde of syluer, and an hundred prestes garments. So the prestes and the Levites, and certayne of y people, and the syngers, and the porters, and y Nethinims dwelt in their cities, and all Israel in their cities.

The III. Chapter.

When the seuenth moneth came, and the children of Israel were now in their cities, the people came together euen as one man, vnto Jerusalem. And there stode vp Jesua the sonne of Josede and his brethren the prestes, and Zorobabel the sonne of Saathiel and his brethren, and buylded the altare of the God of Israel, to offre burnt offeringes thereon, as it is wrytten in the lawe of Moses the man of God, and the altare set they vpon his footes: for there was a fearfulness amonge them because of the nations and lodes) and offered burnt offeringes thereon vnto y LORDE. In the mornynge and at euen. And helde the feast of Tabernacles: as it is wrytten, and offered burnt sacrifices daylie after the nombre as acordinge was, every daye his sacrifice. Afterwarde the daylie burnt offeringes also, and of the new Mones and of all the feast dayes of the LORDE that were halowed, and allmaner of fre wyllinge offeringes, which they did of their awne fre wyl vnto the LORDE.

Upon the first daye of the seuenth moneth beganne they to offre burnt sacrifices vnto the LORDE. But the foundation of the temple of the LORDE was not yet layed. Nevertheless they gaue money vnto y masons and carpenters, and meate and drynke and oyle vnto them of Zidon and of Tyre, to buyng the Cedre tymbre from Libanus by See vnto. Joppa, acordinge to the commandement of Cyrus the kynge of persia.

In the seconde yeare of their commynge vnto the house of God at Jerusalem in the seconde moneth, beganne Zorobabel the sonne of Salathiel, and Jesua the sonne of Josede, and the remnaunt of their brethren the prestes and Levites, and all they that were come out of the captiuyte vnto Jerusalem, and appoynted the Levites fro twentye yeare olde and aboue, to se that the worke of the house of the LORDE were forward. And Jesua stode with his sonnes and brethren, and Cadmiel with his sonnes, and the children of Juda, to furthur the workmen of the house of God, namely the childre of Zenadad with their children and their brethren the Levites.

And whan the buylders layed the foundation of the temple of the LORDE, the prestes stode in their aray, with trompettes. And the Levites the children of Maph with Cantables, to prayse y LORDE with the Dyrie of David kynge of Israel. And they singe together, geuyng prayse z thankes vnto y LORDE, because he is gracious, and because his mercy endureth for euer vpon Israell. And all the people shouted loude in praylinge the LORDE, because the foundation of y house of the LORDE was layed. Nevertheless many of the olde prestes and Levites and awncient fathers, which hadsene the house afore in his foundation, and this was now before their eyes, wepte loude. But many shouted with ioye, so that the noyse gaue a greatesounde, in so moch that the people coude not knowe y ioyfull sounde for the noyse of the wepinge in the people: for the people shouted loude, so that the noyse was herde farre of.

The III. Chapter.

When the aduersaries of Juda and Ben Jamin herde, that the children of the captiuyte buylded the temple vnto the LORDE God of Israel, they came to Zorobabel z to the principall fathers, and sayde vnto them: We wyl buylde with you: for we seke the LORDE youre God like as ye do. And we haue done sacrifice vnto him, sence the tyme that Assar Hadon the kynge of Assur broughte vs vp hither. But Zorobabel and Jesua and the other awncient fathers of Israel, answered them: It is not mete for vs and you to buylde the house of oure God, but we wyl buylde alone vnto the LORDE God of Israel, as Cyrus the kynge of persia hath commaunded vs.

Then the folke of the londe hyndered the people of Juda, and made them afrayed to buylde, and hyred councelers aganst them and hyndered their deuyce, as longe as Cyrus the kynge of persia lyued, vntill the reigne off Darius kynge off persia. But whan Abasuerus was kynge, in the begynnyng off his reigne wrote they vnto him a complaynte agaynst them of Juda and Jerusalem.

And in the tyme of Artaxerxes, wrote Bithellam, Mithradath, Tabeel and the other of their counsell vnto Artaxerxes the kynge of persia. But the scripture of y letter was wrytten in the Syrianspeach, and was interpreted in the langage of the Syrians. Rehum y chaunceler, and Simsai the scribe, wrote this letter agaynst Jerusalem to Artaxerxes the kynge.

We Rehum the chaunceler, and Simsai the scribe, and other of the counsell of Dina, off Arphasath, off Tarplat, off persia, off Arach, of Babilon, of Susa, of Deba, and of Elam, and other of the people whom the greates and noble Asinaphar broughte ouer, and set in the cities of Samaria, and other on this syde the water, and in Canaan. And this is y summe of the letter that they sent vnto kynge Artaxerxes:

Thy seruantes the men on this syde the water and in Canaan. Be it knowne vnto y kynge, that the Jewes which are come vp from the to vs vnto Jerusalem in to that sedicious z wicked cite, buylde the same, and make vp y walles of it, z buyng it out of y foundation. Be it knowne now therefore vnto y kynge, y yf this cite be buylded z the walles made up agayne, the shal not they geue tribute, toll, and yearly custome, and their deuyc shal do y<sup>e</sup> kynge harme. But now that we all are therby which destroyed the temple, we wolde no longer se the kynges dishonoure. Therfore sent we out, and caused the kynge to be certified therof: That it maye be soughte in y<sup>e</sup> Cronicles of thy progenitours, and so shalt thou fynde in the same Cronicles, and perceaue, that this cite is sedicious and noysome vnto kynges and londes, and that they cause other also to rebell of olde, and for the same cause was this cite destroyed. Therfore do we certifie the kynge, that yf this cite be buylded, and the walles therof made up, thou shalt kepe nothinge on this syde the water by the reason of it.

D Then sent y<sup>e</sup> kynge an answer vnto Rehūm the chaunceler, and Simsai the Scribe, and to the other of their counsell that dwelt in Samaria, and vnto the other beyonde y<sup>e</sup> water. Peace and salutation. The letter which ye sent vnto vs, hath bene openly red before me, and I haue commaunded to make search: and it is founde, that this cite of olde hath made insurreccion agaynst, kynges, & how y<sup>e</sup> vpr<sup>is</sup> and rebellion hath bene committed therein. There haue bene mightie kynges also at Ierusalem, which haue reigned ouer all that is beyonde the water, and toll, tribute and yearly custome was geuen vnto them. Do ye now after this commaundement, forbyd the same men, that the cite be not builded, tyll I haue geue commaundement. Take hede now that ye be not negligent here in, lest the kynge haue harme there thorow.

Now whā kynge Artaxerxes letter was red before Rehūm the chaunceler and Simsai the Scribe and their counsell, they wente up in all the haist to Ierusalem vnto the Jewes, and forbade them with the arme and anctouite. Then ceased the worke of the house of God at Ierusalem, and continued so vnto the seconde yeare of Darius kynge of Persia.

The V. Chapter.

Aggs. i. c. The prophetes, Aggeus and Zachary y<sup>e</sup> sonne of Iddo, prophesied vnto y<sup>e</sup> Jewes that were in Iuda and Ierusalem, in the name of the God of Israel. Then gat vp Zorobabel the sonne of Salathiel, and Iesua the sonne of Iosedec, and begann to buylde the house of God at Ierusalem, and with them the prophetes of God which strenghted thē. At the same tyme came to thē Thathnai the debite on this syde

the water, and Sethar of Bosen, and their councelers, and saydethus vnto them: Whā hath commaunded you to buylde this house, and to make up the walles therof? Then tolde we them the names of the men, that made this buyldinge. But the eye of the Lord God came vpon the Elders of the Jewes, that they were not inhibyte, tyll the matter was brought before Darius, and tyll then came a wytyng therof agayne.

This is the summe of the letter y<sup>e</sup> Thathnai the Debyte on this syde the water, and Sethar of Bosen, and their councelers of Apharsach (which were on this syde the water) sent vnto kynge Darius. And these are the wordes that they sent vnto him: Vnto Darius the kynge, all peace. We it knowe vnto the kynge, that we came in to Jewry to the house of y<sup>e</sup> greate God, which is buylded with all maner of stone, and balckes are layed in the walles, and y<sup>e</sup> worke goeth fast forth, and prospereth in their handes. Neuertheles we axed the Elders and sayde vnto them: Who hath commaunded you to buylde this house, and to make up the walles therof? We axed their names also, that we might certifie the, and haue wyrtten the names of the men that were their rulers.

But they answered vs wth these wordes, and sayde: We are the seruantes of the God of heauen and earth, and buylde the house y<sup>e</sup> was buylded many yeares ago, which a greate kynge of Israel buylded and set up. Howbeit whan oure fathers prouoked the God of heauen vnto wrath, he gaue them ouer in the hande of Nabuchodonosor the kynge of Babilon the Caldee, which brake downe this house, & caried y<sup>e</sup> people away vnto Babilon.

Neuertheles in the first yeare of Cyrus the kynge of Babilon, y<sup>e</sup> same kynge Cyrus commaunded to buylde this house of God: for the vessels of golde and siluer in the house of God, which Nabuchodonosor toke out of the temple at Ierusalem, and broughte them in to y<sup>e</sup> temple at Babilon, those dyd Cyrus the kynge take out of y<sup>e</sup> temple at Babilon, and deliuered them vnto Seshbazer by name, whom he made Debyte, and sayde vnto him: Take these vessels, go thy waye and bringe them vnto the temple at Ierusalem, and let the house of God be buylded in his place. Then came the same Seshbazer, and layed y<sup>e</sup> foundation of the house of God at Ierusalem. Sence that tyme hath it bene in buyldinge, and yet is it not fynished. If it please y<sup>e</sup> kynge now, let there be search made in y<sup>e</sup> kynges treasure house which is at Babilon, whether it haue bene kynge Cyrus commaundment, that the house of God at Ierusalem shulde be buylded: & sende vs y<sup>e</sup> kynges mynde concernynge the same.

The VI. Chapter.

Then commaunded kynge Darius, that search shulde be made in y<sup>e</sup> library of y<sup>e</sup> kynges treasure house, which laye at Babilon. So at Egbathanis in a castell that lyeth in the londe of the Medes, there was founde a boke, & in it was there an acte wyrtten after this maner: In the first yeare of kynge Cyrus, commaunded the same kynge Cyrus to buylde y<sup>e</sup> house of God at Ierusalem, in the place where the sacrifice is made, & to laye the foundation to beare thre score cubites heygth, & thre score cubites bredth, & the walles of all maner of stones, and one wall of tymber, & the expences shalbe geuen of the kynges house. And the golde and siluer vessell of y<sup>e</sup> house of God (which Nabuchodonosor toke out of the temple at Ierusalem, and broughte vnto Babilon) shalbe restored agayne, y<sup>e</sup> they maye be broughte vnto the temple at Ierusalem to their place into the house of God.

Get you farre from them therfore, thou Thathnai Debyte beyonde the water, and Sethar of Bosen, & youre councelers which are beyonde the water. Let them worke in y<sup>e</sup> house of God, that the Debyte of y<sup>e</sup> Jewes and their Elders maye buylde the house of God in his place. I haue commaunded also, what shalbe done to y<sup>e</sup> Elders of Iuda for the buyldinge of the house of God, that they shal diligently be take of the kynges goodes, euen of the rentes beyonde the water, & geuen vnto the men, and that they be not hyndered.

And yf they haue nede of calues, lambes, or goates for the burnt offryng vnto y<sup>e</sup> God of heauen, wheate, salt, wyne and oyle, after the custome of the prestes at Ierusalem, they shalbe geuen them daylie as is acordinge: and se that this be not done negligently, that they maye offre swete sanoures vnto y<sup>e</sup> God of heauen, and praye for the kynges lyfe, and for his children. This commaundement haue I geue. And what man so euer he be that altereth these wordes, there shal a balke be taken from his house, and set up, and he shal be hanged thereon, and his house shalbe pryed for the dede.

But the God that dwelleth in heauen, destroye all kynges and people, that put to their hande to alter and to breake downe the house of God at Ierusalem. I Darius haue commaunded, that this be diligently done.

Then Thathnai y<sup>e</sup> Debyte beyonde y<sup>e</sup> water, and Sethar of Bosen with their councelers (to whom kynge Darius had sent) dyd their diligence. And y<sup>e</sup> Elders of the Jewes buylded, and they prospered thorow the prophecieng of Aggeus the prophet and Zachary the sonne of Iddo: and they buylded, and set up the worke, acordinge to the commaundement of the God of Israel, and after the commaundement of Cyrus, Darius and Artaxerxes kynges of Persia. And they perfourmed the house vnto the thirde daye of the moneth Adar, that was the sixte yeare of the reigne of kynge Darius.

And the children of Israel, the prestes, the Levites, and the other children of y<sup>e</sup> captynite helde the dedicacion of the house of God with ioye, and offred at the dedicacion of the house of God, an hundreth calues, two hundreth lambes, foure hundreth goates: and for the synofferyng for all Israel, twolue he goates, acordinge to the nombie of the trybes of Israel, and set the prestes in their courses, and y<sup>e</sup> Levites in their offices, to mynister vnto God which is at Ierusalem, as it is wyrtten in the boke of Moses.

And the children of the captynite helde Passouer vpon the fourtenth daye of the first moneth: for y<sup>e</sup> prestes and Levites had purified them selues, so y<sup>e</sup> they were all cleane as one man, and kyled Passouer for all the children of the captynite, and for their brethren the prestes, and for them selues. And the childre of Israel which were come agayne out of captynite, and all soch as had separated them selues vnto them from the fylthynesse of the heythens in the londe, to seke the LORDE God of Israel, ate & helde the feast of vnleued bred seven dayes with ioye: for the LORDE had made them glad, and turned the hert of the kynge of Assur vnto thē, so that their handes were strenghted in the worke of the house of God, which is y<sup>e</sup> God of Israel.

The VII. Chapter.

After these actes in the reigne of Artaxerxes kynge of Persia, there wente up from Babilon, Esdras the sonne of Seraia, the sonne of Asaria, the sonne of Helchias, the sonne of Sallum, the sonne of Sadoc, the sonne of Achitob, the sonne of Amaria, the sonne of Asaria, the sonne of Meraioth, the sonne of Serahia, y<sup>e</sup> sonne of Vsi, the sonne of Buti, the sonne of Abisua, the sonne of Phineas, the sonne of Eleasar, the sonne of Aaron the chiefe prest, which was a quicke scribe in the lawe of Moyses, which the LORDE God of Israel dyd geue. And the kynge gaue him all that he requyred, accordyng to the hande of the LORDE his God vpon him.

And there wente vp certayne of the children of Israel, and of the prestes, and of the Leuites, of the syngers, of the porters, and of the Nethinims vnto Jerusalem, in the seventh year of kynge Artaxerxes. And they came to Jerusalem in the fift moneth, that is the seventh year of the kynge. For vpon the first daye of the first moneth, denyed he to go vp from Babilon: and on the first daye of the fift moneth came he to Jerusalem, accordyng to the good hande of God vpon him: For Esdras prepared his hert to seke the lawe of the LORDE, and to do it, and to teach the precepte and iudgment in Israel.

And this is the summe of the letter, that kynge Artaxerxes gaue vnto Esdras the prest, the scribe, which was a teacher in the wordes of the LORDE and of his statutes ouer Israel. Vnto Esdras the prest and scribe in the lawe of the God of heauen, peace and salutacion. I haue commaunded, that all they of the people of Israel, and of the prestes and Leuites in my realme, which are mynded of their awne good wyll to go vp to Jerusalem, that they go with the beyng sent of the kynge and of the seven lordes of the counsell, to vyset Juda and Jerusalem, accordyng to the lawe of God, which is in thy harte: And that thou shuldest take with the, syluer and golde, which the kynge and the lordes of his counsell geue of their awne good wyll vnto the God of Israel (whose habitation is at Jerusalem) and all the syluer and golde that thou canst fynde in all countre of Babilon: with it that the people and prestes geue of their awne good wil vnto the house of God at Jerusalem.

Take thou the same, and bye diligently with the same money, calues, lambes, goates, and meat offeringes and drynke offeringes, to be offred vpon the altare of the house of youre God at Jerusalem. And loke what it lyketh the and thy brethren to do with the remnant of the money, that do after the wyll of youre God. And the vessels that are geuen the for the mynistracion in the house of thy God, those deliuer thou before God at Jerusalem.

And what so ever thinge more shal be necessary for the house of thy God, which is necessary for the to spende, let the same be geue out of the kynges chamber. I kynge Artaxerxes haue commaunded all the treasures beyonde the water, that loke what so euer Esdras the prest and scribe in the lawe of the God of heauen, requyeth of you, that ye fulfill the same diligently, vntyll an hundred talentes of syluer, and tyll an hundred quarters of wheate, and tyll an hundred bathe of wyne, and tyll an hundred bathe of oyle, and salt without measure. What so euer belongeth to the lawe of the God of heauen, let the same be done with diligence for the house of the God of heauen, that there come no wrath vpon the kynges realme and children.

And knowe be it vnto you, that ye shall haue no auctorite to requyre taryng and custome, and yearly rentes vpon any of the prestes, Leuites, syngers, porters, Nethinims and mynisters in the house of this God. But thou Esdras (after the wysdome of the God that is in thy hande) set thou iudges and arbiters, to iudge all the people that is beyonde Jordan, euen all soch as knowe the lawe of thy God: and them that knowe it not, they se that ye teache. And who so euer wyll diligently fulfill the lawe of thy God, and the kynges lawe, shall haue his iudgment in the dede, whether it be vnto death, or to be banysched, or to be condemned in good, or to be put in prison.

Praised be the LORDE God of oure fathers, which so hath inspyred the kynges hert to garnyshe the house of God at Jerusalem: and hath enclyned his mercy vnto me in the presence of the kynge, and his counsell, and before all the kynges hye estates. And I was comforted (accordyng to the harte of the LORDE my God ouer me) and so gathered I the heades of Israel together, and they might go vp with me.

The VIII. Chapter.

These are the heades of their fathers that were named, which wente vp with me from Babilon, what tyme as kynge Artaxerxes reigned. Of the children of Phineas, Gerson: of the children of Jehonatan, Daniel: of the children of David, Hattai: of the children of Pareos, Zachary, and the men childred nombred with him, an hundred and fiftye. Of the children of Pahath Moab, Eleonai the sonne of Serabia, and with him two hundred males.

Of the children of Sechania, the sonne of Jehasiel, and with him thre hundred males. Of the children of Adin Ebed, the sonne of Jonathan, and with him fiftie males.

Of the children of Elam, Jesaia the sonne of Achalia, and with him seventie males. Of the children of Sepharai, Sebadia the sonne of Michael, and with him foure score males.

Of the children of Joab, Obadia the sonne of Jehiel, and with him two hundred and eightene men children. Of the children of Selomith, the sonne of Josiphia, and with him an hundred and thre score males.

Of the children of Bebai, Zachary the sonne of Bebai, and with him eight and twenty males. Of the children of Bigvai, Uthai and Sabud, and with them senen males. And I gathered them together by the water that remneth towarde Athena, and there abode we thre dayes.

And whan I looked amonge the people and the prestes, I founde no Leuites there. The sent I Eliezer, Ariel, Semaia, Elathan, Jarib, Elathan, Natha, Zachary and Meshulam the rulers, and Joiarib and Elathan the teachers, and those sent I vnto Iddo the chiefe at Casiphia, that they shulde fetch us mynisters for the house of oure God, and tolde them what they shulde saye vnto Iddo and to his brethren the Nethinims at Casiphia.

And (accordyng to the good hande of oure God vpon us) they broughte us a wyseman from amonge the children of Maheli the sonne of Leni the sonne of Israel, euen Serebia with his sonnes and brethren, eighte. And Hasabia, and with him Jesaia of the children of Merari, with his brethren and their sonnes, twentye. And of the Nethinims, whom David and the princes gaue to mynister vnto the Leuites, two hundred and twentye, all named by name.

And euen there at the water besyde Athena, caused I a fastinge to be proclaimed, that we might humble oure selues before oure God, to seke of him a righte waye for us, and oure children and all oure substance. For I was ashamed to require of the kynge, sonners and horsmen, to helpe us agaynst the enemye in the waye. For we had sayde vnto the kynge: The hande of oure God is for the best vpon all them that seke him, and his violence and wrath vpon all them that forsake him. So we fasted, and soughte this at oure God, and he herde us.

And I toke out twelue of the chiefe pres-tes, Serebia and Hasabia, and ten of their brethren with them, and weyed them there the syluer and golde and vessels for the heue offeringe vnto the house of oure God, which the kynge, and the lordes of his counsell and prynces, and all Israel that were at hande, had geuen to the heue offeringe: and there weyed I them vnder their hande sixe hundred and fiftye talentes of syluer, and in syluer vessell an hundred talentes, and in golde an hundred talentes, twentye cuppes of golde of a thousande guldens, and two costly ornamentes of good brasse, as cleare as golde, and sayde vnto them: Ye are holy vnto the LORDE, therfore are the vessels holy also, and so is the syluer and golde that is geuen of a good wyll vnto the LORDE God of youre fathers: Watch ye therfore and kepe it, tyll ye weye it downe before the chiefe prestes and Leuites, and auncient fathers of Israel at Jerusalem in the chestes of the house of the LORDE. Then toke the prestes and Leuites that weyed syluer and golde and vessell, to bryng it to Jerusalem vnto the house of oure God.

So we brake vp, from the water of Athena on the twelveth daye of the first moneth, to go vnto Jerusalem: and the hande of oure God was vpon us, and deliuered us fro the hande of the enemies and preuy waytinges by the waye. And we came to Jerusalem, and abode there thre dayes. But on the fourth daye was the syluer and golde, and vessell weyed in the house of oure God vnder the hande of Meremoth the sonne of Urias the prest, and with him Eleasar the sonne of Phineas, and with them Josabad the sonne of Jesua, and Noabia the sonne of Benai the Leuites, accordyng to the nombre and weight of every one. And the weight was all wrytten vp at the sametyme.

And the children of the captiuyte, which were come out of prison, offred burnt offeringes vnto the God of Israel: twelue bullockes for all Israel, sixe and nyntye rammes, seven and seventye lambes, and twelue goates for a synofferinge, all to the burnt offeringe of the LORDE. And they deliuered the kynges commysion vnto the kynges officers, and to the Debytes on this syde the water. And they promoted the people and the house of God.

The IX. Chapter.

Whan all this was performed, the rulers came to me, and sayde: The people of Israel, and the prestes, and Leuites are not separated from the nations.

in the londes as touching their abhominacions, namely of the Cananites, Hethites, Pherefites, Jebusites, Ammonites, Moabites, Egipcians, and Amorites. For they haue taken the daughters of the same, & their sonnes, and haue myrte the holy sede with synacions in the londes: and the hande of the rulers and lordes of counsell hath bene prin cipall in this trespase.

Whan I herde this, I rente my clothes and my rayment, and plucked out the heer of my heade and of my beard, and sat mournynge. And there resorted vnto me all such as feared the worde of the LORDE God of Israel because of the greate transgression. And I sat mournynge vntill the eueninge sacrifice. And aboute the eueninge sacrifice I rose vp fro my heuyenes, and rente my clothes and my raiment, and fell vpon my knees, and spred out my handes vnto the LORDE my God, and sayde:

My God, I am ashamed, and darre not lifte vp mine eyes vnto the my God: for oure wickednesses are growne ouer oure heade, & oure trespases are woren greate vnto y heaue. Sence the tyme of oure fathers haue we bene in greate trespase vnto this daie, and because of oure wickednesses haue we and kynges bene deliuered in to the hande of kynges of the nacions, in to the swerde, in to captiuitie, in to spoyle, and in to confusion of face, as it is come to passe this daie.

But now is there a litle and sodane graciousnes come from the LORDE oure God, so that some of vs are escaped, that he maie geue vs a nayle in his holy place, that oure God maye lighte oure eyes, and geue vs a litle lyfe in oure bondage. For we are bondmen, and God hath not forsake vs though we be bondmen, and hath enclined mercy vnto vs in the sighte of the kynges of Persia, that they shulde geue vs lyfe, and promote the house of oure God, and to sett vp the desolacion therof, and to geue vs an hed ge in Juda and Jerusalem.

O oure God, what shal we saye now after this? that we haue forsaken thy commandementes, which thou hast commaunded by thy seruantes the prophetes, and saide: The londe wherin ye shal come to possesse it, is an vnclane londe thorow the fylthines of the people of the londes, in their abhominacions wherwith they haue made it full of vnclannes on every syde. Therefore shal ye not geue youre daughters vnto their sonnes, and their daughters shal ye not take vnto youre sonnes, and sette not their pea ce and welch for ever, that ye maye be stronge, and enioye the good in the londe, and ye and youre children maye haue the inheritance of it for evermore.

And after all this that is come vpon vs (because of oure euell dedes and greate trespase) thou oure God hast spared oure wickednesses, and hast genen vs a deliuerance as it is come to passe.

As for vs, we haue turned backe, & haue let go thy commandementes, to make contracte with the people of these abhominacions. Wilt thou then be wroth at vs, till we be utterly consumed, so that nothyng remaine, and till there be no deliuerance? O LORDE God of Israel, thou art righteous, for we remaine yet escaped, as it is this daie. Beholde, in thy presence are we in oure trespase, for because of it is there no standinge before the.

The X. Chapter.

Whan Esdras prayed after this maner and knowleged, wepte, and laie before the house of God, there resorted vnto him out of Israel a very greate congregacion of men and women, and children: the people wepte very sore. And Sachania the sonne of Jehiel one of the children of Elam, answered, and sayde vnto Esdras: We haue trespassed agaynst the LORDE oure God, in that we haue taken straunge wyues of all the people of the londe. Now there is hope yet in Israel concerninge this, therefore let vs make a couenaunt now with oure God, that we shal put awaye all the wyues (and such as are borne of them) acordinge to the counsell of y LORDE, and of them that feare the commandement of oure God, y we maye do acordinge to the lawe. Get the vp therfore, for the matter belongeth vnto the. We wyll be with the, be of good comfort, and do it.

Then rose Esdras, and toke an ooth of the rulers, prestes and Leuites, and of all Israel, that they shulde do acordinge to this worde: and they swore. And Esdras stode vp before the house of God, and wente in to the chamber of Johanan the sonne of Elisab. And whan he came thither, he akened a brylliant, and dranke no water: for he mourned because of the transgression of them that had bene in captiuitie.

And they caused a proclamacion be made thorow out Juda and Jerusalem, vnto all the children which had bene in captiuitie, that they shulde gather them selues together vnto Jerusalem: And that who soeuer came out

Then all the men of Juda and Ben Jamin gathered them selues together vnto Jerusalem in thre dayes, & is on the twentieth daie of the nyenth moneth: and all the people sat in the strete before the house of God, and trembled because of the matter, and for the rayne. And Esdras & prest stode vp, and sayde vnto them: Ye haue transgressed, & ye haue taken straunge wyues, to make the trespase of Israel yet more: confesse now therfore vnto y LORDE God of youre fathers, & do his pleasure, and separate youre selues from the people of the londe, & from y straunge wyues. The answered all the congregacion, & sayde with loude voyce: Let it be done as thou hast sayde. But the people are many, & it is a raynye wether, & they can not stode here without, nether is this a worke of one daie or two, for we are many & haue offended in this transgression. Let vs appoynte oure rulers therfore in all the congregacion, & all they which haue taken straunge wyues in oure cities, maye come at the tyme appoynted, and the Elders of every cite and their Judges with them, till the wrath of oure God because of this matter be turned awaye from vs.

Then were appoynted Jonathan the sonne of Asahel & Jehasia the sonne of Thecua ouer this matter. And Nesullam and Sabai the Leuites helped them. And the children of the captiuitie dyd even so. And Esdras the prest, and y auuncient fathers thorow the house of their fathers, and all that were now rehearsed by name, separated the selues, and sat them downe on the first daie of the tenth moneth, to examine this matter. And on y first daie of y first moneth broughte they the matter to a conclusion, concernynge all the men & had take straunge wyues.

And amonge the childre of the prestes there were men founde & had take straunge wyues, namely amonge the children of Jesua the sonne of Josede & of his brethren, Maeseia, Elieser, Jarib and Godolia. And they gaue their handes there vpon, that they wolde put awaye their wyues: & for their trespase offerynge to geue a rāme for their trespase. Amonge the children of Immer, Janani & Sabadia, amonge the childre of Harim, Maeseia, Elia, Semaia, Jehiel, and Ofia. The first Chapter.

These are the actes of Nehemias the sonne of Achabiah. It fortuned in the moneth Chisleu in the twetieth yere, that I was in the castell at Susa: and Hanani one of my brethren came with certayne me of Juda, and I axed them how the Jewes dyd that were deliuered and escaped from the captivite, and how it wente at Jerusalem. And they sayde vnto me: The remnant of the captivite are there in the londe in greate myffortune and rebuke. The walles of Jerusalem are broken downe, and the portes therof are brent with fyre.

Whan I herde these wordes, I sat me downe and wepte, and mourned two dayes, and fasted and prayed before the God of heauen, and sayde: O LORD God of heauen, thou greete and terri-

le God, * thou hast kept covenant and mercy for them that loue thee, and obserue thy commaundementes: let thine eares marke, and let thine eyes be open, and thou mayest heare the prayer of thy seruauant, which I praye now before thy face and nighte for the children of Israel thy seruantes, and knowlege the synnes of the children of Israel, which we haue commytted agaynst thee.
 And I and my fathers house haue sinned also. We haue bene corrupte vnto thee, in that we haue not kepte the commaundementes, statutes and lawes, which thou commaundedst thy seruauant Moses. Yet call to remembraunce thy worde that thou commaundedst thy seruauant Moses, and saydest: * If ye transgresse, then wil I scatter you abroad amonge the nacions. But if ye turne vnto me, and kepe my commaundementes and do them: though ye were cast out vnto the vttermost parte of heauen yet wil I gather you from thence, and wil bringe you from thence, euē vnto the place, that I haue chosen for my name to dwell there. They are thy seruantes, and thy people, whom thou hast deliuered thowm thy greate power and mightie hande. O LORD, let thine eares marke the prayer of thy seruauant, and the prayer of thy seruantes, whose desire is to feare thy name, and let thy seruauant prosper this daye, and graunte him mercy in the sight of this man: for I was the kynge's butler.

The II. Chapter.

In the moneth Nisan of the twetieth yere of kynge Artaxerxes, whan the wyne stode before him, I toke up the wyne, and gaue it vnto the kynge, and I was heny in his presence. Then sayde the kynge vnto me: Why lokest thou so sadly? Thou art not sicke, that is not thy matter, but thou art heny harted. Neuertheles I was sorrowed, and sayde vnto the kynge: God sanctifie thynges life for euer, shulde I not loke sadly: the cite of my fathers buryall lyeth wayest, and the portes therof are consumed with the fyre. Then sayde the kynge vnto me: What is thy request? Then made I my prayer to the God of heauen, and sayde vnto the kynge: If it please the kynge, and if thy seruauant be fauoured in thy sighte, I beseeke thee sende me in to Juda vnto the cite of my fathers buryall, that I maye buylde it.

And the kynge sayde vnto me, and so dyd the quene, and sat by him: How longe shal thy iourney continue, and whan wilt thou come agayne? And it pleased the kynge to sende me, and I set him a tyme, and sayde vnto the kynge: If it please the kynge, let him geue me letters to the Debites beyonde the water, and they maye conueye me ouer, tyll I come in to Juda: and letters vnto Assaph the lord of the kynge's wood, and he maye geue me wood for baltes to the gates of the palace, which are harden the house and harde on the walles of the cite, and for the house that I shal entre in to. And the kynge gaue me accordinge to the good hande of God vpon me. And whan I came to the Debites beyonde the water, I gaue them the kynge's letters. And the kynge sent captaynes and hoysmen with me.

But whan Sanballath the Horonite, and Tobias the seruauant of the Ammonites heard of this, they greued them sore, and there was come a man which soughte the welch of the children of Israel. And whan I came to Jerusalem, and had bene there thre daies, I gat me up in the night season, and a fewe men with me for I tolde no man what God had geue me in my hert to do at Jerusalem: and there was not one beest with me, save it that I rode vpon. And I rode by nighte vnto the valley porte before the Dragon well, and to the Dongporte, and considered the walles of Jerusalem that were broken downe, and the portes therof consumed with the fyre. And I wente ouer vnto the wall porte, and to the kynge's condyte, and there was no rowme for my beest, and it coulde go vnder me. Then wote I on in the nighte by the brokesyde, and considered the wall, and turned back, and came home agayne to the valley porte.

And the rulers knewe not whither I wote, or what I dyd: for hither to had I not tolde the Jewes and the prestes, the counsellors and the rulers, and the ocher that laboured in the worke, and I saide vnto the: Ye see the myserye that we are in, how Jerusalem lyeth wayest, and how the gates therof are brent with fyre, come, let vs buylde vpon the walles of Jerusalem, and we be nomore a rebuke. And I tolde the of the good hande of my God which was vpon me: And the kynge's wordes that he had spokē vnto me. And they saide: Then let vs get vp. And we buylde, and their handes were strenghted to good.

But whan Sanballath the Horonite, and Tobias the seruauant of the Ammonites, and some of the Arabian herde it, they laughed vs to scorne, and despised vs, and sayde: What is this that ye do? Wyll ye fall awaye agayne from the kynge? Then answered I them, and sayde: The God of heauen shal cause vs to prosper: for we his seruantes are gotten vp, and are buyldinge. As for you, ye haue no porcion nor right, nor remembraunce in Jerusalem.

The III. Chapter.

¶ When Saneballat herde that we buylded & wall, he was wroth, & toke greate indignacion & mocked & Jewes & saide before his brethre & the mightie men of Samaria: What do the import Jewes? Shall they be thus suffred? Shall they offer? Shall they perfourme it in one daie? Shall they make & stones whole againe, & are brought to dust, & brient? And Tobias the Ammonite beside him saide: Let the builde on, yf a fore go vp, he shall breake downe their stonye wall. Heare O thou oure God, how we are despysed, turne their shame vpon their awne heade, & thou mayest geue them ouer in to despisinge in the londe of their captiuite. Co- uer not their wickednesse, & put not out their sinne fro & presencc: for they haue prouoked the buylders. Yet buylded we the wall, & ioyned it whole together, vnto & halfe heighth. And the people were well mynded to labo-

But when Saneballat, & Tobias, and & Arabias, & Ammonites, & Asdodites herde, & the walles of Jerusalem were made vp, and that they had begonne to stoppe vp & gappes, they were very wroth, and cōspyred all together, to come and fight agaynst Jeru- salem, & to make an hinderance therein. Ne- uertheles we made o' praiser vnto oure God, & set watchme vpo the wall daye & night ouer agaynst them. And Iuda saide: The strength of the bearers is to feble, & there is to much dust, we are not able to builde on the wall. And & aduersaries thought: They shall not knowe nether se, tyll we come in the myddes amonge the, and slaye them, & hynder & worke. But when the Jewes that dwelt besyde them, came out of all the places where they dwelt aboute vs, and tolde vs as good as tymes, then set I the people after their kyn- reds with their swordes, speares & bowes be- neth in the lowe places behynde the wall, & looked, and gat me vp, and sayde vnto the se- men and rulers, & to the other people: Be not ye afraied of them, thynke vpon & grea- te LORDE which ought to be feared, & fighte for yō brethrien, sonnes, daughters, wyues, & houses. Neuertheles when & enemies herde & we had gotten worde of it, God broughte their counsell to naughte, and we turned all againe to the wall, every one vnto his labo-

And I sayde vnto the princypall men, & rulers, and to & other people: The worke is greate & large, & we are separated vpon the wall one farre from another. Loke in what place now ye heare the noise of & trompe, so- rre ye thither vnto vs. Oure God shal fight for vs, & we wil be labourige in & worke. And the halfe parte of the helde & speares fro & morninge sprynge, till & starres came forth. And at & same tyme sayde I vnto & people: Every one abyde with his seruaunt at Je- rusalem, & in the night season we maye geue attendaunce to & watch, and to labour on the daye tyme. As for me and my brethren, & my seruauntes, and & men of the watch be- hynde me, we put neuer of oure clothes, so so much as to washe oure selues.

The V. Chapter.

¶ When there arose a greate complaynte of & people, & of their wyues agaynst their brethrien the Jewes. And there were some & sayde: oure sonnes and doughters are to many, let vs take come for the, & eate, that we maye lyue. Some saide: Let vs set o' londes, vynyardes & houses to pledge, & take vp come in the deyth. But some saide: Let vs borowe money of the kinge vpo the

ry for oure londes and vynyardes. Now are oure brethriens bodies as oure awne bodies, and their children as oure children: els shul- de we subdue oure sonnes and doughters vn- to bondage, and some of oure doughters are subdued already, and no strength is there in oure handes, and other men shal haue oure londes and vynyardes.

But when I herde their complaynte and soch wordes, it displeased me sore, and I ad- uysed so in my mynde, & I rebuked the coun- cilers, and the rulers, and sayde vnto them: Wyl ye requyre vsury one of another? And I broughte a greate congregacion agaynst them, and sayde vnto them: We (after oure abylte) haue boughte oure brethrien the Jewes, which were solde vnto the heythen. And wyl ye sell youre brethrien, whom we ha- ue boughte vnto vs? Then helde they their peace, & coulde fynde nothinge to answe-

And I sayde: It is not good that ye do. Oughte ye not to walke in the feare of God, because of the rebuke of the heythen oure enemies? I and my brethre, and my seruaun- tes haue lent them money and come; but as for vsury, let vs leaue it. Therfore this same daye se that ye restore the their londes agay- ne, their vynyardes, oyle gardens and hou- ses, and the hundreth parte of the money of the come, wyne and oyle that ye haue won- ne of them. Then sayde they: We wyl restore them agayne, and wyl requyre nothinge of them, and wyl do as thou hast spoken. And I called the prestes, and toke an ooth of the, that they shulde do so. And I shoke my lap- pe, and sayde: God shake out every man af- ter the same maner fro his house and labou- re, that maynteyneth not this worde: enen thus be he shaken out, and voyde. And all & congregacion sayde: Amen, and praysed the LORDE. And the people dyd so.

And from the tyme forth that it was commytted vnto me to be a Debyce in the londe of Juda, namely from the twentieth yeare vnto the two and thirtieth yeare off kyng Artaxerxes (that is twolue yeare) I and my brethre lyued not of soch sustenau- be as was geuen to a Debyce: for the olde Debytes that were before me, had bene char- geable vnto the people, and had take of the bried and wyne, and fortye Sycles of syl- uer: yee and their seruauntes had oppressed the people. But so dyd not I, and that be- cause of the feare of God. I laboured also in the worke vpon the wall, and boughte no lode. And all my seruauntes came thither to- gether vnto & worke. Moreover there were at my table an hundreth and fiftie of the Je- wes and rulers, which came vnto me, from amonge the heythen, that are aboute vs. And there was prepared me daylie an oxe, and sixe chosen shepe, and byrdes, and euer once in ten dayes a greate summe of wyne. Yet requyred not I the lyuynge of a Debyce for & bondage was greuous vnto & people. Thynke vpo me my God vnto & best, accordi-

The VI. Chapter.

¶ When Saneballat, Tobias and Gosem the Arabian, and the other of & oure enemyes herde, that I had buyl- ded the wall, and that there were no mo gap- pes ther in (howbeit at the same tyme had I not hanged the dores vpon the gates) Saneballat and Gosem sent vnto me, sayenge: Come and let vs mete together in the vylla- ges vpon the playne of the cite One. Neuer- theles they thoughte to do me euell. Not- withstondynge I sent messaungers vnto them, sayenge: I haue a greate busynes to do, I can not come downe. The worke shul- de stonde still, yf I were negligent, and came downe to you. Howbeit they sent vnto me as good as foure tymes after the same maner. And I gaue the same answe-

Then sent Saneballat his seruaunt vnto me the fiftch tyme, with an open letter in his hande, wherein was wrytten: It is tolde the heythen, & Gosem hath sayde it, that thou and the Jewes thynke to rebell: for & which cause thou buyldest the wall, and wylt be their kyng in these matters, and hast ordey- ned the prophetes to preach of the at Jeru- salem, and to saye: He is kyng of Juda.

Now shal this come to the kynges ea- res: come now therfore, and let us take oure counsell together. Neuertheles I sent vnto him, sayenge: There is no soch thinge done as thou sayest: thou hast sayned it out of thi- ne owne hert. For they were all mynded to make us afraied, and thoughte: They shal withdraue their handes from the worke, & they shal not labour. Howbeit I strenghted my hande the more.

And I came vnto & house of Semaia & son- ne of Delaia the sonne of Mehetabeel, & he had shut him silse within, & sayde: Let us come together in to & house of God, enē vn- to & myddes of & temple, & sparre & dores of & temple: for they wyl come to slaye & yee enē in the night wyl they come to put the to deathe. But I sayde: Shulde soch a mā flye? Shul- de soch a mā as I am, go in to & temple, to sa- ue his life? I wyl not go in.

For I perceaued, that God had not sent him: Yet spake he prophete vpon me, neuer thelesse Tobias and Saneballat had hired him for money. Therfore toke he the money, that I shulde be afrayed, and so to do and synne, that they might haue an euell reporte of me, to blaspheme me. My God thynke thou vpon Tobias and Saneballat, a cor- dyng vnto these their workes, and of 3 prophete Moadia, and of the other prophetes, 3 wolde haue put me in feare.

And the wall was fynished on the fyne 2 twentyeth daye of the moneth Elul, in two and fiftye dayes. And whan all 6 enemies herde therof, all the heithen 3 were aboute vs, were afrayed, and their corage failed the: for they perceaued, that this worke came of God. And at 3 same tyme were there many of 3 chese of Juda, whose letters were vnto Tobias, 2 from Tobias vnto them: for there were many in Juda that were sworne vnto him: for he was the sonne in lawe of Sachania the sonne of Arah, and his sonne Johanan had the doughter of Mesullam the sonne of Barachia, and they spake good of him before me, and tolde him my wordes. And Tobias sent letters, to put me in feare.

The VII. Chapter.

Now whan we had buylded the wall I hanged on the doores, and the porters, syngers and Levites were appointed. And I commaunded my brother Hanani, and Hanania the ruler of the palace at Jerusalem: for he was a faithfull man, and feared God more then dyd many other. And I sayde vnto them: Let not the gates of Jerusalem be opened vntyll the Sonne be whote. And whyle they are yet stondinge in the watch, the doores shall be shut and barred. And there were certayne citsyns of Jerusalem appointed to be watchmen, euery one in his watch, and aboute his house. As for 3 cite, it was large of rowme, and greate, but 3 people were fewe therein, and the houses were not buylded.

And my God gaue me in my hert, that I gatherd together the pryncipall men and 3 people, to nombre them, and I founde a register of their nombre, which came vp afore out of the captiuyte (whom Nabuchodonosor 3 kynge of Babilon had caryed awaie) and dwelt at Jerusalem and in Juda, euery one vnto his cite, and were come with Zorobabel, Jesua, Nehemias, Asaria, Raamia, Naheman, Mardachai, Bilsan, Mispereth, Bigenai, Nehum and Baena.

This is the nombre of the men of the people of Israel. The children of Pareos were two thousande, an hundred and two and seuentye: The children of Sephatia, thre hundred 2 two and seuentye: the children of Arah, sixe hundred and two and fiftye: 3 children of Pahath Moab amonge the children of Jesua and Joab, two thousande, eight hundred, and eightene: the children of Elam, a thousande, two hundred, and foure and fiftye: the children of Sathu, eight hundred 2 fyne and fortye, the children of Sacai, seven hundred and thre score: the children of Benini, sixe hundred, and eight and fortye: 3 children of Debai, sixe hundred and eight and twentye: the children of Asgad, two thousande, thre hundred and two and twentye: the children of Adoniam, sixe hundred 2 thre score: the children of Bigenai, two thousande, and seven and thre score: the children of Adin, sixe hundred 2 fyne and fiftye: the children of Atter of Ezechias, eight and nyentye.

The VIII. Chapter.

Now whan the seventh moneth dwe nye, and 3 children of Israel were in their cities, all the people gathered them selues together as one man vpon the strete before the Watergate, and sayde vnto Esdras the scribe, that he shulde fetch the boke of the lawe of Moses, which the LORDE commaunded Israel. And Esdras the prest brought 3 lawe before the congregacion both of men and women, and of all that coulde vnderstonde it, vpon the first daye of the seventh moneth, and red therein in the strete that is before the Watergate, from 3 light morninge vntyll the noone daye before men and women and soch as coulde vnderstonde it: and the eares of all the people were inclyned vnto the boke of the lawe. And Esdras the scribe stode vpon an hye pulpit of wod, which they had made for the preachynge, 2 beside him stode Mathithia, Sema, Anania, Dria, Ezechias, and Maesiea on his righte hand: And on his lefte honde stode Pedai, Misael, Malchia, Hasum, Hasbadana, Zachary and Mesullam.

And Esdras opened 3 boke before all 3 people, for he stode aboue all 3 people. And whan he opened it, all the people stode vp. And Esdras prayesed the LORDE the greates God. And all the people answered Amen, Amen, with their handes vp, and bowed the selues, and worshipped 3 LORDE with their faces to the grounde. And Jesua, Bani, Seribia, Jamin, Acub, Sabthai, Hodai, Maesiea, Celita, Asaria, Josabad, Hanam, plaia, and the Levites, caused 3 people to gene he de vnto the lawe, 2 the people stode in their place. And they red in the boke of the lawe of God distinctly and planely, so that men vnderstode the thinge that was red. And Nehemias (which is Hathirsatha) and Esdras the priest and scribe, and the Levites & caused the people to take heed, sayde vnto all the people: This daye is holy vnto the LORD your God: be not ye sorry therfore, & wepe not. For all & people wepte, whā they herde the wordes of the lawe.

E Therfore sayde he vnto them: Go youre waye, and eate the fat, and drynke the swete, and sende parte vnto them also that haue not prepared themselves: for this daye is holy vnto our LORD, be not ye sorry therfore: for the ioye of the LORD is your strength. And the Levites stylled all the people, and sayde: Holde youre peace, for the daye is holy, were not ye yourselues. And all the people wente their waye to eate and drinke, and to sende parte vnto oher, and to make greete myrrh, for they had vnderstonde the wordes that were declared vnto them.

D And on the nexte daye were gathered together the chiefe fathers amonge all the people, and the prestes and Levites, vnto Esdras the scribe, that he shulde teach them & wordes of the lawe. And they founde written in the lawe, how that the LORD had commaunded by Moses, that the childre of Israel shulde dwell in bothes in the feast of the seventh moneth. And so they caused it be declared and proclaimed in all their cities, & at Jerusalem, sayenge: Go vp vnto & mount and fetch Olyue braunches, Pynebraunches, Myrtbraunches, Palmebraunches, & braunches of thicketrees, to make bothes as it is wrytten.

And & people wente vp, and fetched the, and made them bothes, every one vpon the rofe of his house, and in their courtes, and in the courtes of the house of God, and in the strete by the Watergate, and in the strete by Ephraims porte. And all the congregacion of them that were come agayne out of the captivitye, made bothes, and dwelt therein: for sence the tyme of Josua the sonne of Nū vnto this daye, had not the children of Israel done so, and there was very greete gladnesse. And every daye from the first daie vnto the last, red he in the boke of the lawe of God. And seven dayes helde they the feast, & on the eight daye the gatherynge together, acordynge vnto the maner.

The IX. Chapter.

In the foure and twentieth daye of this moneth came the children of Israel together with fastinge and sack clothes, and earth vpon them, and separated the sede of Israel from all the straunge children, and stode and knowleged their synnes, and the wyckednesses of their fathers, and stode vp in their place, and red in the boke of the lawe of the LORD their God foure tymes on the daye, and they knowleged, and worshipped the LORD their God foure tymes on the daye. And the Levites stode on hye, namely Jesua, Bani, Cadmiel, Sebania, Buni, Serebia, Bani, and Chenani, and cryed loude vnto the LORD their God. And the Levites, Jesua, Cadmiel, Bani, Serebia, Serebia, Serebia, Sebania, Pethahia, sayde: Stonde vp, prayse the LORD our God for ever: and let thankes be geue vnto the name of thy glorie, which excelleth all thankesgeuynge and prayse. LORD, thou art alone, thou hast made heauen, and the heauen of all heuens, with all their host, the earth and all that therein is, the See and all that is therein: thou geuest life vnto all, and & host of heauen bewe themselves vnto the. Thou art the LORD God, that hast chosen Abia, and broughte him out of Ur in Chaldea, & called him Abraham, and founde his her faithfull before the, and madeest a conuenant with him, to geue vnto his sede the londe of the Cananites, Hethites, Amorites, Phereites, Jebusites, and Gergosites, and hast made good thy wordes: for thou art righteous. And hast considered the misery of our fathers in Egipte, and herde their complainte by the reed See, and shewed tokes and wonders vnto Pharaο, and on all his seruantes, and on all his people of his londe: for thou knewest & they were presumptuous & cruell against them, & so madeest thou a name as it is this daie. And the reed See partedst thou in sunder before them, so that they were thorow the myddes of the See drye shod: & their persecuters threwest thou in to the depe as a stone, in the mightie waters, and leddest them on the daye tyme in a cloudy pyler, and on the night season in a piler of fyre, to shewe them lighte in the waye & they wente.

Thou cameest downe also vnto mount Sinai, and spakest vnto them from heauen, and gauest them righte indgements, true lawes, good commaundementes and statutes, and declared vnto them thy holy Sabbath, and commaunded them preceptes, ordinaunces, and lawes, by Moses thy seruant: and gauest them bried from heauen whan they were hongrye, and broughte forth water for them out of the rock whan they were thirsty: and promysed them, that they shulde go in, and take possession of the londe, where ouer thou haddeest lyst vnto thine hande for to geue them.

Nevertheless oure fathers were proude and hardnecked, so that they folowed not & commaundementes, and refused to heare, and were not mynde full of the wonders & thou dydest for them: but became obstynate and heady, in so moch that they turned back to their bondage in their dishobedience. But thou my God forgauest, and wast gracious, mercifull, pacient, and of greate goodnesse, and forsokest them not. And though they made a molten calfe (and sayde: This is thy God, that broughte the out of the londe of Egipte) and dyd greate blasphemies, yet forsokest thou them not in the wyldernes, acordynge to thy greate mercy. And & cloudy piler departed not from them on & daye tyme to lede them the waye, nether the piler of fyre in the night season, to shewe them lighte in the waye that they wente.

And thou gauest them thy good spire to enforme them, and withheldest not thy Manna from their mouth, and gauest the water whā they were thirstie. Forty yeaeres longe madeest thou prouision for them in the wyldernes, so that they wanted nothinge: their clothes waxed not olde, and their fete swelled not. And thou gauest the Egiptomes & nacions, & partedst the acordynge to their porcions, so that they possessed the londe of Sihon kynge of Hesbon, & the londe of Og & kynge of Basan. And their childre multipliedst thou as the starres of heauen, and broughtest the in to the londe wherof thou haddeest spoken vnto their fathers, that they shulde go in to it, and haue it in possession.

And & children wente in, and possessed the londe, and thou subdudest before the inhabiters of the londe, euen the Cananites, & gauest them in to their hande, and their kynnes and & people of the londe, & they might do with them what they wolde. And they wanne their stronge cities, & a fat londe, and take possession of houses & were full of all maner goodes, welles dygged out, vynyards, oylgardens, & many frute full trees: and they ate & were fylled, & became fat, & lyued in welch thorow thy greate goodnes. Nevertheless they were disobedient, and rebelled agaynst the, and cast thy lawe behynde their backs, and slewe thy prophetes (which exhorted them so earnestly, that they shulde conuerte vnto the) and dyd greate blasphemies. Therfore gauest thou them ouer in to the hande of their enemies that vexed them.

And in & tyme of their trouble they cried vnto the, and thou hardest them from heauen: and thorow thy greate mercychou gauest them sauicurs, which helped the out of the hande of their enemies. But whan they came to rest, they turned back agayne to do euell before the: therfore ledest thou them in the hande of their enemies, so & they had & deminion ouer them. So they conuerted, and cryed vnto the, and thou herdest them from heauen, and many a tyme hast thou deliuered them acordynge to & greate mercy, and testified vnto them, that they shulde turne agayne vnto thy lawe.

Notwithstandynge they were proude, and herkened not vnto thy commaundementes, but synned in thy lawes (which a man shulde do, & lyue in them) & turned their shulder awaye, & were styffnecked, & wolde not heare. And many yeaeres dydest thou forbear them, & testified vnto them thorow & spire, euen by the office of & prophetes, & yet wolde they not heare. Therfore gauest thou the in to & hande of & nacions in the londes. But for thy greate mercies sake thou hast not utterly consumed them, nether forsaken them: for thou art a gracious and mercifull God.

Now oure God, thou greate God, mightie and terrible, thou that kepest couenant and mercy, regarde not a litle all the trauayle & hath happened vnto vs, & oure kynnes, prynces, prestes, prophetes, fathers & all thy people, sence the tyme of the kynnes of Assur vnto this daie. Thou art righteous in all & thou hast broughte vnto vs: for thou hast done righte. As for vs, we haue bene vngodly, and of kynnes, prynces, prestes & fathers haue not done after & lawe, ner regarded & commaundementes, & thy earnest exhortacions wherwith thou hast exhorted them, & haue not serued & in their kynngdome, and in thy greate goodes & thou gauest them, and in the large and plenteous lode which thou gauest them to good, and haue not conuerted from their wicked workes. Beholde, therfore are we in bondage this daye: yee euen in the lode that thou gauest vnto oure fathers, to enioye the frutes and goodes therof, beholde, there are we bondmen. And greate is the increase of it vnto the kynnes, whom thou hast set ouer vs because of oure synnes, and they haue dominion ouer oure bodies and call, and we are in greate trouble.

And in all this made we a sure couenant, & wrote it, & let of prynces, Levites & prestes seale it.

And & prestes and Levites purified them selues, and clensed the people, the gates and the wall.

And I caused the prynces to go vp vpon the wall, and appoynted two greates queres of thankesguynges, which wete on the righte hande of the wall toward the Donggate, and after them wete Hosai, and halfe of the prynces of Juda, & Asaria, Esdras, Mesullam, Juda, Ben Jamin, Semaia and Jeremy: and certayne of the prestes childre with trompettes, namely Zachary & sonne of Joathan, the sonne of Semaia, the sonne of Nathania, the sonne of Michaia, the sonne of Sachur, the sonne of Assaph, and his brethren, Semaia, Asareel, Misilai, Gilalai, Maai, Nathaneel and Juda and Hanani, with the muscical instrumentes of Dauid & man of God.

D And Esdras & scribe before the towarde the Wellgate, and they wente vp ouer agaynst them vpon the steppes of the cite of Dauid at the goynge vp of the wall to the house of Dauid, vnto the Watergate Eastwarde.

The other quere of thankesguynges wente ouer agaynst them, and I after them, and the halfe parte of the people vpon & wall, toward & Gomacegate vwarde, vntyll & brode wall, and to & porte of Ephraim, and to the Oldgate, and to & Sythgate, and to the tower of Hananeel, and to the tower of Meah, vntyll the Shepegate. And in & songate stode they still, and so stode the two queres of thankesguynges of the house of God, and I and the halfe of the rulers with me, and the prestes, namely Eliachim, Maaseia, Miniamin, Michaia, Elioenai, Zachary, Hanania, with trompettes, and Maaseia, Semaia, Eleasar, Vsi, Johanan, Malchia, Elam and Aser. And the syngers songe loude, and Jesrahia was the ouersee.

And the same daye were there greates sacrifices offred, & they reioysed: for God had geue them greates gladnesse, so that both the wyues and children were ioyfull, & the myght of Jerusalem was herde farre of.

At the same tyme were there men appoynted ouer the treasure chestes (wherin were & heue offerynges, the firstlinges and the tithes) that they shulde gather them out of felde aboute the cities, to distribute the same to the prestes and Levites accordinge to the lawe: for Juda was glad of the prestes, and Levites, that they stode and wayted vpon the office of their God, and the office of the purification. And the syngers & porters stode after the commaundement of Dauid & of Salomon his sonne: for in the tyme of Dauid and Assaph, were the chiefe syngers sonned, and the songes of prayse and thankesguynges vnto God. In the tyme of Zorobabel and Nehemias, dyd all Israel geue porcions vnto the syngers and porters, euery daye his porcion, and they gaue thinges halowed vnto the Levites, and the Levites gaue thinges that were sanctified, vnto the childre of Aaron.

The XIII. Chapter.

What tyme as the boke of Moses was red in & eares of the people, there was founde wrytten therein, & the Ammonites and Moabites shulde neuer come in to the congregacion of God, because they mett not the children of Israel with bread and water, & byred Balaam against them, that he shulde curse them: neuertheles oure God turned & curse in to a blessinge. Now whan they herde the lawe, they separated from Israel euery one that had myxt himselfe therein. And before this had the priest Eliasib delyned the chest of & house of oure God vnto his kynsman Tobia: for he had made him a greates chest, and there had they aforetyme layed the meate offerynges, frankincense, vssell, and the tithes of come, wyne and oyle (accordinge to the commaundement geuen to the Levites, syngers and porters) and the heue offerynges of the prestes.

But in all this was not I at Jerusalem: for in & two and thirtieth yere of Artaxerxes kynge of Babilon, came I vnto the kynge, and after certayne dayes opraigned I licence of the kynge to come to Jerusalem. And I gat knowlege of & euell that Eliasib dyd vnto Tobia, in that he had made him a chest in the courte of the house of God, and it greued me sore, and I cast forth all the vessels of Tobias house out of the chest, and commaunded them to clense the chest. And thither broughte I agayne the vessels of the house of God, the meate offerynges and the incense.

And I perceaued, that the porcions of & Levites were not geuen them, for the which cause the Levites and syngers were fled, euery one to his londe for to worke. Then reproved I the rulers, and sayde: Why forsake ye the house of God? But I gathered them together, and set them in their place. Then brought all Juda the tithes of corne, wyne and oyle vnto the treasure. And I made treasurers ouer & treasure, euen Selema & prest, and Saboc the scribe, & of the Levites Pedabai, and vnder their hande Hanan the sonne of Sachur the sonne of Nathania: for they were connted faithfull, and their office was, to distribute vnto their brethren.

Thynke vpon me O my God here in, & wyne not out my mercy, that I haue shewed on & house of my God, & on the offices thereof.

At the same tyme sawe I some tredinge wyne prestes on the Sabbath, and brynginge in clusters, and asses laden with wyne, grapes, fygges, and brynginge all maner of burthens vnto Jerusalem, vpon the Sabbath daye. And I rebuked them earnestly & same daye that they solde & vytayles. There dwelt me of Tyre also therein, which broughte fish and all maner of ware, and solde on the Sabbath vnto the childre of Juda and Jerusalem. Then reproved I the rulers in Juda, and saide vnto them: What euell thinge is this that ye do, and breake the Sabbath daye? Dyd not oure fathers euen thus, and oure God broughte all this plage vpon vs & vpon this cite? And ye make the wrath more yet vpon Israel, in that ye breake the Sabbath.

D And whan the portes of Jerusalem were shuten vp before the Sabbath, I commaunded to shute the gates, and charged that they shulde not be opened tyll after the Sabbath: and some of my seruantes set I at the gates, & there shulde no burthe be broughte in on the Sabbath daye. Then remayned the chapmen and marchauntes once or twice ouer night without Jerusalem with all maner of wares. Then reproved I them sore, & sayde vnto them: Why tary ye all night aboute the wall? If ye do it once agayne, I wil laye handes vpon you. From that tyme forth came they nomore on the Sabbath. And I sayde vnto the Levites which were cleane, that they shulde come and kepe the gates, to halowe the Sabbath daye. Thynke vpon me (O my God) concerninge this also, & spare me accordinge to thy greates mercy.

And at the same tyme sawe I Jewes, that married wyues of Moab, Ammon and of Meab, and their children spake halfe in the speache of Moab, and coude not speake in & Jewish language, but by & tonge mighte a mā perceauie euery people. And I reproved them, and cursed them, & smote certayne men of the, and plucked them vp, and toke an oath of them by God: Ye shal not geue your daughters vnto their sonnes, nether shal ye take their daughters vnto your sonnes, or for your selues. Dyd not Salomon & kynge of Israel synne therin? yet amonge many heythen was there no kynge like him, & he was deare vnto his God, and God made him kynge ouer all Israel, and the outlandish women.

And one of the children of Joiada the sonne of Eliasib & hye prest, had made a contracte with Sanballath the Horonite: but I chased him from me. O my God, thynke thou vpon them that are quyte of the presthode, and haue desyled the couenaunt of the presthode and of the Levites. Thus clensed I them from all such as were outlandish, and appoynted the courses of the prestes and Levites, euery one to his office, and to offere the wood at tymes appoynted, and the first frutes. Thynke thou vpon me (O my God) for the best.

The first Chapter.

At the tyme of Ahasuerus, which reigned from India vnto Ethiopia, ouer an hundred and seven and twentye lordes, what tyme as he sat on his seate roiall in the castell of Susan in the thirde yere of his reigne, he made a feast vnto all his prynces and seruantes, namely vnto the myghtie men of Persia and Media, to the Debities and rulers of his countrees, that he might shewe the noble riches of his kingdome, and the glorious worshippe of his greatnesse, many dayes longe, euen an hundred and foure score dayes.

And whan these dayes were expyred, the kyng made a feast vnto all the people that were in the castell of Susan, both vnto greete and small, seven dayes longe in the court of the garden by the kynges palace: where there hanged whyte, reed & yalow clothes, fastened with coardes of linnen and scarlet in siluer rynges, vpon pylers of Marble stone.

The benches were of golde and siluer ma de vpon a pavement of grene, white, yalow and black Marble. And a drinke was caried in vessels of golde, and there was euery change of vessell. And the kynges wine was moche accordynge to the power of the kyng. And noman was appoynted what he shulde drinke: for the kyng had commaunded all the officers of his house, that euery one shulde do as it lyked him. And the quene Vasthi made a feast also for the women in the palace of Ahasuerus. And on the seventh daye whan the kyng was mery of the wine, he commaunded Methuman, Bistha, Harbona, Bigtha, Abagtha, Sether and Charcas, the seven chamberlaynes (that dyd seruyce in the presence of kyng Ahasuerus) to fetch the quene Vasthi with the crowne regall, that he might shewe a people and prynces hir fairness: for she was bewtifull. But the quene Vasthi wolde not come at the kynges worde by his chamberlaynes. Then was the kyng very wroth, and his indignaciō kyndled in him.

And the kyng spake to a wyse man that had vnderstandynge in the ordinaunces of the londe: for the kynges matters must be handled before all such as haue knowlege of the lawe and iudgment. And the nexte vnto him were, Charfena, Sether, Admatha, Tharsis, Meres, Marsena and Memuchan, the seven prynces of the Persians, and Micedes, which sawe the kynges face, and sat aboue in the kyngdome. What lawe shulde be executed vpon the quene Vasthi, because she dyd not accordynge to the worde of the kyng by his chamberlaynes. The saide Memuchan before the kyng & the prynces: The quene Vasthi hath not onely done euell agaynst the kyng but also agaynst all the prynces and all the people in all the lordes of kyng Ahasuerus for this dede of the quene shall come abrode vnto all women, so that they shall despyse their husbundes before their eyes, and shall saye: The kyng Ahasuers commaunded Vasthi & quene to come before him, but she wolde not. And so shall the pryncesses in Persia and Media saye lykewyse vnto all the kynges prynces, whan they heare of this dede of the quene, thus shall there aryse despytefulness and wrath ynough. If it please the kyng, let there go a kyngly commaundment from him, and let it be wyrtten accordynge to the lawe of the Persians and Medians (and not to be transgressed) that Vasthi come nomore before kyng Ahasuerus, and let the kyng geue the kyngdome vnto another that is better then she.

And this wytyng of the kyng which shalbe made, be published thorow out all his empyre (which is greete) that all wyues maye holde their husbundes in honoure, both amonge greete and smal.

This pleased the kyng and the prynces, and the kyng dyd accordynge to the worde of Memuchan. Then were there letters sent forth in to all the kynges lordes, in to euery londe accordynge to the wytyng ther of, and to euery people after their langage, & euery man shulde be lord in his awne house. And this caused he be spoken after the language of his people.

The II Chapter.

After these actes whan the displeasure of kyng Ahasuerus was layed, he thoughte vpon Vasthi, what she had done, and what was concluded concernynge her. Then sayde the kynges seruantes: Let there be sayre yonge virgins soughte for the kyng, and let the kyng appoynte ouerseers in all a lordes of his empyre, that they maye brynge together all sayre yonge virgins vnto the castell of Susan to the Womens buyldinge, vnder the hande of Hegai the kynges chamberlayne, that kepeth the women, and let him geue them their apparell. And loke which damsell pleaseth the kyng, let her be quene in Vasthis steade. This pleased the kyng, and he dyd so.

In the castell of Susan there was a Jewe, whose name was Mardocheus, the sonne of Jair, the sonne of Simei, the sonne of Cis, the sonne of Jemini, which was caried awaye from Jerusalem, whan Jechonias the kyng of Iuda was led awaye, (whom Nabuchodonosor the kyng of Babilon caried awaye) and he nourished Zedassia (that is Hester) his vnckles doughter: for she had nether father nor mother, and she was a fayre and beutyfull damsell. And whan hir father and mother dyed, Mardocheus receaued her as his awne daughter.

Now whan a kynges commaundment and comysion was published, & many dāfels were broughte together vnto the castell of Susan vnder a hande of Hegai, Hester was take also vnto a kynges house vnder a hande of Hegai & keper of a womē, & the damsell pleased him, & she founde grace in his sighte. And he put her & hir maydes in a best place of a Womens buildige. And Hester shewed it not vnto hir people & hir kynred: for Mardocheus had charged her, & she shulde not tell it. And Mardocheus walked euery daye before a court of a Womens buyldinge, & he might knowe how Hester dyd, and what shulde be come of her.

And whan the appoynted tyme of euery damsell came that she shulde come to a kyng Ahasuerus, after that she had bene twelue monethes in the deckynge of the women (for their deckynge must haue so moche tyme, namely sixe monethes with Balme & Myrrour, & sixe monethes with good spyces, so werethe women beutyfied) then wente there one damsell vnto a kyng, and what so euer she requyred, & must be geue her to go with her out of the Womens buyldinge vnto a kynges palace. And whan one came in the chennynge, & same were fro him on a morow in to a seconde house of women, vnder the hande of Saasgas the kynges chamberlayne, which kepte a concubines. And she must come vnto the kyng nomore, excepte it pleased the kyng, and that he caused her to be called by name.

Now whan the tyme came of Hester the daughter of Abihail Mardocheus vnckle (whom he had receaued as his awne daughter) & she shulde come to the kyng, she desired nothynge but what Hegai the kynges chamberlayne the keper of the women sayde.

And Hester founde fauoure in the sighte of all them that looked vpon her. And Hester was taken vnto kyng Ahasuerus in to the house royall, in the tenth moneth which is called Tebeth, in the seventh yere of his reigne.

And the kyng loued Hester aboue all the women, and she founde grace and mercy in his sighte before all the virgins: and he set the quenes crowne vpon hir heade, and made her quene in steade of Vasthi. And the kyng made a greete feast vnto all his prynces and seruantes, which feast was because of Hester) and let the lordes be in quyetnes, & gaue royall giftes.

And whan the virgins were gathered together the seconde tyme, Mardocheus sat in the kynges gate. And as yet had not Hester shewed hir kynged and hir people, accordynge as Mardocheus had bydden her: for Hester dyd after the worde of Mardocheus, like as whan he was hir tūtoure. At the same tyme whyle Mardocheus sat in the kynges gate, two of the kynges chamberlaynes, Bigthan and Theris which kepte the doore, were wroth, and sought to laye their handes on the kyng Ahasuerus: Wherof Mardocheus gat knowlege, and tolde it vnto quene Hester, and Hester certified the kyng ther of in Mardocheus name. And whan inquis cion was made, it was founde so. And they were both hanged on tre: and it was wrytten in the Cronicles before the Kyng.

The III. Chapter.

After these actes dyd the Kyng promote Aman the sonne of Amadathi the Agagite, vnd set him hye, & set his seate aboue all & prynces that were with him. And all the Kynges seruantes that were in the gate, bowed their knees, and dyd reuerence vnto Aman: for the kyng had so commaunded. But Mardocheus bowed not the knee, and worshipped him not. Then the Kynges seruantes which were in the Kynges gate, sayde vnto Mardocheus: Why transgressest thou the Kynges commaundement? And whan they spake this daylie vnto him; and he folowed them not, they tolde Aman, that they mighte se whether Mardocheus matters wolde endure: for he had tolde them, & he was a Jewe. And whā Aman sawe, that Mardocheus bowed not the knee vnto him, ner worshipped him, he was full of indignacion & despyte, that he shulde laye hondes onely on Mardocheus: for they had shewed him & people of Mardocheus, but he sought to destroye the people of Mardocheus, and all the people that were in the whole empyre of Abasuerus.

In the first moneth that is the moneth Nisan, in y twolueh yere of Kyng Abasuerus, was there occasion and oportunitie sought by Aman, from one daye to another, and from the same moneth vnto the twolueh moneth, that is the moneth Adar. And Amā sayde vnto Kyng Abasuerus: There is a people scattered abroad and dispersed amonge all people in all the londes of thine empire, and their lawe is contrary vnto all people, and they do not after the Kynges lawes, neither is it the Kynges profit to suffre the after this maner. If it please the Kyng, let him wryte, that they maye be destroyed, & so wil I weye downe ten thousande talentes of silver, vnder the handes of the workmen, to be brought in to the Kynges chamber. Then tolde the Kyng his ryng from his hande, and gaue it vnto Aman the sonne of Amadathi the Agagite the Jewes enemye. And the Kyng sayde vnto Aman: Let the silver be geynted, and that people also, to do withall what pleasesthe.

Then were the Kynges serybes called on y thirtenth daye of the first moneth, & there was wrytten (acordyng as Aman commaunded) vnto the Kynges prynces, and to the Debitors euery where in the londes, and to the captaynes of euery people in the countreys on euery syde, acordyng to the wryttinge of euery nacion, and after their language in the name of Kyng Abasuerus, and sealed with the Kynges ryng. And the wryttinges were sent by postes in to all the Kynges lodes, to rote out, to kyll, and to destroye all Jewes, both yonge and olde, childre and men in one daye (namely vpon the thirtenth daye of the twolueh moneth, which is the moneth Adar) and to spoyle their goodes.

This was the summe of the wryttinge, & there shulde be a commaundement geynted in all londes, to be published vnto all people, & they shulde be ready agaynst the same daye. And the postes wente in all the haist acordyng to the Kynges commaundement. And in the castell of Susan was the commaundement deuysed. And the Kyng & Aman sat & drank. But y cite of Susan was disquieted.

The III. Chapter.

Whan Mardocheus perceaued all that was done, he rete his clothes, and put on a sack cloth, & asyles, & wente out in to the myddes of the cite, and cried loude and lamentably, and came before the Kynges gate: for there might no man entre within the Kynges gate, that had a sack cloth on. And in all lodes & places, as farre as the Kynges worde and commaundement extended, there was greete lamentacion amonge the Jewes, and many fasted, wept, mourned, & laye in sack clothes & in asyles. So Hesters dāfels, and hir chamberlaines, came and tolde it her. Then was the quene exceedingly astonnyed. And she sent rayment, that Mardocheus shulde put them on, and laye the sack clothe from him. But Mardocheus wolde not take them. The called Hester Hathac one of the Kynges chamberlaines (which stode before her) and gaue him a commaundement vnto Mardocheus, that he might knowe what it were, and wherfore he dyd so. So Hathac wente forth to Mardocheus vnto the strete of the cite, which was before the Kynges gate.

And Mardocheus tolde him of all & had happened vnto him, and of the summe of silver that Amā had promysed to weie downe in the Kynges chamber because of y Jewes for to destroye them, and he gaue him the copye of the commaundement, that was deuysed at Susan to destroye them, that he might shewe it vnto Hester, and to speake to her and charge her, & she shulde go in to the Kyng, and make her prayer and supplication to him for hir people.

And whā Hathac came in, and tolde Hester the wordes of Mardocheus, Hester spake vnto Hathac, and commaunded him to saye vnto Mardocheus: All the Kynges seruantes, and the people in the londes of the Kyng knowe, that who so cuer cometh within the court vnto y Kyng, whether it be man or woman, which is not called, the commaundement is that the same shal dye immediatly, excepte the Kyng holde out the golde cepter vnto him, that he maye lyue. As for me, I haue not bene called to come in to the Kyngenow this thirtie dayes.

And whā Mardocheus was certified of Hesters wordes, Mardocheus bad saie agayne vnto Hester: Thynke not to saue thine awnelyfe, whyle thou art in y Kynges house befor all Jewes: for yf thou holdest thy peace at this tyme, then shal the Jewes haue helpe and deluyraunce out of another place, & thou & thy fathers house shalbe destroyed. And who knoweth whether thou art come in to the Kyngdome, for this tymes sake? Hester bad geue Mardocheus this answer: Go thou y waye then, & gather together all y Jewes & are founde at Susan, & fast ye for me, & ye eate not & drynke not in thre dayes, nether daye ner night. I & my damself wil fast likewise, & so wil I go in to the Kyng contrary to the commaundement: yf I perishe, I perishe. So Mardocheus wente his waye, & dyd all & Hester had commaunded him.

The V. Chapter.

And on the thirde daye put Hester on hir royall apparell, and stode in the court of y Kynges palace within ouer agaynst the Kynges house. And y Kyng sat vpon his royall seate in y Kynges palace ouer agaynst y doore of the house. And whan the Kyng sawe Hester the quene stodyng in the court, she founde grace in his sighte. And y Kyng helde out the golde cepter in his hande toward Hester. So Hester stepte forth, and touched the toppe of y cepter. Then sayde y Kyng vnto her: What wilt thou quene Hester? & what requyrest thou? & eue the halfe of y empyre, & it shal be geue the. Hester sayde: If it please y Kyng, let y Kyng & Aman come this daye vnto y bancket & I haue prepared. The Kyng sayde: Cause Aman to make haist, & he maye do as Hester hath saide.

Now whā the Kyng & Aman came to y bancket, & Hester had prepared, the Kyng sayde vnto Hester whan he had dronken wyne: Hester, what is thy petition? it shal be geue the. And what requyrest thou? euen the halfe of the empyre, it shal be done.

Then answered Hester and sayde: My petition and desire is, yf I haue founde grace in y sight of the Kyng, & yf it please the Kyng to geue me my petition, and to fulfill my request, then let the Kyng & Aman come to the bancket & I shal prepare for the, and so wil I do tomorrow as the Kyng hath sayde.

Then wente Aman forth the same daye ioyfull and mery in his mynde. And whan he sawe Mardocheus in the Kynges gate, & he stode not up and kneled before him, he was full of indignacion at Mardocheus. Neuertheles he restrained himselfe: and whā he came home, he sent, and called for his frendes, and Seres his wyfe, and tolde them of the glory of his riches, and the multitude of his children, all together how the Kyng had promoted him so greatly, and how that he was taken aboue the prynces and seruantes of the Kyng. Aman sayde morouer: Res and Hester the quene let no man come with the Kyng vnto the bancket that she had prepared, excepte me, and tomorrow am I bidden vnto her also with the Kyng. But in all this am I not satisfied as longe as I se Mardocheus the Jewe syttinge in y Kynges gate. Then sayde Seres his wife and all his frendes vnto him: Let the make a galowe of fiftie cubites hie, & tomorrow speake thou vnto the Kyng, that Mardocheus maye be hanged thereon, yf thou comest merely with the Kyng vnto the bancket. Aman was well content withall, and caused a galowe to be prepared.

The VI. Chapter.

The same night coulde not the Kyng slepe, and he commaunded to bryng y Cronicles and storyes: which whā they were red before y Kyng, they happened on the place where it was wrytten, how Mardocheus had tolde, that the Kynges two chamberlaines (which kepte y tresholdes) sought to laie hondes on Kyng Abasuerus. And the Kyng saide: What worshippe and good haue we done to Mardocheus therfore? Then sayde the Kynges seruantes that mynistred vnto him. There is nothinge done for him. And the Kyng sayde: Who is in y court? (for Aman was gone in to y court without before y Kynges house, & he might speake vnto y Kyng to hange Mardocheus on y tre, & he had prepared for him.) And the Kynges seruantes saide vnto him: Beholde, Amā stode in the court. The Kyng saide: Let him come in. And whā Amā came in, y Kyng saide vnto him: What shal be done vnto y man, whom the Kyng wolde sayne bryng vnto worshippe: But Haman thought in his hert: Whom shulde the kynge els be glad to brynge vnto worshippe, but me? And Aman sayde vnto the kynge: Let the man vnto whom the kynge wolde be glad to do worshippe, be broughte hither, that he maye be arayed with the royall garmentes which the kynge vseth to weere: and the horse that the kynge rydeth vpon, and that the crowne royall maye be set vpon his heade. And let this rayment and horse be deliuered vnder the hande of one of the kynges prynces, that he maye araye the man withall (whom the kynge wolde sayne honoure) and cary him vpon the horse thorow the strete of the cite, and cause it to be proclaimed before him: Thus shal it be done to every man, whom the kynge wolde sayne honoure.

C The kynge sayde: Make haist, and take (as thou hast sayde) the rayment and the horse, and do even so with Mardocheus y Jewe that sitteth before the kynges gate, and let nothinge sayle of all that thou hast spoken. Then toke Aman the rayment and the horse, and arayed him, and broughte him on horsebacke thorow the strete of the cite, and proclaimed before him: Euen thus shal it be done vnto every man whom the kynge is disposed to honoure. And Mardocheus came agayne to the kynges gate, but Aman gat him home in all the haist, mournynge with bare heade, and tolde Seres his wyfe and all his frendes, every thyng that had happened him. Then sayde his wife men and Seres his wyfe vnto him: If it be Mardocheus of the sede of the Jewes, before whō thou hast begonne to fall, thou canst do nothinge vnto him, but shalt fall before him. Whyle they were yet talkynge with him, came the kynges chamberlaynes, and caused Aman to make haist to come vnto the bancket that Hester had prepared.

The vii. Chapter.

And whan the kynge and Aman came to the bancket that quene Hester had prepared, the kynge sayde vnto Hester on the seconde daye whan he had dyed wyne: What is thy petition quene Hester, that it maye be geuen the? And what requyrest thou? See are even halfe of the empyre, and it shal be done. Hester y quene answered and sayde: If I haue founde grace in thy sighte (O kynge) and yf it please the kynge, then graunte me my lyfe at my besyie and my people for my petitions sake: for we are solde to be destroyed, to be slayne, and to perishe. And wolde God we were solde to be bondmen and bondwomen, then wolde I holde my tonge, so shulde not the enemye besy hye to the kynges harme. The kynge Abasuerus spake y sayde vnto quene Hester: What is he that? Or where is he y darre presume in his mynde to do soch a thinge after that maner? Hester sayde: The enemye and aduersary is this wicked Aman.

As for Ama, he was exceedingly afrayed before y kynge y quene. And the kynge arose fro the bancket y fro y wyne in his displeasure, and wente in to the palace garden. And Aman stode vp, and besoughte quene Hester for his life: for he sawe y there was a mischaunce prepared for him of the kynge allready.

And whan the kynge came agayne out of the palace garden in to y parler where they had eaten, Aman had layed him vpon the bed that Hester sat vpon. Then saide the kynge: Wyl he force the quene also besyde me in the house? As soone as that worde wente out of the kynges mouth, they covered Amans face. And Harbona one of the chamberlaynes that stode before the kynge, sayde Beholde, there stondesth a galowe in Amas house fiftie cubytes hye, which he had made for Mardocheus, that spake good for y kynge. The kynge sayde: Hange him thereon. So they hanged Aman on the galowe that he had made for Mardocheus. Then was the kynges wrath styllled.

The viii. Chapter.

The same daye dyd kynge Abasuerus geue the house of Aman the Jewes enemye, vnto quene Hester. And Mardocheus came before y kynge: for Hester tolde how that he beloged vnto her. And the kynge put of his synger rynge, which he had taken from Aman, y gaue it vnto Mardocheus. And Hester set Mardocheus ouer the house of Aman. And Hester spake yet more before the kynge, and fell downe at his feete, y besoughte him, that he wolde put awaye the wickednes of Aman the Agagite, and his deuice that he had ymagined against y Jewes. And the kynge helde out the golden cepter vnto Hester. Then rose Hester, and stode before the kynge, and sayde: If it please the kynge, and yf I haue soude grace in his sighte, yf it be couenyent for the kynge, and yf it be accepted in his sighte, then let it be wyttē, y the letters of the denyce of Ama the sonne of Amadathai the Agagite, make y be called agayne: which letters he wrote, to destroye y Jewes in all y kynges lodes. For how can I se the enell that shal happen vnto my people: and how can I lōke vpon the destruction of my kynred?

Then sayde y kynge Abasuerus vnto quene Hester, and to Mardocheus the Jewe: Beholde, I haue geuen Hester the house of Aman, y him haue they hanged vpon a tre, because he layed hade vpon y Jewes. Wryte ye now therfore for the Jewes, as it liketh you in the kynges name, and seale it with y kynges rynge (for the wrytinges that were wrytten in y kynges name, and sealed with the kynges rynge, durst no man dysanulle.) Then were the kynges scribes called at the same tyme in the thirde moneth, that is the moneth Siuan, on the thre y twentieth daie.

And it was wrytten (as Mardocheus commaunded) vnto the Jewes and to the prynces, to the Debities and capraynes in the londes from India vntyll Ethiopia, namely, an hundred and seuen and twenty londes, vnto every one acordinge to the wrytinge therof, vnto every people after their speche, and to the Jewes acordinge to their wrytinge and language.

And it was written in the kynge Abasuerus name, and sealed with the kynges rynge. And by postes that rode vpon swyfte yonge Mules, sent he the wrytinges, wher in the kynge graunted the Jewes (in what cities so ever they were) to gather them selues together, and to stonde for their lyfe, and for to rote out, to slaye, and to destroye all the power of the people and londe that wolde trouble them, with children and women, and to spoyle their good vpon one daye in all the londes of kynge Abasuerus, namely vpon the thirtieth daye of the twolueth moneth, which is the moneth Adar.

D The summe of the wrytinge was, how there was a commaundement geuen in all londes to be publised vnto all the people, that y Jewes shulde be ready agaynst that daye to avenge them selues on their enemies. And the postes that rode vpon the Mules, made haist with all speede, acordinge to the kynges worde: and the commaundement was deuysed in the castel of Susan.

As for Mardocheus, he wente out from the kynge in royall apparell of yalow and whyte, and wryth a greate crowne of golde, beyng arayed with a garment of linnen and purple, and y cite of Susan reioysed y was glad: but vnto the Jewes there was come light and gladnesse, y ioye y worshippe. And in all londes and cities, in to what places so ever the kynges worde and commaundement reached, there was ioye y myrth, prosperite and good dayes amonge the Jewes: in so moch that many of the people in the londe became of the Jewes beleue, for the feare of the Jewes came vpon them.

The ix. Chapter.

In the twolueth moneth, that is the moneth Adar, vpon the thirtieth daye, which the kynges worde and commaundement had appoynted, that it shulde be done, euē vpon y same daie y the enemies shulde haue destroyed the Jewes to haue oppressed them, it turned contrary wise, euen y the Jewes shulde subdne their enemies. Then gathered the Jewes together in their cities within all y londes of kynge Abasuerus, to laye honde on soch as wolde do the enell, y no man coulde withstonde them: for y feare of the was come ouer all people. And all the rulers in the londes, and prynces and Debities, and officers of the kynge promoted the Jewes: for the feare of Mardocheus came vnto the. For Mardocheus was greate in the kynges house, y the reporte of him was noised in all lodes, how he increased y grewe.

Thus the Jewes smote all their enemies with a sore slaughter, and slewe and destroyed, y dyd after their wyll vnto soch as were their aduersaries. And at y castell of Susan slewe the Jewes and destroyed fyue hundred men: y slewe Parsandatha, Dalphon, Aspatha, Poratha, Adalia, Aridatha, Parmashta, Arissai, Aridai, Vatesatha, the ten sonnes of Aman y sonne of Amadathi y enemye of the Jewes: but on his goodes they layed no handes. At the same tyme was the kynge certified of the nombre of those that were slaine at the castell of Susan. And the kynge sayde vnto quene Hester: The Jewes haue slayne and destroyed fyue hundred men at y castell of Susan, and the ten sonnes of Ama: What shal they do in the other londes of y kynge? What is thy petition, that it maye be geuen the? y what requyrest thou more to be done? Hester sayde: If it please the kynge, let him suffre the Jewes tomorrow also to do acordinge vnto this dayes commaundement, that they maye hange Amans ten sonnes vnto y tre. And the kynge charged to do so, and the commaundement was deuysed at Susan, y Amans ten sonnes were hanged. And the Jewes gathered the selues together at Susan, vpon the fourtenth daye of the moneth Adar, and slewe thre hundred men at Susan, but on their goodes they laied no handes.

As for the other Jewes in the kynges lodes, they came together, y stode for their lyues, y gatt rest fro their enemies: and slewe

of their enemies fyue and seventye thousande, howbeit they layed no hondes on their goodes. This was done on the thirteth daie of the moneth Adar, and on the fourtenth daie of the same moneth rested they, which (daie) they ordeyned to be a daie of feasting and gladnesse. But the Jewes at Susa were come together both on the thirtenth daie and on the fourtenth, and on the fiftenth daie they rested, and the same daie ordeyned they to be a daie of feasting and gladnes. Therefore the Jewes that dwelt in the villages and unwalled townes, ordeyned the fourtenth daie of the moneth Adar, to be a daie of feasting and gladnes, and one sent giftes vnto another.

And Mardocheus wrote these actes, and sent the writings vnto all the Jewes that were in all the landes of Kyng Ahasuerus, both nye and farre, that they shulde yearly receaue and holde the fourtenth and fiftenth daie of the moneth Adar, as the daies wherein the Jewes came to rest from their enemies, and as a moneth wherein their payne was turned to ioye, and their sorowe in to prosperite: that they shulde obserue the same as dayes of wealth and gladnes, and one to sende giftes vnto another, and to distribute vnto the poore.

And the Jewes receaued it that they had begonne to do, and that Mardocheus wrote vnto them: how that Aman the sonne of Amadathai all the Jewes enemye, had deuysed to destroye all the Jewes, and caused the lot to be cast for to put them in feare, and to brynge them to naught: and how Hester wente and spake to the Kyng, that thorow letters his wicked deuyce (which he ymagined agaynst the Jewes) might be turned vpon his awne heade, and how he and his sonnes were hanged on the tre. For the which cause they called this daie Purim after the name of the lot, acordyng to all the wordes of this wrytinge: and what they themselves had sene, and what had happened vnto them.

And the Jewes set it vp, and toke it vpon

them and their sede, and vpon all such as loved themselves vnto them, that they wolde not myseto obserue these two dayes yearly, acordyng as they were wrytte and appoynted, how the dayes are not to be forgotten, but to be kepte of childers children amonge all kynreds in all landes and cities. They are the dayes of Purim, which are not to be ouerslypte amonge the Jewes, and the memoriall of them oughte not to perishe from their sede.

And quene Hester the daughter of Abihail and Mardocheus the Jewe, wrote with all auctorite, to confirme this seconde wrytinge of Purim, and sent the letters vnto all the Jewes in the hundred and seven and twentye landes of the empyre of Ahasuerus, with frendly and faithfull wordes, to confirme these dayes of Purim, in their tyme appoynted, acordyng as Mardocheus the Jewe and Hester the quene had ordeined concerninge them: lyke as they vpon their soule and vpon their sede had confirmed the actes of the fastinges and of hir complainte. And Hester comaunded to stablish these actes of this Purim, and to wryte them in a boke.

The X. Chapter.

Und the Kyng Ahasuerus layed tribute vpon the lande, and vpon the Isles of the See. As for all the worke of his power and auctorite, and the greate worshippe of Mardocheus, which the Kyng gave him, beholde, it is wrytten in the Cronicles of the Kynges of Media and Persia. For Mardocheus the Jewe was the seconde next vnto the Kyng Ahasuerus, and greate amonge the Jewes, and accepted amonge the multitude of his brethren, as one that seeketh the welch of his people, and speaketh the best for all his sede.

The first Chapter.

In the lode of Ihus there was a man called Job: an innocent and vertuous man, soch one as feared God, and eschued euell. This man had viij. sonnes, and iij. daughters. His substance was vij. M. shepe, iij. M. camels, v. C. yock of oxen, v. C. she asses, and a very greate housholde: so y he was one of the most principall men amonge all them of the east countre. His sonnes now wente on euery man, and made banckettes: one daie in one house, another daie in another, and sent for their iij. sisters, to eate and drinke with them. So when they had passed ouer the tyme of their banckettinge rounde aboute, Job sent for them, and clensted them agayne, stode vpearly, and offred for euery one a brett offeringe. For Job thought thus: peradventure my sonnes haue done some offence, and haue bene vnthantfull to God in their hertes. And thus dyd Job euery daie.

The boke of Job.

B Now upon a tyme, when the seruantes of God came and stode before the LORDE, Sathan came also amonger them. And the LORDE sayde vnto Sathan: From whence comest thou? Sathan answered the LORDE, and sayde: I haue gone aboute the lode, and walked thorow it.

1. Pe. 5. b Then sayde the LORDE vnto Sathan: hast thou not considered my seruant Job, how that he is an innocent and vertuous man: soch one as feareth God, and eschuech euill, and that there is none like him in the londe: Sathan answered, and sayde vnto the LORDE: Dost thou feare God for naught? hast thou not perserued him, his house, and all his substance on euery syde: hast thou not blessed the workes of his handes? Is not his possession encreased in the londe? But laye thine honde vpon him a litle, touch once all that he hath, and (I holde) he shall curse the to thy face. And the LORDE sayde vnto Sathan: lo all that he hath, be in thy power: only vpon him self se that thou laye not thine honde.

C Then wente Sathan forth from the LORDE. Now upon a certayne daye when his sonnes and daughters were eatinge, and drynkinge wyne in their eldest brothers house, there came a messaunger vnto Job, and sayde: Whyle the oxen were a plowinge, and the asses goinge in the pasture besyde them: the Sabees came in violently, and toke them all awaye: yee they haue slayne the seruantes with the swerde, and I only ranne my waye, to tell the.

And whyle he was yet speakinge, there came another, and sayde: The fyre of God is fallen from heauen, it hath consumed 7 brēt vp all the shepe and seruantes: and I only ranne my waye, to tell the. In the meane season whyle he was yet speakinge, there came another, and sayde: The Caldees made thre armies, and fell in vpon the camels, which they haue caried awaye, yee and slayne the seruantes with the swerde: and I only am gotten awaye, to tell the. Whyle he was speakinge, there came yet another, and sayde: Thy sonnes and daughters were eatinge and drynkinge wyne in their eldest brothers house, and sodenly there came a mightie greate wynde out off the South, and smote the iiii. corners of the house: which fell vpon thy children, so that they are deed: and I am gotten awaye alone, to tell the.

cl. 5. c Then Job stode vp, and rente his clothes, shaued his heade, fell downe vpon the groun-

I tyme thither agayne. The LORDE gaue, and the LORDE hath taken awaye (the LORDE hath done his pleasure) now blessed be y name off the LORDE. In all these thinges dyd Job not offende, ner murmured foolishly agaynst God.

The II. Chapter.

It happened also upon a tyme, that when the seruantes of God came 7 stode before the LORDE, Sathan came also amonger them, and stode before him. And the LORDE sayde vnto Sathan: From whence comest thou? Sathan answered and sayde: I haue gone aboute the lode, and walked thorow it.

Then sayde the LORDE vnto Sathan: Hast thou not considered my seruant Job, how that he is an innocent 7 vertuous man: soch one as feareth God, and eschuech euill, and that there is none like him in the londe? But thou mouedest me agaynst him, to pnysh him: yet is it in vayne, for he contyneth still in his godlynesse.

Sathan answered the LORDE, and sayde: Skynne for skynne: yee a man will geue all y euer he hath, for his life. But laye thine honde vpon him, touch him once vpon the bone and flesh, and (I holde) he shall curse the to thy face. Then sayde the LORDE vnto Sathan: lo, there hast thou him in thy power, but spare his life.

So wente Sathan forth from the LORDE, and smote Job with maruelous sores by les, from the sole off the fote vnto his crowne: so that he sat vpon the grounde in the ashes, and scraped of the etter off his sores with a porsherde.

Then sayde his wife vnto him: Dost thou yet cotynue in thy perfectnesse? curse God, 7 dye. But Job sayde vnto her: Thou speakest like a foolish woman. Seinge we haue receaued prosperite at the honde of God, wherefore shulde we not be content with aduersitee also? In all these thinges, dyd not Job synne with his lippes.

Now when Jobs frendes herde of all y trouble, that happened vnto him, there came thre off them, euery one from his owne place: namely, Eliphaz the Themanite, Baldad the Suhite, and Sophar the Naamathite.

For they were agreed together to come, to shewe their compassion vpon him, and to comforte him. So when they lifte vp their eyes a farre off, they knewe him not.

The boke of Job.

Then they cried, and wepte: then euery one off them rente his clothes, and sprynckled dust vpon their heades in the ayre. They sat them downe by him also vpon the grounde, viij. dayes and viij. nightes. Neither was there any of them that spake one worde vnto him, for they sawe that his payne was very greate.

The III. Chapter.

After this opened Job his mouth, and cursed his daye, and sayde: lost be that daye, wherein I was borne: and the night, in the which it was sayde: there is a man hidde conceaued. The same daye be turned to darcknesse, and not regarded of God from aboue, neither be shyned vpon w light: but be couered with darcknesse, and the shadowe of death. Let the dymme cloude fall vpon it, and let it be lapped in with sorowe. Let the darcknesse ouercome y night, let it not be reckened amonge the dayes off the yere, ner counted in the monethes. Despyed be that night, and discommended: let them that curse the daye, geue it their curse also, euen those that be ready to rayse vp Leuiathan. Let the starres be dymme thorow darcknesse of it. Let it loke for light, but let it se none, neither the rysynge vp of the sayre moynynge: because it shut not vp the wombe that bare me, ner hyd these sorowes from myne eyes.

D Alas, why dyed I not in y byrth? Why dyd not I perysh, as soone as I came out of my mothers wombe? Why set they me vpon y knees? Why gaue they me suck with their breasts? Then shulde I now haue lyen still, I shulde haue slepte, and bene at rest: like as the kynges ad lordes of y earth, which buyldethem selues speciall places: As the prynces that haue greate substance of golde, 7 their houses full of syluer. O that I utterly had no beyng, or were as a thynge borne out of tyme (that is put asyde) ether as yonge children, which neuer sawe the light. There must the wicked ceasse from their tyranny,

C there soch as are ouerlaboured, be at rest: there are those letten out fre, which haue bene in prison, so that they heare nomore the voyce of the oppiessoure: There are small and greate: the bonde man, and he that is fre fro his master.

Wherefore is the light geuen, to him that is in mysery? and life vnto them, that haue heuy hertes? (Which longe for death, and it cometh not: for yf they might fynde the graue, they wolde be maruelous glad, as

This is the cause, that I syghe before I eate, and my roarynges fall out like a water floude. For the thyng that I feared, is come vpon me: and the thyng that I was afrayed of, is happened vnto me. Was I not happy? Had I not quyetnesse? Was I not in rest? And now cometh soch mysery vpon me.

The III. Chapter.

Then answered Eliphaz of Theman, and sayde vnto him: If we begynne to comon with the, peradventure thou wilt be myscontene, but who can withholde himself from speakinge? Beholde, thou hast bene a teacher of many, and hast comforted the weery handes.

Thy wordes haue set vp those that were fallen, thou hast refreshed the weake knees. But now that the plague is come vpon the, thou shredest awaye: now that it hath touched thyself, thou art faint harted. Where is now thy feare of God, thy stedfastnesse, thy patience, and the perfectnesse of thy life? Considre (I praye the) who euer peryshed, beynge an innocent? Or, when were the godly destroyed? As for those that plowe wickednesse (as I haue seene myself) and sowe myscheffe, they reape y same. For whis God bloweth vpon them, they perysh, and are destroyed thorow the blast of his wrath. The roaryng of the lyon, the cryenge off the lyoness, 7 y teth off y lyons whelpes are broke. The greate lyon perysheth, because he ca get no praye and the lyons whelpes are scatred abroad.

There is spoken vnto me a thyng in counsell, which hath geuen a terrible sounde in myne eare, with a vision in the night, when men are fallen a slepe. Soch feare and drede came vpon me, that all my bones shoke. And when the wynde passed ouer by me, the hayres of my flesh stode vp.

Then stode there one before me, whose face I knewe not: an ymage there was, and the wether was still, so that I herde this voyce: Maye a man be iustified before God? Maye there eny man be indged to be cleue, by reason of his owne workes? Beholde, he hath founde vn saythfulnesse amonge his owne seruantes, and proude disobedience amonge his angels.

The V. Chapter.
